Marine pilot dies in crash

YUMA, ARIZ. — The name of a Marine reserve pilot killed in the crash of his fighter jet was released Wednesday as investigators sought the cause of the crash in a desert wildlife refuge.

The officer killed Tuesday was Major William B. Rich, 37, of Roanoke, Va., according to a news release from the Marine Corps Air Station, Yuma. Rich was a reservist on active duty with the Marine Fighter Attack Squadron 142, based at Cecil Field Naval Air Station outside Jacksonville, Fla.

Rich's F/A 18 Hornet jet crashed while flying over the Kola Game Refuge and Wilderness Area in an exercise with three other fighter jets, said Capt. Patrick Gibbons, the base spokesman. He said an investigation continued.

The crash of the $28 million jet occurred about 44 miles northeast of the Marine base in southwest Arizona, Gibbons said.

Rich, who entered the Marine Corps in 1977, is survived by his wife Martha and two daughters, Laura and Kathryn, the Marines said.

USF-Gabon center plan exchange

LAMPA — The University of South Florida said a research center devoted to African culture is being established on campus as an outgrowth of an exchange agreement with a West African center in Gabon.

The center for African Culture will be housed under USF's Institute on Black Life, said institute director Joel Smith.

USF agreed on a research exchange program with the International Center for Bantu Civilizations in September.

The center expects to coordinate teaching, research and public service activities associated with African culture and focus on the influence of black African culture and heritage in the Americas and the Caribbean, Smith said.

Smith is seeking a grant to fund the project over a two-year period.

From one bird to another

FORT LAUDERDALE — A helicopter pilot who noticed an injured great blue heron in the Everglades took a detour from his regular duties and rescued the bird.

Bob Andrea, who was working on a government project to remove noxious melaleuca trees from the swamp, flew the 3-foot-tall wading bird Wednesday to the Broward County Fire-Rescue station at Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood International Airport.

"It just seemed like the right thing to do," said Andrea, 45, of Cooper City. "The whole purpose of the job is to improve the quality of the environment out there and wildlife is part of it."

Drug bust: Feds hurt

Cops nab 2 Sanford teens, seek 2 in sting gone sour

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A drug purchasing sting gone sour left two Drug Enforcement Administration agents injured Wednesday afternoon.

Agents, conducting a sting operation at the Budget Inn, 3200 S. Orlando Dr., Sanford, were attempting to purchase cocaine from a pair of individuals at the hotel. According to DEA agents, the attempted purchase was part of an "on-going investigation."

Jack Rowe, acting resident agent in charge, said that the Budget Inn is not a known drug area, but that the sellers had proposed to meet agents there to sell them "several kilos" of cocaine.

According to Danny Patel, manager of the Budget Inn, there has not been a drug bust there in the year that he has managed the facility.

"We don't have this kind of problem," he said. "We have two or three people out here 24-hours-a-day that keep an eye on things and

Environmentalists irked by county decision for powerline

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — A local leader of the state Florida Trails Association was disappointed in a decision Tuesday by Seminole County commissioners to allow a portion of the trail for a powerline path.

Commissioners unanimously granted Florida Power and Light permission to use a six-block section of Old State Road 13 near Chuluota to place 10 90-foot-tall towers between First and Seventh Streets to string power lines to a new power substation. Commissioners also granted FPL permission to remove trees and top remaining trees at 24 feet. Final plans have not been submitted.

"I can't even imagine the Planning and Department would approve of something like that," said Wiley Dykes, vice president of the FTA. "But, I guess that hurts us the least."

Tony Vanderworp, county planning director, said the county still plans to preserve the integrity of OSR 13, which is an old railroad path that once connected northern

Memories of 'Bolita' in Sanford

By JULIAN STENSTROM
Herald Columnist

The recent Herald headline and story about the "Bolita" sting (June 10) which resulted in some 30 arrests brought back some Depression time memories, if anybody lived in these parts back in those days they know about "Bolita" or "Cuba." Even elementary school students in those days knew about the numbers racket that engulfed Sanford, Seminole County and most of central Florida.

"Bolita" was a weekly event. It was actually the Cuban National Lottery. Numbers were drawn every Wednesday. Here in central Florida the "game" was called "Cuba" because all the lottery numbers drawn were not involved — only the last two digits.

To play "Cuba" one could wager five cents on any two-digit number or numbers from 01 to 99. If you had a five-cent ticket on a winning number it was worth a backlog of $1.

"Cuba" was heavily played by an awful lot of folks. To give you an example, sales at the Seminole High School cafeteria would "fall off" nearly every Wednesday. In those days a pupil usually had 15 cents for lunch money. For five cents you could get a large serving of rice smothered with gravy and for a nickel a steaming of serving of fresh

Blood-alcohol level 2 times over limit

DELAND — The motorist who triggered a chain-reaction collision that killed five people had a blood-alcohol level 2 1/2 times over the legal limit, the Florida Highway Patrol says.

George C. Jones, 40, who remained in serious but stable condition Wednesday at Orlando Regional Medical Center, had a level of 0.25 percent, officials said Tuesday.

Jones also had a 1991 conviction for driving under the influence of alcohol and a police record for other traffic offenses. His driver's license had been suspended several times.

Jones hasn't been charged in the Saturday crash near Osteen in Volusia County because "the investigation is still very much in its infancy," said FHP Lt. Floyd Baker.

Alcohol not a factor in boys death

WEST PALM BEACH — Alcohol was not a factor in the death of a 2-year-old boy who drowned after falling out of a boat driven recklessly by his father, authorities said.

David Mankowski's blood-alcohol level was 0.05 percent when sheriff's investigators tested it about an hour and 45 minutes after the incident Sunday afternoon.

The state considers a person legally drunk with a level of 0.10 or greater.

Mankowski, 26, has been charged with manslaughter and resisting arrest. He was released Monday on bond.

The body of his son, Chad Wright, was pulled from the West Palm Beach Canal on Monday. Investigators said the boy was not wearing the mandated life vest.

The results of other toxicology tests will be released in several weeks, detectives said.

Child hit by stray bullet

MIAMI — A 6-year-old boy was shot in the head by a stray bullet as he and his brother crossed the street, police said.

The boys had left a convenience store and were crossing a side street as they walked along Biscayne Boulevard north of downtown when Renels Elam was hit, authorities said.

Renels was pronounced dead Wednesday at Jackson Memorial Hospital, said Miami police spokesman Armando Villorin.

The bullet apparently was shot from a gun a few blocks away during a fight between two men. Police refused to comment further on the altercation or those involved, pending the outcome of the investigation, Villorin said.

No arrests were made.

Police appealed Wednesday night to the person who fired the gun to turn himself in to authorities.

Erotic Arts League finds gallery

GULFPORT — After an 18-month search for an exhibition site, the Florida Erotic Arts League has found a Pinellas County gallery willing to host a three-week show.

Organizer Jim Gromko, a Sarasota artist, and Sheila La Pointe said they started putting out feelers in February 1992 but discovered galleries were unwilling to commit.

"Mostly, they would say they were booked already, which is a good line," La Pointe said.

Lisa Cooper-Smith was willing to give the show a spot in July at her Gulfport gallery, which she opened about two months ago. "They showed me some slides, and I said, 'Let's do a show.'"

"There's been a market for erotic art since there have been artists making sculpture," said Gromko who plans to exhibit 50 pieces from 25 artists. "Sex has always sold and always will sell."

Officials stop admissions

ST. PETERSBURG — State officials have stopped a 272-bed nursing home for the indigent from accepting new patients until owners do a better job caring for its patients.

The action is the first time in three years an admissions moratorium on a nursing home has been issued in Pinellas County, said Carol King, area supervisor for the state Agency for Health Care Administration. Hillsborough officials say one moratorium has been issued there in the past two years.

The moratorium was handed down May 28 to TLC St. Petersburg, which cares for the elderly and AIDS patients. The home, formerly known as Wedgewood under different owners, has had a history of troubles with the state.

