Chilly Seminole Temperature Drops To 21

With temperatures in the low 20s in Seminole County overnight and below 26 degrees for 7 to 8 hours, citrus growers face the loss of their crop and possible damage to foliage and trees, Seminole County Agricultural Extension Agent Frank Jasa said today.

The low temperature registered at the Agri-Center near Five Points was 21, and the extended cold period was enough to freeze the citrus fruit, he said. Damage to foliage may become apparent as early as Wednesday, especially to new growth, but it may be six months before the full extent of the freeze damage is known to the bark and wood of the trees, he added.

The area forecast calls for warmer temperatures through Wednesday, with highs today in the mid to upper 50s and in the low to mid 70s Wednesday, and lows tonight in the mid to upper 40s.

Nelson & Co., of Oviedo, one of the county's largest citrus growers, utilized wind machines in an effort to minimize damage in its groves, sales manager and vice president Wes Evans said. The company no longer heats groves because of pollution regulations and the high cost, he said.

Evans said the low was 20 degrees in Oviedo, and he anticipates considerable damage to the citrus crop and in the low areas, where trees were hurt last year will be hurt again.

A large percentage of the specialty crops, such as Temple oranges, that would be harvested in the next six weeks will be lost to the cold, Evans predicted.

Jasa said this morning it was too early to tell the full extent of the damage to the vegetable crop.

across the state dropped, with officials predicting the damage would exceed the devastating 1981 freeze.

"There is an indication that we have sustained significant citrus fruit damage throughout the citrus fruit belt of Florida," said Mark Belcher, spokesman for Florida Citrus Mutual in Lakeland.

"We reached critical temperatures last night generally between 10-11 p.m. and we have been at and below, and in some cases well below, critical levels ever since," he said.

Freeze damage varied around the citrus belt, but "it seems to have covered just about the entire citrus belt all the way from the southern end at Vero Beach on up into the northern end," he said.

Temperatures of 27 degrees for four hours or more are required before fruit sustains damage. Citrus growers stick a special citrus thermometer in the fruit to determine the temperature.

"Compared to the freeze of Jan. 12-13, 1981, this freeze appears to be somewhat worse at least in specific areas," he said.

The 1981 cold spell destroyed $232 million in citrus, vegetable and nursery crops in five counties and left 19,000 migrant farmworkers and other people unemployed.

Trees were especially susceptible to freezing conditions, Belcher said, because they still had not fully recovered from the 1981 freeze. Additionally, some spring-type weather late last month brought early blooms to many citrus trees.

Belcher said citrus industry officials would not be able to estimate the exact amount of damage for several days, and was unsure of what impact, if any, the freeze would have on consumers.

National Weather Service forecasters said record temperatures were set across the state early today. Tallahassee's previous record temperature of 21 in 1942 was broken early today at 14.

Orlando set a new record at 23 degrees, Miami had a record low of 33 and Miami Beach had a record 35-degree reading. West Palm Beach temperatures fell to 29, also a new record.

The mercury dipped to 22 degrees today in Daytona Beach, breaking a 1981 record of 28 degrees.

In Dade County, vegetable growers hired helicopters to hover over their fields to keep the cold air circulating. A few farmers opted for small fires and kerosene fueled "smudge pots" in an attempt to save their fields from further damage.

Zoo Workers' Wages, Hours Are Restored

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

Employees at the Central Florida Zoo in Sanford, who had their salaries cut in half and their hours cut back as the result of the fact the zoo is operating in the red, will now have the wages and hours restored, Al Rozon, executive director of the zoo, said today.

The exception will be areas that do not require full-time services, he said.

The zoo has $32,000 in unpaid bills, including telephone, utilities and food, and is operating on a monthly deficit, which Rozon said is not nearly as much as the $17,000 that has been reported.

The December payment of $1,000 a month plus interest on the $100,000 borrowed when the move was made to the new site has not yet been made, he said.

Rozon, who met with the zoo's board of directors Saturday in emergency session, said he is returning employees to full pay at the direction of the board, but doesn't know where the money is coming from.

After poor attendance was reported at the zoo over the Christmas weekend because of rainy weather, Rozon said he called the 27-member staff together Jan. 4, to inform them of the necessity for a temporary wage cut because of the zoo's dire financial condition.

Men and women employees who were the sole support of their families were not asked to take a cut.

"All of the managerial staff, including myself and down through the ranks, took an across-the-board 50 percent cut. We put ourselves on a time clock like everybody else," said Rozon.

Wages of full-time zoo employees ranged from $22,000 to $7,525 before the cutback, he said. This does not include weekend and part-time workers, who are mostly college and high school students who operate concessions.

Rozon said no one had complained to him about the cuts or threatened to quit, and several came to him to say they would "stick it out" as long as he did, he said.

The zoo has an annual budget of more than $300,000, Rozon said, which comes from admissions and contributions. Some of the animal food is paid for through the zoo's Adopt-an-Animal program, in which individuals and firms sponsor zoo animals.

"The trend of running in debt goes back to October," Rozon said. "The board of directors knew what was going to happen. I briefed the president and treasurer in December on the option of cutting back salaries and told them I refused to lay off anyone before Christmas but that if things didn't pick up it would be necessary."

"We have curtailed most of our purchases limiting them only to essentials. If there is no crowd or there is bad weather, we won't open concessions. At one time we considered closing Mondays and Tuesdays, but that wouldn't save that much money, as the majority of employees have to be there anyway," he said.

Rozon does not plan to raise the admission fee, which is now $2 for adults and $1 for children, as he feels it would be counter-productive.

According to the zoo's $1-a-year lease agreement with the county, it has to maintain the adjacent county park, and this costs the zoo between $48,000 and $51,000 a year, Rozon said. "We have to insure, maintain, repair and supply labor, utilities and sanitation for the park. It takes two or three persons two to three hours a day to maintain the park," he added.

Tentative OK Given Sanford Liquor Law

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Saying the proposed ordinance would "come back to haunt the city," Sanford City Commissioner David Farr voted Monday night against preliminary approval of a new law setting requirements for licensing alcoholic beverage establishments. However, the measure received preliminary approval on a 4-1 vote.

Final adoption of the ordinance is scheduled for Jan. 25.

Farr's particular concern in the proposed new law is a section forbidding the location of any new liquor-selling establishment within 2,000 feet of an existing church or school. "There's too much emphasis on the proximity to churches and schools," Farr said.

City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles interpreted Farr's concern by asking what would happen if a church or school wished to locate within 2,000 feet of a liquor establishment.

Farr nodded. No answer was given to the question Monday night, but City Attorney William Colbert said today that the ordinance is not directed at a school or church. It is directed at liquor-license holders trying to locate within 2,000 feet of a school or church.

Colbert said that if a church or school wishes to locate or build within the 2,000 feet, it may. The ordinance will have no effect on existing establishments.

The proposed ordinance calls for six classes of licenses: sale of beer and wine for consumption off premises, such as a convenience store; sale of alcoholic beverages of all types for consumption off premises, such as a package store; sale of all alcoholic beverages for consumption on premises, such as a bar; sale of beer only on premises in restaurants able to serve 20 persons food; and sale of beer and wine for consumption on premises in establishments able to serve food to 20 or more persons. A special liquor license also would be available for restaurants and lounges where 60 percent of the gross income comes from the sale of food.

Colbert noted that a special state law, applicable only to Seminole County, requires that gross income at such establishments be 60 percent, from food. State law in other parts of the state call for only 51 percent of the business's income be from food sales.

The proposed law sets a limitation on the number of licenses that may be issued for package stores and bars to one — license of each type per 2,500 population in the city, a repeal of the current state law.

The proposal also prohibits the location of bottle clubs in the city.

Colbert said two other types of licenses are available from the state — for special activities by fraternal groups for one or two days and for fraternal organizations and private clubs on a continuing basis.

In other business, the City Commission voted unanimously to lease 3,000 to 3,500 square feet on the ground floor at City Hall to Seminole County as the temporary location of the county's Sanford branch library while renovations are being completed at the library on First Street.

Sports Stadium Has A Problem

Wes Rinker, operator of the city-owned Sanford Sports Stadium, could be in violation of his lease agreement with the city whether he installs new lights at the facility or not.

The city has been leasing the stadium, used by Rinker's Florida Baseball School and Seminole High School athletic teams and other youth sports, for years. The lease calls for Rinker to maintain the facility and install new lights as the city's compensation for the lease.

It called for the new lights to be installed last summer. Rinker is now working with an Iowa-based firm, Musco Sports Lighting, to have new lights installed at a cost of $31,000 on a lease-payment arrangement.

The problem, City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles told the Sanford City Commission on Monday night, is that the lights will remain the property of Musco until they are paid for in full and may be removed if Rinker defaults in payment.

Knowles said that if Rinker is allowed to contract for the new lights permitting removal rights by Musco and the current lights at the stadium are removed, the stadium will be left without lights.

Then, "The city would be in the position of allowing use of the stadium without compensation," Knowles said.

He said the stadium was a "white elephant" as far as the city was concerned when Rinker leased the facility. But, he added, if the lights are removed the stadium will again be a white elephant. "If something unfortunate should happen, you have already made a decision," he added.

Mayor Lee P. Moore said that if Rinker moves out of the stadium, the city would have only an attractive nuisance left.

Commissioner David Farr suggested the city might wish to co-sign with Rinker on a contract, guaranteeing payment on the lights. Moore didn't think that was a very good idea.

No action was taken on the issue.

Rinker, who has been leasing the stadium for the last seven years and has 12 years to go before the lease expires, said today the problem boils down simply to the essentials that "I signed a contract to put up lights and they (the city) are not accepting the conditions."

He said that while some members of the City Commission seem supportive, Knowles is "coming up with this and that stipulation."

"They are putting stipulations on something they are not interested in and that befuddles my mind," he said.

Kidnap Suspect Held Here Without Bond

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

The man charged with the abduction of a Sanford real-estate saleswoman last week is being held in Seminole County jail today without bond. However, deputies have determined the man, previously identified as David R. Longstreet, 41, of Pinellas Park, is actually James Delono Winkles, 41, of Clearwater.

Winkles was positively identified following a check of his fingerprints, deputies said. The alias Longstreet was the name given on his Florida driver's license.

Winkles is being held in the county jail following his transfer from the Orange County jail Monday on charges of kidnapping, armed robbery and aggravated assault.

He was arrested Thursday by Orange County deputies in the Pine Hills area of Orlando after the woman fled from the vehicle in which she allegedly was being held by Winkles toward a nearby Orange County deputy's vehicle. Deputies apprehended Winkles shortly afterward.

Donna Maltby, 28, of 247 Abbott Ave., Lake Mary, told deputies she was abducted while showing Winkles a piece of property on the west side of Interstate 4 near State Road 46 which he indicated he was interested in buying.

Several other county law-enforcement officials have indicated warrants for Winkles' arrest for a variety of charges also have been issued in their respective areas.

A Pinellas County sheriff's spokesman said Winkles is wanted in that county on charges of grand theft, forgery and failure to appear for trial.

"He (Winkles) was released on $10,000 bond and did not appear for trial of the grand theft charge in September," said Sgt. Jerry Harper, Pinellas County investigator. "The charge is that Winkles thinks he's a con man and he tried to sell a man some property in Citrus County. However, the man was suspicious and notified us. Our undercover agents observed the incident and we made the arrest."

Harper also said several detectives from his department have visited Winkles at the Seminole County jail to question him concerning the charges in that county and Seminole County.

According to James Brown, public information officer for the Pinellas County Sheriff's Department, three women have been abducted in that county during the last 18 months, and the body of one of them was discovered recently.

