The 4.75 rate would have called for a 61 cents per $1000 increase in taxes over the current year's $4.15. The approved rate reduced taxes 5 cents per $1,000.

Fox, a "lame duck" commissioner whose term will run out on Oct. 3, said: "At this point, we're looking at what I consider our first priority -the possibility of a large expenditure for a water system that would cost between $750,000 and $1 including pumping station and wells - the over all system.'

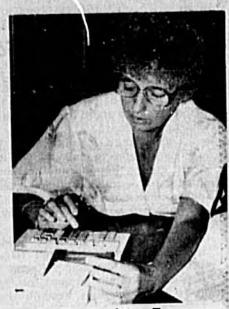

The commission may not have heard the final word on the controversial fire pumper yet, according to Mayor Walter Sorenson.

A second public hearing and final adoption of the budget is scheduled for Sept. 29 and Sorenson sald more changes could be made.

The mayor said today that "It's workable, but the big question on everyone's minds is whether this is or isn't the right time to buy the pumper. I would feel more comfortable if we had a full commission present for the vote on the budget."

Commissioner Charles Lytle was absent from Thursday night's meeting because he was called to New York on business, Sorenson said.

The proposed budget includes $771,213 for general operation of the city and $248,115 for the city's water and sewer utility systems.

it's a cold, dispassionate word usually bandled about the halls of government by bureaucrats, planners, developers and the like. It means, simply stated, the changing of the zoning classification on a piece of property or properties; a classification which permits only certain types of development or activity in that area.

But that seemingly innocuous word took on a highly emotional tone Thursday night as more than 150 people packed a Planning and Zoning Commission meeting to argue for and against a proposal to rezone a sizable portion of one of Sanford's older, primarily residential, sections near downtown.

A parade of speakers came before the commission, alternately be-mounting the growing crime rate in the area, touting the glories of historic preservation, lamenting the plight of the "poor little old ladies" who some say will be kicked out in the street if the rezoning passes. and others clinging tightly to their

Some 10.8% Mortgages Available By Donna Estes Herald Staff Writer

Low-interest mortgages will be available to 60-80 low- or moderate-income families in Seminole County on Oct. 6 as the result of Thursday's sale of tax-exempt bonds. Eligible residents who are firsttime homebuyers or who haven't owned a home in the past three years will be able to take advantage of 10.8 percent mortgages from 16 mortgage lenders in Orange County on a first-come, first-serve basis. The interest on the 30-year mortgages will be subsidized through the $4.5 million tax-exempt bond issue sold for Seminole County by the Orange County Housing Finance Authority. At the same time, the authority sold $27 million in bonds for a similar interest subsidy program for Orange County residents. The price of the homes which can be acquired under the program range from new dwellings priced up to $78,120 to existing homes costing a maximum of $55,070.

To be eligible, a family of four, for example, can have an annual income of no more than $35,250, to a maximum of $38,250 for a family of

be available. Officials at the Orange County, Housing Finance Authority advise those who want to take advantage of the low-interest mortgages to take with them to the mortgage lender a purchase contract on the property they desire, a $100 refundable application fee and income tax returns for the past three years.

As an example of the savings those who are able to get one of the mortgages will realize: an eligible family which bought a $50,000 home under the program could save as much as $115 per month in principal and interest payments on a 30-year mortgage.

Currently, the interest rate on a conventional mortgage is 13% percent. On a $50,000 home, the monthly principal and interest payments on a mortgage at that rate would be $583. At an interest rate of 10.8 percent, the monthly payment for principal and interest on the same $50,000 home would be $468.

The Orange County lending institutions which are qualified to make the mortgage loans are: Banker's Trust Mortgage, Beneficial Mortgage Corp., Central Florida Mortgage, Chase Home Mortgage, Coral Gables Federal Savings and Loan, Coastal States Mortgage, First Fidelity Savings and Loan, Merrill Lynch Mortgage Corp., Molton. Allen and Williams, National Guaranty Mortgage, Norwest Mortgage, Pan American Mortgage, Residential Financial Corp., Southeast Mortgage Corp., and Stockton, Whatley and Davin.

No Seminole County lending institutions are participating in the financing. Only Orange County firms were designated when the Orlando-based housing finance authority began the program before Seminole County commissioners voted to participate.

The number of mortgages available from each lender will be advertised prior to Oct. 6, authority officials said.

IN BRIEF

Congress United On Condemnation Of Soviets

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Congress put its many differences aside to unite behind President Reagan in denouncing the Soviet Union for shooting down an unarmed Korean airliner with 269 people aboard.

"The Kremlin is on notice," Reagan said. "When it comes to responding to its aggression. there are no Republicans or Democrats, only Americans - united and determined to protect our freedom and secure the peace.'

The Senate voted 95-0 Thursday to approve a resolution of condemnation. The House approved the same measure 416-0 Wednesday night. A conservative bid to add tougher sanctions was defeated by senators who said that would dilute support for the resolution. They said sanctions were in the president's purview.

"Let us appeal to the conscience of the civilized world: The passengers of KAL 007 must never be forgotten," Reagan said in a statement before the Senate vote. "Nor must we rest until the world can prevent such a crime against humanity from ever happening again."

After-Hours Prayers

WASHINGTON (UPI) - In a boost for those who want prayer back in public schools, the Senate Judiciary Committee is backing a bill to let elementary and high school students meet for prayes or Bible study in classrooms after hours.

The panel Thursday endorsed an 11-4 a proposal by Sen. Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., requiring schools to give students who want to meet before or after school for religious purposes the same chance to use classroom space as student chess, debate or other clubs. "The meeting can be Jewish students, Moslem students, students of any denomination," Denton said. "The point is they must be granted equal access, just like a drama club or anybody else."

The measure is one of several proposed to relax the prohibition on school prayer established by Supreme Court rulings in 1962 and 1963. But it is milder than other proposals, such as those calling for a change in the Constitution to allow organized or voluntary prayer at the start of the school day.

Hinckley Suit Dismissed

DENVER (UPI) - White House press secretary James Brady and two others wounded in an attempted assassination of President Reagan lost their multi-million dollar lawsuit Thursday against John W. Hinckley Jr.'s psychiatrist.

Declaring "human behavior is simply too unpredictable," U.S. District Judge John P. Moore dismissed the suit. He said there was no way the psychiatrist could have known Hinckley would attempt to kill Reagan.

Brady and two law officers, who were shot with Reagan outside a Washington D.C. hotel March 30, 1981, sued Dr. John J. Hopper Jr. of Evergreen Colo., for negligence in his treatment of Hinckley.

Congress Moves Towards Major Social Spending Bill

Congress and the president both will agree to a major social spending bill providing funds for education, health and labor programs.

The House Appropriations Committee Thursday approved a $96.2 billion bill for fiscal 1984, $3.5 billion above President Reagan's budget request.

Despite the use of traditional, but controversial, language prohibiting the spending of federal funds for abortions, except when the mother's life is in danger, the panel approved the measure sending it to the House for consideration.

A few hours later, a Senate appropriations subcommittee approved its own version by unanimous voice vote. The legislation, about $300 million higher than the House bill, goes to the full committee for action, where it could be

Rep. Silvio Conte, the House committee's senior Republican, said he is "almost at the threshold of cutting a deal..." to prevent the president from vetoing the over-budget appropriations bill for the departments of Labor. Health and Human Services and Education. Conte, R-Mass., who has been negotiating with budget director David Stockman, said the president probably would sign the bill if Congress held the excess to no more than $3.5 billion over the president's budget request. Conte said if Reagan vetoes the bill, he'd lead the charge to override the veto.

Subcommittee Chairman Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., said he agreed to cut his bill's overall spending by about $1 billion to work out a compromise. The result: a bill about $300 million over the House version.

If the House and Senate are successful, it would mark the first time in five years that a labor, health, and education spending bill made it to the White House and was signed by the president.

Military

$188 Billion Military Bill Approved 'Resoundingly'

WASHINGTON (UPI) - With the dust still settling from the last fight over President Reagan's military buildup, opponents to the resumption of nerve gas production are gearing up for another try at scuttling the project.