King said an inspection team in May found deficiencies in the quality of care, nursing, physician services and infection control.

TLC owner Gerard Beaudoin said he looked at the moratorium as an opportunity to make things better.

Legal assistance for the poor

Nation's strongest rule for 'pro bono' adopted by court

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Supreme Court's first-of-its-kind rule encourages lawyers to provide free legal service to the poor, but they can buy their way out for $350 a year.

The court's ruling released Wednesday asks attorneys to provide 20 hours of free work to the poor every year, unless they contribute to a legal aid organization. Some justices were troubled by the buy-out clause.

"I find it ethically repugnant to suggest that an obligation ... can be discharged merely by a contribution of money," wrote Justice Gerald Kogan in a partial dissent.

But the decision was hailed by proponents, including former American Bar Association President Talbot "Sandy" D'Alemberte, who first asked the court to force lawyers to represent the poor in 1989. "Florida is way ahead of everybody else," D'Alemberte said. "It's very likely to become a blueprint."

—Justice Gerald Kogan

Under the rule, which takes effect Oct. 1, lawyers who practice in Florida must provide at least 20 annual hours of free legal service to the poor or pay the $350 fee.

According to the Florida Bar, if all 40,000 Sunshine State attorneys meet the standard, about 800,000 hours of legal service will be available to the poor every year. Bar

President Alan Dimond of Miami said about 80 percent of lawyers in private practice already do "pro bono" work.

The goal, he said, is "to increase access to the legal system in Florida, where 80 percent of the legal needs of the poor are not being met."

While the rule does not allow lawyers to be disciplined if they refuse, it does require an annual public report to be filed on whether they performed the service or not.

Georgia, Kentucky and Arizona also have rules on free legal service for the poor, but only Florida will require reporting by the attorneys.

Writing for the court, Justice Ben Overton said the hope is that peer pressure and public review will be enough to encourage any recalcitrant lawyer to participate.

"Justice is not truly justice if only the rich can afford counsel and gain access to the courts," Overton wrote.

GMAC accused stealing sales taxes

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Two former car dealers out to prove that General Motors Corp. cheats the state of sales tax when it steps in at troubled dealerships have filed consumer complaints with the Comptroller's office.

"GM has proven itself to be an unworthy and irresponsible corporate citizen doing business according to their own terms, and this must be investigated and stopped," James O'Neal Jr. of Orlando said in a news release issued Wednesday.

O'Neal is facing criminal charges of sales tax theft and has filed one $500 million lawsuit against GM and another against General Motors Acceptance Corp., the financing arm of GM.

O'Neal and Richard Reed, also of Orlando, have joined forces in a campaign to prove that GM systematically withholds sales taxes it collects at troubled dealerships.

They filed complaints from 10 consumers with the office of Comptroller Gerald Lewis this week. They want Lewis' office to yank the license given to GMAC to operate as a lending institution.

A spokesman for the financing arm of the automaker denied Wednesday that the company has done anything wrong.

"All of our actions have been within the bounds of federal law and the laws of this particular state, Florida," said GMAC spokesman Terry Sullivan. Last month Reed, who was acquitted of sales tax theft a year ago, accused GM of sales tax theft at a meeting of Gov. Lawton Chiles and the Cabinet. Chiles directed the state Department of Revenue to look into the allegations.

Larry Fuchs, executive director of the department, later said that Reed's acquittal on criminal charges did not mean the agency had absolved him of responsibility for the $1 million in taxes generated by his Fort Pierce Buick dealership.

Costs tallied for military's Hurricane Andrew cleanup

By Associated Press

MIAMI — The U.S. government's bill for the military response to Hurricane Andrew in south Dade County came to more than $512 million — the Pentagon's largest bill ever in a single deployment for a natural disaster.

But that bill pales in comparison to foreign military operations. Operation Desert Shield-Desert Storm cost $42.6 billion.

According to the General Accounting Office, items in the hurricane bill included: More than 1 million Meals Ready to Eat left over from Desert Storm; 900,000 hot meals prepared at four field kitchens; emergency medical care for 67,100 civilian patients; operations at four tent cities; movement of more than 100,000 tons of cargo by ground and air; removal of 6.2 million cubic yards of debris; and repairs to 98 damaged schools. The Miami Herald reported Wednesday.

The tab doesn't include the salaries of 29,285 military personnel — active duty, reservists,

National Guard and civilians — who were dispatched to South Dade from around the country.

However, the salaries of 789 U.S. Army Corps of Engineers personnel who helped clean were included. The Department of Defense's personnel costs are considered expenses that would come due regardless of whether the troops were involved in disaster assistance.

But the Corps of Engineers gets paid project by project, and its work on hurricane recovery was an unanticipated expense.

With few exceptions, the hurricane-related bills have been paid by the Federal Emergency Management Agency from the $11 billion in emergency aid authorized last fall by Congress and then-President Bush.

The new report was assembled by the GAO, the investigative arm of Congress. The report calculated the military's costs for assistance to Louisiana after Hurricane Andrew, Hawaii after Hurricane Iniki and Guam after Typhoon Omar — all of which got hit within three weeks.

POLICE BRIEFS

Sexual battery

A Sanford man was arrested Tuesday on a sexual battery charge following a complaint made by a 16-year-old girl Monday.

Timothy Lamar Johnson, 23, 27 Castle Brewer Court, Sanford, was arrested at the Sanford police station after issuing a statement to police denying the allegation. He was held on charges of sexual battery, burglary and false imprisonment.

The girl reported to police she was laying on the couch in her residence when Johnson, described as her ex-boyfriend, entered her residence by way of an unlocked door. She reported Johnson assaulted her.

The girl reported she struggled away from Johnson and ran outside to a nearby pay telephone where she dialed 911. Johnson followed and took the receiver from her and dragged her back inside the residence, she reported. Inside, Johnson threw her to her bed, pulled up her nightgown, then left, before police arrived.

Domestic violence

Johnny Lee Barfield, 37, 53 Lake Monroe Terrace, Sanford, was arrested on domestic violence and assault on a law enforcement officer charges Tuesday evening.

Police, responding to a domestic disturbance complaint, reported finding Barfield barricaded in a bedroom. When police asked him to exit, they report Barfield yelled "I have a gun and I'll shoot you if you come in." After several minutes of effort by police, Barfield exited and was arrested. No firearm was recovered.

Woman reports being struck

James Kendall, 60, 2310 Park Ave., Sanford, was arrested on charges of domestic violence battery and resisting arrest Tuesday.

Kendall's live-in girlfriend reported he struck her several times and dragged her across the floor, leaving a bump on her head. Police report Kendall at first refused to allow them to enter the residence when they arrived.

Sister reports violence

Ray Lavon Little, 28, 1819 Summerlin Ave., Sanford, was arrested on a domestic violence battery charge after his sister reported he pushed her into a chair.

Cousins arrested

Arthur Lewis Havea, 38, 1830 Blackstone Ave. and Cheryl Annetta Daniels, 34, 1714 Tangerine Ave., both of Sanford, were arrested on domestic violence battery charges early Wednesday morning following a domestic scrap.

Daniels reported Havea, her cousin, slapped and pushed her and in return, she scratched him.

Traffic stop leads to drug discovery

A traffic stop early Tuesday morning led Seminole County deputies to discover more than one-half pound of marijuana early Tuesday morning at the driver's Longwood home.

A deputy reported stopping Joseph Anthony Corea Jr., 25, for driving 71 mph in a 45 mph zone on County Road 427 shortly before 6 a.m.

The deputy reported smelling marijuana in the car and after asking Corea to step out, seeing a plastic bag containing marijuana in the car's ashtray. A search of Corea revealed three more bags of marijuana, according to reports. The total amount of marijuana seized was about a half-ounce, according to reports. Corea was charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute it.

Subsequent to the arrest, Corea's residence at 733 E. Warreg Ave., Longwood, was searched and investigators report finding 233 grams of marijuana, about eight ounces. They also report finding scales and other paraphernalia. Corea was rearrested on a second possession with intent to distribute marijuana charge.

