Bomb Scare Interrupts Flight To Orlando

By Tom Giordano
Herald Managing Editor

JACKSONVILLE — A 727-200 Piedmont jetliner carrying 164 passengers and a crew of eight made an unscheduled landing here Monday afternoon following a bomb scare, and an eyewitness to the event said he was astounded at the apparent breakdown of security at the airport.

Wayne D. Doyle, publisher of the Evening Herald, was aboard the airliner with his wife Lena, their son Wayne Doyle Jr. and his wife, Cindy, and his grandchildren, when the plane made the unscheduled stop because of the bomb scare. The Doyles were returning to Sanford from a funeral in Virginia.

The flight, Number 41, took off from the airport at Charlotte, N.C. around 6 p.m. Monday as a non-stop flight to Orlando, but was diverted to Jacksonville airport when airline authorities were notified there was a bomb aboard the plane.

Doyle said the flight had already been well underway and a snack was being served when the pilot announced the plane would be landing briefly at Jacksonville. Doyle said the pilot gave no reason for the unscheduled landing, and asked passengers to assist the crew and stewardesses in cleaning up their seating areas of debris.

When the plane landed at Jacksonville, passengers were asked to leave the craft as quickly as possible, but in an orderly manner and "not to take any personal belongings with us."

However, Doyle said several passengers took tote bags, camera bags, briefcases and other carrying cases with them, and none of the bags were searched when the passengers got off the plane. Further, Doyle said, the passengers, after a brief wait in a field near the plane, were taken by vans to the airport's main terminal where they were allowed to mingle with the general public and passengers waiting to board other planes. He said during the brief wait near the airplane several emergency vehicles were on the scene and eventually search crews boarded the craft to look for explosive devices.

It wasn't until the passengers from Flight 41 were allowed to leave the main terminal and move into a boarding area to resume their flight.

Hostage Hopes Focus On Athens, Moscow

By United Press International

Efforts to win release of at least some foreigners held hostage in Lebanon for up to two years appeared to shift from the Syrian capital of Damascus to two European capitals today.

In Athens, Syrian President Hafez Assad was to meet with Greek Prime Minister Andreas Papandreu today to discuss Middle East problems, including the hostage issue.

Greek Foreign Minister Carolos Papoullas and Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk Sharaa also were to meet today. Officials said their talks would focus on the American, French, British, Italian and South Korean hostages believed to be held by Lebanese Shiite Moslems.

Attention also centered on Moscow, where Syrian Vice President Abdel Halim Khaddam was to arrive today. Diplomats speculated the Soviets would try to press Syria to free some French hostages held in Lebanon.

Abdel Salam Jalloud, Khadafy's second in command, arrived in Moscow Monday for the first high-level Soviet-Libyan talks since the U.S. bombing runs on Tripoli and Benghazi last month. Tass said both Jalloud and Khaddam had been invited by the Soviet government, but there were no indications if the visits would evolve into a three-way summit.

Syria has enjoyed a special relationship with Moscow, its main ally and arms supplier since the two countries signed a treaty of friendship and cooperation in 1980.

If Moscow could help negotiate the hostages' release, it would set a solid framework for the scheduled June visit to Moscow by French President Francois Mitterrand.

Nine Frenchmen are missing in Lebanon but the Islamic Jihad claimed it killed one of them in March. Pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem extremists using the name Islamic Jihad have claimed responsibility for kidnapping five Americans and eight of the nine Frenchmen.

Syria is influential with Lebanon's Moslem militias, and a high-ranking French envoy has been in Damascus since Saturday for talks regarding the hostages.

Several French envoys made fresh appeals Monday to officials in Damascus for Syrian aid in securing the release of the hostages. Syrian sources said. But the exact nature of the talks was kept secret.

The earliest any development in the hostage case could be expected is Thursday, the day after Assad's scheduled return from Greece, diplomatic sources said. Other sources said the process could take another week or two weeks, if not longer.

Among those involved in the Damascus talks was Omran Adham, a Syrian-born Paris businessman who some news reports said received telephone calls from Mitterrand's Elysee palace after arriving in Syria.

The French Embassy imposed a news blackout on the activities of the envoys, most of whom arrived in Damascus Saturday.

French hopes the hostages would be freed by their captors were fueled by improved recent contacts between Tehran and Paris and the persistent — but unconfirmed — Lebanese news reports of an imminent hostage release.

The sources in Damascus, however, said it was probably too soon to expect a release of any of the French or Americans missing in Lebanon. In addition to the Frenchmen and Americans, two Britons, an Irishman, an Italian and a South Korean are missing in Lebanon.

A Memorial Day Filled With Reflection

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

A Purple Heart Medal was pinned on Sanford native Thomas Oates at Memorial Day ceremonies in Sanford's Memorial Park Monday — 43 years after he was wounded by shrapnel in the Italian battle of Rome-Arno during World War II — and local veterans of several of the nation's wars marched through downtown in a parade to the park for a tribute to those who died for their country in defense of liberty.

Oates, a veteran of the U.S. Army, received his medal in the mail recently on VE-Day.

"I am proud of this medal and I am proud to be a good American," Oates said on receiving the long-delayed honor.

The medal was pinned on by Lt. Commander William J. Boyer, pastor of Grace United Methodist Church and a chaplain in the U.S. Naval Reserve.

Oates joined the National Guard in 1939 and transferred to the Army in 1941. He served in Africa, Italy, Germany and France and was honorably discharged on July 7, 1945 as a staff sergeant. He has received the Defense Service Medal, European, African, and Middle Eastern medals, the Silver Service Star with five bronze battle star medals, and the Good Conduct Medal.

Several hundred persons turned out for the event which was sponsored by the Fleet Reserve Association, Disabled American Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion and the Amvets. Seminole County Sheriff John Polk was the keynote speaker.

In Casselberry, more than 1,000 persons attended a Memorial Day program at All Faiths Memorial Park. The speaker, Brigadier General Robert L. Howell, assistant adjutant general of the Florida National Guard, arrived by helicopter. Highlight of the ceremonies was the acting out of the Surrender of Cornwallis by the Heroes of '76 and the Surrender of Lee by the Florida State Historical Society.

Elsewhere in Florida, a lawmaker was eulogized, casualties of the space program were honored and the war dead were remembered in Memorial Day services across the state. Nationally Memorial Day activities focused on Vietnam.

A crowd of about 500 people gathered for a ceremony dedicated to Korean War veterans held at Woodlawn Memorial Park in Orlando. The highlight of Monday's ceremony was the unveiling of a bronze plaque in memory of deceased astronauts, including the seven crew members who perished in the explosion of space shuttle Challenger.

"The 15 being honored today had the same common ingredients as most of you: they wanted to succeed and believed in themselves," said Bruce Jarvis, father of Challenger payload specialist Greg Jarvis.

"If you believe in them, these 15 people can be your incentive to

Emergency Medical System Gets Financial Boost

By Sarah Fischer
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County is to get a $58,710 boost for its emergency medical services thanks to a state-approved $5 surcharge on traffic violations.

The county hopes to use the money to provide a countywide EMS management system according to County EMS Manager Barbara Smith. A proposal developed by county staff to use the money is expected to go before the county commission for approval early next month.

A bill enacted by the state legislature last year enables a portion of traffic violation money to be returned to the county where the funds were collected to improve its pre-hospital EMS system, Ms. Smith said.

The $5 surcharge is collected on moving traffic violations, other than alcohol or drug related traffic offenses, and deposited into an emergency medical services trust fund created by the legislation.

Annually, 45 percent of the funds will be returned directly to the counties solely to improve and expand EMS programs. Fifteen percent is retained by the state EMS office for administrative expenses and 40 percent will be available for grants.

From July 1985 to March 31, 1986, Seminole County generated $108,653 in surcharges. It is estimated the county will collect $130,380 a year, based on a monthly average of $10,865.

The county spends about $390,000 for its emergency medical services program, which serves unincorporated Seminole County, she said.

The county fire department handled first aid from 1974 until 1979, when the EMS division was established under the public safety department.

The seven cities have their own EMS programs. Two municipalities, Longwood and Altamonte Springs, have mutual aid agreements with the county for rescue operations. Casselberry is considering implementing the aid agreement, which is similar to first response pacts for fire services.

"There is nothing to tie (the EMS programs) together," Ms. Smith said.

Under the staff's proposal, her division would coordinate an effort between the cities and the county to share in the new funding source.

A task force, composed of representatives from these agencies, would come up with a spending

Seminole Holiday Toll Stands At 1; 28 Killed In State

From Staff and Wire Reports

A Winter Springs girl was the only traffic death reported in Seminole County during the Memorial Holiday Weekend which took the lives at least 28 people across the state, the Florida Highway Patrol reported today.

The death toll could rise because accident reports are still trickling in to the FHP office in Tallahassee, which conducts the count.

Michelle Marie Charter, 10, of Winter Springs, was one of six pedestrians who died when they were hit by cars during the long weekend. She was crossing State Road 434 in that city just two blocks from her home when she was struck by a car around 9 p.m. Friday.

She and her brother had just bought some ice cream at a convenience store and were heading home

Male Hormone May Make Boys Better At Math

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Contradicting the widely held belief that boys outscore girls on math tests because of social reasons, a researcher says the key may be a male hormone that helps boys develop better reasoning skills.

Camilla P. Benbow, a professor of psychology at Iowa State University, said her own studies and those of others have not found a conclusive link between how girls are raised and how they perform on math tests.

But she said biological research has shown that the male hormone testosterone may enhance the development of the part of brain responsible for the reasoning skills needed in math.

Benbow made her report Monday during the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

In the last 15 years, studies of more than 100,000 American adolescents who took standardized achievement tests found that boys consistently scored higher on math skills than girls, even though their verbal skills are statistically identical, Benbow said.

When the difference was first publicized in 1971, researchers theorized that girls are not as adept at math because of the way they are raised, the way they are treated in school and even the toys with which they are taught to play.

But Benbow said those theories were not proved by follow-up studies that involved hundreds of girls who took the Study of Mathematically Precocious Youth (SMPY) test and another academic talent search test administered by Johns Hopkins University.

"They (the studies) lend credence to the viewpoint that these sex differences may have a biological component," Benbow said in a report during a symposium on race and sex differentiations in test scores.

However, Benbow said studies have also shown the math skills of girls can improve with encouragement and special teaching techniques.

Biological studies have shown that fetuses exposed to high levels of testosterone often favor their left hands and develop immune disorders such as allergies. Both of these traits are twice as common in mathematically gifted children than in other children.

The biological studies, from a number of institutions, suggest testosterone slows the development of the left hemisphere of the brain, thus enhancing the development of the right. The right side of the brain is associated with many of the reasoning skills needed to solve mathematical problems, Benbow said.

IN BRIEF

President Reagan Meets Today With Honduran President

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. security commitments to Central American democracies and peace efforts in the troubled region are the main topics for today's meeting between President Reagan and Honduran President Jose Azcona.

Azcona, who took office in January, arrived Monday on the heels of a weekend summit of Central American leaders that failed to resolve key differences over proposed elements of a regional peace plan.

The four-nation Contadora Group — Colombia, Mexico, Panama and Venezuela — has sought for more than three years to develop a framework for a regional peace settlement. The latest effort to advance that process faces a June 6 deadline.

The deputy foreign ministers of the Contadora countries were scheduled to meet with their Central American counterparts in Panama today to discuss the stumbling blocks that have prevented agreement.

A senior administration official said Azcona was expected to request more U.S. aid during his visit. Honduras, the third poorest country in the hemisphere, will receive $120 million in economic aid and $60 million in military assistance this year.

Rates Down, Home Sales Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sliding mortgage rates and stable prices contributed to April's brisk pace in home sales, the real estate industry says in releasing figures on the actual number of existing homes bought and sold.

The National Association of Realtors releases its report today on existing single family home sales for April.

In March, some 280,000 existing homes were sold. Extended for 12 months and adjusted for seasonal differences, the annual rate of sale was 3.23 million, 7.7 percent ahead of the 3 million rate in March 1985.