The House Thursday resoundingly approved the $188 billion spending plan for 1984 266-152 and sent it to Reagan for his signature. The Senate approved the bill 83-8 Tuesday.

A House-Senate committee that worked out differences between the original bills said the spending plan met the target in the budget resolution passed earlier by Congress, and was $10.5 billion below what the president requested.

The next step is actually appropriating the money for the authorized items. The House Appropriations defense subcommittee already has held two closed sessions on the appropriations bill, and the corresponding Senate subcommittee begins its work Tuesday.

After some setbacks on the MX last year, Reagan has been successful in pushing the program through Congress, primarily because he has agreed to recommendations of a bipartisan commission that urged more emphasis on arms control and development of a small, mobile missile to eventually replace the huge MX.

Congress succeeded in enforcing the linkage between the three goals by imposing several strings to MX deployment in the authorization bill. For example, it approved production of only 21 in 1984 instead of the 27 the administration requested.

The authorization bill includes $4.8 billion for procurement of the MX missiles, $1.87 billion for 10 more B-1 bombers and $407 million to buy 95 Pershing-2 missiles for deployment in West Germany.

It also calls for a 4 percent pay raise for all military personnel except new recruits, effective April 1, 1984, unless an earlier raise is approved for civilians.

John Mercer, one of the prime movers behind the rezoning effort, went so far as to say the older sections near downtown could mimic those of historic Charleston, S.C., Savannah, Ga. or Williamsburg. Va., although on a less grand scale.

That's all well and good, the anti-rezoning forces said, but as one woman claimed, "downtown Sanford will die without these people" who live in the apartment buildings and rooming houses.

But P&Z commissioner Cliff Miller later said that "it's not the city's job to help you make money on your lot."

Attorney Gary Massey, representing Charles Cameron, who owns several multi-family buildings in the area, found that hard to swallow. "There are some little old ladies who depend on the (rental) income from these homes. Their only income is that and their Social Security," Massey said, "Without it they would have to sell their homes and move out of Sanford."

Massey also said that the "problem is apparently law enforcement, not rezoning." Besides, "it's Just bad planning to take a single-family district and put it right in the middle of town where it's surround by Massey also countered the pro-rezoning forces' claim

He also contended that the "multi-family homes that are licensed are a lot safer than your single-family homes since they have to comply with various safety and building codes. Single-family homes don't have such requirements.

What Massey failed to mention, however, is that most of the multi-family buildings in the area are not licensed by the city. P&Z commisioner George Willis estimated that 75-80 percent of them fall into that category.

It was that fact that which present a perplexing dilemma for city commissioners when they tackle the controversial issue later this month. Included in the P&Z board's recommendation to the commission was a clause which states that all existing multi-family and commercial buildings in the area under study should be allowed to remain should the rezoning be approved.

So, the rezoning effort, in effect, boiled down to a matter of preventing more single-family homes from converting to multi-family.

But the board deliberately left out of its recommendation a definition of such a grandfather clause. Will the unlicensed multi-family structures have to meet city standards to be permitted to remain? Could they be expanded And if one of these building burns down, could the owner rebuild?

A 30-year-old Sanford man who was shot in the head Sept. 8 died from his injury Saturday at Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford. An autopsy showed that Don N. Atkins, of 409

Louise Rice, 55, of 308 E. 5th St., Sanford, who was charged with attempted murder in the shooting, was released from Seminole County Jail Sept. 9 after paying $10,000 bond.

Police say that Miss Rice entered Atkins's one-room apartment at 10:45 p.m. on Sept. 8 and pointed a .22-caliber pistol at Atkins and Katrina Sanders.

Miss Rice threatened to shoot the pair and then fired one shot which struck Atkins in the forehead, according to Sanford police detective Donnie L. Anderson. Miss Sanders, who shared the room with Atkins, was

Good Samaritans Beware: You Could Face Lawsuits

WEST PALM BEACH (UPI) - An accident victim who asked to be left alone has the right to sue the people who came to his aid, an appeal court has ruled.

The 4th District Court of Appeal "reluctantly" upheld a case filed by Richard Botte, 23, who became a quadriplegic when he fell outside his apartment in Fort Lauderdale. The decision strikes a blow to would-be Good Samaritans in Florida.

Botte was intoxicated on pills and alcohol when he fell down outside the South Sea Apartments before dawn on July 27, 1978, court records Indicate.

Apartment manager Jack Edwards heard Botte's screams and rushed to his aid. Botte said he could not stand up. He asked Edwards and two other neighbors to call an ambulance, but told the men not to touch him. Edwards moved him and took off his pants, records show.

Doctors at Broward General Medical Center later determined that Botte's neck was broken. leaving him permanently paralyzed.

In Florida, the Good Samaritan immunity law requires that aid be what an "ordinary prudent man" would do under the same circumstances. But that immunity does not apply when a victim asks to be left alone.

Court Explains Itself

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Elaborating on a decision issued in June, the Florida Supreme Court ruled Thursday that the Legislature provided adequate guidelines when it created what was once the state's largest medical malpractice insurance pool.

The high court, acting on a suit by 57 hospitals, had concluded in the expedited ruling on June 9 that the Patient's Compensation Fund was constitutional.

At issue was the assessment by Department of Insurance of $17 million against fund members to cover deficits caused by increasing medical malpractice claims, ecasue of the fund's fiscal problems, the Legislature this year shut it down. in effect, and it now is operating only to pay for prior claims.

The June decision by the high court overturned the 1st District Court of Appeal, which had agreed with the hospitals that lawmakers unlawfully delegated too much authority to the department to make the

"We do not agree," the high court said in concluding that the Legislature had provided sufficient rules and guidelines.

United Press International

U.S.-funded insurgents fighting Nicaragua's leftist government said they destroyed a major cache of weapons the Nicaraguan army had intended to ship clandestinely to Salvadoran guerrillas.

The claim, if true, marked the first time guerrillas of the Nicaraguan Democratic Force have attempted to impede weapons traffic.

Nicaragua's Sandinista government did not comment on the Thursday report and there was President Reagan has accused Nicaragua of arming the Salvadoran guerrillas and has given this as the main reason for financing the rebels but Nicaragua has denied it supplies weapons.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Senate Democrats are insisting that President Reagan comply with the War Powers Act and seek formal congressional permission for the U.S. Marines to remain in Lebanon.

The Democrats voted Thursday to introduce a resolution declaring that the 1973 law had been triggered by the increased hostilities in Lebanon.

Such a resolution would require the troops be withdrawn within 60 or 90 days unless Congress votes to extend their stay.

But to become effective, the resolution must pass both houses of Congress and be signed by the president.

The Democrats' move halted, at least temporarily, negotiations aimed at crafting a compromise that would not trespass on the constitutional prerogatives of either the executive and legislative branches of government.

"The executive branch and the people of the United States are put on notice that we intend to see the War Powers Act upheld ... because it is for the protection of the American people."

Byrd said the Democrats were still prepared to negotiate with the president on an extension of the Marines' deployment, but only after he requests the extension and explains their mission.

"The White House needs only to comply with the law," Byrd said. After Byrd formally introduced the

Arms Pact Duplicity Soviet Trademark

Two months ago, an Air Force reconnaissance satellite snapping photographs over Soviet Siberia recorded telltale evidence of a major violation of the 1972 Anti-Ballitic Missile Treaty. The violation, construction of a huge air defense radar in a location forbidden by the treaty, only added to long-standing suspicions that the Soviet Union is developing a nation-wide defense against ballistic missiles in violation of the 1972 treaty.

This presumption was further bolstered just recently when U.S. satellites obtained photographic and electronic evidence of yet another Soviet violation of the ABM treaty. This transgression, like the football-field sized radar installation at Abalakova, is flagrant enough to be considered a "smoking gun." Article 5 of the ABM treaty forbids development. testing, or deployment of any rapid reload system for anti-ballistic missile launchers. Without such a system, the token force of 100 ABM launchers permitted each side by the treaty cannot pose a significant defense against nuclear attack or retaliation. And without a defense, or so the theory goes, neither side could consider starting a nuclear

But here is what the American satellites detected at the Soviet missile test facility at Saryshagan, according to the authoritative Aviation Week and Space Technology magazine: The Soviets first launched an SH-08 missile, a new ABM Interceptor, and then conducted a second launch within two hours from the same silo without visibly reloading the launcher.

