Gator takes a bite of Pontiac

DENVER, Colo. — On a Texas 140 near Dickinson Bayou, Johnny Collins came across a 10-foot alligator that bit into his tire and took a chunk out of a bumper of his candy apple red 1988 Pontiac Grand Am.

Collins, 18, of Dickinson, came across the alligator while taking his date home about 2 1/2 mi. last Sunday and decided to encourage the gator to get out of the roadway and into a nearby reservoir.

He stopped about 4 feet from the alligator and began blowing the car horn and racing the engine. But instead of crawling off, the alligator turned and bit down on Collins' front tire until it exploded.

Marcos in critical condition

HONOLULU — The condition of ousted Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos, 71, hospitalized much of the last year with a variety of ailments, has worsened, and he was in critical condition with recurring pneumonia, a spokesman said.

Marcos was on a respirator Tuesday at St. Francis Medical Center in the intensive care unit where he was moved late Monday after his blood pressure dropped and his urine output stopped. His condition was downgraded from guarded to critical on Tuesday.

Justice blocks teen abortion

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Supreme Court approved Tuesday an abortion for a Lake City teenager who challenged Florida's abortion parental consent law, only to be overturned by a U.S. Supreme Court justice.

The Florida high court issued an order Tuesday morning permitting the abortion for a 15-year-old girl identified in court documents as T.W., and scheduled oral arguments on the constitutionality of the consent law for September.

A few hours later, Justice Anthony Kennedy in Washington blocked the state court's ruling until the U.S. Supreme Court could review written arguments from both sides, scheduled for Thursday.

The state court ruling effectively barred enforcement of the law statewide for several hours, lawyers on both sides of the dispute agreed.

But under Kennedy's order, "The minor cannot have the abortion and the statute is still in effect," said Mitch Franks of the state attorney general's office.

NCAA bill passed 36-0

TALLAHASSEE — Professional sports agents of overzealous alumni whose behavior merits the wrath of the NCAA could be sued for damages by Florida universities under legislation approved 36-0 Tuesday by the Senate.

The bill (S.B. 576) by Sen. Vince Bruner, says any individual who intentionally violates or helps another violate NCAA regulations may be held liable for fines or to set tournament revenue.

D-Fort Walton Beach,

"This bill will have a good deterrent effect upon these people who kind of thought this was a joke in the past," Bruner said in debate.

The bill follows numerous stringent sanctions imposed on colleges for violations of NCAA rules including illegal recruiting and contacts with agents.

Huge fraud ring cracked

Seminole residents arrested; 1 posts $150,000 cash bond

By SUSAN LOEDEM
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — A Longwood woman and four other Seminole County residents were arrested Tuesday in what authorities said was the cracking of the largest used car odometer fraud ring in the nation.

Authorities said the alleged ring operated in Orange County.

Janette Lakes Rivers, 35, of 212 Weeping Elm Lane, Longwood, identified as the sister of the accused knipkin of the ring, was released from the Seminole County jail on $150,000 bond after posting it all in cash, authorities said.

Rivers was arrested by a Florida Department of Law Enforcement agent on an Orange County warrant.

She was arrested at her Longwood home at about 10:15 a.m. while officials rounded up four other suspects in Orange County. All were identified as residents of Seminole County.

Rivers faces multiple counts of racketeering, conspiracy to defraud, grand theft, forgery, title fraud and odometer fraud. Rivers' arrest report said she is unemployed.

This ring victimized consumers not only throughout Florida but throughout the Southeast, state Attorney General Bob Butterworth said. "It was a very sophisticated conspiracy that required more than a year to develop."

Florida Department of Law Enforcement officials and Florida Highway Patrol troopers arrested five suspects, including Rivers, early Tuesday and were looking for four others.

Butterworth, who announced the arrests during a news conference, said federal authorities called the ring the largest ever uncovered in the United States. Investigators estimated that the ring may have

Joan Nickman named year's best high school counselor

By VICKI DeSORMIER

LAKE MARY — Joan Nickman, of Lake Mary High School, is the new Seminole County High School Counselor of the Year.

Fifteen years ago, Nickman brought her daughters to Florida from Michigan, where she also had been a counselor. She intended to stay here a year while going to school and working. "I guess we got sand in our sandals," she said, "and we forgot to go back."

It seems she also likes her work. The award, voted by other school district counselors, is based on demonstrated hard work and strong involvement.

A former chairperson of the Seminole County High School Counselors' Association, Nickman also has worked on the County Crisis Prevention team. "The county crisis prevention team goes wherever we're needed in the area to help students and staff at a school deal with tragedy," she explained.

Cardinal seeks court protection from bankruptcy

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — Cardinal Industries of Florida, Inc., headquartered in Sanford, and its Columbus, Ohio parent company, Cardinal Industries, Inc., have filed for protection from creditors under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code in Ohio, it was confirmed today.

In another development during the past two days, potential buyers for Cardinal's Sanford manufacturing facilities have toured the facilities, said Dave Fair, executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce.

"I know for a fact that they are very interested," said Fair, who would not disclose the identities of the parties.

Citing recent actions by creditors, Cardinal officials said that the bankruptcy filing on Monday was necessary to continue the operations of the corporation located in Columbus.

"We concluded reorganization is the best strategy to preserve and protect the values which exist in the company for the benefit of its creditors and other constituents, including our employees, customers and investors," Austin Goulinger, Cardinal's founder and president, said today in a prepared statement.

Chapter 11 filing is the latest sign in recent months of the decline of the company that was once the nation's fifth-largest homebuilder.

During the past year, operations in the 13-year-old Sanford manufacturing plant have de-

Sanford might oppose planned I-4 expansion

SANFORD — To commuters on Interstate-4, more lanes might sound like relief.

But to Bill Simmons, city director of engineering and planning, additional lanes proposed for I-4 may lead to big expenses for local government.

At a city commission work session Monday, Simmons asked the city commission to formally reject a Florida Department of Transportation plan for expansion and improvement of I-4.

Simmons said he believes a resolution of non-support, like one passed by Seminole County, would prompt the state agency to reconsider the I-4 plan.

Simmons said he opposed the plan because access lanes off State Road 46 and the proposed 30-A interchange would bypass the proposed expressway. But primary lanes would have access to expressway interchanges, he said.

If I-4 access lanes are constructed without expressway interchanges, Simmons said, the city will be stuck paying for lane mileage to access the

From staff and wire reports

TALLAHASSEE — James Dawson, coordinator of the Seminole County dropout prevention program, applauds the concept of a bill approved Tuesday by the Senate Appropriations Committee which calls for high school students in Florida to have to stay in school until they are 18 or lose driving privileges.

"There are a few problems inherent with the enforcement of such a program (such as the communication gap between school districts and law enforcement departments and the Department of Motor Vehicles), but we should at least take a shot at it," Dawson said.

Under current law, Florida residents can leave school as soon as they turn 16, with or without a degree. That argued bill sponsor Sen. Curtis Peterson, D-DeLand, is part of the reason Florida has one of the highest dropout rates in the country.

"We have hundreds of millions of dollars involved in dropout prevention programs in career opportunity programs in vocational educational programs, anything you can think of to allow for alternative methods to interest students in staying in school," Peterson said.

And yet it is legal for them at the age of 16 to drop out of school, which really doesn't make much sense if we really think we ought to have all students complete school.

According to federal Department of Education statistics, almost 25 percent of Florida's students drop out without obtaining a high school degree. The federal study did not tell how many of these dropouts left before age 18.

Peterson's bill (S.B. 299) would make it illegal for students to drop out before they turn 18. It would prohibit minor students from obtaining a general equivalency diploma by taking an exam.

Students could take night classes or vocational school courses, so long as they remain in school.

Funding problems mean some service changes at county Humane Society

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — After 12 years, the Humane Society of Seminole County has stopped picking up sick and injured animals that have been reported to them.

Instead, callers to the Humane Society will be referred to the Seminole County Animal Control Department. Although the society will continue their abuse investigations and will pick up injured animals from individuals, injured animals will not be picked from roads and other public areas.

Society president Be Simpson said the decision was made unanimously April 19 by society directors as a cost-saving measure.

Ron LeFebvre, county animal control official and former director of the Broward County Humane Society, said the local society has given up one of their most visible fund-raising tools. LeFebvre said the decision has also blurred the public's perception of the difference between the responsibilities between animal control and the society.

"We are supposed to protect the public from vicious animals," LeFebvre said. "We are here for the people. They are supposed to protect the sick and injured animals. They are there for the animals."

