Foster Home Volunteers Needed For Abused Kids

Herald Stalf Writer

Seminole County has an urgent need for adults to provide emergency shelter and foster care for severely abused children, a spokesman with the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services said.

Dee McDonald, a case worker in the HRS office at the Seminole County Juvenile Detention Center, said emergency shelter and foster care is at a premium in Seminole County.

The children being housed are the victims of lifeendangering neglect, sexual or physical abuse or medical neglect. Ms. McDonald said.

The local HRS office is connected to a state child abuse hotline and case workers are on duty 24 hours a day. When a call comes in a worker begins immediately to take action which may result in the child being removed from the home,

She said many people, including doctors and neighbors, report abuse. When a call comes in, the HRS worker gathers whatever information is available about the child and his family and then visits the home to check on the abuse allegations.

"Nobody welcomes us with open arms," Ms. McDonald said of the job which sometimes takes her into threatening situations. "But I'm never afraid when I go up to their door." The case workers must sometimes talk a parent down from a

"whether it's a risk to put the child back in the home." Thirty days after the first hearing a second court appearance is required. At that point a judge determines whether the child is placed in foster care or returned to the family under HRS monitoring.

Ms. McDonald said many cases of child abuse occur because parents don't know any other means of coping with frustrations caused by their children.

"No one wants to be a bad parent," she said. "They're very amenable to education.'

However, case workers get an emotional lift from helping the individual children who have been victims of abuse. "It has its moments. I go from being high to being

County May OK Center Design

Seminole County commissioners Tuesday are expected to approve a contract for the design of a new $1.95 million health clinic in Sanford.

The contract calls for the county's architect, Helman Hurley Charvat Peacock-Architects of Winter Park, to be paid $107,250 for design of the 30,000square-foot clinic.

An 8.7-acre parcel along Airport Boulevard near the Zayre Plaza in Sanford was recently acquired by the county from Geraldine C. Kirk for $167,910.

Under terms of the contract, the architect will visit the site twice a week during construction of the new clinic at a cost of $11,200 to the county. Furnishings and interior design for the clinic already have been approved contract for $12,000.

The county also could receive a savings of $4,125 in architect's fees if the bid price on the clinic is $1.8 million. The county receives a discount if the price is under the $1.95 million projected for the

If the low bid exceeds $1.95 million, the architect will redesign the drawings and rebid the project until it comes under Commissioners have been looking for a new home for the health clinic for some time. The existing clinic on French Avenue (U.S. Highway 17-92) is inadequate to meet growing demands, health department officials say.

A search committee had examined a site adjacent to the county's Five Points complex but it was rejected because it appeared to be too far from 25th Street, which is considered the optimum location for a new clinic as that area is considered closest to the greatest number of clients.

Another site adjacent to Zayre Plaza was rejected because the parcel was an odd shape and would have been difficult to develop. Dr. Jorge Deju has told commissioners the 30,000-square-foot building will be sufficient to meet the clinic's needs through 1990.

But the county's consultant on space, Walter H. Sobel of Chicago, claims the clinic will require an additional 10,000 square feet by 1990.

No construction date has yet been set for the project. Construction is expected to take about 10 months to complete.

The strike was called by the Independent Truckers Association to protest the Reagan Administration's 5-cent gasoline tax hike and increased highway use fees to go into effect April 1. A spokesman for the association said the strike is jelling slowly.

Out-of-state based independent truckers interviewed here recently at Farmer's Market on French Avenue (U.S. Highway 17-92) said they sympathized with the strike and would park their vehicles out of fear of repraisals from other truckers, especially in the northern states and in Alabama. An early determination of how many truckers joined the protest was impossible. A strike leader said 100,000 were expected.

Many drivers said they would join to avoid the violence that marked a 1979 strike. Authorities in some areas increased highway patrols to prevent attacks on non-striking drivers. Many truckers were waiting to see if the strike gains momentum or if a legislative remedy can be found.

The early effects of the strike were subtle with a sampling of truck stops saying business was normal or only slightly slower than usual but ITA national president Mike Parkhurst said he had reports of drivers heading home right after midnight. By MICHEAL BEHA Herald Staff Writer

It may soon be easier for residents of poorly maintained dirt roads in Seminole County to get lasting relief for their pothole problems.

Seminole County commissioners are considering a change in the county's road improvement assessment ordinance which would drop the number of signatures required on petitions for county help on road paving projects.

The amendment would drop the number to 51 percent of the residents of a region, down from the present 66 2-3, according to Public Works Director Jack

"There are some roads in Rolling Hills, Myrtle Lake and District 5 (the northern part of the county) where we spend a significant amount of money," Schuder

Schuder said the cost of paving some high maintenance rouds is cheaper than maintenance costs over a period of years. The county must pay equipment and labor each time a grader is sent down a poorly drained road.

"There are some roads that you know, every time it rains, you're going to have to go out and fix them," he said.

The county already has a program which allows residents to pay for paving of their roads. But the program has been used only twice since 1978 because of the high costs involved.

Earlier this year, Schuder recommended splitting the costs, with the county paying a third to a half of the costs

Schuder originally presented a new ordinance to commissioners, replacing the old one which allowed residents to pay for the costs themselves.

But County Attorney Nikki Clayton said the existing ordinance already provides for the county to chip in to for a portion of the costs if the work is judged necessary.

Commissioner Sandra Glenn feels that paving dirt roads could significantly reduce maintenance costs.

"It could be a way of beginning to correct problems in Rolling Hills and other areas," she said in a Jan. 4 work

The state has granted Seminole County Commissioner Robert G. "Bud" Feather a certificate of need for his planned $18 million 'life care' center, but he wants the city of Sanford to grant him a one-year extension for developing the facility. Commissioners were noncommittal today concerning Feather's request, saying that the fact that his certificate of need has been granted will be an influencing factor on their decision.

A spokesman for the Community Medical Facility office of the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services today confirmed the certificate of need was granted Friday for Feather to have 60 nursing home beds at his proposed facility, 30 beds for residents of the center and 30 beds for non-center residents.

The certificate calls for the facility to be under "continuous construction by Jan. 27, 1984."

Meanwhile, Feather has asked the Sanford City Commission for a year delay on beginning development of the life-care center until March 1, 1964. State officials said today that it's possible an extension on the certificate of need could be granted, but there is no guarantee.

Four Sanford city commissioners said today the fact that Feather has been granted the certificate will be an influencing factor on their decision on Feather's request.

purchased the property from the city. Feather's acquisition was approved by the city commission. The commission in the original sale included conditions in the sales agreement.

The sales agreement calls for construction to begin by a certain date and conclude within a "reasonable" time. If the conditions aren't met, the city has the right to buy back the property for $117,000.

The deadline for Feather to begin construction is only a month away - March 1.

Feather asked the commission last week to extend the deadline for construction to March 1, 1984, and to remove the reverter clauses from the contract. Feather's attorney said the reverters make it nearly impossible to get financing for the project. The commission delayed until Feb. 15 a decision on

Feather said today he hasn't been officially notified by the state that his application was approved.

He said the certificate will allow him to begin first-phase construction of the project with 400 apartment units and a 60bed nursing unit. Although he had originally planned to have 120 beds for nursing care, he said today he doubts he will ever need more than the 60 which were certified.

Commissioner Milton Smith said while the state certificate will influence his decision on Feather's request to a certain extent, "my main concern is that we need to get someone on that property who is ready to build and can build as soon as possible.

"We let Feather have that property for a very reasonable price. The city is not realizing anything out of the property. If we procrastinate too long, we won't be doing the taxpayers

Mayor Lee P. Moore who told Feather last week the commission already had walked the extra mile to cooperate, said,

"The key to the thing is whether the 60 beds will support the project Feather is planning. I will know that before the next commission meeting." Moore added he doesn't feel Feather has performed the way he said he would. "The commission as a group doesn't realize how important this certificate is and I don't think Feather did anything to impress the importance on them. "When Feather started this mess, he made all kinds of promises. He asked me whether he should appear before the commission to keep them informed. I told him just to write letters. The letters have been few and far between," the mayor

Feather and his attorney noted to the commission last week that it would take as much start-up time as Feather is requesting if the city bought the property back and sold it to another developer.

