Man threatens suicide

FERN PARK — At nine o'clock this morning, Seminole County sheriff's deputies talked Jack St. Claire out of the bathroom.

Deputies report that at about 3 a.m., St. Claire, despondent over his disintegrating relationship with his live-in girlfriend, entered their apartment at the Hidden Meadows Complex on Fern Park Boulevard in Fern Park and began breaking up the furniture.

According to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, he then armed himself with a shotgun and barricaded himself in the bathroom of the apartment and threatened to kill himself.

Deputies said St. Claire, 30, had fired two shots, but neither had come out of the bathroom so they assume they were fired into the ceiling.

Negotiators coaxed him out of the bathroom and took him to Florida Hospital in Altamonte Springs where he was committed to psychiatric care under the Baker Act.

McDonough said all the surrounding apartments were evacuated while St. Claire was locked in the bathroom. No one was injured in the standoff.

Some of expressway open

WINTER SPRINGS — The latest segment of the Seminole Expressway was opened to traffic Saturday, a day behind the anticipated opening. Expressway construction spokesman Gayle Geddes said the planned opening of the two-mile segment between Red Bug Lake Road and State Road 434 was scheduled to be opened Friday, but a striping machine broke down Thursday, setting work back. Geddes said crews worked through the night Friday in time to open both lanes by 6 p.m. Saturday.

There is a 75-cent charge to exit at SR 434. Geddes said the remainder of the beltway is still scheduled to be opened by early May. A ramp behind Sanford Plaza, a month behind other work, should now be opened about the same time, Geddes said.

Bombs tested remainder of week

SANFORD — West Seminole County residents may feel a rumbling Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings as the U.S. Navy will drop live bombs at the Pinecastle Bombing Range near Lake George. Although not commonly felt locally, residents have reported the testing has recently rattled windows. The testing will occur between 9:30 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. each day.

Voter registration offered

SANFORD — A voter registration will be held at Lake Mary Elementary tonight from 6:30 p.m. until 7:15 p.m. The school is located at the corner of Lake Mary Boulevard and Country Club Road.

Local cops rate programs for young criminals

LAKE MARY — Local law enforcement officials have different ideas on why Florida's $37 million a year youthful-offender program isn't working and what needs to be done about it. "We need to convince them (juveniles) there will be a certainty of apprehension, and a swift and adequate punishment. We need more juvenile detention facilities," said Seminole County Sheriff Don Eslinger.

"We need to improve school and vocational programs," suggested State Corrections Secretary Harry Singletary.

Dog shelter about ready to be rebuilt

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Groundbreaking for a new $350,000 shelter for the Humane Society of Seminole County is slated for sometime in May, society officials say.

The 200 dog shelter will replace the former shelter destroyed by fire April 14, 1993. Seventy-three dogs lost their lives in the fire caused by hot build-up in laundry driers.

The society will hold a memorial service April 10 at the shelter on County Home Road south of Flea World. The 2 p.m. service will recognize the one-year anniversary of the tragedy and will serve as a public unveiling of the new shelter's design.

Ron Hardee, board member and building chairman, says architectural plans are nearly complete for the 11,200-square-foot shelter. See Shelter, Page 5A

Shoot-out leaves one man wounded

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A young man sitting in his car at Lee's Market, 3500 State Road 46 in Midway was shot by at least one of seven suspects in another vehicle yesterday afternoon.

Fortunately for him, they were all poor marksmen. According to Ed McDonough, public information officer for the Seminole County sheriff's office, 25-year-old Jerome Brown was sitting in his car in the store's parking lot at about 12:45 p.m. when another car pulled up along side his.

There were seven men in the car, McDonough said. Several of them began shooting into Brown's car.

Ten rounds hit his car. One bullet hit him in the calf.

"They were shooting at close range, but they only hit him once," McDonough said. "I don't think they're experts with their guns."

Police investigators have not yet determined the kinds of guns that were used in the attack.

Brown's car was taken to the Seminole County sheriff's office to be processed for clues.

They did say, however, that Brown shot back, firing one shot at his attackers as they sped away.

McDonough said Brown is being extremely uncooperative with investigators.

"He's not telling anything," McDonough said. "Usually these sorts of incidents stem from arguments where (the victim and the assailants) know each other."

After the shooting, McDonough said, Brown was able to drive to his Sanford home. From there he called See Shooting, Page 5A

Longwood mulls plan for preservation

by SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — The Historic Preservation plan for the city will be scrutinized by the city commission before being submitted to the state after questions arose Monday night over several points, including a tax abatement provision.

Under a 1993 state grant used to develop the plan, the city must submit the draft by May 15 to the Division of Historic Preservation of the Department of State. The commissioners will review the draft in detail at a work session April 25.

Mayor Paul Lovestrand questioned tax abatement provisions outlined in the proposal. He expressed concern some might think the historic district is getting preferential treatment over other areas of the city.

Carl Gosline, principle author of the Historic Preservation element, said it was written with a very pro-active approach to historic preservation. Gosline operates a consulting company in Winter Park.

Planning and building director John Brock explained the proposal is just a draft, and by OK'ing its transmittal to the state, it did not mean the commissioners were adopting another element of the comprehensive plan. After the state reviews the draft, Brock said the commission was under no obligation or time constraint to adopt it into the overall plan for the city.

Under a 1993 law, municipalities are allowed to grant up to a 100 percent tax abatement of ad valorem taxes for up to 10 years for improve-

Reward offered for missing Miamian

ATLANTA — The family and friends of a missing Emory University student announced a $10,000 reward for information leading to her safe return and indictment of whoever is responsible for her disappearance.

The reward in the case of Shannon Melendy, 19, of Miami was announced Monday. She has been missing since March 26.

Melendy was working as a scorekeeper at the Softball County Club and Sportsplex in DeKalb County when she took a break at 1 p.m. and has not been seen since.

Friends found her car at a service station next to the softball fields on March 27.

Police, who conducted several searches for Melendy last week, said Monday they have no new leads.

The case was featured Friday on the television show "America's Most Wanted."

Blood, hair samples returned negative

ST. ANN, Mo. — Authorities say a Florida man is still a suspect in the killing of a 9-year-old St. Louis County girl, even though FBI laboratory tests failed to link him to the crime.

Blood and hair samples taken from John Wayne Parsons, 34, of Bradenton, Fla., did not match evidence recovered from the wildlife refuge where Angie Marie Housman was found, officials said Monday. They also said hair taken from Parsons' dog, Tiger, did not match those found on the 9-year-old's body.

"It's one thing we have to overlook and continue on with our investigation," said Sgt. Riley Hughes of the St. Louis Area Major Case Squad. "He's just one of many suspects we've had in this case. We either have to make him or eliminate him, and that's what we're trying to do."

Weather satellite praised

TALLAHASSEE — Weather forecasters will have a view of the United States every 15 minutes and details on dangerous storms every six minutes once a new satellite is launched, officials said.

"I've been in the operational weather business for 33 years and this is the most exciting time I can remember," Joe Friday, director of the National Weather Service said Monday at a news conference with Gov. Lawton Chiles.

The satellite is called GOES-1 for geostationary operational environmental satellite. It's scheduled to be launched next Tuesday from Cape Canaveral.

The $200 million satellite will circle the earth at the same speed the planet rotates; it will be positioned 22,300 miles above the Equator.

However, unlike past GOES satellites, the new one won't spin, meaning its camera will be focused continuously on North and South America.

The new satellite will also produce sharper, more detailed pictures.

"The GOES-1 satellite is a high-tech lifesaver," Chiles said. "As we've seen with Hurricane Andrew and the winter storm of last year and the recent string of tornadoes that ripped across Alabama, Georgia and North Carolina, nature can be very violent and very unpredictable."

Tourist police

Officials hope new squad will calm visitors' fears of crime

By JOHN PACENTI
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — When visitors arrive in Miami by plane they will enter a buffer zone created by "tourist police" who will patrol the airport and immediate surrounding areas.