Seminole County deputies said Polk County has a warrant for Winkles' arrest on charges of sexual battery and abduction. Also deputies said the car Winkles allegedly was driving during the Seminole County abduction is reportedly stolen from Hillsborough County.

IN BRIEF

Reagan Sizes Up Options On Possible Tax Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Like a riverboat gambler awaiting the final card, President Reagan is quietly sizing up various options before deciding whether to call for a tax hike.

"He has not made up his mind," White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Monday after Reagan conferred with House Republican leaders. "He has received ideas but has made no commitments." Reagan is expected to make a decision by week's end.

Jailings Spark Protest

CARROLLTON, Ala. (UPI) — Civil rights activists have called for an economic boycott and daily picketing to protest the jailing of two black women who illegally marked absentee ballots for 39 elderly and illiterate whites.

Julia Wilder, 68, and Maggie Bozeman, 51, both active in the movement to get blacks to vote, were taken Monday to Tutwiler Prison for Women after a tense two-hour hearing in which they were refused probation by Circuit Judge Cletus Junkin. Mrs. Wilder faces a five-year term and Mrs. Bozeman four years for vote fraud.

New England Quaking

WESTON, Mass. (UPI) — An earth tremor shook New England for the third time in three days Monday, briefly rattling buildings and homes. No damages or injuries were reported.

Scientists said it was the first series of quakes in the region in 40 years. The tremors, all centered in New Brunswick, Canada, were followed by scores of aftershocks.

Reagan Vs. Reagan

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — President Reagan's younger daughter, actress Patti Davis, has joined a California campaign seeking to halt nuclear weapons testing, but is trying not to turn the issue into a father-daughter dispute.

"I don't want to get into a battle with my father on this," Miss Davis said at a celebrity rally sponsored by Californians for a Bilateral Nuclear Weapons Freeze, a group seeking to put the issue on the state ballot next November.

Cold Knocks Out Power To 1,300 In Lake Mary

The cold weather and power overload on a Florida Power Corp. (FPC) branch and feeder line left 1,300 Lake Mary customers without electricity for 30 minutes, Monday night, from 10:40 to 11:10 p.m., according to Tracy Smith, FPC public information coordinator.

Some additional customers may have been without electricity for a somewhat longer period of time, Smith said. "It was mostly due to the cold and the heavy use of electricity at that time," Smith said.

Vogt To Discuss '82 Legislature

State Sen. John Vogt, D-Cocoa Beach, will report on the upcoming session of the Florida Legislature, at a 7:30 p.m. meeting Thursday of the Seminole County Democratic Executive Committee.

The meeting will be held at the Seminole County Agricultural Center located west of U.S. 17-92 at Five Points behind the fire station.

Vogt's senatorial district includes Seminole County.

Cumberland Farms, Publix Victimized

Two More Armed Robberies Reported

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

Investigations are continuing today into the Monday night armed robberies of a Seminole County grocery store and Sanford convenience store. The two stores were robbed by unknown gunmen of an undetermined amount of money.

The Cumberland Farms convenience store, located at 3800 Orlando Drive, was robbed by a lone gunman at about 10:50 p.m. The Publix grocery store, located in the Butler Plaza, Maitland, was robbed by two masked gunmen at about 7:30 p.m., sheriff's deputies said.

Cumberland clerk Charlene Stewart, 31, of Sanford, said a man came into the store and asked to use the restroom. He later asked for a cup of coffee, and when informed there wasn't any coffee, he requested a carton of cigarettes, police said.

When Ms. Stewart turned to get the cigarettes, the man pulled a handgun from his jacket pocket. The man told Ms. Stewart to put the money from the register into a bag and not to "mess around with the change."

The gunman then locked Ms. Stewart in the back room of the store and fled. Ms. Stewart left the store through a back door and notified police.

Witnesses at the Publix grocery store said two men wearing stocking masks and armed with handguns entered the store and ordered customers and staff to lie on the floor, deputies said.

The gunmen then emptied the store registers and robbed store employee, Marjorie Jensen, 20, of Maitland, of an undetermined amount of money. They then fled on foot.

Deputies said several witnesses gave chase, but were unable to apprehend the gunmen.

SANFORD WOMAN'S HOME ROBBED

Someone broke into a Sanford woman's home at about 5 a.m. Monday and stole her purse, food stamps, $70 in cash, a credit card and assorted papers while she slept.

Debra A. Knight, 25, of 144 Bethune Circle told Sanford police someone broke into her home through the living room window and stole the property from her bedroom, where she had been sleeping.

LONGWOOD HOME BURGLARIZED

Burglars broke into an unoccupied Longwood home sometime between Nov. 15 and 6:20 p.m. Sunday, stealing two paintings valued at about $750 and causing about $20 damage.

The house located at 24 Windsor Isle and owned by Scott L. Edwards, 22, of Boulder, Colo., has been vacant since November, sheriff's deputies said. The house has been posted for sale.

GLITTERY HEIST

A Longwood woman's home was robbed of about $30,500 worth of silverware and jewelry sometime between 2 p.m. Friday and 4:24 p.m. Sunday.

Gayle Barry, 33, of 1110 Cambridge Court, told sheriff's deputies someone entered her home through an unlocked garage window and an open interior door, then removed the silverware from a linen closet and the jewelry from the bedroom.

DOUGLAS SQUARE BURGLARIZED

Three offices located in the Douglas Square in Altamonte Springs were burglarized between 6 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. Saturday by thieves who made off with cash, paintings and drugs from a pharmacy.

The thieves entered the Douglas Square Pharmacy by breaking the front door lock, deputies said. Once inside, the burglars broke open the cash register, stealing $100 cash and an undetermined amount of controlled and over-the-counter drugs. Deputies said the stolen items were apparently removed from the pharmacy in a white trash can taken from the office. A handgun valued at $250, also was stolen from the pharmacy.

The thieves then reportedly broke into an adjoining office, Damon Clinical Laboratories, and stole three paintings valued at about $500.

The Wekiva Doctors Medical Center was also broken into but deputies said nothing appeared to be disturbed.

Deputies said the thieves cut all of the office phone lines and stuffed paper in the door locks and door jams to apparently prevent the doors from relocking.

THIEVES STEAL SCOTCH

Thieves broke into an Alabama man's car, parked at 572 Whisperwood Drive in Longwood and stole a case of Scotch, a plaque and a citizens band radio sometime between 8 p.m. Friday and 8:30 a.m. Saturday.

Casselberry Council Meeting Hot; Next Week May Be Hotter

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

Angry words filled the packed Casselberry Council chambers Monday night as the council voted 4-1 to reject Mayor Owen Sheppard's recommendation to reappoint Vince Ballassona to the planning and zoning board. Councilman Jim Lavigne was the lone dissenter.

At the request of Councilman Frank Schutte, council members voted on each appointee individually and upon arriving at Ballassona's nomination, Schutte led the move to deny the appointment.

Explaining his action, Schutte said Ballassona's May 4 request to council to delay action on a matter that could have influenced a controversial condominium project left, "certain concerns on my mind and many unanswered questions. To this day, we have not been given a reason for his request to delay that action."

"When I appeared before you on May 4 I did so as a citizen of Casselberry and not a board member," Ballassona said. "I have that right."

Lavigne said he did not feel Schutte's reason for appointment denial was justified and that he felt the move was, "crass vindictiveness," and a political matter because, "Mr. Ballassona, on occasion, criticizes the council." Lavigne added if there was a problem with Ballassona's conduct during the May 4 meeting, it should have been "brought out in the open then."

Sheppard said he received several calls from other planning and zoning board members voicing their support of Ballassona's appointment.

"I'm not voting against you (Ballassona) for the reasons Mr. Schutte has said," Councilman Bill Grier said. "I'm voting against you because I got a call from two female residents in a business establishment who heard Mr. Ballassona using vulgarity and he was asked to leave."

"That's a lie," Ballassona said. "I've never used vulgarity in front of a woman." He added that he felt Grier opposed him because of prior arguments between the two men.

Grier said following the meeting that he regrets making the comments, adding, "I should have just said no and left it at that."

After the meeting, Ballassona said, "You want to see fireworks? You'll see them next week. I promise you that."

Council unanimously accepted all other mayoral nominations for appointments to the planning and zoning, civil service, code enforcement and parks and recreation boards. City Attorney Ken McInosh, City Treasurer Mary Hawthorne and City Physician George Costaro also were unanimously reappointed to their posts.

The council also voted unanimously to reject a request by Grady Cobb, who operates 436 Auto Sales on State Road 436, for reduction or waiver of a $9,000 fine levied against him last year by the city's code enforcement board. The board found Cobb guilty of several building and fire code regulations.

Council members said they could not support cancelling the fine, reduced by the council previously from $14,700, because they felt Cobb brought the problems on himself.

91 Die In Bitter Cold

United Press International

A bitter arctic front kept a lock on the historic deep freeze from the Great Lakes to the Sun Belt today, assailing Florida's citrus crops, paralyzing parts of Texas and plunging upstate New York temperatures to well below zero.

At least 81 deaths were blamed on the storm, which peaked Monday in what the National Meteorological Center described as the coldest day of the 20th Century.

The storm glazed Texas with freezing rain, choking off roads and bridges, straining already burdened utility supplies and shutting schools. Police urged travelers to stay home.

Old Forge, N.Y., had a low of 36 degrees below zero. Buffalo, N.Y., dug out from under Monday's storm that dumped more than 2 feet of snow and killed at least three people — including a man who froze to death in his car stranded on a downtown street.

There were signs the freeze that gripped Pennsylvania since Saturday was easing today, but only enough for temperatures to inch into the teens.

Northern Californians were threatened by more mudslides that may keep them out of their homes until spring. Six Detroit-area hospitals had treated 50 people for frostbite by Monday.

The unrelenting cold front zeroed in on Florida's billion-dollar citrus groves, where growers lost $231 million last winter, and strained home heaters to the flash point.

Subzero and single-digit temperatures were reported as far south as the Tennessee Valley and the mercury stayed near zero from the northern Rockies to New England.

Three people — at least two of them children — died when a single-engine plane crashed Monday night near Riverton, Wyo. Authorities said the crash was reported by a young boy who walked from the wreckage to a farmhouse.

Fourteen deaths were reported in Pennsylvania; 12 in Illinois, 10 in Michigan; seven in Minnesota; six in Indiana and North Carolina; four each in Wyoming, New York and Virginia each reported three deaths; Kentucky, Ohio and New Mexico reported two apiece; South Carolina, South Dakota, Nebraska, Florida, Missouri, Texas and Oregon each reported one weather-related death.

In Florida, temperatures plunged to record lows of 14 in Tallahassee, 23 at Orlando and 29 at West Palm Beach. The cold battered Florida's billion-dollar citrus crop today and officials predicted the damage would exceed the devastating 1981 freeze.

Civic Center Fee Waiver Unresolved

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

No action was taken by the Sanford City Commission Monday night on a request to reduce or waive $443 in rental fees for the use of the Sanford Civic Center for the Seminole Mutual Concert Association's (SMCA) Champagne Ball last month.

Commissioner Eddie Keith brought the matter up and Commissioner Ned Yancey, who is also a member of the association board, supported waiving the fees, saying fees should be waived for all community-based organizations.

Yancey said the SMCA, because of high rental fees for the civic center, will hold its concerts in Lake Mary High School this year. He said the SMCA board of directors believe moving the concerts to Lake Mary, a more central location, will spur increased membership.