That can only mean that the launching silo contained at least one additional missile, a prima facie violation of Article 5 of the ABM treaty. Obviously, the Soviets have developed a rapid reload system and are now testing it. If it works and the Sayshagan test appeared to be most successful - it could double or triple the effectiveness of existing Soviet ABM launchers in direct violation of the 1972 treaty.

Ironically, the Reagan administration agreed with the Soviets last year to renew the ABM treaty for another five-year term. What the administration did not know then was that the Abalakova radar was already well under construction and that the Soviets must have already been hard at work on the rapid reload system for ABM

The pattern of Soviet duplicity here is familiar enough. It is now clear, for example, that the Soviets had developed and were mass producing 'yellow rain" and other bio-chemical weapons even as they signed the 1972 Biological Weapons Convention prohibiting even the possession of such deadly agents. It is more and more apparent that a comparable deception is taking place regarding the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty, considered by many to be the most significant arms control agreement of the 1970s.

The Reagan administration, locked into delicate arms negotiations with the Soviets and under pressure from Congress and NATO allies to demonstrate "progress" in these talks, is reluctant to acknowledge publicly the logic of its own evidence: Namely, that the whole arms control process is bankrupt unless the Soviets can be made to comply with existing agreements.

The administration has a laundry list of evidence that the Sovits are violating the ABM treaty and the 1979 SALT II treaty limiting offensive nuclear weapons. The latter was never ratified but both the Reagan administration and the Soviet government are pledged to abide by its terms. If, as there is every reason to believe, the Soviets are cheating, American security is being steadily diminished. How much longer can that be allowed to go on for the sake of "saving" the current arms negotiations in Geneva?

Alaska: Progress Arrives

By Robert Walters

SOLDOTNA, Alaska (NEA) - Dairy Queen began dispensing soft ice cream here in the spring of last year and McDonald's opened the community's first fast food emportum only one month ago. Civilization has come to Soldotna. Soldotna once was a placid native village, but at the edge of town today stands the ultimate commercial monument to "progress" here: Good Time Charlie's Topless and Bottomless

The phenomenal rate of growth here (Soldotna's population almost doubled during the 1970s) typifies a trend that has become apparent throughout the state. Even in 1982, when the rest of the nation was suffering through a severe recession, almost every indicator of economic activity in Alaska registered an increase.

Although Alaska has been a state for almost a quarter of a century (Jan. 3. 1984 will mark the 25th anniversary of statchood) it remains an object of fascination and intrigue among residents of the "lower 48."

It is a distant, mysterious state, geographically appended to another nation and popularly known principally for its vast size — almost 590,000 square miles — and its adverse climate.

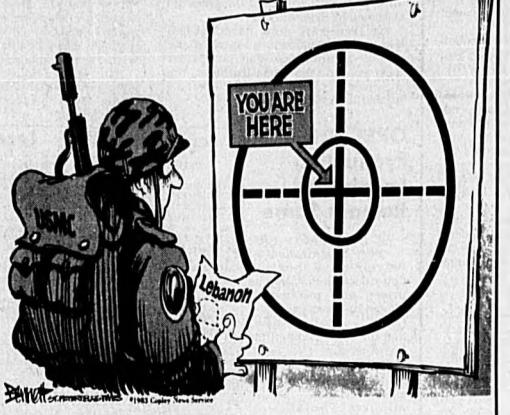

In recent years, however, Alaska has been identified as having natural resources unmatched by those of any other state. Beneath its surface may lie 30 billion barrels of oil and 5 trillion tons of coal. In both cases, those figures could represent half of this country's total potential reserves.

In addition. Alaska may hold 100 as large deposits of gold, silver, copper, zinc, molybdenum, tungsten, cobalt, tin and other valuable minerals. Finally, the country's two largest national forests, both located in Alaska, contain vast timber resources.

Those bountiful resources can be valuable to the nation if they are developed in an orderly, responsible fashion - but what is occurring in Alaska today represents at best an ill-conceived policy of exploitation and at worst a policy of rob and ruin, pillage and plunder. In either case, the principal beneficiaries will be a select group of multinational corporations and wealthy developers.

The stakes are very high here, not only for those attempting to exploit the "last frontier" but also for those who value what Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., ealls "the last great American wilderness, the last great wildlife spectacle, the last great conservation

The Kenai Peninusula's leading elected official, Stan Thompson, asks visitors to the region to "follow the old Alaska custom... of leaving the place a little nicer than you found it." That's not happening here any more.

Interest Rates Villain

WASHINGTON - The recent boom in the housing industry has been a point of pride for the Reagan administration. It's supposed to be the biggest single sign that the American economy is recov-

But unfortunately, the housing boom is fizzling out.

The villain is the same one that caused the housing depression in the first place: high interest rates. Statistics show that many home buyers simply won't pay mortgages that demand more than 12.5 percent interest.

But in the strict privacy of its august chambers, the Federal Reserve Board anticipates that mortgage interest rates will hover around 13 percent through the end of next year.

The difference between 12.5 percent and 13 percent may not seem important, but it's enough to discourage many home buyers. A $60,000 mortgage at 13 percent, for example, costs $47 more a month than a 12.5 percent mortgage. When you get up to 14 percent, the difference is $70 a month, and that can be the difference between acceptable and unacceptable.

"The higher interest rates now prevailing are putting the cost of mortgage credit beyond the limits of affordability for a great many families," says Jack Carlson, chief economist for the National Association of Realtors.

The link between interest rates and home building was dramatically illustrated in the past 12 months. Alarmed at the length and severity of the recession. Fed Chairman Paul Volcker decided to loosen up the nation's money supply to encourage lower interest rates. Result: New housing starts, which had hit a post-Depression low in 1982, jumped 70 percent in the first six months of this

Then the Fed, worried about renewed inflation, tightened up on the money supply this summer. Mortgage rates went from 12 percent to near 14 percent in short order - and housing sales plummeted. If mortgage rates don't go back down, the slump can only con-

But my associate Michael Binstein has obtained a "strictly confidential" Federal Reserve Board report, which predicts no relief in sight for home buyers until the end of next year.

The Fed's forecast is for mortgage rates to average 13.37 percent from October through December, 13.25 percent in the first quarter of 1984, 13 percent in the last half of the year.

What makes the situation critical is the drastic ripple effect a housing recession has on related industries, like lumber, concrete, steel and home appliances. For example, in May 1982 housing starts were 54 percent below the previous four-year average - and there were decreases of 23 percent in lumber production, 27 percent innt, 37 percent in construction steel and 28 percent in household appliances.

SOVIET PR: The shooting down of a South Korean airliner, with 269 persons aboard, was assessed at first as a public-relations disaster for the Kremlin. Certainly President Reagan has done his best to put the black villainy on the Soviet leadership.

But sober second thoughts have led to the uneasy conclusion that, after all the flery rhetoric, the slaughter in the skies may serve the ruthless old men in the Essentially, some analysts fear the incident and the Soviets' incredible response - though it may have been a PR disaster - may intimidate other nations. And the Soviets would rather be feared than loved.

Fitting End For Last New Dealer

Jackson for President headquarters in Miami Beach in 1972 sticks in the mind as a symbol of the whole thing. I was staying at the hotel myself, covering the convention, and it was not one of the big glittery places a few blocks down the beach, extravaganzas like the Doral and the Fountainbleau, but a low, modest quiet building, the sort of hotel officials of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union might stay at on a 10-day vacation. Jackson banners looped across the lobby near the celling. Listless Jackson workers at tables passed out literature and buttons. The place was full of labor union people, since the fading power of big labor was behind Henry Jackson's hopeless candidacy.

George McGovern and his handlers had understood the new politics, and he had overwhelmed Ed Muskie and then Jackson in the Democratic primaries. What McGovern had done was mobilize the energies of groups that had formerly been on the margins of the Democratic Party, and he had formed these marginal groups into a coalition that took the party away from the old New Dealers.

