President Of Peru Is Assassinated As He Rides In His Car

Attacker, 2 Soldiers Are Killed And Six Others Are Injured In Melee Following

LIMA, Peru, May 1.—(A.P.)—General Benigno Legua, president of Peru, was assassinated yesterday as he rode in his car through a crowd of 20,000 young men in Jorge Chavez park. The assassin was shot by presidential guards.

The assassin, Anselmo Hurtado Mendoza, fired several shots from the President's body as he drove away from the park. Two soldiers were killed and one officer, five soldiers and a civilian wounded during a melee which followed the assassination. The attack was so sudden, elaborate precautions which had been made to protect the president's life were unavailing. A captain of the elite guards leaped on the presidential car and attempted to shield Legua, but without success. Soldiers who lined the sidewalk down which the president and his suite walked also were unable to stop the assassin before the president was fatally wounded. The assassin was put on full speed as soon as the shots were fired and drove to the lining hospital where Premier Huancahuasi held the unconscious president's body in his arms.

Examination by physicians at the hospital showed Sanchez Cerro had been shot in the heart. He died soon after being taken to the operation room. The captain of the civil guard, Fortunato Redaya, who was wounded, said he was supervising men in maintaining order while the president passed on the way to the hospital.

An aide of the president, Mendon was shot and killed as he stood in the president's car while still firing. He was described as a 35 year old former newspaper reporter. An official said he was a member of the Aprista (opposition) party.

NEW YORK, May 1.—(A.P.)—Inflation and deflation is a simple, common sense remedy for the depression, it is the theoretical ultimate remedy of the danger. That reason has either gone to the winds or is being ignored.

The course of the depression has illustrated deflation, not inflation. The farmer who has lost his farm through forced crop Francis' inflation after the war reduced the value of an individual's bank account by 80 percent.

MAJOR LEAGUERS FINED, SUSPENDED FOR FISTIC FRAY

One Yankee And Two Senators Are Disciplined For Actions

By EDWARD J. NEIL
NEW YORK, Apr. 25.—(AP)—One Yankee and two Senators were suspended yesterday for five days and fined $100 each by William Harridge, president of the American League, as an aftermath of the free-for-all in Washington Tuesday that embroiled players of the two clubs, spectators and plain clothes police.

Ben Chapman, young Yankee outfielder who was the focal point in the disturbance on one side, and Buddy Myers and Earl Whitehill, who led the Senators into action, were the three who received the gentle punishment that under the league rules could have gone as high as 30-day suspensions and fines of $1000.

Further edge was taken from the disciplinary action by Harridge's decision that the suspensions should be retroactive to Tuesday, allowing the three ball players to return to the game next Monday. The fines must be paid by the players, Harridge said, and not from the club treasuries.

"I have warned all club managers that rowdiness and feuds, this one between the Yankees and Senators in particular must cease," said Harridge, who came here from Chicago to investigate the turbulent scene Tuesday.

The trouble, dating back to last summer in which Bill Dickey punched Carl Reynolds and broke his jaw, started afresh when Myers tangled with Chapman at second base, grew violent as Chapman advanced punches with Earl Whitehill, and became general as players from both clubs, spectators and police joined the melee.

After questioning the Yankee players Thursday, and the Senators Friday morning, and receiving reports of George Moriarty and Harry Geisel, who umpired the game, Harridge announced his decision at the Yankee stadium before the two teams met with a crowd of 25,000 watching in vain for further hostilities.

"Myers was punished for kicking Chapman as the latter came into second base," Harridge explained. "Whitehill was guilty of cuffing Chapman as he neared third base. The Washington dugout, the only way he could leave the field after being ejected from the game. Chapman was disciplined for leaping on Whitehill and starting the fight when he should have paid no attention and continued on to the clubhouse. The trouble probably never would have progressed beyond the brief flurry at second base if Chapman had not been obliged to leave through the Wash-

CELERY FEDS TO MEET ORLANDO IN GAME TOMORROW

Visitors Are Out To Avenge 2-1 Defeat In Exhibition Tilt

An Orlando baseball team that has been improving with age comes to Sanford tomorrow afternoon to avenge a 2 to 1 defeat handed it by Manager Joe Barnes' Celeryfed, in an exhibition game in that city two weeks ago.

This game, the first to be played between teams representing the two cities in this city for many years, is easily the headline attraction of those to be played in the Central Florida Baseball League tomorrow. New Smyrna will take a group of youngsters to Daytona Beach to take a strong combination there, while the Cocoa Indians will be at Leesburg testing Emil Yde's brand new Leeburg Yellow Jackets. Both teams in Sanford is where the action will come unless all signs are wrong.