Warrant arrests made

The following wanted persons have been taken into custody: Joseph Murphy, 43, 222 Yale Drive, Sanford, arrested Tuesday on a probation violation charge for a public assistance fraud conviction.

•Audry Sears, 25, 1900 W. 13th St., Sanford, arrested Tuesday on a probation violation charge for a theft conviction.

•Harry Bryant Jr., 23, 2410 Randall St., Sanford, arrested Tuesday on an aggravated battery charge.

•Herbert Keith Sampson, 33, 1880 Mullet Lake Road, Geneva, arrested in Sanford on 17 warrants, including 15 worthless check charges.

•Truman Delanor Palmer, 48, 710 Wynn Drive, Sanford, arrested Tuesday on two charges of failure to appear in court on charges of drunken driving and driving with a suspended license.

Crimes reported to authorities

The following crimes were reported to Sanford police: •A man living in the 1400 block of East 20th Street reported he received a knock at his door at 10:40 p.m. Tuesday and when he opened the door, someone punched him. The man reported he could not identify his attacker or whether there were more than one.

•A television, video tape recorder, and other items valued at a total of $1,433 were reported taken from a residence in the 900 block of East 25th Street sometime between 5 a.m. Saturday and 4 a.m. Wednesday.

8 arrested in alleged terrorist murder plot

By ROBERT HARDY Jr., Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — Eight people were arrested today on charges that reportedly involve plotting a terrorist campaign of murders and bombings this summer, police said.

Suzanne Trazoff, deputy police commissioner, said the eight, all Muslim fundamentalists, were arrested in raids in the boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens.

She wouldn't provide details on the charges, saying the U.S. attorney's office was still drawing up charges. But New York Newsday reported today that the group was accused of planning to assassinate U.N. Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali and Sen. Alfonse D'Amato and bomb the United Nations and other sites.

The FBI and police arrested them in raids after 1 a.m. today after a four-month investigation, the newspaper said.

"The group had surveyed all the locations and produced schematics and preliminary plans" to destroy the sites, New York Newsday quoted an unidentified source as saying. "Their timetable was to execute the plans before the September World Trade Center trials."

Those arrested today are only loosely linked to the suspects in the Feb. 26 bombing of the trade center's twin towers, Trazoff said. New York Newsday said they had ties to Sheik Omar Abdul Rahman, the radical Muslim cleric who was the spiritual mentor for several suspects in that bombing.

Trazoff said some materials were turned over to the bomb squad for examination. She wouldn't elaborate, but CBS news, quoting unidentified sources, said some of those arrested were caught in the act of mixing chemicals to make bombs like the one that exploded at the trade center.

The suspects were also accused of plotting to assassinate state Assemblyman Dov Hikind of Brooklyn, a Jewish leader who like D'Amato was outspoken in condemning the trade center bombing and terrorism in general.

Hikind confirmed that he had received death threats and was getting special protection from police. "I'm happy the story is out and I hope it's the entire group," he said this morning. Newsday quoted an unidentified Justice Department source as saying the ringleader is Siddis Ibrahim Siddis Ali of Jersey City, N.J. He allegedly conspired to bomb the United Nations, FBI headquarters in lower Manhattan and one of the Port Authority tunnels under the Hudson River linking New York and New Jersey.

The Port Authority operates the Lincoln and Holland Tunnels for vehicles and a commuter train tunnel. It also operates the World Trade Center.

Port Authority Police superintendent Charles Knox confirmed that PA police recently had heightened security but would not elaborate.

"We have been informed all along and had heightened our security on the Holland tunnel but also the Lincoln and the PATH (commuter) tubes," Knox said.

Six men have been arrested in the trade center bombing and a seventh is sought. That bombing killed six people and injured more than 1,000.

The suspects in custody today are Egyptian, Palestinian and American, Newsday said. The nationality of the alleged ringleader was not immediately known.

The New York Post reported last month that the FBI discovered the death threat against Hikind when it intercepted secret plans from a "cell" of terrorists.

D'Amato also had confirmed last month that he had gotten death threats.

Pregnant woman killed, tentatively identified

By The Associated Press

BUSHNELL, Fla. — A pregnant woman and her unborn baby boy died after the woman was stabbed to death and then dumped along a rural highway, authorities said.

Relatives of Jahala Watson, 39, of Mulberry made the identification based on clothing and jewelry taken from the dead woman. Identification should be formalized after dental records are compared today.

The woman, who was stabbed in the upper body, likely bled to death 48 to 72 hours before her body was left along a rural Sumter County road Wednesday afternoon, according to the Sumter County Sheriff's Office.

The unborn baby boy died with his head in the birth canal, said Sumter sheriff's Sgt. Gary Brannen. "It was gruesome."

Authorities theorize the victim was in labor at the time of the attack, or that labor was brought on by the attack.

Shane Watson, Jahala Watson's 19-year-old son, said he last saw his mother, who was seven months pregnant, Sunday morning as she slept. Her red Ford Mustang was parked in the front of their home.

"Everyone thought she was with the father of the baby," Watson said. "We didn't think anything about it. She's a grown woman, she can do what she wants."

He said his mother sometimes goes off to the beach, but she always tells someone. For her to disappear and not telephone was unusual. He reported her missing Tuesday.

Sumter officials said the body was dumped just north of the Sumter-Polk county line Tuesday afternoon.

How easy should voting be made?

There is a growing interest in making voting easier, but that effort may well be misguided.

State Rep. Jack Ascherl of New Smyrna Beach and other proponents say voter participation is dropping because people's lives have gotten too busy and they don't have time to vote. It's become too inconvenient for them to cast ballots in modern-day life of work and busy schedules, they say. More people would participate in elections if voting were less painful, they say.

Ascherl wants residents to be able to vote up to a week before the regularly-scheduled election day. Participation will increase, the New Smyrna Beach Democrat says.

Elections supervisors from throughout the state have endorsed the intermediate step to extend voting periods by recommending removal of requirements to vote by absentee ballot. Now, absentee voters must declare they cannot cast a ballot due to some physical impairment or they won't be in their precinct during voting hours.

The change would allow anyone to vote from the comfort of their homes, whether they are capable of casting ballots in person or not. Our own elections supervisor, Sandra Gourd, opposed the change saying it will create more work for her staff in less time between elections.

But the proponent of the absentee ballot change, Orange County's elections chief, Betty Carter, says those clerical problems will be minimal. The change could entice more people to vote, Carter says.

allowed to cast ballots for three weeks before an election, turnout increased from 45.5 percent in the 1988 presidential election to 49.1 percent in 1992 after the voting period was extended, according to Curtis Gans, director of the Committee for the Study of the American Electorate in Washington, D.C.

Yet in Florida, which made no such change, turnout increased by a greater degree, from 44.7 percent to 50.2 percent, Gans notes.

The move to extend voting periods is nothing more than an attempt to appease the apathetic. Too many people neglect their privilege of voting while often exercising their right to grumble. Yet when given the opportunity to genuinely do something about those perceived problems, those grumblers don't take advantage of their true power. The Texas example shows they won't vote even if some of the hassles are removed.

Early voting has its drawbacks. The cost of elections will increase as office hours are extended or more voting locations are staffed. The potential for fraud, such as duplicate voting, will increase, sending more elections into needless turmoil. Early voting would also preclude a change of mind due to some last-minute revelation about a candidate or issue.

As Gans correctly summarizes the issue, voting requires a time commitment on the order of two or three times every two years, a minimal imposition on busy schedules.

To extend the time allowed for voting in person or through the mail, has little to recommend and much to oppose.

Apathy must not be accommodated with early voting. Any substantial changes to state balloting procedures other than those aimed at cost-savings or standardization should be opposed.

Fireworks display

The Herald tells us we're going to have a Fourth of July fireworks display this year. And, thousands of folks will gather at Fort Mellon Park so they and their little ones can see the colorful bursts in the skies.