Moore said today that Feather's statement is probably true. "The city wants something built on that property and that factor will probably be the basis of any decision that is made. Commissioner Ned Yancey said he really hasn't given the matter consideration.

Keith said the granting by the state of the certificate of need will have a great deal to do with his decision. He added that the certificate shows that there is a need for a nursing facility in this area. "But I'm not convinced that everything is all right

IN BRIEF

Treasury Secretary Regan Says July Tax Cut Needed

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Treasury Secretary Donald Regan insists the third year of the administration's tax cut, slated to come July 1, must be preserved to ensure the economic growth he cautiously predicted.

But Regan conceded he has "no tangible evidence" that the most severe recession since World War II has

"Were we not to have the tax cut come July 1, we're going to take an awful lot of money out of the economy and give it to the federal government," Regan said. "I would much rather have that in the hands of consumers and savers and that what we intend to do."

House Democratic leader Jim Wright Saturday proposed postponing or repealing the tax cut, saying the reduction "doesn't make any sense" in the face of record budget deficits that, by Reagan's own projection, will be $206 billion this year.

Kissinger: Hussein's The Key

WASHINGTON (UPI)-Henry Kissinger said today what is needed to revive the peace process in the Middle East are "new players" from Arab countries, particularly Jordan's King Hussein.

The former secretary of state agreed with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak who said time is running out for a settlement of the problems in the Middle East.

Klasinger said what is needed now is for an Arab negotiator to "step forward to negotiate with the Israelis and that has to be King Hussein (of Jordan). One can make all kinds of abstract plans on the West Bank, but until King Hussein steps forward there's

Reagan Says Spending Plan Will Lead To Better Times

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan starts in earnest a battle in Congress over today sent Congress his proposed $848.5 billion 1984 budget, saying many Americans will find it "strong medicine" but arguing it will lead to better economic times.

Reagan proposed $558 billion in cuts in projected federal spending over the next five years, much of the saving to be achieved by slashing the growth of Social Security,

Medicare and other social welfare programs. Formal transmittal of the budget — whose details already had been widely leaked -

Congress now will draft its own budget - a preliminary one in May and a final version in September - and this, rather than Reagan's, is the budget that will count.

"We have learned that the problems we inherited were far worse than most inside and out of government had expected," Reagan said in his message to Congress accompanying the budget.

"The recession was deeper and longer than most inside and out of government had predicted. Curing these problems has taken more time and a higher toll than any of us wanted. Unemployment is far too high."

But, he said, "The stage is set; a recovery to vigorous, sustainable, non-inflationary economic growth is imminent." His proposals, he argued, "set the budget on a path that is consistent with long-term economic recovery.

The budget projects a federal defatt of $189 billion in 1984 — the year Reages originally predicted during his campaign would see the budget in balance.

Each of the four main themes in the president's budget already have been challenged by members of Congress from both parties. These include:

-Reagan's so-called "spending freeze." Overall federal expenditures would increase in 1964 no more than the rate of inflation. To achieve this, cost of living increases for Social Security and other federal beneficiaries would be delayed six months, federal civilian and military pay frozen, a large group of nondefense programs would be subject to their own freeze, although some would get increases, others cuts.

"I know this is strong medicine," Reagan said, "but so far we have cut only the rate of increase in federal spending."

-A proposed $228 billion in savings over five years through "reforms" in benefit programs, which Reagan sald are the biggest cause of rising deficits. High-priced health insurance, paid for by employers, would be taxed. Some 30 million Medicare recipients would have to pay more for short hospital stays in return for roughly $7 billion.

better coverage of more costly illness. Medicare and Medicaid recipients would have to pay more for doctor bills. Welfare applicants would have to prove they looked for work before collecting checks. Reagan again said the "truly needy" would not be turned away.

National defense would get a $55 billion increase over the next five years. In 1984 it would receive $238.6 billion, a $30 billion increase over 1983 but $8 billion less than had been projected. Reagan said in his message, "We will not gamble with our national survival."

-Proposed "standby" taxes that would go into effect in 1986 if the federal deficit passes a certain level, provided Congress has approved other parts of the program and provided the recession is over. These would be a 1 percent income tax surcharge and a $5-a-barrel oil excise tax, which could boost gasoline 12 centsa-gallon en top of the nickel-a-gallon increase passed by the last Congress. These would total $146 billion over three years. Reagan also called in his message for ways to "simplify the

All these were designed to reduce the federal deficit from its record $208 billion this year to $117 billion by 1968.

Without these measures - or their equivalent — the deficit is projected to rise to $300 billion by 1988, which the administration and outside economists agree would raise interest rates, choke off economic recovery and use up private savings needed for investment to make U.S. business more competitive worldwide.

Democrats in Congress want to restore cuts in social programs and add job programs. Senate Majority leader Howard Baker has talked of cutting Reagan's military request by

NATIONAL REPORT: A string of storms threatened California again today, where 10 days of wind-driven rains caused $100 million in damage, killed 12 people and forced 2,000 people to flee from their homes. Snow spread across much of the northern portion of the nation, icing highways from Kansas to eastern New York and piling up a half foot of snow in some areas. Forecasters said the storms heading for California were not expected to be as severe as the four back-to-back thrashings that swept the state in the past 10 days, pounding the Pacific Coast with giant waves. The central mountains of Arizona were covered with 8 inches of new snow Sunday in the Hawley Lake area and 2 inches in McNary. Snow also spread scattered from Idaho across Wyoming and Utah through Minnesota to northern Indiana, with up to 4 inches forecast for Upper Michigan. Between 3 to 4 inches of snow coated north central and southeast Nebraska. Parts of extreme southern Vermont reported up to 3 inches of mow and 2 inches fell at Albany and North Creek, N.Y. Up to 5 inches of snow was predicted for eastern New York and state police reported numerous fender-bender accidents caused by slippery roads. Heavy snow blanketed northern Kansas, dumping 6 Inches in Belleville and Marville, 3 inches in Concordia and Russell and 2 Inches in Fort Riley. South central Kansas was under a winter storm watch through Tuesday. California officials said the four storms that pounded the state last week caused up to $100 million damage, killed 12 people, damaged 3,528 homes and 539 businesses and forced evacuation of an estimated 2,000 people. Most of the people had returned to their homes by early

While the 1984 budget to be presented by President Reagan will put the federal government deeper in the hole than ever before, it will be continuing

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan presented Congress today with a $238.6 billion Pentagon budget that retains the momentum of his massive arms buildup without sacrificing a single major weapon.

Proposed defense spending for fiscal 1984 accounts for one-fourth of the federal budget. The requested record outlay for the year beginning Oct. 1 emphasized a continuing boost in combat readiness and strengthening strategic nuclear forces, with $13.5 billion sought for the MX missile and B-1B bomber

"We think it's fully justifiable," Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Sunday of his budget - $30 billion above the $208.9 billion in outlays approved by Congress last year, a 10 percent increase.

The total proposed defense budget is $274.1 billion, with $238.6 billion to be spent during fiscal 1984 only. The remainder is money allocated in one year but spent over several years as installment payments on major weapons programs.

The $274.1 billion figure, 28 percent of the total federal budget and 6.8 percent of the nation's Gross National Product, represents about $1,200 for every man, woman and child

The budget "represents a realistic reassessment of our present and future military capabilities in the face of the growing (Soviet) threat and provides for controlled budget growth in future years," the Pentagon

In the third budget presented as part of Reagan's long-range plan to "rearm America," the Pentagon was one of the few government agencies to escape spending cuts as the president tries to trim record federal

Weinberger, under ground rules of a briefing that could not be reported for 24 hours, said the budget reflects the "twin priorities of readiness and to start acquiring the strength we need for strategic recovery" from slippage to the Soviet Union during the 1970s.