Franklin Roosevelt had stitched together a coalition composed of the white South. Northern ethnic groups, big labor and the farmers. McGovern's Democratic Party sent all of that to the back of the bus.

The McGovern convention was a zoo of exotic interest groups, but the political reality behind it was the takeover of the Democratic Party by a "new clite" of educated and professional people who had grown up and succeeded in life during the years after World War II

Back at Jackson headquarters an cerie silence prevaled. The former old-line elements of the Democratic Party knew that they had been dealt out of the action. The New Deal was dead.

Until his death last week, Sen. Henry Jackson continued to represent what was valid in the New Deal coalition.

First of all, and like FDR himself. Jackson was an American patriot. Unlike Shirley MacLaine and many of the McGovernites, he did not admire Mao or Ho Chi Minh.

Henry Jackson opposed all forms of totalitarianism. He was also a strong supporter of civil rights for blacks.

Characteristically, Jackson's next-to-last political act was to try to recreate the old bipartisan approach to foreign policy. Together with liberal Republican Charles Mathias of Maryland, he urged that President Reagan appoint a commission to study our foreign policy options in central America.

Shortly before his heart attack. Jackson called a news conference in his home town to denounce the Soviet attack upon a civilian airliner. That was his final political act, and it was altogether honorable and fitting.

Long-Wear Contacts Revolutionary

By Patricia McCormack UPI Health Editor

Contact lenses worn 30 days and nights in a row - or longer - are the cutting edge of a revolution that in 10 years may make glasses obsolete.

As the revolution advances, users may be able to purchase long-wearing soft contacts in six-packs. When a lens becomes discolored or dirty the user would throw it away and put in a new one. The practice will be more economical than having the soiled lens cleaned.

Dr. Oliver Dabezies, chairman of the contact lens committee of the American Academy of Ophthalmology, keyed those predictions to advances in contact lenses over the last decade, particularly the arrival of the long-wearing types.

The professor from the Tulane University School of Medicine expects even more startling progress in the next 10 vears.

"The momentum forward is so great," he said, "that what I predict today may well be obsolete in two years.

"In 10 years, eyeglasses will almost be a thing of the past. The next major breakthrough will be better bifocal contacts."

One in two Americans needs glasses. Ten million of those use contacts, those small, tiny plastic disks that rest on the cornea and aim to correct errors of refraction - nearsightedness. farsightedness and astigmatism.

Contacts adhere to the thin film of tears that covers the front of the eye. Each time an eyelid blinks, it covers the lens and causes it to move slightly. This allows tears to flow under the lens. providing lubrication and some oxygen.

About half the contacts in use are hard. The others are soft. Among users of soft lenses are those fitted with extended-wear type.

Hard contacts are made of rigid plastic. They provide excellent vision as a rule. They are easy to care for, have long life and will correct astigmatism. an uneven curvature of the cornea. The disadvantage: they may be less comfortable.

Soft contacts are made of a softer flexible plastic, a type with the feel of Saran wrap. They are comfortable to wear and require a shorter period of adjustment.

They are less likely to dislodge during vigorous activity and can be worn for long periods and are easily interchangeable with glasses. Disadvantages: they may be more expensive than hard lenses, need more frequent replacement, are more difficult to care for, and may result in less clear vision.

Extended wear contacts first came into the mainstream in 1981 with federal Food and Drug Administration of the first ones for general use.

Unlike hard contacts or ordinary soft ones, the very special soft contacts allow lots of oxygen to be delivered to the cornea, the clear covering of the eye.

That characteristic is what makes the contacts wearable for long periods, day and night. The comea needs oxygen.

'Any patient who can wear daily wear lenses can be considered an excellent candidate for cosmetic extended-wear contacts." Dr. Jack Hartstein, a St. Louis ophthalmologist, said at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Ophthalmology.

The first use of the long-wearing lenses, designed to allow greater transport of oxygen to the cornea, was by people who had cataract surgery, could not use a lens implant and did not want to wear cataract glasses.

The FDA's approval this year of three new extended-wear contact lenses clearly makes 1983 the year of the extended wear contact lens.

The newest approvals brought to five the number of extended-wear contacts on the market. More are on the way, Chris Smith of the Food and Drug Administration devices division said several other applications for estended-wear contacts are pending.

"The biggest problem with extended-wear contacts is compliance," Smith said. "If users don't keep them clean, there can be eye infections.

"And if you work in a dirty area, say demand rises and prices drop.

construction work, extended-wear contacts are not for you." Dabezies and others also pointed to the possibility of infection from a staph or strep bug that may burrow into the cornea, hiding out behind the lens. That is why at the first sign of something wrong - not seeing clearly, a red or a sore eye, the ophthamologists advise patients to remove the lens and see a doctor.

"When in doubt, take it out," is the slogan they recommend.

Discount and mass-service vision outlets sell the long-wearing lenses for about half of the $400 to $450 a full-service eye doctor charges. The higher priced providers say their charges include added professional services - checkups and fittings and corrections over six to 12 months.

One authority, who did not want his name used, said it costs from $10 to $15 to make an extended-wear contact lens.

Dr. James Aquavella, president of the Contact Lens Association of Ophthalmologists, said the goal should be inexpensive replacement lenses every three to six months - "a six-pack at an economic price."

Aquaveila, a professor at the University of Rochester Medical School, said the six-pack concept of disposable extended-wear lenses will be approachable as

The second pest problem which appears to be prevalent at this time is a disease called juniper or twig blight. During moist seasons in areas having high humidity, juniper blight can be a real problem. Tips of branches turn brown and eventually the entire branch will die back. If not sprayed the entire plant may die.

One final cultural requirement should be stressed. Junipers are full sun plants. This should be kept in mind when using these plants in the landscape. Plant: junipers where they will receive at least full sun for half a day, such as on the east or west side of a building. In heavy shade junipers grow little and are more susceptible to disease.

Check your local nurseries for varieties of junipers. These plants, if used properly, will make an excellent addition to your home grounds.

Bachelor Has Fetish For Following Female Drivers

Dear

unmarried man, 34 years old, and I've got what I think is a serious problem that I can't seem to correct myself.

Although 1 date a few women and don't consider myself sexually starved, I have a compulsion to follow women drivers whom I spot on the freeways and find attractive. I've done this probably 50 or 75 times in the past two years. I never approach them, never talk to them, never even smile or wave. I just follow their cars until they pull into a garage or up a driveway. Then I usually park nearby and watch them walk into their homes or into a shop.

Now, believe me when I say I get no sexual arousal from any of them, although it leaves me feeling very good. I can't figure out why I do it and can't seem to break the habit, even though it sometimes costs me a couple hours a day, not to mention gas money.

I am a professional man with a few degrees and lots of awards for my work. Please don't tell me I need professional help, because I don't think my habit is hurting anyone, or even me. It's simply puzzling.

By Sam Cook Herald Sports Editor Here we go again.

The place is the same -Seminole High School - only the visiting team has changed - Southwest Miami. The stakes are still the same. Coach Jerry Posev's Fighting Seminoles are trying to snap a 12-game losing streak.

Last week, the 'Noles were halfway there. They outplayed Titusville Astronaut for the first 24 minutes before standing around the final 24. They lost a 6-0 lead in the process and came up a 14-6 loser in the season opener.

Posey still can't put a handle on the Dr. Jeykll and Mr. Hyde performance. "I wished I knew," he said. "I know what we did. I don't know why we did it. We just piddled around that second half."

Doing most of the piddling were linebackers William Wynn and Ed Rinkavage. "The people we expected to be our stars let us down," said Poscy. Wynn and Rinkavage, both of whom may have a chance to be major college players, collected seven tackles between them.

"As far as the film goes, the defensive line was doing its job," said defensive coordinator Dave Mosure. "The linebackers (Wynn. Rinkavage and Mike Debose) weren't scraping off and getting the tackles. They graded out at 40 percent, which is less than half of what they should be. When a defensive lineman (Bryan Debose) and a defensive back (Deron Thompson) lead you in tackles...you're Posey agreed. "We went into the film session with the idea of pointing out mistakes, and being positive about the good things." he said. "The film doesn't lie. It was down right embarrassing to Count Wynn among the red-faced. "Coach, I needed that," Wynn told Posey after the X-rated showing. "It will be different this week." Rinkavage, too, was determined to improve. "I guarantee you. I'll have more than three tackles this week.'