City Manager W. E. "Pete" Knowles said, however, that the fees have little or nothing to do with moving the concert locale. He said the city was notified nearly a year ago that the concerts would be moved to Lake Mary. And Knowles warned city commissioners that while the civic center needs to be upgraded, fees for the center's use were increased to help pay its operating costs.

Knowles said the commission must give serious thought to the need for municipal revenues before it waives any fees. He said the city's revenue position is going to get worse during the next year.

Come budget time in late summer, Knowles said, the commission will have "tough decisions" to make about whether it can continue to fund various city functions.

"You'll have questions on whether to continue supporting the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, and the General Sanford Museum and Library," Knowles said.

Knowles said city revenues from property taxes will be declining as homestead exemptions increase from $20,000 to $25,000, removing more property from the tax rolls. Currently, 47 percent of Sanford's property is exempt from taxation.

Knowles said still further losses in revenue will result as inventory taxes decline as called for by the Florida Legislature. The city manager said the commission will have to raise property taxes by about 33 cents per $1,000 assessed valuation just to keep revenues the same as the current year.

Knowles said that since increased rental fees for the civic center went into effect on July 27, 1981, there have been 87 rentals and only one cancellation.

Robert Leon Henderson, 37, of Clayton, Ala., told sheriff's deputies someone entered his locked car and stole the $75 worth of Scotch, $5 plaque and $150 radio and left all four doors ajar.

TWO WOMEN FACE DRUG CHARGES

A Longwood and Altamonte Springs woman are free on bond today from the Seminole County jail following their arrest at about 11:30 p.m. Saturday on drug-related charges in a department store parking lot off U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford.

Lou Ann Shatto, 18, of 32A Deik Road, Longwood, was arrested and charged with sale and delivery, possession and conspiracy to sell a controlled substance, deputies said. She was arrested after she allegedly attempted to sell Qualudes to an undercover drug agent for $3.50 each.

Donna Marie Petry, 18, of 905 Whitewater Court, Altamonte Springs, was arrested along with Ms. Shatto and charged with possession and conspiracy to sell a controlled substance and possession of drug paraphernalia. She was arrested when she reportedly attempted to sell Qualudes and marijuana to undercover drug agents.

SANFORD HOME RANSACKED

Burglars broke into a Sanford man's home between 10:30 a.m. and 2:10 p.m. Saturday and stole an undetermined amount of property after ransacking the entire house.

James Johnson, 44, of 100 Wilkins Circle, told sheriff's deputies he would provide a complete list of the stolen items at a later date.

FIRE AT COUNTY JAIL

A trash can fire was discovered in a cell at the Seminole County jail about 7:15 a.m. Sunday and extinguished before fire units could respond.

No injuries or damages resulted from the fire, according to Steve Saunders, jail administrator. Saunders said investigators are trying to determine who set the fire in Cell B-3. He added that "nothing was damaged. Even the trash can is functional."

A LOT OF CABBAGE

Vandals caused about $1,000 damage to a cabbage field located near State Road 46 and Berier Avenue.

Ruth M. Burk, of Lake Monroe, told sheriff's deputies someone drove a vehicle through the cabbage field sometime between 2 and 7 p.m. Sunday, causing extensive damage to the field and crop.

Sen. Hawkins Better, But Still In Hospital

ORLANDO (UPI) — Sen. Paula Hawkins, recovering from injuries suffered when a television backdrop fell on her last week, says she feels like a dwarf and "doctors are trying to stretch me back to size."

The 53-year-old Florida Republican was struck on the head and shoulder by a 6-foot, 40-pound wooden backdrop last Tuesday while taping an interview at the WESH-TV studio in suburban Winter Park. She was briefly knocked unconscious.

Since the accident, Mrs. Hawkins has undergone neurological tests and treatment by a physical therapist. On Monday, she was "up walking around the hospital and feeling a lot better."

"I think I will be able to get out of the hospital Wednesday," she said in a telephone interview from her hospital bed Monday. "The doctor tells me that I will see rainbows around things for a while because it was a strong blow to the head."

"The funny thing is I'm 5-foot-6, but I feel like I'm 5-foot-2 and they are trying to stretch me back to my size," she joked.

Mrs. Hawkins' physician, Dr. Edward Farrar, said the senator has regained "almost full range motion of her neck." He listed her condition as fair.

Mrs. Hawkins said she has been doing "a little work" from her bed but spends most of the day in traction. She added the treatments will continue at her Winter Park home when she is released.

Mrs. Hawkins refused comment on whether she plans to file a lawsuit against the television station.

Florida's junior senator was being interviewed for the prerecorded public affairs program "Real Estate Action Line" when she was hit by the falling stage prop. The accident happened about 18 minutes into the taping of the half-hour show.

Despite requests from several news organizations, WESH management "locked up" the tape and has refused to air the program or release still photographs of the accident. The show was scheduled to run Sunday but was pre-empted.

"We don't think being beamed is the way a United States senator should be depicted," WESH general manager John E. Evans said in defending the refusal to release the tape. "That tape stays locked up."

House Panel Toughens Drunk Driving Laws

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Members of the House were reminded how one of their own, nearing the peak of his political career, was killed on a highway by a drunk driver.

The late Rep. George Stone had been scheduled to become House Speaker the next year when he died in 1980 as a result of a head-on crash. The woman driving the other car had twice previously been convicted of drunk driving yet had never been in jail.

"I was just an 8-year-old boy," Bob Stone of Tallahassee told the House Criminal Justice Committee Monday in a broken voice. "And that man was my father."

After listening to Stone and relatives of other victims of drunk driving, the panel unanimously approved a bill providing for mandatory jail terms for motorists convicted of driving while intoxicated from drugs or alcohol.

The measure also would require suspected drunk drivers to consent to urine tests or lose their licenses for six months, toughen the penalties on repeat offenders and develop legal intoxication levels for various drugs.

"The minimum jail sentence is much needed. We need to show drunk drivers we mean business," said Mary Wiley of Orlando, who formed a Florida chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Drivers after her daughter, Alice, was killed by an intoxicated motorist. "If this law was passed two years ago, Alice would be alive today."

The bill would mandate jail terms only when a driver is found to have a blood-alcohol reading of 0.15 or more. The legal level of intoxication, now 0.10, would remain unchanged.

Motorists convicted at the highest reading would have to spend two days in jail for the first offense, 15 days for a second offense within three years and 30 days for a third offense within five years.

"We feel if somebody spends some time in jail for a first conviction, it will be a deterrent," said Rep. Dick Reichler, D-Orlando, who proposed the mandatory terms.

No-Fault Law Being Gutted?

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — It seemed clear, because of their traditional insurance stands in previous years, that House and Senate members would clash head-on during Sunset review of the no-fault insurance law.

The collision became a certainty Monday when the House Insurance Committee accepted a plan that would expand the category of automobile-accident victims who can sue in court. Insurance industry lobbyists say the plan guts the current no-fault law and could send insurance premiums skyrocketing.

U.S. Decision On Taiwan

Aircraft Angers Peking

PEKING (UPI) — China angrily rejected President Reagan's compromise decision to replace Taiwan's aging jet fighters today and Western diplomats said the standoff could force a downgrading of Sino-American relations.

Reagan decided against selling Taiwan the more advanced F-5G and F16 aircraft, but a State Department spokesman said Monday Washington will replace existing Taiwan aircraft with "comparable" models.

MACO Open House Slated For Sunday

The Metropolitan Alcoholism Council of Central Florida (MACO) will hold an open house of its new facility on Sunday from 3 to 7 p.m.

Located at 712 W. Gore Street, Orlando, the new quarters will house the council's social setting detoxification program, the 28-day intensive residential care program, the multiple offender rehabilitation education (M.O.R.E.) program and the council's administrative offices.

Serving Orange, Osceola and Seminole counties, the new location will accommodate 40 patients and make it possible to provide more cost effective and efficient care.

MACO also serves as the information and referral source for family members with alcohol problems and is the prime advocacy group in combating alcoholism.

The public is invited to Sunday's open house.

Historical Society Faces Rough Going

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

At least two items slated for discussion at tonight's Altamonte Springs commission meeting could spark lively debate according to a poll of city commissioners.

The council will meet at 7 p.m. in City Hall, 225 Newburyport Ave.

The commission is slated to review a request from the Altamonte Springs Historical Society for permit and fee waivers, a possible relocation site and a municipal loan to move a house, which dates to the early 1900s, from its current location at 130 Park Place to another site. The commission is also scheduled to hear a request by Ron McGarry of A&R Recreational Vehicle Rental, 876 Semoran Blvd., Casselberry, to refund all or part of a $200 occupational license fee paid to the city in October.

Commissioners Cheney Colardo and Dudley Bates said they could not support the historical society request. However, both said they support the work of the society to provide a museum and historical information for city residents.

The society is requesting the city waive all applicable permits and fees that could be required in moving the house. Also, the society is asking the city to place the house, donated by Florida Hospital-Altamonte, on city-owned property directly in front of the municipal public safety complex near State Road 436 or along the west side of Hermits Trail Park.

Finally, the society is asking the city to loan the society up to $10,000 to move the house.

"I'm all for historical preservation and I don't want anyone to think we're taking apple pie and throwing it on the ground," Ms. Colardo said. "I still have a lot of questions which I will address to the society at the meeting."

Ms. Colardo said she does not object to waiving permit and fee requirements, but that she is concerned about the request for a loan and relocation site.

"It would also have to be demonstrated to me that the property in front of the public safety complex is not needed by the city."

Bates said, he "has no problems with the fee and permit waiver, 'but I oppose the relocation sites' and 'I am not convinced the effort and costs justify the move.'"

"I'm afraid we're faced with a well-intentioned boondoggle," he said. "The only redeeming value the home has is that it's old. While I support what the society is trying to do... I can't get too excited about this project."

Reis declined comment on the society's request saying he needs additional time to study the matter.

In other action tonight, McGarry is requesting repayment of all or part of a fee he paid the city in October for an occupational license.

"I was running my business (vehicle rental) at 457 W. State Road 436," McGarry said. "I was renewing my lease with my landlord and occupational license with the city in October because the landlord said he'd lease the space to me. Well, after I got the license for $200 before the first of October deadline, the landlord told me I couldn't stay because the city won't allow more than two businesses on that site. So, I had to move my business and I feel I'm entitled to a rebate."

McGarry's firm is now located at 876 Semoran Blvd., Casselberry. He said he feels the city knew that he would not be able to operate out of the Altamonte Springs site before he obtained the $200 permit. The Casselberry occupational license cost him $100, he said.

"The city ordinance says a rebate will be made only unless it clearly appears that such license tax was collected by mistake or error; and I don't feel the city made a mistake or error in this instance," Ms. Colardo said. "Mr. McGarry's grievance is not with the city in this case but with the property owner."

Bates said he agrees with Ms. Colardo. "If we rebate him, we'd have to do the same for a lot of other people," he said.

Longwood Favors Fluoridation, Needs Money

By LEE DANCY
Herald Staff Writer

Youth in Longwood could soon be benefiting from added protection against tooth decay.

The Longwood City Commission voted unanimously Monday evening to fluoridate the city's water supply, pending receipt of federal grant money necessary to finance the project.

Money needed for installing approximately $9,000 worth of water-fluoridating equipment should come from federal funds administered by the state, according to Linda Greis, a representative from the Florida Fluoridation Project.

Fluoride added to the city's water could prevent tooth decay and give children up to 65 percent fewer cavities, Greis said.

Greis said President Reagan's cuts to the federal budget would probably trim the amount of money available for the fluoridation project. Longwood was one of the first cities to apply for the grant, however, and stands a good chance of complete funding, Ms. Greis said.

