

AMERICAN SHIPS SAFE REACH FRENCH COAST COLLIER CARRIES WHEAT

AMERICAN ARMY WILL FOLLOW LATER IN THE SUMMER

Paris, France, Wednesday, June 6.—The ministry of marine announced tonight that American warships have anchored off the French coast. The announcement adds: "The French navy greets with joy on their arrival these new brothers in arms who under the flag of the great American republic have come to participate until final victory in the struggle against the common enemy."

A large American transport containing wheat for American troops which are to come later, has crossed the Atlantic under the protection of an American warship, the Matin announces. The transport is now being unloaded at a French port, the newspaper says.

Preparations are being made for the reception of the American troops, the paper says further. A number of bases similar to those of the British army have been organized.

Washington, D. C., June 7.—The naval collier Jupiter has arrived in France, Secretary Daniels announced today, laden with 10,500 tons of wheat and other supplies. The ship sailed from an American port without any intimation of her voyage having been given out and is now at anchor in a French port.

The Jupiter is one of the navy's largest colliers. She was the first electrically propelled steamer ever built and her performance was so good it led to the adoption of electric drive for all new battleships and battle cruisers, the American navy being the only one in the world to adopt this type of propulsion. The Jupiter was built at Mare Island Navy yard, San Francisco, and has high speed for an auxiliary naval vessel which would enable her to escape submarine attack under any unusual conditions. Secretary Daniels did not specify what supplies other than wheat the big vessel carried.

Paris, France, June 7.—The American steamer Silvershell has had a battle with a submarine in the Mediterranean. After the exchange of 60 shots the submarine disappeared. The details of the fight were made public today by the ministry of the marine.

The Silvershell, commanded by Capt. Tom Carlton sighted the submarine on May 30. In the running fight which followed the American boat proved speedier than its enemy and its master in gun fire. The disappearance of the submarine was sudden.

The Silvershell is of 5,605 tons, owned by the Shell Oil Co. of California. She sailed from American early in May with a crew of 43 men, of whom 12 are Americans. Her commander is from New York.

Gen. Haig has launched his expected blow at the German lines in Belgium, striking early this morning along a nine mile front on the Messines Wytshaele ridge, between Ypres and Lille. Success marked the opening of the offensive, the British winning all their initial objectives and pushing on. Their further progress is reported to be satisfactory. While a considerable stretch separates the field of this new offensive from that of Arras the operation may be considered in conjunction with that of the continuing battle on the Arras front. A sweep-salient in front of the city of Lille has been created by the Arras attack and in a broad sense this salient is now under threat from the northern and southern attack.

Believing the recent German boast that the British offensive from Arras had been halted, Gen. Haig, earlier this week proved that he had not lost his initiative there by making a successful drive south of Lens, chrying a mile of the German front north of the Scarpe. The reverberation from this blow had hardly died away before today's attack was launched on the other side of the Lille salient. A sharp, well defined curve in the line, about a mile deep and the same distance across is the immediate objective of this new attack. In common with other sections of the line in Belgium along a front of some 30 miles, its defenses had been subjected to a tremendous pounding by the British artillery for days.

NOT FORGOTTEN

B. L. E. Memorial Services at Methodist Church Sunday For the third time in four years the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers of this division have invited the pastor of the Methodist church of this city to deliver the Memorial sermon. He has consented to do so. Next Sunday at 11 o'clock will be the time when the division will come in a body to the Church for their Memorial service. The choir will render special music. A large attendance is expected. All will find a real welcome. The evening service will be held at 7:30. A real gospel message will be delivered by the pastor.

SEMINOLE BIG REGISTRATION

More Than a Thousand Register in The County With Few Exemptions

Registration Day in Seminole passed quietly and there were no disorders reported and not even a chirp about the selective draft and all those who were eligible to register walked up to the polls and gave the desired information.

In Sanford the pretty Red Cross girls were at the polls all day enrolling the members for the society and otherwise assisting in the registration. Many assistants were pressed into service at the polling places as the crowd at times was large and in order to get them all signed up volunteers clerks were pressed into service and many willing helpers were found.

The polls were kept open until nine o'clock and those men who gave their time all day and part of the night for Uncle Sam without pay are certainly to be commended.

Precinct 1 on the west side signed up 280 and Precinct 3 on the east side signed up 147, making a total for Sanford city of 727. In the county the total of the precincts was 316 making a grand total for Seminole county of 1,043 which is a record of which to be proud.

In fact the registration ran so far ahead of all expectations that the cards were exhausted and more of them had to be printed to keep up the registration in Sanford and other parts of the county.

Home Guards' Worth

The home guard will be no joke. It will be for service, and if the war continues long there is going to be much for it to do. Every woman in St. Petersburg will be made much more comfortable by the knowledge that there is an organized body of devoted husbands and fathers to protect person and property. Loyal men are joining voluntarily for home protection.—St. Petersburg Independent.

Circuit Court

Circuit court resumed on Wednesday, taking up the murder case of the state vs. Ruben Davis for the murder of a white man named Stephens near Altamonte last February. The case is being argued today.

Dr. Hyman on the War

Dr. George Hyman who is now in Washington will be home tomorrow and on Sunday morning will preach on the subject of "The World War From a Richmond Viewpoint" and in the evening will preach upon the subject "The World War From a Washington Viewpoint." Both of these sermons will be intensely interesting as Dr. Hyman has been in the national capital and also at Richmond for several days gathering data and taking notes upon the war situation and should be able to give his hearers the information at first hand.

Every one cordially invited to attend both of these services.

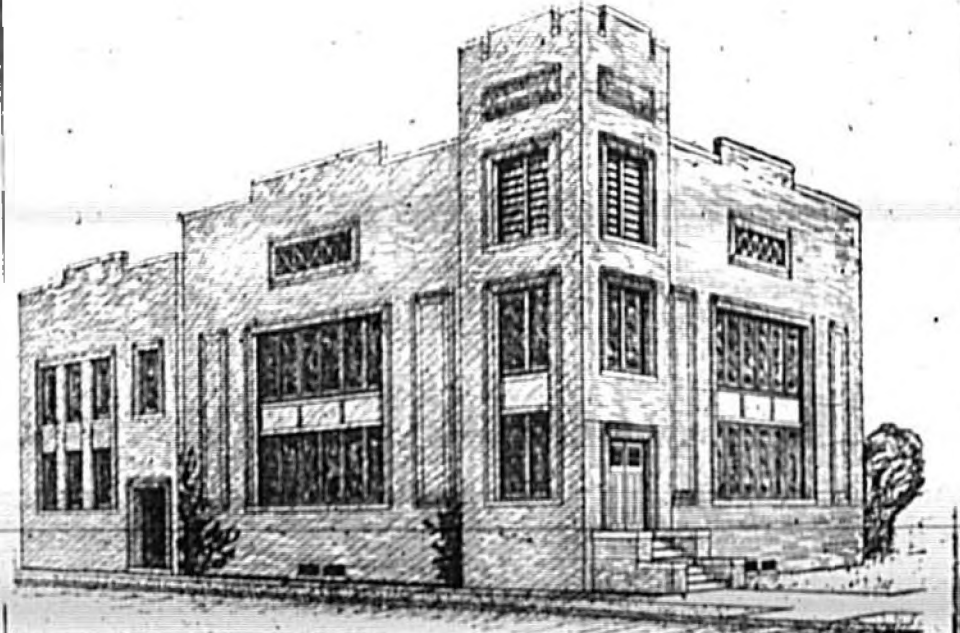

SURVEY IS AUTHORIZED FOR SCHOOL

EDUCATIONAL STOCK TAKING THAT SHOULD BE OF BENEFIT

The county board of education Tuesday voted to authorize an educational survey of the Seminole county school system. The survey is an educational stock taking, the measuring of educational progress by scientific methods. In the last three years national educational standards have been worked out by which the results obtained by a public school system may be accurately judged. The movement has arisen in response to a demand from taxpayers and parents who want to know what the public schools are doing and how efficiency may be secured. About 250 surveys have been made in the United States, varying in size from the city of New York, the state of Wyoming to county systems. Cleveland, Ohio, was well satisfied with her public schools until the findings of an expert survey commission backed the war news off the front page of the daily papers.

An educational survey is a co-operative movement of the educational, commercial and social forces of the community. The semi-annual survey will be in charge of Prof. A. L. Hatch of Ocochee. Prof. Jas. Norman, professor of education, Teachers' College, University of Florida, will be in charge of the survey.

NEW PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OPENING TO BE CELEBRATED BY A JUBILEE WEEK

One of the events of the week will be the opening of the beautiful new Presbyterian church to be celebrated with a Jubilee Week and revival services beginning next Sunday, June 10th.

The Presbyterian church was started over a year ago and the congregation have been worshipping in the Sunday school room for the past year waiting for the finishing of the auditorium but the waiting is now to be rewarded by one of the finest auditoriums and church buildings in the state.

The entire church building is 86 feet long and 75 feet wide and occupies the corner of Third street and Oak avenue. The church building consists of the auditorium and 23 other rooms, consisting of parlors, reading room, rest rooms, kitchen and session room, the last named to be fitted up in elegant shape with special furniture and will be a memorial to the late J. N. Whitner, the furnishings being a memorial from his many friends all over Florida.

The new auditorium that will be opened to the public next Sunday for the first time will have a seating capacity for 650 people and is arranged in the half circle effect facing the altar, situated in the southeast corner of the room. The new pews are of mission finish and of the very latest design and the altar furniture and finish of the woodwork all matches, making a beautiful effect. In the large balcony comfortable opera chairs in the same finish as the pews are installed and the many windows in the church and balcony

PRIMARY LAW OPENS GATES FOR FRAUD

FORMER SENATOR BRYAN AGAINST THE OPEN BALLOT

The Times-Union says: Former United States Senator N. P. Bryan declared yesterday that the new primary law had destroyed the secret ballot in Florida and had made it possible for vote buyers to carry on their trade with much better results than heretofore. He also expressed regret over the fact that under the new law citizens of cities of 20,000 inhabitants or more are discriminated against in regard to registering.

