A CHIEF IS AMONG YE TAKING NOTES AND FAITH. "HELL PRENT 'EM"—SO SAYS SAUNTERER.

Live While You Can
A little life, a little love,
A little time to stay,
A few short years of smiles and tears
And then we go away:
Enjoy the laughter, songs and wine,
There's none to say you shan't.
Live, laugh and love your fill, until,
The time comes when you can't.

For what's life worth, if not with mirth
To crowd each blessed hour?
No merit lies in frightened eyes
And faces sad and sour.
The smile's the thing, the laugh whose ring
Wakes joy in every heart
And knows that life is only sad—
When good friends have to part.

So love your life, so live your life,
When reveille shall come,
You smiling go as one who'd know
What moves above the sun;
Forneath the sun, the race you've run,
Since first your life began;
Lived, laughed and loved your fill,
until,
You met Death like a man.

"I appeal to you, Mr. President," says Mrs. Charlotte Smith of Massachusetts in a communication which she has forwarded to President Wilson, "to spare the bachelors of this commonwealth if you issue a call for volunteers. Let other states send their bachelors to the front, but spare, oh, spare Massachusetts bachelors."

Mrs. Smith dislikes bachelors exceedingly and has tried to have a special tax imposed on them. In her letter to the President she points out that "the New England race has about run out, for there are but few marriages and fewer children are being born to the descendants of the Puritans each year."

She proposes to recruit a regiment of five hundred women, ranging from 25 to 45 years old, to serve as sharpshooters. She believes they could pick out guerrillas with more ease and accuracy than the nervous bachelors, because they are accustomed to long hours of toil, light rations and small remunerations.

"The women would never be missed from this state should they fall in the service of the country, because there are one hundred thousand surplus women in Massachusetts," was Mrs. Smith's final comment.

The following from the Savannah News will interest the ladies of this city:

If anybody thinks that the work of women's clubs is not important that benighted person needs only to read the report in yesterday's morning News of the convention of the First District Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, which was held at Millen. It will be little short of surprising to any one who has not kept in close touch with their work to learn merely of the varieties of their activities. They are taking up work that should be done, but that hasn't been done heretofore because it was everybody's business and hence nobody's in particular.

It was made plain at the convention that the women of the First District have taken hold of the task of bettering conditions under which the people of the district live with a determination, and a grasp that are bound to bring good results. Their work is growing. It is not being confined to the one big city of the district, or even to the smaller cities. It is being done in the small towns, in the less densely populated sections, in the little communities, and is the means of improving conditions here and there, making lives happier, making communities more attractive, exerting good influences in countless ways.

In the report of the Waynesboro club it was stated that the betterment of conditions at the Burke County Jail was one object toward which the club was working; the Woman's Culture Club of Sylvania has been beautifying the public squares in that city, and the Civic Club caused medical inspection of the school children; and the Millen Club gave an agricultural college scholarship as a reward for good work by a canning club girl. And so the list of the women's good works ranges from jail to school, including a hundred matters between those extremes. The fact that they are getting good results in the small communities is very gratifying, because their wise activities are very much needed there. Nobody should should throw any obstacles in the path of the women who are doing the public's work and doing it well.

The country editor is in the front rank of the citizens of his community. He is a leader in affairs of his town and contingent territory. By the nature of his employment he is a booster. He knows all the people whom he serves. Their affairs are as his own. When death casts a pall over a darkened home it is his duty to record words of sorrow and sympathy. When a family is made happy by the visitation of the stork, he rejoices and notes the fact in sentiments befitting the occasion. He announces the success of a spelling bee in Rural district No. 3 with the same enthusiasm as he does a dress suit affair at the residence of Banker Jones. He proclaims the fact that a new barber chair has been installed at the barber shop in the same column which announces plans for a three-story business block on Main street. He sets forth the programs of the various churches with impartiality and fraternal organizations are given an equal degree of mention. These things and many others, says the Cedar Rapids (Ia.) Gazette, make up his news columns, which he compiles in his weekly routine of labor. His efforts are occasionally reproduced by dailies in large cities and treated with derision by alleged humorists. To be thus made a subject of zest to be thus made a subject of jest he does not resent. For he knows what the people want and he is serving them.

In his editorials the country editor reviews the needs of his community and its relation to affairs at large. He writes from the shoulder and with effect, for he knows what he is talking about, in which he has the advantage over many of his brothers in large cities, who know not their constituents as individuals. The country editor is personally acquainted with his readers and he voices their sentiments. Removed himself from the large centers of financial and political turmoil he gains a proper perspective of the affairs of the nation and state. His viewpoints are wholesome and refreshing and he is not deviated from honest expression by tainted influences.

He wields a trenchant and not infrequently a scholarly pen. There are scores of editors in country towns whose forceful expressions, in point of literary excellence and strength of appeal, are not outdone by the highbrow writers of the metropolitan press.

In fact it may be said that only in the weekly field does the editorial writer still maintain his old-time supremacy of power and influence. And the editors of the weekly press, however they may diverge in their honest political opinions, are working as a unit for the progress of the people.

More power to them and more appreciation of their intelligent, unselfish efforts.

Prehistoric English Quarry.

A prehistoric quarry, believed to have belonged to the ancient Britons, was recently unearthed by accident at Gaping Hills, Hitchin, Hertford, England. A plow horse was walking along a deep furrow in a field when he stepped into a circular hole about two feet in diameter. Two flint implements were found, such as were used in ancient quarries.

Laura Jean Libbey's Talks on Heart Topics

THE MEN WOMEN LIKE.

"Why did she love him? Curious fool, be still! Is human love the growth of human will?"

The young maid in her teens is easily suited. Almost any young fellow who wears a natty suit, tan shoes, and a red necktie looks good in her eyes. It does not matter whether he is a bashful youth, or has a gift of gab, she thinks him manly perfection. When she has merged from her teens, and is swinging along airily in her early twenties, the youth of other days who has kept pace with her no longer appeals to her, for her conception of the "one man" has changed.

She likes the man who has begun a career; a young man who talks of most anything else besides football and college days; who is just at that age when he is a trifle indifferent as to whether he makes an impression or not. The woman who has reached thirty appreciates the bachelor; not the flippant kind, nor yet the man about town, who is a conspicuous figure at all prominent affairs, and who is much sought after by mamma with marriageable daughters.

When she nears forty, it is the widower who appeals to her, especially if he has a little family which needs a woman's influence and care—if he has not passed the five and forty milestone on life's pathway. He is neither too young nor yet too old, not over-rich, yet well-to-do.