Officials hope the 28 additional officers will quell visitors' fears of South Florida's crime by targeting thugs in the same places tourists claim their luggage, pickup their rental cars and begin travel to their hotels.

"Our international tourists are quite sophisticated," said Mayco Villafana, a spokesman for the Greater Miami Convention and Visitors Bureau. "What they want to know is what the community is doing to make them aware, make them safer."

Tourist police can be identified by visitors through arm bands and logos on their patrol cars.

The program, which cost $1.8 million to launch, has been phased in over the past two months. It helped reduce armed robberies 63 percent and auto thefts by 71 percent in the area with the increased police presence, said Fred Taylor, director of

"This airport is the heart of the community. If we can't make (tourists) feel safe here, than I don't know how we can make them feel safe anywhere else."

-Fred Taylor

Metro-Dade police

"This airport is the heart of the community," Taylor said at a news conference. "If we can't make (tourists) feel safe here, than I don't know how we can make them feel safe anywhere else."

Tourists' fears about crime escalated in 1993 when attacks on visitors made headlines worldwide and threatened to erode Florida's $31 billion-a-year tourism industry.

The latest fatal shooting of a tourist in Miami was in September when German visitor Uwe-Wilhelm Rakebrand was fatally shot. In April 1993, German teacher Barbara Meller Jensen was killed. Both were coming from the airport.

Bright bumper stickers and license plates displaying rental-car company names have since been eliminated, as well as license tags with certain letters denoting rentals. The last slaying of a tourist in Florida happened in September 1993. Gary Colley, a Briton, was killed at a rest stop in the North Florida town of Monticello.

Travel agents catering to international visitors have said their business has been down by as much as 40 percent, though it's too early to tell how much Florida's winter tourism was hurt by fears about violence.

Officials hope the tourist police and another program to implement clearer traffic signs will help lure tourists back.

Urs Lindenmann, honorary consul for Switzerland in Miami, was most impressed with the $2.7 million plan to overhaul street signs than with the tourist police. Signs marked with large suns will replace those bearing the symbol of a palm tree put up last year to direct tourists.

"It's fantastic," Lindenmann said. "It is very hard for tourists to find their way here."

A boost for the future

House passes compensation for Rosewood massacre victims

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A claims officer has recommended the Senate approve a $2.1 million bill compensating the victims of the 1923 Rosewood massacre. The report released Monday by Senate special master David Kerns increases the chances the bill will pass the Legislature this session. Gov. Lawton Chiles has said he supports the legislation.

The House passed its bill 71-40 Monday after supporters defeated efforts to remove financial compensation from the measure and replace it with memorials.

A white mob wiped out the black settlement more than 70 years ago and left at least eight people dead.

Supporters of the bill (CS-BB 591) cheered the House vote but said they still had to convince the Senate to approve the legislation. The Senate Finance and Tax Committee was scheduled to consider the bill this afternoon.

"It's still got a long way to go," said 79-year-old Wilson Hall, who remembered as a child watching homes being burned before evacuating the community near Cedar Key in January 1923. His family never returned.

Hall and other supporters said they felt confident about the legislation chances.

"I can only say three words. God bless America," said Arnet Doctor, who heads a group of Rosewood family members seeking compensation and whose mother was among those who fled.

In his report, Kerns recommended the Senate approve the claims bill as passed by the House. But he said the evidence

WHAT'S HAPPENING

Organ donor bill goes to Chiles

TALLAHASSEE — Organ donors couldn't rule out particular classes of transplant recipients under a bill sent to Gov. Lawton Chiles.

The legislation was filed after a Tampa organ-procurement agency agreed that a Ku Klux Klan sympathizer's heart and liver would go only to white recipients.

"This will be our way of fighting discrimination," said Rep. Carlos Manrique, R-Westchester, one of 14 House co-sponsors.

The House passed the measure (SB 1278) 113-0 Monday.

Members voted to bar restrictions based on race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, physical handicap, or health, marital or economic status.

Helmets may be mandatory for children

TALLAHASSEE — Children would have to wear safety helmets to ride bicycles on public roads under a bill passed by the House, though some members complained it took government regulation too far.

The House passed the measure (HB 651) 60-46 Monday, sending it to the Senate, after some members argued it would reduce head injuries and deaths from bicycle accidents.

Florida led the nation with more than 100 bicycle-related deaths last year, said Rep. Robert Casey, R-Gainesville, a physician.

Opponents said the measure was excessive government interference.

The bill would require children under 16 to wear bicycle helmets when riding on a public road or bike path. Children under 4 would have to wear them when carried as passengers on bicycles.

Moving companies regulated

TALLAHASSEE — Moving companies would have to give written estimates, disclose all fees, register with the state and post bonds under a bill passed by the House.

Companies would be barred from charging more than 25 percent over their estimates under the bill filed by Rep. Frederick Lippman, D-Hollywood, with the backing of Attorney General Bob Butterworth.

The House voted 114-4 for the measure (HB 709) Monday and sent it to the Senate.

Butterworth's office called for the legislation after reporting customer complaints such as fee increases after furniture is on the truck and demands for cash payments before delivery.

Lawmakers deregulated moves within the state in 1980, but Lippman said "There are a tremendous amount of complaints."

Students boycott over principal's reinstatement

By JANIS L. MAGIN
Associated Press Writer

WEIOWEE, Ala. — More than 150 students boycotted classes to protest the reinstatement of a principal who threatened to ban interracial couples from the prom, and many parents said they would keep their children out today.

The boycott began Monday as classes resumed after spring break at the 680-student Randolph County High School.

It was also the first day back for Principal Hulond Humphries, a white man who was reinstated by a 4-2 vote of the school board after being suspended on March 14. Humphries, 55, who has been principal for 25 years, had no comment.

The lone black member on the school board, Charlotte Clark-Frison, helped organize the boycott.

Parents who packed a meeting Monday night decided to keep their children out of school today, according to Clark-Frison, who also is an NAACP leader.

A group of parents planned to meet today with state education officials in Montgomery to learn how they might set up an alternative school during the boycott, she said.

Tawanna Mize, a white senior, said school attendance sheets showed 157 students, 115 of them black, were absent. School officials said absentee reports wouldn't be ready until today.

"I support Humphries all the way," Ms. Mize said. "The man made a mistake. He's human. You don't throw away 25 years of work for one mistake."

Critics contend Humphries has a long history of racial bias at the school, which is 38 percent black. Supporters have said he was concerned about racial fighting at the prom.

At least 60 black students spent Monday at two churches discussing multicultural issues and nonviolent protest. Many of the boycotting students wore black-and-white ribbons.

Employee of the Month

Penny L. Turner, center, was named as the City of Sanford "Employee of the Month" for April. Mayor Betty Smith, left, and City Manager Bill Simmons officiated at the presentation Monday morning. Turner, a Secretary III for Finance and Administrative Services, was nominated by six of her co-workers for the heavy volume of work she carries out and the manner in which she handles it. She was described by Finance Director Carolyn Small as a "most outstanding individual, one with integrity, work ethic, technical skills, professionalism, humanity and character."

Scientist: Killer bees coming

By The Associated Press

GAINESVILLE — Florida's tourism and agriculture industries could fall victim to "killer bees" if the state fails to prepare for their arrival, a University of Florida scientist warns.

"The threat to Florida's economy could be significant, so this state has a vested interest in African bee research," said H. Glenn Hall, a honeybee geneticist.

Research, public education and regulation are needed before the Africanized honeybees' expected arrival from the Southwest in two to four years, Hall said in a news release from the university.

Another researcher, John A. Skinner of the University of Tennessee's Agricultural Extension Service, contends the bees have received "bad press."

"All bees, including African bees, sting only to defend the nests containing their young," Skinner said. "The difference with African bees is in the larger number of attacking bees."

But Hall warned that sensational media reports of bee attacks could scare tourists away.

Florida's multimillion-dollar honey industry will suffer because African bees are difficult to manage, Hall said. Growers who depend upon bee pollination for their crops could sustain billions in losses.