Mr. Bryan was the author of the law contained first and second choice provisions in the voting and did away with the second primary. During the last campaign considerable objection was raised to this law. The new law which makes such radical changes in the plan of registering and voting was passed during the last few hours of the session. In fact it was passed after the time set for the adjournment of the legislature.

In discussing the new law yesterday Mr. Bryan said: "The registration feature of the primary election bill is highly objectionable."

The registration books are required to be kept open only during February in the precincts and only during March in the superior's office.

MORE BRICK PAVING FOR SANFORD STREETS FINE THOROUGHFARES

"A voter cannot register unless he has paid and has with him—produces"—his poll tax receipts.

"Voters already registered, outside of cities of 20,000 population, are allowed until April 15th to pay their poll taxes. But voters inside such cities must register during February and March before each election and cannot qualify by paying their poll taxes after March.

"But if every other provision in the bill were beyond criticism section 37 is enough to condemn the legislation. It requires the voter to mark his ballot in full view of the inspector. This means nothing more, nor less than the destruction of the secrecy of the ballot, and that we will not any longer have the free expression of the will of the people in our elections.

"If this bill becomes a law many of our best citizens will stay away from the polls. It sides the employer will exert his influence upon his employees, and worst of all, the purchaser of votes and voters will be enabled to know that the votes he bought were cast in accordance with the bribery contracts.

"With a law like this it will be idle to talk about honest elections. We will not have them."

Board of Trade Notes

Dr. Francis M. Turner and party of New York city reached Sanford on the city of Jacksonville yesterday and will spend a few days in Florida's summer resort. It is likely that Dr. Turner will be a Seminole county investor.

Secretary Marlowe has returned from Washington, where he went to appear before the Interstate Commerce Commission in behalf of the shippers and growers in the matter of freight rates.

If you are a farmer the following appreciation published in Tractor Farming for May will be of particular interest to you and if you are not, you cannot but help realize its truth and magnificence: "Our Foremost Citizen The Farmer."

"The farmer raises the food that feeds us. His cotton fields and sheep give us the clothes we wear. He furnishes us with the necessities of life and a generous surplus with which to follow the compass of civilization to all the corners of the earth. His peaceful fields, well planted and tilled, support everything in the world—the industries, arts, sciences, humanities, and those countless clusters of human life which we call cities.

His has been a big job—that of starting the world and keeping it going—but he has done it cheerfully, never seeking praise or glory. While cities have bought and sold, and grown rich and fat, he has whistled and laughed, planted and harvested. This nation, gathering to itself riches from all the world, almost forgot whom it owed first for its achievements.

It has taken a world calamity, a catastrophe without precedent in history to remind us of what we never should have forgotten—that the farmer is carrying in his strong arms the destinies of the nations; that our welfare, even our very lives, cling closely to the results of his work in his fields, gardens and orchards.

The men and women on American farms are richly fitted to meet this great emergency. Their ancestors builded for character and stamina while laying new trails through the wilderness, beset with the dangers of the frontier. But that was only the foundation. They themselves have been carrying on the great work of production and fruitfulness. Through the suns and storms of American rural life they have worked intelligently, hand in hand with Nature.

As they have met every crisis in the past, American farmers are at the world's service today, ready at the threshold in the present hour of need."

Friday evening at 7:30 President Dutton of the Board of Trade has called a meeting of the Board of

PALMETTO TO BE PAVED NEXT, FROM SECOND TO TENTH

The present city council believes in paving the city streets and while Sanford at the present time probably has as many or more paved streets than many other cities of this size there are many streets that need the brick paving and they are doing this as fast as the money for same is available.

The Sogthwest Clay Co., under the able management of Supt. Roller and his assistants are the successful contractors and when they have a job it means that the work is well done. The paving out Park avenue way while part of the county contract was paid for by the property owners also as the street was made wider and the extra expense gladly borne by those who had abutting property. This is said to be one of the finest pieces of paving in the state.

During the past few weeks the same company has been busy with city streets and have paved Sixth street from Oak to the primary school on the west side and running past the grammar school, making a fine thoroughfare not only for the schools but for all traffic. This street was also paved from Magnolia to Palmetto for the primary school on the east side.

Not content with this the property owners on Palmetto have petitioned the council for paving on this fine street and it will be paved the regulation width as soon as the proper steps have been taken for the letting of the contract.

All of these streets have the dunlop cement grouted work which makes the ideal paving as smooth as asphalt and as firm as the rock of Gibraltar.

Palmetto is one of the finest residence streets in Sanford and only lacks brick paving to make it ideal and the brick street from Second street to Tenth street past the high school building will be a great investment for the city and the residents a Palmetto avenue.

Trade and Advisory Board to be held at his office, corner Park and commercial streets. It is requested that all officers be present.

Next Tuesday, 7:30 p. m., is the monthly meeting of the Sanford Board of Trade. The meeting will be held in the court house and all interested are requested to attend.

Sanford is no longer talked of as the backward city. The advertising campaign that has been constantly going on for several months past has secured much other advertising for Seminole county and people, who a year ago had never been told of this section are daily inquiring for data, a prospective citizen. A glance around you shows this activity going on and must indicate to you, no matter what your business may be, that conservative advertising and continual boosting will build Sanford and Seminole county as no other agency.

The various railroads are urging heavier loading for their cars and asking that prompt handling be given equipment in loading and unloading. They are correct in this and deserve the support they are seeking. They must be efficient as all others and must attain this efficiency with the means in hand and it is each shipper's duty to load his car as near capacity and as quickly as he can, and in helping himself help his railroads. We are anxious to extend a willing hand wherever we can and feel that the Board of Trade members who are principally shippers will willingly fall in line and pay especial attention to this feature of their business. While we, without hesitancy, oppose the proposed 15 per cent freight rate advance because no occasion has so far arisen on certain lines all over the country to warrant such an increase, it is felt in lieu of this opposition our efforts in behalf of the carrier in other channels (Continued on Page 4)

"Hurry, hurry. We must follow them, wherever they go"

Pretty Polly Pollard urged her chauffeur to even greater speed as they raced after the fleeting automobile ahead of them. In the car ahead were her father and Baron moomchi, member of the Japanese Embassy. And Polly was confident father, driven almost out of his mind by his desperate need for money had stolen the valuable plans of a new army aeroplane from her sweetheart and was about to seal them to the Japanese government through the medium of the baron.

So Polly demanded speed. She must save her father and her sweetheart from this terrible thing. She must save her father from treason and her sweetheart from disgrace.

The two autos rushed on. At length the first car stopped. The two men leaped out and hurried into a road house. Would Polly be in time.

The instant the car reached the road house she jumped from the car and burst into the room where her father was about to complete the transaction with the baron. She was in time. She had saved her father and her sweetheart.

See this thrilling photoplay. It bears the title of "Yankee Pluck" and it is the newest World Picture Brady-Made. Ethel Clayton is the star. See it at the Lyric Theatre on Friday.

At the Star Tonight

A photodrama of the most powerful moral stimulus is "The Waiting Soul," the Metro Popular Plays and Players production with Mme. Petrova as star, which will be seen at the Star Theatre tonight. This five-act feature screen drama has been adopted by Wallace C. Clifton from Marion Short's fiction story. It was supervised by Aaron Hoffman and directed by Burton L. King.

Can a woman blot out an accusing past by means of good deeds? Will falsehood told by a mother influence her unborn child? These are some of the questions raised and answered in "The Waiting Soul."

Grace Laughan, after a struggle with her conscience that reaches the very depths of her soul finds the confession to her husband, whom she supposes ignorant of her past life is the greatest privilege she has ever known. Through it she reaches heights of serenity unrealized before.

W. m. Courtenay Star in "Kick In" William Courtenay, one of the best known actors on the American stage plays the wonderful role of "Chick ewes" in the Pathe Good Rooster play "Kick In" from the very successful melodrama of the same name, to be shown at the Lyric Theatre Wednesday.

We was born in Worcester, Mass., and was educated at Holy Cross College in that city. "I made my first appearance when sixteen years old in a travelling company at Portland, Me.," he says. "Later, I became a member of Richard Mansfield's repertoire company and then for two seasons was in Daniel Frohman's stock company at the Lyric Theatre, New York. I was leading man with Virginia Warner and in the revival of Trilby at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York."

For the last six or seven years, Courtenay has been identified with some of the greatest successes of theatrical seasons, among them "Under Cover" and "Under Fire." He is an actor of resource, power and finish and is known as one of the handsomest men on the stage.

Norma Talmadge Panthea At the Star Thursday. A devoted wife submits to dishonor to save her husband's life. Was she wrong? This is the theme and question raised in the powerful photodrama "Panthea," in which the popular Norma Talmadge will make her first appearance as a Selznick Pictures star at the Star Theatre on Thursday.

Miss Talmadge who recently left the Triangle Company to head her own producing organization will be seen in the role made famous on the stage by Mme. Olga Petrova. The part offers the talented young star her greatest opportunity for the expression of her emotional powers, and judging by reports from New York and other large cities where the picture has been shown, Miss Talmadge has made a tremendous hit in her new portrayal.

The story of "Panthea" deals with a young Russian girl who, falsely accused by the secret police of revolutionary activities, escapes to England and marries a struggling composer. In Paris Panthea's husband suffers many disappointments in an effort to have his opera produced. He gives way under the strain and the physician tells Panthea that the only way in which her husband's life can be saved is through the realization of his musical ambition. Panthea makes a gallant struggle to interest the various impresarios of the operatic world in her husband's work.