But Barbara Cassidy, director of fundraising for the Humane Society of the United States, said it is a public misperception that society will automatically respond to injured animals on roadways.

"Some humane organizations fulfill that responsibility," Cassidy said. "But generally that falls within the purview of animal control departments. The Humane Society has for many years filled the void for poorly funded animal control departments, and the public gets the idea that is what they do."

Partially in response to the added county responsibilities, County Manager Ben Hooper will recommend a county commission limit two more animal control officers to $150,000 a month at a cost of about $12,000.

The county's contract with Dr. Hank Kotnick, a Lake Mary veterinarian, will be extended for night time calls all duties for the pickups. Kotnick will be paid $100 for the first hour of calls and the remaining $100 for each subsequent hour.

Hooper said county 400s and 400pks will be turned over to the county animal control department. "If the animals appear to be injured, they will be transported to the county and be saved. Kotnick will continue to provide services that can be found elsewhere."

Simpson said the decision would make fund-raising more difficult for the society. "We are supposed to be a public service, not a business," he said. "We are supposed to be a public service, not a business. We are supposed to be a public service, not a business. We are supposed to be a public service, not a business."

Laurence Joseph Marturano, 28, of Helen St., Casselberry, was charged with fleeing to elude police, driving with a revoked license, possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana and criminal mischief.

OVIEDO — A Seminole County sheriff's deputy reported arresting two men and two boys after reportedly seeing them attack a boy who had been bicycling home from work on County Road 419, Oviedo, at about 11:15 p.m. Monday.

The deputy said the suspects fled as he approached. The victim was lying bruised and cut on the roadside, along with his bicycle that was damaged in the attack.

New subpoena plan offered

By SUSAN LODEM
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Circuit Judge O.H. Eaton Jr. has a plan that would eliminate the need to serve subpoenas for police officers scheduled to give depositions in felony cases.

The idea, which Eaton said is getting a favorable response from heads of area law enforcement agencies, would call for specific days for officers to be deposed. The depositions would be set by appointment made through telephone calls to the officers' departments.

The time and expense of having the Seminole County Sheriff's Department serve lawmen with subpoenas would be eliminated. A witness coordinator in the public defenders office would be assigned to make the calls to the police agencies to schedule depositions, a discovery process where attorneys have the opportunity to learn facts in a case before trial.

Under the current subpoena system, Eaton said, sometimes a complete squad of officers from a small police department is called for deposition at the same time. That means the officers must be present at the assigned starting time and have to wait their turn to give their official statements.

This may cause a police manpower shortage in a city during the deposition time. Police may also be called in on their days off which, Eaton said, could probably be avoided under the new system.

Eaton said, under his plan, the scheduling would be staggered, with each officer having a specific time to show up for deposition. Specific days each month would be set aside on judges' calendars for depositions.

Capt. Terry Baker of the Longwood Police Department, said that would be a big advantage for his department.

"It's hard because of the case load of the judges," Baker said. "We may have five officers there in a discovery process. The manpower and the money loss — we may lose a whole shift," Baker said.

"This is a good idea. We will know in advance what the schedule will be. It will help police and attorneys. Mostly it will help public defenders to know in advance when to expect us," Baker said.

Eaton who presented his idea to area police chiefs a few days ago, said he is working with lawyers and is in the process of formalizing a plan to take back to the chiefs for approval in about one month.

If an officer is scheduled for deposition under the new plan and fails to show up, Eaton said, discipline in such a case would be handled by that officer's chief.

"It's an excellent idea," said Oviedo Police Chief Dennis

Peterson. "I commend the judge for taking the time and effort to put this together. If he can get the rest of the judges to buy into it I think it will work."

Peterson said the proposal has been a long time coming. "We need to look at the officer's time spent in court. When it can be scheduled it cost less and is less inconvenient for the officer. They could schedule their time off and vacation time that because of being subpoenaed for deposition, they couldn't do before."

The Florida Supreme Court,

he said, recently abolished depositions in misdemeanor cases, leaving attorneys to conduct their own investigations to determine the facts in those cases before trial.

In federal cases, Eaton said, witnesses are never subpoenaed before trial. Grand juries review the facts and eliminate the need for depositions in federal cases.

In 1973, in Florida, the discovery process, Eaton said, was expanded to include depositions, with the hope that some cases would be settled before trial.

A fairer plan

Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos has wisely reversed a decision of his predecessor and proposed a more constructive, enlightened policy on student loans. Instead of penalizing new students by automatically cutting off federal aid to schools with a 20 percent rate of loan defaults, he wants to raise the default rate that would trigger such action — and, more importantly, increase the total of student grants so fewer students have to take out huge loans to attend college.

The plan by former Secretary William Bennett was unfair. It would have hurt current and future students because of the failure by former students to repay loans. True, schools should monitor their loans more closely so their default rates do not get out of hand. But the rate comes from students who have left campus; cutting off aid after the default rate rises to unacceptable levels doesn't affect the violators.

Mr. Cavazos realizes that fact. His proposals would raise the level of default at which aid would be denied, and the cutoff would occur only if schools fail to cooperate in reducing the debt. Schools can do that by improving their collection procedures and by accepting students who are likely to succeed, since many defaults result when students drop out.

Special attention should be paid to trade schools, which often dangle loans before poorly qualified students largely for the tuition they bring. The default rates of such schools are the highest of all.

If tighter controls over repayment are applied — and if Mr. Cavazos can gain more outright tuition grants to help ease the loan burden of students — then the high cost of higher education should become easier for everyone to reach.

Let Swiss women vote

Maybe it's that thin alpine air. But in Switzerland, an otherwise enlightened European country, women have been forced to scale a political Matterhorn to get to the ballot box.

The men — through their democratic institutions, of course — kept Swiss women from voting in national elections until 1971. And, at the local jurisdictional level, women have had to struggle for their suffrage rights, canton by canton.

Swiss women recently registered a victory of sorts in the canton of Appenzell Outer-Rhodes, where men have voted against female suffrage four times in the past. Some of the men cried foul. The vote on suffrage this time was taken by a show of hands while the women waited at a distance behind a cordon of troops. Though the vote appeared evenly divided, the presiding official declared — without a count — in favor of the women.

Appenzell Outer-Rhodes thus spares itself the dishonor of being the last canton to deny women the right to vote. That dubious distinction belongs to Appenzell Inner-Rhodes.

In a land so committed to peace and neutrality, a struggle over basic voting rights seems oddly out of place. But surely the Swiss women will prevail. Onward to Appenzell Inner-Rhodes.

Bringing back the Good Old Days

WASHINGTON — When I was a boy, live people operated elevators, delivered milk in bottles, pumped gasoline and showed you to an empty seat in a movie theater.

I had thought that automatic elevators, milk in cartons at supermarkets and self-service filling stations all were manifestations of "progress" and were disliked only by old crocks bewailing the loss of illusory "good old days."

Now I find, courtesy of Trudy Pearce, a policy analyst for an organization called Citizens for a Sound Economy, that these modern-day improvements actually are the penalty for requiring employers to pay a minimum wage.

Pearce says that the minimum wage increase approved by the Senate this year would "threaten to destroy as many as 700,000 jobs."

One way that would occur, she wrote, would be for employers to seek "less expensive ways to get the work done when they can no longer afford entry-level employees."

"Some install more machines while others set up 'self service,'" she wrote. "For example, many years ago movie theaters had ushers to show patrons to their seats. However, today even in most high-priced movie theaters patrons must seat themselves. The minimum wage increases of the past have led to more 'self service,' and therefore fewer jobs in many industries, including restaurants and gas stations."

Pearce's estimate of the number of jobs that would be "destroyed" by a minimum wage increase is not new and is based on what, to be polite, would have to be called "debatable" statistics.

Opponents have claimed since the 1930s that the minimum wage causes entry-level jobs to be eliminated. They usually cite as evidence surveys that ask employers what they would do if they had to increase wages for their lowest paid workers.

Supporters of the minimum wage say what is important is that the actual number of jobs in the U.S. economy has continued to increase even when the minimum wage has gone up.

the actual number of jobs has increased

DAVID S. BRODER

Durable leader, no 'revolution'

LONDON — A reporter arriving in Britain last week found himself in the midst of a ceremony the likes of which the United States has seen only once — and probably never again: The tenth anniversary of the election of the head of government.