Make no mistake about it, these Orlando Tigers are getting ferocious. They looked pretty good in defeat at Daytona Beach last Sunday. They looked much better against Leesburg on Thursday. Tomorrow they will be "out for blood" and with a new hurler, Cal Carleton from the clay hills of Georgia on the mound, the Feds may have to step.

Manager Godbold at Orlando has what he called a smooth-working infield and a group of capable outfielders. In Tom Philpotts, Lawrence Chubb, Lefty Flora, and Cal Carleton he has a fine array of hurlers. Godbold himself seems to have found his old batting eye, and with Cops his left fielder, is pacing the team at bat. Thursday they pounded out 11 hits. Phil Bach of the Ballard's was the high individual bowler totaling 534 for three games. George Habb of the same team ran up a 215 score on his second game.

The Nehi Bottlers and Randall Electric are now tied for first place with 12 games won and 9 lost. Forrest Gatchell, Ballard's and the House team are all tied for second place each having won 11 and lost 10 games.

The game is scheduled to start at 3:30 o'clock and it is possible that Roby Laing will do the umpiring.

"BOWLING NOTES"

MEMBERS WELCOME FOR TODAY

ALL ARE INVITED: Come up and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths.—Isaiah 2:3.

TULIPS

The tulips are in bloom again. As every passer-by can see—A lovely sight of red and white And bronze and purple pagentry.

Brave warriors of hope are they Who nod and sway beneath the sun And seem to say, "Let come what may, Our duty here once more we've done."

"We shall not see the roses bloom Nor long outlive the breath of spring But brave of heart we play our part, Each one of us a lovely thing."

"What if in two brief weeks we pale And to the changing season bow, And row by row to death we go? We have our share of glory now."

"Gaze on us, weary passer-by Enjoy our beauty while you may, And like us give, the while you live, Your utmost heart to every day." By Edgar A. Guest.

Nobody seems to be quite sure whether we have inflation, deflation, or something else. But whatever it is, everybody seems to be all for it.

We've got to have confidence in our President and in our government. If we don't have, we might as well all go down and jump in the lake.

Our own George Westbrook did not make a great hit with newspaper people when he introduced the bill to abolish the publication of the delinquent tax list.—Cleveland Press. Who's he? Some bird trying to get even?

It is an advantage to be tall at an auction sale," we read. Bargains go to the highest bidder, of course.—The Humorist. What of the disadvantages of being the highest bidder, as indicated in recent auction sales in Iowa.

The best joke of the year is the proposal to limit working hours in newspaper plants to thirty hours a week. It is evident that some of our Congressmen have never been in the publishing business.

If the so-called "conservative" party by which America hopes to encourage disarmament has any sense, to do with the oft-whispered "security pact" by which this country would pledge itself to assist in maintaining the peace of Europe, it pays a job of dynamite to nothing else. Suppose at this time we had such an agreement with China and Japan to maintain peace in the Orient.

Since abandoning the gold standard in the country, the first thing that England has done was to increase the Equalization Fund by 150,000,000 pounds. Now the Equalization Fund is the money which the British government utilizes to subsidize the exchange value of the pound sterling so as to always be dependent on England's advantage. It is a pity, in fact, that now we have depreciated the dollar, England will do the same thing. Just enough to make the pound sterling worth more than the dollar, and then she will do it again and again.

Are We Inflated?

Indicating the impossibility of conveying accurately the whole story in the few words which newspaper headlines will permit, American dailies on Saturday and Sunday blazoned to the world, "Senate Votes Inflation." The impression which this leaves with the public, we fear, is that with the Senate's vote on inflation, we are, presto—thereby inflated. As a matter of fact nothing could be further from the truth.

Not a single new dollar was created by this Congressional act. Not a single grain of gold was removed from the present content of the dollar. Not a single bar of silver was purchased by the government. The inflation bill simply gives to the President the power to expand government credit, to issue unsupported currency, to adopt bi-metalism, to devalue the dollar, and to accept silver on war debt payments, if in his judgment such measures are necessary to raise prices.

It is to be hoped that none of these powers will have to be resorted to. There is not a single proposal in the group which is not likely to have serious, if not disastrous, consequences. The first one, the expansion of credit by the government, with more to justify it than any of the other measures, is simply piling up debt for future generations to pay. And the printing of greenbacks will not accomplish the purpose for which it is intended unless carried to such extremes as to seriously undermine the currency.

Bi-metalism is a fallacious monetary theory which has been tried time and time again in dozens of different countries and has never succeeded in stabilizing prices even as effectively as the gold standard which everyone admits is bad enough. Furthermore, the only conceivable purpose for resorting to the free and unlimited coinage of silver is a total lack of insufficiency of gold, and this country today has more gold than any other country in the world, almost more than all the rest of them put together.