She meets an old Russian friend, a Baron who has great influence in musical circles. Given to desperation Panthea submits to the Baron's dishonorable proposal in order to save her husband's life. The opera is produced, and on the eve of his triumph Panthea's husband discovers the relationship between her and the Baron. A tremendous scene ensues. The reconciliation of the couple comes when the long arm of the Russian police stretches forth to snatch Panthea from Paris for exile to Siberia.

The picture was directed by Allan Hanan, formerly of the Triangle forces and abounds in unusual photographic effects and powerfully dramatic incidents. Among the spectacular incidents in the picture are scenes depicting the barbarous cruelties of the Russian police towards political prisoners and the destruction by fire of a ship at sea.

Beautiful Ethel Clayton in "Kick In" One of the most charming screen stars engaged for the Pathe old Rooster program is Miss Mollie King, who is featured with William Courtenay in "Kick In," to be shown at the Lyric Theatre Wednesday.

Mollie King was born in New York City on April 18, 1898. "My first stage appearance was at the age of eight months and I've been on the stage ever since," she says. She played in several Broadway successes and was a feature at the Winter Garden after a two year tour of the Orpheum vaudeville circuit where she and her sister Nellie did a sister act. She has been starred in several of the productions of the World Film Corporation and is well known to motion picture audiences throughout the country.

Miss King is of fair complexion with reddish blonde hair and hazel eyes. She weighs 115 pounds and has a face which in addition to being beautiful is so mobile that it can express any emotion that a human countenance can register and still retain its beauty. Miss King can sing and dance charmingly as millions of vaudeville fans throughout the country can testify.

"After leaving school I acted as understudy for Elizabeth Brice, in the musical comedy, 'The Winsome Widow,' playing the star's part on many occasions," Miss King continued. "I was then 15 years old. Afterwards I played a season in vaudeville with my sister Nellie, filled an engagement with the passing show at the Winter Garden, and then supported Sam Bernard in 'The Belle of Bond Street'."

Miss King comes from a theatrical family. Her father, Charles King is known throughout the world as a member of the famous team of Brice and King, and her sister Nellie is a vaudeville artist.

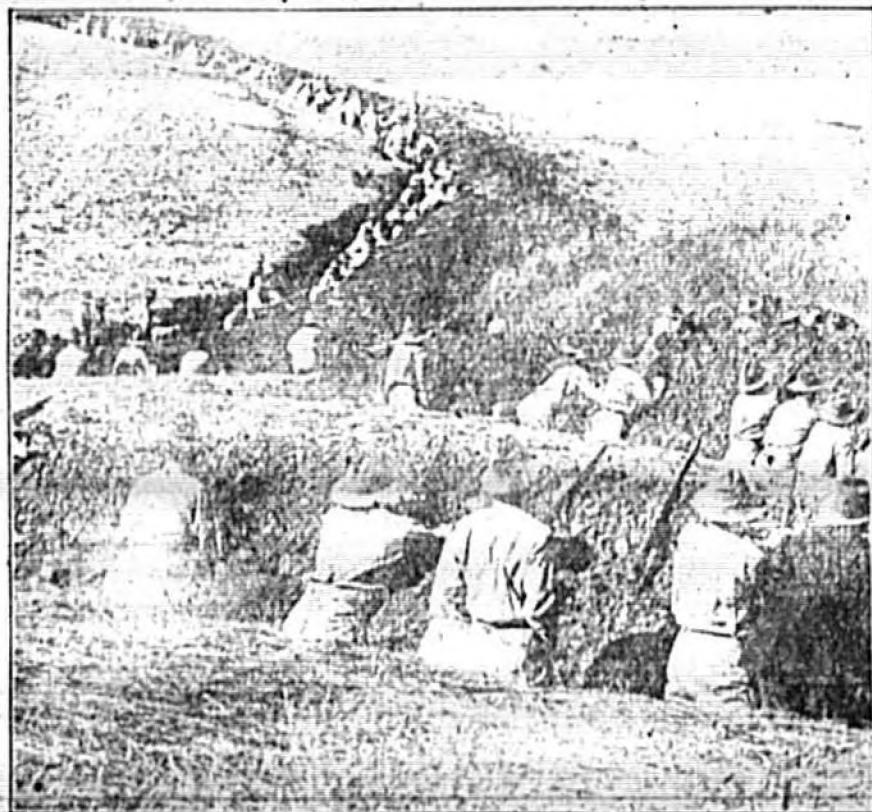

"Freckles" at the Star Friday Louise Huff and Jack Pickford will be seen at the Star on Friday in the Lasky Paramount picturization of Gene Stratton Porter's famous novel, "Freckles." These two young testify that the life of a photodramatic star is not as gay and festive as the public imagines. The major portion of this famous story deals with the limberlost, a tract in which valuable timber grows, and as it was necessary for the two stars and director Uellian to find such a place, the company journeyed to the northern part of California and there made inquiry as to where they could find such a swamp. One was finally located far back in the hills. Not stopping to think that they were apt to strike bad roads, the party secured their camping paraphernalia, loaded it into an automobile and set forth. Night overtook them while they were still about ten miles from the swamp and they camped in tents by the roadside. During the night it rained and the next morning the road was a sea of mud, Miss Huff, her mother and her maid, and Lillian Leighton were the only feminine members of the party. The company started on but had not proceeded very far until the automobile stuck. They decided to turn back, but the roads were even worse, so for two days with the feminine members of the company sitting in the machines, the other and stronger members pushed and pulled the cars until a better road was reached just at the edge of the limberlost. Then the sun came out and dried everything out.

Great Difference.

Bishop Sanford Olmstead of Denver was urging in a holiday address, Christianity of the militant, active, beneficent sort. "Why, my dear friends," he said, "there is almost as much difference between good and doing good as there is between being a man and doing a man."

White Muslin and Lace

A dainty frock for summer, fashioned from white muslin trimmed lace insertion. Cape collars and cuffs are scalloped and embroidered.

The inevitable white frock finds its sweetest expression this summer in the one-piece model. Muslin and lace insertion are combined in this model, which requires for average size, 6 1/2 yards 36-inch material with 3/4 yard lining 36-inch wide for foundation yoke and 7 yards 2-inch wide lace.

The waist is first gathered along the shoulder front, after which the lower edges of the front and back are gathered between double "O" perforations. Gather front along cross-line of small "o" perforations and adjust to position.

Next, close under-arm and shoulder seams and turn under front edge of front on slot perforations for an underfacing. Adjust belt to position underneath gathers, bringing front edge to center front.

Adjust the two cape collars together, center backs and neck edges even, then sew to neck edge as indicated.

Close sleeve seam as notched, easing any fullness between the two small "o" perforations at elbow. Close seam of elbow cuff as notched, sew to sleeve and sew sleeve in armhole as notched, easing in any fullness.

Taking up the skirt next, turn under front edge of right front gore on slot perforations and lap right front gore on left, center-fronts even. Stitch to position leaving edges free above single large "O" perforation

For a placket. Join gores as notched, close center back seam, gather upper edge of skirt and make three rows of gathers below upper edge, 2 inches apart.

The large "O" in the foundation yoke indicates the middle of the front. Close center back seam and adjust to position underneath the skirt. Adjust skirt to position stitching upper edge over upper row of gathers in waist, center-fronts and center-backs even.

The collars and cuffs look more distinctive if scalloped and embroidered than if finished with lace ruffles.

Pictorial Review Costume No. 6734. Sizes, 34 to 42 inches bust. Price, 15 cents.

KILLS PET HORSES RATHER THAN LEAVE THEM BEHIND

Schmidt, Farmer and Poet, Regarded Animals as His Personal Friends.

Jerseyville, Ill.—Rather than see his beloved horses, the companions of years of toil on his farm, go to strangers Charles Schmidt, a farmer near here, had his three pet animals shot. Schmidt is preparing to leave his farm and engage in rice farming in Arkansas, an occupation in which he will no longer need horses.

Schmidt regarded his horses as his personal friends, and the dread that if he sold them others might be cruel to the animals was more than he could bear. The animals were valued at more than $50 apiece.

Known as the "town poet," Schmidt kept a diary in rhyme of the happenings of his life. He was a favorite among the young people of Jerseyville because he kept open house on his place three evenings a week and Sundays. He permitted card playing, but no gambling, and no matter who came he was welcome at the Schmidt home.

After the guest departed Schmidt would write a rhyme about the visitor and put it with his collection. A trunk full of these verses will be taken to Arkansas by Schmidt. Several years ago Schmidt donated baseball grounds to the boys of Jerseyville for Sunday ball games, but stipulated that the players would have to attend church first.

ONE MATCH FOR THREE CIGARETTES, DEATH SIGN

Superstition, Coming From the Front, Takes Firm Root In England.

London.—With every month of the great war new superstitions are continually finding origin among the rank and file of the British soldiery. These superstitions are speedily introduced into civil life and London is rapidly becoming one of the most superstitious cities in the world.

The chaps from the trenches say that the lighting of three cigarettes with one match means the speedy death of one, if not all three of the group, and they will cite you a hundred and one instances to prove their contention. They will tell you of an instance last fall near St. Eloi. A group of men was billeted in a house far back from the battle line. There had not been a shot or shell dropped in the villages for several weeks.

A new recruit, just over from "Blighty," as they call England or home, had passed a box of cigarettes among his new found friends. He struck a match and before any in the group had realized it three cigarettes had been lighted. When it suddenly dawned on the group we red there was deep silence. "Too bad, old chap," finally remarked Tommy to the newcomer, "but it means lights out for you, if not the three of us."

The offender tried to laugh his fears away, but he couldn't. Two hours later the first shell in weeks struck the billet, and when the Tommies had extricated themselves from the ruin they found that all but the newcomer from "Blighty" were safe. The lighter of the three cigarettes with the one match had been instantly killed.