I have no recollection of what happened in 1942 on the tenth anniversary of Franklin D. Roosevelt's first election; probably very little, given the wartime circumstances. But if the commemoration of Margaret Thatcher's decade as Prime Minister is any indication of what such events would entail in the United States, I may have to rethink my support for the move to repeal the 22nd Amendment, limiting any President to eight years in office.

A proper anniversary celebration involves lots of music, parades and fireworks. Mrs. T. apparently wanted none of those. Instead, the Brits were drowned in a torrent of commentary and polls measuring their reaction to every aspect of Thatcherism. As The Guardian newspaper rather churlishly remarked, "Forests have died, these past few weeks, to make the Thatcher Decade possible."

I am too recently arrived on these shores to venture an opinion on how Thatcher has done, but two things are evident. One is that she dominates this nation's politics and consciousness in a way that not even the strongest American President can hope to do at home. And the other is that, long as she has been in control and much as she has changed things, there has been no "conservative revolution" in British thinking.

Those two facts, in conjunction, serve as a warning to students of American politics of how difficult it is to wrench a society out of its ingrained ways. Political realignments just don't come easily, even when a leader as forceful as Margaret Thatcher is in power as long as she has been.

The journalistic consensus is that Thatcher has energized the British economy, shaken up somnolent private and public bureaucracies and asserted Britain's voice in world affairs in a striking fashion. She has done so, despite the fact that her party received only 43 percent of the vote in the last two elections, by exploiting the weakness of a divided political opposition and the power an assertive leader can exercise over the Cabinet and the rank-and-file legislators of her party in a parliamentary system.

A theme of this past week's punditry is that she may be riding for a fall. A Labor victory in a parliamentary by-election in Wales sent opposition hopes soaring and unleashed a new muttering from Thatcher's intra-party critics that she is pushing things too far, too fast.

But she has heard this talk before, she ignored it and has gone on to see her political judgment vindicated. Coming from a Washington where President Bush has only a modest program in mind and must compromise almost every point to get it past Congress, Thatcher seems the embodiment of strength and purposefulness.

But the clear message of the surveys marking her anniversary is that the people she rules are not yet ruled by the ideas that guide her. Nor do her constituents feel she has made Britain a "kinder, gentler" nation.

A Gallup Poll for The Daily Telegraph, a pro-Thatcher paper, reported that more people see an increase in crime, fear, greed, selfishness and poverty in the Thatcher Decade than see an increase in wealth, freedom or happiness. Politeness, caring and generosity are seen as qualities in decline.

True, some of her policies are popular. Gallup found large majorities supported her curbs on strikes and her insistence on secret ballots for internal union decisions. Sale of public housing units to their tenants and toughening of school curricula also command support.

But basic economic measures, such as the return of many state-owned enterprises to private ownership and the shift from income taxes to consumption taxes, are disapproved by the majority — even though the pundits describe them as policies any future government might find it hard to reverse.

A MORI poll for The Independent newspaper gave further evidence that the egalitarian strain she despises has survived the Thatcher years. Of a dozen liberal and conservative policy statements tested, the highest agreement, over 70 percent, came on the proposition that "trade unions are essential to protect workers' interests" and "I personally would be willing to pay more in tax in order to pay for better public services, such as hospitals and schools."

That she could have done so much, while underlying social attitudes remained so unchanged, is both a tribute to her and a caution to those who talk glibly of "revolutions" engineered by the durable politicians of this decade.

she dominates this nation's politics and consciousness in a way that not even the strongest American president can hope to do

What is new in Pearce's argument is that the minimum wage encourages automation — "more machines" — on the one hand, and requires consumers to do more work for themselves — "self service" — on the other.

In the case of movie ushers, who began vanishing from theaters shortly after World War II, Pearce apparently would have us believe that it was a minimum wage of about 75 cents an hour and not the postwar onslaught of television that brought hard times to the motion picture industry.

It might be noted, by the way, that while the movies did go through a rough time when TV was making its initial impact on the country, there has been a noticeable turnaround in recent years with multiple screen theaters.

One such complex I visited in Florida had a dozen different shows under way with young ticket takers at the doors and half a dozen or more youthful attendants at candy and popcorn stands — many more kids earning the current $3-plus minimum than ever would have been ushering for a third of that 35 years ago.

Even so, I miss the movie ushers of my boyhood and the handy flashlights they carried. Especially when I stub my toe trying to find an empty seat in a dark theater.

System would have prevented oil spill

WASHINGTON — The Exxon Valdez oil spill on March 24 was a personal tragedy for James L. Baker. A decade ago, he developed the technology to prevent oil tankers from running aground. It was cheap and easy, but the federal government wasn't interested.

Baker, a retired navigation expert with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, proved to the Coast Guard that satellites could be used to alert ships when they were about to run aground or collide. His simple communications system could have warned the crew of the Exxon Valdez that the oil tanker was headed for a reef. There was no warning, and the tanker spilled 10.9 million gallons of oil into Prince William Sound — the largest oil spill in U.S. history.

Our associate Scott Sleek spoke with Baker at his home in eastern Maryland. In 1979, he had proposed the sea-going equivalent of an air traffic control system to be tested in three of the nation's busiest sea lanes — George's Bank off Cape Cod, the Santa Barbara Channel and Prince William Sound.

The federal government never pursued the plan and it was soon forgotten, by almost everyone except Baker. When he heard about the Exxon spill in Alaska, he was disheartened but not surprised. "We predicted this. We said it's an accident waiting to happen," he told us.

The tracking system became Baker's prize project after he retired from NASA in 1974 and opened a consulting business. He proposed equipping ships with computerized navigation equipment. The ships would transmit their position to a command center on the mainland. If a ship ventured off course, an alarm would be beamed from the command center to the satellite and back down to the ship. The system meant that someone besides the captain was making sure the ship stayed in safe waters. The command center could keep tabs on an entire coast, warning ships away from traffic and dangerous reefs.

Compared to the cost of cleaning up multiple oil spills, Baker's idea was a bargain — about $10,000 per ship for the equipment. Baker did not work up the figures for a fully operational system, but he estimated it would be inexpensive. The system would have used existing government or commercial satellites. (Exxon has already spent $95 million on the Valdez cleanup operation.)

Baker teamed up with NASA's Goddard Space Center to flesh out his idea, in addition to investing a substantial amount of his own time and money. In 1979, officials from Goddard and researchers at the University of Miami helped Baker demonstrate his idea. Using a NASA satellite, they proved the system worked by piloting a yacht through the Chesapeake Bay. Baker sailed the yacht, and the alarm sounded as soon as he ventured a quarter mile off course. More than 100 people watched from the temporary command station at Goddard.

The project caught the attention of Congress, and Baker testified before a congressional subcommittee in 1980.

Baker's associates at NASA remember the test, but we could find no one at the Coast Guard with a record of it. A spokesman told us that the Coast Guard has ongoing research into systems for tracking ships.

Ongoing research won't clean up Prince William Sound.

Stocks open higher

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened higher today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues following the release of the U.S. merchandise trade deficit report.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 10.44 Tuesday, was up 5.86 to 2459.31 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 498-288 among the 1,257 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Early turnover amounted to about 12,643,000 shares.

Before the market opened, the government said the U.S. merchandise trade deficit narrowed in March to $8.86 billion from a revised $9.82 billion in February. The latest figure was well below market forecasts of $10.2 billion and reflected a slight drop in imports of consumer goods. Analysts said it corresponded to the notion that economic growth is slowing.

Stock prices closed lower in active trading Tuesday after surging in the two previous sessions.

Dollar up on trade news

United Press International

The dollar was broadly higher today in early New York trading against all major foreign currencies after a better-than-expected report on the nation's trade picture for March. Trading was described as hectic.

The Commerce Department reported the seasonally adjusted U.S. merchandise trade deficit narrowed to $8.86 billion in March from a revised $9.82 billion in February on a customs value basis.

The February deficit originally was given as $10.50 billion, customs value.

On a seasonally adjusted basis, the government reported exports in March rose 7.4 percent to a record $30.78 billion.

Market analysts in New York said the report boosted the dollar across the board in early trading. The market had been expecting the trade report to come in around $10.2 billion.

Dropout

The only students exempted would be the 443 underage students who are held in state correctional facilities.

The state Department of Education estimated the bill would affect some 24,413 would-be drop outs. Paying for the education of those students would cost the state an estimated $71 million.

While Dawson supports at least trying the penalties for dropping out of school, he does admit that a more prudent use of time and effort would be in beginning drop out prevention programs as early as kindergarten.

