Sanford man drowns in Georgia

TALLULAH FALLS, Ga. — A 19-year-old Sanford man drowned in Tallulah Gorge Wednesday afternoon when he dived from some rocks into a pool, rescue authorities said.

Mark Anthony England was at a place called Tempesta Pool with his father and two friends, said Ronald Moore, chief of the Rabun County Rescue Unit. Apparently he dove off some rocks 60 to 70 feet above the pool and never surfaced, Moore said.

The call came in to rescue authorities around 2:30 p.m. and the body was recovered by divers around 6 p.m., Moore said.

Blackburn found guilty

HARLAN Blackburn of Winter Park was found guilty yesterday in federal court of conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute cocaine hydrochloride and possession with intent to distribute cocaine hydrochloride.

Harlan Blackburn "The Colonel"

Blackburn, 73, was convicted of heading up a cocaine conspiracy which operated in Seminole County. The evidence presented at trial showed he was the source of supply for cocaine distributed by at least three main co-conspirators. Testimony and other evidence presented revealed that at least one person employed by Blackburn to distribute cocaine was a 19-year-old female with whom he admitted to having been associated for the last five years.

Evidence seized from his residence showed that large quantities of cocaine were stored and packaged for resale. They also obtained records of drug customers who were supplied by Blackburn.

He faces a maximum sentence of life imprisonment, a $4 million fine and five years supervised release.

Do women belong in combat?

Aspin vows to re-examine military issue

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Les Aspin promised Wednesday to re-examine the issue of women in combat and said he hopes to take some action within the next six months.

But the new defense secretary, in a meeting with several reporters, said he opposes making changes for just one service at a time.

"Consistency — that's got to happen," the secretary said, when asked about prospects for a Navy proposal to put women in combat aircraft within the next four years.

Female pilots in the Navy and Air Force are trained to fly combat aircraft, but they are allowed only to hold non-combat jobs such as flight instructors. The Marine Corps has no such aviators. There are female helicopter pilots in the Army, but they do not pilot attack choppers.

Aspin indicated he wants to take some time to look at the entire issue. See Combat, Page 5A

Tanya Starceovich said she doesn't believe anyone, especially women, should be in combat. She hopes that her granddaughter, Taylor Anderson of Sanford, never has to serve her country in that way.

SANFORD — While most young women in Sanford's downtown lunch crowd believe that women should be allowed into combat, there were a few who weren't so sure that it was a good idea.

Some older, retired Navy men also want to give them a chance.

A variety of women, ranging in age from 20 to 40 and some Navy veterans around town were polled at random and asked what they thought of the Navy's proposal to put women into combat roles by 1998.

"Who's going to stay at home and take care of their children?" asked Patty Brooks. "They have to consider that before they put the women into combat."

Rolling her eyes, Frances Ford, Brooks' lunchtime companion, disagreed.

"If they have the nerve to go into combat, they should be allowed to go into combat." See Women, Page 5A

CCIB car rammed; 7 nabbed in sting

LAKE MARY — Two City-County Investigative Bureau agents are recovering after a target of an LSD distribution sting rammed their car with his truck Tuesday night.

"They are all right but they are awfully sore," said sheriff's spokesman George Proechel. Proechel said the agents suffered bruises and leg injuries. He declined to identify them.

The Lake Mary sting target, Erich Clottl, 19, 211 Ruskin St., faces federal charges of conspiracy to possess and distribute LSD, conspiracy and attempted possession of LSD and obstruction of justice. He also faces a CCIB charge of drug paraphernalia possession. Six people arrested at his home Tuesday face drug-related and other charges.

Federal prosecutor Paul Byron said Clottl faces 10 years to life in prison if convicted of the charges. Because the initial transaction with a confidential informant occurred in Clottl's residence, located about a tenth of a mile from Lake Mary Elementary School, Byron said the sentence could be doubled.

Clottl is being held in the Seminole County jail without bond. Investigators say Clottl paid an informant $1,200 at about 10 p.m. Tuesday night to buy enough LSD to make 10,000 "hits" of the hallucinogen. Byron said Clottl made the purchase to sample the supply and considered buying enough of the drug to make up to 120,000 doses. LSD users typically take one dose or less for a "trip."

Woman sues state for alleged abuse

TAVARES — A 26-year-old woman is seeking damages from Florida's welfare agency, claiming that it refused to take action against her father when he was abusing her as a child.

Becky Cookston is also pressing criminal charges against her father, James A. Cookston, 53, of Orlando.

He has been in the Orange County jail for about three weeks, facing charges of sexual battery on a minor — Becky — when she was a child.

Ms. Cookston, who now has a different last name but has asked that it not be used, said she has spent most of her life trying to forget the abuse she endured. She and a brother were removed from their Central Florida home in 1979 and placed in state custody because of reports of abuse.

The state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services later filed a petition to terminate parental rights for the two eldest children, according to the suit. But several younger ones, including Becky, were returned to their parents.

The children were beaten regularly, forced to fight each other, kept out of school to work in citrus groves and lived in a house without a bathroom, running water, insulation or heating, the suit states.

'Sunset' runs 4 hours late

LOS ANGELES — The nation's first same train, coast-to-coast passenger train arrived here nearly 4 1/2 hours late with a load of commuters and railway buffs, some of whom looked like they were in a hurry.

The double-deck, 14-car train that left Miami on Sunday rolled into Union Station downtown at 11:05 p.m. Wednesday as hundreds of travelers photographed and videotaped their arrival.

The Sunset Limited is the nation's first single passenger train to carry people coast to coast. Previously, even at the height of rail travel, people had to change trains or their cars had to switch tracks.

This 3,066-mile trip took 72 1/2 hours and crossed eight states. "We made history this time," said Joe Goodell of Buffalo, N.Y., whose private passenger car was linked to the train. "It was a heck of a great way to go."

The train arrived four hours and 20 minutes late, to the chagrin of some passengers.

"We missed our connection to travel up the coast and instead we have to go to Bakersfield," said Bill Farnsworth of Lafayette, Calif. "Bakersfield — can you believe that?"

Delays were caused by mechanical and other minor problems and the interference of freight trains on the railways, Amtrak representatives said.

The train picked up 200 passengers in Miami, and had up to 1,000 riders during the trip, said Pat Kelly, an Amtrak spokeswoman aboard the train.

The Sunset Limited makes its trip three times a week in each direction, with fares ranging from $287 to $1,300.

New dance show going to sea

MADEIRA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Club owner Joe Redner is setting sail with 40 of his nude dancers on what might be called a sightseeing cruise.

Redner doesn't expect the legal hassles he faced on land when the dancers perform on the high seas, beginning April 18.

A leased, 250-passenger ship will cruise to international waters, where nude dancing, gambling and alcohol are legal, he said. Many Tampa Bay localities have ordinances limiting those activities or combinations of them and he has had talks with elected officials in several communities.

But Pinellas County Sheriff Everett Rice isn't so sure of the concept of a nude-dance boat in the clear after all. "It certainly raises some legal issues," he said Tuesday.

The Sheriff's Office will consult with the Coast Guard, Pinellas County's attorney and the state attorney's office, spokesman Greg Tita said.

So far, about 25 tickets have been sold for the $100-per-person six-hour trip aboard Europa Cruise Lines' "Fun Krus," Redner said.

Lawyer impersonating doctor sentenced

ORLANDO — A lawyer who pleaded guilty to impersonating a doctor has begun serving a 13-month federal prison sentence and will repay nearly $114,000 to several government and private insurers.

William J. Pearce, 60, a resident of Mount Pleasant, S.C., assumed the identity of his best friend, William J. Rick Jr., who died, according to prosecutor Larry Colleton. Pearce moved to South Florida and practiced medicine beginning in 1986.

He opened offices in Seminole and Orange counties in late 1989 and was arrested in 1990.

Last year, Pearce was placed on five years' probation for related state charges of unlawful practice of medicine.

He pleaded guilty to federal charges of mail fraud, filing false Medicare claims and illegally using a federal drug dispensing number.

U.S. District Judge Anne Conway sentenced Pearce on Tuesday and ordered that he serve three years' probation after his release from prison.

FSO collapses but musicians will perform with choir

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

DeLAND — The show will go on. Despite the collapse of the Florida Symphony Orchestra last week, former FSO musicians will perform with the 200-voice Stetson University Choral Union in DeLand next week.

"It's kind of a surprise concert," said Duncan Couch, choir director.

The choral ensemble was scheduled to perform works of Mozart and Hayden with the FSO at two Masterworks performances at Bob Carr Performing Arts Centre next week. But the decision to end the 43-year-old orchestra halted two months of rehearsal by the students, faculty and residents that comprise the Choral Union. No rehearsals had been held with FSO musicians as yet.

