

Voters Get Break Over Candidates Because Of Law

Ballot Casters Need Not Pay Poll Tax; Office-Seekers Do

TALLAHASSEE, Mar. 22.—(AP)—There's a little quirk in Florida law by which voters get a break not extended to candidates.

Voters are not required to pay poll taxes in order to be qualified to cast ballots, but candidates must swear they have paid all poll taxes legally assessed against them.

The 1937 legislature provided that poll tax payment no longer would be a prerequisite to voting but did not repeal the poll tax law. Therefore all citizens between the ages of 21 and 55 remain subject to poll tax, unless they are exempt otherwise, but there isn't much paying.

Tax assessors in some counties added $1 a year poll tax to the other bills against property owners and required payment. In other counties this tax was not assessed. There have been no reports or attempts to collect the $1 a year tax from persons who do not own property because collectors and assessors explained they have no means of enforcing payment.

With candidates, however, it is a different story. They are required to take an oath that they have paid all poll taxes legally assessed, unless they are exempt by reason of age, war service disability or other cause. The 1937 legislature did not change the form of the oath for candidates.

Secretary of State R. A. Gray called attention to the candidates' poll tax situation when he reviewed the complexities of arranging for an election.

He announced he had asked Attorney General Cary D. Lendis for a ruling on whether voters in Escambia and Palm Beach counties must register at least 20 days before the first primary May 3.

A special law of 1927, applying to counties with population between 51,000 and 57,000, provided for registration books to close 20 days before a primary. The general registration law allows voters to put their names in the books until midnight of Saturday, Apr. 23.

Gray also cautioned Floridians who are out of the state temporarily that they cannot make absentee registrations this year. The supreme court last year, in validating an absentee registration law passed in 1935.

Floridians employed in Washington—there are some 3,000 of them—must come home to register. They will be allowed to vote absentee ballots in the usual manner.

Registration books are now open in various precincts. They will be moved to county courthouses Apr. 5.

Mortality Of Layers Is Lower Than Usual

CHIPLEY, Mar. 22.—Mortality at the Florida National Egg-Laying Test here is lower than usual, reports Supervisor E. F. Stanton. For the first five months only 7.2 percent of the birds died, indicating that birds are paying attention to their health as well as high production in their laying. February production by the 1,274 hens in the test averaged 17.4 eggs credited with 17.9 points.

For years breeders were primarily concerned with problems of high egg production, and all their breeding efforts were centered in that direction, Stanton says. Then they began to breed for larger size in eggs, at the same time continuing to stress number of eggs laid by each bird. Finally, they are breeding for vigor and livability, since it was found that mortality in many cases was too high for profitable poultry business.

NO BOWING WANTED

Asked in the House of Commons today if the Japanese command at Beijing had not issued orders that foreigners bow to Japanese guards, Foreign Minister Chamberlain replied:

"Instructions have been sent that if this practice existed it should be discontinued at once."

PORT IN A VOLCANO

Only seven miles from Italy's mainland in the Bay of Naples lies one of the strangest and most beautiful harbors in the world. Porto d'Ischia, on the small, mountainous island of Ischia, occupies the crater of an extinct volcano. Visitors to this picturesque little port reach it by steamer from Naples. Almost an inland lake, completely encircled by hills, it is hidden from view until the boat has passed through its narrow entrance.

Porto d'Ischia is one of the smaller clusters of volcanic Monte Epomeo, main peak on the island. The last king of Naples ordered the crater dredged to accommodate shipping, the work being done by convicts in return for their liberty.

Today exquisite wines are made on the island and corn, oil and fruit are produced there. Alkaline and saline mineral springs bubble at a temperature of 147 degrees, and for this reason Porto d'Ischia today is a popular health resort.

In the Dutch West Indies lies another island—Saba—whose inhabitants all live in the bottom of an extinct volcano crater, but without the harbor facilities of the Ischians. Their settlement is known simply as "The Bottom," and can be reached only by an almost perpendicular flight of some 500 feet high.

The fifteen hundred people who live there speak mainly English, although for some 300 years the island of Saba has been owned and occupied by the Dutch.

THE HAWKEYE STATE

In the early days of Iowa, Indian raids were a constant menace to the white settlers. Aid from Washington was not forthcoming, so it fell upon John Edwards, fiery editor of the Burlington Patriot, to take matters into his own hands. Edwards was a brave old New Englander who had carried his fortune west to the frontier town of Burlington, and through experience had learned how to deal with Indians himself.

He knew of an Indian legend of a great black hawk that hovered over the Mississippi River and saw everything that went on. Edwards changed the name of his paper to the "Burlington Hawk," announcing that his first issue would be an all-aring as the "great black hawk." The name caught on, and eventually the state of Iowa came to be nicknamed the "Hawkeye State" after Edwards' paper.

LOVE FINDS A WAY

TULSA, Okla.—(AP)—Came a letter to County Clerk Andy Stokes from a woman in nearby Blissy county: "Will you please tell me what a marriage license will cost? Some say $3.50. Some say $1.50. So I would like to know because $1.50 is all I have." "P. S.—Ans. right back." Stokes answered that Oklahoma's price was $3—but that if she would bring in her $1.50, and other court house employees would make up the difference.

TAVARES—With the cooperation of Lake County's Rotary, Kiwanis, and Lions clubs, County Agent R. E. Norris recently held a series of meetings in the city hall at Leesburg to encourage farmers, growers, and townspeople to plant gardens and raise small flocks of poultry. Gardens and poultry flocks, the county agent said, tend to reduce family living costs. Other agricultural leaders stated Mr. Norris in the meetings.

DEFUNIAK SPRINGS—More than 500 Walton County farmers and farm women attended the series of 16 meetings held a short time ago for outlining objectives in the county agricultural program for this year. Living-at-home, food and feed crops, and production of livestock were featured at the meetings, which were conducted by Miss Eloise McGriff, home agent, and County Agent Mitchell Wilkins.

GRACEVILLE—The belief that Jackson County's rural electrification program will be carried forward to a successful conclusion was expressed by 90 business men and farmers at a recent meeting of the Graceville-Lions Club. County Agent J. W. Malone, the principal speaker, outlined the program and described the benefits to be derived from it.

Ex-Corporal Lands In Jail When Munich Putsch Fails

By Morgan M. Beatty

This is the second of three articles which follow in a feature, the subject-matter to Hitler's personality.

NEW YORK, Mar. 22.—(AP)—If you don't like Adolf Hitler, you can find documentary grounds for believing he began his political career as a spy sent among communists by German army leaders.

If you like him, you may look on his secret work as a high mission for the Fatherland.

A neutral investigator says Hitler was a member of a committee named by war veterans to investigate the post-war communist regime in Munich.

There's not a doubt, however, that the handsome corporal with the hand-bar mustaches deserved the confidence of the soldiery. He got the Iron Cross for World War bravery. Twice he had captured, almost single-handedly, a score or so of the enemy. Once he was blinded by gas, and once shot; up by shrapnel. And he certainly was ready at the drop of a hat to scream his hatred of the Russian system.

Unquestioned Bravery

Once communist officers were sent to Hitler's room to arrest him. He met them with revolver in hand, and drove them off, an act of unquestioned bravery. The incident got a whopping buildup in Munich beer cellars.

Soon Hitler was addressing political meetings all over Munich. Meetings developed an electric, even hysterical atmosphere. To an American, Hitler might have seemed a Fourth-of-July orator, a hypnotist, and a Billy Sunday. He was telling, native Germans what they wanted to hear, and he kept repeating it until they believed.

Hitler quickly developed oratorical tricks, learned to gauge an audience like a magician. Someday he was quick to observe a pre-dominance of women in his audience, and at such times would hold out his arms dramatically, shouting:

"You are mine and I am yours, as long as I shall live!"

Mustache Clipped

Maybe it looks silly in print, but it was not silly to Germany's post-war widows and orphans. By now the leader had clipped his mustache to a Charlie Chaplin smudge, and his hair fell like a scraggy mop over one eyebrow. But he was a bachelor and he seemed to have plenty of appeal.

The Hitler rallying cry was made to order for him, but not so the symbols, expressions, and dress of his political sect. In the history of national socialism in Austria he found one of its patriarchs had adopted the swastika, that good luck sign of antiquity, as the party emblem.

Hitler likewise was watching Mussolini, who then, in 1923, was about to "march" on Rome in a Pullman car. Mussolini's "shirt" idea appealed to Hitler for purposes of regimenting the uniform-loving Germans.