"There are signs even at that age which point out the kids who will drop out. We see get to them as early as possible," Dawson said.

Peterson amended onto his bill a second provision allowing each school board to revoke the drivers license of any person under 18 who had dropped out or was chronically truant. A school board could make an exception for a student suffering from a family hardship.

The bill goes next to the full Senate.

expressway from the feeder roads.

"At a minimum, it is an inconvenience to the motoring public," he said. Beyond that, the plan poses an "expense of significant proportions to local government."

"It's certainly not what we wanted," Harold Webb, project manager of the I-4 corridor study, said about the city commission's possible rejection of the plan. The commission should meet with DOT to discuss alternatives before rejecting the study, he said.

Although he called the report flexible, Webb said, "A lot of engineering went into this study.

It's not easily understood just by reviewing the document," Sanford's "eleventh hour" criticisms could have been more constructive if offered when the city received documents explaining the plan in February, he said.

Simmons also agreed with Commissioner Whitey Eckstein's concern that the plan does not provide for parking for users of the high-speed light rail proposed to move parallel to I-4.

Eckstein said, "This could be something that gets thrust on us."

DOT commissioned the study from Polk County to Volusia County to map an improvement plan through 2010. The study, which was published in January, calls for additional lanes, parallel access lanes and new interchanges.

Robert Cortelou of DOT said the I-4 Ultimate Improvement Concept is "well beyond" the current DOT budget. "The intent of the study was just to determine what I-4 should be like in the future," he said.

Simmons asked the commission to adopt a resolution rejecting the study May 22, the night of a DOT meeting to discuss the study. DOT has invited the city to participate in the formal meeting in Orlando.

City Clerk Jan Donahoe said the commission has not directed a representative to attend the DOT meeting.

crossed and hundreds of employees have been laid off. Leins have been filed against the company for unpaid debts.

Operations for the Southeastern United States have been consolidated in Sanford.

"They have been a great corporate neighbor," said Parr. "Hopefully, by filing Chapter 11, they will be able to continue here, but if not, maybe somebody else will carry on in that plant."

Cardinal officials could not be reached, but a spokesman, reading the prepared statement, said the decision to file Chapter 11 was needed to continue operations. She said the company has tried to work with creditors in recent months to pay debts but actions by some creditors in recent months led to the Chapter 11 decision.

Current manufacturing and proper management will continue, the spokesman said. No further details were available this morning.

Local businessmen have complained during the last six months about Cardinal's unpaid bills. At least one local company, Conklin, Porter & Holmes Engineers, Inc. of Sanford filed three liens against Cardinal since January, totaling $36,782.

Some of the unpaid debts for professional engineering and survey work date back nearly one year.

Corporate officials have consistently blamed the Tax Reform Act of 1986 as the genesis of their problems. By removing many of the former tax shelters available to upper-middle-income earners, Cardinal's unique shared investment plan all but dried up, former officials said.

As a result of fewer Cardinal investors, needed by the company for seed money for their motel, apartment and condominium projects, thrifls have been unwilling to finance construction projects, officials have said.

In an effort to raise capital to pay creditors, Cardinal has begun selling their land holdings in addition to motel and apartment complexes.

Nickman

The crisis prevention team recently converged on Red Bug Elementary School following the death of kindergarten teacher Becky Carver. "We were there to help them deal with their grief," Nickman explained.

Another project she was involved in was the "75-25 Program." That committee laid the groundwork for high school guidance counselors to be able to spend 75 percent of their time working with troubled children.

"There was a time," Nickman said, "when we were spending more time on paperwork than we were counseling."

Nickman said the problems kids at Lake Mary experience are very much like those at other schools. "You name it, we see it," she said. "Parents, teachers, boyfriends, girlfriends, drugs, grief...all of it."

Nickman now is eligible for the statewide counselor competition. But, she said, she has not been very involved at that level because she is too active locally. "I don't want to spread myself so thin that I neglect my duties here," she explained.

In any event, she said, she is happy with what she's already achieved.

One of the things she likes best is working with a group of students from the same family. "I get to know them and their families," she said. "It's exciting."

Senate endorses FSX deal

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Senate endorsed the joint U.S.-Japanese deal to develop Japan's advanced FSX jet fighter, but said it wants some guarantees about the plane's production.

President Bush won a narrow victory Tuesday when the Senate rejected 52-47 an attempt to kill the deal. But by a veto-proof 72-27 margin, senators voted to add conditions to later negotiations on production of the plane.

Florida's senators split their votes on the issue, with Democrat Bob Graham voting against the deal, and Republican Connie Mack voting for it.

Japan refused to buy the U.S. built F-16, on which the FSX will be based, but agreed to a U.S. request for joint development and production of the plane. The United States is to get 40 percent of the development work on the six initial fighters, and about 40 percent of the work if the plane goes into production.

The Reagan administration negotiated the FSX pact. Responding to congressional concerns, the Bush administration refined the agreement.

At the request of Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., the Senate voted to require that the "memorandum of understanding" on the plane's production bans the transfer to Japan of sensitive engine technology and forbids the sale to third countries of the FSX or its major subcomponents.

Byrd's measure also asked, but did not demand, that the administration insist the United States gets no less than 40 percent — not approximately 40 percent — of the production work and the same minimum share of the spare parts and support equipment work.

Byrd's proposal was strenuously, but unsuccessfully, opposed by the Bush administration. Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas said it would "kill the FSX deal. ... If this should become law, this deal is dead."

Minimum wage bill faces veto

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Bush, heading today toward his first veto confrontation with Congress, was intent to carry out a vow to strike back at a legislative attempt to exceed his terms for increasing the minimum wage.

Bush was expected to use a speech to members of the American Retail Federation to reaffirm his determination to use the first veto of his presidency to kill a bill that has been a centerpiece of partisan debate.

Hours later, the Senate was scheduled to give final approval to the bill, setting the stage for an outcry by Democrats once Bush vetoes the proposed increase from $3.35 an hour to $4.55 an hour over a period of three years.

In sharp contrast to his emphasis on conciliation and consensus-building in other areas, Bush staked out a stubborn, non-negotiable position early in consideration of an increase in the minimum wage.

If the partisan votes by which the legislation carried the House and Senate is any guide, the strategy may well pay off. Neither chamber approved the increase by margins large enough to ensure an override of his veto.

While the all-but-certain veto fight comes at a time when Bush has been successful in bipartisan support in areas from foreign policy to the budget, White House officials are hopeful Congress will go back and pass a version that conforms to his demands.

"We feel we're on solid, defensible ground here," said one aide to Bush. "As popular as it may appear, the increase in that bill would be a threat to jobs and employment opportunities for just the people who need them."

Bush, in a break from the official position taken by the Reagan administration, announced his willingness during the presidential campaign last year to support a higher minimum wage — if tied to a sub-minimum "training" wage for new workers.

The Reagan administration had unsuccessfully promoted the sub-minimum wage as a mechanism to create jobs for teenagers and low-income Americans. The proposal was attacked by organized labor and other opponents as one that would only create a subclass of underpaid workers in entry-level jobs.

In March, Bush announced his support for an increase in the minimum wage to $4.25 over three years, with the proviso that the current $3.35 minimum hourly rate would remain in effect for new employees for up to six months.

Time and again, the White House described that proposal as his "first and last" offer.

ANTENNAS AND POWER LINES CAN BE A DEADLY MIX.

Ordinarily, power lines are quite harmless. But when you're putting up TV or CB antennas, keep them well away from power lines. Because if an antenna touches a power line, the combination could be deadly.

Always look up. Whether you're flying kites, picking fruit or pruning trees, or doing any activity that puts you in possible contact with overhead lines. Don't be a victim of your own carelessness.

Military dependents return from Panama

WASHINGTON — More than 200 U.S. citizens, some of them expressing frustration with Panamanian strongman Gen. Manuel Noriega, arrived back in the United States in the first airlift of Americans leaving Panama.

The 164 military dependents, 71 servicemen and three civilian employees of the Defense Department embarked from Panama on a government plane and were flown to Charleston International Airport in South Carolina, where they arrived late Tuesday.

The United States has offered to fly home any of the nearly 14,000 military dependents in Panama who want to leave the Central American country. The flights are not an evacuation, military officials said.

Bush appointee paid by GOP

WASHINGTON — William Lucas, President Bush's nominee as America's new civil rights chief, received $65,000 in consulting fees last year from the Republican National Committee — more than half his earnings — it was disclosed Tuesday.