On learning of the FSO's demise, Couch said he first mourned, then panicked.

"It was kind of a pulsating disappointment losing that cultural resource (Florida Symphony Orchestra)."

-Duncan Couch

"It was kind of a pulsating disappointment losing that cultural resource," said Couch. "They have been in Orlando too long to just go away like that. Then second, panic set in. I had 200 people rehearsing since February."

A Seminole County member of the Union said she was also disappointed.

"Many of us are not involved with the university, but do it out of a love of music," said Diane Merkt of Winter Springs. "We all felt there was going to be such a void knowing there was not going to be a symphonic orchestra in Central Florida."

And on the other hand, there was the feeling of "They've taken away our concert."

Couch said he quickly contacted FSO officials and through them, arranged to hire 30 former FSO musicians to perform with the chorus. He said he doesn't exactly know which musicians will be there, but is nonetheless thankful the performance will be held.

"In some ways it will be better," said Couch. "The Choral Union is a DeLand choir and it's fitting they will be performing for local people."

"We can't call them the FSO, but former FSO musicians will be there," said Merkt. "It will be a special concert."

Tickets will be available at the door of First Baptist Church on Woodland Boulevard, which is U.S. Highway 17-92, for the 8 p.m. concert April 13. Tickets are $10 for adults, $5 for seniors, $6 for Stetson Friends of Music members and area students.

Chopper on fatal mission never warned of weather

By Associated Press

HURLBURT FIELD — An Air Force helicopter that crashed in Utah's Great Salt Lake, killing 12, was never warned that bad weather forced five Army helicopters on the same mission to turn back, accident investigators report.

The turn-around was reported to the control tower at Hill Air Force Base, Utah, where the joint training mission originated last Oct. 29. But the tower never passed the word to other departing flights or an airborne command aircraft, according to the report released Tuesday.

The HH-600 Pave Hawk, a special operations version of the Army's Black Hawk helicopter, crashed 17 minutes later on the windy, rainy night.

"No one on our aircraft ever heard any radio call ... indicating they were aborting for some reason," said the sole survivor, Maj. Stephan Laushine, the pilot. "This is highly unusual because that call should have been a mandatory call."

Laushine saw the Army flight return to base before his mixed formation of Army and Air Force helicopters, code named Merit 81, took off for a training assault on Michael Army Airfield.

The investigators made no conclusions and laid no blame. Federal privacy laws prevent the disclosure of any disciplinary action that may have resulted, said spokeswoman Shirley Sikes of the Air Force Special Operation Command headquartered here.

The crash killed four of five Air Force crew members and eight Army Rangers. None of the passengers wore life preservers although they are required for over-water flights, and the helicopter had no electronic or mechanical problems, according to the report.

The aircraft was attached to the 55th Special Operations Squadron, at that time based at adjacent Eglin Air Force Base. The 55th later moved to Hurlburt, headquarters of the Air Force Special Operations Command.

Last month, the Air Force announced Laushine had been awarded the 1992 Cheney Award for valor in attempt last July to rescue a Turkish pilot who had crashed in northern Iraq.

Although now recovered from serious injuries, Laushine hasn't resumed flying, Sikes said. He told investigators he felt there was pressure, whether directed or not, to fly the mission even though the weather was bad.

Laushine's helicopter was the last in line as the formation skimmed 100 feet over the lake.

Panel studies crimes

Tourist attacks legislation recommended

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — A six-member state Senate committee will study recent attacks on Florida tourists and recommend legislation, Senate President Ander Crenshaw said.

"We must act now to ... protect our tourist image from irreparable damage," said Crenshaw, R-Jacksonville.

Crenshaw said Wednesday he asked Sen. Gary Siegel, R-Altamonte Springs, who will chair the panel, to hold hearings and recommend necessary legislation as soon as possible.

Police agencies met Tuesday in Miami and U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno volunteered the help of federal prosecutors after the slayings of seven foreign visitors to Florida since October.

The latest victim, Barbara Jensen Meller of Berlin, was robbed, beaten and run over after she got lost leaving the Miami airport in a rental car with her mother and two young children.

Gov. Lawton Chiles has said the violence against tourists added urgency to his campaign to get lawmakers to approve more money for prisons, which will be the subject of a special legislative session he's said he'd call within several weeks.

Crenshaw has opposed Chiles' proposals to raise taxes for prison expansion.

"The select committee's efforts will provide the crime prevention strategies that will allow us to protect the safety of our guests as well as the strength of our economy," Crenshaw said.

LONGWOOD — A body found in a wooded area of Longwood Monday has been positively identified as that of Diana Lee Murphy. The exact cause of death however, has not been determined.

The woman had not been seen since March 21, when she was reported missing by family members.

According to Longwood police Lt. J.F. Yelvington, "Subsequent to the medical examiners autopsy and the concurrent investigation by Longwood detectives, the badly decomposed body found Monday has been positively identified as Diana Lee Murphy, date of birth, 10/31/73."

The identification was made by Dr. Robert Burke, D.D.S. of Winter Springs, who confirmed the matching of dental records.

Two boys uncovered the body in Longdale Industrial Park, about one half mile from Candyland Park, where the Murphy woman was reportedly last seen. Police said an immediate identity could not be made. Clothing was said to have been badly deteriorated.

Diana Lee Murphy
Police yesterday morning said the complete results of an autopsy may not be available for one or two days. "However, at this time," Yelvington said, "all available evidence indicates that no foul play is involved in this case."

Carjackings not on the rise in Florida

By JACQUE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Only four of the 33 police departments and sheriff's offices contacted recently by the state said they had a carjacking problem, according to a new report.

Problems were reported by officials in Jacksonville, Lee County and St. Petersburg as well as Miami, which last fall made a national list of eight cities with significant carjacking problems.

But law enforcement officials elsewhere in the state say they don't see an increase in the crime, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement reported in an analysis released Wednesday.

"Most agreed that the nature and extent of this crime problem was not new," FDLE said. "The prevailing view was that this issue had merely been more highly publicized by the media."

The report said that the number of carjackings had held steadily since 1989 and seemed to be relatively isolated, with the exception of Miami and a rash of cases last summer in Tampa.

"Carjacking is another symptom of the larger issue of violent crime in this state and nationwide," FDLE Commissioner Tim Moore said. "While the incidents of carjacking are relatively low, one occurrence is too many."

An international furor has developed since October with the murders of seven foreign tourists in Florida. The most recent victim was Berlin teacher Barbara Jensen Meller, who was robbed, beaten and run over Friday night when she got lost driving with her mother and two young children in Miami.

The German government Tuesday issued a warning on travel to Florida and the British Foreign Office has urged Britons to take "common-sense precautions when carrying valuables and large amounts of money."

"Although some of the most highly-publicized carjackings have occurred in Florida, this state is ranked at the bottom in a list of the five most populous states in terms of the number of incidents reported," the FDLE report said.

California topped the list with 7,729 reports in 1991 and 1992, according to the FDLE, which used data from an FBI survey last fall. Next came Texas, with 4,074; followed by New York, 2,996; Illinois, 2,573 and Florida, 1,936.

In the Sunshine State, Miami has by far the biggest carjacking problem with an estimated 800 to 1,000 cases last year, according to the FDLE.

The FBI survey last fall found that 19 cities had more than 100 carjackings a year and eight had 500 or more. Miami fell seventh on that second list, behind San Juan, Los Angeles, New York, Chicago, Dallas and Detroit.

"In Miami, there is a significant problem with tourists, usually in clearly marked rental cars, being 'bumped' to set up a robbery," Wednesday's report said.

Tampa also saw a big increase in its number of carjackings last year, but most occurred in drug-infested areas and were attributed to a "summer 'fad' pursued by young criminals," the FDLE said. The numbers have since dropped off.

Since lawmakers only decided last week to define "carjacking" in Florida law as a first-degree felony, statistics on auto thefts that result from a confrontation with the owner are not readily available.

So the FDLE instead looked at reports of robberies that occurred in conjunction with car thefts. The state total in 1992 was 1,148, following 1,218 in 1991; 1,284 in 1990 and 1,169 in 1989.

"It can be concluded that the number of carjackings remains constant, with no appreciable statewide increase in the number of incidents," the FDLE said.

Motion for bond aired

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

Circuit Court Judge O.H. Eaton took under advisement a motion to set bond or move a juvenile charged with murder to the Juvenile Detention Center so he can attend classes.

Special public defender Ian Gliden requested that Benjamin Scott be moved from the John E. Polk Correctional Facility to JDC.

Scott was indicted for first degree murder and attempted robbery in the Nov. 7 death of Mark Edward March.