Before long there blossomed out the German workers national socialist party, with initials, in the German language, spelling "nazis." Then came the "brown shirts," the "storm troops," and Hitlerism was an accomplished fact.

Before long Hitler had declared a 25-point objective, with Jewish-baiting, repudiation of war guilt, the Versailles treaty, and reparations, as cardinal principles.

The growing beer hall gangster were clashing with communists, were deserving their proud leader's nickname of "storm troops." So confident did he feel his axis became that they decided to take a short cut to power.

The Futile Shot

The desperate job began in a Munich beer cellar on Nov. 9, 1923. Hitler worked the meeting into a bedlam. Then he paused, dramatically declaring the German republic at an end.

"The time has come," he shouted. "I can save."

With that he fired his pistol at the ceiling, and the beer-cellar putch began.

But Hitler had miscalculated the temper of German troops sent to the scene. The soldiers followed orders to fire on the Nazis and killed nearly a score. The putch was over. Hitler, the new messiah, became a laughing stock.

Enemies gasped that Hitler fell to the ground so hard at the first sound of firing that he broke his shoulder. Neutral observers said he was pulled to the street by a dying comrade, and broke his shoulder that way. But also there was the story how he risked his life to carry a child to safety. Whatever happened, Hitler escaped, but was captured in a few

DUTCH DONKEYS

IN SPITE of the capable ears with which they have been endowed, these donkeys still seem to be amazed over the changes that have come about in their homeland—Aruba. A small island belonging to the Leeward group of the "Dutch" West Indies, Aruba was until comparatively recently a quiet little island almost unnoticed by the rest of the world. Now, however, it is visited daily by giant airliners which connect it with the sister-island Curacao 20 miles distant, and with important cities on the mainland of South America; and its harbor shelters ships from all parts of the world, including those bringing weekly pleasure cruises from New York to the Caribbean.

South Is Hit By Roosevelt On Low Wages

President Says National Progress Is Being Retarded By Selfishness Of Few

Calls On South To Face Facts

Believers in Feudal System Said To Believe In Fascism

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Mar. 23.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, in a speech that admittedly surprised many of his hearers, called on the industrial South today to increase wages and buying power and asserted the national progress and prosperity were being retarded chiefly by "selfishness on the part of a few."

With several opponents of the Administration wage-hour bill in his outdoor audience, the Chief Executive declared bluntly that Georgia and the lower South must "face the facts"—that wage earners in the entire area "get wages that are far too low."

He said that the good things that come from higher wages and purchasing power would be lost to the South "if we oppose progress—if we believe in our hearts that the feudal system is still the best system."

"When you come down to it," he added "there is little difference between the feudal system and the fascist system. If you believe in one, you lean to the other."

The President spoke to a large crowd in dedicating "Roosevelt Square," a civic center of new buildings and parkways that rose from the ruins of the tornado two years ago with the help of federal funds.

His outspoken views on wages brought private expressions of surprise from several National legislators in the audience. They said they expected the President to make a different sort of a speech.

Education Association Convenes In Tampa This Week

All white Sanford schools and nearly all other white schools throughout the County will close at noon tomorrow while principals of all the schools and a great many of the teachers attend the meeting of the Florida Education Association to be held in Tampa through Saturday.

All of the schools of the County will be dismissed all day Friday, and in accordance with a ruling of the school board at its last meeting, this day will not have to be made up, but Superintendent T. W. Lawton said that the schools dismissing classes tomorrow afternoon will have to make up the lost time at the end of the school term.

Principals teachers and other educational leaders from all over the state will be in attendance at the meetings which will be held during the three days of the annual affair and outstanding personage in every field of school work are scheduled to speak.

Although a few meetings will be held today, the association will get down to business tomorrow morning at 9:00 o'clock with an opening business session under the direction of President Whitley. This will be followed by talks throughout the day and evening and a full program of convention activities through Friday and Saturday.

Besides the four general sessions at the city auditorium, there will be more than 60 group and department meetings, with conservation the convention theme.

President Urges G-Men Investigate Lynchings In South

WASHINGTON, Mar. 23.—(AP)—President Roosevelt yesterday disclosed he had proposed to congress a compromise for the anti-lynch bill under which G-men or legislators would investigate and publicize all acts of mob violence.

The substitute proposal, as outlined by Roosevelt at his press conference, presumably would not call for federal prosecution of mobsters, but would serve merely to provide a full exposition of facts which he said is what the nation needs.

The senate reportedly has filibustered to death the Wagner-Navy lynch bill which would authorize federal prosecution of state law enforcement officers found to have been derelict in their protection of prisoners from mob violence. A bloc of southerners, aided by republicans such as Senator Borah, of Idaho, fight the measure on grounds that it is a violation of states rights.

The president said this situation must not be permitted to block attempts to cope with mob attacks. He revealed that he made two alternative suggestions to members of congress:

1. Adoption of legislation empowering the attorney general to investigate lynchings and other violence and to make the facts public to congress, the president and the press.

2. Creation of a permanent congressional standing committee to make the investigations and subsequent facts.

The inquiry would be restricted to attacks which ended in death. The president did not designate the federal agents to make the investigation if this power were awarded to the attorney general, but the G-men are the most effective and they probably would be assigned to this task. They likewise would be made available to a standing committee of congress if one were created for this purpose.

Salvation Army Requests Aid To Top $3500 Quota

Leaders Say Sum May Be Reached If Each Person Contributes

An organization of a corps of workers continues for the annual Salvation Army drive, which opens Apr. 30, leaders in the campaign today requested every resident of Sanford to do his share in raising the $3500 quota to carry the activities of the organization for the ensuing year.

They also pointed out that there are over 10,000 residents in Sanford and that only a small contribution will be required from each person to raise the entire quota.

In discussing the financial workings of the organization Capt. H. E. Rose, commanding officer of the Citadel, reported that someone had asked the question, "Does the Salvation Army send money to England?"

The answer, he said, is very simple, emphatically, "No." The national audit shows that money raised in the United States is expended in the United States.

Someone else asked, "Does the Salvation Army publish a financial statement?" It does, in that it gives a detailed report to its Advisory Board, who are representative citizens of the community and, all books are audited twice annually by Salvation Army Auditors, and annually by the Audit Company of New York, a well-known firm of Certified Public Accountants. Therefore you may rest assured that your donation is accounted for.

FDR Defends Dismissal Of TVA Chairman

Senate Leader Blocks Action For Joint Investigation Of Government Agency

WASHINGTON, Mar. 23.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, advising Congress today that he had ousted Arthur E. Morgan from the TVA said it was "clearly the right" of the legislature to make "any fair inquiry" into the TVA's administration or policies. "But I cannot in the meanwhile," he said, "abdicate my constitutional duty to take care that laws be faithfully executed."

Before the message was received majority leader Barkley, Democrat, blocked immediate consideration of the resolution by Senators Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, and King, Democrat, Utah, providing a Senate-house investigation of the mammoth public power agency. Barkley, agreeing there should be an investigation, declared it should not be made by "partial" legislators.

Roosevelt ordered Morgan's removal yesterday, effective today, and elevated Harcourt A. Morgan to the chairmanship. His message on the TVA made no recommendation for filling the vacancy on the board but some informed persons believed he would nominate James L. Fly, TVA general council.

With his message Roosevelt sent to the capitol a letter from Robert H. Jackson, acting attorney general, upholding the president's right to remove TVA board members from office.

Geo. H. Townsend Docks Ketch At Municipal Pier

"I don't see why you don't tell all boat-owners of the perfectly beautiful trip along the St. Johns River," George H. Townsend, Maryland boat builder, told a Herald reporter in an interview shortly after his arrival in Sanford yesterday via the St. Johns River.

Mr. Townsend docked his high-masted ketch at the Municipal Pier yesterday just before noon after a leisurely trip up the river. He stated that he was unable to use the bills of the boat because of the sharp bends in the river but that the boat was powered with a 50 horse power gasoline engine.

The home port of the craft, which has a foremast rising 35 feet above the water, is Greenwich, Conn.—Mr. Townsend said that usually he spends his winters sailing about the West Indies.

Recently, however, he undertook an operation and has been forced to seek the calmer waters of inland waterways for his annual cruise.