Even if grant money is not available for fluoridating

Longwood's water, the city will spend the $1,500 necessary to fund the designs required to install the mechanism needed. Actual injection of fluoride into the water would be possible, but not necessarily accomplished, should the grant money falter, said City Administrator David Chacey.

Originally, the fluoridation grant was intended to fund the Longwood project for its first two years of operation. After those two years are complete, continuing fluoridation would cost each Longwood citizen between 20 and 40 cents each year, Ms. Greis said.

In order to gauge citizen opinion on the fluoridation issue, the commission directed the water department to include a questionnaire in its December billing. Longwood water customers were asked if they favored, opposed or were undecided about adding fluoride to the city's water.

Results of the poll on Monday evening showed nearly two-thirds of those who replied to the survey, favored fluoridation. Numerous dentists and one child pediatrician also appeared before the commission to endorse the fluoridation proposal. Two citizens present at the meeting opposed fluoridation.

Robert Daves and former City Commissioner John Hepp both said they disfavored fluoridation because it would not benefit all Longwood residents.

Four subdivisions, or 453 homes do not receive Longwood City water, but are serviced by the Sandalo Utilities Company in Casselberry. Hepp and Daves said because these Longwood residents would not benefit from fluoridation, it was not fair to put fluoride in the approximate 3,200 city water customer's taps.

"You have no validation for creating fluoridation unless you are going to give it to all of the city," Hepp said.

In other commission business, Charles S. "Chick" Pappas, the man who defeated Hepp in his bid for re-election was installed into the District 4 commission seat.

Hepp's election loss also left the mayor's seat vacant. Commissioner June Lormann, who has held her District 2 seat since 1973, was elected by her colleagues as mayor. Pappas was elected deputy mayor.

Both votes were unanimous. Mrs. Lormann was elected mayor once before in 1979 and held the title for one year.

How To Do Business With The Federal Government

A conference to give local businessmen a better idea of the goods and services the federal government needs and to let federal purchasing agents know what supplies are available in the central Florida area will be sponsored next week by U.S. Rep.

Bill McCollum, R-Altamonte Springs.

The day-long procurement conference, sponsored by McCollum with assistance from the Greater Orlando Chamber of Commerce, will begin at 8 a.m. Jan. 21 at the Congressional District how to do business with the federal government, and to develop sales contacts necessary to do so, McCollum said.

Leading the conference along with McCollum will be representatives of the U.S. Departments of Commerce and Defense. The meeting is intended to teach businessmen in the Fifth Major Blvd., Orlando.

Noting that the U.S. Government is the largest volume purchaser in the world, McCollum said this conference is "an excellent opportunity for private industry in the area to take advantage of the tremendous purchasing power of the federal government which will benefit the entire area's economy as well as individual businessmen."

Golden Fleece Goes To USDA

Menu Profile

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire today gave his Golden Fleece award for January to an Agriculture Department-funded study that found fast-food lovers tend to be patriotic and gourmands like "life in the fast lane."

The monthly award for examples of ridiculous government spending went to a $40,000 study "claiming that people who have a certain kind of personality eat certain kinds of foods," the Wisconsin Democrat said.

"My answer to this study is 'So what?' Who cares what it means when you eat carrots instead of caviar? Here's a $40,000 study calculated to make the American taxpayer eat his heart out."

The study was sponsored by the competitive research grants office of the Agriculture Department's science and education administration.

Anson Bertrand, the department's science and education director, put the responsibility for the study on Congress. He said the kinds of projects were mandated by Congress and the project was chosen by an outside panel of experts.

He said Congress cut out funding for department grants in the social sciences area two years ago.

Proxmire said it was because of studies like this one "that have little or no practical value."

It came to Proxmire's attention after Psychology Today magazine published the study's results in October, in an article titled "Profiles in Eating — Sexy Vegetarians and other Diet-Based Social Stereotypes."

Proxmire said the study found that:

—"Vegetarians are supposed to like intellectual tasks, crafts and want a good education."

—"Gourmand lovers are supposedly interested in 'life in the fast lane,' want spouses but few children and like to mix it up on the tennis court."

Old Friend, New Catalyst

It's no secret in this country or abroad that the Reagan administration has not been as successful in formulating a coherent foreign policy as in carrying out two of its other major goals in rebuilding national defense and curtailing federal spending.

The weakest section of the President's none-too-robust foreign-policy-making apparatus has been the National Security Council under Richard V. Allen. This deficiency has been all the more serious because international matters have not been the long suit for Mr. Reagan or any of his top White House advisers.

Mr. Allen's departure, recently announced, had to be. His poor judgment in handling a $1,000 payment and other gifts from Japanese contacts had become a messy controversy for the White House. And the open feud with Secretary of State Alexander Haig hampered his task of coordinating foreign-policy information. But, even if Mr. Allen had avoided all of these problems, he would still have been crippled from the first by the downgrading of the national security adviser's position, which placed him under Presidential Counselor Edwin Meese and denied him access to the President.

Thus, it is that Mr. Reagan has appointed Deputy Secretary of State William P. Clark Jr. as his new national security adviser in the first major management change of his administration. Obviously, the President hopes to shore up things.

There are prevailing seasons why William Clark should succeed where Richard Allen failed: First, and most important, Mr. Clark is Mr. Reagan's long-time, trusted friend and confidant. He was a former Reagan chief of staff in Sacramento and he recruited Mr. Meese and Michael K. Deaver, now deputy chief of staff to the President, to join the governor's staff. Also, his friendship with Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger dating back to those days, will enable him to conciliate differences between State and Defense.

The "big three" advisers now running the White House under Mr. Reagan — Meese, Deaver, and Chief of Staff James A. Baker — will become the "big four," with Mr. Clark commanding daily access to the President on equal terms.

An historical review of the National Security Council over the years is instructive. The NSC came into being because the revolution in communications accompanying the nuclear age required the President to have quicker access to centralized, inside foreign-policy advice and options in order to make timely decisions. More and more, since World War II, the White House has made foreign policy and the State Department has had a lesser, implementing role. Creative tensions and open conflicts between NSC and State have nearly always existed, and properly so if the President is to have the widest range of information.

The negative side of the Clark appointment is lack of foreign-policy experience. But Mr. Clark, who exhibited an embarrassing ignorance of the world at large during his Senate confirmation hearings for the number two State job, has proved himself to be a quick study. He has won the admiration of the unusually critical State crowd for his hard work and friendly techniques. So, this brief State Department apprenticeship now qualifies him to a necessary, if limited, extent for the critical White House post where Mr. Reagan needs him most, and where, as a practical matter, he could not have been placed a year ago directly off the Supreme Court bench in California.

Washington abounds with experts in every aspect of the international realm. What President Reagan needs most in foreign-policy making and now has is someone at his elbow whom he trusts completely — a friend who can effectively coordinate national security decisions in the White House.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Of course you're tired! You've got to be YOUNG to ski all day and disco all night!"

Bill Payne's Fighting Seminoles return home at 8 tonight trying to break a five-game losing streak against the Lake Brantley Patriots. The Tribe is still looking for its initial victory in 1982. Payne has put his accent on youth in the past few weeks and it's been a learning process for the Sanford youngsters. Sophomore Willie Mitchell moved into the starting lineup early in the year and has performed like anything but a 10th grader. The 6-2 Mitchell was a standout on Crooms 10-2 team of last year that won the Sunrise Kiwanis Freshman Basketball Tournament. Mitchell has made the transition from ninth grade ball to the varsity level very easily. "From the first day of practice when he turned around, faked once and put in a jumper I knew he had it," remembers Payne about Mitchell.

"We've been trying to teach some guys that move for two years and they can't master it." Another soph — 6-1 William Wynn — has joined Mitchell on the varsity. Payne has been bringing Wynn along slowly and the handling should pay dividends by the end of the year. One 10th grader who isn't on the varsity roster, but probably will be by district tournament time, if not sooner, is Steve Alexander. The blond-haired gunner is probably the best pure shooter in the school. He was the leading scorer for Marlette's squad at Crooms last year. "If we can hold together this year, we're going to be real good for a few years to come," points out Payne about the Seminole program. In addition to the above three sophomores, Marlette has turned out several other fine ones now on Tom Smith's resurgent junior varsity team.

Point guard Steve Grey is a quick, carbon copy of his older brother Richard, who is a starter on the varsity. Tracy Holloman, 6-3, and Willie Brooks, 6-5, have been coming into their own with added game experience. Jimmy Gilchrist, who didn't play at Crooms, is loaded with talent. "If we can get the street ball out of him, he's really going to be something." It used to be that Payne could count on several good players from Crooms and then pick up several other "renegades" that were not disciplined or mature enough to fit into Marlette's rigid standards. Lately, however, all of Marlette's products are becoming Payne proteges. It can't help produce anything but winning programs the next few years.

RUSTY BROWN Oyster Market Opening

NEW YORK (UPI) — If the world's diminished oyster industry is to be revived much of the new supply will have to come from aquaculture in such tropical regions as Hawaii, says Dr. Taylor Pryor. And that could bring a bonus for seafood lovers — fresh oysters all year 'round, even in the months without an "r". Pryor already has succeeded at his Systemculture Seafood Plantations at Kahuku, Hawaii, in shipping fresh oysters in the off months to New York and European cities. The secret, he said, is to grow the oysters in brackish water on land instead of in the sea and to control the environment so it never changes and the bivalves never spawn. It is when oysters spawn that they become watery, discolored and inedible. Pryor grows his seed oysters in a separate hatchery and there, of course, the parent oysters do spawn and produce the babies.

He told United Press International his method of growing oysters around the calendar for the market won't work in the colder climates where wild oysters are harvested and large numbers also are grown by aquaculture. But he said there are enough suitable areas to ultimately help ease the demand on depleted oyster beds.

Pryor's work at Kahuku has caused a lot of excitement in Hawaii because it promises to create an important new industry for the state. It also has some seafood lovers licking their chops on both sides of the Atlantic.

Oyster lovers always have resented not being able to get their favorite delicacy from May to September, an attitude typified by the outrage of an English Cockney who got oyster dyspepsia in summer and complained to his doctor: "Do yer mean to tell there hain't a 'r' in August?"

The present oyster shortage is acute throughout the western world, Pryor said. Even the English, who have managed their oyster beds better than most countries, are suffering.

In the United States, government figures show the supply has dwindled steadily for years and has decreased alarmingly since 1972. Oyster imports rose sharply in the early 1970s but they also began to dry up in the late 1970s.

U.S. oyster harvests were up 2 percent to 49.1 million pounds of meat (shells discarded) in 1980 but that represented only $70.1 million. Chesapeake Bay, the Gulf of Mexico and the Pacific states produced the oysters. More than 48 percent of the 1980 harvest was produced by some type of aquaculture rather than harvest of wild oysters. In general, the cultivated oysters were of better quality and fetched prices 9.9 percent higher than wild oysters.

Pryor told UPI demand is so brisk he can afford to pay an air freight charge of 8 cents per oyster (in the shell) to supply New York restaurants from his Hawaii farm — and even higher freight charges to Europe.

Pryor recently was presented with the Cully Sark science award in New York by Science Digest magazine and in October, at the Anuga Food Fair in West Germany, one of the world's biggest annual food exhibitions, he received an award for introducing the most important new food product of the year.

Pryor arrived in Hawaii as a helicopter pilot for the Marine Corps in 1955. After taking graduate work in marine biology at the University of Hawaii, he developed Sea Life Park and founded the Hawaiian Oceanic Institute.