A similar motion filed on behalf of Terrance Brooks, Scott's co-defendant who is being tried separately, was denied by Judge Alan Dickey.

State Attorney Tom Hastings opposed the motion and will file law memorandum for the judge to consider.

Deaf gunman kills himself, estranged wife, two others

By The Associated Press

MAITLAND, Fla. — A police officer confronting a deaf man who had just fatally shot three people put away his weapon, got down on his knees and hoped the gunman would read his lips.

"(He) put his hands together in a praying position and mouthed 'Please don't do this,'" police spokesman David Robb said of his colleague, David Manuel.

David Badillo, 32, who Wednesday night had just killed his estranged wife, her ex-husband and their roommate, apparently was waiting for the officer to shoot him. But when Manuel held his fire, Badillo turned the gun on himself, firing one fatal round into his chest, Robb said.

"He just seemed like he was very confused about what happened," Manuel said.

He was the first officer to arrive at Maitland Shores Apartments after neighbors reported Badillo, of Orlando, had shot 51-year-old Barbara Ann Badillo; her former husband, Eugene Baggett, 58; and David Richards, 33, with a .44-caliber Magnum handgun, Robb said.

None of the dead could hear or speak, he said.

Badillo was depondent because his wife had left him six weeks ago to return to her former husband, with whom she had an on-again, off-again relationship, Robb said.

"The family has said Barbara has always loved Eugene but they have had trouble living together," Robb said.

When Manuel arrived at the scene around 5 p.m., he saw Badillo leave the apartment, jump into his car and try to back away, but he was blocked by Manuel's patrol car, Robb said.

Badillo got out of the car, held his gun to his head and chest, and started backing away from Manuel as the officer ordered him to drop the weapon, Robb said. A neighbor then called out that Badillo was deaf.

Manuel put away his gun and followed Badillo to the edge of a lake near the apartment complex, where Badillo shot himself.

Brenda Foster, a friend of the family who had screamed to Manuel from her second-story window, said the officer showed great reserve in not shooting Badillo.

"Under normal circumstances, I think they would have blown the guy away," she said.

Manuel said it nearly came to that.

The unending search for an administrator

Longwood's City Administrator, Jim McFellin, has applied for a similar post in Winter Springs. He has only been employed by Longwood since April 30 of last year. McFellin replaced Don Terry in the top city job following Terry's resignation. Terry had taken over the post in Nov. 1990.

McFellin, from Nassau Bay, Texas, was selected from a list of approximately 200 applicants. The list was fine tuned to four by a group of former City Managers and City Administrators headed by former Sanford City Manager Warren E. "Pete" Knowles.

After a thorough background check of the four persons, the City Commission selected McFellin. He was thoroughly interviewed by the commission during a public hearing, and no major difficulties surfaced. As a result, he was hired and began his work with the city in May.

It cannot be said that extensive study was not made prior to accepting McFellin from among the original 200. The commission certainly should have known what type of person it had selected.

Yet within only a few months, controversy started with Mayor Paul Lovestrand and some commission members against McFellin, which caused him to consider looking elsewhere for employment.

Regardless of whether McFellin is selected by Winter Springs, or eventually seeks a job elsewhere, the city will someday find itself faced with the task of selecting a replacement.

Does the city want a "yes-man" to agree with everything that is said, or a person to speak frankly and serve as a check and balance for the government of Longwood?

Before this latest administrator is lost and attempts start to seek another, we urge the citizens demand to know the real reason behind the rapid turn-over.

Easter bunny mentality

We have an eight-foot plump Easter bunny with foot-long ears. Some 30 years ago, in a Sears store in Topeka, Kansas, they announced over the speakers that we were the winners. "Please take it home!" Imagine a staid college professor walking through the crowded store with this huge bunny in his arms. It sat in the passenger side of the front seat during our 60-mile drive back to Emporia, Kan. The family sat in the back seat. Passing cars gazed in astonishment as the bunny rode down the highway.

It has been with us ever since, in Kansas, in Missouri, in Florida. At Easter time it symbolized the season. The remainder of the year it sits quietly in a dark corner and does absolutely nothing. When each of our daughters married, we offered to give it a new home. "No way!" was the reply.

Easter bunnies, jelly eggs, lilies, springtime shopping, too often are the extent of our holiday season. Religious observances and experiences are overshadowed and forgotten. Our thinking is smothered by materialism and secularism. Easter is just another holiday. We lose sight of the essential ideas and values which are important and fundamental to those of both Jewish and Christian faith. The Easter bunny mentality takes over and we sit and do absolutely nothing.

The real symbolism of the season challenges devotees of various religious backgrounds, Jewish, Catholic, Protestant, to aspire to a clearer understanding and deeper commitment to their faith. Passover, Lent, Good Friday, Easter, each point to significant experiences in religious faith — times of suffering and sacrifice, compassion and forgiveness, climax with hope and victory, redemption and renewal. Our religious faith calls for a resurrection of latent talent and dormant capabilities. It is challenged to become deeper and stronger, making a more vital impact upon our personal lives, as well as the work-a-day world in which we live.

The Passover reminds us of God's guiding presence out of bondage into a promised land of freedom and opportunity. The Last Supper and Good Friday point to the Saviour's presence with the believer, and of sacrifice, compassion, and forgiveness. Easter gives promise of hope, of a rebirth of religious faith, of victory over death, of a resurrection and eternal life.

Let us shake off the "Easter bunny mentality" and make this Passover-Easter season one which impels us into a refreshing and revitalized religious experience in the yearning and wistful hearts of those with faith.

Wooing the economic conservatives

For the first time in its long history, the chief strategic problem of the Republican Party is to regain the allegiance of a large number of so-called "economic conservatives" who have strayed from the fold.

Almost from the start, the GOP was the chosen political instrument of the northeastern manufacturing interests that industrialized the country, pushed the railroads across the prairies to the Pacific coast, and made the United States the citadel and exemplar of free enterprise. From time to time economic circumstances or new social problems would capture public attention, and then the Democrats would take over. But from the end of the Civil War until 1992, there was never a time when the Republican Party couldn't count on the support of those for whom low taxes and balanced budgets were the way for the federal government to go.

Unfortunately this bloc, though powerful (constituting, even today, around 40 percent of the electorate), ultimately became insufficient to win a presidential election by itself. In the 85 years following 1832, the only Republican to capture the White House was a nationally popular war hero. Forty percent was what other Republican candidates got, and it just wasn't enough.

The Democratic lock on the presidency was finally broken in the late 1960s and thereafter, when highly unsettling developments in the social arena, from drugs and riots to pornography and the sexual revolution, drove large elements of the Roosevelt coalition (Southerners, blue-collar ethnics and religious fundamentalists) out of the Democratic Party and into the GOP. Suddenly Republican presidential candidates, with the exception of the hapless Gerald Ford, began enjoying majorities not far below 60 percent, and a "Republican lock on the White House" replaced its Democratic predecessor.

In just four years, with a big assist from Ross Perot, George Bush managed to break up this winning Republican combination.

In the 35 years following 1832, the only Republican to capture the White House was a nationally popular war hero.

The liberal strategy was (and still is) to try to alienate "moderate" Republicans, who might be vulnerable to the GOP's economic appeal, from the party's new recruits, who are deeply concerned about social issues. By frightening the former over the latter's allegedly rabid religiosity, the Democrats hope to build an anti-religious coalition.

But that's not where the split developed. Instead, a huge number of Republican voters of the "economic conservative" persuasion, deeply and genuinely concerned about the federal budget deficits, walked out on George Bush and cast their votes for Ross Perot.

Note, please, that they didn't vote for Clinton. His total was barely 43 percent — not far above the 40 percent that the Democratic Party held onto right through the Reagan years. The voters that deserted Bush were plainly under no illusion that the Democrats have truly reformed when it comes to fiscal responsibility. But in voting for Perot they were expressing an exasperated determination to bring America's budget crisis under control.

If the Republican Party wants to rebuild its winning coalition, therefore, its assignment is clear: It must win back the economic conservatives who bolted its ranks in 1992.

Clinton's Last Stand?

Washington, a perpetually pell-mell place, has just plunged into another classic rush to misjudgment.

You can hear all about it from TV's talking heads and read all about it in newspaper editorials — they are all the rage. What they are raging about, today, is President Clinton's rollback, in response to pressure from Western senators, on proposed fee increases for grazing, mining and timber sales on public land. Clinton agreed to drop these fees — which would raise just $1 billion over five years — from his budget. He did it to secure the votes of Western Democratic senators for his comprehensive economic plan.