Declaring the scenic beauty of the St. Johns was not to be surpassed anywhere else in the State, Mr. Townsend mentioned the possibilities of the proposed St. Johns-Indian River Canal for Sanford and added that a large percentage of the "dozens and dozens of yachts" which ply the impetuous St. Johns routes would turn inland to make their trip on the St. Johns which in addition to its natural beauties affords protection from the high wind, which often threaten along the East Coast.

Mr. Townsend and his boat, "Cherlie Too," will probably be in Sanford for several days. He said he likes the city very much. Chamber of Commerce officials yesterday afternoon took several pictures of the boat which is the first of its kind that has come to Sanford this season. The trim craft is 48 feet in length, has four tons of lead as ballast for the high mast and draws six feet of water.

Two Arrested As "Cuba" Sellers In Morning Raids

Grand Jury May Be Called For Inquiry

Two persons believed to be "Cuba" sellers were arrested by members of the Police Department in "suspicious places" this morning, Chief of Police Roy G. Williams reported today.

One of the persons, a negro by the name of Edward Walden was arrested by members of the Police Department after a raid on his filling station on Third Street and a number of alleged gambling receipts were found in his possession. He was lodged in the City Jail on a gambling charge but was released after he put up an appearance bond of $35.

Mrs. Mary Kempis was also arrested by local officers when they said they caught her in the act of selling lottery tickets at a filling station on Celery Avenue. She was released on an appearance bond of $100 and is expected to be tried in a special court session this afternoon at the Police Station.

With "Cuba Barons" apparently defying the warnings of the last Grand Jury and continuing sales of lottery tickets in this County, Assistant States Attorney J. F. Boyle intimated yesterday that the Grand Jury will be called into session again to investigate certain flagrant and continued violations.

RESIGNATIONS DENIED

WASHINGTON, Mar. 23.—(AP)—Povilas Zedekis, the Lithuanian minister, said yesterday he had received official word from Kanas that the Lithuanian cabinet had not resigned.

His information, Zedekis said, was also to the effect that none of the cabinet ministers had quit his post.

Insurgent Drive On Northeastern Front Nears Barbastro

By Associated Press
Disclosure that Pope Pius had appealed to Generalissimo Franco for moderation in air attacks on civilian centers injected a more hopeful note in today's word picture of war and threats of war.

But Spanish insurgents continued their drive toward the Mediterranean and Japan's armies struggled desperately to smash Chinese resistance and end the bitter deadlock in the oriental conflict.

Britain prepared to speed her great arms program in spite of her government's apparent decision to avoid further commitments in Europe.

In northeastern Spain Franco's insurgent armies pressed a new offensive in the Huesca sector north of the scene of their recent Aragon triumphs breaking through government lines along a 12-mile front to advance six miles. This drive relieved government pressure on Huesca and cleared the Huesca-Saragosa highway.

As the advance continued it threatened to involve Barbastro, 28 miles east of Huesca and endanger government defenses along the Ebro River where Franco's troops ripped a yawning hole in government territory last week.

In Central China Japanese forces struggled vainly to cross the Grand Canal and reach the Longhai railway in the Suchow sector. To the West along the Yellow River, Chinese reported they had driven the invaders back in many places. The Central China campaign had reached a stalemate.

Advices from Central Hubei province attributed much of China's success in resisting the Japanese to Communist army of 500,000 men, with Leninism for its daily gospel, which has been harassing the Japanese in North China.

LIFE

Children, ye have not lived, ye who have not loved, ye who have not been loved. Life is a lovely staccato of tears, of carnal or careless joys that pass.

Children, ye have not lived, ye but who have not loved, ye but who have not been loved.

Mexican Oil

Pointing out that the difficulty of passing fair judgment upon the seemingly drastic action of the Cerdas government in Mexico in expropriating the American and British oil companies operating there, the Miami Daily News says the situation requires a careful study of the contractual relations between the government and the companies.

It recalls, however, "the indubitable historical truth that foreign capital for almost a century has been systematically exploiting the resources of Mexico and, to some extent, the people. The cry of 'Mexico for the Mexicans' is not entirely without moral, social and political justification. Also in the government's favor is the fact that the companies are expropriated only for resisting a wage decree duly promulgated by the government and upheld by the Mexican supreme court. Persons who will be most shocked at the Mexican developments are, in largest measure, the persons who are most vociferous in their regard for the sanctity of the decisions of the American supreme court.

"The matter of course, is not so simple as all this. If the companies have been exploiting the natural resources of Mexico, they have also been discovering and developing them with a thoroughness which the Mexicans themselves would scarcely have been in a position to employ. If they have been exploiting the Mexican labor, as judged by American standards, they have also done something to raise the Mexican laborer's absolute living standard. The fact is that the companies, even before the new wage demands, were already paying wages two and three times as high as were being paid in many native industries.

"As in almost every case of this kind, there are right and wrong on both sides. We can only hope that all parties will exercise a maximum of honesty and restraint. Meanwhile, the United States government will undoubtedly keep watch to see that the rights of American citizens are not too flagrantly violated."

Avoiding A Trip To Reno

The constantly increasing number of divorces are giving rise to the belief that not enough effort is put forth by husbands and wives these days in trying to find a solution to their problems. Too many of them, it seems, are adopting what is apparently the easiest way, and heading for the divorce courts.

Dr. Hornell Hart, professor of Social Ethics at Hartford Theological Seminary, says that when marriage is about to go on the rocks, there are five possible courses of action which are open. You can acquiesce ignobly and take it. You can evade the situation bravely and run away like a coward. You can attack vindictively and get even. You can grapple courageously alone. Or you can co-operate creatively by seeing the situation from the view of all people concerned, including the rivals, and work out a solution by good team work.

Ten ways to co-operate, and avoid a trip to Reno are suggested by Dr. Hart in the April Good Housekeeping, as follows:

- First: Abandon all feeling of resentment. Surrender grudges and jealousies.
- Second: Eliminate needless irritants. Stop criticizing your mate. Avoid all situations which make him or her feel inferior.
- Third: Find ways to do new joyful things together.
- Fourth: Have children if you possibly can.
- Fifth: Understand your mate.
- Sixth: Discuss your vital family problems frankly, but do not argue endlessly. Marriage is a partnership, not a debating society.
- Seventh: Discover areas of agreement and develop together joint programs of action on which you can work together enthusiastically.
- Eighth: Surrender non-essentials. Many a marriage has gone to smash because husband or wife clung as a matter of principle to inconsequential points.
- Ninth: Agree to live and let live. Cultivate freedom for your mate, your children, and all the people involved in your family problems.
- Tenth: Put the welfare of your family first and stop fretting about yourself.

IF I WERE founding a university—and I say this in all seriousness—I would found first a smoking room; then a dormitory. Students must live together in a rational and comfortable way. They must eat in a big hall, with oak beams across the ceiling and stained glass in the windows and a shield or tablet here and there upon the wall to remind them of the men who went before them. Then, after the dormitories, when I had a little money in hand, I would establish a decent reading room and a library. After that, if I still had some money I couldn't use, I would get some textbooks and hire a professor.—Stephen Leacock in Harper's.

WEEKLY NEWS COLUMN

By JOE HENDRICKS

SEEMS POPULAR: There was a great deal of complaint about the farm bill when it was being enacted into law but I note that when it came to a vote on quotas particularly in regard to tobacco and cotton, that the vote was almost 90 percent for and about 10 percent against. This may not be an indication of the popularity of the bill but an indication of the willingness of the farmers to try anything once. I am glad that the quotas were voted in order that we may have a test of the theory of the bill after it can be revised and corrected.

ISN'T IT STRANGE: During the process of general debate on the new tax bill or the Revenue Act of 1938, Section IB, the section affecting family held corporations was stricken from the bill by a good majority and when the roll was called those voting to strike were perfectly willing to record themselves. The moment that this provision was stricken, the press immediately rushed certain members and insisted on having a statement from them that this was an indication that the President was losing his grip. Naturally it would not seem at all strange to them that the man who moved to strike Section IB, Massachusetts, was one of the President's staunchest supporters and friends. No, it does not mean that the President is losing his grip. It simply means that the Members of Congress are inclined to feel that a family owned corporation is perhaps no different from any other group and should not be treated any differently and were voting according to their convictions. I can point to occasion after occasion where this has happened every since the President has been elected. In any event, the Revenue Act of 1938 which passed the House and is now before the Senate was drastically revised and I believe will be a relief to business men.