Told of possible attempts in Congress to cut $25 billion, Weinberger said such a reduction would mean canceling nearly all major weapons already ordered or in this year's budget - two nuclearpowered aircraft carriers, the MX, Trident submarine and Air Force and Navy fighters.

"That will leave us with a fine, ill-equipped group of Americans," he said.

The $55 billion in defense trimming between 1964 and 1968 Reagan announced Tuesday in his State of the Union address last week largely is a paper reduction - none of it affecting weapons purchases, training, operations or research and development. Of that total, Weinberger said, $18.3 billion will come from elimination of proposed military and civilian pay raises, $29.2 billion will result from scaling down original inflation savings in lower-than-estimated fuel prices. "We do not wish to make reductions in major weapons system that we have made already," Weinberger said.

estimates, and $5.5 billion will come from

As announced three weeks ago, he did cut $8 billion in outlays from the budget, saving $4.9 billion by freezing retirement pay and the salarles of the Pentagon's 2.1 million uniformed personnel and another 1 million civilian employes. The remainder resulted from lower fuel price and inflation estimates.

"However, we are providing a pay raise in fiscal year 1985," the Pentagon said. Officials said it would be a 3.9 percent hike, equal to the current rate of inflation.

IN BRIEF Outlaws Go On Trial For Multiple Offenses

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) - Under the strictest security in recent memory in Jacksonville, 14 Outlaws motorcycle gang members are to be tried for the next six to eight weeks on charges ranging from murder to witness intimidation.

The trial, stemming from a five-year federal investigation, starts today in the Duval County Courthouse. The proceeding was transferred to the courthouse, which has a direct passageway from the county jail, from the normal location for federal trials in U.S. Post Office Building.

The indictment charges murder, attempted murder, prostitution, extortion, drug distribution and witness intimidation.

The Outlaws have 35 chapters in the United States and Canada, with a nationwide membership of about 1,200. They are the largest biker gang in the country, outnumbering the Hell's Angels by nearly two to one.

Shuttle Launch In March

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) - Space agency officials are hoping to launch the space shuttle Challenger in March now that technicians have located a three-quarter-inch-long crack that has grounded America's second spaceplane.

NASA spokesman Hugh Harris said the tiny crack apparently caused the hydrogen leak that has twice delayed Challenger's maiden flight.

The launching of Explorer I on Jan. 31, 1958 from Cape Canaveral was America's answer to the Soviet Union's two Sputnik satellites, which were sent into orbit in October and November of 1957.

The satellite transmitted data back to earth until May 1958 when its batteries failed. It remained in orbit until March 1970 when it was destroyed on re-entry into the atmosphere.

Bush Traveling Europe To Push For NATO Unity

BONN, West Germany (UPI) - Vice President George Bush entered talks with West German leaders today, pledging U.S. commitment to "genuine arm: reduction" and invoking post-war U.S. aid to Europe as a rallying cry for NATO solidarity.

Bush said Sunday he was on a "mission to maintain the peace" - a 13-day, seven-nation tour of western Europe to shore up allied unity against Soviet efforts to block NATO's planned deployment of U.S. nuclear missiles this year. Washington is anxious that Bonn stick by the NATO plan to deploy 572 new U.S. cruise and Pershing-2 medium-range missiles in Europe this year unless the Soviet Union destroys its missiles targed on western

'Airport Bomber' Suspect In Bank Heist

ORLANDO (UPI) - A man who threatened to explode a bomb in the Orlando International Airport told police he "didn't want to shame his family anymore."

Steven Smith, 23, of Fort Lauderdale, is a suspect in a South Florida bank robbery last week but police said Sunday he previously had only a "minor" criminal record.

Smith surrendered to police Saturday after holding authorities at bay in the airport's main terminal for four hours with a blue flight bag that he said contained a bomb. No explosives and no weapons — only clothing — were found in the bag, police said.

Smith was charged by Orlando police with making threats and making a false bomb report.

Smith's only previous arrest was on a 1981 trespassing charge in Dade County and on a credit card forgery charge in Pompano Beach in 1981, said James Bishop, Orlando Police Department spokesman. Smith, who has no listed occupation, was convicted of the forgery charge and placed on probation.

But Smith is one of three people suspected in last Wednesday's robbery of a Lauderdale-by-the-Sea bank, said Perry Doran, spokesman for Orlando's FBI office.

FBI agents searched for the other two suspects from Fort Lauderdale - Eddie Tatton, 24, and Heather Holland, 25 - but have not located them, said Doran.

Smith told investigators he came to Orlando after the bank robbery with a man and a woman and said the trio stayed at several motels in southwest Orlando, police sources said.

"Steve told me he didn't want to go to jail and he didn't want to shame his family any more," said John Chisari, a police negotiator who talked with Smith for 312 hours. "I told him his mother loves him and he talked with his mother on the telephone. It kind of calmed him down a little bit."

Throughout the ordeal, Smith made no demands, Chisari

Bond was set at $2,500 on the bomb-threat charges. But the FBI, which plans to charge Smith with bank robbery this week, requested that Smith remain a prisoner in a maximumsecurity cell in the Orlando Municipal Justice Building until those charges are filed, Bishop said.

Smith, wearing a windbreaker, white T-shirt and blue jeans, perched on a fourth-floor ledge inside the airport's main terminal Saturday afternoon. He kept one hand inside the flight bag throughout negotiations.

At first, Smith said he simply wanted to jump. But police talked him out of jumping and eventually persuaded him to

"I told him by giving himself up, it would be a lot easier," said Chisari.

More than 2,500 travelers were evacuated from the main terminal and 3,500 others were "packed like sardines" at two outlying terminals nearly a half-mile away from where Smith talked with police, said an airport spokesman.

Food, drink and toilet paper ran low in the satellite terminals where incoming passengers were detained.

Incoming flights arrived on schedule and about 100 departures left on time during the emergency without their Orlando passengers, said Bill Wilken, an airport operations supervisor. Traffic was backed up several miles on roads adjacent to the

A 7-year-old heart patient from Trinidad, headed for the Florida Hospital where she will undergo special surgery this week, was waylaid for 90 minutes in an outlying terminal before the incident ended. She arrived at the hospital in good shape, officials said

"I wanted out of there and I wanted away from this airport." said Curt Curtis, who defied police, left an outlying terminal and walked to find his family. "When a little 70-year-old lady starts talking about how the SWAT team should blow the guy away, I figure I better get out of there."

Hastings Claims Acquaintance Used His Name

MIAMI (UPI) - U.S. District Judge Alcee Hastings finished his direct testimony in his own defense today, denying he was involved in a scheme with a longtime friend to collect a $150,000 bribe from two racketeers.

Prosecutors today will begin to cross-examine Hastings, the first sitting federal judge to be tried on criminal charges, and Florida's first black federal judge.

Hastings, 46, testified that he never furnished his alleged coconspirator, William A. Borders Jr., information about the case of the two racketeers, who were convicted in Hastings'

He also denied he had received any money from Borders while the FBI conducted an undercover investigation in 1981. Asked by his co-counsel, Patricia Williams, whether he had furnished Borders the "substance" or "timing" of his order returning to the racketeers $845,000 they had already forfeited to the government, Hastings replied: "Absolutely not."

"I did not know the substance of the order because I didn't know what Jeff Miller (his law clerk) had prepared," Hastings said. He added he did not know when Miller would present the order for his signature.

Hastings, facing charges of bribery conspiracy and obstruction of justice, also testified that "security is very lax in this courthouse" - where his chambers are - and "access to my office was really, really easy.'

In testimony that began Friday, Hastings characterized Borders as a secretive man. He said Borders was always eager to demonstrate his political influence and that his 13 years of friendship with him was "more political than social."

Hastings also said Borders, a prominent Washington D.C. attorney, was a "noted influence peddler."

U.S. District Judge Edward Gignoux indicated he would schedule closing arguments Tuesday and turn the case over to the jury of seven women and five men Wednesday.

Two Settlements Threaten Israel

The Israeli government has voted to establish two more settlements in the occupied territory of the West Bank.

