Attack Would Dump 300,000 People On Seminole

By LEE DANCY Herald Staff Writer

If the United States fell victim to a nuclear attack, Sentinole County's population would swell to nearly triple its present

Some 300,000 Orange County residents would be relocated in Seminole County as part of a statewide disaster-relocation plan. Orders would come from the president in conjunction with preparations needed to brace Central Florida against a nuclear attack, said Harry Pinkman, Seminole County's disaster preparedness coordinator.

Orange County's new Orlando International Airport is considered a prime target for Soviet nuclear missiles in the event of an attack. In order to protect residents of densely populated Orange County from deadly radiation, many would be transported to Seminole County, Pinkman said.

"The new airport will be used as a site for launching a counterattack," he said. "Seminole is consequently considered a host area, because it is out of risk."

A general outline of necessary precautions needed to prepare for either a natural or nuclear disaster, known as the Seminole County Basic Emergency Operations Plan, recently was accepted by the County Commission. The 112-inch-thick book took 212 years to prepare. Pinkman said,

If a hurricane struck the state, Seminole would host between 30,000 and 50,000 extra residents from coastal Brevard and Volusia counties. Housing the extra residents during the natural disaster would be easy, but feeding them might be more difficult, Pinkman said.

During the hurricane, evacuees would be housed in public school buildings. Before leaving their homes, people seeking refuge in Seminole County would be asked to bring enough nonperishable food to sustain them for at least 72 hours, according

Federal regulations require at least 40 square feet per person in the "congregate care spaces," established for people forced to leave their homes during a natural disaster. People housed in public buildings during the storm could expect to remain there between 48 and 72 hours if a hurricane hit the area directly, Pinkman said.

Circumstances are entirely different for housing refugees during nuclear attack. First of all, people must be protected from radiation in a certified fallout shelter, Pinkman said.

In Seminole County, 180,000 of its own residents and 300,000 from Orange County would need protection from radiation. Only 37 buildings in the county are designated as fallout shelters, with a total capacity of 37,650 people, Pinkman said.

More than 440,000 people would have to be housed in makeshift, "upgraded" fallout shelters. To upgrade a building and provide adequate protection from nuclear fallout, dirt must be bulldozed against all its sides, the disaster preparedness director said.

The recently completed plan designates 11,034 buildings in the county as suitable for upgrading, Pinkinan said. If enough dirt could be packed against the buildings in time, shelter from radiation would be available for 667,190 people

Finding the necessary 520,000 square yards of earth to bank against the buildings could be a problem, however. As an example, Pinkman noted one bullding in Sanford currently housing an interior decorator's business. The structure could house 40 or more people if necessary 240 square yards of dirt could be gathered, he said.

When the building survey was completed six years ago, it noted this building as having the necessary amount of dirt within 20 yards of its location, Pinkman said. A lot can change in six years, however.

'All that data for available dirt is six years old," Pinkman said. They could have built a house there by now (and reduced the amount of available dirt)."

Another problem during a nuclear attack revolves around federal requirements for space given to each person and the Problems? Ask Bill McCollum's Staff

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

The telephones ring incessantly from 8 a.m. on Monday through Friday at the district and Washington offices of U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Altamonte Springs, from constituents seeking help with myriad problems.

And more often than not the problems, concerning federal services, federal foulups and personal difficulties, are solved by trained workers or the congressman himself, according to Vaughn Forrest,

McCollum's administrative assistant. McCollum, a first-term congressman, currently has district offices operating with staffs in Suite 204 of the 701 Building in Altamonte Springs and in Holiday, removal of asbestos piping they connear Clearwater, as well as in sidered dangerous from their building. Washington, A third district office, in Lake County, is scheduled to open early this month. What kind of problems do McCollum's 860,000 constituents - the largest number in any congressional district in the country have? "Almost anything," said Forrest. "Since Bill serves on the House immigration subcommittee, he is bombarded with calls from families seeking help for relatives who want to immigrate said. to the United States."

Other cases, he said, have included assistance with having a girl involved in an accident in Colorado brought to her home in the district for medical treatment; arranging emergency furloughs for military men; working to have another veterans' cemetery located in Florida (one is being considered in the Sumter-Hernando countles area); Amerasian children-in most cases the care; and encouraging the development of new outpatient clinics for veterans.

Staff members worked for weeks trying to discourage the Exxon Corp. from closing its Qwip plant in Altamonte Springs. Despite the efforts, the attempt was not successful, Forrest noted. McCollum's staff then encouraged Exxon to get actively involved in placing its former Altamonte Springs employees in similar positions with other corporations. Exxon agree to take on this task.

There was also a problem brought to the congressman's attention from the West Coast after owners of a co-op asked the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to order the "HUD said it wasn't dangerous. The co-op owners insisted it was. McCollum agreed with the owners and HUD ordered its removal," Forrest said.

Judaic School are interning in the Altamonte office. This month students from area high schools will be given the opportunity to participate in the same sort of program.

Constituents needing help can gain it without ever leaving their homes, Forrest noted. They need only call the Altamonte office at 830-6655 and talk to a worker about their problem. Before real assistance can be given, however, they must sign a form waiving the Privacy Act and formally requesting that the congressman or his staff look into their case, he said. The form can be malled to the constituent and the completed form returned by mail. Recently McCollum's staff sent letters to all the cities in the 5th Congressional District asking what their problems are, especially concerning water and sewage facilities. "We asked them to project what their needs will be in the coming years so we could get a better idea and make an analysis," Forrest said.

A conference to which White House personnel, officers of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and local legislators have been invited is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Wednesday at the Orlando City Hall to discuss waterquality problems in the district and federal assistance available.

Forrest is McCollam's administrative assistant, in charge of both the district and Washington offices. "I head his staff. I'm kind of a foreman," he said.

Forrest and his wife and three children live in Longwood. He flies back and forth between Washington and Altamonte Springs every three weeks.

Sanford Firm's Device Cleans Gas Pipelines

Herald Staff Writer

A Sanford-based group of engineers, chemists and technicians have given the words "candid camera," from the popular television show of that name, a whole new meaning.

While smiles may be seen spreading across the faces of surprised and satisfied people, it isn't the people who are being televised-it's the inside of miles of natural-gas pipelines across the country.

Gas Renovators Inc. is a company. made up of pipeline specialists who utilize a patented method of scaling gas leaks in pipes "as old as 1890 and as new as today," said Carl Dunn, the company's executive vice president. The company operates from headquarters on State Road 46, east of Interstate 4.

"About 10 years ago the president of the Southern Line Cleaning Co. calso on SR 46). George Brown, invented an epoxy sealant and a method for sealing leaks in gas line pipes using a TV camera without having to dig up the pipes every 12 feet," Dunn said. "The first time we tried it about 10 years ago in Pensacola, we received nothing but praise for the job, but it didn't catch on because the idea was several years ahead of its time. No one was really interested in spending was much cheaper then. Now, with increasing gas prices, everyone wants to cut down on the amount of gas lost through leaks in the pipelines."

Dunn said a recent survey by the Pipeline and Gas Journal, the gas industry "bible," listed a need by city, utility and gas industry officials for a sealant than could withstand 25 pounds of pressure per square inch inside the pipelines.

"Our epoxy sealing method, called Gasloc by patents in the U.S. and Canada, can withstand up to 100 pounds of pressure per square inch after hardening or 24 hours," he said.

Dunn is scheduled to meet with the magazine's staff this week to discuss further advertisements and news stories on the product and the sealing

But how does this team of technicians, engineers, chemists and laborers go about sealing the pipelines internally?

"First, we find the area where the gas leak is by locating the evidence of gas in the area surrounding the pipeline," Dunn said, "Then we usually have the city, or whoever is requesting the work, dig us an area to the pipe and we go in, drill a hole at two places on the pipe, and insert an

Commercial Construction In Seminole County Jumped Dramatically In 1981

The nationwide slump in home construction has been balanced by industrial, commercial and multi-family building in Seminole County.

In Sanford, Building Official Gary Winn said that although the number of total building permits issued in the first 11 months of 1981 was down from 2,640 in the same period in 1980, to 2,362, the dollar value of the construction was more than doubled. The total through November, 1981 was $25,444,675 as compared to $12,209,848 for the year before.

Commercial construction for the first 11 months of 1961 in Sanford totaled $3,566,610 as compared to $1,297,500 in 1980. Industrial construction totaled $2,101,104 for the period up from $576,000 the previous year. Other nonresidential construction totaled $10 million as compared to $238,000 in 1980.

The biggest project under construction in the city is the new $26 million Central Florida Regional Hospital, Winn said, adding that construction of the new hospital is expected to spark other building in the area on West First Street.

He said that several multi-family housing projects are already in the works.

The total building permits issued for the first 11 months of 1961 in Altamonte Springs was 752 with construction value of $32,423,726. There were 957 permits issued in 1980 with a conMartin of the Department of Community residential permits was down from 254 to 120

Development's Building Division. In Winter Springs, Building Official Ray Bradshaw said December is usually a slow month, but he was deluged with applications for building permits, Bradshaw said the Bear Creek Estates section of Tuscawilla is opening up with lots to begin at $55,000. He said the developer had invested $100,000 each in two bridges that span Bear and Howell creeks and another bridge is planned. Bradshaw expects the homes there will average $220,000 each.

Among the projects planned are the Cardinal Industries' Phase II Mosswood expansion, Cypress Villas Phase II, and Barnett Bank's temporary building.

Building permits in the first 11 months of 1961 in Winter Springs totaled 629 as compared to 558 for the entire previous year. Construction value for 11 months in 1981 totaled $11,769, 310. The total through December, 1980, was $15,109,254.

In Casselberry, the total value of construction was $15,007,898 in the first 11 months of 1981. That compares to $18,535,904 for the same period in 1980. There were a total of 1,103 permits issued through November, 1961. Fifteen commercial permits totaling $3,770,449 were issued for the period in 1961, up from the 14 issued in 1980 at a construction value of struction value of $28,962,131, according to Pat $2,912,575. The number of single-family for 1981, with a construction value of $5,072,690. There were 22 permits issued for other residential construction totaling $2,013,500.

The $1,082,390 city hall addition was included in the commercial total.

Construction on several new shopping centers in Seminole County was begun or completed during the past year, contributing to the healthy state of the commercial and industrial construction industry.

Nearing completion at Lake Mary Boulevard and U.S. Highway 17-92 in Sanford is the Village Marketplace, a $1,600,000 shopping center built by the Royal Canadian Development Corp. The principal stores will Le a Winn-Dixie supermarket and Revco

That's the bad news. But lawmakers also appear ready to make some changes in the regulation of insurance that should make consumers happy.

The code, a huge chunk of the state's book of statutes, is up for a Sunset Review in the session beginning Jan. 18. Legislators must either revise it or extend it as is. After months of taking testimony and conducting workshops, the House Insurance Committee prepared a bill 1,851 pages in size (PCB 4) incorporating all of the identified hasically, the lasue pits insurance companies, who favor no-fault, versus trial lawyers, who assert the current law puts too many restrictions on lawsuits for damages.

The dispute is further complicated by a ruling by the 5th District Court of Appeal in Daytona Beach that the current no-fault statute is unconstitutional. The state Supreme Court has yet to review that ruling. Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter estimated that meeting the court's objections by revising the existing law would add about 9 or 10 percent to the typical premium.

motorists should get ready for higher auto committee, each step the Legislature, takes toward liberalizing the opportunities for damage suits will hike premiums even more up to 45 percent for one version known as the "Oregon Plan" which attempts to combine the no-fault and unrestricted lawsuit systems.

However, there are other compromise versions that would produce a much smaller rate hike and many House panel members appeared to be leaning in that direction.

Under no-fault, a motorist is compensated by his or her own insurer no matter the cause of an accident. A lawsuit for damages can be filed only for certain permanent injuries.

The proposed compromises generally would widen the opportunities for suits while maintaining a basic no-fault coverage.