This year I understand the Steve Alford lad who ramrods this display will not have to push for too much money this year because of the "sad" display we had last year.

May I make a suggestion: As the folks gather for this year's show why not have an organization such as the Jaycees work their way through the crowds and accept contributions for the following year's show. This climaxes the necessity of putting pressure on local businesses and organizations for each year's presentation. In other words, this year's show can help pay for next year's presentation. They do this in other parts of the country and it works.

Are the media mean to Clinton?

It should cause no surprise that President Clinton finally had a "good week," or that he will have others — perhaps even a whole string of them. There was no chance whatever that he could maintain forever his recent galfe-a-day pace.

True, it's a bit much to see Mr. Clinton taking elaborate bows because the Senate Finance Committee approved his budget bill. When they got through with it, it was hardly "his." Yet Mr. Clinton is practically handing out cigars like a proud new father. Presumably Dave Gergen has taught him that claiming a victory can be almost as good as actually winning one. In this process the president is being helped by many members of the White House press corps.

That's quite a switch from their recent conduct. Those of us who have long condemned the heavy liberal bias in the media are resigned to being told ad nauseam (LTP)(GT) for the foreseeable future that the first five months of the Clinton presidency "prove," once and for all, that the media are every bit as ready to criticize a Democratic president as they are a Republican one.

But that is nonsense, without even the merit of being original nonsense. The media have also long pointed, with equal pride, to the hard drubbing some of them gave the last Democrat in the White House, Jimmy Carter. But there are perfectly plausible explanations, though different in both cases.

In the case of Mr. Carter, it is widely forgotten that he was actually, in 1978, the rightmost serious possibility for the nomination: a "born-again" Christian who ran openly against the Beltway establishment. By 1980 a full third of the delegates to the Democratic Convention, and probably more of the media, wanted to replace him with Ted Kennedy.

As for the media's much-touted savaging of Bill Clinton, it has occurred (thus far) primarily in two widely separated time frames: the winter and early spring of 1992, and the months from February to mid-June 1993. What did these two periods have in common? Elementary, Watson: The liberal media had no great stake in how Mr. Clinton fared during either of them.

Presumably Dave Gergen has taught him that claiming a victory can be almost as good as actually winning one.

In early 1990, he was just one of half a dozen presidential candidates on the Democrats' "B" team, and by no means the obvious ultimate winner. He wasn't even the most liberal among the choices; that honor was usually conceded to Sen. Harkin. Like Gary Hart in 1988, Bill Clinton during the early primaries was just another haunch of raw meat for a hungry press corps that had plenty of liberal alternatives to support instead. So they pursued the successive revelations about his draft evasion as mercilessly as they had pursued Gary Hart's antics on the good ship Monkey Business (LTP)(GT).

Later in the spring, however, when Mr. Clinton moved toward the front of the pack and began to appear likely to be the nominee, the media closed ranks around him like a Praetorian Guard. Gennifer Flowers' story was resolutely ignored, even though additional corroborating details continued to pour in right through the summer. Near the end of the campaign, and straight through the transition, the tone of adulation was overpowering.

But don't confuse this playfulness with neutrality. When Mr. Clinton faces a Republican challenger again, the media will line up for him like so many needles in a magnetic field.

Like Clinton, media needs OJT

Amid the flubs and fluffs, excesses and excuses, and just plain bad decisions, the chroniclers of the Clinton presidency have dished daily derision about our chief executive's need for "O.J.T."

But let's face it: Those calls for "on-the-job training" can be applied not just to the herky-jerky performance of our young president and his young staff — but to the media's unseasoned and uneven coverage of the president, as well.

The media's miscues in presidential coverage have fallen into two categories: (1) Too tough on Clinton. (2) Too easy on Clinton. Consider the record.

Too Tough on Clinton: At times, reporters reached for their traditional all-seeing lens but grabbed a magnifying glass instead. Result: Media coverage made small blunders loom larger than life; worthy topics got short shrift. You saw more ink and airtime devoted to covering a haircut than a budget cut. And print and TV news chiefs gave you virtually no reports about the controversial writings of Lani Guinier (your only "news" came from your favorite columnists) until after Clinton withdrew her nomination as assistant attorney general-civil rights.

At times, some in the media rushed not just to judge, but to ridicule (See Time's visual-verite cover: "Our Incredible Shrinking President"; also Newsweek's gag-us-with-a-spoon coverline: "What's Wrong? ... Ugh! A Mess in the White House"). And analysis has been inconsistent: When Clinton refused to compromise on his economic stimulus package, he was said to have failed because he was inflexible. But when he later compromised with Western senators on his budget, he was painted as a president who can be rolled by any freshman rep.

Too Easy on Clinton: The Clinton press corps failed us by failing to press Clinton in back-to-back news conferences about what they knew of his Supreme Court nomination process. They knew presidential advisers deliberately turned it into The Great Washington Trial Balloon Race. Yet they sat silently as Clinton deplored the mystery of the leaks that first surfaced Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt, then Judge Stephen G. Breyer, and finally Judge Ruth Bader Ginsburg. Said Clinton: "I regret the leaks. But it's not fair to say I hung them out."

The Clinton press corps, like the old fall-safe balloon game had worked well for Clinton. But they never challenged him or told you what they knew.

The Babbitt Balloon: When top-level informed sources put out the word that Babbitt was Clinton's likely choice, Western politicos deluged the president with pleas to keep Babbitt at Interior; so Clinton looked elsewhere.

The Breyer Balloon: Suddenly reporters found top-level sources naming Judge Breyer as Clinton's top choice. Then the sources put out word that Clinton had long known of Breyer's failure to pay Social Security taxes for a housekeeper. Prominent women in politics protested that Clinton would dare approve a male after bypassing Judge Kimba Wood for

The media's miscues in presidential coverage have fallen into two categories.

Woosh! — the Ginsburg Balloon was up, up, and away.

When Clinton decided to hold his first-ever prime-time news conference, the TV execs of CBS and ABC decided not to cover it, insisting they knew he had nothing newsworthy to say. That makes sense only if you think the execs knew their reporters had nothing newsworthy to ask. Or, if you think today's TV execs care more about money from prime-time commercials than about their public news responsibility (unlike their responsible routine in all presidencies past), NBC covered Clinton but bizarrely pulled the plug after 32 minutes. CNN, PBS and C-Span gave Americans their first prime-time chance to observe Clinton being questioned from start to finish by journalists.

Now the good news: These examples are not rooted in ideology. They are simple media misfeasance — by reporters in the press room and decision-makers in newsrooms and media boardrooms. They can be easily cured with a dash of O.J.T.

After 20 years, Watergate persists

For 20 years, I have greeted the June 17 anniversary of the Watergate burglary with great enthusiasm. The event that led to the downfall of the nefarious Richard Nixon is, in my judgment, supremely worthy of celebration.

But this year I am sad. All the great, gnawing riddles of Watergate seem to have been solved. There are no mysteries left.

Well, are there? Last year renowned CBS investigative reporter Mike Wallace revealed that Deep Throat was the acting director of the FBI at the time — L. Patrick Gray. (Gray denied it, but don't they always?) So Deep Throat now has a name instead of a pornographic cognomen, and there goes that mystery.

The event that led to the downfall of the nefarious Richard Nixon is, in my judgment, supremely worthy of celebration.

Then a couple of guys named Len Colodny and Robert Gettlin published a book called "Silent Coup: The Removal of a President," and there went the most intriguing mystery of all — the question of why Nixon's 1972 campaign team felt a need to penetrate the Democratic National Committee's Watergate headquarters in the first place.

Theories have abounded through the years: The burglars were simply seeking political intelligence; they were trying to link the Democrats with radical groups; they were really CIA agents and they deliberately bungled the burglary because the agency distrusted Nixon.

But all that went out the window with the Colodny/Gettlin book. The person who plotted the burglary, they wrote, was White House counsel John Dean, who was worried that the DNC files were bulging with negative stuff about his fiancée, Maureen, who was good friends with a woman who was running a call-girl ring that was servicing the randy Democrats.