Devaluation of the dollar is exactly what Senator Carter Glass said it was. It is "repudiation, dishonest, and immoral." The government is under contract to pay billions of dollars worth of bonds in gold of a certain fineness and weight. To attempt to pay these bonds now with gold containing 80 percent, or even ten percent, less weight than the gold agreed upon, would be an open violation of contract as flagrant as any we have ever known. It would set an example which would destroy the sanctity of all contracts. It would destroy credit for years to come.

The acceptance of silver for war debt payments is of small consequence under any circumstances. We suppose there is some justification for the government to accept anything it can get on these loans. It will probably be lucky even to receive the silver. However, we cannot see the practical common sense in accepting silver from foreign countries when our own silver mines are lying idle because of a lack of markets.

The only justification that we can see in the Thomas amendment which includes these proposals is that it transfers from Congress to the President the powers to do these things. President Roosevelt is certainly more competent to exercise such drastic functions fairly and judiciously than the members of Congress who are subject to greater political pressure from countless selfish interests and minority groups.

The exercise of all of these powers by the President should be no cause for elation among the people, for such measures would indicate not so much that the world is on its feet again, as that the depression has sunk to such depths that currency wars and repudiation cannot be avoided. World business is already at such a low ebb that some measure of inflation in the form of credit expansion, is probably necessary, but it is to be hoped that the revival of trade through the lowering of tariffs and other agreements with foreign governments will put such unorthodox proposals as bi-metalism and dollar devaluation in a class with Technocracy, mah jongg, and miniature golf courses, where they properly belong.

A New Jobless Army

Time was when the "white collar" man occupied a place of envy and scorn in the public mind, the envy of some because of the "soft" and lucrative jobs which went along with the title and the scorn of others for the same reason. Now it seems the "white collar" man is deserving of more pity than anything else. No longer is there the former demand for this type of worker and no longer are the salaries so attractive.

In fact things have gone so hard with him that an army of "white collar" jobless is planning to march on the Capital to seek relief from the government. This army of unemployed will be composed of college graduates, who, it appears, are leaving our institutions of higher learning in ever increasing numbers and who are facing the prospects of ever decreasing number of employment possibilities.

This situation brings out clearly one serious problem which is confronting our educational system. We would not for a minute suggest that a higher education is not desirable, but it cannot be overlooked that there is a danger of college men limiting their occupations to a narrow field, the field in which they rightly think they belong, that is the field of the professions and business.

It is only natural that our young college men should aspire to become lawyers, doctors, bankers, or bond brokers, but only a little mathematical computation is necessary to understand that if college educations continue to be increasingly popular the time will not be far off when there will be no one to perform the necessary manual labor, that is unless college graduates will do it.

The cure for the situation will probably lie between limiting college education to those best fitted for it, or in changing the college man's attitude about working only in a very limited sphere of occupations.

LABOR OPPOSED TO RAILROAD CONTROL BILL

Is Fearful That Provisions May Result In More Breadlines

WASHINGTON, Apr. 29.—(AP)—Labor, fearful that thousands of railway workers will be driven to the bread lines, yesterday announced its opposition to the railway re-organization bill now on President Roosevelt's desk awaiting approval and transmission to Congress.

Though the legislation it proposes a one to two-year suspension of anti-trust laws as far as railroads are concerned, and creates a federal co-ordinator to rehabilitate and trim the railroad systems—contains various safeguards for labor, it was attacked vigorously yesterday in a statement from the railway labor executives' association, which said:

"We see no justification for drastic reductions of essential transportation service in order that unearned interest may be paid on idle capital."

In New York officials took the view that the concentrated authority of the plan made its success depend entirely on who is named co-ordinator. They were quick to point out, however, that the required consultation with labor committees before orders are issued by the co-ordinator may serve to prevent any large economies.

The co-ordinator's big job under the bill will be to eliminate duplicating services of competing lines and unneeded services and to consolidate terminal activities.

but is not able to be out yet. Arthur Yowell and J. H. Overman went to the Wekiwa River yesterday afternoon and landed 12 fine trout, the largest weighing seven pounds. Arthur has lately become an ardent disciple of the gentle art of casting, having formerly been a devotee of the cane pole. He now thinks that all the sport to be gained from fishing is in reeling them in and he has purchased a fine outfit and can be found on the banks of the Wekiwa one afternoon in every week making a cast and reeling the beauties in.

(Continued from Page One) chaffers' union, which is in possession to bear a heavy influence upon the $20,000,000 metropolitan milk industry, is the immediate issue between the rival gangs, according to Gilbert.

Touhey and six machine gunners invaded headquarters of the union Friday, and after terrorizing 70 members for several hours, abducted Fred Sass, business agent, and Morris Goldberg, an official who is a brother-in-law of O'Donnell.