Also yet to be decided is whether the state's regulation of excess profits on auto insurance is working and whether it should be expanded to other lines of insurance or dropped altogether in favor of letting competition keep premiums down.

In proposed changes already approved by the House committee:

- Policy holders would be allowed to negotiate with insurance agents over the size of their commissions;

- Auto clubs would be completely deregulated;

- Insurance firms would have to supply more detailed information about their profits; - And Blue Cross-Blue Shield could begin raising rates without prior approval if it switched to a mutual insurance company whereby extra profits would be returned to policyholders.

The New Energy: Wind, Waves And Dirty Old

PARIS (UPI) - From solar power plants in Snain to windmills in the United States and wave machines off Japan, the industrialized West has tested new energy sources - but dirty, old coal still is the No. 1 choice of the International Energy Agency.

The IEA, formed in 1974 in answer to OPEC and the first oil crisis, began to coordinate research in member countries into new non-oil energy sources in 1975.

Now the IEA has published a book outlining the "impressive successes" during 1960-81 of tinkering with new ways to provide energy. Despite the glamour of sun, wind and waves, Dr. Eric Willis, director of the IEA energy research and development department, still picks coal as the source that the West must strain to develop.

"There's an awful lot of coal," the Briton explained at IEA headquarters. "And it's the most economical energy.

"Yet we know so little about it. The need for a basic coal science is paramount today if we want technology that will be economical to run. We don't understand the complex structure of coal and what it can do. We think of throwing some in the boiler and shutting the door and we forget the chemical processes

"For our next generation of projects beginning in 1962 we want to work on a coal-oil mix. And during the next two years we want to get more involved in the chemistry of coal, in conversion of coal to gas and liquid. We must, if we want to get into a substitute for oil for transportation." For a year a coal-fired combustion project for heating water has been operating with very little air pollution at Grimethorpe, Britain, as an IEA pilot project.

Even better than developing non-oil energy sources is simply to conserve energy, Willis "First of all, use energy effectively," he said. "Our new project to develop a dry instead of wet process in cement manufacture will be a most important contribution to saving

"We also have had a bonansa with heat pumps. They work like refrigerators — you mp heat from outside to inside. The best payoff is in the United States where you can use them in reverse as air condition are testing heat pumps to see how much oil they might replace."

The IEA book on its 1960-81 activities reports "important progress" in other ways of do

-Solar energy: Two 500 kw. solar electric power stations in Almeria, Spain, were finished last summer and are producing electricity. The stations use pipes heated by the sun. Willis said "important work also is going on in testing high temperature collectors and energy storage for solar energy systems."

-Hydrogen: Research on changing aircraft fuel to hydrogen is "entirely experimental. Lockhood Aircraft in the United States is researching the needed changes in plane construction, since the fuel would have to be put into the fuselage instead of the wings."

-Geothermal energy: West Germany. Japan and the United States cooperated in testing two wells at Fenton Hill, New Mexico. for extracting heat from hot, dry rocks up to 9,842 feet underground. Studies are under way to crack the rock between the two wells and then inject water to get steam heat. Mexico, although not an IEA member, Italy and the United States are testing a machine to extract energy from the well. - Wave energy: A three-year program on extracting energy from waves has been completed in the See of Japan, "This is getting to a point where it could be used commercially," Willis said.

windmills have been built in Denmark and the United States, some with arms 200 feet across. Wind energy already is being used in part.

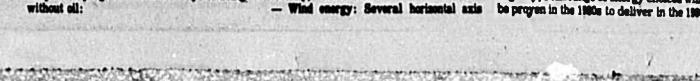

- Biomass, or plant and wood burning: "It has a future if you grow plants or trees on marginal land at a high growth rate," Willis said. Sweden is operating forestry experiment programs with 10 other countries participating. - Better oil recovery: Methods to acrape of wells cleaner are being tested in Austria, Canada, the United States and other countries. Willis admitted there is one thorn in this rost picture. Although industry expenditures for energy research are rising in industrialized countries, government funds are dwindling. particularly in the United States and West Germany. "Despite the oil glut, there is need for insurance for the future, to assure that our economies are fed by fuels from our own resources." Willis warned.

"New findings in oil also have slowed down research. We cannot get into a situation of complacency where we say everything will be all right.

"Unless research continues with a sense of urgancy, a full range of energy choices will not be proyen in the 1980s to deliver in the 1980s."

Miami Starts Off New Year On Familiar Note—Death

MIAMI (UPI) - Hornicide No. 622 for 1981 was a feenager, who could call say his name was Leon, a torture victim tossed from a car in his underweat, hisbody slashed with cuts and stabs.

He died at 10:55 Thursday night to mark the bloodiest year in Greater Miami history. The new year started with two more murders in early hours - a 25-year-old woman victim of a family argument and the 48-yearold owner of a restaurant-lounge gunned down by a gang of robbers.

Police blame the Miami area's unwanted designation as the "murder capital" of the nation on the double impact of thousands of Cuban refugees that arrived during the 1980 sealift and a flourishing drug

Cuban To Be Deported

PORT CANAVERAL (UPI) - Denial of entry into the United States was too much to bear for a young Cuban woman, who spent 18 months of trying and traveling halfway around the world so she could live in America.

Clara Nunez, 20, was in Cape Canaveral Hospital Friday, suffering from physical and emotional exhaustion, attendants said. She collapsed in despair when told Thursday she would be deported.

Guerilla Training Ignored

MIAMI (UPI) - An attorney for Nicaraguan refugees says the Reagan administration is purposely looking the other way while guerrilla warfare troops are being trained in the Everglades west of Miami.

Robert Boyer, attorney for the Nicaraguan Refugee Center in Mlami, said Friday that the Reagan administration wants to use Cuban and Nicaraguan exiles who are being trained in the paramilitary camps as surrogate soldiers in Latin America. He said the government could close down the training camps, but has quietly chosen not to.

Man Saved, Girlfriend Dies

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) - A young Fort Lauderdale man was trapped inside an overturned, submerged truck - next to the body of his dead girlfriend - for nine hours before his cries brought help Friday morning.

Fort Lauderdale police said Steve Joy was riding in his Dodge Ramcharger near midnight New Year's Eve with his girlfriend, Kathleen Susan Nichols, when he lost control of the vehicle and then briefly lost consciousness. The truck skidded about 80 feet, slid into a shallow portion of the C-14 Canal and overturned. The young woman drowned.

Polish Government Worried About Loyalty Of Troops

United Press International

The chief of Poland's internal security appealed for the lovalty of the nation's soldiers, indicating the military regime fears Polish forces will listen to a Solidarity leader's clandestine appeal for mutiny.

The call for "political maturity (and) steadfastness" by Interior Minister Cześlaw Kiszczak, alred Friday by Warsaw Radio, was described as a routine New Year's message to the troops.

But it showed concern, as the third week of martial law ended today, about the appeal for mutiny that reportedly originated from Solidarity fugitive Zbigniew Bujak, formerly the union's No. 1 official in Warsaw.

Pope Defends Solidarity

VATICAN CITY (UPI) - Pope John Paul II issued his most fervent defense of Solidarity since the declaration of martial law in Poland last month, saying the free trade union is an integral part of the Polish heritage.

In an address to a crowd of 50,000 in St. Peter's Square, John Paul also made his most urgent appeal for peace in Poland and prayed it be spared from the present state of siege.

1 Dead, 2 Wounded in Uister

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) - With the new year less than one day old, one teenager died and two of his friends were seriously wounded by a bomb explosion in a booby-trapped car in a seaside Ulster town. Local residents believe the bomb was intended for a 21-year-old part-time soldier in the vehicle. Police said the man was "very seriously" wounded but did not reveal his identity...

Violence in El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) - Repeated rebel bombings of electrical installations caused a twohour total blackout in El Salvador on New Year's Day and human rights activists predicted 1962 will bring a rise in violence.

Political attacks claimed 18,000 lives last year compared to about 10,000 in 1980. The activists said recent government and rebel statements indicated a larger death toll can be expected in 1962.

Community Effort May Save St. Pete's Pelicans

ST. PETERSBURG (UPI) - Hungry pelicans whose fish supply has been sharply curtailed by the cold temperature of bay and gulf waters are getting a helping hand from a group of volunteers and city officials.

The third annual Feed the Pelicans Fund - brainchild of homemaker Sue Richardson - is under way and the pellcans around the Municipal Pier already are benefiting.

By the end of next week, pelicans in five other locations in the St. Petersburg and St. Petersburg Beach area will be dinner guests of the volunteers. "Several years ago I read about Ralph Heath and his pelicans and I went to visit his sanctuary and was taken by the birds," Mrs. Richardson said. ----"I immediately bought 25 pounds of fish and began feeding pelicans off my dock," she said. "First it was just one pelican,

"Some of them go into the mangroves and end up starving to death," she said.

The feeding project has gained momentum each year and

Contributions to the fund are handled by the city manager's office and while about 25 volunteers handle the feeding chores, the city manages the account through its finance department.

The pelicans at the pier are fed every day at 4 p.m., while those in the other areas are fed on a variety of schedules.

Pompous Prolixity Purged

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (UPI) - "Sit on it" and "revenue enhancement" were among several words banished from use by the Unicorn Hunters on their eighth annual New Years Dishonor List of Words Banished from the Queen's English.

The group from Lake Superior State College, which selected its banishments from 2,000 nominating letters from as far away as Paris and Tokyo, also blasted Secretary of State Alexander Haig for his "abuse" of the language and put him on a "probation" of speaking only Latin for six months.

The Unicorn Hunters named Secretary of Commerce Malcolm Baldrige the first "Knight Sans Pareil of the Unicorn Quest" for forbidding bureaucratic language in government reports and dubbed him "Sir Malcolm of Potomac."

"Sir Malcolm not only banished scores of words and bureaucratic phrases from his department," said Professor Peter Thomas, senior herald of the Unicorn Hunters, "but he had the departmental word processors programmed so they would not print the oblectional phrases, thus making life much simpler for all of us who must read what comes out of his department."

The Hunters said they did not banish Alexander Halg but "rather banished the English language from him, requiring Haig speak only classical Latin for a probationary period of six months."

"Haig's misuse and abuse of the language," Thomas said, "is chronic, perhaps irreversible. There seemed a period when he might have been in remission, but he has now broken out again. Even a simple 'getting old' becomes 'maturation' in flaig language.

"Sit on it" was nominated for banishment by teen-ager Dan Latimore of New London, Conn. The senior in high school said it is "one of the stupidest phrases in the English language."

Joseph Powers Jr., of Whitmore Lake, Mich., pointed out in his letter to the Hunters "revenue enhancement" simply means a tax increase.

Among other banished words were: classic, world classic. off-sourcing, repository, harya doone, gonna, retarded, terminal iliness and hot water heater.

Appall and obviously were placed on one-year probationary banishment.

Confronting Hypocrisy

The conference on European security in Madrid has recessed until Feb. 9. Whether the conference monitoring the Helsinki accords reconvenes on that date - or reconvenes at all - may depend on events in Poland.

The massive repression under martial law in Poland has illustrated how wide is the gap between rhetoric and reality in the 1975 agreements by 35 nations of East and West to carry out the spirit of detente and respect for human rights.

Wishful thinking has been a main ingredient of the Helsinki process all along. The agreements, taken literally, were out of character for the Soviet Union. To follow them, Soviet leaders would have to loosen their hold over their own people and over their satellite states in Eastern

At the first follow-up conference in Belgrade, and again at Madrid, there has been mostly wrangling over what the nations had actually agreed to do at Helsinki. Meanwhile, Moscow has effectively squelched the effort by dissidents in the Soviet Union to hold their government to a fulfillment of the Helsinki promises.

In Poland, leaders of the Solidarity movement were no doubt encouraged by the Helsinki principles to demand rights heretofore denied under Communist governments. They are now paying the price.

Should the Western nations plan for a resumption of the Madrid conference in February? By all means. The conference may be awash in Communist hypocrisy, but nothing is more ruinous for hypocrites than being confronted by the facts of their own behavior.