This is the second approval of new settlements since September, when President Reagan called for a freeze on Israeli settlements as part of a comprehensive peace plan to bring Jordan into negotiations with Israel.

Why does Israel defy its ally and block the peace

A majority of Israelis has never supported annexation of the West Bank. But minority parties dominating the coalition government of Prime Minister Menachem Begin want Israel to annex Jordanian territory won in the 1967 war.

Edward Witten, a physics professor from Princeton University who recently toured the West Bank, says: "The settlements are a nonissue in Israel. Young Israelis who can't find apartments in Israel are being encouraged to move into the new apartment blocks in the West Bank, which they can get for half the price. The Israelis could be building government-subsidized housing inside Israeli territory, but for political reasons they have decided to encourage settlement in the West Bank."

This is a cynical and short-sighted policy that poses grave consequences for Israel's future.

If Israel successfully annexes the West Bank, with its Arab population of 1.2 million Palestinians, it would indelibly change the nature of the Jewish state.

If Israel chose to indefinitely occupy the area, permanently relegating Palestinians to secondclass status, it would erode Israel's support in the United States and virtually prevent a settlement with Jordan and the Palestinians.

Israeli settlement policy would be none of America's business except that this country is preferred to accept State's word rather than giving Israel billions of dollars of aid. Although U.S. money is not going directly into the settlements, it is helping subsidize the Israeli

If Israel wishes to continue the settlements, it should do so without receiving U.S. assistance. American dollars should not subsidize Israeli intransigence.

Friends of Israel should do everything in their power to convince Israelis of the dangerous erosion of American support for Israel since the Lebanon invasion. If Israel continues its expansionist West Bank policies, there is a danger of a U.S. backlash against Israel.

It would be terrible if, in gaining the West Bank, Israel were to lose its strongest friend, America. Rather, Israel should freeze the settlements and join the Reagan peace process before it is too late.

Security must be a central focus of any negotiations between Israel and its neighbors. But Israel's security can best be assured through treaty and, if necessary, through Israeli defense outposts in the West Bank, not annexation.

Teamsters And Mob

The recent Chicago killing, gangland-style, of a leading lawyer and fixer for the Teamsters Union's pension fund, Allen Dorfman, is just another one of a long series of events that tie the labor union with organized crime.

What is inconceivable is that the members of the union, the businesses that contract with the junion and the federal government itself seem powerless to do anything effective to end the mob

It has been 25 years since the strong ties between the Mafia and the Teamsters were exposed during the Kefauver organized crime committee thearings in the 1950s. Federal legislation was adopted, and union pension funds were regulated.

But the leadership of the Teamsters union has survived all external attack. It was the mob itself which was responsible for the disappearance of Jimmy Hoffa. And it was the mob which wiped out Dorfman, probably because he knew too much.

The Seminole County School Board recently honored 19 people who have retired from jobs with the district this year.

Heading the list of service was Fred Ganas who had 38 years, including 36 with Seminole

Other honorees included Billy Brewer, 25 years; Helen Frisbee, 34 years; London Gibbs, 13 years; Mary B. Groome, 33 years; Virginia Jenkins, 21 years; Leo Myers, 13 years.

Charles Allen, a teacher at Teague Middle School, has been selected as the "Industrial Arts Teacher of the Year" by the Florida Industrial Arts Association.

He has been invited to represent all industrial arts teachers in Florida at the annual American Industrial Arts Association Conference to be held in Milwaukee, Wis., on April 19-25

B.H. Blankenbecler, president of the Florida Industrial Arts Association, indicated part of the reason for Allen's selection is that "Mr. Allen has consistently demonstrated a total commitment to the education of young people as well as serving in a leadership role in various activities outside the classroom."

"Mr. Allen has brought honor and recognition to all of Seminole County," School Superintendent Robert Hughes sald. "More important than that, however, is the fact that he has had a very positive impact on the lives of hundreds of our young people."

The industrial arts award is presented each year to an outstanding industrial arts teacher whose exceptional efforts at the local and state level are thus recognized by this distinguished

Charolette Geyer and Kate Nash, Seminole County educators, have been notified that the

Write to Read Program which they wrote is now being produced for use with computers in classrooms throughout the United States.

Mrs. Geyer is the coordinator of language arts for Seminole County schools and Mrs. Nash is a retired classroom teacher in Seminole County.

The Write to Read Program is a reading program which also teaches touch typing using a color-coded system. Tapes are available so that teachers can use the program as an individualized program for one student or for a small group of students.

Write to Read was placed on the Florida State Adopted List of Books and Materials in early 1982. The publishing company, Curriculum Associates, Inc., has distributed this teaching packet throughout the United States.

"Mrs. Geyer and Mrs. Nash are to be congratulated for their contributions to the improvement and enhancement of teaching methods for teachers here in Seminole County and throughout our state and nation," Hughes said.

Salvadoran Situation: Fools' Play?

The administration having assured Congress once more that the government of El Salvador is demonstrating sufficient concern for the human rights of its people to justify continuation of American aid, the time has come to address a question.

Not whether the Salvadoran situation as presented is for real. It isn't and the Reagan people know that. So do their critics and most of their friends on Capitol Hill. Anyone who pays any attention at all to what's happening in Central America knows it.

This question is much more basic, concerning not merely American policy toward one troubled country but the integrity of the American governmental process: Who is making a bigger fool of whom in this

This is the third time the State Department has given the Salvadoran regime its seal of qualified approval. Congress, since 1981, requires it to do so every six months as a condition of its approval of aid.

To date Congress, although itself in possession of the facts on El Salvador and thus in full knowledge that it is not being told the whole truth and nothing but the truth, has

Having claimed a prerogative, Congress is reluctant—afraid might be the more accurate word-to exercise it. And so becomes an accessory to administration hypocrisy.

The performance in Washington would be funny if the situation in El Salvador were not so tragic.

This latest certification rests on the assertion that during the past year only some 5,000 Salvadoran civilians have been slaughtered by extra-legal "death squads," most believed to have military connections. That is about half the previous year's death

But even accepting "only" 5,000 dead-a disputed figure as the good news, it is all too obvious to anyone who will look that the Reagan administration's policy in El Salvador is a shambles (a word for which, coincidentally, Webster's provides one especially apt definition among several: "a scene of mass slaughter or bloodshed").

The election of last March that had State in paroxysms of joy because of the large turnout did not produce an effective government. There is a government that Washington can pretend to work with only because the military stepped in and imposed its own choice upon an assembly that left to its own choices would have opted for representatives of the anti-democratic far right.

So much for making El Salvador safe for democracy through the democratic process. As for the Salvadoran military, its successes in the capital are not matched in the field against a guerrilla opposition it cannot defeat. Much is made, in Washington, of the guerrillas' inability to challenge the army in open battle. But what are they expected to presenting convenient targets? Elusiveness and the sneak attack have ever been the most effective tactics of guerrilla warfare and continue so in El Salvador, disrupting public services at a cost of mounting millions of dollars. Half the country is frequently blacked out.

Social Security Is Win

WASHINGTON (NEA)-As we've noted before, the mark of the professional politician is the ability to find something positive in every situation, no matter how negative it may first appear. One example of this is the way in which the White House is playing the Social Security compromise that was recently presented by the president's blue-ribbon

On the one hand, White House insiderseither in public statements or in leaks-are lavishing praise on the president for his role in breaking the deadlock that threatened the commission's ability to reach a final agreement.

As these presidential aides paint it, the president was "intimately involved" with his staffers who were dealing with the commission. He was "not detached from the process," said one aide. "Without his leadership there would be no final plan," said

But at the same time, there's something for almost every group to dislike about the proposed compromise: 'There are higher taxes for conservatives to decry; there are benefit cuts and rollbacks for the elderly to protest; and there is tinkering with the system's basic principles, which will alarm purists. In short, no group will be completely happy with this compromise.

Therefore, White House politicians are trying to put distance between the president and some of the commission's recommendations.