But wait a minute. Remember that Mike Wallace report? One of the people he interviewed was a man named Alfred C. Baldwin III, a member of the burglary ring who was stationed across the street from the Watergate office complex and assigned the task of monitoring the phones that were bugged by his buddies. Baldwin listened to more than 200 Democratic conversations, and this is what he had to say to Mike Wallace:

"I have been asked ... whether or not any type of call ring or prostitution type ring was operating out of the Democratic National headquarters, and I can categorically state ... that no such operation was being conducted, at least from the conversations that I was monitoring."

So perhaps the Colodny/Gettlin theory is a little off the wall, and the "why" of Watergate remains a mystery. But there is a solution that gains credibility as the others collapse, and it is known to aficionados as "the Greek Connection."

In 1968, Richard Nixon's Greek-American vice presidential running mate, Spiro Agnew, declared his neutrality with regard to the military junta holding power in Athens. Then Agnew did an abrupt about-face and strongly endorsed the junta. Why?

Greek journalist Elias Demetracopoulos, who had come to Washington to set up a one-man, anti-junta task force, had an answer: The Greek Intelligence Service, founded and subsidized by the CIA, had funneled $549,000 into the Nixon-Agnew campaign and the bagman had been a Greek-American businessman, Nixon pal and CIA asset named Thomas Pappas. In 1968, Demetracopoulos went to DNC Chairman Larry O'Brien with this intelligence.

cabbage. A slice of bread came for free. The other five cents was for a half pint of milk.

But on Wednesdays milk sales dropped off and pupils drank water instead. Most used the nickel they would spend for milk to buy a "Cuba" ticket.

From time to time, even today, the name of Colonel Harland Blackburn pops up in the newspapers, on the radio and even on television. It was a known fact back in those days Blackburn was the kingpin of the numbers business in central Florida and operated out of his Longwood home. From time to time Blackburn paid his dues by being hauled into court where he would face the late Circuit Court Judge Volle A. Williams Jr. Blackburn would spend some time behind bars but soon be out running his gambling empire again.

During the "Bolita" and "Cuba" heyday Blackburn had a lieutenant by the name of Clyde Lee. One morning right after Interstate 4 was opened to the public, a new service station was opened on the southwest quadrant of that interchange. Lee drove into the station early one morning and parked his car next to a newly installed Southern Bell telephone booth, went inside, deposited his nickel, and dialed the number he wanted.

Suddenly a hailstorm of sub-machine bullets ripped that phone booth from here to yonder. Seminole County Sheriff J.L. Hobby designated now retired Sheriff's Captain J.Q. "Slim" Galloway to investigate.

Just recently Galloway remarked, "How Clyde Lee ever got out of that phone booth alive I'll never understand."

But Lee did survive the attempted assassination and to this day nobody has ever been charged with the attempt on Lee's life. Galloway and his people had some pretty good ideas who the gunmen were but obtaining evidence that would stand up in court was another question entirely.

Whatever happened to Lee? Nobody seems to know except that some folks believe they read his obituary in the newspapers several months ago. Whatever happened to Blackburn? He was recently back in court again.

Although they came near to despising one another, Constance Williams, widow of the late Judge Williams, said recently that Blackburn paid Williams what he considered his finest compliment during the many years the judge sat on the bench.

Blackburn told Williams one day in court that he was the fairest and most honest jurist he ever appeared before.

Between serving jail terms Blackburn operated a roadside produce stand under a huge tree at the corner of Red Bug Road and Tusawilla.

(At one time my wife, Louise Stenstrom, was the principal's secretary to Owen McCarron at Tusawilla Middle School. On the way home in the afternoons she would stop and buy tomatoes from Blackburn. She said he was one of the nicest persons she ever met and his tomatoes were delicious.)

"Cuba" was not only popular with the white folks. It was played heavily by black people, too. A northern newspaper called the Pittsburgh Courier, published by a black operated company, sold in Sanford like hotcakes. It carried cartoons, comics, interpretations of dreams and many other kinds of information that folks perused to come up with the winning digits. The newspaper was easily identified since it was printed on bright orange newsprint.

Local folks were not at all surprised that some group had revived the numbers game. It was surprising it hadn't happened before now. Of course, back in the early days when "Bolita" and "Cuba" were so popular, drugs, weapons and illegal vehicles were not involved. One other difference was that the drawings were once a week on Wednesdays instead of twice a week on Tuesdays and Saturdays as discovered by the sting.

Witness fifth shooting victim in major drug case

By RICHARD COLE
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — Witnesses have been shot and federal agents threatened in one of the nation's biggest drug prosecutions, but the case will go to trial, authorities in Miami insist.

The case involves Augusto Guillermo "Willie" Falcon and Salvador Magluta, two accused Miami drug traffickers with connections to Panama's current president.

They allegedly ran the biggest drug ring on the East Coast in the 1980s, importing 75 tons of cocaine. After their October 1991 arrests, federal authorities identified $2.1 billion in assets they controlled in Dade and Monroe counties.

Despite a wave of violence that has left five people shot, Falcon and Magluta — now in jail — are scheduled to go on trial in October, said Dan Gelber, spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office.

Federal agents involved in the case have been threatened, and several had to move, according to a law enforcement source who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The latest casualty was key witness Bernardo Gonzalez Jr., who died in a hail of gunfire Tuesday at his barbed-wire encircled west Dade County home. Gonzalez's brother was also shot and critically wounded. No one was arrested.

In January 1991, Gonzalez pleaded guilty to drug-related conspiracy and tax counts, and was scheduled to be a witness against Falcon and Magluta in their trial.

"He ran a boat operation for Falcon bringing loads of cocaine from the Bahamas — probably as many as 20 loads," said one former federal law enforcement source familiar with the case.

Gonzalez had refused to go into the federal witness protection program despite previous violence, said his attorney Fred Schwartz.

"He was less afraid the last time I saw him," Schwartz said. "He thought the future was bright."

Gonzalez was not the first witness in the case to be shot.

In May 1992, Gonzalez's co-defendant Lazaro Cruz, who also pleaded guilty and cooperated with authorities, was shot several times in the stomach as he left his Hialeah home, but survived. No one was arrested.

On August 4, 1992, Falcon's wife, Alina, was shot repeatedly in the face and killed as she left a swanky Coral Gables beauty parlor. But Metro-Dade police spokesman Don Blocker said there was no evidence the case was anything but random street violence, and several suspects were arrested.

On Aug. 5, 1992, Juan Barroso, a co-defendant of Falcon and Magluta who agreed to testify against them, was shot and wounded at a gas station in West Miami as he changed a tire someone had slashed. No one was arrested.

On Aug. 22, Luis Escobedo, another Falcon-Magluta co-defendant who agreed to cooperate with prosecutors, was shot to death outside a Coconut Grove nightclub. That case is still open, said Miami police spokesman Angelo Blasis.

Suspicion naturally falls on Falcon and Magluta, but frustrated authorities have been unable to pin anything directly on the two men.

A gun and a cellular telephone were found in their federal prison block last year, sparking an internal investigation, but nothing could be tied to the alleged dealers.

However, a government informant who spent time in prison with Gonzalez told television station WSVN that he heard a jailhouse conversation between Falcon's friends detailing the shootings.

"They were talking about how they were going to get back at whoever spoke and whoever testified, and how they were going to teach, they were going to show the snitches ... a lesson," the informant said.

Federal authorities have been tight-lipped about the witness shootings.

Falcon's attorney, Albert Kreiger, was out of town Wednesday, according to his secretary. Magluta's Boston-based attorney, Martin Weinberg, was in Miami but out of his local office, secretaries there said.

The Falcon-Magluta case, caused shock waves not only in Miami but in Panama, one of several locations where the men allegedly laundered their drug profits.

The law firm of Panama's current President Guillermo Endara — who replaced Manuel Noriega after the U.S. invasion — set up 33 front companies for the two men.