Madrid is an ideal forum to demand explanations of why Polish workers have been arrested or worse for daring to suggest free elections, and why Soviet scientists who criticize their government are sent into exile. Let the Communists have the floor. The more the world hears of their double-talk, the more ludicrous they appear.

Gasohol Collapse

Gasahol was supposed to be taking hold in 1981 as a popular new fuel for automobiles. Instead, it was the year that mixing alcohol with gasoline turned out to be, at best, an idea whose time has

Oil companies that geared up in 1979 to offer gasohol to the motoring public have been cutting back on its production and distribution. The demand for the mixture failed to materialize.

Programs laid down by the Carter administration to subsidize a new gasohol industry have been canceled by the Reagan administration with little complaint. Plans to build new distilleries to convert farm byproducts into alcohol are being shelved.

The moral of this story is that the energy market has a will of its own and is quite unpredictable. The worldwide over-supply of oil, and the stabilizing of prices, were not anticipated two years ago, when adding 10 percent alcohol to gasoline looked like an ideal way to deal with short supplies and rising prices. As it is, there is no shortage of gasoline, and the gasohol mixture actually costs more than the real thing.

From Brazil comes word of a similar collapse of the gasohol bubble. Brazilians who were blazing the trail into the age of gasohol, using their abundant sugar crop as the alcohol source, are now backtracking for a variety of reasons both economic and technical.

The day may yet arrive when a "synfuel" like gasohol will help save the day for our nation on wheels. We have learned, however, that the timetable for such a development will not be set by government planners but by circumstances in the marketplace, where the customer is king. As for now, the customers just aren't there.

BERRY'S WORLD

By DORIS DIETRICH

Where in the world did the year go?

Many folks make resolutions in sincerity, but like so many other things, the resolutions take a back seat to other matters and get shucked in the

Every year, I try to set some goals to accomplish during the forthcoming 12 months. Mind you, these goals are not exciting like taking an exotic vacation. But writing down a list of piddling little things that need attention and crossing them off with a bright red pen when completed, can seem like moving a mountain. Accomplishment, to say the least.

I have set goals for everything from pasting green stamps in the proper books to: "Force calories. You need to gain 10 pounds." Are you believing that?

Going back over records of four years ago, in July, I wrote in my daily log: "If I eat one more bite of soggy mashed potatoes with gooey gravy, I will regurgitate all over."

Then came the next year. About the time of the birth of 1979, I taped a note to my refrigerator typewritten in bold blue lettering on yellow paper. I reviewed the deaths of my parents, who were both heavy smokers. The last sentence, underlined twice reads: "PLEASE HELP ME, GOD. I DO NOT WANT TO SMOKE."

It has been three years this month. The note is still on the fridge. I have not smoked, but unhappily, I admit I have inhaled - the smoke of others - which makes me want to regurgitate all over. And the needed weight . . . plus more . . . came with no effort.

Then as 1981 made its debut, things seemed pretty bad on the homefront. Everything was a mess from a long, drawn-out do-it-yourself addition and remodeling job. My brain power was short circuited. I had sawdust in my soup, plaster in my porridge and paint in my parfait. I sensed it would take the entire year to accomplish our dreams and goals.

It was simple. I just couldn't hack it. Breakdown was in progress and institution was near, or so it seemed.

Hurriedly, I whipped out some paper and began writing a lengthy letter. I complained, vented a lot of hostilities, made a fair share of excuses, offered many apologies and analogies and as the letter moved on, I became somewhat humble and showed a hint of humility.

I ended the letter with: "You're doing a super job, Keep up the good work. Love, Doris." The letter was filed.

I reread the lengthy letter this week and chuckled silently while warmth and thankfulness filled my bones. It worked. In fact, it worked so well that I decided to start 1982 identically. I rolled a sheet of paper in the typewriter, inserted a true blue ribbon cartridge and began the letter the same as last year: "Dear Lord . . . "

BUSINESS WORLD

Now To Select Your Bank

By MARY TOBIN UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) - The introduction of all kinds of new services - along with high interest rates - could make choosing the right bank one of the most important financial resolutions for the New Year.

"Everyone should compare banks before opening up a checking account or depositing money in a savings certificate," said William E. Donoghue, publisher of Donoghue's Moneyletter of Holliston, Mass. "Not all banks offer the highest interest allowed by law on deposits and they have different minimums and different charges for services."

Banks also offer different services, such as automatic teller machines, paying bills by phone, or even by home computer, and these could be important to you even if your bank costs a little more.

"Your time is worth money and each person has to determine what is most valuable to him," according to Betty Wuliger, Los Angeles-based author and lecturer on how to make your money grow.

Donoghue's Moneyletter recently published a checklist to use in comparing your bank with others. The results could surprise you. -What minimum balance is required for a regular checking account? For a NOW or other interest-bearing checking? This varies from no minimum to one of several thousand

-What is the interest paid on a NOW account? The law allows benks to pay up to $44 percent and thrifts up to 54 percent, but not all do so.

NOW account falls below the minimum required balance? Ask what the "break even" point is where service charges equal interest earned.

-Does the bank offer the highest yield allowed on all deposits, including six-month money market certificates?

—Does it charge for checks and how much? —Is there a charge for stoppaymenta? How -Is there a charge for overdrafts? Does the hank offer a cash reserve to cover over-This list will tell you actual charges and payments you will receive, but there are other factors to consider.

Mrs. Wuliger said money and the way we handle it "is a very personal thing and the few extra dollars you might save and earn might not be worth the inconvenience of changing."

Banks have hiked "insufficient funds" charges to up to $20, for example, but if you never have a bad check the charge doesn't mean anything. "If you live from paycheck to paycheck, however, this could be important to you," Mrs. Wuliger said.

"If you are known at your bank and can walk in and finance a car in 10 minutes that also is worth money," she said.

Indeed, Donoghue said one reason he picked his personal bank was because it offered to extend commercial loans for his

"Another reason, and for someone who travels a lot it's no small matter, is that the bank has 120 electronic cookie jars (automatic teller machines) scattered around the state," Donoghue said.

WASHINGTON — Federal judges are a law unto themselves. Appointed for life, they can be removed only through the impossibly cumbersome process of impeachment. Barring this, the judges are the arbiters of their own conduct — and they have always shown a consistent tendency to stick together in the face of criticism.

Here's the story of David Shuffman, a young New York attorney who had the gata to wage a head-on challenge to what he bewas judicial misconduct. The full force of the judicial establishment fell on him like a ten of bricks.

In 1974, Shuffman was his mother's attorney in a claim to collect money owed her by Hartford Textiles Inc. No one has stioned the validity of the debt.

But Hartford Textiles, represented by the prestigious law firm of Well, Gotabal & Manges, filed for bankruptcy to get out of its obligations. Rebuffed in Bankruptcy Court, Shuffman appealed to the U.S. Second Circuit Court of Appeals. He lost again.

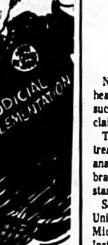

by the federal bankruptcy judge. He has documented his claim that the judge, Roy Babitt, had denied Mrs. Shuffman a full hearing; that Babitt had violated court procedure by talking with Shuffman's adversaries in private; and that a staff attorney for the Second Circuit later misrepresented the case to his bosses.

Shuffman, convinced that the "fix" was in, had the temerity to lodge complaints about the Second Circuit and the adversary law firm with the New York City Bar Association.

The judicial establishment's response was to try to have Shuffman disberred. Every active judge in the Second Circuit railled to fight this threat from an importment outsider. They ordered that disciplinary action be taken against Shuffman.

The Second Circuit's disciplinary arm, the Committee of Admissions and Grievances, enlisted the bar association to do its dirty work. Emberrassingly, the ber association

The worst case is Stockman. He is admitted by all to be a whiz with the numbers and he has mastered the details of the monstrous federal budget. But he is supposed to be a professional.

What in the world was he doing, therefore, giving extended and tape-recorded interviews to an editor of the Washington Post, William Greider?

Greider is no friend of the Reagan administration. His Atlantic article based upon Stockman's largease is written with a pen dipped in poison. The poison is directed at Reagan's credibility, both in the country and in Congress.

Now either Stockman knew that Greider is no friend of the Reagan administration, or he did not. Either way, it's professionally

Next, we have the latest Stockman political blunder. After setting his computers whirring at the Office of Management and Budget, Stockman leaked to the press the opinion that the projected budget deficit now amounts to $100 billion. A figure of that sort is more or less meaningless, since it is based on assumptions and projections that are debatable. But Stockman was playing Washington politics. He wants to raise taxes and cut military spending. He therefore comes up with his deficit figure, intended to advance his preferred policy choices.

But, once again, he played his own game at the political expense of the administration of which he is supposed to be a part.

It does not matter whether Stockman is right or wrong, or, at this point, whether you could even determine whether he is right or wrong. He is behaving unprofessionally as a political operative. He should be sacked.

But what in the world was Clark doing in England. giving an interview in which he opined that unification of Ireland? Who knows whether the unification of Ireland is even desirable, or under what conditions it might take place. In their understated way, British officials let us know that they were outraged by Clark's statement. Another failure of professionalism on the part of a high official.

Probably the less said about Richard Allen at this point the better. His opinions are generally unexceptionable, and he is a hero to conservatives, but what about that accursed $1,000 he received in an envelope from his Japanese friends, the wrist watches, and the "errors" on his federal financial statement? No one believes for a moment that Allen is dishonest, but he is a political professional, or should be. Alarm bells and sirens ought to have gone off in his head on each of those items. Nancy Reagan did not have to appear in the Japanese women's magazine, and Allen didn't need the money or the watches, As a first baseman, he was up in the stands selling hot-dogs. Sloppy and sleazy,

Given the European political climate, that did not advance one inch the cause of deploying our Pershing missiles there. No one doubts Haig's brains or general professionalism. More aloppiness.

The president ought to make it clear to all of these characters that they are not just administrators with limited mandates, but professional politicians who ought to know that the media will exploit every gaffe and fluff to discredit the president. They must understand that it's a matter of shape up or ship out.

Aspirin May Be Worse

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

UPI Health Editor NEW YORK (UPI) - Fighting chronic headaches with analgesics - aspirin and such - may keep the headache cycle going, claims Dr. Joel R. Saper.

The neurologist and renowned pioneer in treatment of headaches said the daily use of analgesics may promote pain by suppressing brain endorphin - natural pain-killing substances in the head.

Saper, on the faculty of the Michigan State University Medical School and director of the Michigan Headache and Neurological Institute in Ann Arbor, said it's something like scratching a rash. The more you scratch the more you itch.

Whether it is caused by genetic or environmental factors or the result of depression, food, sun or sex, "when the head aches the entire body suffers," Saper said. The sickest of the sick he sees at the institute include people admitted to the institute's inpatient headache unit, the nation's

The neurologist said among those admitted to the inpatient unit are many who have tried to clobber their headaches by taking 20 to 35 or more analgesics a day.

Eighty-five percent of those entering this unit last year and the first six months of 1981 suffered one or more of several consequences of analgesic overuse. Saper said they required detoxification as part of their treatment.

"In addition to habituation, overuse of analgesics takes additional health care toll in the form of ulcers, kidney failure, liver disease, and caffeinism (caffeine is contained in a variety of analgesics, in addition to coffee, tea, cola and chocolate)," he said. Saper said some 40 million Americans regularly seek help for headaches. There are about a dozen headache centers in the nation. Saper said his institute is one of the largest.

He said patients with headaches seek out various specialists, most frequently several. Among those are neurologists, psychiatrists, family doctors, interns, ophthalmologists, dentists, neurosurgeons, gynecologists, otolaryngologists and allergists.

If he could be a "headache czar" looking out on the 40 million headache sufferers, what would be tell them?

Two things: 1. You have legitimate pain and this is not a problem that's all in the head. 2. Learn about the illness you have.