He recommends expanding the state Agriculture Department's apitary service to combat the bees' arrival.

"They should begin training people to deal with bees. Protocols should be established as to who can destroy bees," Hall said.

Tighten laws to pawn items

Officers or investigators preparing arrest reports often write of reasons for robberies or burglaries. In many cases they report the person apprehended admitted to taking property for the purpose of trading it for drug money.

It is a very common occurrence. Criminals admit to their acts more than many people would expect.

How does a person trade, for example, a stolen TV set for drug money? It could be sold to a friend or neighbor, it could be offered at a garage sale, or it could be pawned.

Police suspect a great deal of the stolen merchandise ends up at pawn shops or second-hand stores. This is where we have problems.

Still using a stolen TV set as an example, few homeowners bother writing down the serial number. If a stolen TV turns up at a pawn shop, and even if the proper reports on it are sent to law enforcement authorities, there is no proof of ownership. Police cannot trace the item.

If the owner takes it upon himself to check pawn shops, it is a time consuming job, involving almost a dozen such businesses in the north Seminole County area alone.

Continuing on this concept, if a person does find the stolen TV, what proof of ownership does he have? The only possibility is the sales slip when the TV was purchased. Yet, state law says a person, even if he can prove ownership, cannot have his property returned without paying the price for which it was pawned.

This is a double rip-off. The set was paid for when purchased, then paid for again to reclaim it after it was stolen.

This is not to accuse pawn shop owners of any wrong. They certainly should not be forced to lose money in what they may have believed was the legitimate pawning of an item. Yet the owner of the property should not have to pay to get his property for the second time.

Requirements are that pawn shop owners file certain papers on each pawned item. However, they are only required to supply law enforcement agencies with copies of the merchandise ticket, which contains the name of the person pawning an item. It could be anyone's name.

Unfortunately, not all items pawned result in the necessary paperwork being completed. It's time-consuming and often considered a burden.

We suggest pawn dealers become more involved in the checking of their clients. Not only a copy of the sales slip, but possibly a copy of the person's driver's license should also be supplied to police.

This will give shop owners as well as police a photo ID, as well as the name and address of the person seeking money for goods.

Owners and operators of second-hand stores should also be required to submit the same identification whenever purchasing merchandise from an individual.

We cannot simply take items away from a pawn shop owner with no compensation. It isn't fair to the legitimate businessman. Yet we cannot allow burglars and robbers the ease of taking a stolen item in, and with a false name and address, obtain cash.

Police need everyone's help. Only by working in conjunction with each other, can law enforcement, business people and property owners hope to help resolve this problem.

"Did I mention that I had a pre-existing condition?... No money."

JOSEPH PERKINS

The president's biggest liability

Poor Hillary. Why don't those right-wing meenies cut her some slack? They just can't stand the idea that a woman so strong, so competent, so feminist is redefining the role of first lady. So they keep bringing up this Whitewater business.

The first lady has said repeatedly that "we didn't do anything wrong." So why can't Jim Leach, Al D'Amato and the rest of those scandal-mongering Republicans take her for her word and move on to other matters? Don't they realize that Hillary and her husband, the president, have a country to run?

That's the company line at the White House. And it's been repeated by the first lady's hagiographers in the press corps. But it's no longer playing in Peoria (not to mention Little Rock or Washington). Half of Americans polled by Time/CNN think the Clintons are hiding something about Whitewater. A third think they broke the law.

The president hardly can hope to get anything meaningful accomplished until he puts the Whitewater scandal behind him. It's not simply a matter of casting a few senior administration officials who have become political liabilities. The albatross who really is bringing down his presidency is sleeping in the same bed with him.

There would be no Whitewater scandal to speak of were it not for Hillary Rodham Clinton. The disturbing questions about conflicts of interest and suspicious real estate deals and tax evasion and sweetheart commodity trades focus squarely on the first wife.

Hillary has not been charged with any criminal wrongdoing. But, at the very least, she cut corners and committed ethical breaches that would require any government official who wasn't married to the president to step down

She received a $2,000-a-month legal retainer from James McDougal, who owned Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan. He is suspected of diverting funds from the thrift to Whitewater Real Estate Development, which he co-owned with the Clintons.

In 1985, Hillary helped her client and business partner McDougal win state permission for a new financing plan for his failing thrift. She put in a personal word with Beverly Bassett Schaffer, whom her husband Bill had appointed as the state's top banking regulator.

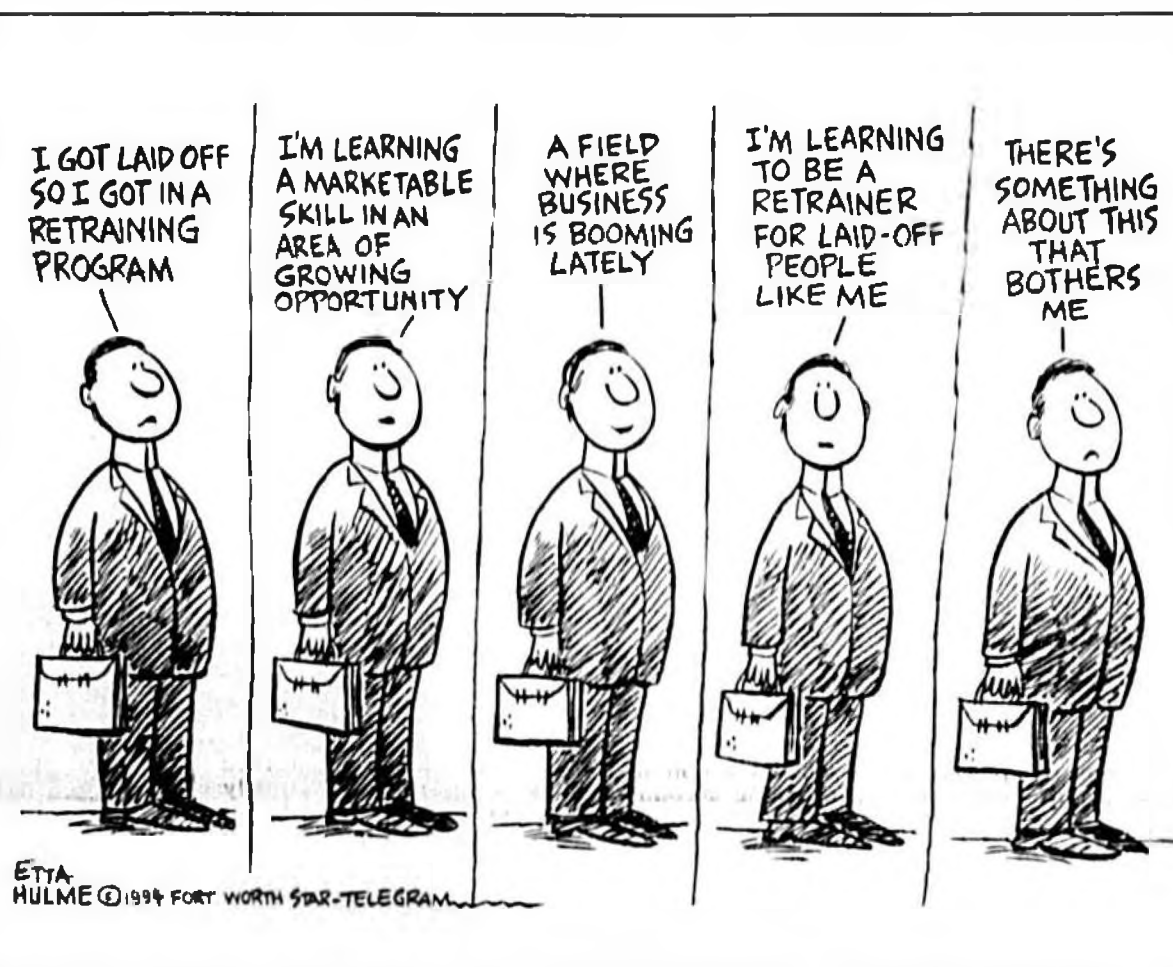

Madison Guaranty finally went belly up in 1989, at a cost of $50 million to the federal government. If Arkansas bank regulators had stepped in earlier -- say 1985 -- the taxpayers would not have been stuck with such a hefty tab.