Endara, who was senior partner at the time, later denied knowing Falcon and Magluta, were drug smugglers. The DEA said they had no evidence to the contrary.

and southern sections of the state. In 1990, commissioners pledged to preserve most of the path through the county for hiking and horse trails.

The Florida Trail extends 900 miles from Lake Okeechobee to Georgia. All but about 10 percent of the trail is publicly owned, said Dykes, of Winter Park. The main trail passes through Seminole County along OSR 13 before heading west along State Road 419. A spur of the trail continues north over the Econlockhatchee River.

Dykes said hikers can always walk around powerline poles, but added "Any development on the trail isn't good. You want it as primitive as possible."

VanDerworp said alternate routes were considered, including routes along SR 419 and Langford Drive, but those paths affected more residents.

"We're not worried about the sections of OSR 13 in Chuluota and Lake Mills, that's residential," said VanDerworp. "Our concern is north through Magnolia Lakes and across the Econ. We have turned down proposals for that section."

Suddenly a hailstorm of sub-machine bullets ripped that phone booth from here to yonder. Seminole County Sheriff J.L. Hobby designated now retired Sheriff's Captain J.Q. "Slim" Galloway to investigate.

Local folks were not at all surprised that some group had revived the numbers game. It was surprising it hadn't happened before now. Of course, back in the early days when "Bolita" and "Cuba" were so popular, drugs, weapons and illegal vehicles were not involved. One other difference was that the drawings were once a week on Wednesdays instead of twice a week on Tuesdays and Saturdays as discovered by the sting.

blood alcohol level was .21 following the September 20 accident pleaded guilty to two counts of driving under the influence (DUI) manslaughter and three counts of DUI causing serious bodily injury. A person with a blood alcohol level of .10 is considered legally drunk in Florida.

Two Winter Garden women, Michelle L. McLeod, 29, and Gardenia B. Saintville, 30, were killed and Saintville's three children, a son, Katanga Patrice Wellington, 7, and daughters, Geraldine Edalia Saintville, 8, and April Shancene Bostwick, 12, were seriously injured. Geraldine, who was left a paraplegic as a result of the accident, attended the hearing this morning, seated in her wheelchair. The ages of the children are at the time of the accident. Arnett and his passenger, William Petty, DeLand were also injured. Assistant State Attorney Carol Wilder said the negotiated 17-year sentence for Arnett on the two second degree and three third degree felonies was the maximum sentence according to sentencing guidelines.

Prior to Arnett's sentencing, Seminole Circuit Court Judge Alan Dickey was expected to ask if family members and the survivors wished to testify about the impact of the accident on their lives.

McLeod was driving westbound on I-4, according to the police report. Arnett was eastbound, driving at an estimated 100 mph. He attempted to pass another vehicle, lost control of his car, and slid across the median strip hitting McLeod's vehicle head-on. The injured were taken to area hospitals.

According to a statement from Petty, Arnett had three mixed drinks in Orlando and had at least four or five beers. From the time the pair got on the interstate, Petty told police Arnett "had it nailed the whole way" driving at up to 120 mph. Arnett drank beer as he drove and tossed the cans out of the car window, Petty said in his interview with police.

When asked if he was in a hurry, Petty said Arnett replied, "I'm just having fun."

As the pair continued along I-4, Petty said Arnett, "kept cutting in between traffic, running people off the road, tossing out beer cans." Petty told police Arnett said if the cops tried to stop him, he wouldn't. Petty said he (Petty) was sober at the time of the accident.

The accident occurred about one and a half to two miles west of the Lake Mary Blvd. exit shortly after 7 p.m. on Sunday, September 20. Arnett's driver's license had been suspended prior to the accident.

free of this sort of thing."

Patel said that one of the young men arrested had checked into the hotel earlier in the day. The other individuals were not with him when he checked in.

"We don't have any way of knowing, 100 percent, somebody's business," he said.

The agents involved in the operation said they had expected to be dealing with only two individuals, but when they arrived to make the purchase there were four individuals there.

The deal turned bad when the individuals from whom the agents were trying to buy the cocaine turned on them and attempted to rob them, they said. During the robbery attempt, one agent was struck with a pistol and another agent's arm was injured.

Two of the individuals were arrested at the scene while their two accomplices fled on foot and are still at large.

Arrested were two 17-year-olds. One, Eric "Willie" Ingram, of 69 Castle Brewer Ct., Sanford, will be treated as an adult in court, Rowe said, because he already has a criminal record and has been through the court system as an adult on a previous occasion. The other young man will be treated as a juvenile.

Arthur Lorenzo "Jap" Polk, 19, of 113 Geneva Gardens, Apt. 706, Sanford, is still being sought by officials. He is a black male, 5'8", 130 pounds. He has gold teeth in front. Officials are not releasing any information on the second suspect, but believe he is 19 years-old.

Charges of armed robbery, false imprisonment, attempted murder of a law enforcement officer, aggravated battery of a law enforcement officer, aggravated assault of a law enforcement officer and the use of a firearm in the commission of a felony have been filed against the two who were arrested and will be filed against the other two as well.

Rowe said federal charges are pending against the four young men.

Law enforcement officials from the DEA, from the Seminole County sheriff's office and from the Sanford Police Department called off the search at 2 a.m. and were to have resumed the search this morning.

A car belonging to the individuals involved in the sale was impounded by federal agents.

Official thanks Miss America for her candid stance on AIDS

By GUY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — For her candid but controversial efforts to educate students about AIDS, the reigning Miss America is getting a letter of thanks from Florida's top health official.

Dr. Charles Mahan, the state health officer, said in a letter this week 21-year-old Leanza Cornett of Jacksonville deserved credit instead of criticism for her speeches.

"The fact that a couple of Florida school boards felt compelled to limit the subject areas of your presentation is appalling and embarrassing to myself and my colleagues in public health," Mahan wrote.

Miss Cornett was recently ordered not to use the word "condom" in presentations on the disease at a Jacksonville school and has encountered resistance from groups opposed to her frankness on the issue in other school speeches.

Mahan said in an interview Wednesday he felt compelled to write because of the difficulty in getting civic groups and educators to talk seriously about AIDS.

"To find a public figure who will take it on themselves, it's just fantastic," he said. "For that person to run into problems because local folks aren't thinking too broadly, it's just a shame."

In St. Lucie County, fallout from one of Miss Cornett's visits continued Tuesday as school officials promised to take greater care in sex education discussions after her April talk on condoms drew criticism from religious groups.

The Rev. Dale Ingersoll, a spokesman for a coalition of St. Lucie County Christian groups, said the organization wanted the board to adhere to its policy of stressing sexual abstinence to avoid AIDS.

Losing battle of the bulge, trying harder to stay healthy

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — More Americans are exercising, wearing seat belts and using smoke detectors, but most are still losing the battle of the bulge, a survey says.

Sixty-five percent of adults are overweight, according to the survey of health habits released today by Prevention magazine.

The magazine has sponsored similar surveys for the past decade and this year's score on its Prevention Index was the highest ever: 67.3 out of a possible 100. That was almost six points higher than in 1984.

"Americans are now much more safety conscious than they were 10 years ago," the magazine said.

Seventy-one percent of adults said they always buckle their seat belt in the front seat of a car, up from 19 percent in 1983.

Only 17 percent said they sometimes drive after drinking, down from 28 percent a decade ago.

Eighty-nine percent said their homes have smoke detectors (up from 67 percent) and 40 percent said they get at least 20 minutes of strenuous exercise three times a week (up from 34 percent). Seventy-eight percent get some exercise.

The results were drawn from a telephone poll of 1,250 adults that Princeton Survey Research Associates conducted last Nov. 16-Dec. 4. The margin of error was three points, plus or minus.

Thirty percent of the people in this year's poll said they were smokers, up from 25 percent last year.

A much larger government survey — the annual National Household Survey on Drug Abuse — released Wednesday indicated 54 million Americans, or 26 percent of the population 12 and older, were cigarette smokers.