Tango or hesitation waltz may have no charm for him, yet he enjoys concerts, theaters and cozy little dinner parties. He appreciates sensibility in a woman, yet likes her to enjoy life and brightness. He appreciates the woman who is fond of our-door life, and can put on her hat and accompany him anywhere on five minutes' notice, and whom his friends' wives like to visit. This type of man suits a woman of forty in every way. When she has reached another decade of years, she likes the man ten years her senior, be he widower or bachelor. But, if an additional ten years were added to his age he would be all the more pleasing in her eyes. He would be sympathetic, companionable, content to sit by the fireside with her, and in dressing gown and slippers, recount to her the experiences of the days when Time was young with him. She likes him because he is content with her only, her ways, her dress.

MAKE YOUNG GIRLS' LIVES HAPPY.

"Soft is the breath of a maiden's Yes; Not the light gasp that rises with less; But never a cable that holds so fast. Through all the battles of wave and blast."

There's many a woman who looks out discontentedly upon a heavy snowfall, wondering how she shall amuse herself on so dismal a day. Let me suggest a merry idea. If she is living in a country town, and is well-to-do, why not plan to give the young girls of the place the time of their lives? By night the snow will be packed down hard. She has a couple of old wagons in the barn which could be put on runners, and there's plenty of horses in the stable, neighing and whinnying their eagerness for a dash down the road. Why not send her chore boy around to the shops and mills and invite the tired girls returning home from work to a straw ride an hour or so later?

They are informed they need not bother about eating much dinner at home; their hostess will attend to that. What poor little girls to whom a sleighride is a luxury she has often dreamed of, but never experienced, would not clap her hands and fairly scream with joy at such an invitation? Of course, there would have to be plenty of young men invited to make it jolly for the girls. What young fellow with bounding red blood in his veins would refuse a straw ride, the first sleighride of the season, especially if his best girl was to go along? There's magic in the crisp air; there's a charm in the dainty white carpet that covers hill and dell. Even the man in the moon—who might be called a full brother to Eve when it concerns curiosity, peeps out from behind a cloud to see what it's all about—the laughter of maidens, the shouts of exuberant young fellows, and the joyous jingle of the bells. Of course somebody strikes up a tune. The girls all know the song, and the waltz rings with their glad young voices, trolling out the songs which always appeal to young hearts.

Those who only know the tune make up words to suit the occasion, provoking continuous bursts of laughter from the merry crowd. And oh! what appetites they have when the sandwiches, doughnuts, gingerbread and apples are passed around. When they stop at their hostess' door to say goodnight a cup of steaming coffee awaits them. It makes the good lady's heart glow in her bosom to listen to the thanks they pour forth, and the blessings they heap upon her for giving them the most glorious time that they ever had in their lonely young lives. What a world of happiness well-to-do women upon whose hands time hangs heavily could scatter through the paths of young girls who are bread-winners and have few of life's pleasures! In winter time young girls who have no one interested in them to escort them about usually have dreary evenings.

Why don't the fortunate young matrons get together and plan a series of amusements for working girls, always extending invitations as well to nice young men to meet them—young men who are thrifty and would make good husbands; those who admit they wouldn't object to marrying if they could find the right kind of a girl? It takes a popular matron to start such a ball rolling. She must get her women friends interested and they, in turn, will do their share. What a boon to employed lads and lassies! Winter evenings would have no terrors for them. There would always be some joyous prospect to look forward to. Girls have but one youth-time. If you know any girl whose life is lonely, try to make it happy for her.

NOT SURE OF HIM.

"Love is such a mystery, I cannot find it out; For when I think I'm best beloved I then am most in doubt."

The cleverest girls are those who blunder most in their love affairs. The girl who is not so alert is apt to believe that all a young man tells her is the gospel truth. With the clever girl, it's his actions, not his words, that count; though he may tell her that she is his ideal in one breath and ask carelessly in the next who the girl was he met her with yesterday, she is shrewd enough not to put credence in "the ideal" remark nor is she quite sure of him. As for that matter, no woman is quite sure of a man until she steps to the altar with him. Many a girl thinks because she is engaged that she is privileged to say just what she pleases to him. She pouts over this and scolds over that, quite willing that he should coax her into good humor. There is a limit, however, to the patience of the best of men. When he has reached that stage, he might balk over the merest trifle. The upshot of the matter is they agree to disagree and go their separate ways. Nor can the wife of a man's bosom expect to continue to scatter her husband's opinions at all times to the winds and to do as she pleases. The best of husbands will rebel once in a while. One can never be positive as to what a man will really do under different circumstances.

Even a mother is not quite sure of what her own son will do. She may be intensely anxious that he shall marry some daughter in the social set in which she moves. He may lose his heart to the pretty shopgirl who sells him gloves and marry her after the short whirlwind courtship. A father may work all of his life and scrape and save in building up a business. The hope which he hugs to his bosom for years is that he is laying a foundation of his boy's future career; that he will take the reins out of his hands when he is ready to lay them down.

"The best laid plans of mice and men gang aft a-gley."

No parent can be sure of even his own son. "That kind of a life wouldn't suit me," declares the boy. "I'll have none of it. It's too slow! An airplane for me and the life that goes with it!" The girl who has over-confidence in her best fellow, asking him to escort home this girl friend or that one when they happen to call upon her, often sends forth her ship of love upon a treacherous sea. If the lover, like the ship, returns to her no more, she has learned her lesson; after that experience, she lets her women friends find their own escorts.

No sweetheart can be too sure of holding even the most faithful of lovers. If he finds her continually dull his thoughts may turn slowly to some other girl whom he knows that is always bright, who has a glassy welcome for him.

In the other girl's presence, time fits by on golden wings. No woman can sit down and worry over the possible chance of losing a man or let him know that she does not feel sure of him. If she is bright, of happy disposition, cultivating a charming personality is genial, and a chum in truth, always ready to go here and there with him, entering heart and soul into the sports he likes, she may feel that she has a better chance, the world over, in holding his heart, against all comers who might be possible rivals. Every man has one soft, little warm spot in his heart if only woman could reach it. If two hearts are not wholly agreed, the woman cannot be sure of him. No woman should be disheartened because she cannot influence one particular man. Their natures evidently do not harmonize. They would never be wholly satisfied with each other were that acquaintance to end in matrimony.

The woman for whom a man would give his last dollar, aye the last drop of blood in his heart, is the only being who would be sure of him. This advice holds good for both sweetheart or wife. A man might change every seven years, but he is supposed to renew his lease on love as it entered his heart for a tenancy for life. There never was a heart created but another heart was made for it. These and these only are sure of each other.

Idols of the diamond are often quickly forgotten after they drop out of the national game, and for the benefit of the present-day generation a brief sketch of Jack Chesbro's career would not be amiss at this time.

Jack Chesbro, who aided greatly in making the spit ball famous while with the New York American league team, is farming today on a big homestead in New England.

Jack is done for so far as the use of his big league arm is concerned.

He is not beset with any financial worries, because he saved a great deal of what he made in the days of success, says a writer in the Washington Herald.