BLOOD FROM DERELICTS.

Down-and-outers Form Transfusion Auxiliaries For Baltimoreans.

Baltimore.—More than a hundred derelicts from the Friendly Inn here have undergone blood tests at $1 apiece this winter at the Union Protestant Infirmary, a branch of Johns Hopkins, for transfusion cases. Of the hundred twenty-five have been accepted and have been paid $25 for submitting to transfusions.

In addition to the $25, those who are accepted are being paid at the rate of $1 a day to keep themselves in condition until they are needed. The plan was evolved by a number of the leading surgeons of the city, assisted by the agents of the Federated charities.

A history of the families of the men whose blood is used is studied, and only those of good blood are accepted. The blood of these men from the Friendly Inn now courses through the veins of a number of prominent men and women of Baltimore.

FINDS LONG LOST RING.

Wedding Emblem Discovered on Farm Where Owner Formerly Lived.

Pennington, N. J.—Mrs. P. H. Vannoy is wearing again the wedding ring she lost thirty years ago on her farm at Cedar Grove, near here.

Mrs. Vannoy was cleaning house one day and laid aside her wedding ring. Later she was unable to find it.

Miss Sophia Wilkins was walking through the yard when her attention was attracted by a gleaming object under a kitchen window sill. She walked toward it, dug it out of the soil with her heel and a moment later was telephoning to Mrs. Vannoy that the ring had been found.

Robin Stays All Winter.

La Crosse, Wis.—Robin redbreast has lost his reputation as a harbinger of early spring in La Crosse. One of his breed has been stopping near the post-office all winter, and there have been numerous cold waves with temperatures from 22 to 28 below, blizzards and storms, making it the coldest winter in thirty years.

Gastronomy.

"How's your appetite?" asked the physician.

"It's all right till I go to buy food; then I get nervous and lose it."—Washington Star.

A PALATABLE DOSE

By RICHARD MARKLEY

When I started to practice medicine there was one admonition laid down by the gentleman who delivered the final address to our class when we were graduated that had greatly impressed me. It was this:

"Remember that mind has a great effect over matter. Therefore try to detract so far as possible from the terror your patients naturally have of you as practitioners. Above all things, preserve a cheerful exterior. The more hopeless a case appears to you the more hopeful appear to be, for by giving way to your anticipations, you lessen the patient's chances for recovery, and you may be wrong in your prognosis. Do not force patients to take your remedies if it can possibly be avoided. Rather persuade them or banter them. Remedies taken against a patient's will are apt not to act as remedies. Tetter a prescription of something to divert the attention from the disease than fix it on that disease by unwelcome doses."

It seemed to me that there was a lot of common sense in this advice, and I cut it out of the printed address and pasted it within my writing desk in order that whenever I opened the desk I saw the injunction staring me in the face, so that it was impossible for me to forget it. I truly believe I would have built up a large practice by observing it had not that very observation of it on one occasion led to my leaving the profession.

I had been practicing but a short time when, returning to my office one day, I found a note from a stranger stating that a member of his family needed treatment, but was much averse to receiving a visit from a physician or taking remedies. He suggested that I call without the patient's knowing that I was a physician and study the case without asking for symptoms.

This, owing to the rule I had laid down, was very easy for me. I went to the house, rang the bell and was admitted to the drawing room, where I was received by a very thin woman who did not appear to know my errand, so I told her of the note that had been left at my office. She seemed to be slow in understanding me—at any rate, for some reason, did not respond very freely, making vague remarks such as "Just so," "A doctor?" "I'll see," indicating that she had not been admitted to the confidence of the person who had asked me to call.

The lady went out of the room and, presently returning, asked me to walk upstairs. I did so and was ushered into a boudoir where sat a girl who but for a slight paleness did not appear in bad health. She was not even in dishabille; but, the older woman having left me with her, it was evident that she was the patient. I went in armed with my cheeriest smile, took the girl's hand as a matter of civility, thereby getting her pulse—it beat a trifle more quickly than normal—sat by her, said something to make her laugh and saw that her tongue was slightly coated. In this fashion I rattled on, telling her stories and interesting her until I had secured her confidence and a predisposition in my favor. Then I said abruptly:

"But you're not looking very well today."

Then she told me that her back was troubling her and she slept badly and mentioned symptoms that indicated to me a condition very common and for which there were a number of simple remedies. When I went away I told her that I would send her a box of candied fruit, a few of which I thought she would like every day. Then I left her to have some medicine I intended for her divided among half a dozen real candied fruits and sent them to her with my compliments.

I called again soon and asked the lady who had received me how she had managed to impose upon the young lady that I was not a doctor; that it was important that I should know what story she had told in order that what I should say would tally with it. She told me not to worry about that—she had given a good reason for my calls. I asked her if I was to see the person who had left word at my office for me to treat the young lady, and she said he was away and would be away for several weeks.

By the time he returned I had made love to my patient and she had responded favorably. Indeed, she sent me to him—a mere form, she said—be being her uncle, to ask for her hand. I did so, announcing myself as the physician he had asked to treat a member of his family.

"Well," he asked, "did you pull the wool over the old girl's eyes?" "I didn't understand what he meant by the "old" girl, but I replied that I had succeeded admirably. I went on, but when I said something about the young lady he interrupted me.

"Young lady be hanged! She's fifty-five."

It came out that the elderly woman was my intended patient. I had given myself away to her at my entrance, and she had taken me to see the young lady, asking her to act in her stead. The girl from pure mischief consented to do so, but there were two of us hoist by our own petard. The two older ones were brother and sister; the girl was their niece, an orphan and possessing a fortune.

I married her, and she preferred that I devote myself to taking care of her property rather than sending patients candied fruits.

AN INNOCENT PRANK

By ELINOR MARSH

Johnny Greer was an operator at Hinsdale, a way station on the R. W. and P. railroad, and Elizabeth Crofut was a woman operator at Warfield, a thriving town on the line. One day Greer had occasion to call Greer's station for some information about trains, and as they were using the phone John noticed that the person calling had a very sweet voice. He complimented her on it and thus made a beginning. Miss Crofut found various excuses for calling up Mr. Greer, and vice versa. Then came an exchange of photographs. At this point there was a divergence from the frankness that had been displayed when both parties were protected by distance and an absence of identification. Greer being a man and having less at stake sent his own photograph. Miss Crofut sent a picture which, whether or not it was of herself, was that of a pretty girl. As soon as Greer saw it he pronounced it pretty enough to kiss, and he announced the fact to his auditor. The natural sequence was, next, an arrangement for a meeting. Greer was to go on a certain date to Warfield. There was a small park near the Warfield station, and at 9 o'clock in the evening he was to go to the northwest corner of this park, where he would find a girl sitting on a bench. There were two benches near together, and the girl would be sitting on the one under a tree unless it was occupied. If it was, she would be on the other one which was flanked by a bush.

It was the month of June when the days are long, but not long enough for one to distinguish a face without artificial light. At 9 o'clock on the night the moon was half full, but a half moon is not especially illuminating. John, that he might make sure of the girl, put an electric hand lamp in his pocket. He entered the park as a neighboring clock struck 9 and advanced to the northwest corner of the park. Nearing it he saw two girls, each sitting on a bench. This was unfortunate, for it was impossible for him to determine which was his telephone girl. Johnny was in a quandary. He had no liking for speaking to an unknown woman in a public park and turned to leave. He was stopped by a "Hiem!" which he supposed came from the girl on the bench under the tree and, turning, started toward her. He had taken only a few steps when another "Hiem!" arrested him and which came unmistakably from the girl on the bench beside the bush. Supposing that he had not heard aright as to the first call, he turned his course to the girl who had given the last one. Another call came this time from the bench under the tree, which was followed by one from the other bench. There were two girls calling to him, and Johnny stopped stock still and thought. Evidently a prank was being played on him. What wisdom that he had brought an electric lamp! Flashing it, he advanced on a line midway between both benches, first turning it on the girl on the bench under the tree. She seemed to be the girl of the photograph, but a photograph does not always fully represent its original, and John was not sure. He turned his lamp toward the other girl. It seemed to him that she was more like the picture than the other. He was non-plused.

A giggle from both girls convinced him that a game had been put up on him. But instead of being miffed he caught the spirit of the prank and for a few moments considered how he might outwit the prankers by a hit upon his correspondent. "I beg pardon," he said, "you've got the better of me. You must be twins." "We are," said both at once. Turning to one girl, he asked, "Did No. 5 pass here last morning?" Silence. Turning to the other girl, he asked the same question. Silence. "You're very bright," thought John. "But I'll get you yet." "One of you indicated that when we met I might have a kiss. At any rate, I'm going to take one." Advancing to one of them, he made as though he were about to take her in his arms. "Go away!" Johnny went to the other girl and repeated the process. "I'll stick a pin in you," she said. "My friend of the phone," said Johnny, bowing low, "I am happy to make your acquaintance." "How do you know I am the one?" asked the girl. "By your voice. Your sister may be like you in looks, but the tones that pass her lips, compared with yours, are as a cornstalk diddle compared with the tender notes of a flute." The sisters had realized this difference between their voices and provided against its giving them away by arranging to speak both at once. John's only recourse was to force one to speak while the other kept silence. Thus ended the prank provided by Elizabeth and Margaret Crofut. They invited Johnny to go to their home with them, where he finished the evening very pleasantly. Johnny noticed that both remained with him, neither giving way to the other. This had been arranged between them, and during the subsequent visits he made them they kept it up until he showed unmistakably that he favored Elizabeth. Then the other twin cheerfully gave way to her sister.

CRUSHING TRUTH

It is not necessary for the sixteen state senators who killed the libel bill to explain their motives. The Leesburg Commercial saved them the trouble when it said that either they feared the light of truthful publicity or they do not possess a sense of justice. Probably both.