Many of the same aides who praise the president for his "leadership" in breaking the commission's deadlock are very quick to point out that President Reagan "took no part in the deliberations" of the commission, that he had "no direct input" into its recommendations, and that he "urged a compromise, but did not involve himself with the framework of that compromise." In other words: If there's something about the compromise plan that you don't like, don't blame Ronald Reagan. It's a perfect example of having your cake and eating it, too.

The truth of the matter is that Reagan did play a considerable part in hammering out this compromise, and that the commission did bring forth a package of proposals that at Security compromise.

least will solve Social Security's short-term problems-which must be viewed as a plus for both the president and the administration.

There was general agreement as to what the problem was: Over the next five years, Social Security faces a deficit of between $150 and $200 billion, and it's highly unlikely that, on its own, Congress could have reached any sort of agreement on solving the problem.

Basically, Democrats wanted to solve it via tax increases, while Republicans wanted to balance the books with benefit rollbacks or postponements. Had the matter been left in the hands of Congress, both sides probably would have stuck to their guns, and nothing would have been accomplished.

But in appointing the commission, the White House took much of the pressure off Congress. If the commission could come up with a workable compromise, everyone could support it in a nonpartisan way, and neither party would take any blame.

But then the commission seemed bogged down just as Congress was: The panel's Democrats insisted that the bulk of the looming deficit be made up of new taxes, while its Republican members insisted that it be made up from benefit postponements.

The actual compromise is a fairly even split between these two approaches. Its plan is to save about $170 billion between 1983 and 1889. with about half of it coming from new or accelerated contributions (taxes) and about half from benefit postponements or reduced increases.

Many Washington observers now say that the Social Security compromise might signal a new era in dealings between the Reagan administration and Congress. If the Social Security issue responded to a bipartisan approach, the same approach might be used insolving the even more vexing problems involving the budget as a whole. The Social Security compromise, say these observers, signals Reagan's willingness to work with the "pragmatic center" in Congress, and implies that he will be willing to modify his views in the months ahead.

For now though, the president appears to have gained considerably from the Social

Causes Of Crash Explored

With Americans trying to cope with depression (let's call it what it is), much thought is being given to the Great Depression of the 1930s.

What was the cause of that depression? Numerous commentators insist that it was caused or aggravated by the Hawley-Smoot Tariff Act of 1930 which raised new barriers to foreign goods. I believe this is a mistaken reading of history. The Crash had taken place before this legislation was approved by Congress. Moreover, American companies laid off employees or went out of business not because of a drop in exports to Europe and elsewhere but because of the collapse of consumer demand in the United States.

It is impossible in the space of a short newspaper article to trace the origins of the Great Depression. Certain factors stand out,

In the first place, one third of the nation the South - had been in a depressed condition from 1865. The South, and parts of the West, were chronically starved for capital. Money wasn't available for industrialization. The infrastructure in the South was almost nonexistent - few paved roads, for example. the form of freight rates, which made it more expensive to ship goods from the South to major markets. These long-term conditions of depression simply caught up with the country as a whole. The South was in depression before the rest of the country experienced it.

The nation as a whole also suffered from an agricultural depression in the 1920s.

Too much land - much of it unsuitable for farming - was brought into production during World War I because of the food needs of the allies. With the end of the war and economic collapse in Europe, the market for American foodstuffs plummeted. Depressed agricultural prices and foreclosures on farms formed a major back-drop to the Great

The United States industrial and commercial system also suffered from an unsound banking system and inadequate regulation of the sale of securities. The country became caught up in a fever of speculation. The collapse of the speculative bubble on Wall Street ruined countless rich and middle class people. At that time, moreover, the American middle class was a much thinner layer than it is today. The Great Depression was born of human folly and mistaken or inadequate policies. No social safety net existed for the poorest Americans. The middle class was also unprotected because of bad banking practices which led to the failure of banks. The Depression spread and spread, resulting in 25 percent of the work-force becoming unemployed.

The country has taken precautions against the chance of another similar depression. Welfare and unemployment insurance programs are in place. Banking practices are closely watched. We have erred in other ways, however. Waste in government exists on a scale that no one imagined in the 1930s. Foreign aid continues at a record level.

If we don't correct our mistakes, we will pay for them in the 1980s.

EPA's Papers Show Favors To Polluters

"OK! Since somebody already scalped you, we'll settle for your resignation."

WASHINGTON-in the great legal uproar over Anne Gorsuch's refusal to give Congress certain documents it demanded, little has been said about a crucial question: What exactly is in the documents that the Environmental Protection Agency administrator doesn't want Congress to see?

I can tell you about some of them. They hardly seem worth going to jail over, yet that is what Gorsuch is apparently willing to do.

Take Susan Contl's memo. Conti is a temporary legal clerk in the EPA's Office of Enforcement. She'll be taking her bar exams next month.

The Conti memo dealt with her research into federal and California laws regarding the settlement of civil tort actions. It had nothing to do with criminal prosecution. Nor did it lay out any legal strategy; it simply discussed the options available in damage suits under the federal and state laws.

Yet, like the other documents, Conti's legal research was declared "enforcementsensitive" by President Reagan as the reason for keeping it out of congressional hands. Conti told my associate Tony Capaccio ahe hadn't talked to Gorsuch about the memo, explaining: "She discusses things with people at a much higher level than myself." Even more ridiculous was the inclusion in the "enforcement-sensitive" documents of a two-page form letter.

The letter was sent out on Oct. 14 to companies that either generated or transported waste dumped at a site in Stringfellow, Calif. It informed them of a meeting in Los Angeles the following month to discuss with EPA the potential liabilities each company might face.

"Your company is one of the top 59 generators and transporters," the form letter said, "and we strongly urge that you attend." Dynamite stuff, is it not?

At the heart of the current battle are 42 EPA documents requested by Reps. Elliott Levitas, D-Ga., and John Dingell, D-Mich. The documents contain information on the agency's cleanup efforts at three of the nation's worst dump sites. Congressional investigators for Levitas also want documents that deal with EPA handling of 157 dumps across the country.

There are two points to note about the president's designation of the EPA documents as "enforcement-sensitive." One is that he made his declaration after reviewing only an index of the material, not the material itself. Presumably he might have questioned why Conti's research memo and the form letter were worth a contempt citation against his loyal EPA chief.

Secondly, one of the "enforcementsensitive" documents had been referred to the Justice Department for criminalenforcement action.

What, then, is the EPA worried about? Congressional critics supect that the documents are really "politics-sensitive"that they would show that the agency has deliberately let corporate polluters off the

For example, EPA recently announced its largest voluntary cleanup agreement, covering a dump site in Seymour, Ind. Though the cleanup costs may run up to $30 million, EPA agreed to accept $7.7 million from the 24 biggest companies, which were responsible for more than half the dump's

The agreement also absolved the 24 companies-including IBM, General Motors, DuPont Co. and General Electric-from any future liability for cleanup costs. And the prime contract for cleaning up the Seymour dump was awarded to Chemical Waste Management, the parent company of one of the 24 biggest dumpers.

The contested documents would shed some light on this.

Footnote; When the House voted Gorsuch in criminal contempt for refusing to hand over the documents, the Justice Department filed suit asking that the criminal action be killedand that Congress still not be allowed to get the documents. Arguments will be heard in Washington tomorrow in federal district

Washington Diesel Runs

you see him run.

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) - Inside the privacy of their own tepee, the world champion Washington Redskins have all kinds of names for John Riggins, one of them being "Diesel." That's self explanatory as soon as

They have another name for him, also. They call him "Colonel

You'd understand that one quickly enough, too, if you had seen him standing outside their Rose Bowl dressing room in a pair of drab, gamey-looking camouflage fatigues a half hour or so after wrapping up MVP honors in Super Bowl XVII Sunday.

He did it by breaking four records as well as the backs of the Miami Dolphins in rallying the Redskins from behind to an upset 27-17 victory before 103,667, the second largest crowd in Super Bowl history.