The Clinton's Whitewater partnership should be of special interest to IRS auditors. The first family has all but admitted that they claimed Whitewater-related income tax deductions to which they were not entitled. The latest issue of Money magazine suggests that they owe more than $45,000 in back taxes and interest.

More troubling is that the Clintons appear to have routinely underpaid their income taxes for the past 15 years.

Poor Hillary. Why don't those right-wing meenies cut her some slack?

DONNA BRITT

Saving people, nation, world

WASHINGTON — Soon, it will be the 26th anniversary of his death. And it's appropriate that the new word that has recently taken up residence in my mind — which seems related to any notion it gets next to — would feel especially connected to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.:

Duality. It's the term I use to describe how two separate, sometimes opposing truths can be at work in any situation or idea — with both being equally true. It came up during a recent chat with an insightful fiftyish friend.

She was recalling how, as an apolitical, sorority-type "Negro" at a Texas college, in the 1960s, she was fascinated by the nobility and self-sacrifice of African Americans active in the civil rights movement led by King.

"But something was missing for me," she says. Like much of America, she watched mesmerized as TV flashed images of peaceful black, and sometimes white, demonstrators being hosed and spat on. She cringed at every murder.

But she couldn't relate. The demonstrators "seemed like people being led to the slaughter," she said. "What didn't click for me was Dr. King's notion that we were supposed to love their attackers. ...I wasn't sophisticated enough to understand why."

Then one evening, she halfheartedly attended a speech by Stokely Carmichael, the charismatic spokesman for the militant Black Panther Party, who is now known as Kwame Toure.

Long after other students had filed out of the auditorium, she sat immobile in her chair and "cried and cried and cried."

In his speech, Stokely told this young woman, who'd grown up very dark and African American in a nation that didn't embrace either, that she was pretty. That her skin's chocolate-bar color was beautiful. That what she'd learned about her supposed unworthiness was a lie.

"He told us about what he called 'white nationalism' — how angel food cake was white, but devil's food cake was black; how the good guys in Westerns wore white, the bad guys black. ...I realized how much had been done to us, in the hating of ourselves."

"When I left there, I was a different person," she says. "And I realized the reason I couldn't buy into Martin Luther King was that I couldn't love whites because I didn't love myself."

She had interpreted King's major emphasis as "love your enemy," she says. "I never heard him say that we...should love ourselves." "Some people in the movement never learned that...and never really felt worthy of the heights they eventually reached in the corporate, academic, political worlds. They still have self-hatred, from measuring themselves by another standard."

Her new insight felt great — but there was a catch. "For two years," she says, "I was enraged, I was crazy. ...I called whites 'pig,' 'honky.' ...But I was over-loving myself. ...Everybody who was black was wonderful — which was an illusion. And everybody white was the devil, also an illusion."

A black college professor — a man whom she's accused of being a sellout because, she says with a laugh, "he had a $25,000 house, which was a lot back then," helped her by silently pressing an issue of Life magazine into her hands.

In it, she found an article about young activists. "What jumped out at me was a passage about kids ... who never got past their rage, and became victims of it. I realized I wasn't going to be any good to anybody — to my people or myself — if I became a victim."

Today she's an outspoken supporter of Afrocentricism, of black self-love. And as a Christian, she lives the notion that all of God's children of every shade deserve to be loved for themselves. She now appreciates King's vision, as well as Stokely's gift of a long-delayed love for the woman in the mirror.

Duality. It was and is true that Dr. King's powerful, Bible-based focus on loving those who would persecute you cuts to the heart of a universal truth — that even the most rabid haters of any shade "know not what they do." And that often, love is the only language capable of prying open their hearts.

My friend's story set my mind afume. "What an opportunity!" I told her. "Today we have within our cultural consciousness the spiritual selflessness of King. And we possess the liberating, nationalist-bred knowledge that we are essentially worthy and wonderful."

"We are finally in a position to see God, without and within." By recognizing that wonderful duality, by putting it to use, we could save a people, a nation, a whole world. *

SARAH OVERSTREET

Learning the lessons of life

I'm not sure if I would have reacted so strongly to Hulond Humphries' bigotry if there were no Nicole in my life, but I'd like to think I would have. Nicole is my 12-year-old basketball-going buddy, the beautiful biracial daughter of my friends John and Debbie. As I've told her, I wish I had a daughter just like her.

To think of Nicole's high school principal threatening to cancel her prom rather than let black and white students date — as Humphries did in Weddowee, Ala., where he is principal — in a kid's me heartless. To have a man with such authority and influence over her life dishonor her parents' love and their family would be an injustice I'd do anything to prevent.

Luckily, such prejudice hasn't been a part of Nicole's life. Debbie, who is white, even wonders at the lack of ill will she and John, who is black, have experienced over their marriage. The Hulond Humphrieses in the nation are either getting fewer and farther between, or becoming more adept at talking in racist code that the rest of us can't decipher, or realize it's illegal to subject children to the poison that had their elders blocking schoolroom doors just a generation ago.

Yet the Hulond Humphrieses of the world are exactly why we need laws that clearly specify what educators can and cannot do in public schools. And that includes in matters of religion. I was probably one of the biggest prayerers the Missionary public schools ever knew. But I believe prayers belong in the minds and hearts of students and not in the mouths of their teachers and administrators.

Why? For every group of educators who could incorporate elements of religion into school life without bias for or against any child's faith, there is one for which it is almost impossible to keep from showing some disapproval of others' beliefs.

A few years ago, a Catholic colleague's little boy came home from public school upset because his teacher asked him "What are you doing?" and frowned at him when he made the sign of the cross after their "God is great, God is good" prayer at lunch. Among the many hard lessons that life hands a little fellow, this shouldn't be one of them.

Ironically, just as Hulond Humphries is sitting out a suspension while his board of education investigates his case — including a biracial student's charge that he told her, "Your mommy and daddy made a mistake and I'm going to see to it that no other mistakes like this are made" — our legislators are once again battling the prayer-in-school issue.

Republicans wrote a prayer amendment to President Clinton's school reform bill, which had to be signed by April 1 or lose $125 million which was only available until that deadline. The amendment originally stipulated that a public school would lose federal funds if it has a policy of denying prayer by students on a voluntary basis.

However, when the reform bill went to a House-Senate conference committee, the committee changed the language to say that no funds appropriated under the bill may be used to adopt policies that prevent voluntary prayer and meditation in public schools.

Simply put, in the first version, no school that denied students a chance to pray voluntarily in school could GET any of these funds. In the revised edition, schools were only barred from USING the funds to prevent voluntary prayer. Understandably, several Congress members were outraged and Sen. Jesse Helms set about to filibuster until the cows come home.

Luckily, such prejudice hasn't been a part of Nicole's life.

Crime

juvenile crime, said Lake Mary Police Sgt. Linda Belfiore.

Belfiore is Crime Prevention Commander and DARE officer for the Lake Mary Police Department.

"There may be a problem with the state program after juveniles are convicted," Belfiore said, "but an even bigger problem is handling them before they get to the point where they end up in juvenile detention."

"Children aren't born as criminals," she observed, "so the only thing we can assume is that they are allowed to develop criminal tendencies as they grow up. This usually means the parents aren't doing their jobs. Parents just have to take more responsibility," she stressed.

At the present time, juvenile detention inmates, who have a fifth-grade reading level on the average, are required to enroll in basic literacy programs. But there are long waiting lists, and these offenders are sometimes released before their turn comes up.

"Education must be the important step," Belfiore said. "It's most often the students who skip or quit school who end up becoming criminals, so not just a few but most of them must have better educations."