Lucas's financial disclosure statement, filed with the Office of Government Ethics, also showed that he received another $25,000 from two companies whose leaders benefited from a contract he awarded while serving as the Wayne County, Mich., executive.

The statement showed that Lucas, whose nomination has drawn criticism from several civil rights groups who contend he lacks the experience needed for the job, served as a consultant advising the GOP on how to attract more minorities to the party.

Lucas, a black Democrat turned Republican who served as Wayne County sheriff and a GOP candidate for Michigan governor, could not be reached for comment.

Soviets to cut Eastern forces

Students, workers stage protest as Gorbachev speaks at Great Hall

United Press International

BEIJING — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, declaring Sino-Soviet "mutual alienation is now behind us," said Wednesday he was cutting Red Army troop strength in the Far East by 120,000 men and retiring 16 heavy combat ships from the Pacific fleet in the hope of easing tension in the region.

Gorbachev made the announcement during his keynote address to 550 "members of the Chinese public" on the third day of his historic summit with Chinese leadership at the Great Hall of the People in central Beijing.

The Soviet leader termed the first Sino-Soviet summit in 30 years "an important milestone" in diplomacy that ends years of bitterness and mistrust between the two communist giants.

"A long period of mutual alienation is now behind us," Gorbachev said. "Ahead is a future to build together."

As the Soviet leader spoke, hundreds of thousands of students and workers, demanding greater political freedom from the Chinese leadership, gathered outside in Tiananmen Square in the largest and most sustained protest in China since the 1949 communist takeover.

The demonstrations have disrupted the summit and caused an unprecedented and embarrassing loss of face for the status-conscious Chinese leadership. Wednesday, Gorbachev again had to be taken into the Great Hall through a side entrance to avoid protesters in the square.

Gorbachev, who Tuesday during his meeting with senior Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping referred to protesters in China and the Soviet Union as "hot-heads," expressed some sympathy with radical reformers in both countries, but warned change does not come overnight.

He also reminded the Chinese leadership that the Communist Party must keep control.

"Popular aspirations often run ahead of the reforms. It is well known that attempts to put history on a galloping course prove costly. But we cannot let things drift without control either in politics or in the economy. After a mechanism has been tuned up, it gains a momentum of its own," Gorbachev said.

"In a word, we need a well-considered and balanced strategy of change. And the role of the party assumes special importance in such circumstances," he said.

Gorbachev was to conclude his visit to Beijing Wednesday with a visit to the Great Wall and a news conference. He flies to the port city of Shanghai Thursday before returning home.

Panama opposition plans strike

United Press International

PANAMA CITY, Panama — With opposition leader Guillermo Endara out of the hospital following his beating by pro-Noriega forces, the government sought to diffuse a general strike called for today to protest voided presidential elections.

The release of Endara, beaten during an opposition rally last week by paramilitary forces, came as the United States Tuesday airlifted military dependants out of Panama, where a general strike was called to protest the fraudulent May 7 elections most observers say Endara won.

The strike was called to coincide with a special meeting of the Organization of American States foreign ministers in Washington to discuss the crisis surrounding Panama's de facto ruler, military chief Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

Hector Aleman, head of the pro-Noriega State Workers Union, said his group "will fully support any workers" who try to take over companies that refuse to open because of the scheduled strike.

In another tactic to undermine the strike, the government postponed pay day for state workers from Monday until today and announced it would pay a delayed quarterly bonus to its employees if they ignored the strike.

There was no centrally organized demonstration planned during the strike, but some opposition activists said they were asking supporters to demonstrate on sidewalks in front of their homes.

BRIEF

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Both races to close to call

The American League East is anybody's game. The problem is not only seems to want to win. The AL West is also tight, but there's a chance for a surprise in that race.

Tuesday night's results left the AL East without a team playing .500 and 11-2 games separating the seven clubs.

The American League East is ready to be held last year's champion Oakland first baseman Eric Robinson said after the Indians blew a six-run lead and lost 2-0 to Toronto.

The West, meanwhile, contains a three-way tie for first between Oakland, Kansas City and California and the last place Chicago White Sox are only one game out.

In other games, California topped Boston 7-2, Seattle edged Milwaukee 6-3, Kansas City routed Minnesota 8-1, New York edged Oakland 9-2 and Detroit outslugged Chicago 9-7.

NHL PLAYOFFS

Second game is key to Cup

MONTREAL — The last 50 years of Stanley Cup history show it's important to win Game 1 of the finals, but even more vital to capture Game 2 of the best-of-seven series.

This is not news to the Calgary Flames. In 1980 they beat the Canadiens in the opener at the Olympic Saddledome, but Montreal won the next four games to take its 23rd NHL championship.

The second game is always the key, said Calgary goaltender Mike Vernon, who sparked his team to a 3-2 victory Sunday night and will be back in the nets for Game 2 Wednesday night (8:05 p.m. EDT). We have to be pumped up for it. I've seen teams made of broken in second games.

Since 1939 just nine Game 1 winners have failed to go on to drink from the Cup. But only four Game 2 victors have wound up losers in the Championship series.

MISL PLAYOFFS

Karpun gives Sidekicks a lift

DALLAS — Mark Karpun kicked in two goals in the third period Tuesday night to lift the Dallas Sidekicks to a 4-1 victory over the San Diego Sockers and a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven MISL semifinal series.

The series returns to San Diego for Game 6 on Thursday and if the Sockers win, Game 7 Saturday.

Karpun scored the game's first goal 1:30 into the third period on an assist by Luis Luis Mokalis tied the score 1-0 into the third period on the only goal allowed by Dallas goalie Joe Lapadula, who made seven saves.

Karpun put in the game winner at 11:45 of the third on an assist by Michael King.

King and Marco Leite scored in the fourth period to seal the victory.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Kramer tosses one-hitter

Brookly Pirate pitcher Randy Kramer found out in only four major-league games what expert pitchers mean.

Kramer had a no-hitter through 7 2/3 innings in Pittsburgh's 5-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Tuesday night before Ron Oester skipped a double to left to end the no-hit bid. Oester had an idea what to look for from the 28-year-old pitcher.

I hit a changeup, Oester said. I was looking for it because that's what he'd thrown in earlier. When I got to second base, I just nodded at him and he nodded back.

Prior to the double, Kramer permitted only three Cincinnati batters to reach base, safely, one by a walk and two by errors.

Elsewhere in the National League, Chicago edged Atlanta 4-3, San Francisco pounded Philadelphia 13-3, San Diego downed Montreal 6-2 and Houston edged St. Louis 8-7 in 11 innings. Los Angeles at New York was postponed by rain.

NCAA bill passed 36-0

Universities could sue for fines, lost revenue

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The House of Representatives passed a bill Tuesday that would allow universities to sue for fines or lost revenue if they violate NCAA regulations.

The bill, H.R. 2580, passed by a 36-0 vote in the House. It was introduced by Rep. Steve Largent (D-Okla.) and passed in the Senate.

It would allow universities to sue for fines or lost revenue if they violate NCAA regulations.

This bill will have a good effect on these people who are thought of as the past, Bruner said in debate.

The bill follows numerous student protest sanctions imposed on colleges for violations of NCAA rules, including illegal recruiting and contracts with agents.

One such case involves Vernon Maxwell, the University of Florida basketball star accused of playing in the 1988 NCAA tournament after he signed with a pro agent. Because of the violation, UF loses both title of NCAA champion and earnings from the tournament.

State law already requires student athletes to inform university officials when they sign professional contracts. Failure can bring misdemeanor penalties for the student and felony sanctions for the agent.

The schools may also recover up to three times the amount they paid the students in athletic scholarships.

Bruner's bill would extend the law's grasp to boosters who hire prize athletes with cars, jobs or other illegal gifts. The schools could recover fines, forfeited earnings and lawyers fees.

Bruner, a former track and field coach at Florida State University, was asked in the debate if his bill was inspired by his own experience as a student athlete. He said it was not.

I wish I had been good enough to attract the sort of attention the NCAA would throw upon Bruner, said.

Oviedo's Juan Spelman signed a full scholarship offer on Monday to attend Central Florida Community College. Spelman, who posted a 2.19 earned run average for the Lions this year, tied for the county lead in strikeouts with Lake Mary's Alex Biele at 84.

Wilson gave Rozelle no choice but to bar him

CINCINNATI — The Cincinnati Bengals said Tuesday NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle had no choice but to bar fullback Stanley Wilson from the league for life.