Riggins is what some people would eall an oddball or loose wire. He once shaved his hair in a Mohawk and he also likes going around in those camouflage fatigues Moammar Khadafy, Libya's belligerently pompous leader, generally wears when he's trying to show everybody he has the common touch.

Khadafy has a reputation for making blustery statements he cannot back up. Not Riggins. There are times he has nothing to say to the media at all but he was talking pretty good after Sunday's performance in which penetrated the Dolphins colebrated defense for 166 yards in 38 carries. Both totals were Super Bowl records, breaking the previous ones of 156 and 34 set by Pittsburgh's Franco Harris in Super Bowl IX.

Riggins' 43-yard touchdown run when he broke Dolphin cornerback Don McNeal's tackle to put the Redskins in front for the first time and for good, 20-17, early in the fourth quarter, was another Super Bowl record and he racked up a final one by rushing for 100 yards or more in his fourth consecutive post-season con-

While most of the other Redskin players were hollering happily or whooping it up coming into their dressing quarters after earning a total of $70,000 a man counting their three playoff victories and their final one in the Super Bowl, Riggins was expressionless. No emotion whatsoever. Who knows, maybe he was thinking about something else?

"Are you happy?" someone wanted

"I'm happy at least for tonight," he answered. "Ron (Reagan) may be the president, but I'm the king."

Riggins was asked if he thought he was given the ball too much and he then asked how many times he had carried it. Informed he had run with the ball 38 times, he said, "that's on the verge of too many. I told Joe (Gibbs) I wanted the ball against Detroit. I think he got a little carried

Even if all the media aren't exactly enchanted with Riggins because he'll only talk to them when it pleases him, his teammates think he's aces.

"I love him." declared Peter Cronan, a member of the Redskins' special teams. "I'm thinking of giving him a percentage of my check." Cronan, a bright, friendly man from Watertown, Mass., and a splendid football player, gave that one a little extra thought. "Well, I don't know if he'll ever really get it," he hedged, laughing.

"Money in hand is hard to part with." He paused a moment, stripping the tape off his shoes. "But it's the thought that counts," he said, laughing some more.

George Starke, the Redskins' veteran offensive tackle, called it merely another typical Riggins performance.

"Last week, he had 140 yards against the Cowboys," Starke reminded. "The week before that, he had 185 against Minnesota and the week before that 140 yards against Detroit. Where were you?" the Redskins' 6-foot-5 lineman asked a newsman. "Don't you read the newspapers? Today was just another day at the office for Riggins."

Riggins' Storybook Performance Drowns Dolphins, 27-17

only fitting that John Riggins' storybook performance should come in the shadow of Hollywood.

Riggins turned in a record-shattering effort Sunday to lead the Washington Redskins to their first Super Bowl title, a And it came in a storyline a Hollywood scriptwriter would appreciate.

With the Redskins trailing 17-13 early in the fourth quarter and faced with a 4thand-1, Riggins burst to his left, roared through a tackler and dashed 43 yards to the endzone for the go-ahead score.

Riggins' run capped a spectacular day unrivaled in Super Bowl history. His run was the longest scoring run in Super Bowl history and helped him amass a Super Bowl record 166 yards. Riggins' 38 an NFL playoff record. His TD run broke

Miami Hopes Slip Away With Missed McNeal Tackle

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) - Cornerback Don McNeal hung on as long as he could, but finally he had to let go. And as John Riggins slid from his grasp, so did the Miami Dolphins' hopes of becoming Super Bowl champions.

"I was there, I had the position, but he's very physical, a very tough guy to bring down," McNeal said. "I hit him high and I should have hit him low. All your life they teach you to hit low, to stop the legs. The time came to do it, and I forgot what I had learned."

Riggins treated McNeal like a revolving door Sunday, running right through him and rambling 43 yards for a touchdown to begin the surge that lifted the Washington Redskins to a 27-17 victory.

Miami led 17-13 in the final period but on 4th-and-1, the burly Riggins - the ame's Most Valuable Player — took the handoff, slammed into McNeal and raced untouched for the longest touchdown run in Super Bowl history to start the Redskins on their way to victory.

A despondent McNeal made no excuses for missing the tackle.

"I grabbed him and held on as long as I could but I could feel him alipping away," the third-year player from Alabama said. "Finally, I just couldn't hold on any longer. Once I let go, I knew he was gone. I didn't want to get up. I let it slip away. I fell down trying to get over there but that's no excuse. I got there ... I was right where I wanted to be.

"But Riggins is so damn tough." Washington's rally came as the Dolphins' offense sputtered to a halt. Quarterback David Woodley produced only 30 yards in the second half and falled to complete a single pass in a dismal offensive show.

"The second half was so frustrating," said Woodley. "The running game didn't get going and my passing was off. There was nothing to turn to. That's about as frustrated as I've ever been on a football

"The Redskins took it away from us in the second half. They didn't do anything we didn't plan on, but they played a great man-to-man coverage and we couldn't do anything against it. It's so frustrating not to be able to get anything done - to work so hard, to prepare so well, and then just fail to execute. It's really depressing." Even a telephone call from President Reagan could not cheer up Miami Coach

"There is probably nothing anyone could say right now to make you feel better," Reagan said in the phone call from White House.

Don Shula.

"You're absolutely right, Mr. President," Shula responded.

"We had the opportunities but they made the plays," Shula told reporters. "Ball control is the key, keeping the ball on long drives and keeping your defense off the field. We've pulled that act on a lot of teams over the years and won a lot of games. Today, we had it done to us.

'It's a very sad time for us. We had it and we let it get away. But we're a young team and hopefully we learned something. We'll be back. I know we'll be

The man who took the loss the hardest might have been special teams player Fulton Walker. With a dazzling 98-yard kickoff return for a touchdown, it appeared the second-year speedster from West Virginia would be the hero of Super Bowl XVU.

But when it was over, Walker was just one of 49 dejected Dolphins.

"It's real hard to take," said the 5-foot-10 Walker, whose longest previous return this season was 32 yards. "We came so far and we seemed to be control and then it just fell spart. The only other kickoff I've ever returned for a touchdown was against Buffalo (88 yards in 1981), and we lost that game. When I did it today, I thought about that "

Walker caught the ball at the 2, followed his wedge of blockers, cut across the field and outran the entire Washington defense.

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) - It was the mark of 22 yards set by Franco Harris of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

It was a fitting climax for Riggins, who retired two years ago, came back, and thought of quitting again during the players' strike this season.

He became the first player in NFL 27-17 victory over the Miami Dolphins. history to record four consecutive 100yard games in postseason.

The 6-foot-2, 235-pounder, an 11-year veteran, gained 119 yards against Detroit, 185 against Minnesota and 140 against Dallas.

"It really hasn't set in on me yet," said Riggins, who up to this week had refused to speak to the media. "I think maybe tomorrow all of this will dawn on me and I'll realize what happened. Right now I'm still in a state of shock.

"It was a long, hard day. I was concarries set a Super Bowl record and tied cerned playing the Dolphins — I've never really had a good game against them - but our line played an outstanding game. They really did the job. They got in their faces and pushed them back and opened the holes for me. I can't say enough about them."

Riggins, unanimously named the game's Most Valuable Player, said he felt Miami cornerback Don McNeal, who attempted to stop him on his touchdown run, was off balance.

"We had run that play before and it was successful," said Riggins. "The guy (McNeal) couldn't quite get a hold of me and that was it. People said he fell down before he got to me but I never saw it. I just tried to keep him off me with my right arm and once I broke through, there was no one behind him. One of the Blackwood boys had a shot but he didn't have enough ground."

Washington coach Joe Gibbs said he felt confident even though the Redskins trailed at halftime.

"I told our team at the half that we've been in tough times before and pulled it out and that we could do it again," said Gibbs. "We trailed Philadelphia 14-3 and came back to win. These guys are really tough and I had a good feeling at the half and so did they.

"I think some people underestimated us. We've been a tough, physical team all year and that's what you have to be to win the Super Bowl.'

McNeal refused to make any alibis for missing Riggins.