One of her suggestions is to have a court mandated requirement that a juvenile must return to school on a regular basis, as a parole condition. "And their parents or a guardian must be held accountable that they do that," she said.

"We can't just toss kids in jail and toss away the key," she commented. "We have to have parents directly involved, and that means right from birth on."

Sheriff Estinger looks at the actual detention time as one of the biggest ways toward rehabilitation.

"We can't equate dollars on what the state plans for juvenile rehabilitation," he said, "it's how the system is operated."

Estinger said the state must do as much as possible to provide more detention facilities which will allow convicted juveniles to serve longer sentences.

"Our juvenile judges must also have the authority to hold these youths on contempt of court charges," he added.

According to statistics from Tallahassee, the average juvenile in a detention center, will serve eight percent of the length of his or her term.

Tallahassee lawmakers are searching for different solutions to juvenile violence.

State Appeals Court Judge Charles Miner agrees with Estinger's approach. "It doesn't make much sense to have a program for youthful offenders if the people sentenced there are not there long enough to learn how to read and write their name," he said.

Information from Associated Press is contained in this report.

His wound was not serious and was treated by paramedics from the Sanford Fire Department.

McDonough said the suspects' vehicle was described as a light blue car. Brown would offer no further descriptions and refused to speculate on who the suspects might be.

Shelter

Hardee, a builder who works at the Florida Solar Energy Center, says the shelter will be an energy-efficient structure using passive ground-air cooling and under-floor heating.

Hardee says the basic design is borrowed from the Seminole County Animal Control Shelter, but with improvements.

Hardee says initial delays were caused by seeking low- or no-cost professional services. Much of the services are being done at discounted rates, says Hardee.

Next came delays due to county building and development objections to site development plans, Hardee says. In December, county staffers issued the society a three-page list of items which needed to be addressed before construction could begin. The topics included paying the parking area to state standards, drainage and landscaping and irrigation issues.

Hardee says all of the issues have been addressed and when final engineering specifications are complete, final county approvals can be secured and construction bids sought.

"We don't expect any more holdups," says Hardee.

Hardee says construction of the shelter will cost about $350,000 and site work, about $100,000.

The cost was boosted last year after Seminole County commissioners refused to waive nearly ments made to historic structures, Gosline said.

Florida's historic preservation law, including the tax abatement provision, is very unique in the country, he said. Orlando received a grant to develop a model for all cities to use, he added.

"My own feeling is that we should be very careful not to obligate the city to a special consideration," Lovestrund commented, of one area over another. He added people who refurbish historic buildings already get tax incentives from the federal government.

Commissioner Steve Miller said the commission should also review the language in the draft and perhaps consider changing the "shall" to "may" references.

Miller suggested the draft consideration be tabled until studied further. "I'm uncomfortable with the whole thing," he commented.

Lovestrund noted former planner Dick Wells had stated, "My highest priority is the historic district." Well, my highest priority is to fill the empty store fronts, no matter where they are."

Wells, who helped develop the historic preservation element, now works for the City of Casselberry.

In other business, the commissioners rejected a request for the second time from a homeowner in Hidden Oaks Subdivision who wanted to erect a basketball goal in the city right-of-way so neighborhood children could play in the cul-de-sac.

By a 4-to-1 vote, the commissioners said "no" to the request from Rick DeCarlo, 1011 Cross Cut Way. Although several of DeCarlo's neighbors told the commission they did not object to the goal, the commissioners rejected the request citing possible liability claims against the city.

Commissioner Marie Vacca

said after she voted in favor of the basketball goal during the March 21 meeting she received four calls from constituents chiding her for voting before investigating the situation.

If the city granted the request, Lovestrund said, similar requests would start coming in from all over the city.

Commissioner Ron Sargent commended DeCarlo for bringing neighbors who supported him to answer some of the questions raised at the previous meeting. Commissioner Iris Benson said she still could not vote for a special exception due to the potential liability to the city.

control an outbreak of parvovirus, fatal to canines.

Society director Barry Black said three puppies have died and two dogs became ill, but are recovering. The close down to the public and all adoptions was done as a precautionary measure while the premises are sanitized. The measure is being taken to assure the virulent virus isn't spread.

Black said there is an outbreak of the virus throughout the south and has forced the dismantling of one shelter in an effort to eradicate it.

Black said the shelter and grounds are being sprayed daily with two disinfectants to curb the hardy virus. Black said even the surface of the soil has been hauled away in an effort to rid the grounds of the virus which can be fatal to dogs, but does not affect cats or humans.

Black said Thursday will be well beyond the incubation period since the last dog at the shelter became ill.

"We're being overly cautious," said Black.

Black said the virus was brought to the shelter March 12 when a woman brought three nine-week-old puppies. They were checked for the signs of parvovirus: lethargy, diarrhea and vomiting, but did not show those signs. They were inoculated for the virus and other common diseases and placed in the shelter.

On March 21, nine days later, one of the puppies fell ill and was quarantined while treatment began, said Black. The next day, the puppy was dead. Another of the three puppies was adopted on March 24 and fell ill March 29, said Black. That dog and the third subsequently died.

Black said two dogs at the shelter also showed signs of the disease, but will recover. No other dogs have shown signs of the disease, he said.

In 1989, the society euthanized 22 dogs when canine distemper was discovered.

Help is on the way by the Neat N Tidy Team!
Mother's Little Neat N Tidy Helper

Haven't mothers got enough to do? And to think of all they do for you! Pretty soon they need a break. Perhaps a present is what it will take. You should call Neat N Tidy - make no mistake. Mop, dust and vacuum, too! Our staff will clean for you. They scrub the rooms until they shine. Have them save Mom's precious time. Everything looks fresh and clean. Right down to the windows and the screen. Save your mom the aggravation.

Declare Mother's Day a one day vacation. After all that she has helped you through. Your mom deserves a clean house from you! Remember those Gift Certificates for Mom. No matter what you needed while you were growing up, there was one person you could call to get anything done. One magical word could wash the socks, fix your lunch, iron a shirt, and go shopping - all at the same time! Yep, Mom! could get anything and everything done in no time at all. Now that you want to do something special for her who do you call? Why Neat N Tidy, of course! You could just shout out "Neat N Tidy" at the top of your lungs like you used to all "Mom!" but you'll get a better response if you call the mom at 324-1177 or 321-7699. That's right, Neat N Tidy now has two phone numbers for your convenience. Neat N Tidy Cleaning Services does everything to make Mom's house look great. Their weekly, bi-weekly or monthly cleaning includes:

total vacuum, mop and wax (if needed) all floors, dust and wax all furniture. The total kitchen package includes cleaning the stove, refrigerator and microwave, wiping down and polishing all cabinets, cleaning all appliances and wiping all counters. Total cleaning of the bathroom includes mop & wax floors, clean all mirrors and wipe down tiles, and shower doors. Neat N Tidy All Clean Service also adds those special touches such as changing linens and towels, making beds, and cleaning ceiling fans and window sills and drapery windows. Actually, they don't just do windows, they thoroughly clean them inside and out including the screens. Neat N Tidy All Clean Service sub-contracts jobs out for carpet cleaning and handiman service. After the initial deep cleaning, Neat N Tidy's standard residential cleaning ranges in price from $40 to $55 depending on the size of your home. Neat N Tidy is a reliable company that does more than simply clean a house - they care for it. All those minor home repairs such as painting, plumbing, carpentry, wallpaper and general home repair can be finished projects by calling Neat N Tidy. No task is too large or too small for this crew. From hanging a fan to installing new vinyl flooring, Neat N Tidy can do it all! Neat N Tidy is a complete cleaning service specializing in offices (starting at $20), new construction house trailers, window packages, and outside trailer wash. Carol Blair, owner, and Donya, manager, work hard to make sure that the job is done right every time. To help make things run smoothly, at Charlie Yolanda, D.L. and Joy. If you're looking for an extra special gift for Mom or anyone else, give Neat N Tidy a call at 321-1177 or 321-7699. It's so convenient. They even bring all their own supplies and equipment. So tell Mom to kick back, relax, and take the day off. Any day can be a vacation when Neat N Tidy does the dirty work for you!