Washington's smart set rushed to lambaste Clinton for a "cave-in" to greedy special interests (who else?) — and lament that the president showed he can be rolled by any stiff breeze. That became the instant conventional wisdom. "...The President's stated determination not to yield to special interests suddenly seems negotiable," scolded the editorial page of The New York Times.

But wait. Just think what the smart thinkers would be saying if Clinton did nothing and allowed his crucial economic package to die for lack of a few Senate votes. Some would brand Clinton politically naive; others, a political dunce. Both would be right.

Instead, what Clinton did was vow to make his fight on these long overdue subsidy reforms in other ways, at other times Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt will issue an administrative order to increase grazing fees. A separate bill will be drafted to require royalty payments for the mining of silver, gold and ore now taken from our lands free of charge. Timber sales are being reviewed as we speak. All are anachronistic de facto subsidies that ought to be sharply reduced. But they are, after all, small change items that ought not divert us from the big decisions that are really in our national interest.

We've all heard about how the Clinton White House has studied Lyndon Johnson to learn how to deal with Congress. But a senior Clinton adviser concedes he and his colleagues really benefited most by going to school on Jimmy Carter. He taught them what not to do.

Carter began his presidency with a burst of principle: He sent Congress a list of his pet water projects to be scrapped as wasteful examples of pork barrel politics. Then Carter watched in astonishment as the Capitol Hill dam burst and he was engulfed by a wave of congressional resentment that doomed much of his big-ticket legislation.

In the case of the current ridiculously low grazing fees, the non-existent mining royalties, and the below-cost timber sales on public lands, there is broad agreement that something must be done. What the delegation of a dozen senators from Western states argued at the White House in early March was that their region was being singled out to pay the first big price of subsidy reform.

Consider this from Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., who led the delegation to the White House: "Each of these issues will be addressed later in other forums, and I do believe they need to be addressed, but in a way that is fair and balanced. The American West cannot be made to suffer more than other areas of our country."

That gets us to a big-ticket idea that the Clinton White House ought to consider — after the economic plan is enacted. There are pages upon pages of federal subsidies — some direct tax subsidies, others just special spending benefits for one or more industries. In the Progressive Policy Institute's recent book, "Mandate for Change" (which I co-edited), economist Robert J. Shapiro provides lists of federal subsidies and tax breaks ripe for reform and notes that by cutting just half of them, we can save $63 billion over four years.

The Clinton administration should begin a grand review of all of them. Then the time will be right for Clinton to make his grand populist stand. Scrap the subsidies that are unproductive or unwise — and reform or recast the rest to make them fit the 1990s.

Some would brand Clinton politically naive; others, a political dunce. Both would be right.

Give big leagues back to the people

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — In my 39th year as a Baltimore Orioles fan, I finally got to see them play in a spring training game. It was a fine beginning to a season which will end in October, I predict, with the Birds taking the Braves in six.

While at the ballpark, I also thought up a way for Baltimore Mayor Kurt Schmoke to become the governor of Maryland, a way for Maryland Gov. William Donald Schaefer to ensure his canonization and a way to save baseball from the heinous fate it has charted for itself.

Not a bad day's work, especially on vacation. You say you weren't aware the ruination of the National Pastime is at hand? Ah, my friends, consider: A visit to the ballpark now costs a family of four nearly $100; attendance is falling; television revenues will soon be halved; the average player salary is now more than $1 million; the team owners are going to try to save the game by making a tawdry tourney of it; and the Big Buffon is back in the Big Apple.

Just as the Yankees were about to regain respectability, George Steinbrenner returns. Baseball's got troubles, folks.

Let me restate that. The game itself is as perfect as the day God invented it. But the professional version of it is going down the tubes, mainly because the rapacious collection of car dealers, cowboys, pizza makers, magnates and developers who own teams have escalated the salary structure into the stratosphere and now want to pay for it by tempting television with gifts.

They are going to "restructure" a game that is steeped in tradition. By 1995, they announced, they intend to commence interleague play and to split the two leagues into three divisions each. After the regular season, the division leaders and a wild-card team in each league will duke it out through two rounds of playoffs to determine the pennant winner.

It's not quite as ally as the National Basketball League's 16-team playoffs, but it's close.

It's also indecent. Nay, it is sacrilege. So how can the game be saved from these reprobates? That's where Schmoke and Schaefer and other mayors and governors across the land come in. They should buy their teams. Not them personally — their states and cities. This is not a wild and crazy idea. Three years ago, Mario Cuomo proposed that the state and city of New York buy the Yankees. "I suspect that it is eminently financeable," he said. "You could even sell bonds."

Regular readers will recognize this as a notion I have been pushing for years. I truly believe baseball teams are civic institutions that are as important to the cities they represent as monuments and libraries. So why shouldn't the public own them? Float bonds and buy them. You financed and built most of the stadiums the teams play in. So buy the teams, too.

The New York investment banker who owns the Baltimore Orioles is in financial trouble and has to sell the team. You have hinted you want to be the next governor of Maryland, Mayor Schmoke. Organize a municipal purchase of the Orioles — what fan wouldn't buy Bird Bonds — and the state house would be yours.

And you, Gov. Schaefer. If the mayor is reluctant, why not the state? You built Camden Yards. Buy the Birds, and go down in history as the man who made damn sure no lousy tycoon would move the Orioles out of town in the middle of the night, as that scoundrel Robert Iray did with your beloved Baltimore Colts.

Two murder suspects extradited

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Two men facing possible murder charges in separate incidents will appear in court this afternoon after being extradited to Seminole County.

San Francisco Goungo and Robert Ormiston were both arrested and jailed at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility about 11 p.m. Wednesday night.

Sheriff's Department spokesman George Proechel said Ormiston, wanted in connection with the death of his wife, Becky, in Winter Springs waived extradition and was picked up in Pennsylvania. Goungo was picked up in New York. The suspects were returned to Florida by airplane.

A New York man will appear in court today at 1:30 p.m. on a charge he shot his ex-wife in the Lake Mary Shopping Centre parking lot. San Francisco Goungo was flown to Seminole County after an extradition hearing in Rochester, N.Y. He was extradited on a governor's warrant.

Earlier Wednesday, Circuit

Court Judge O.H. Eaton signed an order protecting the suspect against the possibility of self-incrimination while being transported to Seminole County.

Assistant Public Defender Gary Andersen filed the motion for protection on behalf of San Francisco Goungo. Goungo was returned to Florida from Rochester to face the murder charge.

According to the judge's order, officers transporting the suspect are not to solicit information about the case. If the defendant initiates a conversation, however, the escort officers, may listen. Assistant state attorney Tom Hastings said the state did not object to the order.

Andersen has requested that Goungo not be asked about the case while he is being transported and away from legal counsel. Further, he requested that the 42-year-old suspect not be questioned or placed in a line-up or other form of identification situation until Goungo could consult with the attorney.

Goungo will be charged in the shooting death of his ex-wife, Matilda Ferrer in early February.

Women

"The Navy," Ford said. "They ought to go into combat. Why not? They can do anything that a man can do, why not go into combat? They have every right."

She said, however, that women should worry more about getting equal pay than about getting into battle.

Retired Chief Warrant Officer Horace Paul of Sanford commended women going into any kind of military service. The jobs they have done thus far could have been held by Civil Service people just as adequately.

"However, we have women in service now," he added, "so they may as well be given the same right to be involved in combat as the men. If the service is to be a real equal opportunity operation, they should be given their rights to fly fighters, man ships, work on gun crews, and become involved in other work."

"The Navy will have to make some allowances however," Paul said. "Ships are going to require separate sleeping quarters, and the way men have been operating will also need some refining and changing."

Tammy Austin said she believed that women in combat should not pose any special problems for the Navy.

"Why should it?" she asked. "If it is their choice to enter the military they should be allowed to go into combat too."

Theresa King said that women are well-suited to handle the horrors of battle and should be allowed to fight alongside their male counterparts.

"Women can handle the blood and guts of battle," she said. "If they can have children, they can do anything."

Her sister Corrine said she sees no difference in what women and men are capable of doing so she could find no excuse to keep women from battle.

"Women can do all the same things as men. They should be allowed to fight if they want to," she said.

Retired Navy Captain Gib Blake, also of Sanford said, "We should let them (women) go ahead and get involved. Give 'em a chance." He continued, "The problem in a war is that people get killed in combat situations, and now it will be women as well as men."

Blake added, "A lot of women really want to become involved. I'm all in favor of that. They should be given the chance. But some are in the service either because they can't find a job or they are looking for a husband. These are the kind that will give the others a bad name when it comes to women serving in combat."

Deborah Lobeinger said that women who want to do combat should do so.

"A woman has the right to do whatever she wants to," she said. "If that (combat) is what a woman wants to do, it's her right."