Chesbro was born in North Adams, Mass., forty-two years ago. He began with Springfield in 1895. Pitched for the Rogano club of the Virginia league in 1896, Richmond in 1897, and to the middle of 1898, when he was purchased by Pittsburgh. He remained there until 1903 when he jumped to the New York Americans.

The following year he not only established that wonderful mark of 21 victories in 53 games, but came through with a string of consecutive games won, hanging up an American league record of 14 in a row.

Chesbro has dropped out of baseball as far as the major leagues are concerned, but still pitches on a spitball club near his home town in Massachusetts, for he loves the game too well to drop it entirely.

First Election Under the New Bryan Primary Law

Returns Show That Fletcher, McRae, Sears, Clarke and Wilson Were Elected in the State

The County Officials Show Good Form, But There Were a Few Surprises in the Average

Another election is over and one that excited considerable interest on account of the fact that it was not only the first one under the new Bryan primary law but was also the first election held in Seminole county for county officials. From early morning till the closing of the polls at six thirty and from then until early morning—the morning after—the excitement was intense. The country precincts came in early over the telephone but not being official in many instances could only be used by the various candidates in augmenting their votes in connection with the slow trickling in of the two city precincts. No. 1 precinct having the lightest vote started counting early, and gave the result several hours before No. 3 where there were 451 votes polled.

The various candidates worked like Trojans all day long and the hot rays of the sun did not lessen their ardor. The candidates and their friends were on the job at all hours and until the polls closed stayed right at the polling places.

Along about nine o'clock in the evening some of the candidates were noticed to climb into automobiles or stroll off toward home, either feeling good and satisfied, or sore but satisfied with the result. At that time some of the candidates succeeded but it was only on Wednesday afternoon about 6:30 that the real result in Seminole county was actually known, for at that time the official canvassing board had gone over the returns from every precinct in the county and made up the official returns. The general result was known but the official count as given in today's Herald will make most interesting reading and demonstrates more than anything else the old saying that you can never tell about an election until the votes are counted.

The total number of votes cast in Seminole county's first election was 875. In the two precincts of Sanford city there were 626 votes polled which is probably the full voting strength of the city and county although there were some voters that were unable to cast their ballot on account of illness or absence from the county. George G. Herring, candidate for County Judge has the distinction of leading the ticket by the sum total of 553 votes, which is a compliment to any man. Second to him is S. C. Dickson of the County School Board and the third high man is L. P. Hagan, candidate for County Commissioner in District No. 2. In view of the fact that all of these candidates had opposition their large vote is a source of extreme satisfaction to them and their friends.

The election of Tuesday demonstrates that in some particulars the Bryan primary law is all right and if it can be amended to suit the exigencies of several occasions that have arisen it will probably be used hereafter. The only serious objections to the law as used here Tuesday was that the counting of the ballots may have taken more time than usual and the tabulated returns were more tiresome to the clerks but this may have been due to the new law being unfamiliar and many of these things will be straightened out in time. The canvassing board yesterday worked under difficulties on account of the serious illness of Supervisor DuBose but the method of canvassing under the new law is all that could be desired, although the first and second choice votes take up considerable time of the clerks.

Since the readers of The Herald by this time know the names of the lucky candidates there is no need to repeat their names in this issue but the tabulated report will give all the necessary information and should be preserved along with the other bits of history of the new county.

By One Vote

Jacksonville, June 5.—Senator Duncan U. Fletcher carried Duval county, including the city of Jacksonville, by one vote, according to completed returns received last night just before midnight, the official tabulated figures being, Fletcher 3,006, Stockton 3,005.

Acosta for Congress leads his nearest competitor, Sears, in the county and city by 609 votes, as follows: Acosta 1,809, Sears 1,200. L'Engle is low man, receiving but 871 out of the 5,028 cast for this office.

For State Senator, Farris is elected by a majority of 325 votes over Craig, who received 2,745.

Miss Gladie Sharp of Orlando has been the guest of Miss Frances Gonzales the past week.

Mr. Herndon and family have recently moved to Geneva and expect to make this their home. We extend to them a hearty welcome.

A. H. Spier and family, Miss Thusa Tarel, Mrs. David Spear and A. B. Doane represented the Baptist church at the union meeting at Chuluota last Saturday and Sunday. Too much cannot be said in praise of the Chuluota people for their hospitality and friendliness to visitors. Everything had been arranged for the entertainment of the delegates and visitors, dinner and supper was served on the grounds each day. There were many good sermons and talks on the various subjects of church work, among other interesting things were talks by Mrs. Peelman, state secretary W. M. S. of Jacksonville, a program rendered by the missionary society of Chuluota, a drill by the infant class of which J. Tilden Jacobs is the teacher, and the sweet songs sung (by special request) by Miss Thusa Tarel of Geneva accompanied by Miss Thusa Tarel on the piano.

There was an enthusiastic meeting of the board of trade last Monday night in regard to marling the streets of Geneva. This would certainly be the proper thing to do and would benefit everybody.

There is hardly a night passes without a picnic on Lake Harney. The new pavilion and park are an inducement to pleasure seekers.

Mrs. Dan Hart and little son of Chuluota joined Mr. Hart in Geneva last Thursday and have moved into their new home on Lake Geneva.

J. W. Flynt had the misfortune to lose one of his mules last Monday night.

Water polo was well represented at Commencement exercises held at Sanford High School and Stetson University.

The lake shore boulevard which has been built by public subscription of some of the citizens of Enterprise is now open to Green Springs. This road is 30 feet wide its entire length, runs within sight of the lake all the way and is one of the most beautiful drives in this section of the country. It is beautifully shaded by large oaks, pines, palmettos and magnolias and numerous shrubs. Within a short time it will be shelled and when finished will be much patronized by automobilists. It is the intention to open this soon to Garfield and later to connect with the road which is expected to cross the east end of Stone Island and thence on to Sanford. This will give a lake drive to Sanford and shorten the distance thereto some seven miles. Property along the road now opened has taken a jump in price and sales are being made. No prettier sites for homes can be found than along this drive.

Mr. Harden of Mount Verde has been the guest of W. J. Burns.

Miss Marcia Ledford has returned to her home in Tennessee, having closed a successful school year.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Durant spent Saturday and Sunday at Pierson.

Rev. Entzinger of Longwood delivered a good sermon here last Sunday.

One of the oldest residences of Lake Mary was destroyed by fire Tuesday morning. It was once the home of the Moye family, but has been owned and occupied for several years by Mrs. Catherwood. It caught from the kitchen. It could have been saved had the kitchen not been covered with tin and shingles underneath. Mrs. Catherwood has the sympathy of the community, being a widow woman and no insurance, as in most cases.

Edno Braddock, after visiting his sister, Mrs. H. D. Durant here returned to his home in Pierson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Evans have as their guest a little daughter. She arrived Tuesday night and is highly hope up with her new home.