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

Packers pound foe

CASSELHERRY — The PDS Packers had their hitting shoes on Monday night, pounding Bus'n Loose 19-4 in Women's Class C Slowpitch Softball League action at Red Bug Lake Park. Tammy Morris got her first pitching start of the season and tossed a seven-hitter, three of which came in the fifth inning when Bus'n Loose scored four unearned runs. Providing the offense for PDS were Allyson Hale (three hits, triple, four RBI), Jaudon Marlette and Lori Kremer (three hits each), Terri Mann (two hits, three RBI), Morris (two hits), Jackie Janowick and Joy Weaver (one triple and three RBI each) and Phyllis Baynes (triple). The Packers, now 3-2 on the season, will play at 8:30 p.m. next week against the Lake Brantley Plant Corporation.

AROUND THE STATE

Bucs make two deals

TAMPA — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers on Monday signed free-agent defensive lineman Blaise Winter and traded for Dallas safety Thomas Everett for an undisclosed draft pick. Winter, 32, started 31 games at defensive tackle the past two seasons for the San Diego Chargers and had 73 tackles and eight sacks. Everett, 29, who had two interceptions and 97 tackles in 1993 and was picked for his first Pro Bowl, will help bolster a Bucs pass defense that ranked 14th in the NFL last year.

AROUND THE NATION

Penguins short Lightning

PITTSBURGH — Tom Barrasso made 26 saves and the Pittsburgh Penguins survived Mario Lemieux's first-period ejection and beat the Tampa Bay Lightning 2-1 Monday night.

Panthers come up short

NEW YORK — Sergei Nemchinov and Steve Larmer scored third-period goals and goalie Mike Richter outduelled ex-teammate and fellow All-Star John Vanbiesbrouck as the New York Rangers beat Florida 3-2 Monday night.

Strawberry enters clinic

LOS ANGELES — Darryl Strawberry, in tears and distraught over having let down the Los Angeles Dodgers, told the team he has a drug problem and was placed on the disabled list. "He's dealing with a problem that goes beyond the game," GM Fred Claire said. "He did deal previously with a problem with alcohol. This is a substance abuse problem."

NCAA title to Arkansas

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Scotty Thurman, a 6-foot-6 sophomore from Ruston, La., hit a tiebreaking 3-pointer as the shot clock expired with 50 seconds left and the Arkansas Razorbacks went on to beat Duke 76-72 for their first national championship.

Greyhounds growl

Lyman's diamond nine rebounds from loss

From Staff Reports

PORT ORANGE — Never challenge a mad dog. The Spruce Creek High School Hawks found that out Monday night as the Lyman High School Greyhounds whipped the Hawks 3-1 in a Class 5A-District 4 baseball game at Port Orange.

The Greyhounds were still smarting from a sub-par performance Friday night that saw their six-game winning streak ended by the Daytona Beach-Seabreeze Saudeerabs and they made Spruce Creek pay.

Pitchers Eric Katauskas and Kyle Hayde combined on a three-hitter, the offense pounded out nine hits against Hawks ace Brian Muller and the defense played flawlessly as Lyman won its 12th game in 14 starts.

Port Orange Spruce Creek	010 000 0 - 1 3 0

Katauskas, a senior lefthander, improved his personal record to 3-0 on the season as he allowed one run on two hits and struck out eight over the first five innings. Hayde, a junior righthander, came on to pitch the final two innings and gave up just one hit to earn his fourth save of the season.

The Greyhounds scored two runs in the top of the second inning and added the insurance run in the fifth inning. The Hawks' lone run came in the bottom of the second inning.

Providing the offense for Lyman were junior Teddy Koller (three-for-four, one RBI), sophomore Jason Shipley (two-for-three, one double), Mike Krupa (two-for-two, one RBI), Kyle Gaines (one-for-three, one double, one run scored), Mark Thielsen (one-for-two), junior Tommy Dixon (one-for-three, one run scored), junior Kiley Calapa (one-for-three) and sophomore Jason Gronert (one run scored).

Shortstop Keith Mastro paced the Spruce Creek (7-9) offense with a double.

The Greyhounds, now 13-5 on the season, will play two more district games this week hosting Lake Howell on Wednesday and traveling to Lake Mary Friday night. Both games will start at 7 p.m. and both games will also be Seminole Athletic Conference contests.

The Kiwanis Club Orioles' Mike Hackney slides under Ruth Baseball League action at Sanford Memorial Stadium Monday. The low throw was about the only thing that went wrong as the A's upset the Orioles 11-6.

Pirates, A's win in BRL

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The Moose Lodge Pirates became the first three game winner, while the Kiwanis Club Orioles fell from the ranks of the unbeaten in Sanford Recreation Department Babe Ruth Baseball League action at Sanford Memorial Stadium Monday evening.

The Pirates erased a 1-0 lead with a five-run bottom of the first inning and never looked back in clubbing the Bages Produce Expos, 9-1, on Zinn Beck Field.

Inside the stadium it was a whole different matter, as the Woodmen of the World A's, who came into the

Seminole collects net wins

From Staff Reports

LONGWOOD — The Seminole High School boys' and girls' tennis teams continued their most successful seasons Monday, whipping the Lyman teams by identical 5-2 scores at the LIS courts.

The boys' team got singles victories from Oscar Cannonizado, Eddie Vargas and Sebastian Gras at number four and also won both doubles matches to raise the Fighting Seminoles record to 4-5.

The Greyhounds got wins from Andy Garcia and from Jake Urban, but saw their record fall to 9-3.

On the girls' side, Aubrey Nelson, Tiffany Soderstrom and Blanca Stevenson, as well as both doubles teams, collected the wins for Seminole, which also improved to 4-5.

Angie Mateos and Shaon Newman claimed the victories for Lyman, which fell to 1-11.

The Tribe teams will be in action again today, hosting Oviedo at Lake Sylvan Park starting at 3 p.m. The Greyhounds will play at Deltona at 3:30 p.m. Thursday.

Brown's "hops" to Easter crown

Special to the Herald

TAMPA — The Brown's Gymnastics Central Level 8R (restricted) girls' team from Altamonte Springs captured their fourth consecutive team championship while the Level 8 non-restricted team claimed a third place finish at the Easter Bunny Invitational in Tampa on March 20th. Brown's posted a score of 100.80 to finish ahead of the host gym, Northwest YMCA.

In the restricted 8-11 age group, Christy Shepard earned a second place all around after accumulating 32.75 points. Her score came on the strength of a second place finish in balance beam (8.20), fourth in vault (8.40), fifth on bars (7.90) and sixth on floor exercise (8.25).

Sara Harper placed third all around with a score of 32.675 gathered with a winning performance in the balance beam competition (8.25), a second place finish on vault (8.525), fifth on floor exercise (8.35) and eighth on bars (7.55).

Michelle Irvin was fourth all around (32.60) with two second place finishes on floor exercise (8.55) and uneven bars (8.25).

Kim Wood finished sixth all around (32.45) by capturing the floor exercise (8.60), taking second on balance beam (8.20) and fifth on vault (8.35).

Brittany Crup took eighth all around (31.80) with a second place finish on floor exercise (8.55), sixth on bars (7.80) and seventh on vault (8.25).

Sharon Wain won the vault competition with a score of 8.575 and finished sixth on floor exercise (8.25).

Caroline Thompson and Nichole Williams shared fourth place on balance beam with a score of 8.15. Williams also took seventh in bars (7.60) and ninth on vault (8.20).

Race still alive in Recreational Volleyball

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The pulse may be weak, but the heart is still beating.

Just when it looked like team Won from Westview Baptist Church was about ready to put the finishing touches on the league crown, Roineco ended Won's four week perfect streak and kept its slim title hopes alive in the Sanford Recreation Department Spring Recreational Volleyball League.

Won had not lost a game in the league at the Sanford Middle School Gymnasium since winning two games and losing two games the first week of the season.