Walter D. Broadnax, the deputy secretary of health and human services, joined magazine editors at a news conference unveiling the Prevention Index.

"Prevention — facing the small before it becomes big — is the single most important factor in building and maintaining healthy individuals and a healthy society," Broadnax said in a prepared statement.

The Clinton administration is building its health and welfare policies around the concept of prevention, from its childhood immunization campaign to its still unfinished plan to overhaul the entire health system, he said.

"The more we look for answers" to problems from AIDS to drug abuse to smoking-related illnesses, he said, "the more prevention stands out as our most effective strategy."

Five out of six people said they have their blood pressure checked each year, 64 percent eat fiber and 49 percent try to limit the cholesterol in their diet. Three-quarters go to the dentist once a year.

But 62 percent said they feel under great stress once or twice a week.

Forty percent said they were teetotalers.

That shrill sound of senators looking out for themselves

By JILL LAWRENCE
An AP News Analysis

WASHINGTON — Democrats are inveterate taxers intent on decimating small business. Republicans are determined to protect the rich and penalize the vulnerable. President Clinton is breaking promise after promise.

That was the shrill sound of senators debating a mammoth package of tax hikes and spending cuts Wednesday, as they tried to fathom the wishes of the American public and ensure their own political futures.

Those with the most immediate stakes are the 33 senators up for re-election next year. But there are also at least a couple with their eyes on a 1996 challenge to Clinton.

"Hundreds of thousands of Americans will lose their jobs because of this bill. Bill Clinton will be one of those Americans, but he will deserve to lose his job," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas. He wouldn't mind having that job himself.

"We've got to help the president keep his campaign promises," said another potential White House contender, Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole, as he introduced a "tax-free in '93" budget alternative.

Even before Dole offered his plan, Clinton served up his opinion of it: "Nothing but a shield to keep the wealthiest Americans from paying their fair share, even though their taxes went down for the last 12 years while the deficit exploded."

Senate floor debate, scheduled to conclude today, opened Wednesday amid the props and histrionics that accompany either a truly historic moment or one destined to live on in some future challenger's TV commercials.

Never mind that one Republican, Alan Simpson of Wyoming, dismissed the competing Clinton and Dole plans as "pure appeasement on both sides of the aisle."

Some senators appealed dramatically for deficit reduction on behalf of future generations.

Others went with charts and graphs. One Democrat, in a particularly theatrical gesture, tossed the Dole plan into a trash can. Dole, who started his day with appearances on four TV talk shows, used a gigantic yellow pencil as a pointer. A close-up camera shot revealed that it carried this message: "For 'big' spending cuts."

His product, alas, was devised hastily, presented belatedly and defeated Wednesday within hours of its birth.

Draconian, said one Democrat. A charade, said another. A package only Donald Trump, Ivan Boesky and Leona Helmsley could love, said a third.

"Three hundred and eighty-three pages of rubbish and gibberish," said Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa. "It should be received in the spirit in which it is offered. This is politics," said Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn.

No one was disputing that. Much of the argument centered on what exactly Americans wanted when they elected Clinton, and the 1994 elections were not far from anyone's mind. Who would be punished more severely — lawmakers who voted to raise taxes, or lawmakers who voted to cut programs?

Republicans were putting their faith in their time-honored no-new-taxes theme. But Democrats predicted voters would reject candidates who endorsed Dole's attempt to slash Medicare and other benefits popular with the middle class.

Republicans gleefully bludgeoned Clinton with his book of campaign promises. Putting People First. They repeatedly cited his most notable reversal — abandonment of a middle-class tax cut. But the GOP insistence on protecting the rich from any tax increases gave Democrats all the ammunition they seemed to need.

After a day of populist assaults on Republicans, Sen. Charles Grassley of Iowa was moved to sniff that "there is no class in class warfare."

LOCALLY

Dauphin keys O-Cubs' rout

ORLANDO — Phil Dauphin hit a three-run homer to help lead the Orlando Cubs to a 14-3 win over the Huntville Stars in a Southern League game Wednesday night.

Ozzie Timmons and Corey Kupano also homered for the Cubs.

Kennle Steenstra (1-0) picked up the win while Curtis Shaw (0-10) took the loss for the Stars.

Magic 'look' at Bradley

ORLANDO — A personal interview, physical examination and stack of 2-year-old game films will have to do for the Orlando Magic's pre-draft evaluation of Brigham Young's Shawn Bradley.

The team finished a series of meetings with prospective No. 1 picks on Wednesday, talking at length with the 7-foot-8 center who has spent the last two years on a church mission in Australia.

Michigan's Chris Webber, Kentucky's Jamal Mashburn and Memphis State's Anfernee Hardaway have worked out for the Magic.

Bradley averaged 14.8 points, 7.7 rebounds and 5.21 blocked shots per game in his only college season.

AROUND THE STATE

Arocha shines in 'homecoming'

MIAMI — Rene Arocha, a hero in Miami's Cuban-American community, pitched 5½ innings and drove in two runs with his first major-league hit to lead the St. Louis Cardinals past the Florida Marlins 4-3 Wednesday night.

The game was Arocha's first in Miami, where he defected from the Cuban national team nearly two years ago. A crowd of 37,936 cheered each time Arocha's name was announced, and he received a standing ovation when he left the game.

Arocha (6-2) earned the victory in his shortest stint as a starter. The right-hander gave up six hits, two walks and two earned runs while striking out two.

Sheffield a Marlin?

MIAMI — Florida general manager Dave Dombrowski confirmed the Marlins are engaged in serious trade talks with San Diego about third baseman Gary Sheffield, last year's NL batting champion.

The Sun-Sentinel in Fort Lauderdale reported today that the 24-year-old Sheffield will join the Marlins in a trade for reliever Trevor Hoffman and two minor-league pitchers. Sheffield, 24, hit .330 with 33 home runs and 100 RBI last season and is hitting .295 with 10 homers and 36 RBI this season.

Meanwhile in Houston, attorneys entered an innocent plea on Sheffield's behalf on a misdemeanor assault charge. He was arrested June 16 in front of a restaurant near the Astrodome after an argument with a police officer.

Lightning looking at St. Pete

TAMPA — Tampa Bay Lightning officials want to know from season ticket holders where they want the team's home to be.

The Lightning is conducting a telephone survey to gauge how a move to the Florida Suncoast Dome in St. Petersburg next season would affect the team's 4,500 season-ticket holders, team officials said Wednesday. The survey began Tuesday and will take about a week, the team said.

The Lightning played its first season at the 10,425-seat Expo Hall, the second smallest facility used by a National Hockey League team. Lightning officials said the limited seating cost the team millions of dollars.

AROUND THE WORLD

de Bruin, Cipolla key Florida comeback

From Staff Reports

COCOA — Lake Mary High School's Jody de Bruin scored two goals and assisted on two others to help rally Florida to a 6-2 win over Louisiana in the Under-18 Southeast Regional tournament Wednesday night at the Cocoa Expo Center.

Lyman graduate Frank Cipolla added a goal and an assist. John Bernard, another Lyman graduate, also is playing for Florida.

The tournament, sponsored by the United States Youth Soccer Association's Olympic Development Program, serves as a tryout camp for the USYSA's Southeast Region team, a part of the USYSA's national team player pool for that age group.

In other games Wednesday at the Cocoa Expo Center, Tennessee edged Arkansas 3-2, Oklahoma trimmed Georgia 3-2, and North Carolina blanked the Florida B team 2-0. Later Wednesday, North Texas was to play South Carolina and South Texas took on a Composite team.

This evening, Florida (which opened the tournament with a 3-1 win over the Composite team on Tuesday) plays South Texas at 7 p.m.

On Wednesday, de Bruin gave Florida a 1-0 lead with a goal 24 minutes into the match on an assist from Miami's Chris Torres. But Louisiana stormed back, scoring goals in the 34th and 39th minutes to take a 2-1 lead into halftime.