The Florida Citrus Exchange Uses Modern Selling Methods

Not only do these include proper representation in the leading markets and constant work with the trade, but they make use of advertising to the consumer.

It is now a well established fact that the business which makes liberal use of advertising can distribute its goods at a smaller proportionate cost than one which entirely makes its sales by word-of-mouth solicitation.

Likewise it has come to be generally known that any product that has merit, which is in general demand, that is offered at a fair price and which can be depended upon as to quality, may be sold if the consuming public is told the truth about it through mediums that are generally read.

As soon in its history as the quality of the fruit it handled became established through the adoption of proper packing house methods, therefore, the Exchange went to the consumers of citrus fruits with the facts about the superiority of Florida oranges and grapefruit sold by it.

It was felt that the expenditure of a few cents a box for this purpose would produce results in larger demand and better prices altogether out of proportion to the outlay, and much greater than could be secured from an equal expense in any other direction.

The facts have more than justified this belief, and in the territory covered by the Florida Citrus Exchange advertising its brands have become dominant in the markets and Florida fruit has taken from the California product the supremacy that the latter had so long enjoyed.

The advertising has been done carefully, in accordance with the experience and suggestions of expert advisors. Nothing has been taken for granted as to the results produced—the facts have been secured by investigation made where the fruit sells.

The advertising has created vast demand for Florida fruit in general and for Florida Citrus Exchange fruit in particular, and to meet this demand wholesale and retail dealers have carried Exchange fruit in stock, and to show their appreciation of the Exchange advertising have supplemented it with space paid for by themselves, in which Exchange fruit has been featured.

A "Dry" Nation

Fourteen states have repealed laws passed to prohibit the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquors. Of the nine states that now have prohibition in their statutes or constitutions several expressly permit the individual citizen to import as much liquor as he and his family can consume. It is more than probable that without permission the prohibitory laws in such cases would be frankly expunged from the statute books. In his letter to the Times, appearing elsewhere, President T. M. Gilmore of the National Model License League suggests that Congress would do ill to pass a constitutional amendment to destroy the property of the liquor business in the United States, amounting to over $2,000,000,000—unless the people really mean to do without their beverages.

They don't mean it. It is a fact that they are drinking more, not less, despite the multiplication of prohibitory laws. The facts that show this are official and incontrovertible. The weight of the law is more felt by the community adopting them so long as there is contiguous territory that is "wet" and will supply them. The liquor dealers have seen their property destroyed in some of the States, and they have had to suffer the process of readjustment of their trade under new conditions. Economically this is wasteful. Morally it is bad, because the people go on drinking just the same under the hypocritical law that says "no" with the liquor pouring out of the universal prohibitory law would shut off supplies to the consumers. The people would no more pass it than they would pass a law forbidding a man to take a drink. From N. Y. Times.

CHANGES IN PLAYING RULES

Federal League Expected to Abide by Rulings Just the Same as "Organized Ball" Teams.

Three radical changes have been made in the playing rules that will govern baseball wherever it is played. The Federal league is expected to abide by the changes just the same as the so-called "organized baseball" teams. Probably the most important change is the one that will prevent the coacher at third base from stopping or holding up a runner. If the coacher puts his hands on the runner the latter is out. Under the old rules the coacher was permitted to put his hands on the runner.

Another improvement in the rules is that the coacher can encourage the batter, runner, or, in fact, anybody on his own side. In the old way the umpire used to rule against a coacher shouting to the batter. Another change stipulates that if an umpire is hit by a ball on fair ground, play continues just the same as though nothing happened. Last year the batter was often sent to hit over the umpire had been hit by the batted ball. It is also ruled that a pitcher can deliver the ball without danger of having a balk called on him so long as either foot is back of or on the pitcher's plate. Now, even if a pitcher should drop the ball accidentally a balk is called on him. Such matters used to be left to the discretion of the umpire.

When a player knocks a home run over the fence he must touch every base. If an attempt is made to hinder the catcher from throwing, the batter only is out, and not the runner also, if he is called. The runner gets two bases if a fielder throws up his glove, cap or the like to stop the progress of the ball. If a ball catches in the screen back of the batter the runners can take only two bases.

Doc Scanlon Reinstated.

Doc Scanlon, former Brooklyn pitcher, has been reinstated by the national commission. He quit the game a few years ago to take up the profession of a doctor. He is going to manage a Brooklyn semi-pro team.

Florida Christian Endeavor

Four mentions first, four districts of the state union, and they are miles apart. Notice, first Tampa, or as we should say West Tampa, where they planned a real concert for May 29th, all of Endeavor talent on the program. To show the wide-awakeness of these workers, it is only necessary to say they invited all of the local societies by written personal invitations. It took twelve of them to go around, for Tampa is up and doing compared with other portions of our union in C. E. growth.

In West Palm Beach, Southeastern district the society voted willingly forward to by those who can go as the one time in the year when they can go on a little excursion with but little expense. Personally we are glad they are going to this beach this year. Although we do not expect to go ourselves, we see no reason why we should throw cold water on the happy hearts of those who expect to go.

Perhaps with some it will be a choice between the moving pictures and the picnic, while with others it may be between the dressmaker or the grocer and the "pic."

So far as the getting tired is concerned anyone must be lazy indeed who does not enjoy getting a little tired while giving a happy outing to the children (and who are not children in the Sunday school) to go somewhere where they have not been every day. A change is good for all of us and we hope that all will go who can scratch up the "chink" to go on. Many children could pay their own way by saving the nickels and dimes they beg from their parents for candy, etc. Try it, children, and see how much happier you would be and how much more truly you would enjoy the "pic."

Theirs not to reason why, theirs but to "pic" or die, noble school children.

A SUNDY SCHOOL SECY

We said there would be four items, but here is another—of South Central district. At Monroe, a little town near Sanford the secretary enjoyed on her recent field trip, a genuine country house ice cream social. It came after the monthly business meeting program led by the local president, Mrs. H. Isomman. The young and old folks present were fond of ice cream and about nine dollars were cleared as results of the social. Some societies complain of a shortage of money. Why not try some such cobbling plan of getting it as did Monroe?

It seems probable that the secretary will only have a brief stay at home. The new plan of a called conference for southern workers convenes at a summer resort near Chattanooga, June 12th. President Curry of Jacksonville, Vice President Waldron in Sanford or Treasurer Cavanagh of Tampa, not any of them felt they could leave business this month to go, so it is possible the secretary will take the trip but only to be from home and office correspondence a few days.