But Roineco took care of that winning run in the fifth game of the evening, claiming an impressive 15-7 victory over Won.

With four weeks left in the season,

RESULTS
Westview Baptist Won 15, Premier 3
Roineco 15, Westview Baptist 11
Westview Won 12, First Baptist 3
Roineco 15, Premier 12
Roineco 15, Westview Baptist Won 7
First Baptist 11, Westview Baptist 11
Premier 15, First Baptist 13
Westview Won 15, Westview 11
Westview Baptist 11, Premier 13
Roineco 15, Sanford First Baptist 6

Won, now with a 21-3 record, still holds a three-game lead over Roineco, which improved to 18-6.

In other happenings Monday night, team two from Westview Baptist Church won its first game of the season, edging Premier 15-13, and Sanford First Baptist Church fell under .500 for the first time this season, seeing its five consecutive week record of winning two games and losing two games end with one win, three loss week.

Westview Baptist Church-II, Sanford First Baptist Church and Premier all finished the week with identical 1-3 game records, but five of the head-to-head matchups were decided by less than five points.

Westview-II almost won two other games, falling to Roineco, 15-10, and First Baptist, 15-11.

First Baptist nearly had its sixth straight two and two week, but fell to Premier by the score of 15-13.

Premier came close to having its first winning night since the first week, as, in addition to its loss to Westview-II, it fell to Roineco by the identical score of 15-13.

Trailing Westview Baptist Church-Won and Roineco in the standings are Sanford First Baptist Church (11-13), Premier (9-15) and Westview Baptist Church-II (1-23).

RAINES GAUGE

Tim Raines is a Sanford native and Seminole High School graduate now playing for the Chicago White Sox. His stats are for the 1994 season in the first column, personal best season totals in the second column and current career totals (including 1994 games) in the third column.

Raines did not get off to the best of starts as he was 0-for-4 in the White Sox' 7-3 loss to the two-time defending World Champion Toronto Blue Jays on Monday. The two division champions can be seen on WGN at 7:30 p.m. tonight.

Seminole, Oviedo get votes in poll

But Seminole and Oviedo were receiving votes as season gets set for the start after the Spring Break. Seminole falling out of the poll after going 2-2 made no sense, but what did not make any sense was the fact that K. West, which went through the Big Blue almost untouched, did not receive even one vote in Class 3A poll this week.

PREP LEADERS

Veteran claims first feature after 14 years

BARBERVILLE - Joe Jacalone of Jacksonville has raced for 14 years, but Friday night at Volusia County Speedway's 3/8-mile dirt track was the magic ticket for the Pro Late Model driver as he took his first feature win ever.

"We've been doing road races and stock car races and never won a feature," Jacalone, who normally races at St. Johns in St. Augustine, said in the Sportsolution Victory Lane. "Maybe I can retire now."

Jacalone chased Fred Leo for half of the 25-lap feature, but when Leo got out of shape on lap 13, Jacalone and Mike Ludden blew past Leo. Leo was able to get back past Ludden for a second place finish, but was not able to deny Jacalone his first win.

Following Jacalone, Leo and Ludden to the stripe were Mark Paterniti and John Trammel.

In other races on April Fools Day, Daniel Miller won the Pro Stock, Kathy Gately took the special 30-lap Hobby Stock, Ron May slipped through to win the Legends race and Monty Stratton claimed the Mini Stocks.

Stacy Mathen was the first one to cross the finish line in the Pro Stock main, but was disqualified in a post-race teardown, handing the trophy to Miller, Brian Bales, Steve Wartman, Johnny Westfall and Richard Adams rounded out the top five.

Gately took the lead on lap three, then stayed ahead of Lonnie Register for the remainder of the 30-lap feature to claim another VCS trophy.

"I figured Lonnie was real close behind me," said Gately. "I just continued running hard."

Babe Ruth

David Sweeney and Terrell Bender were effective on the mound for the A's (1-2) as Sweeney hurled the first four innings and Bender finished up the last three as the duo combined on a two-hitter.

Providing the offense for the A's were Brett Witte and Jason Thornton (one single and two runs scored each), Ned Raines Jr. (single, run), Sweeney and Shawn Greene (one single each) and Bender, Ryan Wagner, Terrance McQueen, Mike Arlington, Rod Hudson and Brad Brimley (one run scored each).

Doing the hitting for the Orioles (2-1) were Ricky Floyd (double, run), Monte Stokes (single), Albert Harris (two runs) and Bruce Carter, J.J. Bryant and Mike Hackney (one run scored each).

The Babe Ruth League will return to action Wednesday, with the Elks Lodge #1241 Cubs (1-1) facing the Nobles Construction White Sox (2-0) inside Sanford Memorial Stadium and the Rotary Club Royals (1-1) battling the Blue Jays (0-2) on Zinn Beck Field. Both games are set for a 5:45 p.m. start.

Seniors visit Fort Lauderdale

By HERMAN SCHROEDER
Herald Correspondent

Forty-three seniors went on a recent bus trip to Fort Lauderdale. They left Sanford at 6 a.m., had breakfast at the Cracker Barrel in Melbourne, arrived at the Swap Shop to do some shopping, went to their hotel, boarded the Jungle Queen, traveled on the "New" River for one hour past a lot of billionaire's homes. The captain explained whose homes were passed. Some of them had a million dollar yacht docked alongside their house.

After an hour's boat ride, the boat docked at an island with a big restaurant. The waitresses were carrying big trays of barbecued ribs, chicken and shrimp plus everything that goes with it. Everybody had all they could eat. After the meal, the group was treated to a vaudeville show for an hour. Back to the boat for another hour's boat ride back to town and back to the hotel for a good night's rest.

Eight a.m. and on the go! Had a continental breakfast at the hotel. At 10 a.m., the group left the hotel for a tour of West Palm Beach followed by lunch at a shopping mall and then came back to Sanford. Needless to say, everyone retired quite early.

Interfering with mail federal offense

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in response to the letter from "Patty H., Bonita, Calif." in California. I believe it's a federal offense to interfere with the delivery of mail, which is what her sister-in-law did when she wrote "refused" on a letter addressed to her husband, and sent it back. If Patty wanted to cause a lot of family problems, she could complain to the U.S. postal authorities. I believe there is a fine of $1,000 and up to five years in prison for interfering with the delivery of mail.

JUANITA RODRIGUEZ, FRESNO, CALIF.

DEAR JUANITA: Since I am not qualified to practice law in California (or any other state), I checked with the Office of Postal Inspectors and spoke with Inspector Pamela Prince. Actually, the fine is higher than you thought.

According to Section 1702 of the Federal Criminal Code and Rules, Title 18 — U.S. Code: "Whoever takes any letter, postcard or package out of any post office or any authorized depository for mail matter or from authorized letter or mail carrier, or which has been in any post office or authorized depository, or in the custody of any letter or mail carrier, before it has been delivered to the person to whom it was directed, with designs to obstruct the correspondence, or to pry into the business or secrets of another, or opens, secretes, embezzles, or destroys same, shall be fined not more than $2,000 or imprisoned not more than five (5) years, or both."

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter form "A Loser in Kansas": May I contribute a little input from my own experience?

I am also an average-looking 35-year-old man who has never been married — though I, too, want to meet the right woman. I am also paralyzed from the waist down, partially incontinent and basically impotent. (Just what every woman is looking for, right?)

However, in the past 10 years since my becoming "disabled," I have had three wonderful relationships, emotionally and sexually. My motto: "If what you got don't work, work with what you got."

Like you said, Abby, "If you label yourself a loser, you will never be a winner."

ALEX IN WEST CHESTER, PA.

DEAR ABBY: Please do your female readers a favor and tell them not to waste too much time with guys for whom they have "no feelings."

Also, tell the guy the truth about why you have no feelings for him. Not knowing is a lot worse than hearing, "You're too short, you don't make enough money, or you have body odor."

Stocks fall to 6-month low, when will it end?