The real estate lobby's forecasting division has projected existing home sales of 3.4 million to 3.5 million in 1986, based on the expectation that mortgage interest rates will remain below 10 percent through the end of the year.

Home loan interest rates have fallen more than 3 percentage points in the past year.

Home prices, on the other hand, have increased about 7.2 percent. The median price of existing homes sold in March was $80,000, up from $74,600 in 1985.

Hands Across America: Afterglow

Almost as soon as the singing ended, the estimated 6 million Americans who participated in Hands Across America were challenged to fulfill the promise of the event by helping the hungry and homeless in their communities.

Organizer Ken Krager said Monday it would take weeks to determine whether the project reached its goal of raising $50 million. But he expressed confidence that it had raised consciousness, and groups that work with the homeless and hungry sought to keep the spirit of Hands Across America alive.

Krager estimated that 5 million people stood on the line that snaked through 16 states and Washington, D.C., and another 1 million Americans participated in satellite events in states far from the chain.

Krager did reveal he had received a hefty donation from one of the more prominent Hands Across America participants, President Reagan, but had been asked by the White House not to disclose the amount.

Faubus In Come-Back Try

Of the three states holding primaries today, most of the attention is focused on Arkansas, where Gov. Bill Clinton is favored to win renomination, ending Gov. Orval Faubus's comeback bid in the Democratic primary.

Kentucky and Idaho join Arkansas in choosing House candidates.

Faubus, 76, best known for calling out the National Guard in 1957 to block the entry of nine black students into Little Rock Central High School, is given little chance against Clinton, 39.

Faubus, who lost comeback attempts in 1970 and 1974, served six two-year terms as governor from 1955-66.

Killer Fire Out Of Control

KEARNEY, N.J. (UPI) — An explosion at an aluminum plant killed one person and triggered a fire that spread "out of control" through an industrial park early today despite the efforts of firefighters from six cities.

A Police Department spokesman said the blast occurred just before midnight Monday at the Airlight Aluminum plant, which manufactures aluminum poles.

An unidentified body "was found in the rubble," the police spokesman said.

A Fire Department official said early today the blaze was still "out of control."

Some Chromosomes Cause Grief

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Children born with abnormal or extra sex chromosomes may grow up with behavior problems but will not necessarily turn into criminals, a panel of researchers reported.

Studies over the past decade have shown a high proportion of prison and mental hospital inmates have the abnormality, characterized by incomplete or extra X and Y chromosomes that make up the genetic information for gender in DNA.

But researchers studying children with the trait said while many develop behavior problems and learning disabilities as they mature, many others do not. The research indicates family life can influence whether children experience such problems.

Forgotten Remembered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A roll call of honor rang out Memorial Day as 5,000 Americans gave a belated salute to 110 U.S. soldiers, at last officially recognized as among the nation's Vietnam War dead.

"All Americans will cherish their memories," President Reagan said in a telegram read during Monday's ceremony at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, where their names are freshly etched beside 58,022 previously honored comrades.

More than 400 of the servicemen's parents, siblings, wives and children attended the ceremony. Six relatives, in turn, read the roll call of 110 that could be heard across the grassy Mall.

"They all served their country well," said Leo Broadhead, 65, of Piedmont, Okla., who spearheaded the fight to add the names to the memorial. His son, Air Force Lt. Larry Broadhead, is among the newly placed names.

Poker Bill Headed For Senate Floor

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A bill to legalize penny ante poker in private homes is on its way to the Senate floor without an earlier provision designed to crack down on card sharks who might flout the law.

The provision that would have punished third offenses for illegal gambling as felonies was one of several the Senate Judiciary-Criminal committee stripped from the bill (HB 541) on Monday. Another amendment cleared up an ambiguity that committee staff feared might outlaw professional sports. The committee approved the amended bill on a 3-2 vote. If passed, the law would allow gambling in private dwellings as long as no player wins more than $250 over eight consecutive hours. No advertising of the games would be allowed. The host could receive no special payment or charge his guests for refreshments, and no one under age 18 could play. No single pot could exceed $25 under the bill, and no games would be allowed on the same premises for at least 16 hours.

There could be no borrowing or lending of money among participants. Small stakes wagering would be allowed in common rooms at condominiums as long as a condo resident is a participant. Rep. Dave Thomas, R-Englewood, a casino gambling opponent who sponsored the bill, said he may raise the felony gambling issue again next year if professional gamblers try to use the measure to hide floating games. The version of the bill the House approved two weeks ago provided the tougher penalty for third offenses but no middle-ground penalty for second offenses. A first offense would be a second degree misdemeanor. The House bill would have allowed small stakes wagering under strict limitations. But it said playing games of poker, pinochle, gin rummy, canasta, hearts, dominos, mah jongg or "other games of chance or skill" for profit outside those provisions would be illegal. Gov. Bob Graham has taken no position on the bill.

But Who Will Pay?

Group Calls For Enhancement Of Teaching Profession

By Paul Schafer
Herald Staff Writer

A Seminole County teachers' spokesman expressed skepticism that a call for raising the teaching profession to "a truly professional level" can be accomplished.

"Who's going to pay for it?" asked Marshall Ogletree, SEA Executive Director. Ogletree was reacting to the Carnegie Task Force report on Teaching as a Profession, issued recently.

The report recommended raising the professional level of educators, in part by raising teacher's pay. If America's schools are going to educate the nation's youth to compete in a world economy based on mental — not menial — labor.

The Carnegie Forum on Education and the Economy Foundation report said an overhaul of the education system is needed to prepare young people to find employment in fields requiring a high level of skill because low-skilled people will not be needed no matter how hard they are willing to work.

"While it was once possible for people to succeed in this society if they were simply willing to work hard, it is increasingly difficult for the poorly educated to find jobs," the report said.

"A growing number of permanently unemployed people seriously strains our social fabric. A heavily technology-based economy will be unable to invest vast sums to maintain people who cannot contribute to the nation's productivity."

The report was the result of a year-long effort by a 14-member panel chaired by Lewis Branscomb, chief scientist for IBM. The panel included Mary Futrell, president of the National Education Association; Fred Heehner, president of the New York Times Company Foundation; Gov. Thomas H. Kean of New Jersey, and Bill Honig, California superintendent of public education.

The key to adapting to the high-tech future, the report said, lies in fielding an army of highly skilled teachers who can raise the level of education.

One element in the recommended 10-year program for rebuilding the schools would be the creation of a category of "lead teachers" who would be paid up to $72,000 a year to be in charge of the "redesign of the schools."

Teachers would also be freed from "bathroom duty and hall duty" so they could concentrate on teaching in a "professional environment."

In Florida, more than $1 billion would be needed to raise teacher pay to the minimum average level suggested by the Carnegie group, said Commissioner of Education Ralph Turlington.

"That's a lot of money. We do not have a potential for doing that without a very enormous change in our financial position," Turlington said.

Turlington noted that every 1 percent increase in pay for Florida's 90,000 teachers costs $25 million. Florida's average teacher pay is about $22,000.

"My first reaction is similar to Ralph Turlington's," Seminole's Ogletree said. "It's all well and good, but who's going to pay for it?"

"I'm skeptical that a politician or tax payer can support paying for it." A billion dollars is probably a low estimate, he added.

"Unfortunately, like many other schemes, the report has promise, but it doesn't point to the way we finance the program," Ogletree said.

In addition to higher pay recommended in the report, Ogletree also supports the recommendations on freeing teachers from bathroom, hall, and lunchroom duty.

"Bathroom and hall duty are part of the turn-offs," Ogletree said. "Some of the burnout factors in teaching are all the extra duties assigned."

"Those types of things can be assigned to somebody you could hire at minimum wage to perform those functions. Professional teachers are being asked to watch the lunchroom, when a lot of other adults could be trained to do those activities. That aspect of the report has a lot of merit to it," Ogletree said.

Another part of the report he favors is the recommendation that teachers be given more say in the decision making process.

"School districts are unlike most places of employment. Teachers have little say about what's going on in the classroom. Teachers want more say in curriculum decisions," Ogletree said.

He said he has some concerns about the study's recommended "lead teacher." "What is a lead teacher," he asked. "The salaries look attractive, but but I don't have enough information on how someone moves from one step to another. I don't know what the other classifications are, or how teachers achieve those classifications."

"My basic reaction to the study is somewhat mixed," Ogletree said. "I agree with the professional atmosphere, and more professional salaries, but how do we get there? Where do we get the money?"

According to county schools spokesman Karen Coleman, a new Seminole County teacher with a bachelor's degree makes $15,116. A ten-year teacher with the same degree earns between $17,540 and $21,247. A 15-year teacher can now make the maximum salary of between $18,253 and $24,670.

The Carnegie report also recommends: ● A national board for professional standards create a process for certifying the best teachers.

● States and colleges drop the bachelor's degree in education and require teachers to have a degree in arts or sciences — a plan adopted in the 1970s in California.

● Schools make more and better use of technology in both teaching and record keeping to increase productivity.

● Salaries for the best teachers be increased to levels competitive with other professions.

"The key to success," the report said, "lies in creating a profession equal to the task — a profession of well-educated teachers prepared to assume new powers and responsibilities to redesign the schools of the future. Without a profession possessed of high skills, capabilities and aspirations, any reform will be short-lived."

Secretary of Education William Bennett said from Washington that the report had the potential of doing much good.

Florida Education Association-United Vice President Jim Geiger welcomed the recommendations as a relief from the "top down" approach he said Florida has taken to education reform.

"While we have seen some improvements in student performance, we have also seen widespread teacher frustration," Geiger said. "We agree with the report that to have effective education reform it must start in the classroom with the professionalization of the teaching profession."

ACLU: Porn Report To Be Best-Seller

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The report of the Attorney General's Commission on Pornography will include so many graphic descriptions that it will be a guaranteed best seller, the American Civil Liberties Union said Monday.

The group said the report will include hundreds of pages of titles and descriptions — including detailed and graphic plot summaries — of books, magazines and videos it considers pornographic. There are reportedly no illustrations, however.

"The explicit nature of several sections should guarantee that this report will be one of the hottest-selling government publications in history," said Barry Lynn, the ACLU's legislative counsel.

Lynn said he "cannot imagine why a commission which claims to believe that distribution of sexual material is a national menace would reprint what amounts to a national bibliography of pornography, complete with graphic descriptions of every conceivable — and some inconceivable — sexual practices."

"Although I personally find much of the material in this volume highly offensive, I would nevertheless defend absolutely the federal government's right to publish it."

As part of the controversial report, under fire from civil libertarians, social science research experts in the field as well as at least two dissenters on the 11-person panel, a lengthy chapter will report on the "production and distribution of pornography."

It lists in alphabetical order, 2,325 separate magazine titles, 725 books, and 2,370 film titles found by commission investigators in trips to 16 "adults only" stores in six cities.

Specific items are then explored in detail.

The report also uses 31 typewritten pages to detail, chapter by chapter, a book called "Tying Up Rebecca," and includes descriptions of sexual aids advertised in the book along with their price and the addresses from which they may be ordered.

Videos, including "The Devil in Miss Jones," "Debbie Does Dallas" and "Biker Slave Girls" are described scene by scene, sometimes with much of the dialogue from the film.

The commission's final report, presently at the printer's and expected to be released in early July, seeks to link the $8 billion a year pornography industry to crimes of sexual violence. It calls for tougher enforcement of current anti-obscenity laws as well as a number of changes to make distribution of pornography more difficult and prosecutions easier.

Since its creation a year ago and its domination by well-known anti-pornography crusaders, the commission has come under strong attack for its methods and procedures as well as its purported findings and its law enforcement recommendations.

Last week two women members of the panel issued a blistering 20-page dissent from the report, saying the commission had failed to make its case and skewed evidence to fit pre-determined biases.

Attorney Interviews Slated

Longwood City Commission will hold a worksession to interview candidates for the new position of full-time city attorney at 1 p.m. Saturday, May 31, in city hall at 175 W. Warren Ave.