He served in the Hawaii state Senate and on President Lyndon Johnson's commission on Ocean Science and Ocean Resources. In 1972 he developed a commercial lobster farm for French Polynesia. He began his oyster farming experiments in 1975.

JACK ANDERSON

Cuts Mean Bigger Risk For Consumers

WASHINGTON — As president, Ronald Reagan has moved with determination to keep his campaign promise to "get the government off our backs." But when applied by his enthusiastic budget cutters, the slogan has been translated into that old catch-phrase of the corner-cutting businessman, "Let the buyer beware."

As a glaring example, the White House wanted to abolish the Consumer Product Safety Commission. But after outcry from members of Congress, the administration settled for "only" a 30 percent budget cut.

What Congress seems to understand, but the White House chooses to ignore, is that the commission is as popular with the public as it is unpopular with profit-hungry manufacturers. A recent Roper survey showed that product safety is among the best understood of any government function. What's even

JEFFREY HART

Feel Good About Reagan

Even people who disagree with him feel pretty good about President Reagan. Heading into the new year, he has created a new atmosphere around the presidency, and he seems invulnerable to the usual forms of political attack.

First of all, the man is obviously sane, no small virtue. We are not going to hear concerning Reagan the nutty anecdotes that leaked out concerning Lyndon Johnson, and he has no "dark side," William Safire's term regarding President Nixon.

With Reagan, what you see is exactly what there is.

For that reason, he remains untouched politically by the occasional peccadilloes of this staff.

The behavior of Bert Lance and Hamilton Jordan damaged Jimmy Carter, because people did not really know Carter. The faults of his aides thus reflected back on Carter, providing — perhaps unfairly — knowledge about him.

But people feel they know Reagan. He cannot be hurt by Richard Allen, David Stockman, or even by Alexander Haig's occasional extravagance.

Everyone is beginning to realize that Reagan does not have a devious bone in his body. No one has to sit around wondering what Ronald Reagan is up to. He looks you in the eye, and tells you.

About four years ago, at a day-long meeting at his ranch in California, Reagan became intellectually convinced that supply-side economic theory is correct.

It does not change things that we have had some unemployment, or that interest rates are high. Reagan never believed that we could launch a major change in direction without going through some rough water.

He believes that inflation will be beaten by production. When goods chase dollars, the value of the dollar is enhanced. But increased productivity, Reagan reasoned, required the stimulus of a sharp tax cut. More dollars had to flow into the private sector.

David Stockman's private wobbles do not affect Reagan at all, because he is entirely convinced of the soundness of his theory. A year ago, Reagan told the nation what he had in mind, and he has never wavered from his course.

He has marched steadily through different kinds of hostile fire.

Orthodox Republicans worry about the deficit, and want to raise taxes. Liberals struggle to protect vested interest in assorted social programs.

Reagan remains true to his compass, and his priorities are set. He does not like unemployment and deficits any more than you do, but he has set his priorities — more money in the private sector, and less government — and his course remains steady-as-you-go.

In foreign-policy, Reagan has made a habit of telling the truth. He does not speak of the "adversary" or the "rival," or of the "other superpower." All of those terms are morally neutral, and Reagan isn't.

In his Christmas speech on Poland, his words were direct, clear, eloquent. He spoke of "oppression," and of a government at war with its own people.

What everyone knows, he said openly: that the current Polish government is a Soviet stooge. What Reagan can do to ameliorate the situation in Poland is problematical. But, unlike many European leaders, he did not obscure the truth — and by facing the reality he provided a sense of intellectual refreshment.

On nuclear weapons, the Europeans have fallen into the habit of blaming the United States, which has no medium-range missiles in Europe, instead of the Soviets, who have around 1,500.

All right, Reagan said in his zero-proposal, let's eliminate all medium-range weapons in the European theater.

The confused silence from the Soviets was deafening. With a sharp dose of clarity, Reagan put the nuclear debate in true focus.

Reagan may not have all the answers and he does not pretend to have all of them, but as we move into the year 1982 the feeling is very widespread that we do indeed have a real president.

It's a new feeling in Washington.

New Year Brings New Faces

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is starting the New Year with some new faces on the White House team and reports of growing tensions among the palace guard.

So far, the "Big Three" advisers — counselor Edwin Meese, chief of staff James Baker and deputy chief Michael Deaver — are still on board.

But Deaver, who is the closest of the three to the president, already has served notice that he will stay on only one more year.

Two major departures, who were very instrumental in helping Reagan to launch his conservative "revolution," were his political adviser and longtime aide, Lyn Nofziger, and Max L. Friedersdorf, his chief congressional lobbyist.

Their lesser-known deputies, Edward J. Rollins, top aide for political affairs, and Kenneth M. Duberstein, his chief legislative liaison aide, moved into those slots.

Nofziger, who has strong ties with the conservative wing of the Republican Party, had served notice from the beginning that he would stay in the administration only a year. He has negative views about government bureaucrats and did not like being one.

His service to Reagan was to weed out as many Democrats as possible from the mainstream of the federal government and to make sure the White House, Cabinet and agency personnel were almost pure Republicans by laying down strict criteria for their appointments.

The major shift so far has involved the removal of Richard V. Allen as national security adviser and his replacement with William P. Clark, deputy secretary of state a longtime aide whom Reagan appointed to the California Supreme Court when he was governor.

Reagan has run a fairly tight ship compared to some administrations and teamwork has been the order of the day. The closest aides were picked as loyalists to the president and his philosophy of government.

The "Big Three" have worked well together, each having established his own turf from the outset. They have breakfast together every morning and meet afterwards. All three have access to the Oval office and all usually attend any big meetings in the White House on domestic or foreign policy.

Deaver is the "body mover," seeing that Reagan is in the right place at the right time. He is also a personal confidant of both the president and Mrs. Reagan.

Meese still is considered the top adviser and the chief public articulator of public policy. But there have been complaints that he has spent too much time speechmaking in California.

Baker runs the shop and most of the paperwork, and decision making comes across his desk. He has expanded his territorial rights and power since he came into the administration, the only non-Californian in the top strata.

Martin Anderson, the domestic policy adviser, has remained in the background and has not made a public impact. He reportedly has been sidetracked by Baker and Meese aides who have taken command of domestic issues.

In recent weeks, reports from insiders indicate that tensions are rising between the Baker and Meese camps. Meese and Deaver made the long march with Reagan from California. Baker is a Texan who worked for Ford and was Vice President George Bush's presidential campaign manager in 1980.

Reagan has managed to stay above the fray.

Bill Feels No Pain Over Pats Buzzer Beatings

Lake Brantley basketball coach Bob Peterson keeps having the same nightmare.

He's sound asleep. His Patriots hold a one-point lead or are tied. The opposing team moves the ball down the floor. The game is almost over.

Someone puts up a shot from downtown Altamonte Springs. As the ball sails lazily through Peterson's consciousness, his alarm clock blares wakeup time.

The ball settles securely into the net and "Pete" reaches over and turns off the alarm clock.

End of dream, right? Wrong. This nightmare is real and the affable Brantley coach can't seem to turn it off.

On three occasions this season, the hard-luck Patriots have been beaten at the buzzer. That's more times than some coaches suffer in years.

The latest buzzer beating took place Friday at Lake Brantley against DeLand. The Bulldogs Terrence Graham was the culprit. He fired in a buzzer beater from 25-30 feet away.

Earlier in the year, the Pats took it on the chin with last-second losses to Boone and Apopka. Lake Brantley's 3-8 record could be considerably better without the tough-luck setbacks.

Now, Peterson is somewhat of a "crier" anyway, but even the most hard-hearted of us would have to sympathize with the Brantley boss this year. Well, maybe not all of us. Read on.

Another man losing, but not shedding any tears, is Seminole High coach Bill Payne. The ex-Colonial standout has started his youth movement and he knows he'll have to be patient.

"We're going to be somebody. I guarantee that," said Payne Friday night after a loss to tough Spruce Creek. That somebody Payne hopes will be Peterson's Patriots tonight at 8 at Sanford.

Regardless of Peterson's tough-luck situation, Payne isn't throwing any towel toward Altamonte. "He's crying to the wrong guy if he's crying to me," said Payne. "I don't feel sorry for him since we're in the same (losing) situation."

"I hope he gets beat one more time at the buzzer."

You don't have to be a clairvoyant to know that time is tonight.

Two sophomores — Willie Mitchell (see around the clock on 4A) and William Wynn along with three juniors Calvin "Kiki" Bryant, Torie Hendricks (temporarily sidelined by a sprained ankle) and Vernon Law have logged a lot of playing time.

Senior Stuart Smith is a solid starter at center, but seniors Richard Grey and Marvin Butler have been used as starters and third guards.

Another guard taking up a place in Payne's mind is sophomore Steve Alexander. The blond-haired gunner is tearing up the nets on Smith's JVs and Payne is considering adding him to the varsity cast.

"I've been thinking real hard about that one," said Payne Monday. He is undecided whether it would be better for Alexander to stay down and gain confidence or to come up and jump into the fire with his fellow sophomores.

Smith's junior varsity has been impressive in its last two outings, victories over Colonial and Spruce Creek. Both clubs had only one setback before Smith's crew hung another one on them.

The Tribe JV is 3-2 in the district and still has a chance for the championship which is played before the title game at the (4-A) tourney which will be at Apopka this year.

As a special event tonight, coach Eugene Petty's Sanford gymnastic team will perform at halftime. Petty is assisted by Jeanette Stiffy, whose non Tom, plays for the Seminole junior varsity.

Elsewhere in the county tonight, Lyman travels to DeLand, Oviedo goes to St. Cloud and Lake Howell still seeking win number one, treks to Daytona Beach to play Seabreeze.

Lakeview Knocks Off Middle

Chris Jackson tossed in 17 points Monday night as the Lakeview Mustangs whipped Sanford Middle, 52-42, in Seminole Youth Sports Association basketball at Seminole Community College.

It marks the second time this year coach Charles Steele's Mustangs have knocked off Sanford Middle. Steele's squad is 6-4, while Middle is 4-2.

How Good?

Raiders Disdain 85-76 Victory

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

How good is the Seminole Community College basketball team?

It's so good, Tuesday night's 85-76 Mid-Florida Conference victory over Santa Fe was looked upon with disdain.

"Weak effort," spewed third-guard Doug Dersheimer who came on to work SCC's delay game to perfection, while adding two free throws as the 1:15 mark to put the game safely away, 83-74.

"We just came off the road and I think we were a little tired," observed Sanford's Bruce McCray. The 6-4½ baseline master bobbed and weaved his way to 16 points before fouling out with 2:56 to play.

"We looked like we were in bed," said coach Joe Sterling about the performance. "We were just so flat. We weren't smart. It's good to win, but I wished we would play better."

The lackluster effort was the Raiders 11th straight victory and improved their overall record to 13-1. The lone setback was to Florida College way back on Nov. 11. SCC was again second in the state poll, however, since top-ranked Miami Dade North has yet to lose.

On Wednesday the Raiders go to Daytona Beach to take on Ray Ridenour's sixth-ranked club. Ridenour, a former assistant to Central Florida's Torchy Clark, has Neal Gillis, a standout last year at Lyman, as a reserve guard-forward on his roster.

Monday's first half was a case of the missing layup. The Raiders missed five such opportunities and had two more that were malleable, but were erased by fouls.

Despite the 15-36 shooting (42 percent), SCC forged a 43-31 lead. The first five was trailing, 18-14, when Sterling sent the second five to the scorer's table.