Wynn and Rinkavage played both ways last week. Neither will start on offense tonight. Junior Robbie Brumley. 6-1 and 162, will get the call at tight end for Wynn while Keith Brown will move to Rinkavage's tackle spot and junior Charles Thomas, 6-1 and 262, will start at tackle. In crucial situations, though, Wynn and Rinkavage will play offense. Posey said.

Mosure doesn't know whether fatigue was a factor in the two seniors' lackluster second half. "It could have been," said "Mr. Intensity." "It's really hard to say if they were tired! They said they weren't tired, but they may have been delirious."

Delirious or not, there will be more new faces in the lineup tonight. Vince Williams, one of the top wrestlers in the county, will play the third linebacker. Junior Charlie, who made a touchdown-saving tackle against Astronaut, will start at cornerback. Fred Brinson and Daryl Edgemon will split time at fullback since Tim Lawrence injured his ankle last week. Lawrence gained 80 yards in 10 carries to lead the Tribe. "It's going to be hard to keep Tim off the field," said Posey about his senior co-captain. "But we'll use him in the key situations and try to keep him fresh. When fatigue sets in is when you get hurt."

Southwest Miami, meanwhile, is a team similar to Seminole. It lost its opener to Cape Coral, 12-6, last week. Mosure is very familiar with Southwest, having played or coached against it for 20 years. "Southwest runs a veer and an I," Mosure said. "On defense they run a regular 50. Sometimes, they shift down and put a linebacker in the gap to stack.

"They're predominately a running team. They seem to only pass when the textbook calls for it. But they will run a rollout and play action." he added.

Quarterback John Debord (no. 13) makes the offense go. He has quick feet, said Mosure, although he is just an "intermediate passer." The main running threat is Oscar Angulo (no. 29). Angulo is 6-1 and 170 pounds. Southwest Miami has a new coach this year in Phil Fitzsimmons. "They might change a few things, but, basically, they'll be about the same as I've seen." Mosure added.

Seminole will also be the same in the backfield where Mike Futrell will call the signals, flanked by speedster Cliff Campbell and Jo Jo McCloud. Campbell was close to breaking a couple last week. but Just couldn't take that getaway step. He gained 54 yards in 10 carries. McCloud and Dexter Jones, who split time at the other back, accounted for 18 yards.

Despite the second half snooze, Posey is confident about tonight's game. "We're going to win this one," he said. "We just need some more guys to play like Bryan Debose, Deron Thompson, David Linton and Tracy Holloman. If we can get the effort, those guys gave...this streak will end."

Running back kickoffs, leading the defense from the free safety position and handling the team's punting duties seem to be an awful lot to ask of one player. But, when that player is Lake Howell's Bill Lang, it's all in a

The versatile Silver Hawk senior secondary man is among the best in the county in all three of those areas. And, after tonight's game, add running back to that list. Lang will get his first taste of the offensive backfield tonight at 8 when the Silver Hawks host the Spruce Creek Hawks at Lake Howell High.

Last week, in the Hawks' 44-0 rout of Bishop Moore, Lang did it all. He thwarted the Hornets' first possession of the night when he intercepted a third-down pass and he came back to put the game away as he returned the second half kickoff 90 yards for a touchdown. Lake Howell coach Mike Bisceglia said he had planned to use Lang in the backfield against Bishop Moore, "But why add insult to injury," Bisceglia said.

Lang has been a three-year starter in the Hawks defensive secondary and, only an injury prevented him from starting every game since his sophomore year. As a sophomore, Lang earned a starting job at cor-nerback, but he injured his knee midway through the season and was out for the last five games.

Since then, though, Lang has not missed a game and Lake Howell has a 7-5 record in that time (6-5 a year ago). Although the Silver Hawks made a run at the Five Star Conference title last year, Lang and his teammates feel 1983 is the year for Lake Howell.

Tonight's Games

The second week of the football season continues tonight with four of the six county teams in action followed by the biggest battle thus far - Lake Brantley and Lyman - on Saturday.

Seminole, 0-1, looks to break a 12-game losing streak against Southwest Miami, 0-1. Lake Mary. under the tutelage of first-year coach Harry "The Ram" Nelson, goes to DeLand for its opener. Lake Howell. 1-0, opens Five Star Conference play against Spruce Creek at home. Oviedo, 0-1, travels to Eustis, 0-1. Saturday, Lake Brantley, 1-0, will travel to Longwood to battle defending conference champion Lyman. 0-1. All kickoffs are 8 p.m.

Elsewhere. Mainland hosts Apopka in the other Five Star game.

Cheeseman, Hayward

Run Back To The Top Seminole County's veteran cross country runners reasserted themselves Thursday at the Edgewater Invitational at Trinity Prep in Goldenrod.

Lake Howell's Ken Cheeseman, who was upset by Lyman's Doug McBroom last Saturday, ran away from McBroom with a half mile to go to win the 4A three mile in 15:05.1. McBroom was second in 15:17.4.

In the girls 4A race, Lake Brantley senior Kathryn Hayward finished second to West Orange's Louise Schweitzer, but easily outdistanced Lake Mary freshman Sue Kingsbury. Hayward circled the two miles in 11:57.7 while Kingsbury, ranked fourth in the state prior to the meet, finished in 12:16.6.

"I guess some people thought nobody could run with that freshman (Kingsbury)," said Lake Brantley coach Jim Marshall.

In the 3A race, Trinity Prep's Adrienne Politowicz blew away the field with a time of 11:42.6.

Lake Howell's Angle Smith, Lisa Samocki and Lyn Lucas all finished in the top 10 to give the Lady Hawks the team title in the 4A race.

Rams Need Emotion, Luck Against DeLand

By Chris Fister Herald Sports Writer

The Lake Mary Rams will make their Five Star Conference debut tonight at 8 in DeLand and coach Harry Nelson admits its going to be a rough start for the Rams. DeLand's Bulldogs looked impressive in their opener, a 14-0 victory over Daytona Beach Scabreeze.

"After seeing them (DeLand) play, they look better than we do." Nelson said. "We are going to have to reach down for a little emotion and a little luck."

It is the opening game of the '83 season for Lake Mary, which was idle last week. Lake Mary's last action, other than intrasquad games, was two weeks ago in the preseason jamboree against Lake Howell and the Rams are hoping they don't come out stale against the Bulldogs.

DeLand's big gun is running back Terry Nettles, who was the team's quarterback last year. Nettles picked up 95 yards on 10 carries last week against Scabreeze. "He (Nettles) looked awesome," Nelson said. "He plays both ways, a good linebacker and a game-breaker at running back."

The Bulldogs provided firstyear coach Dave Hiss with a fine opening game performance in the shutout of Seabreeze. Hiss was formerly the coach at Pierson Taylor where he had a 48-30 record along with four district titles and two region titles in seven years as head

Along with Nettles, James Patrick is also a two-way performer for the Bulldogs. Patrick is both a running back and defensive back. Taking over the gurterback slot for DeLand is junior Ferrol Gordon. Linemen Mike Harris, Tracy Davis and Matt Fair are the defensive leaders Greg Gilmore is a solid punter.

Spruce Creek at Lake Howell Lake Howell's Silver Hawks

are coming off a 44-0 rout of Bishop Moore and will go up a team, opruce creek s Hawks, that was hammered, 56-8, by Gainesville Buccholz a week ago. Lake Howell knows that it won't be playing a patsy though. Spruce Creek has 12 starters returning from last year's team that ended up with a 4-6 record. The backfield is full of veterans with senior Sean Hamilton running the offense at quarterback. Lane Lowery and Melvin David are the returning running backs for the Hawks.

The defensive line is bolstered by three returning starters including ends Herman Rawls and Allen Davis and tackle Paul Nelson. Linebacker Chad Pierce is also a defensive leader for Spruce Creek.