The city has received six applications as the result of advertising the position in a law journal and more are expected, according to City Clerk Don Terry. The salary is negotiable.

In the past the city has contracted with a local attorney to be legal advisor on a part-time basis.

City Attorney Gerald Korman has resigned and the commission is considering replacing him with an attorney on staff in hopes of reducing legal expenses.

Adult Abuse Suspected At Home For Disabled

Seminole County sheriff's deputies are investigating a possible case of adult abuse reported by workers at a home for the disabled.

According to an incident report, a 58-year-old man was treated for second degree burns at Florida Hospital — Altamonte after a worker at a home for the disabled at 230 Fern Park Blvd., Fern Park, saw burns on the man.

She reported that when the man was getting out of a bath, she noticed portions of his skin were very red. A further investigation revealed some of his skin peeled off in the tub. He was treated at the hospital for burns on his feet and buttocks, the report said.

According to investigators, the man may have been burned with hot water. He refuses to talk about the burns, the report said.

DUI ARRESTS

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

—Kenneth Wayne Funk, 18, of Orlando, arrested Saturday at 7:01 a.m. at U.S. Highway 17-92 and Button Road in Altamonte Springs. According to the arrest report, the officer saw a man sitting behind the steering wheel of a 1977 Volkswagen about 20 feet of the road way. The officer said the man smelled of alcohol, produced an identification that was not his own, and said he didn't know what his name was when asked. A small pipe was also found in a pants pocket and may have contain a drug residue, the officer reported. Besides DUI, Funk was also charged with possession of drug paraphernalia.

—Clayton D. Page, 56, of Box 564 A, Sanford, arrested after his vehicle was involved in an accident with a sheriff's patrol car. The incident occurred Sunday at 11:49 a.m. on U.S. Highway 17-92 near the American Legion. According to the report, Page's vehicle left the American Legion lot and pulled in front of a sheriff's patrol car. Page's vehicle, apparently with the sheriff's vehicle in pursuit, then left the road, traveled behind some buildings west of 17-92 then back onto the highway where it was forced to stop by a Sanford police car.

—Rodney Elmer Rogers, 41, of 5490 Howell Branch Road, Winter Park, arrested Sunday at 12:25 a.m. on Winter Park Drive in Casselberry after his car was seen speeding on Seminola Boulevard east of Button Road. —Fred Robert Wilkerson, 45, of 1016 1/2 W. First St., Sanford, arrested Sunday at 1:10 a.m. on U.S. Highway 17-92 near First Street after his vehicle was seen travelling without headlights, fish tailing and speeding.

—John Jesse Jemney, 28, of 114 W. Colemanor, Sanford, arrested Sunday at 3:10 a.m. at Airport Blvd., and U.S. Highway 17-92 after his vehicle was seen weaving on 17-92.

—Thomas Bowman Waters, 36, of 297 Hill St., Casselberry, arrested Sunday at 2:50 a.m. on U.S. Highway 17-92 after his vehicle crossed the center line of the roadway.

—Danny Martin Creel, 30, of 351 Springdale Dr., Altamonte Springs, arrested Sunday at 2:25 a.m. on Interstate 4 one mile south of Lake Mary after his slowly moving car was seen weaving from lane to lane.

—Michael Morrison Cain, 36, of 148 Shady Oaks Lane, Oviedo, arrested Sunday at 4 a.m. on Interstate 4 in Lake Mary. The arrest was made by a trooper after Cain's motorcycle speed varied and it failed to maintain a single lane. The trooper reported that the driver of the motorcycle could barely stand up.

—Glenn Alan Fiqueredo, 29, of Hialeah, arrested Sunday at 2:47 a.m. in the 800 block of State Road 436 in Altamonte Springs, after his pickup was seen traveling erratically on SR 436.

—Ronnie Pate, 33, of 618 Kenwick Cir., Casselberry, arrested Sunday at 7:45 a.m. at U.S. Highway 17-92 at Lake of the Woods Boulevard in Fern Park after his vehicle was involved in an accident.

—Kenneth Preston Waters, 31, of 159 Williams Rd., Lake Mary, arrested Monday at 2:59 a.m. at Orientat Plaza west of State Road 436 after his vehicle failed to maintain a single lane.

—Harry Marne Martin, 28, of Ormond Beach, arrested 12:45 p.m. one mile north of Sanford on U.S. Highway 17-92 after his car turned in front of another vehicle. He was also charged with carrying a concealed weapon after the trooper reported finding a small-caliber gun under the driver's right leg on the driver's seat.

WORM THEFT

A Sanford teenager has been charged with retail theft after he allegedly took a package of worms from a Sanford department store.

Action Reports

- ★ Fires
- ★ Courts
- ★ Police

According to an arrest report, security personnel for K-Mart, U.S. Highway 17-92, detained an 18-year-old they suspected of putting an unpaid for $3 package of worms in a bag with other items he had purchased. The incident reportedly occurred Saturday at 10:55 a.m.

Arrested and charged was Timothy Thomas Webb, of 1919 W. First St.

BURGLARIZING BROTHERS

Orlando brothers were arrested on charges of burglary Saturday after a security guard reportedly saw them burglarizing a vehicle at a truck repair business.

According to an arrest report, the men were seen entering a parked truck at Koger Truck Repair, 200 Persimon Ave. The incident occurred around 10:30 p.m. They were spotted by the security guard who detained one of the men. The second suspect who fled was arrested a short time later after he reportedly returned to the scene. After officers arrested the men, some marijuana was reportedly found in their car so they were charged with possession of the drug.

Charged with burglary, grand theft, criminal mischief and possession of less than 20 grams marijuana were Ernest Leo Knapp, 22, and Edward Lee Knapp, 26. They were being held Sunday in lieu of $1,000 bond each.

BURGLARIES & THEFTS

Officials of Circle K, U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford, have given sheriff's deputies the name of a suspect they allege may have stolen $615 from that store on May 18 or 19. A sheriff's report said the same person may have also taken cash from a Winter Springs Circle K store.

A telephone test kit valued at $200 was stolen from the car of Ronnie J. Cossip, 28, of 393 Jewel Drive, Altamonte Springs, on Thursday, a sheriff's report said.

FIRE CALLS

The Sanford Fire Department has responded to the following calls:

SATURDAY

—3:43 p.m., 1180 State Street, parking lot, auto fire. An engine malfunction reportedly caused smoke, but no fire, from a 1976 Chrysler Cordova. The engine was hosed off; no damage was reported to the vehicle.

—5:16 p.m., 401 Palmetto Ave., Apt. 2, rescue. A 32-year-old man with a bloody nose was reportedly found by firemen in the apartment's closet. The man reportedly said he had been assaulted. The man declined hospital transport.

—6:33 p.m., 1017 Mangoustine Ave., rescue. A 75-year-old man was reportedly suffering from chest pain. He was transported to the hospital.

—6:45 p.m., 1201 W. Seminole Blvd., Central Florida Regional Hospital, fire alarm. The call was determined to be a false alarm, caused by the pulling of a fire alarm on a third floor northeast stairwell.

SUNDAY

—1:36 a.m., 3200 S. Orlando Drive, Cavalier Motel, rescue. A 58-year-old Apopka man in the motel's lobby was reported having difficulty breathing. Firemen arranged to have an oxygen tank delivered to the motel after the man reportedly told them he suffered from emphysema.

—1:56 a.m., 109 Hayes Drive, rescue. A five-year-old girl with a high fever was transported to the hospital.

—4:09 a.m., 2004 Hartwell Ave., rescue. Firemen reportedly assisted a 70-year-old man who had fallen from bed.

—10:20 a.m., 301 S. Oak, First Presbyterian Church. A possible fuse box overload reportedly caused a smoke odor. Firemen reportedly advised the church to shut down its air conditioning unit and seek repair if the odor continued.

—11:26 a.m., 1880 E. Airport Blvd., rescue. A 33-year-old Longwood woman reportedly said she had received injuries to the side of her head from a blow from a club. Firemen applied ice and a bandage to her wounds. The woman reportedly declined hospital transport.

—12:08 p.m., 1208 Lincoln Court, rescue. A 23-year-old woman and a 25-year-old man were reportedly involved in a fight. The woman received a possible broken finger, the man, a cut on the left side of his face. Both reportedly declined hospital transport.

Name Change Petitions

Two men have filed petitions in Seminole Circuit Court asking that their names be changed.

David Laffayette Woodward Jr., of 1121 Dove Lane, Casselberry, has asked the court to change his name to David Woodward Leppert.

No reason for the name change is mentioned in the petition.

According to court records, Woodward was born Sept. 17, 1967 in Jacksonville and is a full-time student. His parents are David Laffayette Woodward Sr. and Durnette Nicharme.

The case has been assigned to Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. No hearing date has been set.

In a second petition, Danny Leon Malaspina has asked that his last name be changed to Davis.

Malaspina, a bartender who lives in Seminole County, states in the suit that he was born Sept. 23, 1958, in Florence, Ala., to John Kenneth Malaspina and Lois Geraldine Davis.

No reason for the name change is mentioned in the court records.

The case has been assigned to Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. No hearing date has been set.

Nine Executed In China For Variety Of Crimes

PEKING (UPI) — Nine people, including one Hong Kong citizen, have been executed in China for crimes ranging from rape to murder and multiple escapes from jail, according to official newspaper reports in Peking today.

In southern China's Guangdong Province, seven people were sentenced to death in courtrooms across the province, the official Yancheng Evening News said.

Zeng Weiqu and He Jiye were sentenced to death by the Intermediate Peoples Court in the Guangdong capital of Guangzhou for leading two gangs that robbed several city taxi drivers last year, the newspaper said.

The court also handed down the death penalty on Chao Wenzha and Ren Jianxiong, who held up four city taxis and raped the woman driver of one of the cabs, the paper said.

A court in the southern coastal town of Zhuhai sentenced Pin Mantang and Wu Bingzhao to death for heading a five-member gang that committed a number of armed robberies, the paper said.

The paper said a Hong Kong citizen was also executed for cheating a woman and her son of $7,700. His two accomplices received 15 and seven-year prison terms.

Executions in China, a bullet to the back of the head, usually are carried out immediately after sentencing.

In the port city of Shanghai, Zao Weixing, 28, was executed for robbery, fraud and escaping several times from police custody, the city's Liberation Daily newspaper reported.

Described as a "master of escape," Zao was first arrested in April last year for black market trading and robbery but escaped two days later, the paper said.

Zao was rearrested at the end of May and escaped after two months in custody. He was apprehended again in October, but slipped away by climbing out of a bathroom window only to be picked up by police a few hours later, the paper said.

China Youth Daily newspaper reported the case of Lin Zhijun, 28, who was executed in the southern city of Wenzhou for the murder of a 70-year-old couple.

Lin visited the old couple, who were friends of his parents, and asked for a loan of $3,125 to pay his gambling debts. When they refused he battered them to death with a hammer, the paper said.

Friendly Skies But How Safe?

The American public has benefited enormously from the deregulation of the U.S. airline industry that occurred in 1978. The competition set loose by deregulation expanded service and drove down fares dramatically. The number of Americans flying each year increased by nearly 70 percent. And, with government no longer keeping would-be competitors out of the market, the number of domestic air carriers more than doubled since 1979.

But one worry casts a darkening cloud over this otherwise sunlit panorama. That worry is safety. Although air travel remains safe — indeed it remains statistically the safest form of long-distance travel — it is almost certainly less safe than it was. By several vital measures, the margin of safety seems to be shrinking.

Two of these measures, in both instances the responsibility of the Federal Aviation Administration, are especially serious. First, the nation's air-traffic control system is stretched increasingly thin in coping with an expanding volume of air traffic. Second, the number of federal safety inspectors is clearly inadequate to enforce minimum safety standards on a steadily growing, and also aging, air-carrier fleet. This latter deficiency is especially worrisome in light of evidence that many airlines are responding to competitive pressures by spending less on aircraft maintenance.