To tell the truth—that was the only object of the proposed legislation, correcting a libel law that reminds one more of darkest Mexico than of a free democracy.

Following are the men who are responsible for Florida's remaining the most benighted state in the Union, in respect to freedom of speech:

LONG WAR AHEAD OF US

A lot of congressmen and probably millions of American citizens are deciding themselves with the idea that Germany is about "all in," and that all the fighting America will have to do will be carried on in bank parlors where huge batches of bonds will be sold.

What basis is there for this talk of German collapse?

Germany is feeling the pinch of hunger and will continue to draw her belt until the next harvest. Germany is also having financial difficulties.

But the idea that hunger and bankruptcy mean the end of the war is based on nothing except hope and the desire to shrink.

The plight of Germany is today nothing to compare with the condition of the Southern Confederacy in July, 1863. The Confederacy put up its most terrific fight after that.

Christian Endeavor

The Dixie Service Program for June calls for emphasis on attendance at Sunday evening service and mid week prayer meeting. Endeavor societies are asked to keep record of what per cent of their members attend these meetings during this month and report to their district secretaries.

Miss Penelope Steele, the state Junior superintendent has arranged some splendid standards for the Florida Juniors. The society having the best rating will be awarded a state convention. The standards are as follows:

- 1. A complete report quarterly to the district Junior Supt.
- 2. Dixie Junior Standards adopted.
- 3. Junior Efficiency chart adopted.
- 4. Monthly service program for Juniors used.
- 5. Monthly memory selection.

The June item for the Monthly Service Program is (a) attendance at Sunday morning church service and (b) C. E. "Army of Food Production." The memory selection for the month is the state Junior song.

A new society that reports for May is the one lately organized at Theresa in the North Central District. It has 24 members.

The Good Literature Committee of the Tavares Union Society has begun a contest in that society to see which of two sides will read the most chapters of the Bible during June.

A Medieaval Legend

By ALAN HINSDALE

In the twelfth century there lived a cobbler who grew so tired of making shoes that he, one day while patching a pair, said aloud, throwing them on the floor:

"To the devil with you!"

He sat for a few moments resting his head on his hand and his elbows on his knees, wishing for wealth that he might escape this drudgery, then, seeing a shadow before him, turned toward the door. There stood a man looking at him through a pair of eyes that twinkled like a star in the heavens.

"You seem to be dissatisfied with your lot," said the man, "and you are quite right. Why so many persons continue to make slaves of themselves when they might be rich is remarkable."

"Rich?" cried the cobbler. "Do you suppose I would remain poor if I could be rich?"

"You will be rich from this hour," said the stranger.

"But how?" asked the cobbler.

"Never mind that." And, taking up the pair of shoes the cobbler had thrown on the floor, the man walked away. Rising from his seat, the shoemaker ran to the door and saw his visitor walking away so lightly that his tread seemed that of a cat. One other thing the former noticed—though the sun shone the man cast no shadow!

The cobbler went back to his bench wondering how he was to be made rich in exchange for a pair of old shoes, but had no time to think of the matter, for customers began to flock in to buy shoes, and before nightfall the little shop he had on hand was all sold out. The cobbler emptied the proceeds into his handkerchief, and when he reached his home he poured the money on the table. On counting it he found that it amounted to ten times what his stock of shoes had cost him.

From this moment he continued to find gold wherever he looked for it. On opening a closet in his home he found it full of gold pieces. Going to his shop the next day he found all the boxes in which he had kept his shoes full of money. In short, from that time forward he continued to grow richer every day.

One day the man whose shoes he had been mending and which had been taken away by the stranger came to see him carrying them in a parcel under his arm. He had found them at his door.

"There is something wrong about these shoes," said the visitor. "After you mended them they were too small for me. I gave them to my son, and he had scarcely put them on before he slipped into a hole and broke his leg. I then gave them to my hired date, and for eighteen months, after all hope of victory was gone, held its enemies at bay. There is no reason to believe that the Germans have any less grit or determination. At that time the south with only 5,000,000 white population, had enlisted 600,000 men, nearly one out of every eight. At the front she was outnumbered three to one. She was encircled in a blockade compared to which the present blockade of Germany is a sieve.

She had scarcely any industrial organization—hardly any iron and no coal. Her railroads were few and wore out rapidly, with no facilities for repair or replacement. There was a slave population of 3,000,000 to be kept quiet. Food riots appeared early in 1863. Food was scarce and poor.

Admittedly bankrupt, her paper money was worthless and supplies were taken for the army without pretense of payment in any kind of currency. Over a third of her best territory was in the hands of the enemy, and what remained was cut half in two by the surrender of New Orleans, Memphis, Vicksburg and the opening of the Mississippi river.

Germany today has not enlisted as many men in proportion as the south. She probably still has over a million reserves. Her territory is almost untouched by the invader. She has three allies.

Her armies are not outnumbered in a ratio greater than two to one. Her communications are almost perfect, and she has the inside lines and "short haul" between all the fighting points.

There is every reason to believe that the vast majority of Germans believe their cause is just, although the world has condemned it. The world had rendered its verdict against the Confederacy, but its people believed they were right.

There may be discontent among the German poor, but for three years before Appomattox the sentiment that this is a "rich man's war and a poor man's fight" was widespread in the Confederacy.

Probably the wiser Germans know that their fight is hopeless. But that does not mean that they are ready to quit. All the intelligent people of the south knew after the Gettysburg battle that their "cake was all dough," to use the phrase that they themselves employed, but they set their teeth and went through to the bloody finish.

Germany is not going to surrender.

Rather, she is probably ready to fight a new and greater wilderness campaign over successful lines of trenches back of the Rhine itself.

We are not in any "nice war," nor a bankers' war, nor a training-camp war. "Old Glory" will wave victorious in the end, but like all victorious battle flags, every stick of silk may be soiled with the blood, grime, sweat and grease which are the essence of that most elemental of all things—WAR!—Tampa Tribune.

Christian Endeavor

The Dixie Service Program for June calls for emphasis on attendance at Sunday evening service and mid week prayer meeting. Endeavor societies are asked to keep record of what per cent of their members attend these meetings during this month and report to their district secretaries.

Miss Penelope Steele, the state Junior superintendent has arranged some splendid standards for the Florida Juniors. The society having the best rating will be awarded a state convention. The standards are as follows:

- 1. A complete report quarterly to the district Junior Supt.
- 2. Dixie Junior Standards adopted.
- 3. Junior Efficiency chart adopted.
- 4. Monthly service program for Juniors used.
- 5. Monthly memory selection.

The June item for the Monthly Service Program is (a) attendance at Sunday morning church service and (b) C. E. "Army of Food Production." The memory selection for the month is the state Junior song.

A new society that reports for May is the one lately organized at Theresa in the North Central District. It has 24 members.

The Good Literature Committee of the Tavares Union Society has begun a contest in that society to see which of two sides will read the most chapters of the Bible during June.

A Medieaval Legend

By ALAN HINSDALE

In the twelfth century there lived a cobbler who grew so tired of making shoes that he, one day while patching a pair, said aloud, throwing them on the floor:

"To the devil with you!"

He sat for a few moments resting his head on his hand and his elbows on his knees, wishing for wealth that he might escape this drudgery, then, seeing a shadow before him, turned toward the door. There stood a man looking at him through a pair of eyes that twinkled like a star in the heavens.

"You seem to be dissatisfied with your lot," said the man, "and you are quite right. Why so many persons continue to make slaves of themselves when they might be rich is remarkable."

"Rich?" cried the cobbler. "Do you suppose I would remain poor if I could be rich?"

"You will be rich from this hour," said the stranger.

"But how?" asked the cobbler.

"Never mind that." And, taking up the pair of shoes the cobbler had thrown on the floor, the man walked away. Rising from his seat, the shoemaker ran to the door and saw his visitor walking away so lightly that his tread seemed that of a cat. One other thing the former noticed—though the sun shone the man cast no shadow!

The cobbler went back to his bench wondering how he was to be made rich in exchange for a pair of old shoes, but had no time to think of the matter, for customers began to flock in to buy shoes, and before nightfall the little shop he had on hand was all sold out. The cobbler emptied the proceeds into his handkerchief, and when he reached his home he poured the money on the table. On counting it he found that it amounted to ten times what his stock of shoes had cost him.

From this moment he continued to find gold wherever he looked for it. On opening a closet in his home he found it full of gold pieces. Going to his shop the next day he found all the boxes in which he had kept his shoes full of money. In short, from that time forward he continued to grow richer every day.

One day the man whose shoes he had been mending and which had been taken away by the stranger came to see him carrying them in a parcel under his arm. He had found them at his door.

"There is something wrong about these shoes," said the visitor. "After you mended them they were too small for me. I gave them to my son, and he had scarcely put them on before he slipped into a hole and broke his leg. I then gave them to my hired man, and he fell through a hole in the loft of the barn and broke his neck. Still not thinking that the shoes had anything to do with these mishaps, I gave them to a student of the university, and he immediately went blind. This lends me to believe that they are fated for evil, and I desire that if any one must suffer on account of them it shall be you."

With this he threw the shoes down before the man who had mended them and went his way.

Now, the cobbler, having become rich, was not a whit changed in his desire for wealth. So long as money poured in on him he spent it freely, but one day upon looking in a closet which whenever he opened it he found full of money he discovered that the store had not been replenished. From that time on there was no addition to his fortune, and he began to curtail his expenditures. By the time the shoes were returned to him he had become very parsimonious.

Examining them, he found them in good condition, and, trying them on, he found that they fitted him exactly.

On going out into the street he was run over by a butcher's cart, and an arm and several ribs were broken. He was a long while getting over this mishap, and when he could walk again he put on the ill fated shoes and set out to take an airing. He had not gone far before a blind man ran against him, and, since he was weakened from long confinement, he was knocked to the pavement, striking his skull, concussion of the brain resulting.