Thus motivated, Lorne "Lonnie" Jones scored on a reverse pivot and McCray stuck in a rebound effort. The sophomore all-stater had his first eight points on second shots.

JC Basketball

The subs came on at the 11 minute mark. Mike Smith, a 6-7½ center, dropped in a rebounded shot and super sub Arthur "A.J." Jackson grabbed a missed effort and was fouled.

The stocky Boone product notched both free throws and then scrapped for another rebound and subsequent basket for a 24-20 edge. SCC never trailed again, although Santa Fe pulled within one point on occasion.

Jones, playing his third game after being academically ineligible, scored 11 of the Raiders last 16 points of the first half. The 6-3 forward topped all scorers with 25 points. McCray finished with 16 and Travis Filer added 17.

The biggest crowd pleaser of the first half came on a strong outlet pass to halfcourt by ex-Seminole Reggie Butler to Jones who dished off to point guard Eric Ervin who quickly laddled it back to Jones for an easy layup.

Ervin had five assists in the opening 20 minutes. McCray had seven rebounds and Butler snatched six. Jones dropped in 13 points and McCray totaled 14.

In the second half, 6-2 guard Travis Filer hit four jumpers midway through the period as SCC built its lead to 66-48. Two minutes later, Jackson whipped an excellent cross-court pass to McCray for the Raiders biggest bulge, 68-48.

Santa Fe chipped away at the lead as Walt Spurling, the lone returning starter from Ken Drost's team of last year, hit nine points in a three-minute span.

In the end, though, Sterling's spread offense was too much for the Gainesville quintet to handle. "I figured we might as well try the spread," said Sterling. "We were doing so bad at everything else."

Drost, who has to play Florida Junior College and Daytona Beach CC later this week, saw Seminole's quickness and experience as the difference.

"I thought we had a chance when we got within seven," said Drost. "But they do the right things when it comes down to the end. They're also very quick."

"They're better than anyone we've played. They're quicker and better shooters and leapers. And, I've always thought Joe Sterling is the best junior college coach in the State," concluded Drost.

Crooms Cops 12th

By GEOFFREY GIORDANO
Herald Sports Writer

Although they won, 37-26, the Crooms Panthers, according to coach Chris Marlette, played, "Absolutely our worst game of the year," as they defeated the St. Cloud Bulldogs at St. Cloud to remain unbeaten at 12-0.

The Panthers played without Ken Gordon, a strong player on the boards. As a result of his illness, the Panthers were held to 20 rebounds, 10 each by Donald Grayson and James House. "We didn't rebound as well without Gordon," Marlette explained. "We got there late, and had only a short warm-up."

Crooms "froze" the Bulldogs' attack and piled up 20 first period points before St. Cloud hit a field goal with two seconds left.

"Our press made them have 10 turnovers, but after that we were horrendous. I guess we just sat back and let them play," said Marlette.

It certainly seemed so as the Panthers were outscored during the remaining three periods, proving that their outstanding first period was their savior.

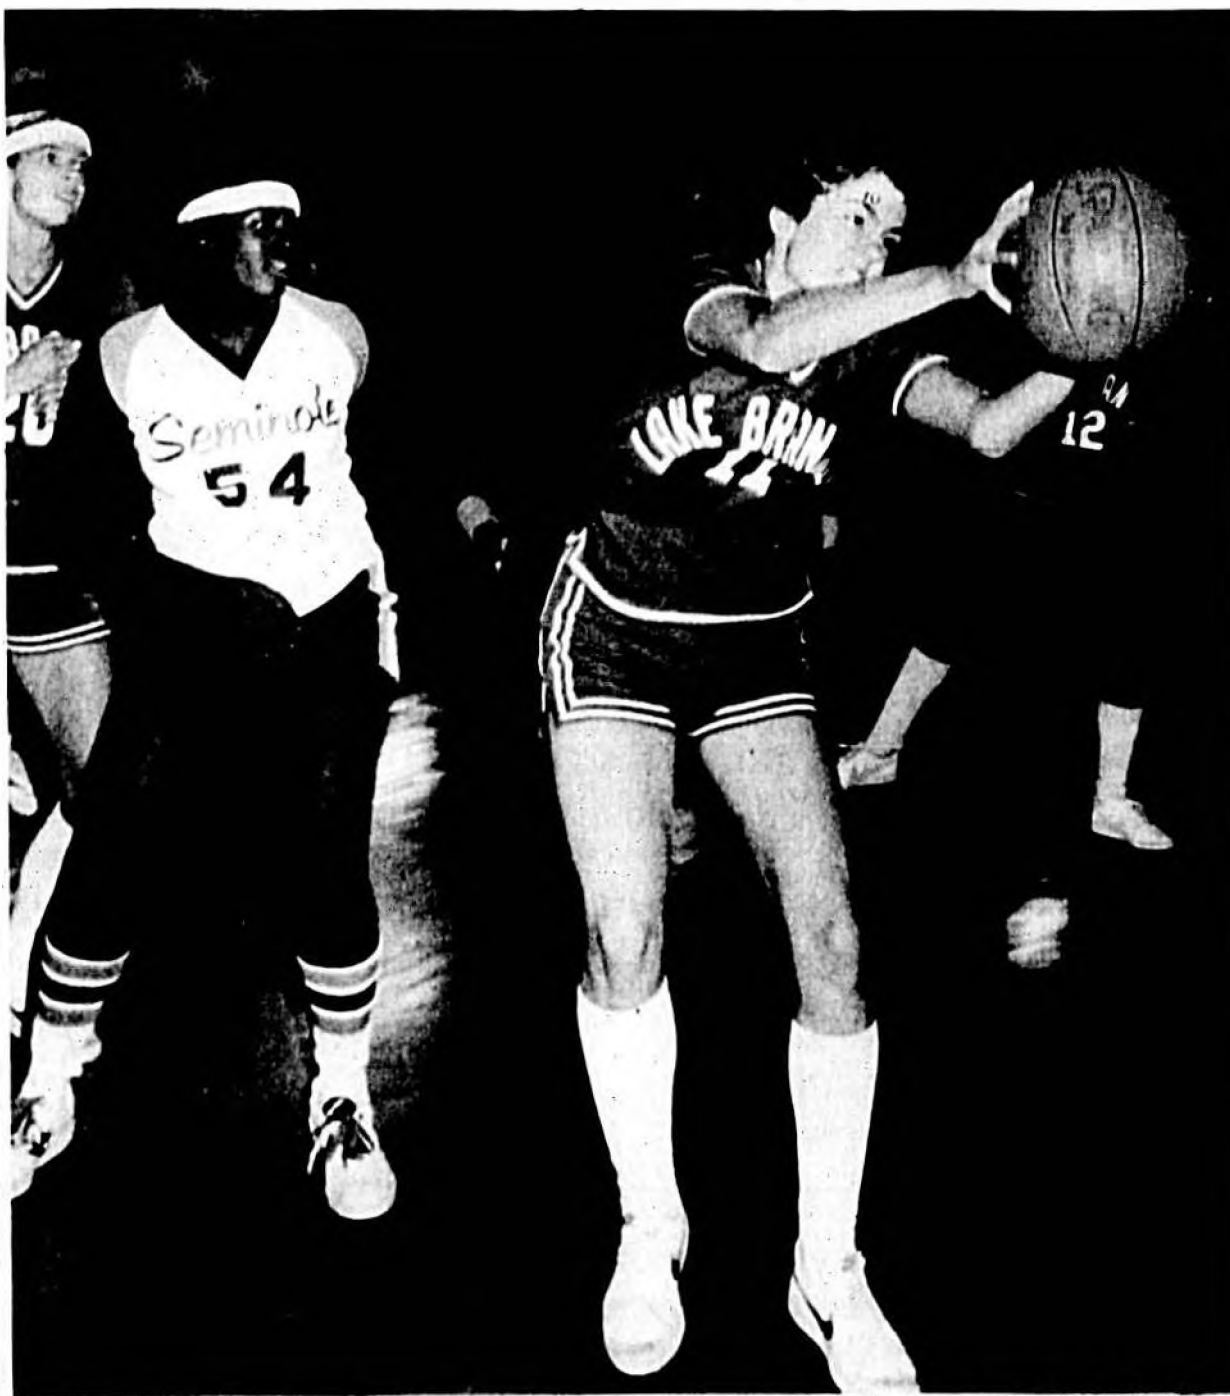

"Everything went our way during the first period, but we had a lot of shots that didn't fall later on," commented Marlette, sounding relieved after the victory. "We'll have to play better against Ocala and Lake Mary."

Crooms travels to Ocala Wednesday to face the vengeful Vanguard Knights at 4 p.m. Crooms handed them a crushing 78-32 defeat earlier in the season. Then, the Panthers make a trip to Lake Mary to fight it out with the Rams, whom they also defeated, 53-48.

Lady 'Noles Sweep Pats

By BILLY STRIPP
Herald Sports Writer

Sanford's Lady Seminoles routed Lake Brantley, 75-40, Monday night behind the hot-shooting of seniors Cathy Jones, Tony Hardy and Sabrina Melton who combined for 37 points in the Five Star Conference clash at Seminole High.

The Seminoles blew the game open in the second quarter, outscoring the Lady Patriots, 23-10, for a 43-22 halftime lead.

The victory lifts Sanford's record to 10-3, while the Patriots fell to 7-4. The Fighting Seminoles took advantage of miscues by Brantley and forced pressure in the middle to wear down their opponents.

Seminole plays at Apopka on Thursday. The Junior game begins at 6 p.m. Brantley, meanwhile, goes to Lake Mary Thursday at 6:15 p.m. for two games.

Tribe coach Ron Merthle used the lopsided win to experiment in the second half. "It was a different kind of game tonight," he said. "With the game in our favor, we worked on things we don't get to do too much in practice."

"We took advantage of our younger girls playing."

The Tribe showed why it was one of the favorites in the Five Star as it received balanced scoring from Jones (14), Hardy (13) and Melton (10). Sophomore Dleidre Hillery added nine.

The Patriots' two top guns were Rhonda Vazquez and Linda Trimble with 10 points each.

In junior varsity action, the Seminole girls got the evening off to a good start by outlasting previously undefeated Lake Brantley, 57-56, in overtime. The JV Pats of Debbie Dempsey are 5-1.

The Pats had an opportunity to tie the game in the closing seconds, but a free throw rolled around the rim and out.

Arlene Jones popped in 27 points for Seminole as the Tribe found itself on the short end of a 23-22 ball game at halftime. Brantley scored 10 straight points in the third quarter to stretch its lead to 33-24, but coach Beth Corao's gala put on a furious rally in the last two minutes to pull within, 34-32, entering the final period.

With 5:40 to play, Sanford seized a 38-38 edge, but the Patriots promptly ran off nine points in a row for an eight point edge.

The Tribe, though, responded for three buckets from the outside to cut the lead to two, and then tied it on a steal to pull even at 40. Both teams exchanged baskets in the overtime before Seminole hit a foul shot and two buckets from the inside to hold on for the exciting victory.

Michelle Brown totaled 14 points for the Patriots, while Kim Lubenow added 13. Teri Hardy was next for the 'Noles with eight.

First Federal Stuns Tip Top

In a stunning upset, First Federal knocked off Tip Top 46-43 Saturday to open second half play in the Sanford Junior Boys Basketball League.

In other games Saturday, McCoy's Cleaners remained unbeaten with a 51-29 win over Joe's Variety, while Atlantic Bank handed Sanford Electric a 50-26 defeat.