The illegal and irresponsible strike by air-traffic controllers in 1981 left President Reagan with no proper choice save to fire those controllers who refused to return to their work. But the air-traffic control system that was then rebuilt around a corps of veterans and expanded with newly trained recruits has yet to recover fully. There are fewer experienced controllers working today, and fewer controllers in all.

The FAA has tried to compensate by assigning its most experienced controllers and supervisors to a steady regimen of overtime work. This, in turn, is producing the high stress and low morale that helped precipitate the unfortunate strike of 1981. And no one, least of all the FAA, should have to be told that overworked controllers are more prone to making potentially fatal mistakes.

The inadequate force of FAA safety inspectors is no less cause for alarm. When the airline industry was deregulated eight years ago, the FAA employed slightly more than 2,000 inspectors. By 1984, the figure had dropped to about 1,300. During 1986 and 1987, the Reagan administration is proposing to add a total of 1,000 additional inspectors. But the resulting force of FAA inspectors would still be only slightly larger than its counterpart of 1978. Since then, however, the number of airlines has increased from 237 to 526 and the number of commercial aircraft has increased by 45 percent to about 4,200.

No wonder, then, that a recent study by the General Accounting Office concluded that the FAA can no longer say with assurance that airlines are complying with safety regulations. The FAA disputes this judgment but the logic of the numbers involved seems irrefutable. With relatively fewer inspectors monitoring a larger fleet of aircraft, it would be an incredible feat for the FAA to prevent a decline in the frequency and thoroughness of inspections.

The principal remedy for deficiencies in the air-traffic control network and the FAA's inspector force is apparent enough. Both need more money, even at a time when spending restraint on the overall budget is mandatory. Help for the air-traffic control system could be obtained painlessly enough by drawing on the Aviation Trust Fund, an account with a current surplus of $7 billion.

'Checkbook Journalism' May Be Mandated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of the U.S. television networks has been catching a lot of flak for agreeing not to reveal where a fugitive wanted by three Western counties for terrorism was sequestered in the Middle East.

Some of the criticism of the network's interview came from writers employed by publications that make heavy use of "informed sources." Let me just say this about that.

Terrorists may be as puzzled about where they are sequestered as informed sources are by what goes on around them. It is understandable they could be as eager to keep their whereabouts a secret as informed sources are not to disclose their identities.

If there is no other way of getting the misinformation, I say full speed ahead.

It wasn't as if the network were engaging in "checkbook journalism." I've always been opposed to that and I feel much the same about checkbook legislation.

When a spokesman for the American Library Association says a certain proposal would mean

"a person who wants to know about a piece of legislation must be able to pay for it." I'm automatically against the measure.

So I commend Congress's Joint Committee on Printing for suspending work on the proposal while an alternative is examined.

When the committee first acted to eliminate all free copies of House and Senate bills and reports, I was opposed.

I don't care if the Gramm-Rudman law is putting the squeeze on government activities. I'm still against it.

For years, the public has been able to obtain copies of committee reports and legislation from House and Senate document rooms without charge. But the joint committee originally decided to require John Q. Public to pay for such paperwork.

Prices would have varied according to the amount of labor involved in reproducing it. For example, the House tax reform bill, which is several inches thick, would have cost about $44.

Although the library association addressed itself primarily to the needs of students and poor people, we would all have had to decide whether copies of committee reports and bills were worth the price.

Even journalists would have had to pay for these materials. At least, that's what I was told when I called the committee's office to get the number of the proposal, so I could stop by the House document room in the Capitol's Statuary Hall and pick up a free copy.

The Senate document room, which used to be readily accessible to reporters on the third floor of the Capitol near the press gallery, has been moved to the Hart Office Building.

Under the proposed revision, which the committee will now study, everybody would be entitled to one free copy, but would have to pay for additional prints.

However, a person would have to go to the Senate location to obtain a gratis print. Reaching the Hart building is an inconvenience even for a free copy.

If the time ever comes when we have to go to Mideast for documents, we're all in trouble.

DON GRAFF

Talking Dollars And Bony

WARSAW (NEA) — The notices are fixtures in what pass for newspapers here: "BONY - will buy/sell." Telephone numbers follow.

They refer to one of the few thriving areas of the Polish economy, the trade in goods coupons — in Polish, "bon towarowy." (One coupon is colloquially called a "bon." Multiples are "bony," plurals in Polish being formed by adding a "y.")

The coupons are issued by the government to Poles who receive funds from abroad. In theory, it's a simple and mutually beneficial arrangement. The dollars, pounds and francs received from friends and relatives are deposited in the state-run banking system, adding to the government's scarce hard currency holdings. In return, the original recipient gets the coupons that will buy otherwise unobtainable imported luxuries in the state-run "Pewex" hard-currency stores.

Bony, in Poland's strictly controlled economy, can be legally bought, sold and advertised. But there is more to the business than that.

What we're really talking here — and everyone knows it — is the black market price of dollars, the denomination of the bony. The price at which a dealer offers to buy bony also tells you what you can get unofficially for the real (and much more in demand) thing — greenbacks.

It's useful to know. The official exchange rate is currently 160 zloty to the dollar. On the unofficial bony market, it is 600 to one.

The government tolerates the trade because of the hard currency it pulls into the economy. It also serves to stabilize exchange rates. Veto, a consumer publication, even comes out with weekly buy and sell spreads, similar to the currency exchange tables on financial pages in the Western press.

But tolerated or not, it is still a black market and a sure sign of a crippled economy. Poland's is badly so. And the Soviet nuclear reactor disaster will make it worse, if Western customers continue to shun the country's radioactively dusted agricultural exports.

Superficially, things don't appear all that bad. Especially not in the capital. As East Bloc cities go, Warsaw is an attractive place. Almost entirely rebuilt since the war, it has something of the look in parts of a large German city, such as Munich or Berlin.

Banks Should Serve All, Not Just The Rich

By Jack Anderson
And Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — Except for being richer, bankers are like most Americans: They want the government to butt out of their business — unless they need the government's help.

Rep. Mary Rose Oakar, D-Ohio, has stirred outrage in bank boardrooms across the country with her quixotic notion that bankers owe the general public something in return for the protection they get from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

"If the federal government is going to insure banks it has a right to expect that these institutions will serve all consumers, no matter how much or how little they have to deposit," Oakar told our associate Stewart Harris.

This dangerously populist idea is anathema to the bankers, of course. They'd much prefer to deal only with fellow members of the Millionaires Club — or at least charge

ROBERT WAGMAN

Age Of Antiquarians

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Politicians have a tendency to play "follow the leader." When Ronald Reagan won the presidency in 1980, and then was re-elected in 1984, he served as an inspiration to older politicians.

If Reagan could win re-election at age 73, they thought, why did they have to consider retirement at the same age, and if already retired, why couldn't they return to office?

The lineup of senior citizen politicians seeking election, or re-election, this year is formidable. Probably the two oldest politicians seeking new terms are Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., who at age 85 is seeking a 12th term in the House this House career followed two terms in the Senate, and Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., who at age 72 is seeking a fourth term.

In Ohio, 76-year-old James Rhodes, who was elected governor in 1962, 1966, 1974 and 1978, has won a three-way primary race for the GOP nomination. He is seeking a fifth term. The November race will pit him against Richard Celeste, the incumbent Democratic governor. The Rhodes-Celeste contest will be a rematch of the 1978 race for governor that Rhodes won by fewer than 50,000 votes out of 2.8 million cast.

In Arkansas an almost identical situation confronts former governor Orval Faubus, also 76, coming out of retirement to challenge incumbent Democratic governor Bill Clinton.

A number of politicians in their late 60s are also seeking election or re-election this November to major office. In North Carolina former Democratic governor Terry Sanford is running for the Senate at age 68 after a career as a university president. In California, Los Angeles mayor Tom Bradley, 68, is making another run for governor. In Oklahoma, former governor and senator Henry Bellmon is considered a likely candidate for another term as governor at age 65.

Before Ronald Reagan's success, most politicians considered themselves in the twilight of their careers as they reached their late 60s (with the possible exception of some long-sitting congressmen or Southern Democrats who represented political dynasties). This now seems changed, perhaps forever, raising the problem of younger politicians being blocked from seeking higher office. It could well lead to sharp primary challenges in which the main issue will be age.

(BU) With great fanfare the Republican Party has welcomed some big-name Democratic defectors over the past several years. But now, as these politicians are being forced to face the GOP rank and file at the polls, they are finding a very different kind of reception.

One of the major Democratic defectors was former Texas congressman Kent Hance. When he came over to the GOP he was considered an almost sure-fire Republican gubernatorial nominee for this year.

In the recent primary he finished a badly beaten third.

ROBERT WALTERS

Brass' Golden Goose

WASHINGTON (NEA) — During the 15 years between 1969 and 1984, no fewer than nine presidential commissions, interagency committees and assorted blue-ribbon panels called in vain for a major overhaul of the military pension system.

"The proposals' most salient characteristic," noted one expert at the Congressional Research Service after analyzing scores of them, "is that none has been enacted into law." That outcome was hardly a coincidence. For years, all attempts to reform the system of retirement benefits for veterans were strenuously opposed by the nation's military establishment — including the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

After a protracted struggle of extraordinary intensity, that situation now is about to change somewhat. However, the system that former Office of Management and Budget Director David Stockman last year characterized as a "scandal" and an "outrage" will remain essentially intact.

"Institutional forces in the military are more concerned about protecting their retirement benefits than they are about protecting the security of the American people," said an exasperated Stockman. "When push comes to shove, they'll give up on security before they give up on retirement."

What angered Stockman — as well as countless others who have examined the system — is a pension program whose extravagances are matched only by its idiosyncrasies.

Unlike virtually all other pension plans, there is no minimum age for retirement. Beneficiaries can — and routinely do — begin receiving payments while they are still in their 30s.

In addition, those beneficiaries are not required to contribute a single dollar to the pension fund. All of the money comes from the federal treasury — in contrast with the retirement program for the government's civilian employees, who must contribute 7 percent of their salaries.

As a result, generous retirement payments consume 35 percent of the Defense Department's yearly personnel costs, compared with 25 percent for civilian agencies of government and less than 20 percent for the average corporation.

The military pension program ranks behind Medicaid as the second most expensive of all federal entitlement programs funded exclusively from general tax revenues.

Tampa Test Next For High-Flying Hawks

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

It's been eight games now and the Seminole Hawks have yet to take off their rally caps. The Hawks, Seminole Softball Club's 12 and under all-star team, won four straight games this past weekend to claim the Osceola Invitational title at Kissimmee.

The Hawks have now won eight consecutive games and two tournament titles. Seminole returns to action this weekend at the Tampa Magic Invitational.

"That (Tampa tourney) will be a completely different set of teams and our best competition so far," Hawks manager Larry Risse said. "And we also decided this year that we wanted to play some of the powerhouses down south and one tournament we'll be going to is Plantation in July."

In the first two games of the Osceola Invitational, the Hawks needed those rally caps more than ever. And both times Seminole came through with the winning combination in the bottom of the seventh inning.

In game one, Seminole built an early lead on Conway but Conway came back to tie it at 9-9 going into the bottom of the seventh. Kat Foldeak singled to lead off the seventh for the Hawks and she moved up on Mishelle Davis' sacrifice fly. April Manning then stepped up and unloaded a double to drive in Foldeak for a 10-9 Seminole victory.

In game two, Seminole had a 7-4 lead over West Orlando but saw it fade quickly as West Orlando's Sheri Kuntz belted a grand slam homer for an 8-7 lead. The Hawks, though, came back with two runs in the bottom of the seventh to win it, 9-8.

Foldeak again got the rally started as she led off with a single and Tanya Lewis also rapped a base hit. Krissy York then singled in Foldeak with the tying run and Christa Schroffell singled in Lewis with the winning run.

After escaping in the seventh in the first two games, the Hawks breezed through the rest of the tourney, thrashing host Osceola, 18-3, and thumping West Orlando, 8-2, in the final.