By PATRICIA LANIELL
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — The stock market skidded to its lowest level in six months, with Wall Street professionals divided over just how bad things might get. The drop continued Monday with waves of selling that reflected apprehension about sharply rising interest rates on bonds, which are now at their highest level since President Clinton took office.

After a roller-coaster day, the Dow Jones industrial average finished 43 points down, at 3,593.35, extending the 139-point drop of the week before. The Dow is at its lowest level since early October.

The Dow is now off nearly 400 points, or 9.7 percent, from its record high of 3,978.36 reached Jan. 31.

Still, the panic-stricken sell-off that many Wall Street professionals had feared after the three-day Easter weekend didn't materialize. On the contrary, buyers emerged during the day to pick up stocks considered bargains.

"We're not selling," said Mark Stumpp, chief investment officer at PDI Strategies, a mutual fund firm in Short Hills, N.J. He said the market's drop "gives us a great buying opportunity."

In addition, anecdotal evidence showed that millions of small investors — who have been key to the market's vitality in the past few years — aren't rushing to sell.

"We do not sense any great panic, especially on the stock side," said Raymond Worsack, chief economist at A.G. Edwards & Sons, a St. Louis-based network of brokerages that cater to individual investors. "We don't detect any great groundswell of anxiety."

At Fidelity Investments, the nation's leading purveyor of mutual funds, spokeswoman Jane Jamieson said there was no significant selling. Millions of individuals own stocks through mutual funds.

By the end of the day, several big investment firms were recommending purchases of stocks and bonds, asserting they were underpriced.

At the same time, many investment professionals said the market is likely to remain volatile for some time. Some contend that Wall Street may be entering a bear market — a long slide in stock prices.

Stan Weinstein, a seasoned stock picker who publishes The Professional Tape Reader newsletter in Naples, Fla., has been advising clients that the market is in a bear-market pattern.

"My 2 cents, unless you're the nimblest of traders, is you don't buy," said Weinstein, one of the few forecasters who predicted the 1987 crash and the 1973-74 bear market, when stocks lost 45 percent in value.

"The panic and capitulation is down the road to come," he said. "Until you have that kind of purging, you won't get a major turn in the stock market, and that is still months ahead of us."

Endeavour launch delayed; Dangerous defect feared

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA postponed this week's launch of space shuttle Endeavour to check the main engines for a defect that could cause a catastrophic explosion.

Endeavour is now scheduled to blast off Friday, one day late, provided today's inspection uncovers no problems. The delay was announced Monday, just hours after the countdown began for Thursday's launch.

If the inspection finds anything suspicious or is inconclusive, a more detailed check will be made, delaying liftoff about a week, NASA said. Replacing a pump or an entire engine would take several weeks.

A routine inspection of an oxidizer pump in California late last week uncovered a defective metal strip in a pressurization line, NASA said. One of the 11 small strips that direct the flow of liquid oxygen through the pump was pointed instead of rounded.

Engineers fear the pointed shape could cause the strip to crack and send metal chips into the pump. That could lead to an engine shutdown — which would require an emergency landing — or even an explosion that could destroy the shuttle.

An inspection of 14 other pumps turned up another one with a pointed strip, NASA spokeswoman June Malone said. The first pump with the bad part had flown in space several times; the second one had never flown, Malone said. No cracks were found in either, she said.

Tests of Endeavour's pumps in past months found no evidence of cracking, NASA said.

The main engines are made by Rockwell International's Rocketdyne division of Los Angeles.

Endeavour is now due to blast off at 8:08 a.m. with a crew of six and the most sophisticated radar equipment ever built for environmental monitoring from space.

The $366 million radar instruments will scan rocks in Death Valley, forests in North Carolina and Michigan, waterways in Oklahoma and other environmentally sensitive sites so that scientists can learn more about changes in the Earth.

Ringing in the ears shouldn't be ignored

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What causes tinnitus? Can it be cured?

DEAR READER: Tinnitus (ringing in the ears) has many causes, ranging from Meniere's disease (tinnitus plus vertigo and deafness) that is untreatable, to excess wax in the ear canals, which is curable.

In my practice, the most common cause of tinnitus is irreversible nerve damage from noise. This is an occupational hazard in people employed in noisy professions -- such as construction, the airlines and the military. But it is becoming more of a problem in young, healthy adults who damage their ears by listening to amplified music. Anyone exposed to high levels of noise should take special precautions, such as using ear plugs or ear muffs; if possible, avoid the noise altogether or turn down the volume.

People with tinnitus should be examined first by their family doctors (who can easily remove ear wax or treat infection), then if necessary -- by otolaryngologists. Tinnitus should not be ignored, because if the cause is not discovered and corrected, the symptoms may worsen with time and become more difficult to treat.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Ear Infections and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What could be the cause of gradual deforming of my husband's toes and fingers? They all look knobbed, and the tips are red and globular. The nails are unnaturally convex, striated, woody and yellowish.

DEAR READER: Your husband may have a circulatory deficiency, as commonly affects diabetics, that is worsened by a chronic fungus infection of the nails. This can be treated with prescription drugs, such as Nizoral.

He should be examined by a podiatrist for appropriate nail care and then, if necessary, by a physician who can order blood analyses and other tests to determine your husband's general health and his state of circulation. In my opinion, he can be helped -- but only by qualified professionals.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Children today are tyrants. They contradict their parents, gobble their food and tyrannize their teachers. Who said that?

As deal isn't child's play. Two players must pay close attention to the spot cards. If everyone plays perfectly, what is the result in six spades doubled, after West leads a top heart?

South ruffed the opening lead low and cashed the spade ace. He wasn't surprised when East discarded the club ace. Now South led the spade seven and finessed dummy's nine. Next came a successful diamond finesse. South cashed the spade king, led his last spade to dummy's queen and finessed again in diamonds. He cashed the diamond ace and then announced he would run the rest of the diamonds before conceding a club at trick 13. Six spades doubled and made, but how many errors were committed?

The answer is two. West's error was easier to avoid. When South led the spade seven at trick three, West should have put in the jack. He knows declarer is left with the K-10-7 of spades. So, by inserting the jack, he reduces the dummy's entries to one. South cannot bring in the diamond suit without loss.

However, South could avoid this fate. Just in case West has all four spades, South should ruff the opening lead with the spade 10. Then, after cashing the spade ace, he retains the K-7-3 of spades. West cannot stop two dummy entries.

The initial statement must have been made by someone recently, right? Wrong! It was made by Socrates.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
 April 6, 1994

Your chart indicates improvements in your financial and material affairs in the year ahead. In fact, if you manage things effectively, it might be one of your better years.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It might be wise today not to become involved in any type of financial joint venture if you sense there is something disturbing about the participant. Aries, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might experience more opposition than usual in a critical one-to-one relationship today. The only way to still the waters is to find a common ground on which you can agree.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Usually you're rather good about tending others a helping hand. Today, however, you might resent impositions and refuse all request for assistance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone within your social circle might try to pull off something cute today that makes you the fall guy. If you're alert, you can reverse the attack and make the perpetrator take the hit.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) To avoid a domestic grumble today, don't resurrect an old issue upon which you and your mate couldn't agree. There's still a lot of heat left in the embers.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Guard against inclinations today to take things out of context. This could cause you to get angry with someone without any justification.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Instead of being content with your lot in life today you might compare what you have to another who you think has more. You'd be shocked if you knew the truth.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You should have adequate ambition and motivation today, yet you might not accomplish all that you hope to owing to your tactics and procedures. Don't try to force round pegs into square holes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Instead of dealing with the here and now, you might unduly dwell on past events and let old experiences prohibit you from attempting anything new.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Do not attempt to clone friends over in your own image today. Accept them for what they are, even if they don't measure up to your demanding standards.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your goals today might not be in harmony with that which is truly best for you. It's important not only to know what you want, but why you want them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're likely to be very imaginative today and this is good. However, you might dwell on negative visualizations rather than positive ones. Don't be self-defeating.