And he would do a third thing — "try to put a stop to the dissemination of misinformation about headaches. By the makers of analgesics and by those who say the headache starts with trouble in the jaw joint or the Saper and Dr. Kenneth R. Magee, another neurologist pioneering in treatment of headache, recently updated their "Freedom from Headaches" book (Simon & Schuster-Fireside Books, $6.95.).

Saper said the book is designed to educate headache sufferers about their illness,

In it, Saper and Magee describe six types of headaches - migraine, tension, cluster, sinus, psychogenic, and headache secondary to another illness such as a cold or meningitis.

They say each headache has a specific cause and a specific method of treatment be it medication or alternative therapies such as biofeedback and relaxation therapy.

Shuffman's ordeal. When he notified the young lawyer of the Second Circuit's decision to pursue a second inquiry, he neglected to tell Shuffman that the bar association had Since Sept. 15 my office has been broken into three times, five fires set and a total of six windows broken. It has gotten to the point where we hesitate after unlocking the door, wondering if we have been hit again.

Today at noon, a burglar took a crowbar and literally ripped our rear door open at our home. The home was left unattended for not more than 45 minutes.

The antique jewelry can never be replaced. The mint-condition silver dollar we had gold-plated cannot be replaced, as one of the last jewelers who knew the art has now passed away. The helrloom jewelry cannot be replaced. The 35 mm camera can be replaced.

What really angers me most is that one of my sons took his savings from a year's work, spent three or four days shopping for all the family, leaving a bank balance of $3, to have a non-working thief wipe out all the cheer in just 30 minutes. All the gifts can be replaced, but nothing can make up for my son's terrible feelings.

The next thing that angers me is the hard work the police and Sheriff's Department do, every day placing their lives on the line for us, and to see their frustration when a thief, burgiar or other is apprehended just to be let go. What is worse is when a suspect is found guilty and released for weeks or months before being sentenced just to have time to do his dastardly deeds to get enough money to pay his lawyer to plea-bargain or get probation to do it again.

I sincerely hope the lawyers and judges who knowingly aid these small criminals to become big criminals someday, in each of their homes or offices, have a visit from the Grinch who stole Christmas.

Until the time comes that we again are taught respect for our parents, teachers, ministers, businessmen, policemen and courts of law, we will have to endure these travesties of justice.

The lawyers in our Legislature make the laws and have created a game for their fellow attorneys to play with our justice system and let the ones loose who have the money or steal the money to line their pockels. In effect, in every case where a minor criminal repeats, the lawyers and judges only have to look at themselves to find the cure. Not all of them, just enough.

A return to public humiliation, such as stocks and pillories and public whippings, would aid a lot. Starting, of course, with the ones who let the guilty go, and then the guilty. Make the parents responsible for the acts of their children. Take the officials out of the drug traffic from which they are profiting more than the criminals. This alone would reduce the crime rate.

Give us back the pride of ownership and the benefits of hard work and saving. Remove the high interest rate, where the government and the lending institutions are robbing our young from home ownership, and return the control of the government to us, whence it came. We truly deserve another Boston Tea Party, and it can and should come.

Why Does Sanford Have Crime Problem?

I came to Sanford four years ago from a these slums in and around the downtown northern city with a large crime problem. I lived there for 20 years without incident. In these past four years I've had to call on the Sanford Police Department to report thefts on six different occasions.

For a city of this size to have such a crime problem absolutely amazes me. Of all my articles stolen, I have recovered only a single item. This is not to be taken as an assault on the Sanford Police Department, because they do the best job they can.

Sanford is called "The Friendly City" friendly to whom? It hasn't been very friendly to me.

Slums breed crime, whether it be petty theft or otherwise, so why does this city allow so called "hotels" in residential areas. These places seem to be popping up all over. Our city allows houses to stand that should have been condemned years ago. Our city does not force a cleanup of

It's high time to get this city cleaned up. If there is a vagrancy law, let's enforce it. If not, let's write one! I vote in every city election, and I will do so in the next. Maybe it's time for a change in City Hall!

What Really Lies Behind The Trouble In Poland

By L.P. ARNN

Editor, Public Research, Syndicated Once again, there is trouble in Poland, trouble in that eastern European country where so many wars have begun, not the least of which was World War II. Time after time the eyes of the world have been fixed on Poland, watching anxiously for an explosion. Now we have taken up the vigil again.

What are the causes of this most recent Polish turmoil? The trouble is not the result of the confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union, nor of that between NATO and the Warsaw Pact. The trouble has not been caused by any propaganda or interference from the West. The trouble is caused by the determination of certain people in Poland - perhaps they are only a minority, but they are a decided and a numerous minority - who wish to have some say in their own government.

VIEWPOINT

These "troublemakers" in Poland wish to reap the fruits of their own labor, and to have a say in the decisions that affect their lives and livelihoods. They have confined their demands within fairly narrow bounds: they want to elect their own union leaders; they want to publish a free newspaper; they want a little

Sunday, Jan. 3, 1982-5A

Though the requests of the Polish unions are moderate, and their methods are cautious, the implications of their position are profound. What is happening in Poland is proof that the incessant drilling of communist doctrine and dogma for 35 years has falled to convince the Poles. The regulation of has failed. The prying of the secret police is diligent, but it has failed.

What is to happen to these Polish "troublemakers" will be decided, as has so often been the case in the past. outside Poland. It will be decided mainly in Moscow. The process of decision is going on right now, and it process of decision is mostly hidden the spear. from us, but certain things are evident. The choices open to the Soviet rulers seem to be two. They can go on in the old way for a-while, seeking to dominate events in Poland by an application, perhaps more vigorous, of censorship, of espionage, of arrest and detention.

This plan probably would entail further, temporary concessions to the Polish government, and further more to eat; they want a little more part of the cost. (Western nations have already renewed certain overdue loans that the Poles have no prospect of being able to pay, and substantial sums in aid to the Polish government are now being raised.) All this would aim to buy time while the "troublemakers" were infiltrated, divided, and defeated.

The second choice open to the Soviet Union is to do something more the press in Poland is thorough, but it dramatic. The Soviets have the means to do something very dramatic indeed. They have already two divisions In Poland. They have, within 150 miles of the Polish border, more than a quarter of a million regular troops. equipped and ready. These troops are augmented by a similar number of Warsaw Pact troops, similarly may be completed at any moment; it equipped and ready. And this formay even have been completed by the midable array, numbering in excess time this reaches the press. The of half a million, is only the point of These are the two prospects facing Poland. What is not in prospect for the Polish people is the winning of their freedom at this time. The Soviet Union has proved itself a ruthless master, and it will not tolerate waywardness among the satellites. In 1956, and in 1968, the Soviet Union demonstrated its policy in Hungary and in Czechoslovakia. Now the Soviet Union is possessed of ample means to demonstrate its ruthlessness again. Whatever momentary progress the pressure on the West to pay a large Polish unions make, the grip of Moscow's tyranny is firm, for the time being.

There is finally the question of Western policy toward these Polish troubles. Western policy is necessarily weak, and dependent upon what the Soviets do. If the Soviets do not invade Poland — that is to say, if they do not choose at this time to reinforce their Polish garrison - the West will continue and perhaps augment various economic agreements and arms treaties that have worked to the advantage of the Soviet Union. These agreements will be offered as a reward to the Soviets for their restraint, that is, for sticking to their old method of dominating Poland. We will thus consent to pay part of the cost of that domination.

If, on the other hand, the Soviet Union does invade Poland, we will probably defer the arms treaties and the economic agreements. That is the much proclaimed "cost" that the Soviets will have to pay for the invasion. It is folly to think that such "costs" are commensurate with the value the Soviets attach to the continued domination of the satellites. Whether or not the Soviet Union invades Poland, the ability of the West to influence the event will have proved negligible. Until we repair the deficiencies in our armament - and that is the sort of deficiency the Soviets recognize as decisive - our influence, not alone over events in Poland, will remain negligible.

'Are You A Christian?' She Asked

me, I helped her remove her trench coat and stuff an oversized bag under the seat. We exchanged pleasantries and destinations. She was headed for South America: I, returning from a trip to Atlanta.

A pause, and the Delta TriStar was aloft. She turned and asked, "Are you a Christian?"

This woman, Susan Cochran, 29, of rural DeSoto County in Mississippi's northwest corner, reminded me of my grandmother, who died when I was 12.

Her light brown hair flounced in tight curls, as did my grandmother's after one of her regular Toni home permanents. Her skin was pale white, barely revealing the fading flecks of teenage blemishes. She was attractive in a simple sort of way, but her real beauty shone from within.

Not many years back, her question would have irritated me.

It would have seemed presumptuous, prying, too familiar, too early, a question calculated to divide people into categories. It was one of those 'Are-You-One-Of-Us-Or-One-Of-Them' queries. If I were a Jew or Moslem, would that have been cause to end the conversation and pick up the airline magazine?

But I have changed, and today am more tolerant of diverse beliefs, and people with strong convictions and the enthusiasm to pursue a life moved by ideas and ideals. Yet while I did not resent Ms. Cochran's question, it caused me uneasiness. I could, and did, confirm my belief in Christ. But in my denomination - Methodist - as well as most others, there always has been a refuge for the restrained and the

There are, of course, the ritualistic proclamations of faith, but there is the easy opportunity to laze through Sunday morning, bedecked in pinstripes and Calvin Klein dresses, merely occupying pew space.

There was no resisting Ms. Cochran, nor the strength of her belief. She described herself as, like myself, a Methodist and a fundamentalist. She was going to South America to teach English and music in a mission school.

She saw things through bright and shining eyes. Looking down on puffy white clouds from 30,000 feet, she said. "Isn't it amazing what God has created?"

Brantley To Tour Local High Schools

State Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, will spend one day in each of Seminole County's high schools within the next few weeks to present a documentary film, "Youth Behind Bars." The documentary is the conclusion of many months' study of the youthful offender program in Florida and was filmed within three of the state's prisons.

The film depicts life behind prison walls and includes candid interviews with young inmates. Approximately 75 percent of all youthful offenders-12 to 24 years old-are in prison for drug or alcohol-related crimes and sentences range from one year to life, Brantley said. As a member of the House Select Committee on Prison

Refugees from a nuclear attack also are expected to remain in the shelters for at least two weeks, compared to maximum of three days during a hurricane, Pinkman sald. "How are people going to react to staying in just 10 square feet for two weeks?" he asked rhetorically. If a five-megaton nuclear warhead struck the area, people could expect to remain in the shelters for a minimum of two weeks. A five-megaton warhead equals five million tons of TNT, Pinkman said.

The Soviet Union has trans-continental missiles with 25megaton warheads, however. Pinkman said that even after a five-megaton explosion's two-week limit had passed, people would be allowed to leave shelters only to forage for food, supplies and survivors. They would be expected to return at night, and could not leave the shelter at all without a specific

Under this "crisis relocation plan," the federal government hopes to save 80 percent of the U.S. population from death in a nuclear attack. It is the government's alternative to spending untold millions of dollars building fallout shelters throughout the country. Pinkman sald.

The Soviets have a decided advantage over Americans in weathering a nuclear attack. After most of its industry was destroyed by the Germans in World War II, Russia's leaders ordered all new industrial facilities to be constructed far outside the limits of large cities. Pinkman said. By doing this, most of the Soviet Union's industrial capacity could be salvaged after a nuclear attack. American nuclear missiles, like the Soviets', are aimed at large cities, where the majority of the Soviet Union's population lives, Pinkman said. For years, Soviet requirements for large buildings have mandated that fallout shelters be included within them. Very little building "upgrading" would be needed to protect citizens from fallout, Pinkman said. The United States' crisis relocation plan would be virtually uscless in the event of a surprise attack, Pinkman said. Federal estimates predict only 30 percent of the U.S. population would survive a nuclear attack without the plan. Government planners expect enough warning before nuclear attack to upgrade enough buildings, for implementation of the crisis relocation plan, Pinkman said.

"The government assumes there will be a great deal of uneasiness and the Soviets will begin to relocate their people," he said. "They (U.S. officials) figure it will take at least three days to empty their cities. "It all depends on whether it is a sneak attack and whether

Lott Or Taylor: Who's Best?