Davis, who played impressively at shortstop, was named the tournament's most valuable player. She is the sister of Lake Brantley High School standout catcher Mike Davis.

The Hawks had three players hit .500 or better for the tournament including Lewis who was 5 for 9 (.555) with a homer and four RBIs, York (5-9, four RBIs) and Foldeak (6-11, .545, four RBIs).

Renee Sanville contributed four hits and seven RBIs to the offensive attack while Schroffell drove in six runs for the tournament and Manning drove in five with a double and two triples and Davis chipped in with a home run.

Christine Risse was the winning pitcher in the final two games while Sanville picked up the win in the first and York was the winner in the second.

Manager Risse said outstanding defensive performers included, York in right field and at second base, Lewis in left field, Connie Bonaventure at short field, Maria Montalvo in center field, and Schroffell at third base.

Confusion 'Rains' At Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Confusion reigned at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Monday as track officials scrambled for an alternate date on which to hold the rain-postponed 70th Indianapolis 500.

Eventually, officials ended confusion over the race, which had not been rained out on two consecutive days, rescheduling it for Saturday. The race was postponed Sunday and Monday because of constant and sometimes heavy rain. Speedway officials waited until 6:45 p.m. EDT Monday before announcing plans to wait until the weekend.

Joe Cloutier, president of the speedway, said rain checks will be honored, and gates will open 6 a.m. for Saturday's race. Promoters of the Milwaukee 200, scheduled for Sunday, have agreed to reschedule that race for June 8.

Irv Brodsky, public relations director for ABC television, said the station will carry the race on live television Saturday beginning at 10 a.m.

In mid-afternoon Monday, Speedway officials issued a news release that answered only one question, and raised many more:

"The Indianapolis Motor Speedway regrets, for the second consecutive day, to announce the postponement of the 1988 Indianapolis 500 for Monday," the announcement said. "With an unfavorable weather forecast for tomorrow (Tuesday), we have decided to delay the announcement of the rescheduling of the race until the Indianapolis area has a more positive weather forecast."

Speedway president Joseph R. Cloutier tried to clarify the situation by saying "12 hours advance notice would be given on rescheduling the race." Initially, he did not rule out the possibility the race could be run Tuesday.

A. J. Foyt, the only four-time winner of the Indianapolis 500, voiced the opinion of most participants and fans. "It's a pain in the butt," he said, "but what the hell can you do?"

Foyt wanted to know why officials "took so long to decide." "If you're going to reschedule it, get it over with and let everybody prepare for another day," he said. "And not definitely picking a date is ridiculous."

There were several concerns that kept track officials from announcing the new date immediately. The first was the weather. A possible break in the rain was expected Tuesday and Wednesday, but the next rain-free day is predicted to be Friday, according to the National Weather Service.

Another concern was the Miller 200, an Indy-car race at West Allis, Wis. Practice is scheduled for Friday, qualifications Saturday and the race Sunday.

"That's got to be a factor because it is on the schedule for the participants," said chief steward Tom Blinford, who said no discussions have been conducted with officials about postponing the Wisconsin race.

Still another concern was how to appease ABC-TV, which wanted to broadcast the race live for the first time. Monday morning, the network issued a statement saying it "will not cover the Indianapolis 500 live past today."

Speculation by drivers and fans was that the race would be rescheduled for Saturday so ABC would have the chance to broadcast it live.

"Saturday would be best," said pole-sitter Rick Mears. "We'd get the fans back and get it televised live."

Bill Fitch shows his displeasure with a referee's whistle during Monday's NBA Championship showdown with Boston. Fitch had more to be displeased about later as his Houston Rockets dropped a 112-100 decision in Game 1 at Boston Garden.

Fouls, Celtics' Balance Shoot Down Rockets

BOSTON (UPI) — Early in Game 1 of the NBA championships, the Boston Celtics realized the key to the Twin Towers lay in the hands of the referees.

Ralph Sampson and Akeem Olajuwon were whistled for eight fouls in the first three quarters Monday, and Boston took advantage of their ensuing absences to take a 112-100 decision over the Houston Rockets.

Sampson picked up three fouls in the first 4:45 and missed the rest of the first half. Olajuwon was called for his fourth and fifth fouls within a 32-second span in the third quarter, and after he was benched to avoid a sixth foul, Boston ran off a 14-4 surge to take control.

"We wanted to make them commit fouls," said Kevin McHale. "The key was to try to go at Ralph and Akeem."

Houston's Western Conference final against Los Angeles was marred by several confrontations, which Rodney McCray believes resulted in quicker calls by referees Jack Madden and Ed Rush.

"The referees probably wanted to avoid the roughness that marked the LA series," he said. "But we need Akeem and Ralph on the floor together."

Sampson finished with only 2 points, missing his first seven shots and going 1-for-13 from the floor. Olajuwon scored 33 points, but only 8 came in the second half.

The Celtics, seeking their 16th championship, continued their balanced scoring as the starting five each hit for at least 18 points. Robert Parish led the attack with 23, Kevin McHale and Larry Bird added 21 each, Dennis Johnson had 19, and Danny Ainge 18.

NBA Playoffs

Reserve center Bill Walton, playing in his first final since he led Portland to the title in 1977, was the only other Celtic to score, contributing 10 points.

"I am worried about our defense," said Houston coach Bill Fitch. "I'm skeptical about giving Robert that many points, though Larry's going to get his. We didn't pick up Ainge quick enough, and we let DJ penetrate too much."

The two guards accounted for 22 of Boston's 30 points in the pivotal quarter.

"They weren't double-teaming down low in the first half," said Ainge. "In the second half they did, and that opened it up for myself and DJ."

Boston's defense harassed the Rockets into 36 percent shooting during the third quarter, and Houston managed only 4 points in the final 5:30 of the period.

"I thought we were tight in the first half," said Parish. "In the second we seemed to settle down. We were patient on offense, and the defense pulled together."

Robert Reid said the Rockets' downfall was of their own making.

"In the third quarter we lost our composure and we cannot do that. We lost all momentum and the Celtics thrive on that. We did it to ourselves," he said. "Their defense gradually got more aggressive."

Johnson said the Celtics, trying to rid themselves of the lethargy resulting from an eight-day layoff, discussed defense during halftime.

Too Much Practice Robs Lendl Of Golf Time

PARIS (UPI) — Too much tennis practice with no time for golf made life less than perfect for top-seeded Ivan Lendl while preparing for the $2.6 million French Open Tennis Championships.

Lendl, who won his last tournament, the Italian Open in Rome nine days ago, spent last week in the millionaire's playground of Monte Carlo on the French Riviera. But it wasn't all play for the man who's earned in excess of $8 million in his tennis career.

Nagging tendinitis in his right knee needed attention, and preparation for the two-week tournament at Roland Garros stadium was a priority.

"There was no time for golf. I'm a little upset about that," Lendl said Monday after winning his first-round match 6-3, 6-3, 6-4 over West German Michael Westphal. The 26-year-old Czechoslovak boasts a decent duffer's handicap.

Tennis

"I got laser treatment on the knee and practiced with (Haitian Ronald) Agenor," Lendl said. "I rested well and relaxed. I enjoyed the time."

Lendl will take a break Tuesday as the rest of the 128 men's and women's draw kicks off the two-week clay-court Grand Slam event.

Top women's seed Martina Navratilova from Fort Worth, coming off one of the rare losses earlier this month, will begin her play with a match against Italian Sandra Cecchini, which should lead to a finale against No. 2 Chris Evert Lloyd next week.

John Lloyd of Britain was so disgusted after losing his opening-round match to qualifier Luiz Matta of Brazil, 5-7, 7-5, 6-1, 6-4, he announced he would retire after the Australian Open.

His wife also said her time for retiring was nearing, but refused to set a timetable for her departure from the game. She routed French junior champion Cecile Calmette 6-0, 6-1 in their opening match.

In men's play, Yannick Noah, the home-grown 1983 champion, plays Algerian-born Tarik Benhabiles.

Ecuador's Andres Gomez, the ninth seed who has not advanced past the French quarterfinals, will come into the first round against Canadian outsider Glenn Michibata, fresh from a win in a Nabisco Grand Prix tournament Sunday. Gomez beat Swede Henrik Sundstrom for the title.

Lendl and West German Boris Becker, the teen-aged Wimbledon champion gaining clay poise with each match, both walked to easy victories in the first round Monday.

Lendl, who let Westphal slip out to three straight winning games in the third set of their match, said he's keen to avenge a defeat to Wilander for the title last year.

"I'm keyed up to play anyone," Lendl said. "I want to win here even more this year, if that's possible."

Becker toyed with Frenchman Jerome Potier for 100 minutes, with the out-gunned local winning only three games in his 6-0, 6-3, 6-0 loss.

"I'm getting used to the clay and more organized on court," Becker said. "I don't mind that the match was easy. It's much better than losing."

The West German has run hot and cold so far this year, going out in the first round of indoor events at Brussels and Atlanta, beating Lendl at Chicago last April, and losing to Swede Anders Jarryd in the finals of the WCT event at Dallas.

Sockers' Defense Keys 5-3 Win For MISL Title

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The San Diego Sockers beat the Minnesota Strikers 5-3 Monday to win the Major Indoor Soccer League championship after their dynasty seemed ready to crumble just days earlier.

The Sockers ignored a rash of injuries to key players and won their fifth consecutive indoor title.

The victory capped a rally that started with San Diego trailing the Strikers 3-1 in the best-of-seven series eight days ago.

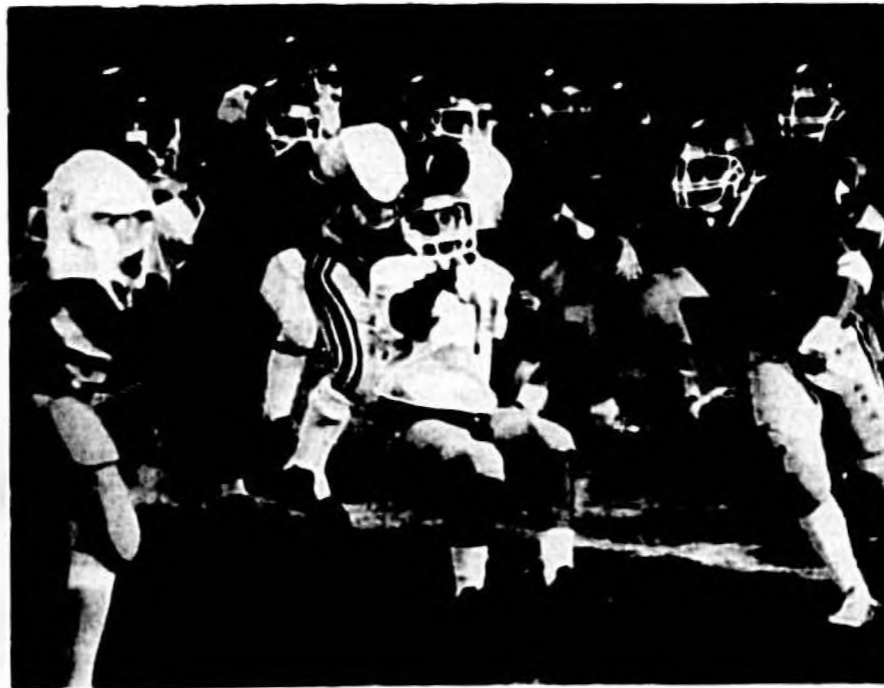

Brian Quinn scored two goals and added an assist to lead the

Soccer

Sockers. Thompson Uslyan had a goal and an assist for Minnesota.

"We beat a very good side," Sockers coach Ron Newman as he towed champagne from his hair. "Scoring against them is like pulling teeth."

The Strikers played solid defense against the high-flying Sockers throughout the series, but Monday it was the Sockers' defense that was the key.

Fans Salute Champs

MONTREAL (UPI) — More than a half-million people filled the streets of Montreal Monday to salute the Montreal Canadiens following their Stanley Cup victory over the Calgary Flames.