"I have no excuses - I just missed the tackle," he said. "I was there - I had the position — but he's very physical, a very tough guy to bring down.

"I hit him high and I should have hit him low. All your life they teach you to hit low, to stop the legs. The time came to do it and I forgot what I had learned. I grabbed him and held on as long as I could but I could feel him slipping away. Finally I just couldn't hold on any longer!"

Lake City Setback Opens SCC Door

Herald Sports Editor

A funny thing happened to Lake City Community College on its way to the Division II and Mid-Florida Conference championships.

The Timberwolves lost to Central Florida Saturday,

"Wasn't that something?" said Seminole Community College coach Bill Payne Sunday. "That should make Wednesday pretty interesting."

The Lake City slip (a narrow 79-78 setback)opens the door for Payne's Raiders who ripped St. John's Junior College, 119-92, Saturday to improve to 16-8 overall and 6-2 in the league. Lake City, ranked fourth in the nation, fell to 21-3 and 7-1.

The Timberwolves and their 7-3 center Lester Fonville come to the SCC gym Wednesday. It will be the first action of a big double-header at SCC. During haiftime, the Seminole County Sports Hall of Fame will induct its first three members - Joe Sterling, Red Barber and Tim Raines. Barber, however, will not be in attendance due to a prior commitment involving his new book.

Lake City already owns a victory over the Raiders, acquired Jan. 12 at home. SCC was without 6-10 center Rudy Kulper that evening which may make a difference Wednesday.

While Payne is looking forward to Wednesday's clash, he wasn't too impressed with his Raiders Saturday, despite the 119-point output — the highest of the year.

Rams Roll Past Oviedo;

Host Bishop Moore Tonight

Lake Mary rolled to a 25-9 halftime advantage and used a balanced scoring attack to crush Oviedo's Lady Lions, 49-28, Saturday night at Oviedo.

Lake Mary now stands 15-3 for the season while Oviedo fell to 14-6. The Lady Rams host Bishop Moore tonight at 8.

Kim Averili, Laura Glass and Andrea Johnson tossed in 10 points apiece for Lake Mary while Favetta Robinson's 10 points paced Oviedo. Michelle Swartz added seven points and Lisa Gregory six for the Rams.

Oviedo is playing without leading scorer Tanya Roland, who is ineligible to play the rest of the season due to academic problems.

Lake Mary's junior varsity won its second game over Oviedo, 41-30,

Celtics Blow Out Lakers

BOSTON (UPI) — To appreciate the accomplishment, consider the Los Angeles Lakers entered Sunday's celebrated showdown with the Boston Celtics as the NBA's most accurate shooting team and the league leader in assists.

The Lakers had failed to score at least 100 points only three times in 42 games. They were off to their best start since 1971-72, when they won 33 straight. They were riding a seven-game winning streak, their fourth of the year, and were second in the league in scoring and point differential.

Los Angeles stayed with the Boston Celtics for all of 20 minutes. Then they were blown out of Boston Garden before a pre-Super Bowl television audience by two defense-created surges. The final score, 110-95, was an accurate measure of the disparity on this particular

"We don't like to lose games to the so-called 'big teams," said LA's Magic Johnson, who had 14 points. "And we sure would have liked to have made a better showing on national television. But we'll have to wait to get them next time. This was their day."

The Celtics held LA to a shooting percentage of .443, well below their average of .532. The Lakers' top eight all were shooting better than .500 entering the game only two managed the feat Sunday. Boston out-assisted the Lakers 36-24 and outrebounded them 53-43. They forced 24 turnovers and had 15 steals.

And all this from a team which, despite having won 12 of its last 14 before tapoff, had been erratic and hardly up to championship form.

Gilder Wins In Playoff

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Bob Gilder was in two battles Sunday and, although he was taken into overtime, he won both.

"I was in a battle with my putter - my putting seemed to come and go all day," Gilder said. When he finally conquered that problem, it ended an eight-hole playoff with Rex Caldwell for the $63,000 first prise in the Phoenix Open. Gilder sank a 4-foot putt on his third visit to the 18th hole of the Phoenix Country Club course to hand

Caldwell his second playoff loss in two weeks.

Gilder said he saw Caldwell's second shot on the par five hole come up short of the green.

"I knew he had a chip shot and I had to pull out and go for it," Gilder said. "I thought my second shot might run to the back of the hole, but it hit in front of the green and stopped. The worst thing that could have happened would have been if it had trickled onto the front of the green. I'd had trouble with long puts all day. The way it was, I got to chip up short with a six-iron."

"We've almost to our peak physically and mentally," said Seminole wrestling coach Scott Sherman after his Tribe swept Mainland and New Smyrna Beach by impressive scores Saturday at New Smyrna Beach.

"The way we're wrestling now we can finish at 8-6," said Sherman. "That's quite a turnaround since we were 3-6 at one time. We really looked tough Saturday. Our hard work is starting to pay off."

Recently-eligible Tony Haddock continued his strong showings. Haddock, a 141-pound junior, pinned two more opponents to run his record to 4-0, all pins. Senior Kevin Tapscott (135) also had two pins. Porter Wins Again; Coupas Bags Cash NEW SMYRNA BEACH - LeRoy Porter drove the Lewis Green Camaro to victory in the 50-lap End of the Month Championship on Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway. For the second week in a row, the extradistance-extra-cash thunder car main event went to Joe Coupas. Sporting a new four-banger motor in his No. 42 Pinto, W. G. Watts notched another win in the four-cylinder finale. Rick Clouser won the end of the month event for the street stock division, with his younger brother Dale doing the same in the wild five-lapper for the speciator racers.

The flip of the coin decided that the six fastest late models would start in inverted fashion. For some reason, the pole sitter decided to stop coming off turn one, when everybody behind him was "committed to go." A massive pile-up resulted, with many of the faster cars getting badly bent up.

Frank Wood led for the first two times around, with Porter moving inside to take over first place for good on lap three. Fastest qualifier Jack Cook, half of his car's nose piece missing, sped up in the runner-up spot, while Wood faded to a distant third. At half-way, Cook was closing down on LeRoy when engine problems forced him to take it behind the wall.

Finishing second was chassis set-up expert Lee Faulk. So many racers were going to Faulk to have him set up their cars that he found himself a partner (Ed Meridith) and opened up RACECO, a complete race-car preparation and set-up shop. Third was defending track champion and current seasonlong point chase leader Joe Middleton. He was followed by Wood and Chris Dellarco who surprised many by turning fourth fastest time, besting many top runners, including some of the out of state hot dogs already in town for the World Series.

Thirty-one thunder cars took the green from chief starter Johnny Bass. Tom Balmer led the first tour, with fastest qualifier Coupas taking over for good on lap three. Early in the race, Don'l, Burkhalter moved up to the commanding spot, but transmission problems caused him to pit. Restarting last, Don'L threaded his way back up to third place at the finish, while Pete Starr, back after a few weeks off spent rebuilding his engine, took the runner-up spot. Fourth and fifth place finishers were newcomers David Debelius and David Russell, both cars sporting Faulk set-

Ron DiCandio, who had been battling with Grainger lap for lap, finished second ahead of Benny Gibson, the Hunt's Used Cars-Budweiser machine of second heat winner Larry Hudson of Sanford and Lynn DiCandio.

In the main event, four-cylinder heat winners Bob Clark and Richard Newton, along with Ralph Uellick, never made it around turn one, as right at the start, the flying trio tangled and crashed into the outside retaining wall. with all three machines too heavily damaged

Running much stronger, Bud Beaty led the first four laps and ended-up second at the end of the race. Datsun pilot Mike Shuman was very lucky to end up third, as his very illhandling pumpkin-colored import had him sideways, all over the race track most of the time. Third and fourth were newcomers Jay Nutter and Ray Martin in a beautiful new

Sitting Service Offered Clubbers

The Winter Springs Extension Homemakers Club will meet on Feb. 10 at 9:30 a.m. in the Community Church on Wade Street. Louise Poole will present a lesson on how to prepare a household budget.