Milton

UPI Sports

NEW YORK (UPI) - Forget about the Super Bowl for a minute.

What's needed far more right now is some kind of Bipartisan Bowl where all those engaged in the NFL's most heated argument of the year can confront each other and try to settle the matter.

The sharp difference of opinion between the two factions has spread clear across the country and concerns itself with who deserves to be named Defensive Rookie of the Year more: Ronnie Lott, the San Francisco 49ers' superb cornerback, or Lawrence Taylor, the New York Giants' equally extraordinary linebacker.

Ordinarily, their peers - meaning rival players and coaches - would supply the best answer, but they're not much help either because they have selected both Lott and Taylor to play in the Pro Bowl.

So now it'll come down to the football writers who'll ultimately select the No. 1 defensive rookie,

The 6-foot-3, 240-pound Taylor performs like such a monster on the field. he already has carned the nickname "Godzilla."

"People say he might be Rookie of the Year," says St. Louis Cardinals Coach Jim Hanifan. "Heck, I think that kid might be the best player in the league." The 49ers, who faced Taylor a few weeks ago, all agree he's outstanding but still not the equal of the six-foot, 199pound Lott, who has equaled one of the league's career records already with the three interceptions he has run back for touchdowns in helping San Francisco to its first division title and playoff berth in nine years.

"There's no question in the minds of any of our players that Ronnie deserves to be the Defensive Rookie of the Year, and possibly even the NFL Player of the Year," offers George Heddleston, the 49ers' head PR man.

Wouldn't he be somewhat partial? "Yes," concedes Heddleston, "but I'd like to point out that Ronnie's opponents certainly are not, and only this past Wednesday they voted him the starting cornerback in the Pro Bowl."

Beyond any shadow of doubt, Lott has been the catalyst in the 49ers' defense. which has emerged as one of the best in the league this year. Just take a look at his stax.

He has made 80 tackles in 15 games. second-most on the entire team, and when was the last time you ever heard a cornerback doing that? Moreover, he has come up with seven interceptions, two of which turned games completely around for the 49ers, and the 117 yards he has returned those pickoffs for gives him an average of 16.7 yards for each steal.

Lott's three touchdowns with his interceptions constitute an all-time fearn record for the 49ers, who have had such tremendous people in their secondary down through the years as Jimmy Johnson, Kermit Alexander. Lowell Wagner, Rex Berry, Dave Baker, Dickie Moegle, Abe Woodson and Bruce Taylor. Apart from all his steals, Lott is credited with batting down 20 passes, forcing four fumbles and recovering two. He has given up one touchdown pass all year and that was against the Steelers last month. One of his few booboos came on a hurryup play by the Steelers immediately following an interception by Jack Lambert and the 49ers hardly had time to organize themselves.

Lott, a clean-cut, good-looking 22year-old bachelor, leads the club in phone messages from women he has never heard of or met. He takes some kidding about that from the 49ers. They're exceptionally fond of him, calling him a tiger on the field but a pussy cat off it.

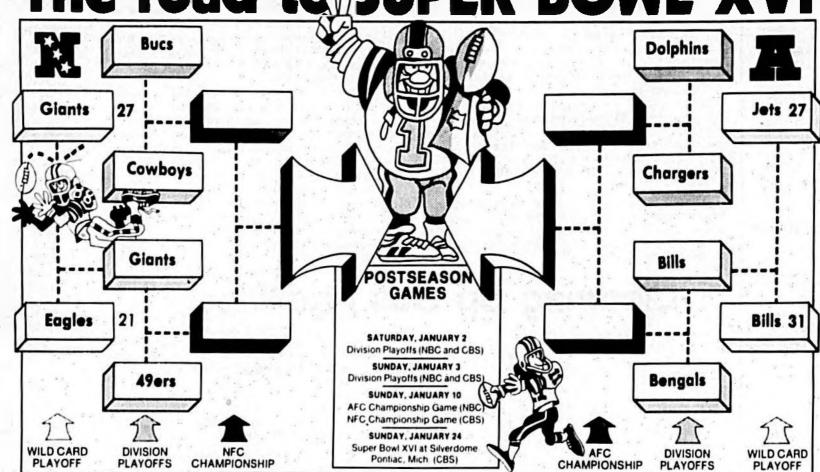

"As far as that's concerned, I suppose they're right," laughs the former University of California All-America from Rialto, Calif. "Off the field, I try to show respect for people and conduct myself the way I was taught. On the field, I guess the 'tiger' does come out because you have to be aggressive to hang with those guys."

Coryell—'I'm Tired Of Being Beat'

By United Press International San Diego Coach Don Coryell has plenty of playoff experience - all bad. Coryell, whose Chargers take on the Dolphins in Miami Saturday in an AFC playoff contest, said, "This is my fifth playoff and ... I'm tired of being beat. The one bad thing about the playoffs is that they're sudden death.

"You lose and that's it - you're through."

According to the statistics, Coryell probably will get some more of the same. The Charger offense is ranked first inthe league and generales more yardage than you can shake a stick at. San Diego set records for total yardage (6,744) and passing yardage (4,531) this year, breaking their own records, and led the NFL in scoring with 478 points, an

1,144 yards, the second highest total in the AFC, and tied an NFL record for rushing touchdowns with 19.

The Dolphins, meanwhile, ranked only ninth in passing in the AFC. Their two top rushers, Tony Nathan and Andra Franklin, together managed just over 200 yards more than Muncie gained alone.

The Chargers won the AFC West title at 10-6 on the strength of their offense. San Diego's defense has been virtually dormant all season.

Miami, meanwhile, has gotten stronger as the season progressed. The Dolphins didn't allow more than 16 points in any of their last five games and won the last four straight, allowing a total of only 37 points, to wrap up the AFC East title at 11.41.

Statistics, as we all know, are deceiving," said Coryell. "They're a real good football team. afford to turn over the ball."

The young Dolphins, which are 3-point favorites, were not expected to be contenders this year, which makes the playoffs even sweeter for Shula.

The last time Buffalo and Cincinnati met, in the fourth game of the regular season, the Bengals clawed their way to a 27-24 overtime triumph. The upset victory gave unheralded Cincinnati a big lift and left Buffalo wondering what happened to its defense, best in the league in 1980. The Bengals, after dismal records of 4-12, 4-12 and 6-10 the last three years, went on to a 12-4 regular season mark. The last time the Giants met the 49ers was on Nov. 29, when the 49ers beat the Giants, 17-10, in San Francisco. It also was the last time the Giants lost a game. Tigers Claim

United Press International

Clemson wide receiver Perry Tuttle had a message Friday night for those who thought the Tigers couldn't roar loud enough to be the top team in the nation.

"In the last two weeks we've been in Florida, 95 percent of the people didn't believe in us, but we're No. 1 now," he said, after scoring on a 13yard pass to aid top-ranked Clemson to a 22-15 Orange Bowl victory over No. 4 Nebraska.

"The defense played one helluva game and gave us field position the defense did it for us."

Clemson, seeking its first national championship, turned two fumble recoveries into nine first-half points and used Homer Jordan's 13-yard touchdown pass to Tuttle to stop the Cornhuskers.

With the victory, Clemson, which finished the season as the only undefeated team in the nation at 12-0, appears a certainty to capture the national title.

"Are we No. 1? Are we the best team in the country?" asked Clemson Coach Danny Ford, "I don't care what anybody says in the East, Midwest or West, Nobody in the country has done what we've Clemson's offense, directed by Jordan's running and passing, woke up in the third period. After Nebraska was torced to punt, Jordan drove the Tigers 75 yards in 12 plays, capping the drive with his TD strike to Tuttle, who set a school record by catching his eighth scoring pass of the season.

In other Friday bowl games, eighth-ranked Pittsburgh downed No. 2 Georgia, 24-20, in the Sugar Bowl; fifth-ranked Texas surprised No. 3 Alabama, 14-12, in the Cotton seventh-ranked Southern California, 28-10, in the Fiesta Bowl, and No. 10 Washington blanked No. 11 Iowa, 28-0, in the Rose Bowl.

Mickey Walczak, the most valuable offensive player in the Peach Bowl game, felt the Florida defense was "soft."

Florida garnered such Peach Bowl records as most fumbles lost - 4 fewest yards gained rushing — minus 30 - fewest attempts rushing with 32 and fewest yards total offense - 105.

"West Virginia was better prepared," said Gator Coach Charley Pell. "Our early turnovers gave them momentum. They were an awfully hungry team and they got excited and got the momenturn."

After the Gators took the opening kickoff, ran three plays and punted to the West Virginia 23, Luck guided his team 77 yards in 11 plays for a 7-0 lead on a 7-yard pass to Walczak and Florida was out of the running. Woodside connected on tries of 35, 42

Nehlen said he also reminded his team at halftime about their letdown against Syracuse in the second half when they lost by three points.

mistakes that would have beaten ourselves."

He also praised the kicking of walkon freshman Paul Woodside, who was good on four out of five field goal tries to see a Peach game mark.

"He was dynamite. I was awfully plesed to see that guy have a great game," said Nehlen.

The Mountaineers threw up a defense that kept Florida constantly back on its heels until the game was out of reach.

The Gators wound up with a minus 30 yards net rushing for a Peach Bowl record, and set other marks for fewest number of rushing plays with 32, most fumbles with seven and most fumbles lost — 4.

"We were really pleased our offense was able to execute but it still goes back to the great defense," said Nehlen. "Defense wins for you and we didn't make errors ... we played great defense."

In the third period, when the Gatorshoped to bounce back from a 16-0 deficit, they had the ball only three minutes and 55 seconds.

Nine times the Mountaineers, led by nose guard Dave Oblak and defensive backs Don Stemple - selected as the outstanding defensive player - and Cedrick King broke through to throw Gator backs for losses, repeatedly harassing sophomore quarterback Wayne Peace, who had been expected to challenge Luck in the air.

was a bitter defeat for his Huskers. If Nebraska had won they would have been able to claim the title themselves as No. 2 Georgia and No. 3 Alabama lost Friday.

"They deserved to win and they deserve to win the national championship but it's the most disappointing loss I've ever been associated with," Osborne said, "It was in our hands and we let it slip through."

"Our inability to move the ball as well as five or six major penalties had a lot to do with the loss. They also played great football - I don't want to take that away from them."

Osborne was upset with three major penalties called against All-America center Dave Rimington, the Outland Trophy winner as the nation's best interior lineman. He asked the officials about it at half-

"I just wanted to see what they were calling." Osborne explained. "I thought maybe it was a matter of technique. It wasn't. They said David was grabbing his jersey so what could I say?"

Rimington also declined to criticize the officials.

"I didn't want to say anything bad about the officials," he said. "They're not here to defend themselves. All they told me 50 was holding' but I really don't know if it was. It was just one of those things. You just go out and try to forget it and keep your game in order.

"We hurt ourselves with the penalties early in the game. I thought we would have a chance at the end but we didn't get the ball back with enough time left. They were good up front but I think we did a good job too. We were moving the ball but those penalties!"

"Everything fell into place tonight. All the teams that had to win won. It was all right there but we didn't do our job," Rimington said. Quarterback Mark Mauer also felt

How 'Bout Dem Dawgs? Asks Gleeful Pitt After Victory

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) - Shouts of "How bout dem Dawgs" filled the Pitt locker room Friday night as the Jubilant Panthers savored their lastsecond Sugar Bowl victory over Georgia.

Quarterback Dan Marino threw a 33-yard pass to John Brown with 35 seconds remaining for a 24-20 comefrom-behind win.

"I hope it shows we are not a quitting team," said Panther running back Bryan Thomas, the leading rusher of the game with 129 yards on 26 carries. "Today we did not give up.

We had an interception in the end zone but we did not give up. We came back and made a touchdown on the next series."

He said the team had been criticized for letting down in its disastrous 48-14 debacle at the hands of Penn State that cost the Panthers their No. 1 ranking.