From the time Montreal captain Bob Gainey held the Cup over his head on the steps of City Hall in Old Montreal to the time the parade ended at the Montreal Forum, about five miles away, some five hours had passed.

"I was in World War II, and I've never seen anything like this," Gainey's father, George, said.

Police estimated that more than 600,000 people came out in the sunny, 85-degree weather. No major incidents were reported.

Only Gainey, Larry Robinson and Mario Tremblay, who missed the last quarter of the season and the playoffs with a broken collarbone, remain from the Canadiens team that last won the Cup.

"I think there must be an extra plate on it: It's gotten heavier," Gainey said as he waited inside City Hall.

Error-Prone Pirates Fall To Braves, 9-4

United Press International

Chuck Tanner returned to Pittsburgh and found nothing changed. Tanner, who suffered through a 57-104 season with the Pirates last season, came back to Three Rivers Stadium as Atlanta manager Monday and watched Pittsburgh make six errors to hand the Braves a 9-4 victory.

"If you're on the losing end, that's the kind of game you have to throw in the basket and forget about," Tanner said.

Shortstop Sammy Khalifa committed two throwing errors in the eighth inning, and Dale Murphy lined a two-run single. Reliever Bob Walk, 2-1, also committed an error in the five-run eighth, which handed the Pirates their fifth straight loss. Atlanta reliever Paul Assenmacher, 2-1, was the winner. The Braves have won 10 of their last 13 games.

"In the beginning of the season, we didn't take advantage of the kinds of things that were given to us today," said Tanner. "Then we started to, and all of a sudden we started believing in ourselves. Now we're playing like we thought we were capable of."

Leading 4-3 entering the eighth, the Pirates collapsed defensively. Khalifa threw wildly to first on Gerald Perry's grounder. Ken Oberkfell walked, and when Ozzie Virgil attempted to sacrifice, Walk threw wildly past third, scoring Perry.

Khalifa then pulled first baseman Sid Bream off the bag at first on Glenn Hubbard's grounder, loading the bases. Pinch hitter Ted Simmons hit a sacrifice fly to score Oberkfell and Omar Moreno was intentionally walked. Rafael Ramirez hit a sacrifice fly to score Virgil, and Murphy lined a single to left.

"Losing is contagious. Just like winning, so we have to get back on the right track," said Pittsburgh's Rick Rhoden, who finished with a no decision.

Padres 9, Expos 6
MONTREAL (UPI) — Graig Nettles knew he would be the center of attention.

Nettles went 3-for-5 at the plate, drove in two runs, hit a homer, and also made two errors Monday as the San Diego Padres defeated the Montreal Expos 9-6.

Dave Dravecky, 5-3, went the distance. Rookie Jeff Parrett dropped his first major-league decision, working four innings of relief.

"I may not have been the best player on the field, but I was the most exciting," claimed Nettles, the veteran 41-year-old third baseman.

"I was sorry for Dave that I made those errors. They both cost him runs. But I am happy we came out on top."

Nettles and Steve Garvey each hit solo homers for the Padres in the ninth after Montreal moved to win one run at 7-6 on an run scoring single by Vance Law in the eighth.

The San Diego third baseman has four home runs in his last four games.

"That's me. I hit homers in streaks every year," Nettles said.

Padres manager Steve Boros was glad to overlook Nettles' uncharacteristically shoddy defense.

"I'll gladly stress his hitting any time," he joked.

The score was tied 5-5 heading into the fourth inning when the Padres added two runs.

Tim Flannery walked and Tony Gwynn singled. Flannery advanced to third on a fly ball by Kevin McReynolds, and Terry Kennedy drove in his second run of the night with an infield groundout. Nettles singled home Gwynn for a 7-5 Padres lead.

Montreal trailed 5-1 in the bottom of the second, but rallied for four runs.

Tim Wallach walked, and Andres Galarraga was safe on an error when Nettles couldn't handle his grounder. Vance Law singled up the middle to drive in a run.

Two outs later, Tim Lincecum hit his fourth homer of the season, a three-run shot off the top of the left field bullpen to tie the score 5-5. The homer enabled Raines to reach base for the 40th consecutive game.

In the first inning, Gwynn walked and scored on McReynolds's triple off the center-field fence.

McReynolds upped the score to 2-0 when Montreal starter Jay Tibbs made Kennedy hit into an infield groundout.

Cubs 9, Reds 6
At Chicago, Manny Trillo doubled home two runs, and Dennis Eckersley added a two-run homer in a four-run third inning, helping the Cubs snap Cincinnati's four-game winning streak. Reds right-hander Mario Soto was a last-minute scratch with stiffness in his shoulder.

Astros 4, Cardinals 1
At St. Louis, rookie left-hander Jim Deshaies struck out 10 for his first major-league victory, and Terry Puhl had three hits to lead the Astros. Deshaies, 1-1, allowed three hits while pitching into the eighth inning. Frank DiPino earned his second save. Bob Forsch, 3-3, took the loss.

Rogers Races To Late Model Win

Auto Racing

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — After dropping out with overheating problems the previous week, late model pilot David Rogers made it back to victory lane on Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway.

But after a competitor blew his engine in the fourth turn just before the start of the main event, many of the frontrunners had definite problems in that area. On lap one, a multi-car crash in infamous turn four heavily damaged several cars, including fastest qualifier Mike Goldberg, Joe Middleton and Bill Posey.

Three laps later, early leader Ed Merritt, in the Panama Jack Firebird, lost it in that same fourth turn and went into the concrete extremely hard, injuring his right arm and nearly destroying his race car.

Lee Faulk took over first place on lap 4, but four laps later, the slick spot in turn four caused him to lose traction while battling for the lead wheel to wheel with Rogers who went on to win.

Driving the Champion TV Rentals Firebird, Faulk recovered nicely to grab the runner-up spot ahead of LeRoy Porter. Buzz Berry and the Ron Jon Surf Shop Camaro of Dick Cornwell.

A four- and five-car wide battle and frequent contact marked the roadrunner feature, with Gary "Flyin' Italian" Salvatore coming out on top in the Action Performance stocker. Heat winner Mike Fitch was second, followed by Mike Kubanek.

Driving the J.B.'s Fish Camp Firebird, Mona Cochran dominated the Powder Puff Derby, beating April Carter, Stacie Crowe, Candi Patterson and Lealie Rinehart.

End of the Month Championship events for all divisions are slated for this coming Saturday night, with the time trials scheduled for 7 p.m. and race time set at 8 p.m.

Ferdinand, Snow Chief In Belmont

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (UPI) — It appears Snow Chief and Ferdinand will have a Triple Crown rubber match after all.

Snow Chief, winner of the Preakness Stakes, the Jersey Derby and $2.73 million, and 18-1 Kentucky Derby winner Ferdinand will meet in the June 7 Belmont Stakes. Snow Chief won the $1 million, 1 1/4-mile Jersey Derby over Mogambo so easily Monday, managing owner Carl Grinstead decided to rethink his earlier decision to skip the Belmont because a 1 1/2-mile race might burn out his speedy colt.

"I'll see if he's lost any weight, and if he has sprung back, and if he's going good in the morning on Wednesday, then I'll discuss it with (trainer) Mel Stute, and we will make our decision," Grinstead said. "I'd like to know if he can go a mile and a half."

Two Classic victories would greatly enhance Snow Chief's future value as a stud, and Grinstead acknowledged that was another reason he was reconsidering a Belmont start.

"It's a very prestigious race, and it puts your horse in a little better category of breeding for a lot of people," Grinstead said. "And, it's just a little bit more — I don't want to use Mel's word 'revenge' — but it's just a little more satisfaction to win two Classics."

Snow Chief's 11th-place finish as the 2-1 Kentucky Derby favorite still rankles Grinstead, Stute and co-owner Ben Rochelle. The Reflected Glory colt nosed into the lead on the final turn, then suddenly just stopped trying.

He checked out physically, leaving Stute to conclude Snow Chief was just tired by the lightning fast pace set by early leader Groovy.

Snow Chief's finish in the 1 1/4-mile Derby was the primary reason Grinstead and Stute decided to skip the Belmont.

Stute said Monday he still opposed a Belmont start, preferring instead to concentrate on trying to break John Henry's all-time earnings record of $6.5 million. Snow Chief's Jersey win was worth $600,000 and makes him eligible for a $1 million bonus, though he must also win the July 26 Haskell Invitational at Monmouth Park and the Sept. 12 Pegasus at The Meadowlands to collect.

"He's pretty cranked up now," Stute said, "but to go to the Belmont, he has to go a mile and a half. I think it will dull his speed quite a bit, and it could hurt his future racing after that."

"But, he's a phenomenal little horse, and I might be wrong. I've been wrong many times before, as you know."

Alex Solis, Snow Chief's 22-year-old jockey, came out of the Jersey Derby convinced his mount could win the Belmont.

"He went very strong in the end," Solis said. "I think that if he had a slow pace like he did today, he could go a mile and a half."

Snow Chief took the lead from Mogambo, who broke on the rail, just before they completed their first quarter-mile and loped easily to a 3 1/2 length-lead on the backstretch.

Mogambo came again on the outside and pulled within a neck leaving the 3-8 pole, but when Solis went to his whip, Snow Chief responded by drawing away. He covered the course in a crisp 2:03.

Tasso, the 1985 2-year-old champion who missed the first two legs of the Triple Crown with leg cuts, came from eighth in the field of 10 to finish third, 1 1/2 lengths behind Mogambo and 1 1/4 lengths ahead of Fobby Forbes, owned by Garden State Park President Robert Brennan.

Trainer Leroy Jolley called Mogambo's effort his "best since his Gotham win" and said he probably would run him in the Belmont. Trainer Neil Drysdale said he was not sure whether he'd run Tasso, who again suffered a superficial leg cut Monday, in the race.

Snow Chief returned $3.20, $2.80 and $2.40 as the 3-5 favorite of the Garden State crowd of 31,547, a record attendance for the rebuilt track. Mogambo paid $3.80 as the 5-1 third choice, and Tasso, the 3-1 second pick, returned $2.80.

Total handle on the Jersey Derby card, including simulcasting, was a track record $6.6 million.

Richardi Lifts 'Canes Past Tech, Into Series

MIAMI (UPI) — The Miami Hurricanes take their Gashouse Gang style of baseball back to the College World Series this week, after running their way to a sweep of the NCAA College Atlantic Regional baseball tournament at friendly Mark Light Stadium.

"We put all kinds of pressure on them all afternoon," Miami Coach Ron Fraser said Monday after the defending national champions outran and outhit Georgia Tech 15-9 in the regional's final game.

"We hit and run, we stole, we did everything we could think of," said Fraser, the reigning genius of college baseball these days. "What a tough ball game."

Much of the running and hitting was by centerfielder Rick Richardi, who went three for five, had four stolen bases and scored four runs.

"He's my MVP for the tournament," said Georgia Tech

Baseball

Coach Jim Morris. "When he gets on base, things happen."

The official most valuable player was Rick Raether, who appeared in all four Miami wins, winning one, saving two and setting an NCAA career record for saves along the way.

"I felt pretty confident every day. But it wasn't a matter of getting it rolling for the entire tournament. Every day's a new day," the side-arming righthander said.

Other heroes for the Hurricanes were freshman third baseman Kirk Dulum with four singles in five trips and four RBIs. Chris Magno with a home run and Chris Howard with a double, two singles and two runs batted in. In all, the Hurricanes rapped 20 hits to 15 for Georgia Tech.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Bank Robber Sprung From Paris Jail By Helicopter

PARIS (UPI) — A convicted bank robber who escaped from prison in a rented helicopter that lifted him from a cell block roof was being hunted today, along with a machine-gun-waving accomplice and the woman who flew the chopper.

The helicopter landed in a soccer field at a university housing complex 15 minutes after the escape Monday. The pilot, the inmate and another man aboard fled on foot. It was not known whether a car was waiting for them nearby.

Police said they mounted a widespread search for Michel Vaujour and his accomplices.