By this time he felt sure that there was some malevolent influence in the shoes, and when he recovered he decided to get rid of them. So he threw them into the fire. What was his astonishment to see that, though the flames crackled about them, they would not burn. Then he knew that he had sold them to Satan.

"The devil take the shoes!" he exclaimed as he had done before.

There was a noise in the chimney, and Satan came down and, standing amid the flames, said:

"I took the shoes once and paid you well for them. If you wish me to take them back it must be an exchange, as it was before."

"What is your price?" asked the cobbler.

"Your soul."

The offer was declined, and the devil disappeared. The cobbler made every effort to get rid of the shoes, but was unable to do so.

One day while sitting in his bedroom before the fireplace he called on Satan to come to him. Satan came down the chimney, as before, and saw the cobbler sitting before him holding out the shoes with one hand and a crucifix in the other. Satan cowered, took the shoes, dropped them in the flames, and they were entirely consumed. Then he hurried up the chimney.

Presidential Dignity.

Dignity is the most terrible punishment inflicted by the people upon their president. The president must always be on his dignity—he can never relax. He cannot sit in the orchestra or in the gallery, away from everybody's staring glances. He cannot laugh too uproariously; he cannot fall to applaud. He is constantly on exhibition. When he travels he must appear at all the railroad stations that he passes through lest the impression get abroad that he is undemocratic. The secret service men are by act of congress ordered to guard the life of the president. They shop with him, they accompany him on the links, they sit in his limousine, they go to the oculist with him, to church, to the bank. The president, in short, is not a private person at any time; he is treated by the government, the people and the press as public property.—David Lawrence in Century.

Isle of the Blessed.

The king of England is not the only king in the British Isles. There is also the king of the Isle of Bardsey, an island of Wales in the Irish sea, in the County of Carnarvon. This kingdom, with its seventy-six inhabitants—that figure including the king and queen—is, we are reminded, a free and independent realm. The monarch is not only sovereign ruler, but physician, schoolmaster, magistrate. He neither owes nor gives obedience to the laws of England. His subjects pay no taxes and live luxuriously upon barley bread, milk and butter. No newspapers trouble the peace of the teeming populace, and nobody on the island troubles himself about what goes on outside his native rock bound coast. They are a happy people, though perhaps their haprange of the fact that they are so may mar the perfection of their contentment.—Paris Journal.

Richter's Conducting.

It is difficult to define just what differentiates a good conductor from a mere time beater, but a story that is told of Richter may help indirectly. In the prelude to "Tristan and Isolde" occurs a beautiful passage for the oboe, which rises, swells and dies away to a pianissimo most effectively. To indicate the quality of the playing which he wanted from this instrument, Richter, beating the time with his right hand, placed his left hand over his heart, and the oboe player at once responded to a direction all inclusive in its simplicity and intelligibility.

Sun Rooms.

One of the first sun rooms of which there is any record was in Madrid, at the home of Canovas del Castillo, prime minister during the regency. Dinner used to be served at one end of the conservatory. In the shadow of tall palms, while fountains played, birds with gay plumage sang, and the air was as fragrant as the tropics. For comfort deep red rugs were put down on the white marble floors.

Legs of a Snake.

The people of Uruguay have some queer ideas and superstitions. One of them is that if one throws a live snake into a fire it will stick out its legs, which it keeps concealed under its scales. This idea probably arose from the scales sticking outward as the snake felt the heat.

What Is The Need? Special preparation is being made for the mid-week service for Wednesday evening at the Methodist church. The above topic will be discussed by several speakers. The orchestra and young people's choir will lead in the singing. There is an increasing interest in these services. Those desiring an informal evening of worship are invited. The time 7:30.

Volunteered or Conscripted Was the title to the sermon delivered last Sunday night at the Temple, by Dr. Hyman, pastor of the Baptist church. The sermon was based primarily upon the great Registration Day to be held today, wherein all young men of certain ages are to register for the selective draft. Dr. Hyman, in the beginning of the sermon gave a brief history of the conscription or draft measures of the world and stated why, in his opinion, the present one was being resorted to to build an army. Later in the sermon came the question: Are you a volunteer for Christ or are you waiting for the conscription to be put on. This may be starting to some one, says the pastor, to say that men are conscripted into service for the Master, but he says, Look at Paul—how he was conscripted into service—then he named many other well known characters of the Bible to prove his contention that men are really conscripted to service for the Heavenly Father, and implored the large audience, if there were any that had not volunteered their service to do so at once and become a worker for the Master and for Uncle Sam.

YOUR DUTY TO THE NATION

Theme of a Stirring Sermon at Presbyterian Church "What is Your Duty to the Nation?" was the theme of a most splendid sermon delivered by Dr. E. D. Brownlee, pastor of the Presbyterian church on Sunday evening. It was a sermon that every one should have heard and for the benefit of those unable to attend we give a synopsis of it here.

He said among other things, "We are now in a time of national stress, the nations of the world are in a crucible heated red hot. Their forms of life are in the balance, the very existence of some of them are in question. Our own nation has been drawn into the vortex of the war and we are facing one of the most serious times in the history of our nation.

People everywhere are defining patriotism, and many are the answers given to that differing conceptions are revealed. We are seeing some of these varying conceptions in our own nation. We are asked for practical manifestations by the government and this week we are asked to do two specific things. On Tuesday all the men between the ages of 21 and 31 are asked to register, that they might be placed in those positions in which they can best serve the nation, one in 20 are needed immediately for the army. And in this week our men of money are asked to subscribe to the Liberty war loan. These are large demands, one for the gift of the body and life, and the other for the use of money and property. They cause us to examine ourselves the relation which exists between us and the nation. I want to remind you of our debt to the country. THE NATION MAKES OUR LIFE AND PROPERTY SAFE. It is difficult for us to realize what a great gift this is. But the men of feudal times could appreciate this gift, for in that day each man had to fortify himself within his own castle, building huge walls and fortifying them, that the marauder might not molest. He went forth armed to defend his life. His existence and his property were always insecure. The great difference between our own security and consequent happiness and his constitutes a part of the debt we owe to the nation.

LIBERTY OF WORSHIP IS ANOTHER DEBT TO THE NATION. We only begin to understand how great this is when we are shocked by the news of some persecution in Armenia, of thousands driven from homes, lives taken and worse than death endured by many. When we read of the old days in Russia and the pitiable condition of the Jews. Thank God for a nation where all may worship according to the dictates of their own conscience! It is part of our debt to the nation.

OUR PRIVILEGE OF WORK AND DEVELOPMENT AS A DEBT TO THE NATION. Each man and woman has a privilege here of working and developing according to our own ability and desires. We are not cursed by a caste system such as India has, nor even by such social traditions as Europe, but every every door of opportunity is open to every man and woman here. There is open to us the fullest development possible.

Time would fail to tell of the vast debt we owe to America. We are the most blessed people in all the earth, and no nation should so receive the full support of all her people as our own. No man has a right to enjoy these great blessings without being willing to make some adequate return. The hearts of some of us thrill over the nation not merely because of her great gifts but because our ancestors have given their lives for the foundation and preservation of the nation, and there are hallowed memories for us.

LET US LOVE THE NATION, AND HONOR ITS FLAG. But what we want today is a practical manifestation of that love. What will the man who loves the flag do? Some say only one thing, he must offer his body to the army or navy, and he is patriot indeed. But force shall not save a nation. Persia long centuries ago, in the infancy of the race led an army of 2,000,000 veterans into another continent, but that nation lives but in history today. If many of the stories we hear from Europe be true, some of the soldiers disgrace their nation and dishonor their flag. We need defenders, but only of a certain type.

Some say the one thing for us to do is to contribute wealth. But wealth alone will not save a nation. It might be a menace. Rome was rich and her wealth brought her downfall. If wealth be not in hands fit to administer, nor directed by men sensible of their stewardship, it might prove a very serious menace to the life of the people. We need money but in the hands of a certain type of man. If we love the nation and would contribute that which will assure us of success, development and glory, we can give that only as we contribute Christlike character. A nation's strength and greatness depends upon the character of its citizenship. NO MAN CAN BE IMMORAL IN LIFE OR BASE IN HIS IDEALS AND BE THE HIGHEST TYPE OF PATRIOT! For these things undermine the strength and glory of any people. They are the things which have wrought the downfall of every fallen nation. I PLEAD WITH YOU FOR THE SAKE OF YOUR NATION THAT YOU BE WORTHY CITIZENS. I point you the only source of guidance, inspiration and strength for such a character, to Jesus the Christ.

Hon. F. L. Woodruff has returned home from Tallahassee where he represented Seminole county and was active during the entire session. #### A CHIEF IS AMONG YE TAKING NOTES AND FAITH, "HE'LL PRENT 'EM"---SO SAYS SAUNTERER.

"Old Glory"
Hang out "Old Glory" to the breeze,
The morning sun is high;
From every roof and steeple, let
The glorious banner fly.
Come, stirring breezes from the south,
From north and east and west,
Careless with ardent lover's pride
The flag beloved the best.

Hang out "Old Glory" to the breeze,
Each day is Flag Day now,
Its stars and stripes dispel the clouds
Of gloom from every brow.
The troops are marching by,
And hearts and hands will stoutly
grow
And clearer beam each eye.

Hang out "Old Glory" to the breeze,
The winter carries long,
And eagerly we wait to hear
The lark's enchanting song,
And 'mid the branches of the trees,
Sweet garlands in the sky,
Its gleaming stars and stripes will seem
When "Glory" floats on high.

Hang out "Old Glory" to the breeze,
No other half so fair,
And thus to staunch "Old Uncle
Sam"
Your loyalty declare.
Now is the day to blazon forth,
In red and white and blue,
This message to a throbbing world,
"Americans are true."