Steve Warren led First Federal in scoring with 21 points, but it was the fourth period play of Darrin Littles that was the key to victory. Littles, who had 11 points in the game, scored eight of them in the fourth period as First Federal out-scored Tip Top 16-4 to win.

Tip Top led 8-7 at the end of the first period and 23-22 at the half. By the end of the third period Tip Top had increased its lead to 35-30.

In addition to Warren and Littles, Sherrick Knight finished in double figures for First Federal with 12 points.

Earnest Lewis scored 18 points for Tip Top and Tarrance Carr added 11.

McCoy's out-scored Joe's 16-2 in the first period and coasted to the win. Perez Perry led all scorers with 24 points for McCoy's. Mike Burke scored 11 points, while George Gordon and Bernard Burke added eight points apiece.

Willie McCloud scored 11 points for Joe's and Leslie Thomas scored eight.

Sanford Electric, playing without its leading scorer, fell behind 12-7 in the first period and trailed 24-11 at the half. Atlantic Bank then out-scored Sanford Electric 20-0 in the third period to put the game out of reach.

Travis Brown scored 24 points for Atlantic Bank and teammate Jimmie Sanders added seven.

Ondraus Redding paced Sanford Electric with 14 points and Ronald Cox scored eight.

John's Sew 'N' Vac Will Service Machine For $5

For only $5 the trained professionals at John's Sew-N-Vac will clean, oil, and adjust your sewing machine (a $21.50 value) or vacuum cleaner ($19.50 value) plus sharpen one pair of scissors absolutely free of charge.

For this low price they will adjust tension (top and bottom), adjust motor belt, inspect motor wiring, oil the machine completely, clean hook and feed assembly, check wiring to controls and machine timing on your sewing machine. On the vacuum cleaner they will clean, oil and adjust the agitator, wheels and height control, and check the belt, bag housing, motor and brushes.

William "Bill" McCalley, owner of Ace Auto Radiator, is a radiator specialist.

Protect Car Against Cold At Ace Auto Radiator

Now that cold weather is here make sure your car is ready for it. Your radiator, heater and hoses should be checked before adding antifreeze. Get them checked free at Ace Auto Radiator. Bill McCalley, owner of Ace Auto Radiator at 711 French Ave., Sanford, will flush your car's block and add antifreeze. He gives complete radiator service at his shop. This includes cleaning, repairing, recore and new complete radiators and heaters for cars and trucks. All work is guaranteed. Bill has been in business since May, 1960. Prior to that he worked with his father, who originally opened Ace Auto Radiator at the same location in 1965.

Ace Auto Radiator can service large and small radiators, heaters and gas tanks. It has Inland equipment including the Flo Tester. Senior citizens will receive a 10 percent discount any time they have work done at Ace Auto Radiator. Bill would like to thank all his customers who have come into his shop this past year and is looking forward to serving them in 1982. For convenience of his customers the shop is open 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday. Call 322-0235 for one-day service and pick up and delivery of your car.

One Way Or Another

County Will Arrange Sewer Hookups

By LEE DANCY
Herald Staff Writer

One way or the other, Seminole County will make some sewage treatment capacity available to builders in the upcoming months.

County Administrator Roger Neiswender met Thursday with Alex Senkevich, district engineer for the state Department of Environmental Regulation. Senkevich said it would be possible to delegate some of the state's authority in permitting sewage-treatment hookups to the county, provided certain conditions are met.

All available sewage-treatment hookup permits have already been granted for Seminole County's Consumers' Utilities Plant. County officials base this fact on the number of "equivalent residential connections," granted to area builders over the years, Neiswender said.

Without making some changes in regular hookup permitting procedures, there will be no more sewage-treatment capacity available to builders until the new transmission lines designed to connect Seminole County to the new Iron Bridge Regional Sewage Treatment Plant are completed in less than a year, Neiswender said.

Officials in charge of sewage treatment at both the state and local levels usually think of available capacity in terms of equivalent residential connections (ERC). Neiswender said the average ERC is currently considered to be 350 gallons per day.

The average ERC in Seminole County is not as large as 350 gallons, Neiswender said. He thinks the average is closer to 250 gallons a day.

Senkevich said the state Department of Environmental Regulation, which ultimately has the final say in whether a sewage-treatment hookup permit is granted, will allow Seminole County to lower its ERC level. Neiswender said the mandatory prerequisite set by DER for lowering the ERC level required making certain the ultimate capacity at the Consumers Utilities Plant did not exceed a million gallons a day.

State DER officials chose the 350-gallon-a-day ERC figure as a number to apply statewide to gauge the capacity being tapped from sewage-treatment plants. Each plant is different, however, and different community demands may make the actual ERC level either higher or lower than 350 gallons, Neiswender said.

County utilities officials have submitted documents to DER to prove that Seminole County's ERC level is actually 250 gallons a day and not 350. The lower number must be approved by the state agency, however, Neiswender said.

If DER accepts the lower ERC figure, available sewage-treatment capacity would appear at the Consumers plant because of the newly established figures used to measure community demands, Neiswender said.

Another option available to the County Commission will be the ability to grant "dry" sewage-treatment hookup permits. These would be granted based on anticipated future sewage-treatment capacity gained from the Iron Bridge plant's completion in future months, Neiswender said.

If a "dry" permit is granted, the builder will have to agree that he will not receive a county "certificate of occupancy" for the building until sewage-treatment capacity becomes available, Neiswender added.

This means the builder can at least begin construction and have his structure ready for occupancy. Nobody can live in the building, however, until sewage-treatment capacity becomes available, he said.

"Under the 'dry' connection permit," Neiswender said, "a builder would knowingly pull a permit for which the (sewage treatment) capacity is not yet available."

The new concept for sewage treatment permitting will be presented to commissioners for approval this week, he said.

After 416 Years, St. Augustine Has A Woman Mayor

ST. AUGUSTINE (UPI) — In the nation's oldest city, the mayor works in a courtyard office in a former Franciscan monastery built in the 1700s, which serves as headquarters for the Florida National Guard. Ramelle Petroglou, 48, a stunning, platinum blonde with cobalt blue eyes, was recently elected by her fellow city commissioners to be St. Augustine's first woman mayor in 416 years.

In a city where the mayor commissioner's main duties are presiding at city commission meetings and attending ceremonial functions, the former Miss Augustine runner-up spends most of her time hidden away in the huge former monastery working for the Guard as computer program supervisor.

But, as a commissioner first elected two and a half years ago and re-elected to a four year term last year, Mrs. Petroglou has definite ideas on where the city of 12,000 inhabitants is going and what her job should be.

"I got fed up with the apathy in this city," she said in an interview with UPI. "The people who were the commissioners were going into office unopposed and no one ever heard of the commission."

Talina Flowers, Lynn P. Vezina Exchange Vows

Talina Carol Flowers and Lynn Paul Vezina were married Nov. 21, 1981, at 2 p.m., at All Souls Catholic Church. Father William Ennis performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Flowers, 2656 Poinsettia Ave., Sanford. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Vezina, 918 Myrtle Ave., Sanford.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a wedgewood lace gown, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, tapered Chantilly lace sleeves and seven rows of ruffles on the skirt that cascaded into a chapel train.

Her matching veil of illusion was attached to a stand-up crown. She carried a keepsake silk cascade of white orchids, white roses and pink baby's breath.

Attending the bride were: Edie Cunningham, matron of honor; Donna Alwine, maid of honor, and Cecilia Carter, sister of the bridegroom, bridesmaid.

Each wore a burgundy polyester gown and carried a nosegay of white daisies, pink miniature carnations and burgundy baby's breath. Each wore a cluster of the same flowers in her hair.

Marie Vezina, sister of the bridegroom, was flower girl. Clyde Hayes, served the bridegroom as best man. Dean Flowers and Larry Flowers, brothers of the bride, were ushers. Groomsmen were Jimmy Doyle and Robert Jackson.

MR. AND MRS. LYNN PAUL VEZINA

Following a reception at the Sanford Garden Club, the couple departed on a wedding trip to Walt Disney World and points in Florida.

They are making their home at Geneva Gardens, Sanford. The bridegroom is employed by Rush-Hampton and the bride works for First Federal of Seminole.

Vagabond Marionettes Coming In 'Cinderella'

Vagabond Marionettes' production of "Cinderella," the beloved and fun-filled fairy tale will be Friday at 1st Presbyterian Church Fellowship Hall.

"Cinderella" is set in France during the era of Louis XV, and the sets created by Mitch Edmonds and costumes by David Charles were authentically reproduced from this time. Music by Prokofiev will highlight the fairy tale as Anthony feels that hearing classical music while watching the story unfold is an exciting way for children to learn music appreciation.

The show is being sponsored by Pre-School Center. The performance will be at 7:15 p.m. Admission is a donation of $2.25 adults, and $1.75 children.

'Presence' May Be Ideal Gift

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, you offered some suggestions on what to give the older person for Christmas. Unfortunately, it was no help to me. My problem is what to give my mother-in-law. She's 74, widowed and living in a condo in Palm Beach, Fla.

This woman has jewelry, clothing, knickknacks, perfume — rtfme it and she has it. And what she doesn't have, she can go out and buy.

OUT OF IDEAS IN N.Y.C.

DEAR OUT: She can't buy a charm for her bracelet (or necklace) with a personal inscription on it from you. And she can't buy a new picture of you and her son — and your children, if you have any. And she can't buy thoughtful letters from you during the year to let her know that you are thinking of her — which would be far more precious than one expensive storebought gift at Christmas.

DEAR ABBY: Because of you, my Christmas was a lot merrier this year. Last year my husband drove me crazy sitting around the house doing nothing. He had just retired at age 65, was in good health, and didn't know what to do with himself. He'd worked hard all his life and never had time to cultivate any hobbies.

I kiddingly suggested he write to you, and he did. You told him to offer his services to some volunteer group, and you named a few. He called the Crippled Children's Society and was given the names of some handicapped children who needed transportation to and from the therapy clinic. He's never been happier.

Aren't men peculiar? They'll listen to advice from a stranger, but just let their wives tell them the same thing and they'll say she's off her rocker.

Thanks, Abby. You gave me the best Christmas present I've had in years.

ANGIE

DEAR ANGIE: Don't mention it. Greet your wonderful husband for me, and thank him for giving me this opportunity to remind others that they, too, can improve the quality of their retirement years by volunteering their services. Everybody can do something.

DEAR ABBY: I am a Hungarian-born woman, 48, and am told that I am very beautiful. However, I have always had a tendency to be slightly plumpish. If I lose weight, my face will sag and become haggard. If I keep my face full and wrinkle-free, then my figure will be too full.

So since I can't have both, which should I choose?
ILJONA FROM BUDAPEST

DEAR ILJONA: Choose your face, and sit down. Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 12888 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

LWV To Air Taxes

The subject of Seminole County LWV unit meetings in January and February will be "taxes." Census will be asked in March, and will include the question of legalizing gambling in certain areas of Florida.

The unit meetings will encompass all matters relating to taxes in order that the members will have as complete a background as possible.

Anyone who is interested is invited to attend the meetings, which will be held Wednesday, Jan. 13 at 9:30 a.m. in the Conference Room at the Agricultural Center at Five Points, and Feb. 10 at the same time and place. For information call 677-1669.

'I Do It The Old-Timey Way'

Cowboy Has Cooked For Presidents

ALBANY, Texas (NEA) — Cliff Teinert is a man skilled with horses and ropes and longhorn cattle.

He knows his way around the oil business, too.

But it is his skill as a genuine cowboy cook that took him to Camp David earlier this year to prepare some of his famous fare for the presidents of two countries — Ronald Reagan of the United States and Jose Lopez Portillo of Mexico.