Some women believe that while the issue may be an important one, women and men still have far too many issues to resolve to waste their time on the question of women in battle.

"There are so many more important things," said Susan Kish. "I can see both sides of this issue and I haven't made a definite decision. I have too many other things that I'm concerned about."

Nicole Daubrose thinks it's fine for women to go into combat as long as she isn't asked to join them.

"It's good as far as women having equal rights," she said. "I think a woman should have equal rights, but personally, I wouldn't do it."

She noted that those women who chose a military career should be prepared to go into battle. Those who do not want to participate in combat should find another career.

Vikki Reed agreed. "I think that a woman who wants to fight should be able to go," she said. "They should have that choice."

Kim Schaeffer believed that women are neither emotionally or physically equipped for the rigors of battle.

"I don't think women can handle it," she said. "I think physically it would be too much and the stress would be more than they could handle."

Former Navy enlisted man Bob Sawyer of Lake Mary said he doesn't believe women should go into battle. "There are many roles they can play to support the troops," he said. "We had a Navy women's flying group when I was at the Sanford Naval Air Station, and they did a lot in helping transport planes as well as other needs. This is one way they could help."

"But when you get into the thick of battle," he added, "things would be very difficult, especially in living quarters or on board ships."

"The world is changing," Sawyer said, "and certainly women should not be held back, but there are certain instances such as this when division must be maintained."

Kathy Hoover said that she couldn't speak for other women, but believed women were incapable of withstanding battle.

"It's just not a woman's place," she said. "I don't think it would be a good idea."

Tanya Starcevic, who was visiting her daughter and son-in-law, and dining with her 3-year-old granddaughter Taylor Anderson, said that she believes women do not belong in combat.

"Maybe it's my age," she said. "I don't think anyone should have to go into combat, especially women. I hope she (Taylor) never has to go into battle."

of women in combat jobs, as well as the ramifications of such a decision.

Proponents of the change argue that quick action is necessary because Air Force and Navy budget restrictions could do away with certain jobs by Oct. 1. The jobs are in training squadrons where women fly high-performance combat aircraft.

"I think we need to do something on it, anyway," the secretary said, when asked about the date. "We're already thinking of things that would happen before Oct. 1."

He did not say what actions he might take.

As a congressman, the secretary voted to repeal the ban on women in combat aviation.

As secretary of defense, he could issue a directive instructing all the services to open additional combat-designated jobs to women, or he could call for some test programs to be run. One option he does not favor is allowing a commission to study the issue, which was the direction chosen by his predecessor, Dick Cheney.

Aspin spoke in his typically lively fashion on a number of issues throughout the session, showing much more color in his face than he did last month after he'd had a pacemaker implanted.

Aspin's schedule has remained hectic, as he has had to juggle the delivery of his $283.4 billion fiscal 1994 budget to Capitol Hill with such diverse problems as base closures and enforcing a no-fly zone over Bosnia.

Aspin said he was pleased with the reception his budget got from Capitol Hill, and that he was aware of concerns about long-term directions for possible budget cuts.

"Ninety-four got a good reception. The question is the five-year plan," he said, referring to the fact that no long-term outline for defense spending over the coming five years was submitted with the 1994 budget, given the new administration's short tenure.

Aspin has begun a "bottom-up review" of major defense programs in order to begin work on that five-year outline, and had told members of Congress in recent testimony that one or more long-term plans for developing new aircraft for the various services may have to be dropped because of pressure for spending cutbacks.

Asked about Russian President Boris Yeltsin's announcement at the Vancouver summit that U.S.-Russian discussions would be held on avoiding submarine collisions, Aspin said such talks would be welcome.

"We look forward" to talking with the Russians on the matter, the secretary said.

Attorney general challenges southern states water rates

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Seminole County residents in areas including Sanlando, Lake Brantley, Central Florida

may be getting a break on their utility bills after all.

Utility regulators "bushwhacked" ratepayers by imposing uniform rates on more than 101,000 water and sewer customers, the attorney general contends in a challenge to the rates.

The Public Service Commission did not give customers adequate notice before it adopted the rates for 127 utility systems operated by Southern States Utilities Inc. in 20 counties, opponents said.

"By adopting this controversial, radical and, arguably, illegal departure from the traditional and acceptable norms of water and sewer rate regulation ... the PSC has effectively bushwhacked the customers of Southern States Utilities," said an appeal filed Tuesday by Assistant Attorney General Mike Twomey on behalf of Citrus County.

Attorney General Bob Butterworth's office is representing Citrus County in seeking to overturn statewide rates approved by the PSC in February. The PSC said the uniform rates would prevent "rate shock" that some customers would experience if system-by-system rates regulators also said the new rates would help balance uneven rates among different systems, reduce the company's administrative expenses and costs of conducting individual rate cases for every system and lead to improved water conservation efforts.

"The wide disparity of rates calculated on a stand-alone basis, coupled with the above cited benefits of uniform, statewide rates, outweighs the benefits of the traditional approach of setting rates," commissioners Tom Beard and Susan Clark said in approving a $6.6 million rate increase.

In their order, Beard and Clark said they had the ability to approve statewide water and sewer rates because the PSC already adopted countywide rates for some utilities and routinely approves statewide rates for telephone and electric companies.

Twomey said the PSC lacked the authority to impose uniform rates and has illegally required customers in one system to subsidize those using other systems. He said only the state Legislature and the governor could approve such a rate plan.

"If you live in Ocala, the expenses for putting chlorine in water or cleaning a sewer tank in not necessary to providing your water or sewer service," Twomey said.

Bud Hansen, a retired engineer and homeowner in Sugarmill Woods near Homosassa Springs, said the uniform rates require water and sewer customers in that subdivision of 4,500 residents to pay an average of $300 a year more to subsidize other utility systems in weaker financial shape.

Hansen said the PSC did not propose statewide rates until after it had completed its public hearings into the rate case last year. The homeowners association for Sugarmill Woods also is appealing the ruling.

When it filed its rate request last year, Southern States proposed rates based on a system-by-system review. It did not oppose the uniform rates adopted by the PSC and believes they "are the proper direction for the state of Florida because water is a statewide resource," said Ida Roberts, a spokeswoman at company headquarters in Apopka.

was completed in Clott's truck, CCIB and DEA agents moved in to arrest him, said Byron. Clott rammed the agent's car head-on, he said.

Although Clott's public defender stated in federal court his client didn't intend to harm the agents, Byron said the agents had mounted a flashing blue light on their car which he said clearly indicated it was a police vehicle.

Byron said the informant also bumped his head on the truck windshield, knocking him unconscious. When he came to, Clott was stuffing the LSD in his pockets, said Byron. However, the drug had been tagged with a fluorescent dye that was found on Clott's hands and pants, said Clott.

Agents also raided Clott's Ruskin Street residence, arresting six people. Resident William Bard Kuehne, 25, was arrested on charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. Gredy Roy Johnson, 18, 91 North Bombay Ave., Winter Springs, was arrested on the same charges as Kuehne.

Jonathan Daniel Rowland, 19, 265 Sharon Court, Oviedo, was held on charges of possession of more than 20 grams of marijuana, and possession of marijuana with intent to distribute it within 1,000 feet of a school. Sean Lee Logsdon, 22, Harold, Ill.

was held on a charge of constructive possession of marijuana.

Donald Lee Coyle, 18, Batesville, Miss., was held on two warrants charging him with failure to appear in court to answer to drunken driving and driving with a suspended license.

DEA agent Gary Worth testified in federal court yesterday Clott had told him he had previously distributed LSD in 4,000-tab lots. Worth testified Clott had told him he and others at the Ruskin Street home were members of the "Rainbow People," a group of Sixties-styled "hippies" who gather annually in Ocala National Forest.

established under an agreement with John Mahoney Construction, the first contractor. Mahoney eventually ceased operations this past June, and the contract was turned over to another firm which only began work in January of this year.

"The widening isn't the only thing that is going on however," Holland explained. "We have an irrigation project and landscape project still to be done."

With the estimated completion around mid-May, Holland expects the irrigation project, which will use reclaimed water, to be finished within five weeks from substantial completion of the widening work.

"The landscaping will be done within possibly 60 days after the widening is substantially finished," he added.

During the meeting, Holland displayed the landscape architects' plans for the work that remains along the boulevard, including materials which will be used, and the intersection enhancement, which is expected to include the use of brick-like materials at intersections possibly at Lake Emma Road, Rinehart Road and Country Club Road.

"From city hall you can see how well the work on the widening project is going," Holland commented. "People are beginning to tell me what a beautiful roadway this is going to be once everything is completed, and I certainly agree with them."