The gangsters, witnesses told police lay in wait for Humphries, O'Donnell and White intending, Touhey was quoted as announcing, to "chop them down the minute they walk in the door."

None of the three made an appearance, however, and the gunmen departed with their two captives. Neither has turned up.

He will have power to pass on railroad loan applications to the Reconstruction corporation. This is designed to force rails to squeeze down their capitalization to actual working needs.

Though the co-ordinator's orders could be appealed to the interstate commerce commission, the rail executives were not inclined to believe there would be much overriding of his directions. They assumed that the co-ordinator probably would be chosen from the present commission and that he will consult with the commission before making any sweeping reforms.

The measure has been on the desk of President Roosevelt for a week now but the rush of international conferences has made it impossible for him to give it time. He is expected, however, to get it on the way to Congress soon.

The labor safeguards in the bill are: protection of all labor union contract rights; creation of labor boards to consult with the co-ordinator; reservation of the rights to collective bargaining, and maintenance of the railway labor act.

The fear of the railroad unions is that the economy act would not only cut off unneeded crews here and there but that in the elimination of duplicating services it would wipe out the employment of whole railroad communities.

Russo-Jap Row Over Railroad Grows Serious

He demanded restoration of the normal activities of the road and that "further attempts to break those agreements" be stopped.

The communique made public a new exchange of correspondence between Li Shao-Keng and Kuznetsov, in which the former on Apr. 20 and 21 denied that "the C. E. R. belongs to the Soviet Union."

Replying to statements made by Kuznetsov in a letter Apr. 23, in which the soviet representative charged that Manchurian authorities had committed violent acts aimed at undermining the functions of the line and that Manchurian representatives on the board had failed to take measures to protect the railroad's interests, the Manchukuo director declared that "your interpretation that the C. VOTE IN HOUSE ON INFLATION BILL PUT OFF

To expedite decisions, Wallace desires that each group interested in some phase of a commodity have a single representative entitled to speak for his associates.

Farm organization leaders came away from previous conferences with the secretary, holding definite views on the possibility of doing this by trade agreements. Wallace has authority to veto such proposals, to release the shipping, and prohibitions of "the importation of foreign products and exporters in the agricultural market."

If these agreements can provide control of a commodity in such a way as to assure an advance in prices, Wallace can avoid the necessity of specific programs of average reduction for this year together with the lowering of production taxes in future average reduction. In that case, growing up of planted crops would be obviated.

Li further questioned the validity of the Peiping and Mukden treaties in 1924, establishing the joint Russo-Chinese administration of the road.

Rejoining sharply, Kuznetsov maintained that "the fact that the Chinese Eastern Railway is the property of Soviet Russia has never before been questioned and cannot be doubted now."

Kuznetsov's note further said that "your statement cannot, otherwise be understood than as a direct attempt to break the Peiping-Mukden agreements with the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics under which it is very clear that the C. E. R. belongs to Russia."

Replying to statements made by Kuznetsov in a letter Apr. 23, in which the soviet representative charged that Manchurian authorities had committed violent acts aimed at undermining the functions of the line and that Manchurian representatives on the board had failed to take measures to protect the railroad's interests, the Manchukuo director declared that "your interpretation that the C. Long's Meat IS A Treat To Eat

Similarity, processors of a given commodity, handlers, and dealers, both wholesale and retail, are to enter their cause with one representative.

Wallace's side have gathered detailed data on the position of each of the commodities and after examining these the groups will be asked to reach an agreement on how large a cut in production is needed to move the commodity out of the surplus class.

Then each group will discuss the possibility of doing this by trade agreements. Wallace has authority to veto such proposals, to release the shipping, and prohibitions of "the importation of foreign products and exporters in the agricultural market."

If these agreements can provide control of a commodity in such a way as to assure an advance in prices, Wallace can avoid the necessity of specific programs of average reduction for this year together with the lowering of production taxes in future average reduction. Something to Say not just saying something

A friend of CHESTERFIELD writes me of a salesman who had "something to say":

"I dropped into a little tobacco shop and when I asked for a pack of Chesterfields the man smiled and told me I was the seventh customer without a break to ask for Chesterfields. Smoker after smoker," he said, "tell me the Chesterfields click... I call for them as many Chesterfields as I can get back."

Yes, there's something to any good Chesterfields and it takes just six weeks to say it—"They're mild and yet they're strong."

Accessories were in a harmonizing shade of beige and she carried a large bouquet of deep pink roses, and white swastonia (led with pink valley chiffs).

The maid of honor wore for the occasion a two-piece ensemble of pink sat crepe composed of a tailored dress and cape. Her accessories were in pink and her bouquet was composed of light colored pink roses, gerberas, daisies and delphinium.