The Hawks will have a different look this season as they switched offensive formations from the Pro-I to the Wishbone. Sophomore quarterback Tom Abdo is adept at the Wishbone and could see some action tonight against Lake Howell.

The quarterback Job at Lake Howell belongs to Darin Slack, who threw a pair of TD passes and ran in another against Bishop Moore. Troy Quackenbush will start at strong safety again after an impressive performance at that spot last week. If Slack is unable to move the offense, though, Bisceglia will bring in Quackenbush.

Football

Oviedo at Eustis

Oviedo Lions' coach Jack Blanton describes the Eustis-Ovicdo rivalry as, "A good series between two small schools of the same calibre who like to go after one another."

The Lions captured a hardfought 14-7 victory over the Panthers a year ago when Oviedo had one of its best teams ever. However, Oviedo is inexperienced at a lot of key positions this year and the battle might be even tougher.

"We're fighting for our lives," Blanton said. "We have to keep our young defense off the field and have better ball-control on offense. Eustis has a good quarterback and some pretty good sized running backs. We can't make any mistakes against them." A better ball-control offense means that running backs J.W. Yarborough and Barry Williams will be used a lot more than last week when Yarborough picked up 32 yards on seven carries and Williams ran for 44 yards on 11 carries.

We want to get Barry and J.W. the ball at least 15 times apiece," Blanton said.

Brantley, Oviedo Claim JV Wins

Lake Brantley quarterback John Gowan ran in one touchdown and set up another with a 40-yard pass to Dave Delflacco as the Patriots' junior varsity trimmed the JV Rams of Lake Mary, 14-6. Thursday night at Lake Mary High.

The Patriots jumped out to a 7-0 lead after taking advantage of a Lake Mary turnover early in the first quarter. The first score of the game was set up by Mike Pinckes' interception. Gowan plunged in from one-yard out for the TD and Delflacco added the extra point.

The defenses then took over and the score remained 7-0 at halftime and for most of the third quarter. Late in the third quarter, a 40-yard pass from Gowan to Delflacco and a 18yard run by Derek Guinyard put the Patriots inside the Lake Mary 10-yard line. Two plays later, Mike Beam scored from two yards out and Delfiacco followed with the conversion kick to put Lake Brantley up by two touchdowns, 14-0.

The Rams couldn't get anything going against the stubborn Patriots' desense until late in the fourth quarter. With less than three minutes left in the game, running back Mike Goslee rambled for a 25-yard touchdown to cut Brantley's lead to 14-6. The conversion failed, however. Goslee was the game's leading ground gainer as he picked up 108 yards on 11 carries. Beams ran for 98 yards for the Patriots.

In other JV action Thursday night, Ronnie Aslie scored from one yard out with 4:50 left in the game to give the Oviedo Lions a 6-0 victory over the St. Cloud Bulldogs at Oviedo High.

Oviedo's game-winning touchdown was set up when cornerback Bubba Wright intercepted a pass at the St. Cloud 32-yard line.

Saturday, UCF takes on the first of five I-AA opponents. The Divison II Knights need a strong record against these schools if they are to reach their lofty goal of Division I status in five years. They hope to be 1-AA in two years. SLU whipped the Knights last year, 24-14, breaking a 14-14 deadlock at halftime. Four National League East teams continue to fall over themselves trying to do what the Los Angeles Dodgers are doing in the West, and that's break from the pack.

Montreal's 4-1 victory over Philadelphia Thursday night moved the third-place Expos just one-half game behind the Phillies and Pittsburgh Pirates, who moved into a first-place tie with Philadelphia by slamming Chicago 8-4. St. Louis dropped a 6-4 decision to last-place New York and remained 2 1/2 games behind the leaders.

Houston 6-0, upping the Dodger's lead to 4 1-2 games over second-place Atlanta and 8 1-2 over the third-place Astros.

The Expos rebounded from their double-header loss Wednesday night at Philadelphia behind the pitching of Bill Gullickson and hitting of Terry Fran-

Gullickson won for the eighth time in nine decisions and Francona had three hits, including a homer and two RBI to help tighten the race. Montreal was in first before dropping two Wednesday. Tim Raines singled and stole his 72nd

At Houston, Alejandro Pena pitched a five-hit shutout and Bill Russell drove in two runs to lift the Dodgers over Nolan Ryan. Pena also exhibited the attitude managers love to see during a pennant

"I'm not afraid to pitch against any team or any other pitcher at any time." he boasted following his third shutout of the year. Pena has won four of his last five decisions and has the lowest ERA in the league.

At Pittsburgh, pinch hitter Richie Hebner hit a grand slam in the bottom of the eighth inning off reliever Lee Smith and Larry McWilliams pitched a complete game to lift the Pirates into the first-place tie.

At New York, George Foster's two-run seventh-inning homer snapped a 4-4 tie and carried the Mets. Foster's 25th homer came after Keith Hernandez

In the West, Los Angeles blanked singled off Dave LaPoint, 12-9, the second of three Cardinals pitchers, St. Louis had tled the score in the fifth when Lonnie Smith hit his sixth homer of the season off winner Ed Lynch, 10-9. Jesse Orosco picked up his 17th save.

Winning every game would be nice, but Baltimore Orioles manager Joe Altobelli is satisfied with winning most of the time.

Though the American League Eastleading Orioles lost 7-1 Thursday to the Boston Red Sox, Altobelli had nothing but praise for his club.

'We won six out of eight on this road trip and that's not bad; I'd call it a highly successful trip," said Altobelli, whose lead over idle Detroit was cut to five

The defeat was only the fourth for Baltimore in its last 23 games and snapped a six-game winning streak. The Orioles host Milwaukee for four games while Detroit visits the Red Sox for three games this weekend.

The Orioles' chance for a four-game sweep of the Red Sox was folled when Boston pounded Storm Davis for nine hits and five runs in 4 1-3 innings. Jim Rice. Reed Nichols and Gary Allenson each knocked in two runs and Bruce Hurst pitched seven strong innings before retiring with a stiff forearm.

"That's the easiest win we've had in a long time," said Boston Manager Ralph Houk. "Hurst pitched a good game. He has been our most consistent starter."

wish we were in a pennant race.' said Hurst, who walked three and struck out four. "It's just not the same."

Added Cal Ripken, who accounted for Baltimore's only run with a fourthinning homer, "we gotta go out, get good hitting and good pitching and keep our winning ways going."

Texas 6, Oakland 5

At Oakland, George Wright drove in three runs with a homer and double and highlighted Texas' four-run seventh inning that lifted the Rangers. Trailing 4-2, Texas scored four runs in the seventh. Starter Tim Conroy, 6-9, was the loser. Dave Schmidt, who pitched 1 1-3 Innings, improved his record to 3-3.

Minnesota 6. Toronto 2

At Minnesota, Dave Engle slugged a solo homer and an RBI single and Houston Jimenez had two RBI to pace the Twins. Winner Ken Schrom, 13-7, stopped the Blue Jays on six hits. He walked five and struck out three in recording his third complete game. Engle's two-out home run to left-center field came off loser Dave Stieb, 15-12.

White Sox 12, Mariners O

At Chicago, Harold Baines' grand slam highlighted an 11-run sixth inning and LaMarr Hoyt became the majors' first 21-game winner in a rain-shortened game. The victory, Chicago's 14th straight at home, reduced the White Sox' magic number to two in clinching the American League West title. Hoyt. 21-10, pitched six innings, allowing two hits, walking one and striking out three. The victory was his 10th in a row and the 12th in his last 13 decisions.

"This is the year of the Silver Hawks." Lang said after the Bishop Moore game. "It's going to take a lot of dedication and senior leadership, but we think we can do it."

"We" is an important word to Lang. Although he is being recruited by a lot of major colleges, the team comes first. "I want to play my hardest and help out the team as much as possible. My goal is to help the team win the conference and we have the people to do it.'

Lang's attitude has helped give the Silver Hawks confidence in playing together as a unit. Lake Howell displayed it best last week when the offense rolled up 280 total yards and the defense shut out its opponent and held it (Bishop Moore) to minus 22 yards of total offense.