Thomas all week had practiced in the shadow of attention piled on his counterpart for Georgia, Herschel Walker. He had said he hoped to prove he was as good as the Heisman Trophy candidate.

After the Sugar Bowl victory Thomas said he made his point.

Huskies Humiliate Hawkeyes, 30-0

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) - It was a nice vacation for the Iowa Hawkeyes and 40,000 of their fans who came out of the cold Midwest winter to spend two weeks in the warm California sun awaiting New Year's Day and the Rose Bowl. There was wining and dining in posh Beverly Hills restaurants. There was entertainment fit for kings. And there was plenty of time to relax and enjoy the sunshine and swaying palm trees.

But then came the football game.

Iowa's heralded defense turned to Jacque Robinson and a swarming defense to score a 28-0 victory in the 68th Rose Bowl, the first Rose Bowl shutout since 1963.

You just witnessed an old fashioned rump kicking," said lowa Coach Hayden Fry. "Washington really put it to us in every area of the game, starting with the coaching.

They were impressive on offense and devastating on defense. It was very embarrassing. It was like we had blinders on. It was the worst game we played this season, but the used the running of freahman Huskies were the reason."

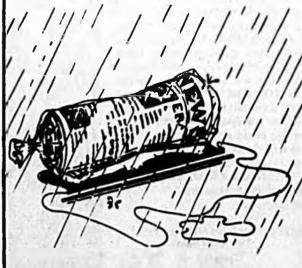

Washington Coach Don James was just as surprised as Fry.

"I anticipated a tight, low-scoring game," James said. "I didn't expect this kind of game at all."

Washington, the Pacific-10 champion, finished the season with a 10-2 record. The Huskies have appeared in three of the last five Rose Bowl games and their victory in the 68th renewal avenged a 23-6 loss to

Michigan in last year's Rose Bowl. The loss was a dismal finish to Iowa's first winning season in 20 years. The Big-10 co-champion Hawkeyes finished with an 8-4

Cooney Hates Holmes Championship Attitude

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

STATELINE, Nev. (NEA) - Gerry Cooney gets terribly upset when you mention the name Larry Holmes.

Cooney figures to make at least $10 million for getting in the ring March 15 in Las Vegas with Holmes, the WBC heavyweight champion.

"Honestly," pleads Gerry, "I don't even like to talk about him. I'm sure I'm gonna have to."

Why this antipathy toward a collaborator who could make him rich enough to retire for life at the age of 25?

"He's the champion of the world and acting like a three-year-old kid," says Cooney, "And that's not the way for a champion to conduct himself... And he's got no class. And I don't like him at all.

"Poor Howard Cosell has got to take out more health insurance. Every time I see him on TV around Holmes, he's grabbing his head.

"So I just don't like Holmes, but it's not going to affect me in the fight at all." So much for not talking about Larry Holmes.

Earlier, after a light workout in a ring set up in the showroom at Caesars Tahoe - where he was ensconced for a few days recently to exhibit his personality and commentate on a cable TV boxing program - Cooney sat on the apron outside the ropes, facing curious vacationers and gamblers for a friendly rap

"I think Holmes is crazy," Cooney told them. "He can't talk too well. He's a kind guy... The kind I can do without."

Cooney likes the riposte that goes with being a public figure. He winks at the girls, plays up to little kids and patiently handles the barbs thrown at him by

Pro Boxing

"People have questions about me," he says. "They don't know if I can take a punch. They don't know if I can go the distance. I hope they're still asking the same questions when I retire."

He autographs and passes out decksize cards with his 25-0 record on one side and a color photo on the other.

He is a big, friendly, shambling young man with a flourishing mane of black hair in the shape of a Trojan helmet and a Roman nose with a noticeable bump.

The bump came from his amateur boxing days around his native Long Island and in New York. He was eager but unschooled and still managed to win 55 out of 57 houts and a Golden Gloves

His only amateur losses were to the Davis brothers, Eddle and Johnny, "I lost to Eddie Davis when I was 17," recounts Cooney. "The following year I beat him in the semi-finals (of the Golden Gloves) and lost to his younger brother in the finals."

The men who haunt boxing have a difficult time pegging Cooney's talent. The record shows 25 professional fights, no defeats, 21 knockouts — but a paucity of action as he grew into contending status. He had only three fights in the last two years, knocking out washed-up heavyweights. Cooney stopped Jimmy Young in four rounds and Ron Lyle in the first round in 1960. He annihilated Ken Norton in the first round Cooney won't fight any more before the Holmes bout. A scheduled Dec. 6 meeting with Joe Bugner (another washed-up species) was canceled when Gerry experienced some back problems.

Cooney's forte is a smashing left hook that has accounted for most of his knockouts. He has an under-developed right because of inherently weak shoulder muscles, which he is now trying to build up.

If Cooney were to defeat Holmes, he would be the second tallest champion in boxing history. He is 6-foot-6 and weighs 230 pounds. This tends to make him look awkward, but he moves his size 13 shoes quickly enough. (Holmes is no midget at 6-foot-4.)

Cooney is seven years younger than the 32-year-old Holmes. Unlike Larry, who keeps talking about retiring, Gerry revels in the fact of being a boxer.

"When you get in the ring and knock somebody out or get a decision," he says, "that 10 minutes after the fight is the greatest feeling in the world. You can't describe it."

And the actual fighting? "I love to fight. I just try to tell them there's no hitting in the face." Gerry winks mischievously. The one-time steelworker from Huntington, L.I., turns serious and sensitive again when the old bromide of being a

"White Hope" (which goes back more than half a century to the time of Jack Johnson) is brought up. "The promoters," Cooney says vehemently, "hit on this. This is 1961. This is not the 1500s. A fighter should be based on his ability and not his color. All cause riots and things like that. "All I can do is try and change it." At present, that consists of blotting out Larry Holmes, the name and the man,

Scotty's Signs Up For Airport Lease

Herald Staff Writer

Documents were signed Wednesday by representatives of the Sanford Airport Authority and Scotty's Inc. for an $800,000 20-year loan and lease for the new Scotty's roof truss and building products manufacturing facility locating at Sanford

The Sanford Airport Authority sponsored the loan, to be repaid from lease revenues through the authority for a 10-acretract and 36,000-square-foot metal building which began construction Oct. 1.

The new building, which when completed and equipped will be worth $1 million, is scheduled for completion Feb. 2. When the facility opens and begins its operations, 15 to 20 local residents are expected to be employed there, said J.S. "Red" Cleveland, director of aviation at the airport.

Along with the manufacturing facility, Scotty's has constructed a railway spur into the airport property to be used for shipment of its products.

Cleveland said negotiations between the authority and officers of the 56-year old Florida-based firm began in January

John Daniels, chairman of the authority signed documents on behalf of the authority, while Jay Gentry, Scotty's vice president, signed on behalf of the firm.

Scotty's has 62 retails stores selling building supplies in Florida and one in Georgia. In addition, it is involved in manufacturing roof trusses in Winter Haven and Clearwater. The firm also has a millwork facility producing prehung door units and cabinets in Winter Haven, where its corporate headquarters are located.

Scotty's primarily serves the consumer do-it-yourself market for building materials and supplies. However, the company also is a leader in supplying these products to home builders, major community developers and customers whose business is the maintenance and repair of residential, commercial, governmental and other building complexes.

Rush-Hampton Gathers Pollutant Data

Rush-Hampton Industries president J. outlets, etc. By sealing those openings, we Rushton Bailey has announced that the Longwood-based company is helping to underwrite construction costs for a house designed to gather information about indoor pollutants.

Located in Arnherst, Mass., the house will contain a whole-house air-cleaning system which will identify pollutants and then eliminate them. The house was built by Dr. Salvatore DiNardi, associate professor of public health at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst.

DiNardi recently explained why indoor air pollution has become a major problem. "The advent of energy conservation has started a trend to tighten up houses. All houses have natural sir leaks around windows, sill, doors, the attic, through walls, around electrical cause the indoor air pollutants that are generated inside to remain inside and build

DiNardi said a significant indoor air pollutant is formaldehyde. "Formaldehyde occurs in building materials, the clothes that we wear, drapery material, carpeting, and some types of wall coverings," he said.

Other indoor pollutants identified by DiNardi are carbon monoxide and oxides of nitrogen, "These pollutants come from the combustion processes - combustion of natural gas or liquid propane gas used for heating or cooking, and coal-burning or woodburning stoves used for heating. The chemicals found in coal or wood-burning emissions are, in a sense, the same kinds of chemicals found in cigarette smoking."

DiNardi explained that while formaldehyde produces a noticeable reaction in most humans - an allergic reaction, an eye irritation — other pollutants may not cause an immediately noticeable problem. However, exposure over time may well create problems.

"We're not trying to raise alarm," explained DiNardi. "But clearly we need to study indoor air pollution so that we can make recommendations to control whatever the pollutants are so that we don't have problems down the

The Rush-Hampton House is a first step in analyzing the problem. Scheduled for completion early this year, the 2,600-square-foot house is also a passive solar-heated home. It contains special computer monitored sensors - wired into the walls - to check the presence of various chemicals, dust, polien, sand, fibers, hair, skin cells, bacterial cells and the rate of air movement.

DiNardi and his wife and family will live in this passively solar-heated experimental Rush-Hampton Industries, founded in 1969, has led the way in the scientific study of indoor air pollution. The company introduced air treatment systems in 1977 and is constantly researching new applications for the patented CA-90 air-treatment systems.

Bailey is enthusiastic about the company's future. "We will continue to lead the way in the study of indoor air pollution. We are already developing a whole-house system that will be based on research obtained from the Rush-Hampton House studies. We will research new applications and will continue to tackle the indoor air pollution problem with scientific expertise," he said.

Mutual-Fund Industry Growth Was Faster Than Ever In 1981

The mutual-fund industry grew 70 percent in 1961, faster than ever before. to end the year with total assets of nearly $250 billion

While the phenomenal popularity of money-market funds powered this expansion, sales of common-stock mutual funds matched those of the record year, 1969. The number of shareholder accounts now totals 17.5 million, compared with 12 million a year ago.

The Investment Company Institute says mutual funds are now the fourth largest type of financial institution in the United States, Only commercial banks, savings and loan associations and insurance companies have greater assets.

Realty Business In For Shakeup?

Soaring costs of land, homes, skilled labor, energy and mortgage money, coupled with an expected surge in Florida's population during the 1980s, will force the restructuring of the real-estate business, according to several special reports on real estate and construction in the January issue of Florida Trend business magazine.

Many young couples looking for their first dream home may have to settle for a mobile or manufactured home. Smaller homes with fewer amenities may be the answer for others. U.S. Homes, the General Motors of the home building industry, already is building single-family homes as small as 800 square feet and condominiums about half that size.

Some home designers believe that in the near future adult children will have to share quarters with parents and grandparents because of unaffordable housing. One Florida builder now is building homes designed to accomodate as many as 20 persons under one roof.

Florida Trend predicts the Florida home of the future will be similar to the "Cracker" designs favored by the Southern frontiersmen who settled this state.

Construction Dips Again In November

Construction contracts fell another 10 percent in November, worsening conditions in an already depressed construction market, it has been reported by the F.W. Dodge Division of the McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co.

According to George A. Christie, the firm's vice president and chief economist, the total value of newly started construction projects declined to $0.7 billion in November, after a brief period of stability in the early autumn months.

The November Dodge Index (1972 equals 100) dropped to 142, the lowest reading so far in 1981.

Over the last 12 months, the annualized value of construction contracting has fallen 31 percent to $129 billion, compared with $187 billion a year ago. This steep slide, in which the creditsensitive housing market was hardest hit, closely followed the pattern of the past year's monetary restraint.

"November's contracting data showed that even though credit conditions were beginning to case, construction markets had not yet caught up with the changing economic environment," said Christie. "Housing failed to respond to falling interest rates in the latest month, and commercial and industrial building showed a degree of strength that was inconsistent with the awareness of an oncoming recession. Turning points in both these categories of construction are imminent, and soon should become evident." November's contracts for nonresidential building totaled $4.4 billion, down 2 percent from the previous month's value after seamed adjustment.