Wilson, suspended from the past Super Bowl for drug abuse, was told by Rozelle last year that another drug incident would result in a lifetime ban.

"Stanley had broken the provisions the commissioner had set out time and time again," said Mike Brown, the Bengals' assistant general manager.

"This ends the administrative investigation and puts the matter behind us," he said. Last year, Indianapolis running back Tony Collins was barred for life after his third violation.

Wilson, who was found under the influence of drugs in his Miami hotel room on the eve of the Bengals' Super Bowl game against the San Francisco 49ers, may possibly be able to apply for reinstatement. However, NFL spokesman Joe Browne said that to be possible, Wilson must make "major changes" in his life.

Wilson, who entered a three-month drug rehabilitation program May 4 in Phoenix, had been given a final chance following an April 7, 1988 meeting that set strict guidelines for the running back. Cocaine problems caused the former Oklahoma player to miss the 1985 and 1987 seasons, and he was warned one more relapse could be the end of his NFL career.

"The surgery was extremely minor," John McVay, club vice president said. "He went in in the morning, got a 'scope', and went home that afternoon. It was not unusual. It was done to remove some little particles. Doctors found it to be uneventful; they did not see any problems." McVay said that Montana would have to miss next week's minicamp at Santa Clara.

Despite broken arm, Sullivan ready to return at Indy

United Press International

INDIANAPOLIS — Danny Sullivan, who suffered a broken right forearm in a practice crash received an arm brace Tuesday in preparation for his return to practice for the Indianapolis 500.

Sullivan, who also suffered a mild concussion last Thursday, must be examined by doctors before he can return to drive at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. A spokesman for Sullivan's team said Tuesday that those recovery laps would be made at the speedway.

Sullivan hoped to return to action Wednesday, but whether he will take the track is uncertain. Doctors have said normal recovery time for Sullivan's injuries is eight weeks. The 73rd Indy race is set for May 28.

Geoff Brabham, who has not raced at Indy in two years, has been preparing to qualify and race Sullivan's car if the 1985 Indy winner cannot return. Brabham qualified and Sullivan drives in the race, the car would move to the rear of the 33-car field no matter where Brabham would finish in this weekend's final qualifying sessions.

Although Roger Penske probably will decide before the last minute, the car owner could wait as late as race morning before deciding whether Sullivan or Brabham would drive.

Tom Birtford, chief steward of the speedway, said such decisions are usually made by Carburetion Day, the final race practice session conducted May 25.

"We would like them to tell us as soon as they know it," Birtford said. "I would figure we would know on Carburetion Day. But it has been done on the day of the race. I suppose they could do it before they line up, but I think they would want to know sooner than that."

Brabham reached a top lap of 217.443 mph Tuesday in a Penske Chevy backup car similar to those being used by pole-sitter Rick Mears and four-time winner Al Unser Sr., who are Sullivan's teammates on the Penske team.

"I'm just running around and getting myself comfortable," Brabham said. "I'm not getting the most out of it in the sense of going as fast as I can. I don't want to go out and do anything silly. It's just nice to get back in an Indy car, especially one of Roger Penske's cars."

Mears recorded the fastest lap of Tuesday's practice session, reaching 222.067 mph in Sullivan's Penske Chevy.

Slower cars struggled to find speed Tuesday, chasing the worst speed of the 26 qualified cars, a mark set by Dave Jones at 211.475 mph. Kevin Cogan was clocked at 211.336 mph. Phil Krueger reached 213.675 mph while John Paul Jr. reached 213.624 mph.

Three-time winner Johnny Rutherford reached a high for the month at 213.118 mph while 1985 pole-sitter Darby Carter reached 213.320 mph. Dominic Dobson, waiting for a new engine from the Cosworth factory, reached 212.014 mph.

something you'd take the family to."

The Red Sox third baseman is being sued by Margo Adams, whose attorney, James McGee, conducted the deposition in his California office. Boggs said he would not participate in additional depositions.

Adams is suing for breach of contract, saying Boggs broke an oral agreement to pay her lost wages for work missed and for financial services rendered. The suit was filed last May.

McGee said he planned to file charges alleging Boggs caused Adams emotional distress by telling the FBI she tried to extort $100,000 from him. The charges were dismissed by an appellate court earlier this year.

In an interview with Adams, The Boston Herald reported that Boggs testified Red Sox minority owner Hayward Sullivan encouraged him to file a criminal complaint with the FBI.

Jennifer King, Boggs's attorney, said McGee's plans were "laughed." He's just trying to generate publicity to go back in there," said King. "It's the same cause of action that was thrown out."

The Herald also reported that Boggs, who admitted to being a sex addict, had affairs with women before Adams and "one or two" sexual partners after their four-year relationship soured.

McGee said he might try to depose Boggs next month in Boston. King said she would seek a protective order if her client is subpoenaed.

Honor your father through our contest

SANFORD — Mom may adore roses and candy for Mother's Day. But Dad may have too many ties and socks already. Consider a unique honor for some terrific pop this Father's Day.

The Sanford Herald is searching for a father deserving of our annual Outstanding Dad title. We need our readers—whether kin or friend—to help by writing letters of nomination, to be reviewed by a panel of judges.

Judging will be based on the quality, rather than quantity, of letters; therefore, only one letter need be written per nominee. The letters should be specific—with examples, anecdotes and reasons—about why the father deserves to receive the title of Outstanding Dad.

Only residents of Seminole County are eligible to be nominated, but their nominators need not live in Seminole County. Only children of the nominees may nominate them.

Here's how to enter: Write us a letter about your nominee, telling us why this dad is special.

Letters should be typed or printed legibly. Write the nominee's name, street address, city and daytime phone number at the top of the page. Then write his qualifications or why he's outstanding. At the end of your letter, write your name, address, daytime phone number and age (if under 18). Mail to "Outstanding Dad," Sanford Herald, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford, FL 32771.

There is no maximum length limit on letters of nomination.

All entries are due at the Herald office by 1 p.m. on Wednesday, June 7.

The top three winners will be featured in the Father's Day edition of the Herald, Sunday, June 18, and will receive plaques.

'Suzie Homemaker' loves kitchen

By TERRI AMM
Herald correspondent

SANFORD — Is your kitchen a wreck? Do you feel pure dread when you know it's time to go in there and cook, again? Take heart. Our Cook of the Week is about to give you a substantial dose of motivation.

Brenda Owen of Sanford has raised five children (all girls, at that), worked full time for years, stayed active in civic organizations, cooked dinner nightly, and enjoyed it all. Organization, she said, has been the key to keeping her large household running smoothly.

She described herself as a "split personality." Employed by the Seminole County School Board as a personnel specialist, she said, "I love my job but at the same time I could be the epitome of Suzie Homemaker." She is proud to be a part of the work force, but family is still her top priority, she said, and cooking for them is one of her greatest joys.

"The secret to being a good cook is in loving to do it and enjoying the preparation. The rewards of appreciation make you want to get right back at it again," she said.

For Owen, enjoying the preparation means creating a pleasant working environment.

"When I walk into the kitchen, the first thing I do is draw up a pan of hot water," she said. She washes and dries the pots and pans as she finished with them, so that all she must deal with after the meal is eaten are the dishes on the table. "I've always had cheap child labor, as I call it," to help with that, she said.

She is a true Southern gal, Alabama born and Florida-bred. When she was 8 years old, her family left Selma, Ala., and joined her grandparents in Yee-Haw Junction, Fla. Soon afterwards they moved into Vero Beach, where they took over the operation of a large truck stop restaurant.

Owen spent the next 30 years in Vero Beach, and met and married her husband, Les, there. They moved to Sanford in 1981 when Les was transferred with his position as manager of the Rinker Material Plant.

Owen always wanted a large family, and she got her wish almost immediately when she and Les married 20 years ago. She had two daughters, Sharon and Lisa, from a previous marriage. Les' three daughters, Tracy, and twins Sandra and Susan, came for a visit from Kansas, where they were living with their mother, and never went back. At that time the girls' ages ranged from 4 to 8 years old.

Owen had her hands full and her wits about her. She said it she had a nickel for every time she scanned the group, literally counting heads, she'd be a millionaire today. In crowds at Disney World, on the beach, in the van after a pit stop, at the mall...she was ever on the alert, making sure her "brood was intact."