Arrests

A fourth person, whom police identified as Corey Johnson, has not been apprehended at this time.

According to the arrest reports, Parker was the driver of the vehicle owned by Andreas Jones, during the robbery. The report says, "Parker waited in the car while two co-defendants, Johnson and Miller went in the store, and committed the robbery."

Jones' arrest report states that he "...confessed to the incident," but had remained in the car while Corey Johnson and Vernon Miller went into the store.

During a search of Jones' vehicle, police said they found a bag containing "two pieces of brown paper with purple stripes and $50 on them, with the name Winn Dixie and 1723 W. Airport Blvd. on them."

They said Jones later admitted the men went back to the apartment on Florida Avenue, and divided up the money. He reportedly told officers he got $2,500 or $2,600 dollars from the robbery.

Parker's arrest report said he told police he had received $1,000, which he used to get some dental work (gold caps) done on his teeth.

Miller reportedly told police he had received $6,000 of the loot.

In all, police had determined the amount taken in the robbery was in excess of $10,000. None of it had been recovered as of this morning.

The arrest report said Jones stated the group had discussed the robbery before hand, and all had decided to go through with it.

Each of the three men arrested yesterday afternoon has been charged with grand theft, and armed robbery with a firearm.

The March 19 armed robbery at Popeyes Restaurant resulted in two arrests by Sanford police yesterday.

Charged with armed robbery and grand theft were Daniel Lee Collins, 19, of 2507 Georgia Ave., and Anthony Thomas Duval, Jr., of 2531 Georgia Avenue.

An estimated $3,000 in cash was reportedly taken by the two men, one of which was reportedly armed and wearing a ski mask.

At the time of the robbery, the restaurant manager was said to have exited the building carrying a brown brief case, on his way to make a bank deposit.

Police indicated the two arrests were the result of information obtained from an unidentified source regarding three men seen carrying a brown brief case and bragging about the robbery.

The third person mentioned by the informant was not identified.

Duval has been charged with armed robbery, grand theft, and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony.

Collins has been charged with armed robbery, grand theft, use of a firearm in the commission of a felony, and possession of a firearm by a convicted felon.

All of the men arrested were taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Students improving at math but still troubled by basics

By KIM I. DOLLS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — U.S. students are getting better at math, but four out of 10 still cannot handle basic math at their grade levels, said a federal report released today. The 1992 "Mathematics Report Card for the Nation and the States" found student performance in math has improved nationally and in some states, but cautioned that "a considerable challenge remains."

The study compared student performance in 1992 and 1990 in grades four, eight and 12 in 44 states, territories and the District of Columbia. It found that, on a scale of 0 to 500, scores increased on average nationally from 262 to 266 between 1990 and 1992.

However, only six students in 10 were able to meet the basic standards for understanding math at their grade level, the study found.

Nationally, 25 percent or fewer were at the "proficient level" or beyond — where students exhibit solid academic performance. And only 2 percent to 4 percent of all students in the three grades showed superior mathematical performance, the report said.

Education Secretary Richard W. Riley said the report provides "early evidence that challenging curriculum, standards and assessments can work to improve student performance."

However, he added in a statement, the report "does not reveal a magic potion to stir into the education mix and everything is OK."

Riley called on schools, school districts and states to redesign their programs to help all students achieve a nationwide, voluntary system of educational standards.

These report cards, also known as National Assessments of Educational Progress, are issued periodically in reading, mathematics, science, writing and other fields by the Education Department.

"The proficient level is the one we are really shooting for," said Mary R. Blanton, a member of... the National Assessment Governing Board, which oversees the study. "It represents competency over challenging subject matter and is the level we would like all American students to reach."

The study found that 18 states, territories and the District of Columbia demonstrated increased average mathematics proficiency between 1990 and 1992 in the eighth grade — the only grade for which state-level assessments were done in both years. They were: Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, the District of Columbia, Hawaii, Idaho, Iowa, Kentucky, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, Texas, Wyoming, Guam and the Virgin Islands.

No state showed a significant decline. Among the report's other findings:

• Boys did better in math than girls in grade 12, although gender differences in performance were not large overall.

• The Southeast trailed other sections of the country at all three grade levels.

• Asian-Pacific islander and white students had higher average math proficiency than black students, with American Indian and Hispanic students falling somewhere in between.

• Only 6 percent of high school seniors and 1 percent of eighth graders demonstrated consistent success in geometry, algebra and basic mathematical functions.

The highest average math proficiency in both grades four and eight was found in Maine, Iowa, New Hampshire, Wisconsin, North Dakota and Minnesota. The lowest proficiency in those grades was measured in the District of Columbia, Guam, Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi.

The study assessed nearly 350,000 fourth-, eighth- and 12th-grade students attending approximately 10,000 schools. Nationally representative samples of students attending both public and private schools were tested at grades four, eight and 12.

In addition, representative samples of fourth- and eighth-graders were assessed in 44 jurisdictions.

Jackson won't vie for NAACP job

By SONYA ROSS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Jesse Jackson says he dropped out of the race for the NAACP's top post because of an attempt to weaken the job's authority, not because he was afraid he wouldn't be chosen.

Jackson withdrew his name from consideration Wednesday, saying he didn't feel comfortable with a proposal that would have required him to report to a board of directors that had greater control over the group's day-to-day functions.

In a five-page letter to board Chairman William Gibson, Jackson said that when he allowed his name to be submitted, "I made clear that I would not participate in a fratricidal political battle" for power.

Jackson said he withdrew after he "learned of and had a chance to reflect" on the proposed change, but his letter suggests he knew about it from the start.

Jackson said during his earlier discussions with Gibson, the board chairman "indicated... that there were some constitutional changes or structural adjustments you thought had to be made," Jackson said. "The idea... is a substantial shift from the current constitution."

"I felt, then and now, that on the matter of constitutional changes, I would err on the side of conservatism because constitutional changes have such long-lasting effects."

A message left for Gibson at his Greenville, S.C., office was not returned. He has not commented publicly on the search since January.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the nation's oldest civil rights organization, is a powerful group, with about 500,000 members.

Jackson's withdrawal came amid rumors in NAACP circles that many chapters — as well as some black Americans who look to the organization for leadership — objected to Jackson's candidacy.

Speculation about a Jackson pullout intensified last month after a search committee failed to narrow the field of four candidates despite heavy lobbying by Jackson supporters.

The Rev. Ben Chavis, also considered a leading candidate for the job, said Jackson's comments made it appear that there was something wrong with the NAACP's approach.

"I have complete confidence in the integrity of the board," Chavis said. "But if one of the leading candidates views their candidacy as in trouble, and they start to criticize the organization, it verges on the threshold of ambitious dishonesty."

The remaining three candidates were Chavis; Jewell Jackson McCabe, founder of the National Coalition of 100 Black Women; and Earl Shihnoher, NAACP Southeastern regional director.

Howard University political scientist Ron Walters, an adviser to Jackson's 1988 presidential campaign, said Jackson's departure "really says more about the NAACP than it does about Rev. Jackson."

"Anyone would have to consider whether they would run an organization as big as the NAACP under those conditions," Walters said. "It's sad. Not sad for Jackson, but for all the rest of us."

Walters said the board ultimately will suffer if it pushes through the job changes.

"The public evaluation of the leadership attempting to change the rules of the game in the middle of it is not going to sit very well," he said.

The NAACP's 64-member board is to vote Friday in Atlanta. The new executive director will succeed Benjamin Hooks, who will retire at the end of the month.

Jackson said he will not attend the Friday meeting.

Cuomo says no thanks again to Washington over high court job

By MARC HUMBERT
Associated Press Writer

ALBANY, N.Y. — He twice counted himself out of the race for president. Now he's removed himself from consideration for the nation's highest court. Just what does Mario Cuomo want?

Apparently a fourth term as governor of New York, to match Nelson Rockefeller's record.

"This is a simple thing. It's a commitment I feel toward the state," Cuomo said Wednesday after informing President Clinton by letter that he didn't want to be considered for the Supreme Court seat that will open up when Justice Byron White retires this summer.

In the letter, Cuomo said he wanted to remain governor to help New York's economic recovery and to give political support to Clinton's "good work."

Cuomo, 60, kept people guessing through much of the early stages of the 1988 and the 1992 presidential campaigns, pondering the pros and cons so publicly that he gained the nickname "Hamlet on the Hudson." He eventually begged off both races.

There was no dithering this time, Cuomo said he told Clinton he wasn't interested April 1, when the president called him to discuss the vacancy. Cuomo has been saying for months that he's preparing to run for a fourth four-year term next year. He's been governor the past 10 years.

Only Rockefeller, a Republican, has been elected to four terms as governor of New York. He served from 1959 until late 1973, when he resigned to head a national commission. He was later appointed vice president.