Hang out "Old Glory" to the breeze,
From ocean coast to coast,
In every place where brave men
meet,
Its triumph gladly toast,
The flag our fathers died to save
And sons live to defend;
The guardians of our hearts and
homes,
From now to world's end.—
—A. G. Kiddoch.

I understand that there are people here who take no interest in the Red Cross work and but little interest in helping the government in this great war that we are about to launch to a successful conclusion
in the interest of peace and humanity. Now it appears to me that each one of us have our part to play
in this world and for the protection
that this government has afforded us for so many years it is now up to us to reciprocate in any manner that we can. Some are too old to go to war and they will have to stay at home and do their bit in a thousand different ways. There are Liberty Bonds to buy and gardens to plant and farming to do and we can send our boys to war with the feeling that we are doing what the government is asking us to do with a perfect trust in the higher power

that watches over our destinies.
The Red Cross work may not seem either interesting or important just now, but when the war really opens
and the wounded are coming in from all quarters, our boys and your boys
and all the boys then will realize that our effort toward making them
comfortable have not been in vain.
We are taking care of the other boys
at present and their mothers will
in turn take care of our boys and the suffering people of all Europe will be relieved by the great work of the Red Cross. This work is like church work—it spreads over the universe
for the benefit of all mankind and no man is immune from the share of the work or from the benefits therefrom. Therefore, let everyone in this city take a part and take it with the feeling, that you are doing
your duty, not only to the government but to suffering humanity.

It is my honest opinion that the war was brought on and has been allowed to flourish because the world
was becoming so wicked that it needed cleaning up and that after the war this world will be a better habitation for Christian men and women. This being so it is about time that men and women everywhere take a tumble to themselves and get right with God. It is a well known fact that since the war started
there are more people in France and England going to church than ever before, and this being so demonstrates that suffering brings people
to their senses more quickly than any other cause. Our own country will have to suffer some before we can realize our short comings and
our duty to the church.

Today is registration day and those who are obliged to register
should not go to the polls scoured
like a galley slave but go as patriots with the full duty as American citizens before them. Many will be called but few chosen and those who are chosen should consider it a privilege to serve their country in time
of need.

This home guard idea is spreading all over the country and Sanford should be congratulated upon this good work of organizing and getting in shape so quickly. With the fine set of officers and men the Sanford

company should give a good account of themselves and if any one thinks they will have a picnic they should not join, for it is my opinion that the home guards will have plenty of work to do before this war is over.

Recipes for Watermelon Preserves,
Sweet Canned Peppers, Beet
Pickle and Spanish Pickle
The two recipes for watermelon
are from the State Extension Service Bulletin: Canning, -Preserving and Pickling No A-81.

Preserved Watermelon Rind
Cut 1 pound rind into 1-inch squares. Remove peel and all pink part. Soak over night in lime water (1 ounce lime to 2 quarts water).
The following morning let stand for 2 hours in clear water. Drain well, then drop into boiling water and boil rapidly for 10 minutes. Drain again and add gradually to the sirup (made by boiling together 3 cups sugar, 3 pints water). Add to this the juice of one half lemon and three extra slices of lemon. Cook until the melon is tender and transparent. Allow to stand until cold, arrange the pieces attractively in the jars, garnishing with slices of lemon, cover with the sirup testing 50 deg. to 55 deg. Process, and seal.

Gingered Watermelon Rind
Follow the same method as for preserves, until after rind has been freshened in cold water. Then drain well and boil rapidly for 15 minutes
in strong ginger tea (1 ounce ginger to 1 quart water). Finish cooking in a 30 deg. sirup made by using 1
pint strained ginger tea with 1
quart water and 1 1/2 pounds sugar.
Cook rapidly until tender and transparent (about 2 hours). After rind has boiled for one half hour, add
one half lemon, cut into thin slices.
Pack and process like preserves.

The following recipes are in reply to the demand for recipes for canning peppers. The sweet, ripe peppers are best for these as the flavor is most fully developed when the peppers have attained their rich red maturity. The commercial canned peppers, the "Pimentos" (not pimentos)
are not as good as the home canned.

Heated Canned Sweet Red Peppers
Wash, halve, seed and drain the peppers, then wipe. Scald 5 minutes in water poured on at polling point.
Drain, let cool 15 minutes, then pack in sterilized glass jars. Add 1 teaspoonful of salt to each jar of peppers. Fill jars with cold water and proceed as for directions for canning corn and beans given in a previous issue of the Herald for
"Canning Vegetables in the Home" Bulletin No. 359).

Cold Canned Sweet Peppers
Wash, dry, stem, halve and seed,
then pack close in sterilized glass jars. Have ready cold water in which salt (2 tablespoons) to each jar has been boiled 6 minutes and the water then thoroughly cooled.
Fill jars perfectly full with this and
seal.

Whole Peppers in Brine
Wash and wipe whole sweet peppers and tie tight in a cheesecloth
bag; place in a stone jar and fill it up with cold water salted, allowing four tablespoonfuls of salt to each quart of water used. When needed, freshen by soaking in fresh soft,
warm water. Keep the jar in a cool place.

In Can Sweet Green Peppers
Proceed as with Heated Canned Sweet Red Peppers, but add a teaspoonful of sugar to each jar of peppers.

The following recipes have just been issued by the Home Economies Department of the Florida State Woman's College in a bulletin compiled by Miss Sarah W. Partridge:

Spanish Pickle
2 cups of chopped cabbage
1/2 cup of chopped green bell pepper

1 cup of chopped onion
1/4 cup of chopped squash
1/4 cup of chopped cucumber
1 cup of chopped green tomatoes
1 pt. vinegar
1/2 cup sugar
2 tbs. salt
4 sticks cinnamon 3 inches long
1 tb. mustard seed
1 sp. whole cloves
1-6 oz. whole mace
1 tsp. whole allspice
1/2 tb. celery seed
1 tsp. dry mustard
1 tsp. tumeric.

Have vegetables chopped fine. To the vinegar add salt, sugar and whole spices; bring to a boil and add the chopped vegetables; bring to a hard boil, add the ground mustard
and tumeric, which have been rubbed to the consistency of cream with cold water. Pack in sterilized jars and seal.

Rosy Relish
3 cups of chopped cabbage
3 cups of chopped beets
1 pt. of vinegar
1/2 cup of sugar
4 sticks cinnamon
1 tsp. cloves

1/2 tsp. allspice
2 lbs. salt.
Boil the beets, being careful not to cut the roots off before cooking
and to leave at least 3 inches of tops
on while boiling, so as to retain color. When done, cut in small pieces.
Mix with the chopped cabbage.
Drop into the vinegar the spice tied
in a spice bag, add sugar and salt,
and bring to a boil. Let boil 10 minutes, then add cabbage and beets. Let them come to a hard boil; pour into sterilized jars and
seal.

County Agent,
Sanford, Florida.

The New Style Patriots

Listen, my children, and you shall hear
Of some Patriot's work in this present year.

They didn't ride by lantern light
To raise the neighbors to arm and fight,

But they went to work with a plow
and Hoe
And they made ten bushels of taters
grow.

They wiped the sweat from their
heated brow,
As they trudged along with their
Hoe and Plow,

Their hands grew tough and their
feet got sore
As they turned the stubborn soil a'er
And the people laughed and called them slow

But they made ten bushels of taters
grow.

Yes, cheer the boys with the Sword
and Gun,
Who have fought and bled when this
war is done,

Yes, cheer the Generals and Colonels
too,
And the sailors bold on the ocean
blue,

But cheer these too with the Plow
and Hoe,
Who made ten bushels of taters
grow.

—Finley Munson.

AN APPEAL TO WOMEN

Secretary of Agriculture Points Out That in Their Own Homes They Can Aid Nation's Armies

The Secretary of Agriculture, in response to requests from many editors for a statement as to service
women can render the nation in the direction of producing and conserving agricultural products has issued
the following:

"Every woman can render important service to the nation in its present emergency. She need not leave her home nor abandon her home duties to help the armed forces. She can help to feed and clothe our armies and help to supply food to those beyond the seas by practicing effective thrift in her own household.

"Every ounce of food the housewife saves from being wasted in her home—all food which she or her children produce in the garden and can or preserve—every garment
which care and skillful repair make it unnecessary to replace—all lessen that household's draft on the already insufficient world supply.

"To save food the housewife must learn to plan economical and properly balanced meals, which, while nourishing each member of the family properly, do not encourage over eating or offer excessive and wasteful variety. It is her duty to use all effective methods to protect food by spoilage by heat, dirt, mice or insects. She must acquire the culinary ability to utilize every bit of edible food that comes into her home. She must learn to use such foods as vegetables, beans, peas and milk products as partial substitutes for meat. She must make it her business to see that nothing nutritious is thrown out or allowed to be wasted.

"Waste in any individual household may seem to be insignificant,
but if only a single ounce of edible
food, on the average, is allowed to spoil or be thrown away in each of our 20,000,000 homes, over 1,300,000
pounds of material would be wasted each day. It takes the fruit of many acres and the work of many people
to raise, prepare and distribute 464, 000,000 pounds of food a year. Every ounce of food thrown away,
therefore, tends also to waste the labor of an army of busy citizens.

"Clothing is largely an agricultural product and represents the results of labor on the sheep ranges,
in cotton fields and in mills and factories. Whenever a useful garment is needlessly discarded material needed to keep some one warm or dry may be consumed merely to gratify a passing fancy. Women would do well to look upon clothing
at this time more particularly from the utilitarian point of view.

"Leather, too, is scarce and the proper shoeing of armies calls for great supplies of this material. There are only so many pairs of shoes in each hide, and there is a shortage of animals for leather as well as for meat. Anything that can be done to encourage adults or children to take care of their shoes and make them last longer means to at so much more leather is made available for other purposes.