A LARGE NAVY: At this writing the House is discussing the bill for a proposed increase in our national defense, particularly in the Navy. There is quite a storm raging over the bill but I wish to predict that there will not be very little over a hundred votes cast against it including Democrats and Republicans. It would be well if my constituents who are sitting in the Congress in 1917 when we were forced into the war with Germany, I believe that they would be enlightened. Mr. Maas, ranking minority member of the Naval Affairs Committee, in discussing the bill concluded his statement with this reference to our Navy "It is better to have it and not need it, than to need it and not have it."

NAVAL STORES: The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced today that a loan, not to exceed $7,000,000, has been made available to gum turpentine and gum rosin producers to make possible the orderly marketing of gum naval stores produced in 1938 and to protect producers from unfavorable conditions during the heaviest marketing period. The loan, recommended by Secretary Wallace, and approved by the Commodity Credit Corporation and the President, will be made available to all producers of gum naval stores who have complied or are complying with the 1938 Naval Stores Conservation loan to cover not more than 150,000 units of gum naval stores, there-fore, I suggest that you immediately contact the Commodity Credit Corporation in Washington, if you are interested in this matter.

SUPER-HIGHWAYS: "Another evidence of definite recognition of the West Coast is that in the proposed super-highway system by Rep. Buell Snyder of Pennsylvania is shown one of the super-highways running from Boston through Norfolk to St. Petersburg, and the name of St. Petersburg stands out in bold letters just as New York, Chicago, Boston and the large cities. I have been teasing some of the East coast people about an article appearing in one of the Pennsylvania papers about the highway running from Boston to Miami by way of New York, Norfolk and St. Petersburg, Florida."—J. Hardin Peterson.

CIVIL SERVICE: We have announcements of the following civil service examinations: Inspector of Clothing, $2,000 a year, Quartermaster Depot, Philadelphia, Pa., Quartermaster Corps War Department, and Chief Research and Statistical Service, $5,000 a year, Office of Education, Department of the Interior. For further details call at your nearest first class post office.

WPA PROJECTS: I am glad to announce the approval of WPA project 20312 in the amount of $10,655 for the remodeling of the school building in New Smyrna.

Hendricks Presents Soldier Pension Bill

WASHINGTON, Mar. 23.—(AP)—Representative Hendricks, (Democrat Fla.), said yesterday a bill he introduced would "increase and equalize" the pension of disabled veterans of the regular Army, Navy, and Marine Corps.

The bill would provide pensions ranging from $10 a month for veterans with a 10 percent disability to $100 a month for those completely disabled. If the disability were service-connected, the bill specifies, however, there should be no reduction in any pension or compensation now being paid to disabled veterans which might exceed the classifications proposed in the measure.

ROOSEVELT VIEWS RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Mar. 23.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said yesterday that federal relief should not be used for political purposes.

Informing at a press conference that one Pennsylvania political faction was charging another with mixing WPA and politics, Roosevelt said he would take action in any case where he believed it justified.

NEW CANCER THEORY

CHICAGO, Mar. 23.—(AP)—Research on hormones may yield clues as to the cause of cancer, says Dr. Aston J. Carlson, University of Chicago physiologist. Professor Carlson reports initial experimentation has shown that an excess of hormone frequently produces cancer. He said the next problem is learning how to control this unusual growth.

"TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY"

By RUSSELL KAY

You know, just about the time I am ready to form the crazy idea that I know all about Florida, I usually stumble on some amazing new feature or attraction that I'd never even dreamed of before and that's just what happened to me when I visited Marianna a few days ago.

If anyone had tried to tell me a month ago that there are caves and caverns in this state that can hold their own with anything that Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia or Colorado have to offer, I would have listened attentively while I was figurin' out in my mind whether to call a cop or an alienist.

But after my experience at Marianna last week, brother, I'm about ready to believe anything anyone might tell me as to the wonders, charms, beauties or advantages of Florida.

Firstest, if some guy stepped up to me right now and tried to convince me that there was a mountain peak somewhere in Florida with a glacier runnin' down one side and a flock of polar bears playin' leap-frog on the other, I might be a bit skeptical, but I'd hesitate before I called him a liar.

If these archeological WPA workers were to unearth a mass of Egyptian pyramids or a leonine tower of Pasa somewhere between the Alabama line and the Florida Straits, it wouldn't surprise me in the least.

But gettin' back to my story: Over in Marianna I ran into a thrip named Yancey, who is secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and right away he insists that I let him take me out to see the Caverns.

"Listen," I says, "you're a nice guy and I like you and all that, but I ain't got time to be runnin' 'round the woods lookin' at gopher holes."

"Gopher holes," he snorts, "wait 'till you see 'em!" And since he was a lot bigger than I am and had a kind of determined glint in his eye, I figured maybe I'd better go along and avoid trouble.

Now I have visited the Mammoth Cave in Kentucky, the Cave of the Winds in Colorado, and a lot of lesser caves in other parts of the country, but folks I'm talkin' you this mess of caverns up in Jackson county can hold their own with any of 'em.

Now it seems this guy Yancey is a kind of a Cave Man, not the type you see in the movies wearin' a leopard-skin sports suit and carryin' a slab of pine tree for a cane, but a sort of 1938 model in a business suit and carryin' a flashlight.

Well, he took me about three miles from town for a motor trip through a portion of the new Caverns State Park, a 1400 acre reservation being developed as a national playground by the Florida Board of Forestry and State Park Service. Among the features planned are a golf course, natural bridge, athletic area, swimming and fish hatchery and museum. Bridle paths throughout the area will invite the visitor while excellent swimming and boating will be available.

But the big feature will be the underground caverns where the amazed visitor will be carried through a maze of passageways into fourteen separate rooms or compartments, each of them a veritable fairy palace, with fantastic ever-changing scenes at every turn, provided by clustered stalactites and stalagmites, woven in gigantic masterpieces by Mother Nature, and no one knows how long she has been at the task.

While similar in character to the caves found in other sections, those of Caverns State Park near Marianna possess many features found nowhere else and when the development in opening them for public inspection, now under way, is completed, these wonderful caverns will attract tourists and visitors from the four corners of the world.

I am deeply indebted to Tom Yancey, the Cave Man of Marianna, for his courtesy and kindness in taking me through the Park and Caverns, and when your turn comes, I promise you, you'll not be disappointed.

MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—One of the conspicuous work decorations in Jed Harris' office in the old Empire Theatre building is a group of newspaper clippings proudly framed on one vast board and hung where all may see.

These are the reviews of "Broadway," the play that launched Harris and so many other unknowns on successful theatrical careers, and though it has been a full decade since "Broadway" first caused the hardened realist observers to rub their eyes and hasten back to their typewriters, his face still breaks into a smile every time it is mentioned.

Mr. Harris is a slim, well-groomed young man who started from scratch and earned $5,000,000. That he lost it in Wall Street has no bearing on his record as a Broadway producer. At the moment he has two shows in the hit class, and he probably will do another by Edward Hemsingway whom he recently visited at Key West.

For some time now Mr. Harris hasn't thought much of the New York critics, and when I asked him what he thought of the reviews on "Our Town," which is one of his two hits, he thought for a moment and said "They were on an average level of unintelligence." About the reviews on "A Doll's House" he says "These struck a very high level of unintelligence."

He thinks not only the critics but the playwrights will have to bring themselves up to the level of ten years ago if the theatre is ever to be "the theatre of pure entertainment" again. And just now he doesn't think much of the present playwrights, who give their all in Hollywood and race back to N. Y. occasionally with a left-over script. The main hope, he feels, lies in new writers, such as Thornton Wilder and Hemsingway, "who is seeing through a transition just now which may conceivably make him a great man as well as a great writer."

Incidentally, who's talking play with Hemsingway, Mr. H. found opportunity to accompany him on a fishing trip and also a hunt. "He was enthusiastic about my shooting," Harris recalls, grinning. "He says he'd like to turn me loose against the Spanish fascist."

As for Hemsingway's play, which will touch on the Spanish war, Harris says little beyond the fact that he talked shop with Ernest and Joe as the script was mellowed. After four days in Florida he returned, and five days later Hemsingway's play again flew to New York, carrying with it a business and a social bag. It is probable that he brought with him a revised script for Harris to read. At any

Senior Play Will Be Given On Mar. 30

The senior play of Seminole High School to be presented on March 30 will have Don Bishop, son of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Bishop, playing the leading role of Chester Binner.