Continued atrength in 1981's record pace of office building, and a rebound of industrial construction, lifted the latest month's total of commercial and industrial building contract value 16 percent above October's level. However, a 13 percent decline in contracting for institutional buildings, such as achoes and hospitals, dominated November's nonresidential building total.

4-Year-Old To Debut As Central Florida Heart Ambassador

Herald Staff Writer

A charming four-year-old South Seminole youngster is bound to win lots of hearts for the American Heart

Edward "Eddle" Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Gray of 518 Oak Lane, Maitland, will make his debut as 1982 Heart Ambassador for the Chapter at the Heart fund kickoff breakfast at 7:30 a.m., Feb. 1 at the Harley Hotel in Orlando.

Young Eddle underwent heart surgery at Shands Teaching Hospital. Gainesville, in May of this year to correct a heart murmur detected by his pediatrician when he was three months old. Eddie was born June 22, 1977, at Seminole Memorial Hospital in Sanford.

"It's the most common congenital heart defect," said Mrs. Gray, microbiology supervisor at Seminole Memorial Hospital, where she has worked since 1971, "and as far as surgery is concerned the easiest to rectify."

After Eddie's condition was first noted, a more definitive diagnosis of his problem was made by a local pediatric cardiologist, who recom-

"Although Eddie's heart defect was classic, we were very concerned when we learned that his problem warranted surgery. We talked often with the doctors and to other parents of children with similar problems to learn what to expect. We read several books on cardiology and surgery in order to prepare us and Eddie for the

"In the final analysis, however, it comes down to one's faith and prayers, and of course, the knowledge and skill of the physicians and hospital personnel."

Eddle was admitted to Shands on Wednesday and had his surgery on Friday, "They don't call it open heart surgery," said his mother. "A threeinch incision is made in his back to close a hole between the pulmonary artery and the aorta. All babies are born with this opening, but it normally closes in three days to two weeks after birth. If it doesn't close it causes a congenital heart murmur," she ad-

"The surgery was a success, but it was about three days before Eddie began to feel himself again and to eat and regain his strength," Mrs. Gray

"We knew he was really okay," she said, "when we heard Eddie calling for his blue blanket and his teddy bear as he was being moved from the recovery room to the pediatric intensive care unit."

One week after surgery Eddie went to his local pediatrician-cardiologist where he had an EKG (electrocardiogram). "The doctor said there is no more heart defect and he was dismissing him as perfectly normal," Mrs. Gray said.

"His type of heart defect, unlike some others, didn't interfere with his activities," she explained. "The difference now is he is more active and doesn't tire as easily. Where he went 20 miles per hour before he goes 30 mph now."

Edward's recovery has been amazing. He has grown several inches and has resumed his fun activities such as swimming, bicycling and playing catch. His favorite companions at bedtime continue to be his blue blanket and teddy bear.

His favorite Christmas present is his "Christmas camera" which is really a set of binoculars.

We were told that if he didn't have the surgery sometime in life he might develop hypertension," Mrs. Gray

"When we first learned Eddle had a and I wanted to be left alone," she said. "I didn't think talking to parents of children with heart defects would be beneficial, but when I did I found out it helps. "I found out we weren't the only ones with a child with a problem, there are so many other children with heart defects, some worse than Eddie's, they had undergone surgery and they were fine. I wasn't so scared then, but I still cried when they were getting him ready to go to the operating room.

"When friends learned we were going to Gainesville," she said, "they were under the impression that the Ronald McDonald House had been completed and we would be staying there. It hasn't been completed yet, but when it is it will be a great help to families with children who are patients at Shands. They will be able to stay at the house free or pay a small amount if they can afford it. There are some Gainesville motels that give a discount to such parents, though." Mr. and Mrs. Gray stayed in Gainesville for the week that their son was hospitalized in order to be with said Mrs. Gray, "but in Eddie's case they couldn't explain the cause."

Eddie is an only child, "We may have overprotected him in a sense," his mother said, "With a heart murmur there is always the chance of endocarditis if he got a cold or childhood disease, so I hired a babysitter instead of putting him in a nursery with other children while I worked."

Mr. Gray, employed at Gray's Jewelers in Orlando added, "We are thankful that research has brought about the advanced technology that helped in Edward's case as well as in the cases of many other children."

Funds collected during February by the American Heart Association will support educational and community service programs as well as basic research. An estimated 6,000 volunteers in Central Florida will join over two million volunteers throughout the country in distributing heart-saving information and collecting funds to support the programs.

James B. Greene, Orlando insurance executive and civic leader is serving as the Central Plorida Chapter's 1982 campaign chairman. Mrs. Geanne Erwin of Maitland is serving as Heart Sunday chairman, coordinating activities of the Heart Sunday effort on Feb. 28.

The overall campaign goal for the 1981-82 fiscal year is $350,000. The goal for Heart Sunday, the residential effort, is $60,000. Special events such as the Jump Rope for Heart and Rock N' Roll Jamborees will help reach the

Sanford Soldier Shines In One Of Most Inhospitable Areas

Special to the Herald

CAIRO WEST, Egypt — While millions of Americans were reading about the Mid-East exercise "Bright Star," a Sanford soldier, Army Sgt. 1st Class John D. Beasley, was in on the

Beasley, 25, son of Mrs. Ella L. Beasley, 1613 S. Olive Ave., Sanford, was with the 24th Infantry Division's task force in the Western Desert some 40 miles southwest of Cairo. He was assigned as a platoon sergeant with the 2nd Battalion, 21st Infantry of the 24th Division. This portion of the Western Desert, scene of some of the fiercest battles for North Africa during World War II, is one of the most inhospitable areas on earth. There are no trees, no large rocks, no hills - nothing but a barren expanse of sand and gravel stretching to the horizon in all directions. "I think Bright Star was a pretty good, realistic exercise," said Beasley, "because of the joint training we got and because we were operating under different commands. While the training was realistic, I don't know what the real thing might actually be like, but I do know that we are ready for the unexpected." "Bright Star 82," a multi-service exercise and test of the nation's Rapid Deployment Force (RDF), highlighted many of the problems and situations U.S. Forces would encounter in desert operations. The fine, abrasive sand coats everything with a gritty layer of dust. Engines require constant attention to keep them going. Optical systems, weapons systemsvirtually everything-needs constant attention to protect it from the environment. Soldiers, while probably the toughest piece of equipment fielded during the exercise, also required extensive support and special desert gear to operate and

The troops of the 24th were fortunate in one respect; they did not maneuver in the incredible heat of the high summer, when temperatures can reach 120 degrees, making equipment almost impossible to handle and movement on foot an agony. During the winter months, daytime temperatures are a balmy 80 or so degrees, plunging to the 40s at night. Blowing sand adds to the fun. Still, most of the men and women participating in "Bright Star" gained from the experience. "The biggest challenge, I think, was trying to navigate cross country without any real terrain features," Beasley said. "Still, I enjoyed most of the exercise."

To those whose job it might someday be to actually fight in this environment, the revelations were many. Navigation is tough, with no terrain features to use in locating one's position. There is little concealment for man or machine, and the inevitable clouds of dust give away movement for miles. Distances are hard to estimate, and the stillness and clarity of the desert night make the slightest noise audible for long

While the logistics required to support a large force in the desert are formidable enough in themselves, it would be the American soldier, the everyday GI, who would face two enemies here; the desert and his opponent.

A 1971 graduate of Seminole High School. Beasley enlisted in April of 1972. Relatively young for one of his rank, he plans on staying in the Army because, "I like my profession and all the experience it gives me," he said.

Nurse Kicks Pill Habit

DEAR ABBY: I started taking diet pills two years ago. They killed my hunger and made me feel great. Too great - that was the trouble. By nighttime I was overstimulated and couldn't sleep, so I started taking sleeping pills. Then more diet pills the next day, I soon found myself so hooked I couldn't stop. (As a registered nurse, I should have known better.)

Finally my nerves were shot from all the highs and lows, and I knew something had to be done. Even though I'm not a religious person, I did something I hadn't done in years. I prayed. And by God (literally) I somehow found the strength to take all those pills and flush them down the tollet!

I'd be lying if I said the next few weeks were easy. I've never had a two more difficult weeks in all my life. More than once I was tempted to get more pills, but I prayed for the strength to keep me from it, and miraculously the strength came to me!

It's been five months since I've taken a pill, and I feel like a new person. I'm "high" on being free from artificial stimulation, which always ends in depression. I know all of this is too long for your column. Abby, but I hope you'll find space to print part of it. I'm sure there are others out there who are hooked as much as I was, and if I could kick the habit with prayer, so can they. Sign me. . FREE IN TUCSON

Pair Celebrates 50th Anniversary

Former Sanford Mayor Merle W. Warner and his wife. Ruth, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Dec. 28. Mr. Warner said they spent a quiet day reminiscing with family and friends.

The Warners are the parents of three children: Autha Lawlor, Sanford; Lane Warner, Mansfield, Ohio; and James Warner, Sanford. They have 13 grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Merle and Ruth were married Dec. 28, 1931, in Lucas, Ohio. They grew up a few miles from each other which led to nearly a lifelong union. The Warners moved to Casselberry in July. 1946, and to Sanford in 1947 "when I got into politics," Mr. Warner said. He was on the Sanford City Commission and was Mayor of Sanford during 1958.

A private pilot, Mr. Warner was a member of the Sanford Civil Service Board of which he was chairman for 16 years. He is a retired real estate broker and was president of the Seminole Board of Realtors in 1970 and 1971. He is a member of Sanford Masonic Lodge.

Mrs. Warner was a nurse's aide at Seminole Memorial Hospital for 15 years. She retired two years ago. She is active in the Sanford Garden Club and First Presbyterian Church, Sanford, where they are members.

...THE HOPE OF OUR COMMUNITY,

Dave is such an avid bowler he spends New Year's eve at the alley. Jokingly he says I ve gotta practice because next year I'm gonna get 'em all."

Many of us look at next year with similar hopes. We want to excel. We want things to be perfect. We want our every effort crowned with success.

But Dave knows 1982 won't bring all strikes - and we know it will not fulfil all our superlative hopes.

The beginning of a new year is a time to evaluate our goals, measure them against what God expects of us, and seek His help in achieving right aims and purposes.

Before the New Year begins, and after it is underway, the church is where we all should be seeking what it takes to make 1982 a better year,

Wednesday Monday Tuesday Sunday Mark Isaiah Titus Luke 1 26-38 10.13-16 62:10-12 318 Thursday Friday Saturday Luke Luke Luke 2 1-20 2 25-40 4:14-22

For Non-Jewish Spouses

Jews Begin Conversion Program

The Reform wing of American Judaism is beginning an outreach and conversion program aimed at exposing the Jewish faith to non-Jewish partners in mixed marriages and to other Americans with no expressed religious preference.

"Let no one underestimate the scope of this project," said Rabbi Alexander M. Schindler, head of the Union of American hebrew Congregations.

"What we propose, in effect, is that we launch a massive effort to transform the attitude of an entire community - an entire generation, if you will - from a resigned, embarrassed acquiescence into a determined, emphatic counteraction," Schindler said.

Schindler made his remarks shortly before delegates to the Union's biennial convention overwhelmingly adopted the outreach program earlier this month in Boston.

The Union of American Hebrew Congregations is made up of about 750 congregations with 1 million members.

Three years in the making, the growing concern at the number of intermarriages among Jews and the marriage partners at some synagogues.

outside their faith.

A task force examining the feasibility of the program concluded that "seeking converts is entirely within the historic traditions of Judaism."

"The task force believes that any program of Reform Jewish outreach should primarily involve communicating with dignity the message of Judaism to unaffiliated Jews (including those born of mixed program was initiated out of a marriages) and to non-Jews who have no religious preference — a message that explains the values, hostility shown non-Jewish history and tradition of Judaism and the Jewish people," the report said.