Vaujour, 34, was serving an 18-year prison sentence he received in March 1985 for a 1981 armed bank robbery in Paris and a 1980 homicide attempt.

Vaujour, in and out of prison since he was 17, has been convicted of 10 other robberies and had escaped on three previous occasions. It took police two years to catch him after a 1979 escape.

Chernobyl Answers Months Away

MOSCOW (UPI) — The government commission examining the Chernobyl nuclear disaster completed its investigation and officials raised the death toll for the accident to 19.

Yevgeny Velikhov, vice president of the Academy of Sciences, said Monday the commission set up by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev to investigate the disaster had finished gathering information and would soon begin analyzing it.

But, he said, it would take months to determine what caused the accident.

Velikhov said the "behavior" of the workers operating the plant at the time of the accident was being closely examined.

He said initial indications pointed to "a number of consecutive incorrect actions" leading to the explosion and fire at Chernobyl but he refused to give details.

Observers took that statement to mean human error may have played a large role in the world's worst nuclear accident.

Beirut Bombing Kills Mother, Son

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Sporadic clashes and sniper fire persisted early today around a Beirut refugee camp, a day after four people were killed and more than 40 wounded in battles between Shiite Moslem militiamen and Palestinian guerrillas.

In Christian east Beirut Monday, a bomb exploded in an apartment building, killing a woman and her 6-year-old son. Six other people, including the woman's other son, were seriously wounded, police said.

The bomb, packed in a suitcase, was left outside the door of a second-floor apartment.

No one claimed responsibility for the bombing, but Christian Lebanese Forces militia chief Samir Geagea blamed Syria Monday for all bombings in Christian east Beirut.

The blast was the 14th in east Beirut this year. Six of them were car bombs.

Court Order Backs Squatters

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — A court ordered security forces and the black vigilantes they are accused of arming not to attack a squatter community adjoining the embattled Crossroads shantytown and three more deaths were reported elsewhere today.

Leaders of the squatter group told the Supreme Court they were earmarked for dispersal Monday night, after three other Crossroads communities were destroyed in bloody interethnic fighting last week.

The court granted the order Monday for bidding unlawful assault by security forces and black vigilantes, who were blamed for bloody attacks on residents of three other squatter groups last week.

Fighting in the sprawling shantytown near Cape Town in recent weeks has left at least 42 blacks dead and more than 20,000 homeless.

Japanese Election Likely In July

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone today won Cabinet approval to call a special parliamentary session which is likely to lead to a general election in July and allow him to extend his term of office that expires this fall.

The Cabinet OKed Nakasone's plan for a special session next week of the House of Representatives, the more powerful of the two branches of the Diet, or parliament.

Under the plan, Nakasone would dissolve the special session and call a July 6 general election three months before his second two-year term expires.

Nakasone's Liberal Democratic Party forbids a third term and an early election could enable him to stay in power beyond the late October expiration date of his current term.

French Celebrate U.S. Liberation

EPINAL, France (UPI) — Nearly 42 years after U.S. troops liberated the village of Epinal from Nazi control, thousands of people streamed into the streets waving American flags and cheering in a festive day of reconciliation between the United States and France.

Monday's Memorial Day ceremonies were originally planned as a tribute to the 100th anniversary of the French gift of the Statue of Liberty to the United States.

But U.S. and French officials said the date took on added importance to point up two centuries of Franco-American friendship and ease strains caused by the French refusal to let U.S. fighter jets fly over the country during the April 15 raid on Libya.

The refusal angered thousands of Americans who, frustrated also by the tumbling dollar and the menace of terrorism, canceled vacation trips to France.

Thatcher To PLO: Stop Terrorism

JERUSALEM (UPI) — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said today that if the Palestine Liberation Organization does not renounce terrorism and recognize Israel, another negotiating representative for the Palestinian people must be found.

Sources said, however, Palestinian leaders on the Israeli-occupied territories already had spurned such a suggestion as "misplaced."

"Some kind of election process might be the way in which to be sure those people (negotiators) have the support of the Palestinians behind them," Thatcher told a news conference, winding up a three-day, historic visit to Israel.

Her visit was the first by a British prime minister since modern Israel was founded in 1948 in the former British mandate of Palestine.

dream, grow, achieve and serve," Jarvis said in a message taped for the ceremony while he attended another memorial in New York.

The Legislature, which had been convened in an attempt to wrap up work by the June 6 end of session, instead spent much of the day honoring Rep. Ray Stewart, D-Zephyrhills, who died of a heart attack late Sunday.

At a special service for Stewart held in the crowded House chambers, Gov. Bob Graham spoke about two sides of Memorial Day.

"Memorial Day is an American paradox," Graham said. "It is a somber day on which we pay recognition to those Americans who have made the ultimate sacrifice so we can continue to celebrate the freedoms of a free people in a free nation."

"Memorial Day is also a day of joy, on which we revel and celebrate those freedoms which we do have," the governor said.

A ceremony was held Monday in Washington to honor 110 U.S. soldiers who were belatedly recognized as being among the nation's Vietnam War dead, while other cities unveiled statues and plaques honoring those who served in the war.

In Little Rock, Ark., about 300 people joined in breaking ground for the site of a proposed $350,000 memorial to Vietnam veterans. Some 600 black balloons were released — one for each native of the state who died in Vietnam.

President Reagan, leading a tribute to the nearly 200,000 men and women buried at Arlington National Cemetery, spoke of "the boys of Vietnam," saying, "We owe them something, those boys."

"If we really care about peace, we must stay strong," Reagan said. "Today is the day we put aside to remember fallen heroes and to pray that no heroes will ever have to die for us again."

In New York City, veterans and others placed flowers at the Vietnam Memorial, and about 1,000 people marched in the American Legion's annual Memorial Day Parade up Broadway. Many wore military uniforms and small red ribbons to honor the estimated 2,500 Americans listed as missing in action in Vietnam.

"Some of the people watching the parade said thanks," said Domenick Lombardi of the Bronx, who served in Vietnam. "People are finally acknowledging us. For those of us who lost good friends, we know it was not in vain."

In Washington, a roll call of honor was read for the 110 soldiers whose names were recently etched into the national Vietnam Veterans Memorial beside 58,022 fallen comrades previously honored on the massive black granite wall.

A few miles away, Sgt. John Collins staged a personal vigil at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., standing at attention throughout the day in salute to the dead and missing in Indochina.

In Nashville, a statue was unveiled to honor Tennessee's Vietnam veterans.

The 8-foot-tall bronze sculpture of three U.S. soldiers, including the first black man depicted in a statue on state property, had two pieces broken from it. The sculpture apparently was vandalized by protesters who left a poster calling for the end of U.S. foreign intervention. "I am disappointed, but I expected it to happen," said sculptor Alan LeQuire.

Diane Jaeger, who spent two years in the Army, urged a crowd in Madison, Wis., to support her efforts to have an 8-foot bronze statue of an Army nurse added to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington.

Elsewhere, veterans of other American wars also were remembered.

In Honolulu, military officials held a service on a ship 30 feet above the sunken ruins of the USS Arizona, destroyed in the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

About 500 people attended an Orlando, Fla., ceremony dedicated to Korean War veterans. And at noon, the hour the armistice ending World War I was signed, the 18th-century frigate USS Constitution fired a salute in Boston Harbor.

plan, including "where they want to go with the money, priority needs and a common decision as to how the funds will be allocated," she said.

The cities and the county would each maintain their own emergency medical care programs, response areas and internal operations. The money could not be used to replace budgets or fund existing programs, Ms. Smith said.

"This is a very positive thing for the agencies involved. Some who can't afford to expand their EMS services will have the opportunity to get the money and do some things they haven't done," she said.

One area to which the county could target the funds is advanced life support personnel and equipment at all its fire stations, Ms. Smith said. Although she could not say what the cities' priorities will be, she commented, "there are definite needs."

In the future, the county and cities can apply for the EMS grants. The 45 percent returned to local governments, however, is something they can use now "with no strings attached, except we must plan a budget," Ms. Smith said.

The county is slated to receive the first year's share Dec. 1. Before that, it must establish a separate account to which the state can deposit the monies and designate who will administer the program.

Ms. Smith said she is proposing the county EMS division oversee the plan and represent the county commission on the taskforce.

when the accident occurred, according to police. Her brother, 12, was a few feet in front of her and was uninjured. Michelle was dead on arrival at South Seminole Community Hospital, police said. She was the 14th traffic fatality in Seminole County this year.

In another central Florida accident, Monro Eddy Tyson, 64, Orlando, hit a utility pole Sunday while trying to pass a car on Boggy Creek Road. He hit the pole when he swerved to avoid a collision with the car in front which was also trying to pass.

The highway patrol had predicted 34 people would die on Florida roadways between 6 p.m. EDT Friday and 12:01 a.m. today. It appeared that estimate would not be met, and the highway patrol credited campaigns to reduce drunken driving and increase seatbelt use.

"Over the past year or so we have really stressed the public awareness of the problem associated with highway death. We'd like to believe the motoring public is taking that into consideration before they take their trips, in that people would lessen their use of alcohol when driving and continue to wear their seatbelts," said FHP Maj. Charles Hall.

A popular Florida boxer, an elderly couple, and three children were among the victims. Eleven of the deaths were known to be alcohol-related. Six victims were pedestrians and eight died when their vehicles overturned.

Dana Michelle Bryant, 2, and Shannon L. Martin, 11, were two of at least eight people who died when the cars they were in overturned. The victims were either crushed to death or thrown from their seats.

Dana was apparently not sitting in a seat when the car she was riding in Saturday flipped, an FHP spokesman said. The car, driven by her mother Hilda, was traveling too fast, he said.

The infant was thrown from the car on State Road 471 in Sumter County about 2 miles north of Webster.

Martin died after she was thrown from the car which then rolled over onto her. The Pensacola girl was thrown from the back window when the car she was in lost control.

on the same plane, that personal bags were put through security again.

No bomb was found and the flight resumed some 2 1/2 hours later.

"Piedmont personnel did an excellent job of keeping things under control and getting the passengers off safely," Doyle said, but he added he was amazed that airport security apparently was lax in that the passengers who got off the plane with small carrying cases were allowed into the main terminal among the general public without first having those bags checked thoroughly.

Ken Carlson, manager of public relations for Piedmont Airlines at their headquarters in Winston-Salem, N.C., said flight 41 was just a short time into the flight when the bomb threat was telephoned in.

"We received notification from a person that there was a bomb on board," Carlson said. He declined to give specifics, saying to do so might encourage others to make similar threats.

"We informed the pilot, and he chose to land at the nearest available airport, which was Jacksonville," Carlson said.

The flight landed in Jacksonville at 6:41 p.m. and passengers were told to leave the plane and later identify their luggage. Meanwhile, the plane was "thoroughly searched," Carlson said.

He said security, such as where the passengers would have to wait, and how the situation would be handled, is the responsibility of airport security and, "every airport does it differently."

He said the flight resumed at 8:48 p.m. and landed in Orlando at 9:17 p.m.

Carlson declined to discuss in depth bomb threats, but did say they are not uncommon.

"A couple of guys have a party and call the airlines. "We get more than we like to admit. We take them all seriously."

Some reports have indicated that false bomb threats may be a terrorist ploy designed only to harass passengers and cause people to travel other than by air. Carlson said such delays are "very costly" to the airlines, but couldn't put a specific dollar amount on any such incidents.

Wife Got Short End Of Stick By Trading Dog For Husband

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing in response to "Mrs. Catch-22," whose common-law husband gave her an ultimatum: the dog or him. I agree with your advice to send the heartless sounder packing.

Several years ago, "John," my first husband, gave me a female puppy for Christmas. I housebroke her, fed her and trained her with no help from him. She was a good watchdog, yet gentle with our baby. Then, a year and half later, John decided he couldn't put up with the dog hair in the house, even though I vacuumed and swept daily. He said he was going to take the dog to the woods and shoot her. I cried and begged him not to. I offered to take her to my mother's house until a home could be found for her. He refused that idea. I offered to take her to the Humane Society, but he said it would be cheaper to shoot her. He gave me a choice — either let him shoot her that day or he was going to move out that night and file for divorce.