Dr. Wm. Shaw of Tremont Temple weds Miss Maude L. Chamberlain, also of Christian Endeavor Headquarters today. Another prominent Endeavorer who gets married June 3rd is Miss Mabel Langford of Georgia to Mr. Charles Mattis, this marriage being held in Watkinsville, the bride's home town. Miss Langford accomplished such successful work last year as the field secretary of Georgia that the work nearly doubled in more ways than number of societies. At the spring convention she insisted upon giving up field duties though would not tell the reason, but graciously consented to remain the corresponding secretary. It seems too bad that our friends will not get marriage dates in orange blossom time so we could have an opportunity to show affection for them, also advertise our state as a wedding flower land.

No Discomfort From Dedson's Liver Tonic

Violent Purgatives Need No Longer Be Used For Constipation So Why Run Risks of Their Unpleasant Effects?

To overcome constipation and sluggish bowels, gradually and safely, Dedson's Liver Tonic is guaranteed by Dr. J. H. Dedson & Co., who will cheerfully refund price, 75c, at once if you are not entirely satisfied with it. Dedson's Liver Tonic is made of the places of camel and other strong purgatives. It has none of the disagreeable and often dangerous after-effects of cathartics, which is in fact a poison, a mineral form of deadly mercury. Dedson's Liver Tonic is a strictly vegetable liquid, containing nothing harmful. It not only leaves no bad effects, but works easily and naturally, without pain or gripe and without interfering at all with your regular habits, diet or occupation. A trial may benefit you greatly, why not see about it today?

GRACE A. TOWNSEND, Interlachen, June 3, 1914.

Picnics

Why not have our annual Sunday school picnic near home so that all can go? Doubtless many have wished for this, but when we consider the facts in the case we find ourselves "up a stump." Where could we have it? If any one will suggest a place near town suitable for such an occasion we would be glad to hear of it. We know of no such place.

In the next place there is no beautifully wooded oak grove near the city, except one near the cemetery and no water or other accommodations to be had.

Again, the annual picnic is looked forward to by those who can go as the one time in the year when they can go on a little excursion with but little expense. Personally we are glad they are going to this beach this year. Although we do not expect to go ourselves, we see no reason why we should throw cold water on the happy hearts of those who expect to go.

Perhaps with some it will be a choice between the moving pictures and the picnic, while with others it may be between the dressmaker or the grocer and the "pic."

So far as the getting tired is concerned anyone must be lazy indeed who does not enjoy getting a little tired while giving a happy outing to the children (and who are not children in the Sunday school) to go somewhere where they have not been every day. A change is good for all of us and we hope that all will go who can scratch up the "chink" to go on.

Many children could pay their own way by saving the nickels and dimes they beg from their parents for candy, etc. Try it, children, and see how much happier you would be and how much more truly you would enjoy the "pic."

Theirs not to reason why, theirs but to "pic" or die, noble school children.

Office in Herald Building Telephone No. 148

And Stockton carried Seminole.

The first election in Seminole county was most exciting.

Despite the adverse criticism leveled at the new Bryan primary law we believe it will stick.

The best man does not always win and there are several candidates in Seminole county who believe this.

Huerta thinks he will stay in the fight a little longer now that he has more material for the fray. He must laugh in his sleeve over the game of peace conference.

Precinct No. 3 was the Bankers' booth with Cashier Tolar of the People's Bank, Cashier Key of the Seminole Bank and Cashier Whitner of the First National for the officials and they made good ones.

Joe Sears, the favorite son of Ocoola and the next Congressman from the Fourth District can well be proud of his vote in Seminole county. Ocoola and Seminole braves usually stand together on matters political.

Now that the election is over we can play ball with Orlando, go fishing and do many other interesting and vacation stunts. The good old summer time has arrived and there will be nothing to do but tomorrow.

It is most absurd for any one to feel sore about the result of the election now that it is over. It is almost as absurd to get sore before the election but now that it is all over there is nothing to do but get busy making fences for the next election and making predictions as to the result two years hence.

What has become of DeLand's bonding proposition? Are we to stay in the "dog-fennel" class of towns or to advance to the Sanford, Orlando, Palatka and Lake Wales class—DeLand News.

Quite right, Chris. No city can make proper improvements without bonding.

The Herald boasts that Sanford is one of the most flourishing cities of the size in the entire state, not only in its business aspect, its banks, farms and factories, but also in the vital matter of its municipal credit. This fact is evidenced by the very favorable sale made a few days ago of the city bonds. These bonds were sold at 103 and there were sixteen firms present bidding for them on the day that the sale was made. The money realized from this sale will be used for paying some of the outstanding indebtedness of the city and for such improvements as the building of sidewalks, the constructing of the bulkhead along the lake front and the paving of streets.—Tampa Times.

NO REGRETS

The editor of The Herald has no regrets over the result of the election. We have lost candidates before and expect to lose them again. Having been a consistent supporter of John Stockton for years we feel that he is right even in defeat and that some day either John Stockton or his principles will triumph. Stockton and Bryan are losers but they are the greatest men of their time and are greater in defeat since their adherents are always found fighting with them and will be found there until the end of time.

GUESSING

The Philadelphia Ledger truthfully says: Toss a coin into the air 10,000 times and it will very likely turn up heads as often as tails.

But let any man try on each of the 10,000 times to say whether it will be heads or tails and if he does not stick to calling the same one he will miss it more than 5,000 times.

We have the authority of a great psychologist for this queer fact. Let a thing wholly to chance, and if chances are even the result will be even.

However, when the human mind backs its wits against chance it will in the long run lose.

Guessing on future events where personal preference or prejudice enters makes the chance of losing all the greater.

The most famous insurance concern in the world is Lloyds. A fairly large part of its business has been to bet that the other fellow will guess wrong. That is why it has become so rich itself.

The bucket shop and its system of playing the stock market cannot win. They win very often, but they lose oftener, hence the empty pockets of those who try to wring fortunes out of guessing whether Union Pacific and spring wheat will this afternoon go up or down.

Monte Carlo records show that in a year the red on any roulette wheel wins virtually the same number of times as the black. But the records also show that any player who does not cling steadily to any one color, but carries his guesses, will in the end lose.

We do not include the percentages in favor of the bank, but just the straight red and black proposition. One color has been known at this most fascinating spot on the Riviera to come up 56 consecutive times.

Gamblers say that when tossing a coin you should let the other fellow call it. Your own chance of winning is thereby made greater by the human brain's inability to cope against chance.

And it is a good guess to guess that guessing on the election returns is also a bad guess.

HOW IT WORKED

It is perhaps too early yet until the county canvass is made to form a reliable estimate of how the new primary law worked in its first real test. But from conversing with different inspectors of election and collating their experiences we find that while there was much difficulty in adjusting the provisions of the law to the problems as they arise, these were almost all smoothed out finally, the only disagreeable result being the consumption of time.

Considering the fact that it was the first time that thousands had attempted to follow the provisions of the law there were surprisingly few errors committed by the voters in marking their ballots and adjusting the novel feature of second choice voting to actual practice.