This role made famous by Grant Mitchell on the stage and Edward G. Robinson in the film-calls for a dual character role in which Chester changes from a shabby, negative personality to an aggressive hero. Mrs. H. C. Maxwell, director for the play, reports that though this is young Mr. Bishop's first play, he shows unusual talent for the drama.

Vedie Williams, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Volje Williams, plays the part of Mr. Simmons, Chester's partner. This is the heaviest role of the play, having more lines than any other. Mrs. Maxwell reports that Mr. Williams is equipped for this in that he is an experienced thespian, having appeared in many plays in both Junior High and High School.

Miss Marjorie Cogburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cogburn, and known to Sanford as a talented dancer, will take the role of Mrs. Simmons. Mrs. Maxwell feels that in this Miss Cogburn displays her versatility by playing the role with spirit and realism.

Helen Palmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Palmer, has the (senior) lead as Esther, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simmons. Helen has distinguished herself among the cast. Mrs. Maxwell reports her to be perfect in her lines after the first rehearsal.

Mrs. Ralph A. Smith Named Vice-President State Women's Clubs

By MRS. JAMES MOUGHTON
Sanford's quota of delegates to the Palm Beach State Women's Clubs Convention last week returned to its fold with flying colors and crowned themselves with laurels. There was humility and modesty among them all, but we did move them to tell upon each of their comrades. We can express the news to the pride and joy of the Sanford's Woman's Club. We know the public will join in congratulations, for we think our body, county and city, a part of Sanford's pulsating life. Our motto being, "Not for self, but for all," causes us to breathe for the City Substantial.

Mrs. Ralph Austin Smith, having to her credit the interest of many civic duties in other organizations of the city and county, is a valued Past-President of the Sanford Woman's club. She is president of the County Federated clubs and was formerly State Recording Secretary, and has now returned to us as State Vice-President at large. Mrs. Smith's duties will be the supervision of twelve sections of Vice-Presidents. She will tour the state with the new president, Mrs. J. Ralston Wells of Daytona Beach.

As fun is relished by the best of women, so was interest relished in Dr. Elizabeth Tracy, a delegate from the County Federated clubs. As Sanford delegates looked upon its valued member they were attracted to a very attractive gentleman who waited most attentively upon their Dr. Tracy. The gentleman took his lady to luncheon in Palm Beach. Dr. Tracy appeared to know her record, had known him or some time. The delegates continued to look on with interest. As soon as time allowed itself, they hastened to find out the name of their object. The gentleman proved to be from Lake Worth and was Dr. Joseph Cahoon, a brother of Dr. Tracy's.

Mrs. Ernest M. Galloway, a Past President of Sanford Woman's club also showed up to our pride. Mrs. Galloway had many offices locally, also offices in the state clubs. One of those being State Parliamentarian. In the General Federated clubs she has also held offices, and is now Trustee from Group Two. In this capacity at the opening of the convention in Palm Beach, Mrs. Galloway extended greetings from the General Federation. It was with a little pride that the Sanford delegates watched their former president preside as Parliamentarian in the absence of the present incumbent, Mrs. Galloway is State Chairman of the Revision of By-Laws, and at the convention was Chairman of the Budget Committee. We forgot to mention another, General Federation office too, by popular vote, our lady was elected as one of three to serve in Vice-President's section.

Mrs. A. M. Phillips, president of Sanford Woman's club, and one time State Chairman of music, was a delegate to the convention, and in the absence of the present incumbent acted as Assembly leader in singing.

Mrs. Valler L. Cooper, a Past President of Sanford Woman's club as well as Past President of New Smyrna Woman's club, was a delegate from the County Federated clubs. Mrs. J. Ralston Wells appointed Mrs. Cooper as State Chairman of Safety Committee. Mrs. Cooper is vitally interested in this work and has already had a call. The Winter Park Woman's club had Mrs. Cooper explain her plans to them on Tuesday. They are said to be already acting upon those suggestions.

Mrs. R. J. Holly, incoming president of Sanford's Woman's club, was a delegate to the convention who received many social attentions. Among these was the attending of a luncheon at the Everglades Club of Palm Beach.

The hostess of this being Miss Ruby Pierce, editor of Palm Beach News.

Has not the Sanford Woman's club just cause for elation of its delegates?

Concert Presented By Rosemarie Brancato

Miss Rosemarie Brancato, young American coloratura, presented a concert on Monday evening at the Princess Theatre before a large and appreciative audience, under the auspices of the Co-operative Concerts Association.

Many enthusiastic expressions have been heard regarding the young artist and her concert. Mrs. Phillips says:

"After hearing Rosemarie, we can readily understand why she was able to win the Atwater-Kent Radio Contest, which later granted her Scholarship at Eastman School of Music in Rochester, New York," declared Mrs. A. M. Phillips, president of the Woman's club. "The musician found it difficult last evening to choose the choice number on the program. Never has there been a time when Sanford took into its heart a singer with such marked approval. From the folk's strains through the Italian Volkyong by Ross, to the song of an American composer, 'When You Love Me'.

"Rosemarie's coloratura work was especially outstanding in Dinorah's Shadow Song. Here it was, she sang in a way that was happy through dancing with her shadow in the moonlight.

"The well known Liszt number, 'Oh quand je dors' was also enthusiastically received. May we compare the old English song, 'Myllis Blath Such Charming Graces' to our singer's radiant personality.

"The well chosen encores were most enthusiastically received, the favorite being, 'Roses of Picardy'.

"There was as much euphony in her soft tones as when projected with power. As the audience followed her, it was caught up in its own tuneful harmony. At all times Rosemarie Brancato showed exceptional skill in vocal control, remaining consistently on pitch.

"May we predict for this lovely artist continued brilliant achievements in Opera concert and radio.

Harold Dart not only proved himself an efficient and sympathetic accompanist but also a soloist. He captivated his audience in his typical contrasts between Schumann's Romanza, Rondo in A, by Haydn and Chopin's Waltz and Etude," Mrs. Phillips concluded.

In her welcoming speech on Monday evening, Mrs. Phillips encouraged members of the concert association to co-operate in order that the artist series may be repeated next season.

Miss Brancato wore a gown of black satin and dusty rose. She was presented with a large bouquet of red roses by the Woman's Club.

The stage held a single beautiful basket of red roses and delphinium against a background of blue velvet.

An appreciative audience called for five encores after Miss Brancato had completed her program of songs.

Greeting the concert members at the door were: Mrs. R. E. Tolar, Mrs. J. B. Cogburn, Mrs. W. L. Cooper, Mrs. Martin Bram, and Ralph Hagwell.

Others were: Mrs. Harry Woodruff, Mrs. T. F. McDaniel, Mrs. H. B. Odham, Jr., Miss Kathleen Loney, Miss Elizabeth Whitner, Miss Camilla Deas, and Miss Luella Bolt.

Hapsburg Coterie Jailed In Nazi's Purge Of Austria

"Political Suicides" Near 100 Mark As Roundup Continues

VIENNA, Mar. 23. —(AP)—Nine men whose lives have been devoted to a long struggle for restoration of the Hapsburg monarchy were herded into a police cell last night with pickpockets and drunkards, as Austria's Nazi masters carried out a virtual purge of the old nobility.

The nine men—princes, dukes and barons—represented almost the entire coterie of leaders who sought to place young Archduke Otto on the throne—a dream shattered by Adolf Hitler's bold annexation of Austria as a German province nine days ago.

Among the prisoners were Duke Maximilian and Duke Ernest of Hohenberg, sons of Archduke Francis Ferdinand whose assassination at Sarajevo started the World war.

The "official" list of Austrian suicides meanwhile neared the 100 mark.

The monarchist prisoners, lodged in a large cell of Vienna's largest police detention house, were said to be receiving "treatment no better than any of the other inmates."

Their suspenders, collar buttons and shoe laces were taken from them and the aristocratic noblemen and courtiers presented a strange appearance.

Besides the archduke's sons—Maximilian is 36 and Ernest 35—the prisoners included: Prince Karl Emil Furstentberg, 71, Austria's former imperial ambassador to the court of Madrid. He has been an intimate friend of former Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany for many years and has large estates both in Germany and Austria.

Baron Karl Werkmann, 60, last personal secretary of the late Emperor, Charles.

Baron Hans Zeiner-Spitzenberg, 63, monarchist representative in the former fatherland front.

Gen. Othmar Danesch, 77, former major general of the imperial army.

Count Thun, owner of estates in Czechoslovakia.