Jews in the United States have Surveys show that as many as one-historically put little emphasis on third of the nation's Jews marry conversion or missionary programs and have often been critical of efforts by others — especially fundamentalist Christians - to seek Jewish converts to Christianity.

The report and proposals accepted by the UHAC, the synagogue arm of the Reform Jewish movement. stresses it is not about to tamper with the faiths of others or engage in what has come to be known as "sheep stealing."

"The task force agrees that any Jewish outreach program should distinguish itself from the evangelical efforts of others who seek to convert people to their own religion, even though those people might already identify with another religion," the report said.

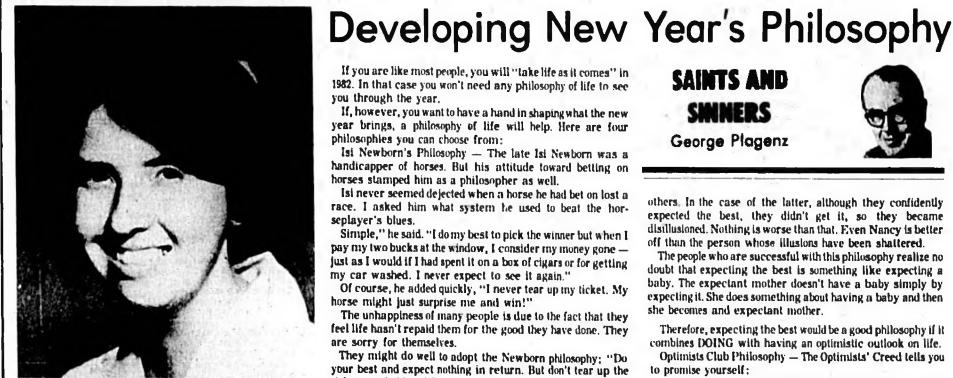

"Any program of Reform Jewish outreach should in no way seek to convert to Judaism people who identify with other religions," it added.

But it did call for research into the "special concerns" of the "religiously non-preferenced."

There are an estimated 70 million so-called "unchurched" in America - those who express religious beliefs but belong to no organized religious groups.

"There is a tremendous potential for rendering an invaluable service to countless men and women yearning for a religious focus for themselves and their children and who might want to consider Judaism as one of the possibilities," the report said

If you are like most people, you will "take life as it comes" in 1982. In that case you won't need any philosophy of life to see you through the year.

If, however, you want to have a hand in shaping what the new year brings, a philosophy of life will help. Here are four philosophies you can choose from: Isi Newborn's Philosophy - The late Isi Newborn was a handicapper of horses. But his attitude toward betting on horses stamped him as a philosopher as well. Isi never seemed dejected when a horse he had bet on lost a race. I asked him what system he used to beat the hor-

Simple," he said. "I do my best to pick the winner but when I pay my two bucks at the window, I consider my money gone - just as I would if I had spent it on a box of cigars or for getting my car washed. I never expect to see it again." Of course, he added quickly, "I never tear up my ticket. My horse might just surprise me and win!" The unhappiness of many people is due to the fact that they feel life hasn't repaid them for the good they have done. They are sorry for themselves.

They might do well to adopt the Newborn philosophy; "Do your best and expect nothing in return. But don't tear up the ticket you hold on life's race. That is, don't become cynical. There may be surprises in store."

Nancy's Philosophy — Nancy is a 25-year-old woman I know whose philosophy is "Expect the worst." She says it shields her from disappointment.

For example, she tells herself every Saturday night, "Nobody will call me to go out." If nobody does, she is not disappointed like the girl who sits by the phone all evening waiting expectantly - but in vain - for the phone to ring.

Many people have Nancy's philosophy. They set their hopes and goals so low that they never have to risk the chance that these hopes and goals will not be realized. This, however, is not a satisfactory philosophy of life because there is a difference between being happy and merely keeping disappointment from the door. Norman Vincent Peale's Philosophy - "Expect the best," Peale advises, "and this will tend, like a magnet, to draw the best to you." This seems to have worked for some people but not for others. In the case of the latter, although they confidently expected the best, they didn't get it, so they became distillusioned. Nothing is worse than that. Even Nancy is better off than the person whose illusions have been shattered.

SAINTS AND SMINERS

The people who are successful with this philosophy realize no doubt that expecting the best is something like expecting a baby. The expectant mother doesn't have a baby simply by expecting it. She does something about having a baby and then she becomes and expectant mother.

Therefore, expecting the best would be a good philosophy if it combines DOING with having an optimistic outlook on life. Optimists Club Philosophy — The Optimists' Creed tells you to promise yourself:

- To be so strong that nothing can disturb your peace of

- To talk health, happiness and prosperity to every person you meet. - To make all your friends feel there is something worthwhile in them.

- To look at the sunny side of everything. - To think only of the best, to work for the best, to expec

- To be just as enthusiastic about the successes of others as you are about your own. - To forget the mistakes of the past and press on to the greater achievements of the future. - To have a cheerful countenance at all times and give every living creature you meet a smile.

- To be too large for worry, too noble for anger, too strong for fear and too happy to permit the presence of trouble.

Oddly enough, the Optimists Club in my city doesn't have a single clergyman in its membership.

Societies Set $22 Million Budget

The United Bible Societies, the worldwide fellowship of 66 national Bible Societies that includes the American Bible Society has adopted a world service budget of $22,379,400 for the coming fiscal year. The budget, approved by the UBS executive committee in Nairobi, Kenya recently is an increase of $1,066,400 (about five percent) over the 1980-81 budget figure.

"The money will help finance Bible work in many countries around the world." said Dr. John Erickson. world service officer for the UBS, based in New York.

Erickson said the world service budget was "a tool whereby financial resources in excess of current program needs in some Bible Societies are matched with program needs in excess of currently available financial resources in Bible Societies."

The world service budget is in fact a net subsidy budget and therefore does not include funds raised and used by the contributing Bible Societies for programs in their own countries nor the growing support that Bible Societies in Third World countries — which normally are in need of subsidies for their programs — raise among their own Christian constituencies. Included in the newly approved budget is just over $3.2 million which will be spent on the Scripture translation programs of the Bible Societies.

Miss Alice Ball, an American Bible Society general secretary and a member of the UBS executive committee, said she hoped that supporters of the Bible cause in the U.S. would respond generously to the urgent need for more funds to meet the growing need for Scriptures throughout the world.

"Our supporters have been enormously generous in the past, and continue to be, but. like most countries in the world we are being hit with inflation, rising costs in providing paper and ink, and higher costs for distribution," said Miss Ball.

Quite often when people are playing games, it is necessary for them to choose sides. On the sandlot as a child, do you remember choosing up sides for a softball game? As the choice is being made, the captain says: "I want you on my side. I choose you." And, probably, if it is a game of skill or involves athletic ability, the ones who are doing the choosing will pick those people whom they think will make the biggest and best contribution to their team effort.

In life we also make choices. And, likely, we do our picking and choosing in much the same way. We think that a certain action is going to be to our advantage, and so we say: "I will choose this position, this job. I will choose to move my family to this state and this city. I will purchase this house or this car, and pay for it in this way." Almost without exception, when we make these decisions we make them with the thought that our choice or decision will be to our advantage.

However, we can turn this kind of thinking entirely upside down when it comes to God and our faith and eternal hope. As the Holy Scriptures say, "If God is for us, who is against us?" And it is great to have this kind of faith in God's providence as we stand on the door-step of a new year.

We are assured by St. Paul: "We know that in everything, God works for good with those who love Him." So, if the year brings sickness or good health, sorrow or great joy, financial reverses or great material gain, spiritual triumph or some profound spiritual tating, we know that in all things-no exceptions-the Lord is working for good in the lives of those who love and trust Him.

much different for most of us than they were a He not also give us all things, with Him?"

Choices In The New Year

By REV, E.A. REUSCHER Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Sanford few weeks ago. The days go by and neither you and I nor the world seem to change very much. IT SEEMS THAT WAY!

But think what your life will be like a year from today. Will you still be living in the same house and working at the same job or still be going to the same school? Now, double your age. What will you be doing when you are twice as old as you are now? Or, add 50 years to your age. Will you still be alive?

Probably a year from now seems like quite a while to most of us. A hundred years seems like a very long time. And yet, in His Word, God reminds us that this isn't a very long period of time at all, that it's like a dream in the night or like flowers that are cut and soon wither and die.

We don't know what the future will bring. But we do know that God will not die next year or ever. He always was and always will be. To Him a thousand years are just like yesterday, just a little while.

So, all we really need to know about 1962-or any year-is that God will be there, that He stands by, that He is for us.

Finally, knowing God is the secret of joy. Knowing God is the secret of guidance. Knowing God is the secret of hope, "If God is for us, who is against us? He who did not spare As we begin a new year, things wifi not be so His own Son, but gave Him up for us all, will

Nancy Bock Schedules Organ Recital

The Central Florida Chapter of the American Gulid of Organists presents Miss Nancy Bock in her Orlando debut recital this Sunday at 8 p.m., in the Cathedral Church of St. Luke, 130 N. Magnolia Ave., Orlando.

Miss Bock, an Orlando native, has recently returned to Central Florida after five years study with Heinz Wunderlich in Hamburg, Germany, While in Germany ahe appeared as soloist with the Hamburg Symphony Orchestra and presented many organ recitals, including appearances on the famous Arp Schnitger organ that Bach himself played in the St. Jakobi Church.

Her early study was with Orlande's own Louise Duckworth for piano, and she began organ study with the late Helen Bell Jones in Gainesville. In 1976 she won first prize in the Collegiate artist competition of the State Music Teachers' Association. In 1979 she played at Rollins College, and this year at the National Cathedral in Washington, European critics have praised her "...overwhelming ability and maturity" (Hamburger Abendblatt) Shelia and Robert Warren, French horn; Robert Griswald. and called her "already a master of the organ"

Her Orlando recital will include music by Max Rager, J.S. Bach, and Maurice Durufle.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Exotic Disease Erases Memory Of The Elderly

NEW YORK (UPI) - A mystery disease that loots minds of the elderly and breaks the hearts of their loved ones cries for much more research support from the federal government, Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D.-Mo. says,

The ailment, Alzheimer's disease, has erased memories of one million elderly, he said - and victims, in various stages of the dementia, fill half the nation's sursing home beds.

Eagleton made his appeal for massive support to solve the medical riddle at the 35th Albert Lasker Medical Research Awards luncheon attended by leaders of the nation's healthcare and medical research community.

· He said the key element distinguising Alzheimer's from benign forgetfulness in healthy older citizens is a relentness decline in mental capacity.

"It begins with forgetfulness," he said, "progresses to discrientation and lack of ability to identify familiar objects or persons, and ends with total disorientation and lack of response to any outside stimulus.

"Alzheimer's has aptly been called 'the disease that loots the mind and breaks the heart'."

Eagleton said this year the federal government is putting only $10 million into research on the cause of the disease despite the fact that America has a net gain of 1,600 elderly daily and "more old people means more Alzheimer's."

"The current national cost of nursing home care is an autronomical $21.6 billion and is projected to rise to $75.6 billion by the end of this decade," he said.

"Yet the total federal outlays for aging research are roughly $60 million, or 0.13 percent of the $60 billion spent annually by the government for elderly health care.

"Our government's policies with respect to care of the victims of Aizheimer's disease are equally inadequate," he

"All the rules and regulations under Medicare say that we are not going to be bothered with long-term chronic disease. "We will pay for an elderly person to receive nursing home or in-home care only after a three-day period of hospitalization, and only if the nursing home or in-home care is directly related to the illness that occasioned the hospitalization, and then only for skilled care for the first 20 days, and finally, only for 100 days total before another hospital stay is required."

Eagleton said the Veterans Administration hospitals admit Alzheimer's victims only if they have service connected medical problems or are indigent.

"Medicald or other forms of public assistance will not help out until the family's savings have been totally eroded," he