FOOD & NUTRITION

Tracy and Sharon now have husbands and live in Alexandria, Ky., and Vero Beach, Lisa also lives in Vero Beach, so only the twins are still at home. Owen said she misses the time when all seven of them were together every night for the evening meal, sharing the experiences of the day.

Owen ate her every meal in the family restaurant when she was growing up, so she never had hands-on cooking experience until her first marriage, she said. She learned by trial and error and describes herself today as "an old-fashioned Southern cook."

"The kids think I invented chicken and dumplings, fresh fried corn and cornbread. At work they look at me and think Peanut Butter Fudge or Banana Nut Cake," she said.

Her daughters have a unique way of prompting her to make the banana cake.

"Whether I buy 15 bananas or five, the kids will always leave three sitting there. They know I would never throw them out, and when they're way too ripe to eat, they're perfect for banana bread," she said.

Owen's "Cowboy Steak" did not enjoy such popularity. This was her name for liver, a food she felt was important to eat, but one that had to be cooked in great secrecy at the Owen household. If she raised the lid at the wrong time and one of the girls sniffled at Cowboy Steak, the word spread quickly. Neighboring families were scouted for dinner invitations, and the calls would start coming in—neighborhood moms saying they knew what was on the dinner menu at the Owens' that night.

The one prize she won for her cooking came about quite by accident, Owen said. The members of Beta Sigma Phi, a sorority she remains active in, were asked to participate in a Vero Beach Fair cooking contest. On short notice, and heavily dosed with Nyquil for a case of blarberies from the pantry and whipped up an old-fashioned cobbler with strips of dough on top, like she remembered her grandmother making. At the next sorority meeting she was presented with the blue ribbon and asked for the recipe. There was a slight problem: Owen had used no recipe and said she probably couldn't make another. Robbler taste the same if she had to! Embarrassment aside, she was proud of her prize.

Following are the recipes for some of Owen's specialties, including Peanut Butter Fudge (which she can make in 10 minutes), Banana Nut Cake, and Chicken and Dumplings. The Quick Dump Cobbler, she said, "is great for unexpected company. You can excuse yourself for 10 minutes to put on a pot of coffee and quickly stir this up and have it in the oven without even being missed."

PEANUT BUTTER FUDGE

3 cups sugar
1 stick butter
1/2 cup (small can) evaporated milk
Cook until soft ball stage (235°F), stirring occasionally.

1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 cup oil
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup mashed bananas (about 3)
3 tablespoons sour milk (or add 1 teaspoon vinegar to regular milk)
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup chopped nuts
Mix all ingredients together and bake in loaf pan at 350°F for 45 minutes. Makes 1 large loaf. Can be baked in shallow pan, but decrease baking time accordingly.

CHICKEN AND DUMPLINGS

2 cups plain flour
2 tablespoons shortening
1 teaspoon salt
Ice water
1 small chicken, boiled, with broth
Mix flour, shortening and salt, add enough ice water to make dough into consistency where it can be handled and kneaded several times. Throw a quick supper on to get out in your garden

We all have favorites that we use for quick suppers. Lately, I've been putting those recipes to good use simply because I want the evening meal out of the way so Bob and I can work in the garden—rose, herb or vegetable. The extended daylight and coolness of the evening make that time of day especially good.

MICROWAVE MAGIC
MIDGE MYCOFF

These quick supper dishes are satisfying, but not heavy, budget wise, and nutritious.

HOT TUNA SALAD

2 cups sliced potatoes
1 7-ounce can tuna, drained
1/2 green pepper chopped
1/2 cup each of celery, stuffed olives and water
1 teaspoon dried basil*
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup French dressing
1 3/4-ounce can French fried onion rings

Microwave potatoes, green pepper and celery with 1/2 cup water on 100 percent power for 5-7 minutes, or until tender. Add all other ingredients, except onion rings to potato mixture and microwave on 100 percent power 3-5 minutes, or until thoroughly heated. Stir in onion rings and allow to stand 2-3 minutes before serving.

*Double the amount if using fresh basil.

Casseroles and the microwave oven make the meal quick and the clean-up easy.

HOT CHICKEN DISH

3 cups cooked chicken, cut in bite-sized pieces*
2 cups celery, chopped
1 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons chopped onion

1 10 1/2-ounce can cream of chicken soup
1 4-ounce jar pimento pieces
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Salt and pepper to taste

Mix all ingredients together and place in 13 by 9 by 2-inch glass baking dish. Then top with:

1/2 cup melted butter
1 cup bread crumbs

Microwave on 85 percent power 10-12 minutes, or until casserole is hot and bubbly.

*Leftover turkey can be used instead of chicken.

Serve this beet rice combination with a green salad and fresh fruit or sherbet for dessert.

CHILI AND RICE DINNER

1 pound ground beef
1 cup chopped green pepper
1 cup chopped onion
1 large garlic minced
Water
1 16-ounce can whole tomatoes, chopped and drained to reserve liquid

1 15 1/2-ounce can tomato sauce
1 cup rice
2-3 tablespoons chili powder

In a 4-quart casserole dish, crumble ground beef, stir in green pepper, onion and garlic. Microwave on 100 percent power 4-6 minutes, or until beef is browned and onion is tender. Stir several times; drain. Add enough water to the reserved tomato liquid to measure 2 cups; add to beef and stir in remaining ingredients. Microwave on 100 percent power 6-8 minutes, reduce power setting to 50 percent and microwave, covered, 30-35 minutes, or until rice is almost tender. Let stand, covered, for 15 minutes before serving.

The taco is bypassing pizza as the nation's number one "ethnic" food, according to a recent survey reported in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association. This supper could be called a taco in a casserole.

TACO BAKE
1 1/2 pounds ground beef
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1 10-ounce can hot enchilada sauce
1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
1 15-ounce can pinto beans
2 1/2 cups crushed corn chips
1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
1 cup dairy sour cream

In a 3-quart casserole dish, crumble ground beef; add the onion and green pepper. Cover and microwave on 100 percent power 5-6 minutes, or until the meat is not longer pink. Stir several times during the cooking. Drain off excess fat. Stir in the enchilada and tomato sauces. Cover and microwave on 100 percent power 6-8 minutes. Stir once. Drain beans; stir beans, 1 cup of the corn chips and 1/2 cup of the cheese into the meat mixture. Cover and microwave on 100 percent power 6-8 minutes. Stir, then spread sour cream over top; sprinkle remaining chips and cheese over the top. Microwave just until the sour cream is hot—about 30-50 seconds.

Biased grandma is bad memory for her

DEAR ABBY: Your column about grandmothers who favor one grandchild over another reminded me of my own grandmother. I am 51 years old and will never forget my fourth birthday. My cousin and I shared the same birthday, and our mothers had planned a party for the two of us.

ADVICE
ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

My grandmother gave my cousin a set of dominoes and a large doll with blond hair. It was the most beautiful doll I had ever seen.

"I still recall thinking at that moment, 'Grandma doesn't like me.' To this day I can't remember ever having shared a hug or a kiss with her."

I opened my gift and found a piece of green corduroy yardage. Grandma said, "Your mother can make a dress for you out of this." I still recall thinking at that moment, "Grandma doesn't like me." To this day I can't remember ever having shared a hug or a kiss with her.

on my fourth birthday.

ROSE MARIE POWERS, OLYMPIA, WASH.

DEAR ROSE MARIE: Your grandmother must have been a medical miracle. One wonders how she could have lived for so long without a heart.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent letter to you signed "Wife of a Slob," she wrote, "There is a pile of his clothes a foot high on our bedroom floor." Then she wrote, "It's been there for two months." Abby, who's the slob? She asked you, "What should I do?" You should have replied,

More Germans kidnapped

United Press International

SIDON, Lebanon — One of three West German relief workers kidnapped by masked gunmen was quickly released, but the fate of the remaining captives was unknown today, militia officials and a witness said.

Petra Schnitzler, 26, told a news conference about three hours after her release Tuesday that she and two colleagues from the Asme-Humanitas relief organization were driving in a two-car convoy when masked gunmen cut them off near the southern port of Sidon, 24 miles south of Beirut.

Three men with automatic weapons jumped from one of two cars that intercepted the convoy and forced Schnitzler into the trunk of a Mercedes while her colleagues, Heinrich Struebig and a relief worker identified only as Thomas, were put in the car's back seat.

Schnitzler said militiamen from a small fundamentalist organization, called the Islamic Group, freed her after the gunmen switched cars with their hostages.