Baron Heichlin-Meideck, former army colonel whose brother is adjutant to Archduke Eugene of the Hapsburgs.

Col. Gustav Wolff, 60, who first organized the restoration movement.

The formal charges against the sons of Archduke Francis Ferdinand were not disclosed but it was reported that Duke Ernest recently smashed a signboard in the German railway office in Vienna.

Police squads continued their roundup of chiefs of leftist semi-military organizations, particularly socialists who played roles in the bloody "workers' war" of February, 1934, that preceded the Nazi push of mid-summer in which Chancellor Dollfus was slain.

An official list contained the names of Gen. Theodore Koerner and Maj. Alexander Koller, former army leaders who led socialist strikers in the February, 1934, trouble. Former Mayor Karl Sella and former Chamberlain Karl Benke also were under arrest.

A police decree yesterday ordered everyone in Austria to turn over all firearms and ammunition before Friday. Possession after then will result in severe penalties, the announcement said.

The Nazi police administration announced 10 "political" suicides, including Jews and other anti-Nazis, since Germany's annexation of Austria.

Florida Tobacco Farmers Allotted Acreage Increase

GAINESVILLE, Mar. 23. —Florida's flue-cured tobacco farmers have been given a total allotment of 13,000 acres for 1939 rather than the 9,300,000 acres first announced by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in charge of the AAA program in this state. Of this 11,000 acres is for old growers and 2,000 acres for new growers. Mr. Clayton says.

The increase of more than one-third in acreage allowance was obtained by Mr. Clayton when he pointed out that last year's acreage in Florida, as shown by reports of growers, was considerably in excess of the acreage previously estimated by the Department of Agriculture. Acreage allotments have been made to individual farms for this year and setting of plants is nearing completion, Mr. Clayton says.

Under the marketing quota for flue-cured tobacco now in effect growers will be permitted to sell, tax-free, this year the average production of their allotted acreage.

Overwhelming approval of marketing quotas for flue-cured tobacco and cotton was given by growers of these crops voting in the referenda of Mar. 12. Flue-cured tobacco growers in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, where this type is produced, voted about 55 percent in favor of control. Florida's unofficial tabulation gives 1,948 favoring and 1,511 opposing the quota. Growers of 22 counties participated in the vote.

Salvation Army Requests Aid To Top $3500 Quota

to the Salvation Army will be used for the purpose it is intended, Capt. Row asserted.

Col. G. D. Workman, chairman of the men's division, today announced three of his majors in his campaign, namely: H. H. Coleman, Sidney Nix, and C. E. Adams. Others will be announced later.

Col. Workman has asked each major to secure five captains, and each captain will be asked to secure four Newman's who will go in teams to do the general solicitation.

Sidney Nix, a former general campaign chairman, issued the following statement regarding the work of the Salvation Army.

"The Salvation Army is doing a service in our community worthy of our active support and encouragement. Its efforts are directed to inculcate religious ideas without emphasizing creeds and dogmas; to teach morality and righteousness; to afford relief to those in need who are for the time being without friends, or without means to sustain them, and to train in right living those of our youth who rather shrink from seeking spiritual leadership in other organizations of kindred import in our community.

"Throughout the years of its activities here the Salvation Army has performed these services with distinction and credit to itself and the community. Its local personnel has been of the highest order, proving worthy of our trust. The outstanding work it has done merits a continuation in our interest, encouragement, and ample funds to carry on."

Magazine Article Says Canal Might Be Bad On Water

WASHINGTON, Mar. 23. —(AP)—Opinion that a sea-level canal across Florida, cutting the Ocala limestone formation, would cause widespread and progressive damage to fresh water wells is voiced in an article appearing in the latest issue of "Economic Geology," a scientific publication. The article is written by V. T. Strimling, D. G. Thompson and O. E. Miesner, and is an elaborate scientific study of Florida's underground water. The co-authors are assistants to Dr. W. G. Mendenhall, chief of the U. S. Geological Survey.

Dr. Mendenhall said Monday the article bears out his own testimony offered the rivers and harbor committee a year ago when the proposed cross-state canal was in debate.

Sydney Price and other geologists employed by army engineers testified in their opinion the proposed canal would result in no material damage. Dr. Mendenhall believes the proposed canal would lower the underground water tables to a dangerous degree.

Choicest delicacies of all the North American game animals.

At one time the bighorn ranged down into grassland and desert country of the foothills but the white man's rifle and his domestic flocks have taught the bighorn that his only hope of safety lay among the highest and roughest country he could find.

CAPTIVE CONGRESSMAN... January, 1847, Gaines was captured by the Mexicans, taken to Mexico City and thrown in jail. Meanwhile, back in Kentucky elections were going on. The Whig Party, grasping at Gaines' popularity in the state and not realizing that he was at the time a prisoner in a dirty Mexican jail, picked him as their candidate for Representative to the 60th U. S. Congress. Gaines, strange as it seems, won the election while still a prisoner! He soon managed to escape and make his way back to the United States. He served with the legislature until March 3, 1849, losing an attempt at reelection. In 1850 Gaines became Governor of the Oregon Territory and served for three years. In 1848 he died near Salem, Oregon.

NAMING OF ABILENE... Abilene, Kansas, was one of those little cow towns that mushroomed overnight on the western prairies to accommodate the cattle men from Texas who herded their beef up the old Chisholm Trail for shipment to Kansas City and Chicago. Abilene started out with no name, but the town did have a reputation for lawlessness and gunplay. In all the town there was one oasis of religion—the home of Mrs. Tim Hersey, a devout Methodist. At the Hersey's one night in the early 1850's gathered a group of more religious-minded citizens for an evening of Bible study. When it was over, the subject of naming the town came up—and it was Mrs. Hersey who chose "Abilene" from chapter 17, verse one of Luke in her beloved Bible.

Andrews Is Against Reorganization Bill

WASHINGTON, Mar. 23.—United States Senator Charles O. Andrews (Democrat, Fla.) announced here last night that he definitely is opposed to President Roosevelt's proposed government re-organization bill. Explaining further, he said that while he will vote first for its recommitment, he eventually will vote to kill whatever measure might result.

A coalition drive to hamstring President Roosevelt's government re-organization bill by exempting various agencies from the measure's "streamline" provisions, appeared doomed last night after the Senate rejected in swift succession a series of crippling amendments. Most bitterly-contested were an amendment by Senator Key Pittman (Democrat, Nev.) exempting the agriculture department's forestry bureau from executive transfer, and one by Senator Bennett (Clark, Democrat, Mo.) to exclude the veteran's administration. Pittman's motion, supported by Senator William E. Borah (Democrat, Idaho) lost 50 to 32, as Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat, S. C.) charged that it was an attempt at political log-rolling to eliminate "pet" agencies of Senators.

Hitler Talks Self Into Power When Putsch Fails

By Morgan M. Beatty
This is the last of three articles which bring into focus the background to Hitler's personality.

When Adolf Hitler's march on Berlin failed in 1923, the Nazi chieftain decided to talk himself into power.

But you can't talk yourself into anything from a cell and that's where Hitler found himself when his 1923 coup failed.

So, the ex-corporal devoted himself to the next best thing—the writing of his autobiography. He called the work "Mein Kampf"—"My Battle" or "My Fight."

It was a constant repetition of political themes he had been pounding at Germans since the war.

"Get up, German workers; you're not whipped," was the general idea. Hitler, of Russia and the Jews ran through the 700-odd pages, German superiority was the keynote.

Heads will Roll
The book was an outpouring of Hitler's passion for the fatherland. Nothing had stemmed it, not even a baptism of fire from German regular army troops. Even on the witness stand he had insisted on preaching his hold plan for German domination of Central Europe. He had predicted that heads would roll when he assumed absolute power.

It all seemed so ludicrous. And yet millions of Germans were only too eager to listen. German authorities of the day must have sensed that, for Hitler was paroled within a year. Then began his final, successful assault on the republic.

Biographers, news correspondents, medical men, friends and enemies all have tried to explain the hocus-pocus that made Hitler the supreme law in Germany. None has succeeded, yet all seem to catch a part of the idea.

For instance, a psychologist says Hitler has a mother love complex, brought on by his father's tyranny, and his own early failures in art. This interpreter sees Hitler's unswerving purpose to dominate the Germanic people as an effort to prove to mother Hitler's memory that her son was the master of his destiny.

Others tell you Hitler arouses the twin emotions of love and fear in his followers, eventually merging them into a frenzy of devotion.