It was shown by the manner in which the ballots were marked that the great majority of voters who felt any doubt about their ability to handle the new method of indicating their second choices solved it by simply marking their first choices and letting it go at that. There were extremely few second choice votes marked considering the number participating in the election.

The second choice feature is of course intended to take the place of the second primary which was held under the old system in the event there was no election in the first. The expedient may be successful when the people become sufficiently familiar with its exercise to handle it as it was intended to work; but until that time arrives the new law results in minority nominations.

There are many in a class of candidates receiving very many less votes cast after adding all their first and second choice votes, this being caused of course by the very small number of second choice votes cast.

But this first election was merely the first lesson in a course of education of both election officers and voters in the use of a system widely different from anything that they had been previously familiar with, and which will whom they learn more about its handling be found manifestly superior in many points to that which it displaced.—Tampa Times.

RETROSPECTIVE

Another one is over and as they come and go the thought comes to the newspaper man that all of them are about the same only a little different. The average citizen takes the election seriously for a few hours and then forgets about the election; the winner and the loser until election day comes round again and then spasmodically and hysterically pushes down to the polls and puts in one for John or Sam or some other friend or sticks one in against Bill or Joe because he hates him for a little thing that has no bearing on politics or the candidates' fitness for office. There is probably no man that makes politics a life study except the newspaper man and the politician.

The average man thinks but little about the affairs of his city, county, state or country. He nibbles at the news at the breakfast table or the tea table just like he nibbles at his hot rolls and bolts the important news just like he bolts his cup of coffee. He racks but little about the affairs in general and usually takes his neighbors word for it that Mr. So-and-so is running for office and is a rascal. Big affairs concern the average man not in the least and yet the high cost of living, the reduction of freight rates, the placing of good men in office are as vital to him and his future welfare as his hot rolls and coffee that start him out in the morning to his day's labor.

So we come to election day and fare forth with nothing definite in view but the one main idea of voting. We are obsessed with the idea of having a duty to perform and we do it in a perfunctory manner if we think well of the candidates, do it hysterically if mad at any of the candidates and do it as much like a duty as the small boy studies his lesson at Sunday school when the teacher is looking the other way.

And yet if the government goes awry, if the men who have sense enough to see our weakness and take advantage of it, if the day comes when the wheels of the juggernaut car of government run across our neck how we howl at the injustice of the oppressor.

The average citizen votes with as much sense as an African monkey would had he the opportunity to take a ballot out of one box and attempt to place it in the one that would yield him something to eat in return.

And yet in the main some good men seem to be elected and the Lord tempers the wind to the shorn lamb.

GOOD OLD SUMMER TIME

We don't know where the author of that much quoted term lived, and we don't think he lived in Florida, but if he had, his expression would have been more appropriate to the season described here than to the season in most any other latitude.

The summer is one of the best and pleasantest seasons in Florida that the whole year furnishes. Now, that may seem ridiculous to our northern friends, who have never spent a summer here and who judge solely from latitude, and we have no expectation of convincing them to the contrary of their preconceptions except by their own actual observations; so we can only say to them, "Come and see."

The greatest heat ever registered here since the establishment of the local office of the weather bureau was a temperature of 96, and that has only been a few times. In the hottest months of the year, or rather those that would be the hottest if it were not for local conditions, the heat is sensibly mitigated by the sea breeze that comes alternately from the Atlantic and the Gulf in the afternoon. And then too the rainy season comes in the summer and gives us all almost daily showers that cool the atmosphere perceptibly.

The only disagreeable feature of our Florida summer is its long continuance which renders it monotonous and causes us to meet the crisp days of fall with gratification.

When we read the other day of the many prostrations and deaths in the northern cities from the severe heat wave we congratulated ourselves upon the good fortune of living in Florida, in the pleasant summer climate in the United States.—Tampa Times.

Clark Praises Sears

Congressman Frank Clark is pleased that he was so handsomely remembered by his constituents in the Second district in the election Tuesday, he having received something like eight votes for everyone given his opponent.

He passed through the city from Gainesville to Washington, stopping last night at the Burbridge hotel, and will leave for the capital city this morning.

At the hotel last night he was expressing his appreciation of the vote given him, and then took occasion to say a good word for the man whom it appears from all records to date the Fourth District has named as its Congressman after the fourth of next March.

"You have elected a fine man in Joe Sears," he said. "I have known him for twenty-five years, and know him to be clean straight through, a man of his word, of good business ability and as loyal to his party and friends as a man could be. He will make for the district what it needs, a live young representative."

Mr. Clark said he never felt any uneasiness over his own seat, but that he came back several times during the campaign because he believed the people had a right to expect a word of their congressman when he was up for re-election, and that now it is over he is going back to Washington where there is real work to be done.—Times-Union.

Part of her furniture was taken out of the building but the home is gone. She has the sympathy of the community in her loss.

June 14th Memorial Services

The pastor of the Methodist church, Rev. F. E. Steinmeyer will, by request of the Order preach the memorial sermon for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers on the morning of June 14th at 11 o'clock in the Star Theater. Special train service has been arranged for and put at the disposal of the Order from Port Tampa to Sanford that they may attend these services. A large delegation is expected. The public is cordially invited to attend this service. Let every one honor those who have gone down "With their hand on the throttle and their eye on the rail."

Special music will be provided for the occasion. Methodist Services in Star Theater Large crowds attended the Sunday school and preaching services conducted by the Methodist church in the Star Theater last Sunday. Every one seemed to feel at home. The presence of a number who do not worship with us regularly was noticed. These with others have a most cordial invitation to meet with us again next Sunday.

The pastor will present the second sermon of the series on the "Christian," subject, "His Character." These subjects are designed for the encouragement and inspiration of those trying to live the Christian life. The evening subject will be: "What shall I do with Jesus?" Do you crown Him or do you crucify Him? Come to the theater on Sunday evening and study the subject. This is an important question.

Sunday School Excursion

The Sunday schools of Sanford will have an excursion to Coronado Beach on Thursday, June 11th. The train will leave the new passenger station at 7:30 in the morning and returning will leave the station at New Smyrna at 4:30. More details will be given in Tuesday's paper and grown folks are making preparations to take a day off and get in the briny.

Gave Flower Shower

A flower shower is the very latest in Sanford and the idea of giving beautiful flowers to the occupants of a new home is certainly a good one. Mr. and Mrs. McKinnon have recently moved into their beautiful bungalow on Magnolia avenue and the good ladies of the Presbyterian church thought it would be perfectly right and proper to embellish the new home with flowers. Forming the crowd at the home of Mrs. Dubose they descended upon Mrs. McKinnon on Wednesday afternoon laden with beautiful flowers, shrubs and vines all potted and ready to place on the porches and steps and grounds of the McKinnon place. Mrs. McKinnon was taken by surprise but was equal to the occasion and after the flowers had been placed to advantage a most pleasant afternoon was spent by the ladies and their hostess. This is a new departure in showers but would certainly be appreciated by the new home makers and is one that will be followed by many ladies in the future who wish to remember their friends and help them to make their homes more beautiful.