"I do not accuse any faction of carrying out the kidnapping," said Schnitzler, whose clothes were stained with dirt. "I will call the headquarters of my organization in Germany and tell them what happened."

Schnitzler, who also was kidnapped May 4 with Struebig and another West German relief worker, Markus Quint, said she does not want to leave Lebanon despite the kidnappings.

Schnitzler and Struebig were released 6 hours after the first kidnapping, and Quint was held for 10 days.

Officials from the Nasrallah People's Liberation Army, a Sunni Muslim militia group that controls Sidon, had earlier said four German workers were kidnapped Tuesday while driving to the Shitite district of Zahran south of the city where ASME maintains its headquarters.

The militia officials said said Quint was among those kidnapped Tuesday, but Schnitzler told reporters she was not with the group taken in the most recent incident.

Shitite Amal militia chief Nabih Berrri, who helped arrange Quint's release, had said Sunday there should be no further kidnappings in southern Lebanon.

Hammadi gets life sentence

United Press International

FRANKFURT, West Germany — Lebanese militant Mohammed Ali Hammadi was convicted today and sentenced to life in prison for hijacking a TWA airliner in 1985 and participating in the killing of a U.S. sailor aboard the flight.

The parents of Navy diver Robert Dean Stethem, Patricia and Richard Stethem, of Port Tobacco, Md., sat silently facing Hammadi in the high-security courtroom as Presiding Judge Heiner Mueckenberger delivered his judgments at the end of one of the few trials ever of an international hijacker.

As Mueckenberger recalled the defendant's troubled life in Beirut, the 5-foot-2 defendant, his beard neatly trimmed, sat with his eyes downcast behind two walls of bullet-proof glass in the courtroom at Frankfurt's Preungelsheim maximum security prison, built at the cost of $6.6 billion.

The judge acknowledged that Hammadi had participated in many battles, notably as part of the Shitite Amal militia fighting for power in Lebanon, and had suffered head injuries.

The trial of Hammadi, accused of murdering Stethem during the June 1985 hijacking of TWA Flight 847, was one of the lengthiest and costliest in West Germany, and generated worldwide interest since publication of a book and airing of a U.S. television movie on the subject.

"The accused is found guilty of collective murder in connection with air piracy, hostage-taking and causing serious bodily harm as well as the illegal import of explosives in one case while using forged documents," the judge ruled. "He is sentenced to life-long imprisonment as a total sentence."

"The hijackers had used the utmost brutality," said the judge, who praised Stethem as "a model U.S. soldier — tall, strong, good looking and soldier-like in his deportment."

"He was less ready than other passengers to yield to the hijackers," the judge said.

U.S. meets with Palestinians

United Press International

JERUSALEM — Prominent Palestinians told U.S. officials that Israel's plan for peace in the occupied lands is a "step backward" because it includes neither talks with the PLO nor creation of an independent Palestinian state.

The first meeting of its kind Tuesday since the Cabinet on Sunday approved Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's peace proposal came as soldiers shot to death a 13-year-old Palestinian and another Arab in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Palestinian sources said soldiers also shot and wounded at least 10 other Palestinians in the Gaza Strip in the latest confrontations in the Palestinian uprising against Israeli occupation. At least 457 Palestinians and 17 Israelis have been killed during the 17-month-old uprising.

The military also continued an indefinite curfew imposed on Gaza late Monday and enforced orders to prohibit Gazans from working in Israel.

The five Palestinians taking part in the talks with the visiting State Department delegation protested the arrest Tuesday of Ghassan al-Khatib, a member of their group who was to participate in the discussion.

U.S. sources said the American Embassy was told al-Khatib was arrested for "security reasons."

Sari Nusseibeh, a lecturer at Bir Zeit University, said al-Khatib's detention was an "attempt to sabotage" the U.S.-Palestinian meeting.

Cortisone is not best treatment for neuritis

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 64 and have had back pain for 23 years. My physician gave me a cortisone shot and I was eventually told I had arthritis. Recently a neighbor suggested neuritis and I appear to have all the symptoms. Is there anything I can take to help me?

DEAR READER: Neuritis means swelling and inflammation of a nerve. This can result from infection of the nerve or nerve pinching from adjacent structures. For example, spinal osteoarthritis is a common condition in patients over 60 and is marked by calcium deposits on the spinal bones (vertebrae). These deposits may cause pressure on certain nerves, with resultant pain, weakness and tingling. Technically, this is a type of neuritis — so, in fact, you may have neuritis from your arthritis.

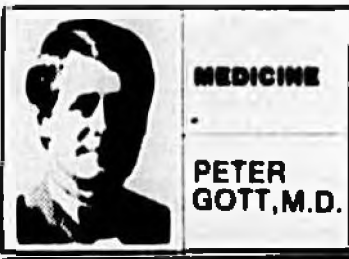

In my experience, cortisone injections are rarely helpful in this situation because, although they may temporarily lessen pain and discomfort by reducing swelling, they do nothing to cure the basic problem, which is calcium deposits. Other treatment to improve symptoms would include special exercises, a back brace and anti-inflammatory drugs, such as ibuprofen. A course of physical therapy may reduce symptoms. In severe cases, surgery (to remove the offending calcium deposits) may be necessary.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 80-year-old brother is having a problem with his vision. His doctor says this is a retinal problem. Can surgery help? Will he go blind?

DEAR READER: Elderly people are affected by many visual problems that involve the retina, the thin layer of light-sensitive photoreceptors at the back of the eye.

Retinal degeneration is such an affliction: It is due to the age-related build-up of irritating waste products in the retina, leading to wrinkling, atrophy (shriveling) and malfunction of this light-sensitive tissue. Retinal degeneration is usually associated with spotty overgrowth of tiny retinal blood vessels (neovascular proliferation), which further reduces vision. In some cases (but by no

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
Although the word "unnatural" may have negative connotations, an unnatural bridge play can sometimes be a winner.

When the 10 of clubs was led against four hearts, declarer could see that East would have an automatic spade shift after winning the club ace. That would not be to declarer's liking, so he made the unnatural play of allowing the club 10 to win the trick. West now switched to a spade. Declarer won the queen and played a diamond toward dummy. West grabbed the ace and continued with the spade king. South won the ace, played to the diamond queen and led the king of clubs. After ruffing the ace of clubs, declarer cashed the heart ace and then played the king of diamonds. If West ruffed with the heart king, a spade would be shed from dummy. If West ruffed with the 10, declarer would overruff in dummy and play good clubs while sluffing his spade loser.

What if West plays low when declarer plays toward the queen of diamonds? Declarer wins the queen, ruffs out the ace of clubs, cashes the ace of hearts and leads a low diamond. Once again the defense is helpless.

To defeat the contract, East must counter one unnatural play with another. Let East take the ace of clubs at trick one, even though dummy has not covered, and lead back a spade. The defense will now quickly take at least four tricks, and probably five when declarer puts in the spade queen to try and make the contract.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Ouel
YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 18, 1989

In the year ahead you are likely to be much more ambitious than you have been in the past. You're not likely to feel fully satisfied until you achieve success in two areas simultaneously.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your concentration level might not be up to par today and this could cause your work to suffer. Keep your mind focused on what you're doing at all times. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do. Mail 82 to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 81428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may have to be extra careful today in any matters that pertain to your personal resources. Think twice before taking gambles or speculating.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today you might find yourself all alone out front championing an unpopular cause. It may be wise to drop the matter temporarily until you have proper back-up.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A problem with which you may have to contend today might be of your own doing. It will only contribute to the complications if you try to pass the buck.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There are indications that you might be too extravagant and loose with your funds for your own good today. Your behavior could invite someone devious to take advantage of you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you submit to inclinations to scatter your forces thinner than you should today, nothing too productive is likely to result from your efforts. Keep your strengths intact.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't attempt to bluff your way through today by pretending you're knowledgeable about something you're not. Be smart and say as little as possible.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your curiosity could tempt you to poke your nose in something today that actually doesn't concern you. Be prepared to take the consequences if you decide to butt in.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Usually you are a rather independent individual who does things independently. Today, however, you're made of operation is apt to be determined by outside factors.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Today you might have to deal with a heavier workload than usual and you will also have to be careful not to let your assignments pile up. If you fall behind, it'll be hard to catch up.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Do not let your peers pressure you into doing something today that your better judgment tells you does not serve your best interests. You may later regret it if you do.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's best not to make any major domestic decisions today if your mate isn't present or, at the least, fully consulted as to what you have in mind.