"He sees the opportunity to set a record," said Alan Chartock, a political commentator and State University of New York political science professor who is close to Cuomo.

"Obviously, he loves being governor," said William Cunningham, a veteran New York Democratic political consultant who has worked on a number of Cuomo campaigns. "Maybe he's just not ready to go into the cloistered life of the Supreme Court."

He's as much as said so himself, likening the Supreme Court job in a recent interview to both "heaven" and being "entombed."

He also likes the limelight that comes with being governor, and the ability to have an immediate impact: "The feeling when you get up in the morning that there are an infinite number of things you can do to make life better for someone."

Cuomo has been considered a contender for the Supreme Court since Clinton singled him out last year as a "superb" potential candidate. He had emerged as the liberal wing's sentimental choice since White's announcement in March, though the Clinton inner circle never tipped its hand about Cuomo's chances.

Justices Harry Blackmun and John Paul Stevens could also retire soon. Cuomo refused to rule out the possibility he would consider a future opening.

"I haven't thought beyond this letter or this conversation," he told The New York Times.

Among the candidates being mentioned by Clinton administration officials to fill the latest opening are Judith Kaye, chief judge of New York's highest state court; Judge Patricia Wald of the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington; and Judge Richard Arnold of Little Rock, who sits on the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Arnold is an old friend of Clinton's.

White House officials said Clinton may be trying to make history with his first choice to the Supreme Court. That could help the chances of Amalya Kearse, a New York federal judge who is black.

Jose Cabranes, a federal judge from New Haven, Conn., is another name that is being bandied about. He could become the first Hispanic on the court.

Aides have said Clinton's decision is at least a month away.

SCC bats come alive in M-FC win over Lake City

From Staff Reports

Demy Beamon, a member of Seminole High School's state championship baseball team last year, had three singles and a run scored Wednesday in Seminole Community College's 15-8 win over Lake City Community College.

LAKE CITY — Different day, same result.

Seminole Community College, trying to qualify for the state baseball tournament for the first time since the late 1980s, won its fifth consecutive M-FC Florida Conference game Wednesday, outslugging Lake City 15-8.

The victory puts the SCC Raiders (20-14 overall, 11-6 in the conference) in a tie for second with Lake City (30-14 overall, 11-6 in the M-FC) behind Florida Community College at Jacksonville (13-4 in the conference).

Both the first and second-place teams advance to the state tournament.

Wednesday's decision also gives SCC a win in the four-game season series with Lake City. So far, the Raiders have won all three games with Lake City with the fourth contest scheduled for Tuesday, April 20, in Lake City.

"They're fired up," said SCC coach Jack Pantellas in a telephone interview Wednesday night from Gainesville, where the Raiders are to play Santa Fe Community College this afternoon at 3 p.m. "I'm real proud of them. They're hanging in there. They're doing real well and playing for each other."

Pantellas estimated that the Raiders haven't advanced to the state tournament since the 1988 season.

A day after having to scrap two runs in a 2-1 12-inning win over St. John's River Community College, the Raiders collected 22 hits against Lake City starting pitcher Greg Granger and a pair of relief pitchers.

Danny Boxbaum gave Lake City a 2-0 lead with a two-run home run in the bottom of the first inning. Oviedo graduate B.J. Calapa got the two runs back with a two-run home run of his own in the third inning, scoring Isaac Cruz.

Suddenly, in the sixth inning, what had been a pitchers' duel escalated into a slugfest as the Raiders struck for five runs and Lake City countered with two in the bottom half of the inning.

Randy Hager opened the SCC sixth with a single. An out later, Johnny Goodrich bunted for base hit. Seminole High School graduate

Late eruptions boost Orioles, Cardinals

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — All of a sudden, things got ugly.

Both the Kiwanis Club Orioles and the Knights of Columbus Cardinals of the Sanford Recreation Babe Ruth Baseball League turned close games into routs Wednesday night, both teams eventually winning games stopped by the 10-run rule.

At Zinn Beck Field, the Cardinals exploded for nine runs in the bottom of the sixth to beat the Cubs 12-0. Meanwhile, at Sanford Memorial Stadium, the Orioles used an eight-run fourth inning to put away the R.E. Templeton Co. Inc. Blue Jays 12-2.

The victories, the Cardinals and Orioles remain undefeated at 3-0. They are trailed in the standings by the Korg USA Expos and Moose Lodge Pirates (both 1-1 with a suspended game to be completed); the Cubs, Blue Jays, and Rotary Club Royals (all 1-2); and the Woodmen of the World A's (0-3).

All eight teams will play this Saturday. At Zinn Beck Field, the R.E. Templeton Co. Inc. Blue Jays take on the Cubs at 9 a.m. before the Kiwanis Club Orioles and Korg USA Expos tangle at 11 a.m.

In the 9 a.m. game Saturday at Sanford Memorial Stadium, the Woodmen of the World A's play the Moose Lodge Pirates while the Rotary Club Royals battle the Knights of Columbus Cardinals at 11 a.m.

Terrell Jackson tossed a no-hitter for the Cardinals Wednesday night, striking out 10 and walking five. The Cubs loaded the bases on three walks in the third inning, had a runner reach third base in both the fourth and fifth innings, and had a runner on second base in the sixth but couldn't push across a run.

Matching Jackson almost pitch for pitch was Cubs pitcher B.J. Clupper, who gave up just three runs on three hits through five innings, striking out eight and walking five.

But Clupper tired in the sixth, hitting the first batter he faced in the inning and walking the next four. In the inning, the Cardinals used five hits, the five walks and the hit batter to score nine runs.

Lloyd Dixon led the Cardinals with two doubles and two runs scored. Cornell Daniels doubled, singled, and scored two runs. Donnie Hinson singled twice and scored twice. Jackson doubled and scored a run. Danny Harrison had a single and a run scored.

Scoring one run each were Richard Badger, Wesley Winkle, Charlie McClain, and Walter Gaines.

For the Cubs, Nathan Fakess drew a pair of walks and stole three bases. Clupper reached base twice on Cardinal errors and also stole three bases.

At Sanford Memorial Stadium, the Orioles broke a 1-1 tie with three runs in the bottom of the third, then put the game on ice with an eight-run explosion in the fourth inning.

Jason Flannagan highlighted the Orioles' 10-hit effort with a double, two singles, two runs, and two RBI. Albert Harris contributed a double, two runs scored, and two RBI. James Ripley had two singles, a run scored, and an RBI.

Joseph Knight chipped in with a single, one run, and two RBI. Lorenzo Dixon added a single, run, and RBI. Dektrick Quinn and Major Fisher each hit a single and scored a run. Shawn Tullison scored two runs. Bruce Carter scored a run.

For the Blue Jays, Stephen Sperry doubled and scored a run. Lance Henderson and Lance Ruldolph each had a single and an RBI. Fablan McKenny hit a single. Richard Reddicks scored a run.

O'Neal's strong finish lifts Magic over Hornets

Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — In a much anticipated rematch, Shaquille O'Neal won out over Alonzo Mourning with a final-round TKO.

O'Neal broke open a deadlocked duel with Mourning, not to mention a close game, by outscoring his fellow rookie 8-0 in the fourth period as the Orlando Magic beat the Charlotte Hornets 109-96 Wednesday night.

Orlando, with a 35-37 record, remained 1½ games out of the No. 8 playoff spot in the Eastern Conference, which is shared by Charlotte and Indiana, both at 37-36. Indiana drew into a tie with a 113-105 win over Minnesota Wednesday.

"The goal for this team is to make the playoffs," O'Neal said. "We ran a lot of plays to get me the ball in the fourth quarter and when I got doubled teamed I threw it back out."

"It's not me against Alonzo. I don't have any different attitude against him. I have the same approach to him as I do against Patrick Ewing or anybody else."

"I like the matchup when we win," Orlando coach Matt Guokas said. "This is only the second time they have faced each other this year. We never focus on individual matchups. It's got to be a team game."

"But," Guokas added, "these two guys will be the story of the league for many years to come."

Entering the fourth quarter, O'Neal and Mourning each had 21 points. Thanks to some superior reserve play, the Magic led 84-75. To that point, Orlando's reserves had outscored the Hornets' bench 34-16. They went on to outscore Charlotte's bench 46-24.

After the Hornets got within 84-79 early in the fourth quarter, the Magic pulled out to a 94-79 advantage with 7:54 left. O'Neal scored five during the spurt.

O'Neal made 12 of 21 shots and added 10 rebounds. Mourning was five of 12 from the field and 11 of 11 from the free throw line. He had eight rebounds.