"He's a fine athlete and a real gentleman," Bisceglia said of Lang. 'He's not cocky like a lot of players who have as much talent. He is definitely a major college prospect."

Although he will most likely wind up at a major college. Lang is concentrating on the '83 season. He said he has already been recruited by a lot of schools, but hasn't given much thought to which one he prefers. Georgia, Florida State and Florida are all high on the 6-0 185-pounder who wears no. 33 when shaking up opposition ballcarriers.

Lang hasn't picked out a college yet. because he probably hasn't picked out his sport yet. He doesn't just excel on the gridiron where his made the Seminole County First Team a year ago. Lang is also an excellent baseball player as he was perhaps the best centerfielder in the county last season and among the top hitters.

Lang has put all that college stuff aside for right now. He just wants to concentrate on helping make the Silver Hawks the team to beat in 1983. And, after the first week, Lake Howell made a pretty good case for

Only Cure For Rare Allergy: Avoid Eggs

DEAR DR. LAMB - For the past 10 years I have experienced an apparent allergy to eggs. First I had sneezing and Itchy eyes when I made angel food cake. This has gotten progressively worse. cough, my throat feels shut off and now my chest hurts when I break an egg. I can no longer cat foods that contain hard-boiled eggs. I have trouble cating in a restaurant, especially at breakfast time.

It is difficult to cook for my family as they do not enjoy hearing me choke and suffer afterward. I even lose my voice just stopping to buy eggs. My family doctor said there was nothing he could do and just to avoid raw eggs. I called the office of a new ear, nose and throat man and upper respiratory he can't find girls shorter tract allergy doctor and explained the problem and he said just to avoid eggs. I have read your column for every other female who is a long time and am asking your advice.

DEAR READER - Your story will sound unreasonable to some but such extreme sensitivity to eggs is documented. In one such reported case the patient had to keep china and allverware completely separate from that of other members of the family so the patient's dishes wouldn't become contaminated with a trace of egg during washing and handling. Fortunately such extreme sensitivity is rare.

The ear, nose and throat short is not an excuse or physician may not be reason for not being sucprimarily an allergist.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My sister and I read your column about the 18-year-old young man who was upset about being 5-feet-5 inches tall. What does he mean by "I don't think I could go through life this short"?

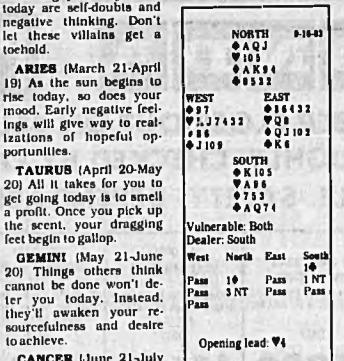

And why does he think than he. My sister and I are both 5-foot-2 and we wish we had a penny for 5-foot-2 or less.

Remind him about Dudley Moore, movie star and sex symbol. He is only 5-foot-3. At one of the TV stations here the weatherman, an anchorman and the business and economic reporter are all about 5 feet-3. Your reader needs to start counting his blessings and quit using his height as an another club. East produced the king and South ducked. Now he was sure of a total of three clubs. three spades, one heart and two diamonds. West's last hearts had been quietly put to sleep.

"Very well played," said West. "You had guarded against my getting the lead in clubs, yet East really should have beaten you." "How?" asked South. "Easy," sald West. "On the third heart East had a chance to discard and should have chucked his king of clubs." How could I have figured that out?" asked

East. "Not easy," replied West. "It is the sort of play that world champions are supposed to make, but actually it wasn't that dif-ficult. That king of clubs was going to be useless unless I held the queen or jack. Hence, it was of no value to you." Curtously enough. If South had known that hearts were divided sixtwo, he could have prevented that possible jettison by winning the second heart.

Good For What Ails You, Or For Just Hanging Around

By Micheal Beha Herald Staff Writer

100

They're called gravity boots and they're the latest in hanging around. They've been seen in the films American Gigolo and The Glitter Dome. And their popularity is spreading across the country.

Gravity boots are the latest fad to hit the lucrative health market. They're endorsed by many doctors. chiropractors and physical therapists as a treatment for chronic back problems. And some physicians even insist the boots are helpful in reducing tension. stress, slowing the aging process, clearing up complexion problems and growing hair by increasing the blood supply to the head.

Popularized by actor Richard Gere in American Gigolo, the gravity boots aren't for everyone. Gere performed sit-ups while hanging upside down, a feat that would do more harm than good for many people with back problems.

"Boots are only for people who are in good shape. They're primarily used by younger people and athletes," said Don DePaulis, whose Winter Park physical therapy firm sells the boots.

"But the majority of people who have back problems can't use them," he said.

For people who don't qualify as being in good shape, young or athletic, DePaulis recommends the inversion table, a piece of equipment which gives the same benefit as the boots but are less strenuous to the user. Inversion tables are ideal for most people between the ages of 30 and 60 "who used to be in good shape." DePaults says.

The prime benefit of both the boots and table is that when using them, pressure is relieved in the joints and vertebra of the back, according to DePaulis. The equipment separates the joints (the table does it more gently) using the body's own weight.

Some users say gravity boots are also useful in reducing tension and stress. They increase the blood circulating to the brain. One salesman at a local sporting goods store which sells the contraptions says he hangs for about 10 minutes at the end of his work day and "it's like I never went to work."

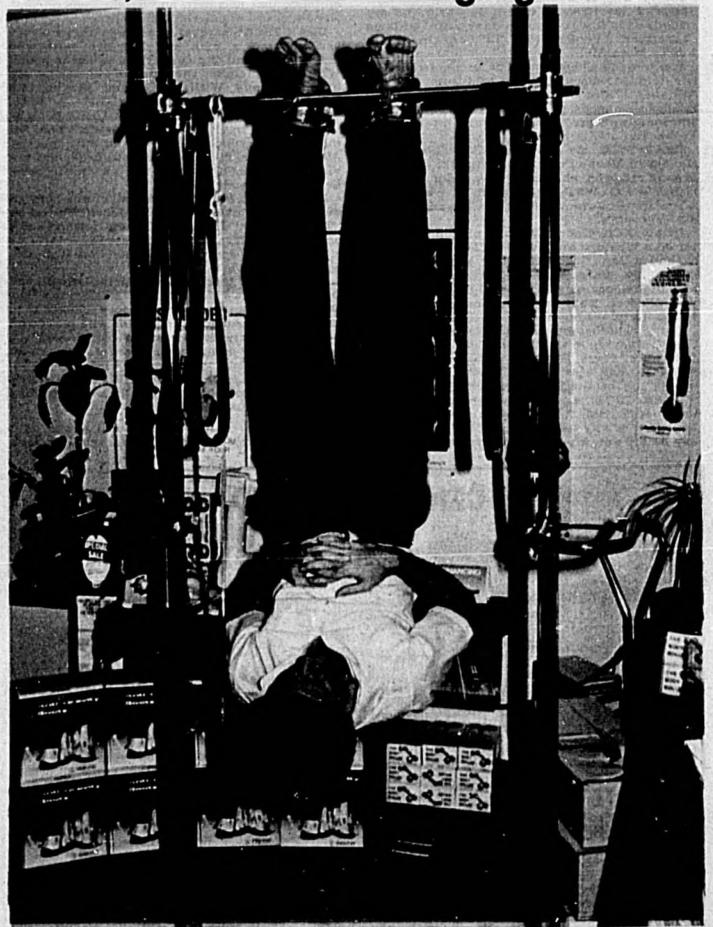

DePaulis says, the physical therapy devices are becoming more popular because more people are being exposed to them and because, like home computers, the price is coming down.

"Sales of inversion equipment have increased from less than $1 million three years ago to $30 million this year." he says. At the same time, the equipment is being mass produced and is more affordable.

Gravity boots now cost $49 compared to $120 three years ago. Inversion tables sell for $249, a bargain basement price compared to the $1,249 price tag of 1980.