In Honor of Mrs. Dickins

The home of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Herndon was the scene of a very charming evening party Friday night in honor of Mrs. H. E. Dickins of St. Petersburg, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Doyle and Mrs. Walter Clay of Arcadia. The attractive home was adorned with cut flowers, ferns and vines, carnations being used with pleasing effect. Eight tables of players enjoyed a spirited game of auction. Mrs. S. Puleston winning the ladies' first prize, a pretty silver deposit violet bowl, and Mr. R. A. Newman captured the gentlemen's prize, two pairs of silk socks. The consolation prizes were secured by Mrs. F. J. Gonzalez and Dr. Puleston. Punch was served during the evening. After the close of the game the hostess and her assistants served pineapple sherbet, whipped cream and cake to the guests who were Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Newman, Dr. and Mrs. S. Puleston, Dr. and Mrs. T. A.

It is a matter of congratulation to Sanford and her people, that the financial condition of their city has so improved in the past year. The fact that the city is supporting a third bank, and that the growth of THIS BANK has been very rapid, is a most certain evidence that Sanford has at last begun to reap the reward she has long deserved. The Seminole County Bank has been of great assistance in bringing this change about, and the fact that the deposits of this institution have increased in the past six months from $42,916.05 to $183,975.85, shows the desire of HOME PEOPLE to support a HOME INSTITUTION. WEAKNESS OF THE UNITED STATES IN COUNTRIES OF SOUTH AMERICA

John T. Lenfestey Tells of American Commerce on the Southern Continent—European Nations, Germany, England and France, Now Get Lion's Share of the Business—Three Causes for This Are Named.

Chicago.—John T. Lenfestey has returned to Chicago from his tour of the principal states of South America, with numerous vivid stories of his experiences, as shown by his comments made to the London correspondent of The Daily News and reiterated here. He was deeply impressed by the mental alertness and the proud spirit of the peoples among whom he traveled. "It is high time," said Mr. Lenfestey, "that we people in the north disabused our minds of the foolish notion that we can treat South Americans with indifferent courtesy and have their friendship. They are wonderfully responsive to respectful and cordial treatment. I hope the American people will grasp this fact quickly, and I hope that in future no citizen of the United States, distinguished or undistinguished, will come to Central or South America and behave otherwise than he would behave if he were traveling among the most civilized and powerful people of the world."

"Enough, at that point, England has the same spirit in commerce that 'No Flint' Gen. Grey displayed in the conquest of the West Indies for England. British capitalists have scouts all over South America placing money with South American republics, and English contractors are on the ground to bring it back home for railroads, docks, harbors, battleships, explosives, guns and factories of all kinds. The Belgians, French and Germans are not far behind, 'gumshoeing' around for governments, corporations and individuals who need money and have security to offer for its use. In this way they remove resistance and make it easy for the manufacturers of their nations to sell the products they desire to move."

"Many Americans, looking around for openings without money, return home disappointed. North American salesmen in South America who speak Spanish are well satisfied with the success they are enjoying, and North American goods are given the preference more than ever before. There are three elements of weakness in the development of North American commerce. First, the absence of banking facilities under North American influence; second, ignorance of the geography of South America, and third, failure to properly fill orders and pack goods safely so as to insure them against the rough handling they receive in cargo steamers."

"There are abundant facilities for carrying freight safely, reasonably and promptly, if the same care and wisdom are used in addressing and packing shipments for South America as for domestic trade in the United States."

"The commercial instinct for merchandising is not very highly developed in South America, but the people there have much the same nature as elsewhere, and are reached in much the same manner, except that they are more sentimental and like to be made love to. The love making they succeeded in making ten heads of wheat grow where one grew before, and by their labor have been able to utilize the land, hitherto nonproductive, controlled by the members of the Buenos Ayres Jockey club.

"Brazil is dominated commercially, to a great extent, by Germans, who sit steady in the boat and daily enlarge their sphere of influence. They are ever ready on the ground with technical knowledge to produce what ever is wanted, as and when wanted, packed to arrive in the units wanted, with customs duty paid and bill rendered for delivery where and when wanted. This is one of the secrets of their success in Brazil, as they stand alone among nations for giving such complete service."

"South American republics are in much the same position as many unfortunate manufacturers in North America who are short of capital, owing to the inability of their bankers to see visions. It is said that in North America there are only two bankers who are big enough to recognize good visions and capitalize them."

"A foreign consul remarked to me that Europe was supplying the money and North America was selling the goods. By that he meant to say that American influence and commerce were growing rapidly in South America."

"I had a great time wherever I went. I found the people, native and foreign, sympathetic and generous of time, effort and money. I must tell you about a thrilling ride I had in Peru. By the way, I found the railways of the west coast, though owned by the English, operated by Americans from the top to bottom. It seems to be clearly recognized that the operating genius of American railway men is unrivaled. At Lima, Peru, expressing to J. H. Feehan, manager of the Central railroad of Peru, desire to go up the mountain, my request was immediately granted. For seven hours we ascended the grade—a four per cent one—finally arriving at our destination, Rio Blanco, 12,300 feet up. The rain clouds were driving about us and the blue sky gleamed beautifully through them. The view was vast and superb. I was 'tobogganed' back to Lima, 75 miles. That is to say, a man named Kelley took me on a handcar and ran down the line right into the city by gravity. We made the return trip in two and a half hours. It was rather late when we started back and for half an hour at the end of the journey we ran in the dark. It was my most thrilling experience in South America."

"I do not feel that one can too strongly underline the fact that for most part the American diplomatic and consular representatives now in South America are rendering service of the highest possible value to the United States. Undoubtedly the foremost man among these able public servants is Ambassador E. V. Morgan at Rio de Janeiro. He is an ideal ambassador. His tact, intelligence, sympathy and intimate knowledge of all classes and conditions of society mark him off as a diplomatist of extraordinary ability. So popular is he both with the public and Brazilian government that when it came to be understood that he was at the point of retiring from the service, the Brazilian government specially requested the Washington government not to permit him to retire. I say this about Mr. Morgan and his confreres of both services because I realize how important it is that the United States should have in South America men thoroughly initiated into the life of those countries. To change a man like Mr. Morgan at Rio de Janeiro, or our ambassadors at Montevideo, Buenos Ayres, Santiago or Valparaiso would be a calamity. They all have won a position that only tact and time give one and they have spent a great deal of money over and above the pitance allowed by our government."

says Mrs. Sylvania Woods, of Clifton Mills, Ky. In writing of her experience with Cardui, the woman's tonic. She says further: "Before I began to use Cardui, my back and head would hurt so bad, I thought the pain would kill me. I was hardly able to do any of my housework. After taking three bottles of Cardui, I began to feel like a new woman. I soon gained 35 pounds, and now, I do all my housework, as well as run a big water-mill. appreciate most is a display of confidence in them manifested by loaning them money for the purpose of building up and developing the republic they live under and love.