The tall, easy-going Teinert, 40, has lived most of his adult life in and around Albany, a small ranch town about 35 miles northeast of Abilene.

He and his wife, Sunona, raise longhorn cattle on their ranch. In addition, he and partner Don Koch operate an oil lease business.

A thoroughly modern man, Teinert is steeped in the mystique of the old-time cowboy — not necessarily the cowboy of movies and books but the real thing, like the men who worked and lived on the nearby Pitchfork and 6666 ranches.

Teinert, who is well-known in his part of Texas as a fine cowboy cook, was surprised when he received a call from the White House asking if he would cook for Reagan and Lopez Portillo.

'Camp David isn't exactly the barbecue capital of the country, so I had to improvise a little to fix up a pit barbecue operation. I was a little nervous.'

"I had cooked for Lyndon Johnson when he visited friends up here and then went down to his ranch twice after he died to cook at fund-raising events hosted by his widow," Teinert said.

"Well, you can't turn people down," he grinned, "and when your president needs you to cook for him, you go."

So, he bought 75 pounds of prime beef in Abilene, packed up his cast iron Dutch ovens and other utensils and air freighted several hundred pounds of mesquite wood to Camp David. Then he and Sunona took off for Washington and the June 8 dinner.

"Camp David isn't exactly the barbecue capital of the country, so I had to improvise a little to fix up a pit barbecue operation. I was a little nervous."

"I was cooking for 70 people," recalled Teinert.

"When your president needs you to cook for him, you go," says Cliff Teinert, who has prepared his cowboy fare for U.S. Presidents Johnson and Reagan and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo. Here he stirs the mesquite coals in his Texas home.

"I served them 15-ounce sirloin strips. The White House staff did the rest of the cooking and I guess everyone must have liked it because some of them came back for more, especially Vice President George Bush, who has lived in Texas and knows our food."

"Both presidents were very gracious and seemed to be enjoying themselves. I spoke to them both and then saw them riding horseback and they seemed to be very relaxed."

What is the secret of Teinert's success? "I pay attention to detail and do it the old-timey way," he said as he fixed sourdough biscuits.

The Teinerts and their 17-year-old son live in an old rambling white house in the middle of Albany.

Out behind are horse pens, a neat garden and lots of old trees and green grass.

They have converted a large old shack that once housed a wooden tower with a water tank on top into a cookhouse and party room. "We just left the old tower inside and roofed it over, and then I built all this stuff," Teinert said, showing off a big

'Folks used to come out to the ranch and we cooked for them,' he said. 'Then people asked us to cater parties and we worked at it full time for several years.'

walled pit in which he burns mesquite wood down to blazing coals, an old-time meat chopping block and his precious cast iron Dutch ovens and skillets.

A big stack of mesquite is piled inside the three-sided building, which faces the yard. Rough-hewn tables and chairs and a stereo system with lots of country-music tapes complete the party room.

The family was getting ready for the first night's performance of the famed Albany Fandangle, an annual outdoor pageant, but Teinert thought he could take off a little time to "fix something."

What he fixed were sourdough biscuits, lovingly prepared and baked in a Dutch oven nestled in a bed of mesquite coals with more glowing embers heaped on top of the lid, and some fine German sausage that he dropped on the grill.

"One time back when my wife and I were in the catering business, we cooked at a big festival in San Antonio," Teinert said. "There were so many people that we started taking the little bits and pieces of barbecue left over, chopped it up and then put that and a sourdough biscuit and some hot pinto beans into a big cup and just sold it as a cowboy special."

He learned to make sourdough breads and biscuits from an old cowboy cook who ran the chuckwagon on the Pitchfork Ranch.

He and Sunona kind of drifted into the catering business.

Later that night, as friends and neighbors sat around the dying embers of the mesquite fire and ate the remnants of biscuits, barbecued beef and watermelon, Teinert was asked the all-important question: "Do you cook beans in your chili?"

The party room became deathly quiet. Teinert straightened and replied: "Of course not. I might put a few in after I cook the chili, but I would never cook chili with beans."

Gator Jungle Survives; It's Luckier Than Most

CHRISTMAS, Fla. (UPI) — At Gator Jungle there aren't any security guards — just a hand-painted sign that says: "Posted: Trespassers Will Be Eaten."

There are no water ski shows, smiling tour guides, hotels or restaurants at this attraction either.

Just alligators. Thousands of them from little eight-inchers that slither like lizards in their pens to 12-foot behemoths that look like fallen oak logs lying in the sun.

There are a couple of crocodiles and monkeys, a deer, a few birds and some barnyard animals. But, this is an alligator farm and that's what owner Herman Brooks likes people to see.

The 58-year-old Florida cracker with a drawl like molasses opened Gator Jungle 20 miles east of Orlando about nine years ago. He figured he catch some of the trickle-down tourist dollars from visitors to Walt Disney World and Kennedy Space Center.

Still in business and hoping to expand this summer, Brooks has been luckier than most of the other Morn-and-Pop attractions that have tried to compete with big boys with national reputations and multi-million dollar advertising budgets.

Indeed, the state's lesser traveled roads are littered with the remains of these entrepreneur's dreams — assorted zoos, monkey jungles and freak shows that have popped up since World War II and the heyday of Florida tourism.

No one keeps statistics on the ones that have gone broke, but tourism officials suggest it has to be dozens.

"The business has gotten so big, people don't care much about those places anymore. They've pretty much been left in a lurch by the major highways," says the Florida Department of Tourism's Dean Gaiser.

Most of the majors — places like Sea World, Busch Gardens and Silver Springs — belong to the Florida Attractions Association. There are 44 members ranging from the Thomas Edison home in Fort Myers to Disney World which draws some 13 million people a year.

"A lot of opportunists saw the tremendous potential of Florida and came in with these little roadside places. Most of them were ripoffs and haven't lasted," says Joe Ryan, director of the industry group.

Brooks, who raises the alligators to slaughter for meat and hides, says he's kept his place open for tourists because alligators are part of the Florida landscape.

Most of his visitors are passers-by — people en route to Kennedy Space Center on Highway 50, the lesser-traveled road from Orlando. They are drawn by the alligator and crocodile pictures painted on the front of his low-slung concrete gift shop. Every now and then a tour bus stops by, discharging passengers who pay the $2 admission fee.

"I've met a lot of interesting people, a lot of folks from Canada and England," he says. "Most have never seen an alligator. We had about eight people in a van this morning from New York — they must have shot 10 rolls of film."

Brooks is looking for a good year in 1982 and figures the booming market for alligator hides will enable him to pour more money into the tourism end.

HOROSCOPE
By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Wednesday, January 13, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY
January 13, 1982
If you have prepared yourself properly, your possibilities for advancement in your chosen field are very good this coming year. Strive to make yourself indispensable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're apt to be extremely imaginative and resourceful today in situations where there is a profit motive. You can succeed without taking advantage of others. Predictions of what's in store for you in each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your new Astro-Graph, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y., 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone could come to you at this time with an interesting business or investment proposal. Explore it in depth. It could prove worthwhile.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Greater benefits are likely to come today from partnership arrangements or joint ventures than from what you do on your own. Give team efforts priority.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Make it a point today not to say anything about others unless it is constructive and uplifting. Well-chosen comments could turn an acquaintance into an ally.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you approach your tasks as a game rather than as a chore, you can be extremely productive today and also encourage those who labor at your side to behave likewise.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today, you may not do as well competitively as you'd like in the beginning, but after you warm up a bit the odds will turn in your favor.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This is a good day to entertain persons at your house to whom you feel socially obligated. It doesn't have to be anything elaborate. Companionship is the important factor.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This could be a profitable day, provided you do not sit on ideas or plans which could make or save you money. Put them to the test.

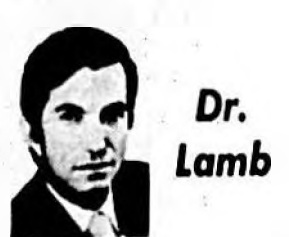

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It may be necessary for you to be a trifle bolder than usual in business or financial matters today. Be assertive without being selfish.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Unless situations warrant it, you are likely to be a bit laid back and desirous of taking things easy today. However, when challenges arise so does your initiative.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Fortunate are the friends who have you in their corner today. You'll help them without being asked. More importantly, you won't require a pat on the back for doing so.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your greatest success today is likely to come from a project or venture which has just captured your fancy. In your case, "new" means "lucky."

Giving Up Coffee? Kick Habit Slowly

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column about regretting coffee, clipped it and posted it where I see it regularly, but I am addicted to the use of strong black coffee in the quantity of six or eight cups a day.

I am 76 years old, in perfect health, enjoying a ... practice of dentistry. This morning I tried substituting a cup of Postum for my breakfast coffee. After about two hours at work I began to feel weak, my patient could have thought I was developing the shakes. A cup of black coffee and 15 minutes rest restored me to good working stamina. Please advise.

DEAR READER — I agree with your self-diagnosis. You are addicted to the caffeine in coffee and you experienced typical withdrawal symptoms. You are lucky you didn't develop a headache as well. A few years ago when I was lecturing in Florida for the American Heart Association some of the doctors quit coffee abruptly and developed headaches and other symptoms.

If you want to quit drinking coffee to avoid the effects of the caffeine, you should taper off. Drop to three cups of coffee a day. You could have three additional cups of a decaffeinated brand. Then gradually switch to the decaffeinated brand of your choice. With the gradual reduction over days, or at least a week, you will probably not experience the symptoms you had.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 14-4, Controversial Beverages: Coffee, Tea, Colas and Chocolate. You can post it, too. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Incidentally, a small amount of caffeine has been shown to improve performance of tasks requiring skills, such as typing. So not all of the effects are bad, but it is important to know what the bad effects are as well as the good. Then if you want to pay the price to have the stimulus it will be an informed decision. Unless a person has a medical problem, such as heart irregularities, high blood pressure, digestive disturbances or nervousness, one or two cups of coffee a day are not likely to be a serious problem.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 16 years old. I've heard that when a guy and a girl have sexual relations if she is a virgin the guy will know. How? And if the guy happened to be a virgin would the girl be able to know? If so, how?

DEAR READER — The idea is based on the fact that many virgins do not have a ruptured hymen membrane. Obviously it must be partially open for normal menstruation. During penetration the rest of the membrane is torn and there may be some bleeding.

Now, this experience is not always painless for a girl and if relations are pushed vigorously it can give a girl a very bad introduction to her sex life, sometimes with far-reaching adverse effects. The modern idea is that a girl should be prepared for married life and any obstruction corrected in advance.

Many girls do not have a problem and may have already ruptured the hymen from normal athletic activity. And I know of no way to tell if a guy is a virgin or not, even if he tells you he is. Guys have been known to tell untruths in such cases.

my players of all-time. In today's hand we see him in six spades against the Hungarians. John won the first trick with dummy's ace of clubs, cashed the ace of spades and was happy to see both opponents following. Then he stopped to review all the bidding and finally led dummy's singleton heart to his king and East's ace. It didn't matter what East did now. John was sure to be able to ruff a heart in dummy, draw trumps and wind up with his six trumps, one heart ruff, four diamonds and the ace of clubs.

We do not know the bidding at the other table, but the same six spade contract was reached and the same jack of clubs opened.

The play for the first two tricks was the same, but at trick three the declarer played a second trump and then tried to cash his king of diamonds at trick four. West ruffed and cashed his ace of hearts.

We sympathize with the Hungarian South, but must give real credit to John Collins. He had guarded against a 6-0 diamond break. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)