Life Of Contradictions
Still others credit everything to Hitler's genius as a propagandist. It is public knowledge that a few of his intimate followers have been covered with the mud of sex scandal. One such man, Ernst Roehm, was the only person who dared call Hitler by his first name.

Yet his enemies produce no evidence that Hitler himself is anything but normal. On occasion he certainly has shown himself brave, resolute, and equipped with the powers of genius.

Hitler's personal and public life are a succession of contradictions. He remains a bachelor while preaching that Germans should marry and produce more stalwart sons. In his early life, he preferred idleness, yet he has rebuilt Germany on the preachment that work is a glorious adventure, a patriotic duty.

He professes a consuming passion for the people, tells the world they are his boss. Yet he rules them with absolute authority.

Hitler emerged from Landsburg fortress proud and resourceful and marched straight toward political power. Each year he and his followers talked themselves into more seats in the Reichstag, until, by 1933, they had the balance of power. Then they dethroned the law-makers, and waited for the inevitable crisis.

The Hour Strikes
When it arrived, and the beloved President von Hindenburg asked Hitler to become chancellor, the Nazi hour had struck. Hitler abolished the republic, made the Reichstag a rubber stamp, made the nation into a centralized state. Freedom of speech and the press went by the board, now that they were no longer of use to him.

Up sprang the secret police, the organization that paved the way a year or so later for Hitler's purge of enemies within the party. Old pal, Roehm was personally arrested by Hitler, taken out and shot. At least 7 other persons were done away with.

Hitler was making the heads roll, as promised. Moreover, he was carrying out some of his pledges to the people. Much to the discomfiture of France he repudiated the Versailles treaty, German war guilt, and suspended reparation payments.

He militarized the Rhineland, rebut and banished to German army. Truly, Hitler and Germany were throwing out their chests. They quit the League of Nations, and worked for union with Austrian Germans.

Now, an astounded world watches Hitler stride through marching columns and proclaim himself leader of Germany and Austria, a unit of 75,000,000 people.

"Success," once said Hitler, "is the only earthly judge of right or wrong."

And Herr Adolf Hitler, leader of the German people, has been a success, so far.

Chamberlain Pledges England Will Fight To Uphold Treaties

Declaration In House Of Commons Promises Effort To Preserve World Peace

British Labor To Co-operate Strikes In France Hamper Work Of Blum Government

LONDON, Mar. 24.—Prime Minister Chamberlain in Great Britain today refused to give Chamberlain a "prior guarantee" of immediate armed help against German aggression, but he warned Dictator Adolf Hitler that a middle European war would drag in other powers.

"Where peace and war are concerned," he told the House of Commons, "legal obligations are not alone involved and if war breaks out it would be unwise to be confined to those who have assumed such obligations. It would be impossible to say where it would end and what governments might become involved. This is especially true of our countries, Britain and France, devoted to some ideal of Democratic Liberty and determined to uphold them."

LONDON, Mar. 24.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain today served notice upon aggressor states that Great Britain would fight to fulfill her treaty obligations.

But he also declared to a packed, intent House of Commons that England must first try to preserve peace.

"Because we know that in war there are no winners," Chamberlain said in his most important declaration of foreign policy since the World War, Chamberlain said he was confident peace "will be maintained."

Army Bill Calling For $447,808,555 Received By House

WASHINGTON, Mar. 24.—(AP)—A $447,808,555 appropriation bill for 1939 was department requirements, emphasizing aviation and material, went to the house yesterday for immediate consideration.

Administration leaders proposed the appropriation about $200,000,000 higher than this year and the highest since 1931.

The house approved the measure, which sent the measure to the floor, extended belief that the United States rank first among the powers in naval aviation, and will rank second only to Great Britain in total air strength when army and navy planes, already ordered, become available.

More than half of the increase over last year's bill—$11,000,000—will be spent in expanding the army's air force to 12,000 planes. The bill authorizes 418 new craft of a cost of $12,000,000.

The committee urged that virtually all of President Roosevelt's recommendations for 1939, which worth of new material be approved. Roosevelt requested $2,000,000 for anti-aircraft guns, $2,000,000 for the construction of 100 new military aircraft, but would not provide an "adequate military defense" but would provide "rehabilitation" of existing equipment.

The recommendations called for an increase of $1,250,000 in aircraft and $1,250,000 in other equipment to be used in the event of a war.

Race Started To Send Munitions Of War To Spain

French Estimate In-surgents Have Received 400 Planes

LONDON, Mar. 24.—(AP)—Informed sources said yesterday a two-way race is on to supply arms to warring factions in Spain.

They pictured Italy and Germany rushing munitions to Spanish rebels and Soviet Russia, and to a lesser extent France sending arms to Spanish government forces.

Rebel General Franco, they said, has received far more aid than the Spanish government, with three to five times as many planes and crushing artillery supremacy.

A French estimate of 400 German and Italian planes in rebel Spain, London sources said, was far below the total rebel air strength.

French fears that foreign guns and planes now used against the Spanish government would be turned against France if a World War should come, inspired a new suggestion to London yesterday.

French officials advised that France must send planes to Spain to prevent the rebels from using them against the French.

Re-establishment of Spanish-French frontier control, as approved by the Franco-Spanish intervention committee Nov. 6, 1937, has been delayed by a split within the committee.

France has consented to re-occupation of non-intervention control of her Spanish border as soon as international commission holds counting foreign fighters to be withdrawn from Spain. Italy has insisted such control start as soon as the commission enters the country.

The Spanish government embassy sent a note to the British foreign office asking information on Italian and German participation in Franco's recent offensive.

At the same time the Spanish Ambassador told the permanent undersecretary for foreign affairs that the Spanish government most attaches particular importance to Italian and German arms shipments to France.

"With this material," the Spanish government statement said, "Italy and Germany also again have attempted and again unsuccessfully to control the British government with the accomplished fact of a rebel victory for such time as the Spanish question shall come to the fore in British negotiations with Italy."

More Funds Are Granted To Buy Surplus Celery

Control Committee To Meet In Lakeland To Discuss Prorate

Following a request from members of the Celery Control Committee, and in view of the present condition of the celery market, the Department of Agriculture has authorized the allocation of additional funds for the purchase of surplus celery, according to information received by The Herald today from Senator Claude Pepper.

The first allocation to the Surplus Commodities Corporation for the purchase of the surplus celery had been nearly expended, J. C. Lottice, secretary, said this morning, and the Control Committee at its meeting last Friday in Lakeland had requested more funds to alleviate the condition of the growers who have been forced to withhold from the market a large amount of their celery because of heavy quotas enforced by the Control Committee.

In the surplus program for the current week the SCC has agreed to purchase 100 cars of celery for $1,000,000 through retail channels at 30 cents per crate, the division not to exceed 20 cents per crate and to be paid to the growers, and to be paid to the growers, and to be paid to the growers.

Earlier in the week Washington officials advised that they (Continued on Page Eight)

Murphy Measure Does Not Affect State Institutions

Tallahassee, Mar. 24.—(AP)—

Figures were made public yesterday by the office of Colin Englekamp, state superintendent of education, to show Florida schools will not suffer this term through operation of the Murphy act.

The statement said county school superintendents had anticipated a sharp reduction in delinquent tax collection under the act, and had made their budgets conform to it.

Some observers had reported school operations might be sidetracked by low-dollar sales of state-owned tax certificates under terms of the new law, and officials of the Florida Education association meeting tomorrow in Tampa promised a study of its effects.

English said the schools received from tax redemptions in 1937-38 a total of $3,214,200. The counties anticipated for the current year from the same source only $723,200.

This expectation actually was more conservative, he said, than the state's experience. The state received $424,000 from tax redemptions in the first six months of 1937, before the new tax law became effective. This dropped in the final six months of the year, when the law was operative, to $113,000.

English said a few scattered county school boards apparently had not taken full account of the losses they would suffer from the tax measure. Those, he said, might find their operations endangered before the year ends.

Seminole County Is Advertised By Bank

"Seminole, the Epicenter of Agricultural Florida," is the heading of a large advertisement widely circulated by the Atlantic National Bank of Jacksonville.

Seminole County is characterized as "The biggest little county in Florida" where every constituent of the principal crop "more than one-fourth of that product consumed in the United States being grown in Seminole."

The advertisement tells of the health value of the commodity and offers an "especially prepared recipe" for "open season, at the bank."