I made the wrong choice. I chose John. I cried for two weeks after he shot her. I recall asking myself what kind of man I was married to. Well, two years later, he left me for another woman, which is something my dog never would have done. So by making the wrong choice, I lost them both. Had I chosen the dog, I would have had one less heartbreak to endure. My son has never forgiven his father for shooting our dog.

Since then, I have remarried. My present husband loves dogs, and I am happier than I have ever been in my life.

SHOULD HAVE CHOSEN THE DOG

DEAR SHOULD HAVE: It's a shame you were such a slow learner. For the record, if an animal lover is asked to choose between a person and a dog, choose the four-legged variety.

DEAR ABBY: I am 81 and my darling is 66. For the last several years I have had two birds — a small parrot and a cockatiel. I have grown very fond of these birds, but my fiancée says no way will she marry me unless I get rid of my feathered friends. Perhaps I should mention that she is a compulsively neat housekeeper who thinks birds are dirty. I read you daily.

PERTURBED OCTAGENARIAN

DEAR OCT: There are no "dirty birds," just careless caretakers. Promise to clean the bird cage daily, and line it with my column.

DEAR ABBY: Now that summer is nearly here, there will be many picnics, barbecues and cookouts, so I want to warn parents, grandparents, baby sitters, etc., about a danger they may not be aware of.

As a newspaper reporter I had the unhappy task of reporting the accidental death of a toddler. This little one was drowned when he quietly fell head first into a picnic cooler filled with water. (The container had been filled with ice, but it melted.) No one saw it happen. The child just disappeared. They found him later.

His parents were overcome with guilt and grief. No one ever dreamed that such a freak accident could occur, but it did. And if it happened once, it could happen again.

Please, remind your readers to empty those ice chests once they've served their purpose. Thanks Abby.

PAT WILSON, SPRING LAKE, N.C.

DEAR PAT: Thanks for caring enough to write. You may have saved a toddler's life today.

Parenting Class Offered

The preschool years are the most important in a child's education. This message is the focus of a course in parenting to be offered from 7 to 9 p.m. on May 29 and June 5 at South Seminole Community Hospital.

"Parenting" is based on the Bowdoin Method, an award-winning educator's program that helps parents become teachers and children become readers. Over the course of four classes, parents will learn techniques that will bring them closer to their children and will prepare children for school.

The "Parenting" program has two major emphases. The first half is devoted to developing a child's intellectual capacity. The purpose of this study is to help parents create a home environment that stimulates learning and creativity. The second focus of study is on psychological and emotional stability. This portion of the program helps parents interact with their children in ways that produce good behavior and positive self-image.

The course is taught by Lisa Smith, RN, MA, director of education, and Reida Lindquist, RN, coordinator of Pediatrics. Both are South Seminole Community Hospital employees who have been trained to present the course.

NOTICE TO ALL VETERANS
Who Have Honorably Served Their Country In Time Of War or Peace

Because of the lack of burial space and the distance of the National Cemetery in Florida, we are assigning grave spaces in Veterans Garden of Valor, Oaklawn Memorial Park. As an honorably discharged veteran of the United States Armed Forces, you may be qualified for Free Burial Space. However, you must register for this. You must be able to show proof of Honorable Discharge. There are a limited number of Veterans spaces available. Certificates for spaces will be issued on a first come first served basis. To assure reservation, mail the coupon below to:

Let The Office Source Be Your Supply Source

The Office Source located at 111 Magnolia Ave. in Sanford specializes in computer supplies from micro to mainframe and office supplies from pens & pencils to furniture. If you are looking for magnetic media for your MacIntosh 3.5" drives, or your IBM 5.25" drives or your mini computer with the 8" drives or tape reels. The Office Source should be your source. The computer industry has evolved so quickly for mass use that the supply store today has a challenge just to keep up.

Linda Johnston, part owner of The Office Source.

Linda Johnston, part owner of the store says, "It is not unusual for customers to be as aware of the new technology as we are, and in many cases much more so, especially in the specialized fields such as networking, multi-user systems, etc. One could make a full-time job out of reading periodicals on all the systems available. Our job is to try and find the supplies the consumer needs. If it is something so specialized that we cannot supply it for them, we will try our best to put them in touch with someone who can."

The Office Source is under renovation now that is taking much longer than had been anticipated because of problems with moving their Orlando warehouse facility. Once the changes are done and the store is being run out of both sides of the downstairs in the Speer building, there will be more room for product, both new and used.

Another owner, Donna Konya explains plans for the new look at the store. "As we have changed from just carrying computers and a few supplies for the entire office environment, we have very quickly run out of room and find it difficult to display furniture or other products effectively. We will still use the Sanford location as a catalog order center with a minimum of product inventory. Because we can pull stock from the Orlando or Tampa warehouses within 24 to 48 hours, our customers have been more than happy to wait when they see the prices we can extend to them."

The Office Source invites prices and quality comparisons. The everyday prices you will find very often beat even the sale prices at many supply stores and because of the free delivery service to businesses, your office will also save money in not sending employees out to pick up office supplies.

"Two years ago you didn't find that many offices where the whole staff had some degree of computer literacy. Today it seems that has changed and the job of the computer plans for the new look at the store. "As we have changed from just carrying computers and a few supplies for is exciting to all of us and soon will be making an announcement about one very important change. We are looking forward to another year

Hours are 8:30-5:30 Monday-Friday. We accept MasterCard/Visa/choice cards. 323-5815, 365-8111.

Located in what was once an opera house built in 1895, the Gaslight is just the place to be for Early Bird dinners, Italian Night, or just good food any evening.

including authentic Italian veal cutlet Parmigiana. Complete Italian meals with music, entertainment and dancing for only $6.95.

Nick sings all of the old time favorites and some of the new ones, too, with music by Ed Kennedy and the Gaslight Ensemble.

Early Bird dinners are featured Tuesday through Friday beginning at 3:30 p.m. with prices beginning at $3.95.

The live entertainment and dancing are offered from 7:30 to 11:30 Tuesday through Saturday.

Starting June 1, Gaslight will be open on Sundays with a special Sunday menu — complete dinners for $6.95 served from noon to 6 p.m.

Gaslight's daily dinner menu consists of prime ribs, steak, lobster tails, frog legs and veal specialty dishes. Prices range from $8.75 to $19.95 for complete dinners. Tuesday night is Italian Night with great Italian specialty dishes

Planning a special event? The Gaslight has facilities for banquets and parties and Nick will be glad to discuss your needs and special arrangements for your special functions with you. Sanford Dental Centre For Family Dental Health

Sanford Dental Centre, which opened its new offices in the Seminole Centre, at 3607 Orlando Drive, Sanford, on Feb. 1, is a complete family dental health center.

Dr. Peter D. Weisbruch, DDS, and his associate, Dr. Dwight Williamson, are dedicated to providing full-service modern dental care while charging modest fees.

Weisbruch graduated from the University of Michigan in 1980 and he formerly practiced in Daytona Beach. Dr. Williamson is a graduate of the University of Kentucky in 1982.

Sanford Dental Clinic makes full and partial dentures, does cosmetic bonding, crowns, bridges, root canals, extractions, cleaning and fluoride treatments.

Relines and repairs are done while you wait.

Sanford Care uses only American Dental Association approved materials. Standard, deluxe and premium dentures are available. Premium dentures are made from the finest material and teeth available in the United States and Europe. They have a wide selection of color, shape, mold and design of teeth. They have the availability of building out sunken areas of face and jaws to provide the most natural look possible.

Dental Centre has its own in-house laboratory can cut the waiting time from 4 to 5 weeks to a week or 10 days.

Emergencies and walk-ins are welcome. Hours are 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday.

Financing is available through Master Charge, Visa, and American Express cards as well as local banks. For an appointment call 321-3820.

Medication Won't Cause Addiction

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT — After 37 years of being told "it's all in your head," I've finally been diagnosed as having Meniere's Disease. I keep the dizzy spells under control with Meclizine and niacin. Are these addictive, and do they have any long-term side effects?

DEAR DR. GOTT — What's the best way to stop biting my nails? I've tried everything.

DEAR DR. GOTT — This is a tough question; you wouldn't be asking it if there were a generally accepted way to stop nailbiting. Behavior modification, putting adhesive tape on what's left

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is it possible for the afterbirth to be left inside a woman without causing any major health problem? About one year ago, after my son was born, I began to have a terrible body odor. I wouldn't have considered the afterbirth until a couple of months ago, when my sister-in-law had a baby. The doctor told her she still had some afterbirth left from a previous child. Is there any way to diagnose this without surgery?

DEAR DR. GOTT — Portions of the placenta (afterbirth) can remain embedded in the uterine lining after delivery. Because the placental pieces cease to function at birth, they can cause bleeding and infection unless they are removed. Ultrasound examinations can help the doctor identify large placental remnants, but usually a dilatation and curettage (D and C, or scraping) is necessary both for diagnosis and treatment.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I've heard that high cholesterol levels can cause heart attacks. Is there any danger in low levels? If so, how low?

DEAR DR. GOTT — There is no danger in a low-level of blood cholesterol unless this level reflects malnutrition. In a suitably nourished adult, the lower the cholesterol, the better. Even if a person were to eat no cholesterol at all, the liver would produce enough for metabolism.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Lew Mathe, who died last March, was a great bridge player and a colorful personality. I am fortunate to have played on his winning Vanderbilt team in Seattle in 1967. Away from the table, he worked hard for the betterment of the game and was an implacable foe of unethical or improper conduct.

On today's deal from a 1963 pairs competition, Lew was declarer in six no-trump. Dummy's heart king won the opening lead, and Lew knew the lead was from a four-card suit. When West discarded a spade on the king of diamonds, there was trouble. All other declarers in this event played a spade to the queen. When that won, they gave up either a low spade or a low diamond immediately, and then later West was squeezed between his spade guard and his long clubs. Only Mathe found a refinement. Believing that West must have started with five spades to find that discard at the second trick so effortlessly, he played a spade to dummy's ace. After all, a lone king in East's hand might have dropped. He then came back to his hand with a second diamond and led to the spade queen. When West ducked, he won dummy's queen and gave up a low diamond to East. He won the return and played out his red suit winners. West now had a choice of discarding his spade winner or guarding his club 10, and the slam was made.

No one who played against Lew Mathe or who knew him doubts that the Great Rubber Bridge Game in the Sky has gotten a lot tougher.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY MAY 28, 1986

In the year ahead you may have to make a big decision that will affect your way of life. Fortunately, you'll use splendid judgment, and the results will bear this out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Associates will think of you as a brilliant conversationalist today because you're such a good listener. You'll be the one who gains the most from the discussion. Is there romance in your future? To find out what's in store for you, get your Astro-Graph predictions for the year following your birthday. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You have the ability today to help others figure things out that they can't figure out for themselves. There will be benefits for being of service.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Normally it's unwise to make hasty judgments, but today could be an exception. You'll be at your best when you have to make on-the-spot decisions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're capable of remarkable achievements today in situations where you have strong material motivation. If there's money to be made, you'll get your share.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This will be a pleasant day for you if you keep your schedule flexible. Do things as your impulses direct instead of following a rigid agenda.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If decorative changes around the house are on your agenda today, be sure they're functional as well as artistic. In fact, put utility first.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Although your independence will be of importance to you today, you will actually fare better in situations where you are working in close tandem with others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Take advantage of your talents today for developing situations that can spell material gain or advancement for you. You're ingenious in these areas.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Let doing what you know to be right guide your behavior today. If you operate within your high standards and ideals, the results will be successful.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Looking out for people you're involved with will prove to be more profitable for you in the long run than merely promoting narrow self-interests.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Do not involve friends in your commercial ventures today unless they can share equally in what you hope to gain. If the deal is equitable, it'll work out.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The time is right today to make a clever career move you've been contemplating. Speed is essential, so move swiftly.