"South Americans recognize that public and private debts figure conspicuously in the older and more successful countries, and they see no reason why the per capita public debt of their nation and the cities they live in should not equal that of England, Germany or the United States. Judging by extracts taken from our North American papers, there are not so many famous grafters and newspaper publicity is given to grafting in South America than in the case with us."

"Spain and Portugal have sacked and sapped the South American republics for hundreds of years. Last year 147,000 emigrants from Spain moved into Argentina to fill the soil that is yielding in part for the injury wrought by their ancestors to the South American countries. These poor people from Spain are more needed in Argentina than the rich; they have

For Better Sunday Schools

Among the numerous adjuncts of the church, none is more prolific of quick, permanent and profuse results than the Sunday school. Realizing this years ago, wise men of various denominations conceived the idea of an international work among all schools throughout the land which should at once be interdenominational, helpful and lasting. This organization has flourished ever beyond fondest expectations, and since its inception into the religious field, the efficiency of the schools all over North America has gone on wonderfully. If the state of Florida the work of advancing Sunday school standards is now being pushed with vigor. The Florida State Sunday School Association has its state office in Jacksonville, with Abner B. Brown, an experienced worker and organizer as the general secretary.

Definite plans have been laid for aggressive work in all portions of the state, and to this end a field secretary has been appointed whose duty it is to visit counties, one at a time, and see each school in that county, talk with the teachers, officers and friends of those schools, hold meetings of interest to the communities, disseminate knowledge and literature and culminate, if possible the county visitation with a big convention in some logical town within the county. At these conventions the workers of every school gather for a conference. Here problems common to each denomination are discussed, and here ideas are exchanged the value of which is far reaching. The whole county is set on fire with Sunday school enthusiasm, and the stimulation is carried into the far corners and adds much good to the schools all over the territory worked. County by county is thus to be worked until the whole state glows with life. One of the beautiful features about this work is that all the advances made by such movements redound to the credit of the denomination of which the stimulated school is a part. In other words, this work is the work of the various denominations laboring in harmony one with the other, and whatever gains are made are denominational gains in the final summing up of statistics.

Already a number of counties have been visited and permanent organizations formed. The most recent conventions have been held in Lakeland in Polk county, and in Kissimmee in Osceola county. At both places the most delightful harmony and unity prevailed. The one purpose was to promote the common interests of the kingdom. At least a dozen denominations were represented, and delegates from practically every town in these counties came up to the conventions. Loyalty enthusiasm was manifested, and workers went back to their homes with the determination to make the next year the best in their schools. Goals were set, and earnest endeavors are being made to attain the same. New schools are to be organized, and in general the work of the schools is going forward with wonderful vitality. Other counties before these two have likewise been stimulated.

The work of the association in this vicinity will be welcomed with open arms, as it means an advance along all progressive lines, as no church is barred, and the cause appeals to all classes of people, and has a tendency not only to unify Sunday school activities, but also to show to the world the fact that religious forces can meet on a common level in matters which pertain to the welfare of Bible study and the Bible school. No petty denominational differences intrude here when the good of the pupils of the Sabbath school is at stake. One of the happy signs of the times is that combined effort is being more and more advocated, and that it is the only solution to some of the problems which confront present day civilization. It is hoped that through this united effort, for instance along temperance lines, that the Bible schools of Florida may be so in harmony one with another that the young soldiers of all schools irrespective of denominational affiliation will stand shoulder to shoulder in the fight against the common enemy. This is only one of the many phases of the work being outlined by the state association whereby unified action will effect vast results.

Late Election Returns

Jacksonville, Fla., June 5.—Returns from yesterday's state wide primary are yet far from complete, though enough figures have been received to indicate that Senator Fletcher's majority will exceed 10,000. His nomination is conceded by his opponent, John N. C. Stockton, John N. C. Stockton, W. J. Sears is far in the lead for Congressman from the Fourth District, defeating Claude L'Engle, present incumbent, but it is impossible yet to give the size of his plurality. Sparkman, Clark and Wilson were renominated by overwhelming majorities. McRae is renominated for Commissioner of Agriculture, defeating T. J. Appleyard, Jr., by a large majority. The contest for two Justices of the Supreme Court is still in doubt. Owing to the complication of second choice votes it will be impossible to determine the result until the official canvass is made.

Osage Orange.

The Osage orange is a native of North America and is generally used as a hedge. In some instances it attains a height of 60 feet. The fruit is not poisonous, but is seldom, if ever, eaten, being filled with a woody fiber and a milky juice which is far from attractive to the taste.

Great Developments Promised for Sanford

At last results have awarded the efforts of George E. Montgomery, Walter S. Adams and Mrs. Ellison Adams, they having interested with them certain bankers and business men of Chattanooga, Tenn., and of Pineville, Ky. Heading this group is Judge M. L. Moss of the Peoples Bank of Rivesville, Ky. They have organized a corporation which will be known as the "Sanford Development Corporation," notice of which will be found in this issue. The purpose of this corporation is the purchasing of all of the properties of the "Holden Realty Company," comprising some twelve hundred city lots and a large acreage of fine land. This development scheme embraces much more than we can elaborate at the present moment in this short article, but we are assured that it will include all of the great working out of the success that Sanford merits and to which it has been looking forward.

The new firm has most elegant quarters in the new Woodruff building recently erected at the corner of park avenue and Commercial street and is equipped with all that is necessary to carry on the business of repairing automobiles. The large floor space will afford ample room for the display of cars and the Buick car will be the leader in the sales department. The business management and sales department will be under the careful direction of Frank Miller, who with B. W. Rowe forms the new company known as the Sanford Motor Sales Co. Mr. Rowe is an expert mechanic and understands the automobile game thoroughly and he will have charge of the mechanical department. The new company starts off under most favorable conditions and with the best wishes of their many friends.

Sudden Shocks

IMPAIR THE SYSTEM, SHORTEN LIFE AND DO GREAT HARM

If you knew that you could cure yourself or your child of a malignant disease by the use of dynamite, would you take the chance?

Calomel acts on the sluggish liver like dynamite on the solid rock. It shocks and upsets the organs and works much harm as proven by its effects.

Modern science has discovered a vegetable substitute that produces all the desired effects of calomel without the shock or after troubles. It is so harmless that acids may be taken into the system immediately after the medicine without fear of after effects.

It aids liver, kidneys and bowels of all poisonous accumulations and leaves the patient feeling new and strong. Carwell's Liver-Aid is on sale at R. C. Bowers' drug store at 50 cents for a large bottle. The purchase price will be refunded in full if you find it unsatisfactory.