In addition to this valuable publicity, the bank is also sponsoring a trade broadcast on Seminole County, Saturday evening, 8:30 P. M., on WFLA in Jacksonville, and Tuesday, Mar. 29, from 8:30 to 9:30 P. M.

Home Demonstration Agents Hold Meeting

"Program Planning" was the principal topic of discussion at a meeting of Home Demonstration Agents of this district in Ocala yesterday, local Agent, Mrs. Gladys Kendall, said today.

Mrs. Kendall stated that the program includes plans for promotion of better home life for the county, state and nation. Mrs. Kendall also plans to attend the meeting of the State Home Economics Association to be held in connection with the annual meeting of the Florida Extension Association in Tallahassee.

State Market Bright Spot In Farm Picture

Better Prices Being Realized On Miscellaneous Crops Than On Celery Sales

One bright spot in Seminole County's agricultural picture is the Sanford State Farmers' Wholesale Market and the hundreds of thousands of pounds of produce which are being sold daily there to raising concerns in nearly all southern and eastern states at prices generally considered in excess of those offered in the principal northern markets.

A typical day at the Market was revealed Tuesday by J. U. Michael, manager, as that Monday when 279,502 pounds of produce were disposed of for $4,500, not including 62,000 pounds of citrus fruits which brought $840.

On the day before 1,375 crates of celery were sold for $1,512, which, considering the absence of freight rates and similar costs on carlot shipments, is regarded as a better price than that generally being received today.

Monday 117,850 pounds of cabbage were sold through the Market for $1060 and 365 dozen bunches of beets for $109.84. Gross receipts for the season, according to Mr. Michael, are expected to run well over half a million dollars.

Prices Are Fair

Prices generally at the Market for principal crops are regarded as fair and in most cases sufficient to render a reasonable return to the grower. As one farmer stated yesterday, it will be his return from cabbage and carrots which will feed him this summer.

Main crops which have been most satisfactory this winter are beets, lettuce, cabbage, turnips, carrots, strawberries, cauliflower, radishes, and onions, parsley, radishes, and onions.

Most of the products sold at the Market are grown in Seminole County, but about 35 per cent (Continued on Page Eight)

Wendel Brings Suit Against Ex-Governor

REAR, N. J., Mar. 24.—(AP)—Paul H. Wendel filed suit today in Federal Court seeking $3,000,000 damages from former Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, Ellis H. Parker, Sr., and Jr., and five other persons for allegedly conspiring in the kidnapping and torture which he said caused him to confess falsely to the Lindbergh kidnaping.

The former Trenton attorney charged Hoffman "directed and controlled" crimes committed against him.

The inscription over the entrance says, "Enter to Grow in Wisdom," and that over the exit, "Depart to Serve thy Country and thy Kind."

The dinner was held at the Mount Plymouth Country Club and over 250 guests attended. It was reported, a number of testimonials to Mr. Hippler were read by Karl Lehmann, who acted as master of ceremonies.

Kiwanis Told Of Need To Preserve State Wild Life

C. H. Mason, president of the Florida Audubon Society, told members of the Kiwanis Club at the weekly luncheon yesterday of the necessity for conservation of wild life throughout this nation in order to preserve many species of birds, and animals which are now nearly extinct.

The program yesterday was held in connection with the National Wild Life Conservation week which is being observed over the entire nation by a proclamation of the president.

In his address to Kiwanians, Mr. Mason emphasized conservation of bird life and mentioned the work of the Audubon group in this connection. He told of the conservation efforts of the Society along with other conservation groups in preventing the extinction of the egret which are now more numerous than a century ago as the result of an extensive conservation program.

He told of the work of the General Wild Life Federation in sponsoring the National Wild (Continued on Page Eight)

Mayor Edward Higgins was in Jacksonville yesterday on business.

Fire Chief Mack Cleveland reported today that the Department had made 62 runs since Jan. 1 and that the total loss had been only $58.

Local Building Inspector G. P. Paxton today granted permission to Albert Vase for repair and painting of his dwelling at 1200 West Tenth Street.

Capt. R. E. Rose Adopts Motto For Salvation Citadel

Official Pleads For Cooperation In Coming Service Appeal

"While there is hunger, while there are unchurched people and lost souls, while there is sorrow and heartache, and while there is one single phase of human suffering, we must carry on," a statement of Gen. Evangelist Booth, has been adopted by Capt. R. E. Rose, commanding officer of the Salvation Army Citadel here, as the motto for the activities of that organization and with this motto being carried out as part of the daily routine of the organization a plea for co-operation in the coming Home Service Appeal was made by the local Army officials.

As an example of the varied needs brought to the attention of the Salvation Army Capt. Rose cited one case that is outstanding. It was that of a colored woman whose case was reported by interested business people who requested that the Salvation Army investigate and find out if it might be possible to do something to relieve her condition.

An investigation proved that the woman had a growth that had almost entirely closed her mouth, thereby making it impossible for her to take any nourishment excepting a little liquid food. After an examination by a physician, the trouble was diagnosed as a dental cyst. Arrangements were made with the hospital square—an outpouring of human sympathy unequalled in Mexico City's recent history.

Some observers said 200,000 marchers took part in the "jubilee" organized by the confederation of Mexican workers (CMT) to acclaim the presidential decree of Mar. 18 taking over the $100,000,000 oil properties, of 17 days the operation was performed, United States and British companies.

One cry swept like wild-fire along the five lines of marchers—"one, two, three—two, two, one; to gringos go van" (the foreigners are getting out).

Hold high for the president! His patriotism and courage and declaring the people supported him in halting the "death of imperialism."

Marching with the Mexicans were groups of Cuban and Venezuelan girls carrying banners that said their countries also were preparing to throw off the yoke of "petroleum imperialism."

Several slogans urged the striking pickets to appropriate other foreign industries. Street car workers asked for elimination of the British-Telegraph-owned street railway company.

While it was primarily labor's show, many other sections of the populace were present.

All members of congress marched with direction of the CMT. Supreme Court Justice Jackson was there with similar students and representatives of all times all in. It will distribute up-to-date postcards in their place.

Senate Group Cuts Profits Tax From Bill

Flat Rate Of 18 Percent On Corporation Incomes Placed In Revision Measure

Hearings On TVA To Start Monday

Morgenthau To Begin Study Of Loans For Business Expansion

WASHINGTON, Mar. 24.—(AP)—The Senate Finance Committee today eliminated the undistributed profits tax from the House approved tax revision bill and substituted a flat rate of 18 percent on corporation incomes.

Chairman Harrison, Mississippi Democrat, said Treasury estimates showed the change would provide almost $100,000,000 more revenue than the House bill. The Committee vote to strike out the controversial undistributed profits levy was 17 to 4.

Senators Barkley, Kentucky Democrat, Connally, Texas Democrat, Bulkeley, Ohio Democrat, and LaFollette, Wisconsin Progressive, voted in opposition.

Chairman O'Connor, New York Democrat, announced that the House Rules Committee would begin hearings Monday on proposals for an investigation of the Tennessee Valley Authority. He said his guests was that "there will be a joint congressional investigation."

Several inquiry proposals are pending in the Senate, chief among them one by Senator Norris, Nebraska Independent, for an independent Senate investigation.

Secretary Morgenthau today announced that President Roosevelt has asked a committee of high federal officials to prepare a program of financial aid to business.

The Treasury head, who is chairman of the committee, said the group would "go over various suggestions for loans to industry, including small business, and try to put something together that is constructive."

He added that he felt there was a real need for expanded financing, particularly of small business, but said he did not know whether the government could do anything about it.

One of the first things the committee will study, he said, is the ability of private institutions to furnish such financing.

With Morgenthau on the committee are James Roosevelt, son and secretary of the president; Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Corporation; Vice Chairman Harold Hansen of the Federal Reserve Board; and Chairman William O. Douglas of the Securities Commission.

Senate Agrees To Publish Statement

WASHINGTON, Mar. 24.—(AP)—The senate agreed today to publish in the congressional record a statement by Gen. Charles P. Summerall, the army's former chief of staff, upholding the military value of the proposed Florida ship canal.

The statement, to be reprinted from the Orlando Morning Sentinel, was offered for the record by Senator Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, chairman of the military affairs committee.

Summerall, president of the Gulf-Atlantic Ship Canal association, said the waterway would serve to speed transportation of troops and supplies in time of war. Any other "first class power," he added, would have built it long ago.