"Employed women, especially those engaged in the manufacture of food or clothing, also directly serve their country and should put into their tasks the enthusiasm and energy the importance of their product warrants.

"While all honor is due to th
women who leave their homes to nurse and care for those wounded in battle, no man should feel that, because she does not wear a nurse's uniform, she is absolved from patriotic service. The home women of the country, if they will give their minds fully to this vital subject of food conservation and train themselves in household thrift can make
of the housewife's apron a uniform
of national significance.

"Demonstrate thrift in your homes
and encourage thrift among your neighbors.
"Make saving rather than spending your social standard.
Make economy fashionable lest it become obligatory."

Glass Eye Was Misbehaving.
"Mrs. Murphy, have you seen my glass eye?" "Yes, sir; it was readin'
one of your letters, and I hid it in the bureau."—Lamp-on.

Providing for Pedestrians.
Cities that are worrying over narrow streets and sidewalks may take a lesson from the recent action of Manchester, N. H., which has passed an ordinance requiring that all buildings be erected at least 32.8 feet from the boundary line, except in the busiest district, where 13.12 feet space
frontage must be allowed for walks
and parking, and must be entirely free
from steps, balustrades and ornaments.

Indictment of Cat.
The cat character is traditionally a synonym for all that is treacherous and despicable. Not one moral trait does it possess that is worthy of imitation. Hence it seems odd that human beings should domesticate it and place
it, as a house companion, practically
on a par with the noble and unselfish dog.—Exchange.

Making Assurance Doubly Sure.
The pupils in a certain class in hygiene were told to set down on paper
the reasons why, in their opinion, cremation was superior to burial. "Cremation is good," wrote one little boy,
"because the person might only be in a swoon, and if he is buried he cannot recover."

For-Bride Elect

Among the pretty entertainments that are being given in honor of Miss Bertha Packard, whose marriage to Mr. Geo. Armstrong will take place tomorrow evening was the attractive miscellaneous shower that was given by Mrs. Sandy Anderson on Friday afternoon.

slips. To Mrs. Margaret Barnes fell the second prize, a dainty saquet and Mrs. Richard Patten was the winner of the cutting prize, two decks of playing cards. Assisting Mrs. Hill were Mrs. Newman, Mrs. Ralph Wight, Mrs. Hal Wight, Mrs. F. E. Rounhill and Mrs. Puleston.

Pretty Birthday Party

In honor of the eleventh birthday of their attractive young daughter, Irma, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Smith entertained on Friday afternoon with a charming party. A color scheme of pink was used in the adornment of the rooms and on the tables on the lawn where refreshments were served.

Wynn-Sanderson

A wedding in which the many friends of the young couple will be interested was that of Miss Minnie Wynn and Mr. H. G. Sanderson on Saturday at high noon, Rev. Herndon officiating.

Charming Bridge Party

Mrs. W. C. Hill was the gracious hostess at a charming bridge party on Thursday afternoon at her attractive home on Fourth street. The rooms were lovely with the glowing beauty of yellow daisies tastefully arranged with asparagus ferns.

Farmers and Fruit Growers

Items of Interest for the Man Behind the Plow

Silos Are In Demand

Silos are no longer an experiment—they are a success. They are to farm crops what a tin can is to vegetable crops, and like the tin can which reduces the cost of supplying the family table, the silo reduces the cost of feeding live stock.

The silo is adapted to Florida where corn and sorghums are easily grown. It is most often found on livestock farms but it has been shown to be a profitable investment on truck and tobacco farms.

The size of the silo will depend upon the amount of silage to be fed daily. Silage should be removed from the top at the rate of two or three inches daily, the warmer the weather during use the more silage must be removed from the surface daily to prevent spoiling.

A 900-pound cow will ordinarily consume 30 pounds of silage a day; a 1200 pound cow will consume about 40 pounds. Yearlings will eat about one half as much as mature animals; fattening cattle, 25 to 35 pounds for each 1,000 pounds of live weight. Horses should be limited to 15 or 20 pounds daily.

After determining the diameter of the silo, the number of tons of silage that will be required during the season will determine the height. If the silo is to have a place on your farm, it is necessary to begin work on it now, so that it will be ready to receive your crops at just the right time.

Most likely there is no other calling that carries with it the element of uncertainty as does farming. The American people have a certain amount of speculation bred into their systems, farming in the old-fashioned way is enticing. But in these days of abnormal conditions the desire for speculation is giving way to one of "Safety First."

The time was when one cotton crop would pay for the whole farm and leave a surplus for living expenses besides. That time has passed. Land is held at too high prices and the boll weevil has become a factor for certain loss. Trucking is the sole venture practiced by some Florida farmers, but uncertain weather and markets make the chances less for winning.

adopted permanently which will not return a profit to the farmer. Diversity of crops is urged by all county agents and progressive farmers, and along with it goes the advice to keep more livestock, to consume, as nearly as possible, everything grown on the farm.

Florida has a climate which will permit the growing of feed crops the greater part of the year. Forage can be produced cheaply, and in the velvet bean the farmer has a grain crop which livestock relish and thrive on and which also can be grown cheaply.

FARM LABOR

Handling the Farm Labor Problem in the Present Emergency

The plan here outlined is designed to ascertain in advance that farm labor needs of every community in the state; the sources and amounts of labor that will be available in the state; the sources and amounts of labor that will be available to supply such needs; and to distribute this available extra labor where it is most needed and at the time it is most needed.

This plan, which is sponsored by the U. S. Department of Agriculture contemplates a state organization, a separate county organization or representative and a local organization or representation for each community. A representative of the office of farm management of the U. S. Department of Agriculture will be in immediate charge of the work in the state, working with and through the Florida Food Preparedness Commission and the Extension Division of the University of Florida.

Each community man, with such assistance as he may need, will then proceed to ascertain the labor needs of each farmer in his community, using a form provided for that purpose. He will ascertain the amount and kind of extra labor needed, when it will be needed, and the ways offered. In a similar manner he will enroll every individual who will be available for farm work.

The community man will then make such adjustments of the local labor supplies and needs as he can, reporting the net shortages and surpluses for his community to the county man, who, in turn, will make similar adjustments between the communities of the county, reporting net shortages and surpluses for the county to the state man at Gainesville. The state man will make the adjustments between counties, reporting to the office of farm management at Washington the net shortages and surpluses for the state.

By this plan each unit acts as a clearing house for its territory, adjusting its own supply of labor to the needs of the farmers, and reporting only surpluses and deficits to the next higher unit. The needs of the farmer thus begin to be met as soon as the plan is put into operation.

The plan is to discover and enroll all labor, from whatever source that may be available for farm work during any part of the season. It will include employees and others in the towns and villages who may be released during critical periods. The larger city enrollment will be made by the U. S. Department of Labor, which is cooperating with the Department of Agriculture.

True.

"This thing of being so much in love that you can't eat," observed the man who knows, "is not infrequently caused by the high price of flowers and theater tickets."—Widow.

Too Bad, Eph.

Eph Wiley regrets the fact that so comfortable a sensation as picking one's teeth should be considered but form.—Topeka Capital.

Ruling Spirit Strong.

"That reformed yegg is true to his instinct, at any rate." "How so?" "Why, now he's trying to break into society."—Puck.

Bees and Fruit.

An agricultural society of Florence, Italy, has recently carried out a thorough investigation of the alleged injury of fruit by bees and has completely exonerated the latter. Bees are unable to perforate the skin of the fruit, and it is only incidentally that they suck the juices of fruit injured by other natural causes.

Idolatry as It Is.

After months spent in idolatrous lands I have been unable to see much real worship in heathen shrines. The educated worship with their tongues in their cheeks and the ignorant with their hearts in their mouths. But the amount of real worship that exists in heathen temples is very small.

Sometimes a bereaved mother will enter the temple and draw from her kimono the tiny bib of a departed little one and tie it to the statue of Jizo, the god of motherhood. Sometimes an old man or woman almost blind will enter the temple and rub the eyes of a wooden god and then rub his own in the hope that eternal darkness may not close in on his sighted soul.

The Arabic Language.

Though the Arabs number less than the population of London, their language is one of the most widely spoken and influential in the world, for it is the language of the Koran. Seventy millions of people in Asia and north Africa speak some form of Arabic as their vernacular, and quite as many more know something of the language from the Koran, which in the original is a text book in the day schools of the Mohammedans from Turkey to Afghanistan and New Guinea.

Politics and Tobacco.

Something like half a century ago a man named Dan Bradley started the custom in a little cigar store in Brooklyn of keeping a box of smoking tobacco on the counter, with a sign above it saying, "Fill your pipe." Partly on the strength of his popularity, due in no small degree to the free filling for a pipe, Bradley ran independently for the state senate and was elected as against the regular candidate.

"A man would have to give away automobiles to get elected to the senate nowadays," observed one of the new school politicians.

"The days of the election cigar and tobacco are gone forever."—New York World.

Damascus Swords.

Damascus swords, whose fame at one time made them almost one of the wonders of the world, were made of alternate layers of iron and steel, so finely tempered that the blade would bend to the hilt without breaking, with an edge so keen that no coat of mail could resist it and a surface so highly polished that when a Moslem wished to rearrange his turban he used his sword for a looking glass.

That Held Him.

A Yankee clinched his heated argument with an Englishman as to the relative size of the Thames and Mississippi by saying:

"Why, look here, mister, there ain't enough water in the whole of the Thames to make a gargle for the mouth of the Mississippi!"

Too Much to Ask.

"Bligh is a fifth annoying in manner, but his heart is in the right place." "Yes," observed Miss Cayenne, "but you can't be expected to perform a surgical operation on every disagreeable person in a restaurant, where the heart is the only thing that counts."

Worth While Quotation.