Louisiana carried the momentum into the second half until de Bruin set up Clearwater-Countryside's Kevin Alvaro, who scored the tying goal in the 52nd minute.

Cipolla then gave Florida a 3-2 lead with his unassisted goal in the game's 59th minute. Five minutes later, de Bruin scored on an assist

Power Grip splits pair with Post 6

From Staff Reports

DeLAND — Rob Morgan tossed a three-hit shutout Wednesday night, leading Sanford American Legion Post 53's Power Grip to a 10-0 win over DeLand Post 6 and a split of their doubleheader at Conrad Park.

Morgan (2-0) struck out six and walked two in before the game was stopped after six innings by the 10-run mercy rule.

In the first game, DeLand exploited four Sanford errors in a 10-6 victory.

Pete Bezered, who will be a sophomore at Seminole Community College in the fall, led Post 6 in the first game with a double and a single. Jose Siler also was 2-for-4 with a double.

Sanford had taken a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning, but a couple of misplays on defense fueled a five-run outburst by DeLand in the bottom of the first. Sanford got a run back in the second, but DeLand struck for four more runs in the home half of the third.

"Haney's doing a good job for us," said Lake Mary coach Allen Tuttle. "He throws strikes and stays ahead of the hitters."

For three innings, it was as Morgan and Westfall matched shutout innings. But in the top of the fourth, Power Grip reached Westfall for six runs, then chased him from the game during a three-run rally in the fifth.

Rex Leach, vice president of the Sanford Rotaract Club, presented a $1,000 check to Sally Whigham, representing the Thomas Whigham Scholarship Foundation. The foundation presents $1,000 scholarship to a Seminole High School student each year. Thomas Whigham, a SHS graduate and local attorney, died of AIDS five years ago. It was his wish that a deserving student be given a scholarship each year.

Guilty part-time mother becomes full-time Santa

DEAR ABBY: In regard to the jealous woman whose boyfriend sent his 6-year-old a dozen roses, you wrote:

"Children of divorced parents are often the beneficiaries of extravagant gifts from fathers who feel guilty because they can't be full-time daddies to their children." Red flag, Abby! Mothers do this, too!

My husband's three small children live with us and visit their mother twice a month. It's a dreaded weekend because without fail, these kids come home with new toys, new clothes, money, etc. It's amazing to what lengths this woman will go to buy these children's love.

You're right, Abby - guilt is the motivating factor. Unfortunately, it is detrimental for the children, as it teaches them greed and selfishness. Also, the children want to know why Daddy doesn't buy them anything. (He can't afford to because of the alimony he must pay his ex-wife.)

I hope these children will

understand what is going on later in life, and not base their love on how much someone buys for them.

IT'S HAPPENING IN SACRAMENTO

DEAR HAPPENING: Most children are materialistic; what kids don't like gifts and clothes and money? And later on - a car for their 16th birthday? But kids grow up to be thinking adults, and where there is no real love - only "things" - they will eventually feel the emptiness.

DEAR ABBY: I have a question that I hope you - or perhaps one of your readers - can help with.

Every photograph I have ever seen that was taken in a photographer's studio shows couples wherein the wife (or fiancée) is standing beside her husband (or fiancé) who is seated on a bench or chair.

Who started this? Apparently that was the custom in those days. One would think that courtesy (proper manners) would have the woman seated and the gentleman standing. Why was the opposite the custom in those days? I have been greatly intrigued by this for many years.

NORMAN E. SAVAGE, HICKORY RIDGE, ARK.

DEAR MR. SAVAGE: I can only speculate that the early photographers positioned their subjects that way, interestingly enough the photographs of my great-grandparents (taken in "the old country") show the man seated, and his wife standing - with one hand planted firmly on his shoulder. Readers?

Liver disease linked to gallstones

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 67-year-old with cirrhosis, despite the fact that I don't drink alcohol. My doctor has prescribed Actigall. How does this drug work in the body? Can I expect to cure my disease?

DEAR READER: Cirrhosis simply means that the liver is studded with nodules surrounded by scar tissue. Although most cases in the United States are caused by alcohol abuse, cirrhosis can also be caused by infection, toxins, obstruction to bile drainage, hemochromatosis (iron overload), malnutrition, and a host of other diseases.

In short, cirrhosis is the end stage of severe liver injury. The diagnosis is made by biopsy. You apparently have liver disease caused by gallstones that block the flow of bile from the liver to the intestine. Accordingly, your doctor prescribed Actigall, a new medicine that dissolves gallstones. Such gallstones are customarily present in the gallbladder and are made up of cholesterol.

By interfering with the production of cholesterol (in the liver) and by altering the chemical reactions of cholesterol stones, the drug prevents the formation of new stones, as well as dissolving ones that are already present. The therapy has to be continued for several months; side effects include itching, nausea, diarrhea and other minor symptoms.

The traditional method of treating gallstones -- by surgically removing them -- is not appropriate for all patients, especially those with heart disease for whom operations are risky. Therefore, Actigall therapy is usually reserved for patients who are not surgical candidates.

I do not know whether Actigall will solve your problem. Although it may help prevent further liver damage, it will not reverse the cirrhosis that you already have. You will need periodic ultrasound examinations to monitor your progress. If, within 12 months of therapy, the stones are still present, your doctor will have to consider other treatment options, such as surgery, despite the risks.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Englishman David Mercer said, "Did you hear what the white rat said to the other white rat? 'I've got the psychologist so well trained that every time I ring the bell he brings me something to eat.'"

Well, one of the arts of bridge is being able to enter the mind of another player -- the declarer or a defender -- and asking yourself what you would have done in his position. Sometimes this will point you to the right play.

South's one-spade response is debatable. The key feature of the hand is the good club suit. But players are brainwashed into thinking that only major suits are fit for bidding. Here, you will notice, five clubs is an excellent contract. Yet South's bid helped him in the play.

West led the heart jack. Declarer won in hand with the ace and played off dummy's two top diamonds. When the queen didn't drop, South finessed the club jack. West won with the king but continued with another heart. Declarer claimed nine tricks.

"You had six clubs?" asked an incredulous West. "Sorry, partner. But how could I tell?" It was difficult, but suppose you were South with a guaranteed spade stopper. Wouldn't you establish diamonds? In all likelihood, South's actual line strongly suggested that he was trying to run nine tricks without losing the lead and was giving himself a chance in both minors.

Whenever a competent player does something strange, ask yourself why. Maybe the answer won't be so elusive and it will help you to find the winning response.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Friday, June 25, 1993

In the year ahead you may enter into several partnership arrangements which will be established for a mutual interest not of a material nature, yet they may eventually develop into money-making enterprises.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone who you've been reluctant to contact might turn out to be the one who has the missing parts to a plan you've been conceptualizing. Get together with this individual today. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N. Y. 10183. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Lady Luck might do everything she can to favor you in material ways today. However, it will be up to you to decipher and recognize her unique offering of opportunities.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An endeavor in which you're presently involved could be improved upon if it's reorganized properly. Don't be afraid to include nontraditional touches.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You are not only a good opener today, you are also an excellent closer as well. Take advantage of this cycle and focus on meaningful results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your chances for success are excellent today, provided you know how to include the ideas of others in your present plans. Keep an open mind.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is one of those unusual days when most of your involvements should turn out to your liking. Your two strongest areas are finances and career.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Take another shot today at a problem you haven't as yet been able to resolve. The answers that eluded you could now be very evident.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Factors over which you'll have no direct control could be the ones that produce the greatest benefits for you today. However, this does not mean you should coast or minimize your efforts.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Something beneficial could result at this time from an unconventional idea of a friend who wants to include you in his/her endeavor. This isn't an offer to be ignored.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't be timid about going after difficult objectives today, even though they might seem a bit far-fetched. You're very resourceful at overcoming the impossible.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Spontaneous activities could be the ones that turn out to be the most fun and productive for you today. This is a day when these elements blend dynamically.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You could be quite fortunate in getting what you go after today, even though your tactics may appear complicated and confusing to others.