Babysitting is available for a minimal fee. Mary Robey, a grandmother of several children, is the new babysitter. Pam Cullen, president of the club, says to the delight of all the mothers, Mary was able to run the nursery very effectively and was reading to the children when it was time to go home. Mary says she found the babysitting chore a way to relax and have fun.

For anyone having any questions, call Barbara Hughes, 323-2500.

Pam recently attended the district meeting for the Extension Homemakers, which was hosted by the Orange County members. She said it was a very interesting and enjoyable day.

Speaking of Pam, her grandmother, Mary Nelson, from Loves Park, Illinois, is visiting with Pam and her family. She hasn't seen her grandmother for awhile and the kids are delighted to have their great grandmother around.

There were approximately 75 parents attending the meeting at Red Bug Elementary last Wedneaday night. The rezoning will affect Red Bug, Winter Springs, Sterling Park and Eastbrook Elementary Schools.

The meeting was conducted by Jim Neville, principal of Red Bug Elementary, and was intended to show parents the three plans drawn up for rezoning in the fall when the new Keeth Elementary School opens.

The new school will be what was described as a "semi-pod" system. There will be a kitchen and cafeteria for the children with meals prepared at

It was suggested that the School Board will choose one of the three rezoning plans in March or April.

Ralph and Dorothy Dow, from Enfield, N.H., were the house-guests for three weeks of Barbara and Terry Baker.

The drama club at Sterling Park Elementary has chosen its cast and will begin practicing for the "Wizard of Oz" production which will take place sometime in April.

Winter Springs Elementary is gearing up for their Spring Carnival, which will be held in March. They are hoping for donations from parents and local businesses for their auction and country store.

spaghetti dinner on Feb. 6, from 1-5 p.m., at the Sunshine Park. The dinner will be served with bread and coffee and tea will be included in the cost.

The Winter Springs Sertoma Club will hold a

The cost will be $3 for adults and $1.50 for children. Soft drinks and beer will be available for a donation.

Club To Host District Art Festival

Members of the Woman's Club of Sanford are making final plans to host the FFWC District VII Arts Festival. The local Sanford club is a member of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs and the General Federation of Women's Clubs, an international organization and the largest organization of women in the world. The FFWC is divided into 14 districts and in District VII there are 22 clubs from Lake, Orange, Osceola, Seminole and Sumter counties.

Many members of the 22 clubs will be attending the Arts

Festival and have entries in the arts, crafts and sewing contests. Nine judges, three for each category will begin judging at 10 a.m. and winners from the district will go on to represent their club at the FFWC State Convention to be held this year in May at the Hyatt Hotel in Kissimmee. Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. with coffee and refresh-followed by a program presented by the School of Dance Arts. A luncheon will be served and the district winners will be presented their awards. Presiding over the festivities will be the District VII

ments being served. There will be a short business meeting

Stop Smoking Plan Offered

A Five Day Plan to Stop Smoking will be offered at Florida Hospital-Altamonte, starting Feb. 20 at 7:30 p.m. A physician-counselor team will direct the sessions. The physician will discuss how the body reacts to smoking ceasation. The counselor will prepare participants for the emotional side effects of giving up the habit.

Habits that reinforce dependence on tobacco will be discussed as well as a plan to avoid weight gain—a fear of many who want to stop smoking. A support group will be organized during the program in order that participants may encourage each other. Call 297-1929 for more information.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Tuesday, February 1, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY February 1, 1983

This coming year it will be to your advantage to keep in touch with friends who live in distant places. They may have opportunities to offer to you that you can't find in your own region.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A situation might develop today which will put your faith to a test. You'll discover your beliefs are more than up to the task. Order now: The NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet which reveals romantic combinations, compatibilities for all signs, tells how to get signs, hidden qualities, plus more. Mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Send an additional $1 for your Aquarius Astro-Graph predictions for 1983. Be sure to give your zodiac sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Even though the power to change things may be in the hands of others, you are the one likely to profit most from shifting conditions today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Although your normal preference is to be a leader rather than a follower, you are likely to be luckier today playing a supporting role.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Something opportune could suddenly develop today where your career is concerned. However, you'll have to be alert to appreciate all of its ramifications.

GEMIN? (May 21-June 20) It won't be your intention to targets.

use people today, but, by the same token, don't hesitate to call upon friends if you are in need of a favor.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Tasks which require imagination and the ability to innovate will be the ones you'll be able to perform the best today. Others may bore LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The rest of the week will go much easier if you try to devote time today to activities unrelated to your mundane routines. Change refreshes your outlook.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) along with others, finds rising Your financial prospects look very encouraging at this time, so if you have anything on the burner which could add to your income give it priority.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you have a project in mind which is large in scope, this is a good day to launch it. You are lucky where beginnings are concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This could be the start of a profitable period for you. There are factors at work behind the scenes which are opening new channels for personal gain.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do not let others put limits on your hopes and expectations today. What may be too big for them could be well within your reach.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You are now in a good achievement cycle, so be sure to set goals which are truly meaningful. You need lofty

Depression, Fatigue Go Hand In Hand

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 69, male, and had one heart attack four years ago. I was on Inderal, Pronestyl and Quinaglute, but have progressed to the point that I do not take any medication. I sometimes get tired to the point of exhaustion, in the mid-morning and sometimes in the afternoon. In the afternoon I drink one ounce of whiskey or four ounces of wine, which relieves the tiredness for a while, part of the time.

Rest and sleep do not help. My doctor does not have any answers. I have had blood work done. I do work every day fairly hard. I do have irregular heartbeats. Do you have any suggestions for relief of this tiredness?

DEAR READER - Anyone who has excessive or regular fatigue should have a medical examination and I gather from your letter you have been well evaluated. About 20 percent of people who have fatigue have a medical disorder that is causing it and in the other 80 percent the cause is psychological, such as a depression.

Obviously, you do have a medical problem, but your story is one of having recovered rather well. The presence of a previous heart psychological problems other people have that cause fatigue. In fact, a health problem often causes a person to be depressed and in turn feel fatigued. At least half of people who have a heart attack do have an associated depression at least in the months that follow the acute episode. I have outlined some of the main causes of fatigue in The Health Letter number 9-6. Fatigue: Feeling Tired and Weary, which I am sendingyou. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. There are things people can do to help combat fatigue.

Dr. Lamb

Keep in touch with your doctor. If your fatigue is a real problem, why not get some psychological counseling to help you get more out of life? Perhaps you are working too hard. You know you only live once and it helps to do at least one thing you enjoy every day. It gives you something to look forward to. and that is often an important key to combating mental fatigue.

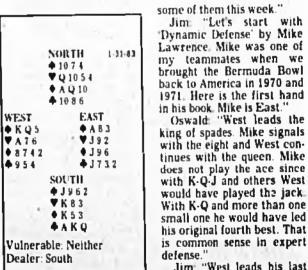

DEAR DR. LAMB - Would you explain the "mask of pregnancy" or patches of dark pigmented skin on the face and upper lip that occurs in some women? I've just had my second child and I look like I have a dark mustache on my upper lip. Will getting a suntan cause it to darken? Would a sunscreen be enough protection from the sun?

DEAR READER - The mask is from an overproduction of melanin pigment, the normal pigment attack by no means protects in your skin. It is the same you from the same pigment that is enhanced by a suntan. During pregnancy the increased hormone production causes patchy pigmentation in some women, and exposure to sunlight makes it worse. If you are out, both in summer and winter. cover the area that is darkly pigmented with a sunscreen.

> In some women it fades after pregnancy is over, but may remain to some degree. Women who have this response during pregnancy are prone to have a similar response to birth control pills, which you may want to avoid defense."

Jim: "West leads his last spade. Mike is in with the ace. He returns the diamond six because as he explains that is the one lead that can't help declarer."

Oswald: "Eventually the defense gets two heart tricks to defeat the contract. Note that if Mike had led a heart, South would have lost just one heart trick." Jim: "Also note that South should really have passed two no-trump, but that bad defense would have let him make the game he did bid."