Mourning fouled out with 3:10 remaining and the Hornets trailing 103-88.

"Our offense wasn't in sync," Charlotte coach Allan Bristow said. "Shaq had a great game. It was Shaq that set the tone for it all. When they had to have the buckets, he was the one they turned to."

Six Orlando players scored in double figures, including Donal Royal and Jeff Turner with 14 points apiece. Johnny Newman had 18 points for the Hornets.

Orlando led 33-27 after one quarter. Seven of the eight Magic players who played in the period scored, with O'Neal getting eight.

After the Hornets got within 49-45, Dennis Scott and Anthony Bowie combined to hit three 3-pointers in the final two minutes to put the Magic ahead 58-47 at the half. O'Neal held Mourning scoreless in the second quarter while scoring nine.

Author, teacher reviews books for reading group

SANFORD — Professor Shirley Brewer, an English instructor at Seminole Community College, was the guest speaker at the April meeting of Epsilon Sigma Omicron Chapter, a reading society of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs.

Brewer is a published author who was introduced by Charlotte Smith. Born in Shanghai, China, she is a military brat and graduate of Queen Margaret's School for Girls in Duncan, B.C. Canada. She received her BA and MA degrees from the University of Central Florida and has taught English at SCC since 1984 where she is judge for Open Doors, a short fiction contest.

Married to Charles Brewer, the couple make their home in Sanford and are the parents of four children.

Brewer is the author of "Thistledown," a book of poetry recently published which is on the market now. It consists of selected poems reflecting the author's childhood, school years, friendships and maturity. The book is written in four parts in rich sensual language and is illustrated by a Chinese friend.

Among Brewer's other books are: Age of Innocence, Through the Green Years, Portraits, Meanderings and Daisies.

Brewer is currently working on her autobiography and is planning a holiday to Europe this summer.

According to hostess, Libby Prevatt, "Professor Brewer would certainly get our badge of excellence. She is a talented lady who paints a beautiful picture that locks in the emotions plus she warms the heart and soul as the go Jen Florida sunshine warms the skin."

The meeting was held at the Prevatt home in Geneva. Co-hostesses with Prevatt were Fran Mitchell and Jean Williams.

Shirley Brewer

Vida Smith, chairman of the local chapter, presided over the business session.

Come on and join the 'Hoe Down'

Dad's form of discipline is wrong

DEAR ABBY: I am a single father of a 14-year-old son. (His mother and I are divorced.)

Last week, when he was with me, he called me a very nasty name, and I slapped him across the cheek. Then he called me another nasty name, so I slapped him again.

Following that, I telephoned his mother and asked for some time out, so she came and took him for the weekend. This is where my problem began. It seems she informed the Child Protective Services, who interviewed me twice and ended up taking away my custody for six months, during which time I have to seek parental-guidance counseling.

Abby, in his 14 years, I have struck my son only four times. I am not abusive, and I don't believe my actions were inappropriate considering the filthy names he called me.

If I am wrong, please tell me. I love my son and miss him tremendously.

DEAR SAD DAD: You were

ADVICE

wrong to have struck the boy in the face. Hitting a child is a poor substitute for talking things out. A slap in the face is the ultimate humiliation.

DEAR ABBY: I need an answer as soon as possible. I just found out that my 16-year-old daughter is having a sexual relationship with her boyfriend. He is 17 and they have been going steady since she was 14.

After the initial shock, we talked about birth control with pills and condoms. I am not real happy about it, but I didn't know what else to do. Her boyfriend seems like a decent kid. They met at church.

My question is, should I tell her father? I don't know how he will handle it if I tell him. I'm so afraid he will think she's a tramp and will lose all respect for her. But if I don't tell him, I will feel sneaky. I'm confused, Abby. Please help me.

DEAR MOM: Many a mom has had to wrestle with that problem. I advise you not to tell your husband without your daughter's permission.

DEAR ABBY: I am expecting my first baby next month, and I have been told by my husband's grandmother, and a new neighbor lady, that I should get rid of the cat my husband and I have had since we were married four years ago.

They both say that cats have been known to jump into a baby's crib and suck the breath out of the baby — or lie on top of the infant's face and smother it. The neighbor lady said that cats are naturally very territorial and jealous, and I should take no chances.

Will you please ask your animal expert if this is true? I need to know.

EXPECTING IN YUMA, ARIZ.

Is there a cure for chronic fatigue?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Several doctors have told me I have chronic fatigue syndrome. All the information I've read says there is no medicine and no cure, yet I heard on television that a doctor in New Mexico has prescribed medicine that cures the condition. I'm 73 years old and need a cure now! I can't wait for a new medicine to be approved before it appears on the market. Any suggestions?

DEAR READER: Chronic fatigue syndrome is a challenging and complex medical disorder, marked by a constellation of symptoms that include exhaustion, recurring sore throat and swollen glands, loss of appetite, aching muscles and fever, to mention a few. Some cases may be related to hidden infection or other underlying diseases, but in most instances no cause can be identified.

Although there is no cure, treatment is available. For example, anti-depressants often relieve the depression that accompanies chronic fatigue syndrome; anti-inflammatory drugs help to reduce the discomfort and aching. There is no single medicine in general use to treat the syndrome, despite what you may have seen on television.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been told that rosacea is caused by dilation of capillaries. What causes the dilation, and is there an effective treatment?

DEAR READER: Saying that rosacea is caused by capillary dilation is like saying that the tire is flat because it doesn't have any air in it. The statement is true but self-evident. Rosacea is a chronic inflammatory disorder affecting the skin of the face, especially, around the nose. The cause is unknown. It is sometimes a consequence of heavy drinking. The condition is usually treated with antibiotics, notably tetracycline or, in more advanced cases, with Accutane. This skin disease is common but does not constitute a health hazard.

To give you more information about two other skin diseases, I am sending you a free copy of

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

What do you make of this verse? "If you're anxious for to shine in the high aesthetic line as a man of culture rare, you must play your honors high with extremely special care and a confident light air."

The first half is a lyric by William Schwenck Gilbert for "Patience," the comic opera he wrote with Arthur Seymour Sullivan. I added the second half for "The Bridge Players' Boogie," my as yet unpublished rock opera.

The fate of some contracts depends upon the timing of the play of a critical honor, as in today's deal.

North-South had a normal auction to three no-trump. However, West found declarer's potential Achilles' heel with the diamond-queen lead. How should the play have proceeded?

South had eight top tricks: three spades, three hearts and two diamonds. The ninth trick had to come from the clubs. However, as South had to lose the lead twice in establishing that suit, the tempo - or timing - was with the defenders, as long as they used it to best advantage.

After winning trick one with the diamond king, declarer crossed to the dummy in a major and played a low club.

The critical moment had arrived. But East knew an entry-saving play when he saw one. He rose a foot or so in his chair and put the club king onto the table. When he won the trick, East returned his second diamond, establishing his partner's suit while West still had the club ace as an entry.

If East played second hand low, three no-trump could no longer be defeated. Would you have shined with a high aesthetic play?

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Ouel
YOUR BIRTHDAY
April 9, 1993

In the year ahead, it looks like you will be taking on additional duties and responsibilities. However, this shouldn't bother you, because your focus will be on the personal benefits that can be derived from your work.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You are not apt to be intimidated by difficult developments today and you'll handle them competently. However, something that should be fun could get you uptight. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for Aries' Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your mate's point of view today could be a bit on the somber side, and where you see positives, he or she may see only negatives. It will be up to you to brighten the perspective.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be grateful for the good that comes your way today, even if you innately feel you're deserving of much more. Keep your expectations within reasonable bounds.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Guard against inclinations today that tempt you to speculate within areas where you're not familiar. This is not a good day to gamble on the unknown.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll have compassionate feelings for others today, but you might not know how to express them properly. Your behavior could evoke a negative response.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Do not expect more for co-workers today than you're prepared to do yourself. All eyes will be on you to set the example and if it is a poor one, you'll have only yourself to blame.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be sharing with the deserving today, but also be careful you're not jockeyed into an awkward position by a manipulator who asks for things to which he or she is not entitled.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Putting forth maximum effort is an admirable quality, but today you could be so determined to achieve your objective that you'll do everything the hard way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Usually you are a rather optimistic person, but today you might step out of character and be more of a defeatist than an adventurer. Unfortunately, this is not a productive role.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Social problems cannot be resolved today if you pretend they do not exist. Instead of burying them in the sand, bring them to the surface for solutions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Individuals who cannot help you with your present objectives should not be involved in your endeavors today. Their contribution and input could stymie your efforts.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Companions will be more inclined to accept your political or philosophical concepts today if they aren't presented in a heavy-handed fashion. Keep your presentation light and cheerful.