The entire gravity guidance philosophy has received endorsements from athletes, doctors and back patients. The devices are used and endorsed by the Boston Celties basketball team, the University of Southern California's track and field team. Oregon State University's basketball team and by college football coach and former National Football League star Roman Gabriel. -

But like other unconventional ideas, hanging isn't

Movies Old And Worn Out

Hopalong Cassidy Doesn't Ride Anymore

DEAR DICK: I cannot ever recall seeing Hopalong Cassidy on television. William Boyd as Hoppy was one of my boyhood favorites. We have watched for him while viewing in St. Louis, Washington, D.C., and now here. Even with expanded cable showings — no Hopalong! Please explain. — W.J.D., Springfield, Mo.

Maybe they haven't been seen much lately, but if you "cannot ever recall" seeing Hopalong on TV. you must have had a very sheltered childhood. The Hopalong Cassidy movies were all over the screen in the late '40s and early '50s, and sporadically before and after that. They are simply too worn out and dated to be of much commercial value any more.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me who played the wife of Mr. Addams in TV's Addams Family. Was it Yvonne De Carlo or Carolyn Jones? I say it was Yvonne De Carlo and my friends says it was Carolyn Jones. Mr. Addams resembled Frankenstein in the series. -L.M.L., Marshfield, Wis.

You were doing OK until that last sentence. The late Carolyn Jones was Mrs. Addams, but Mr. Addams (John Astin) didn't resemble the Frankenstein monster. That was another show, The Munsters, with Fred Gwynne as the husband and Yvonne De Carlo as the wife.

DEAR DICK: My sister and I don't agree on the age of Meeno Peluce of Voyagers. I say he's around 15 and she says he's older. Who is right? - A.G., Washougal, Wash.

You are both wrong. Meeno was only 12 when he made the series.

DEAR DICK: Dennis Weaver played a character on a Western and he said, "Mr. Dillon," and he had a limp. We have a war going on in my house. My son says the show was Gunsmoke and the character was Festus. I say the name was Chester. This has been going on for two weeks. Help! — I.S., Independence, La.

You're right that the character Weaver played was Chester, but you're son is right that the show was Gunsmoke. There was a Festus on that show played by Ken Curtis - but it was Chester who limped, and that was Dennis Weaver's character.

DEAR DICK: Could you please settle an argument? Did Roger Moore ever play on Maverick at any time as one of the brothers? I say he did not. My husband says he was one of the brothers who only appeared once in a while. Who did play the Maverick brothers, other than James Garner? — Mrs. D.H., Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Be careful on this one — the operative word is "brother." Roger Moore never played a Maverick brother, but he did appear as Cousin Beau occasionally. Garner and Jack Kelly were the main brothers, Bret and Bart, and Robert Colberg came along once in a while as brother Brent.

DEAR DICK: Several years ago there was a series about a man and his two sons who traveled around the country in a motor home. We can't remember the name of the series. My husband says William Devane played the father. I disagree. Who is right? - N.W., Portage, Mich.

You are the right one. The series was Three For the Road. It was on CBS in 1975 for three months. Alex Rocco was the father, actor-turned-tennis pro-Vince Van Patten (Dick's son) and one-time teen idol Leff Garrett played the sons.

DEAR DICK: My husband and I have been in disagreement over who plays Jason Walton on "The Waltons." He says it's Ron Howard and I say it isn't. - Mrs. N.L.C., Quincy, Ill.

It's another victory for the wife. Jon Walmsley was Jason Walton.

DEAR DICK: I say Angela Cartwright played Danny Thomas's daughter on Make Room For Daddy. My husband says Sherry Jackson. Is this the same Angela Cartwright who played on Lost In Space and The Poseidon Adventure?

Both people mentioned played daughters on the show. Sherry was Terry Williams (1953-1958) and Angela was Linda Williams (1957-1971). Yes, Angela matured into the woman who played those other roles.

DEAR DICK: A few weeks ago I saw an old Frankie Avalon movie with Harvey Lembeck playing the leader of the Rats. Is Harvey Lembeck any relation to Michael Lembeck of "One Day At a Time"? — C.S., Cass City, Mich.

Yes. Harvey Lembeck, who died in 1982, is Michael's father.

DEAR DICK: Last week, we watched "The Great Gabbo," which was made in 1929. My husband insists the handsome young man was Ed McMahon, of Johnny Carson's show. I think that is unlikely. — B.W., Albuquerque, N.M.

Right. McMahon was born in 1923, so he would have been 6 when "The Great Gabbo" was made.

DEAR DICK: I remember watching a movie in the '50s, in which a singer named Johnnie Ray played a priest. Can you find out the name of the movie and who else was in it? — I.U., Azusa, Calif.

The only movie Ray made was "There's No Business Like Show Business," in '54. I don't know if he played a priest in it or not, but since that was his only film, if you saw him, that was it. Others in the film were Ethel Merman. Dan Dalley, Marilyn Monroe and Mitzi Gaynor.

DEAR DICK: Please settle a long-standing dispute among friends. Meredith Baxter - is her name McCrea or McBirney or has her last name ever been either? Also, is it Sheila McCrea or McRae? — R.M. and R.C., Joplin, Mo.

You have a lot of people confused. Meredith Baxter is married to David Birney, so her current billing is Meredith Baxter Birney. A totally separate blonde is Meredith MacRae, who is the daughter of Gordon and Sheila MacRae. And that's how they spell their

People who have high blood pressure, heart problems, glaucoma, spinal injury, middle ear infection, detached retina, glaucoma or conjunctivitis are warned against using them.

"To be worthwhile it needs to be used every day," he says.

If you haven't yet been exposed to inversion boots or tables you'll probably soon have the chance. DePaulis and his colleagues are taking their show on the road, traveling to area malls, fairs and fleamarkets giving people a chance to try the devices.

That means you should have the chance to try the 'dally dangle'' soon.

How Do Hollywood's 'Fighters' Stack Up?

By Vernon Scott UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Sylvester Stallone is riding high as Hollywood's heavyweight champion, the best movie boxer around thanks to his three Rocky Balboa flicks.

But stunt coordinator and trainer Jimmy Nickerson says Robert DeNiro, who played Jake LaMotta in Raging Bull, could punch Stallone's lights out with no trouble.

However, he adds. Stallone could make mincemeat of Ryan O'Neal, who knocked son Griffin's teeth out in a recent paternal fit of pique and who fancies himself a tough guy since starring in The Main Event.

Nickerson, a stunt man and former amateur light heavyweight who trained and choreographed Stallone for Rocky and Rocky II as well as DeNiro, is convinced DeNiro could whip them both.

He shakes his head and grins when Mr. T's prowess as a boxer in Rocky III is mentioned.

Nickerson says viewers will see a worthy challenger to DeNiro in Treat Williams, who plays the title role in Dempsey, the three-hour CBS-TV special coming up Sept. 28.

Nickerson lashed Williams into shape for the Jack Dempsey part in a month, faster than Stallone or DeNiro took to play screen champions.

Williams joins a long list of movie fighters, including some outstanding stars. The traditional movie boxer usually is portrayed as a decent guy in a rotten racket.

No sport lends itself better to screen treatment. There inevitably is human drama, violence, life-and-death situations, a sympathetic hero and an identissable villain.

Wallace Beery won an Academy Award in 1932 for his role in The Champ, playing a washed-up, drunken old pug making a comeback. Kirk Douglas was nominated for an Oscar in 1949 for his portrayal of a fighter in Champion.

Jon Voight played the Beery role in a remake of The Champ a couple of years ago, turning in a credible performance.

It seemed John Garfield played a fighter in every other picture, usually a kid from New York's Lower East Side pondering whether to become a concert violinist, brain surgeon or middleweight champ.

Errol Flynn's big hit of 1942 was Gentleman Jim Corbett, the old bare-knuckle champ who chilled

In 1956 Paul Newman hopped in the ring and became a star playing Rocky Graziano in Somebody Up There Likes Me.

One of the most convincing fight films of them all was The Set-Up in 1949 starring Robert Ryan, who made his screen debut as a boxer in the 1940 quickie, Golden Gloves.

Most ludicrous screen fighter was Robert Montgomery, whose biceps rivaled those of Woody Allen, in Here Comes Mr. Jordan, later remade by Warren Beatty who wisely transformed the hero into a quarterback.

William Holden made his screen debut in 1939 playing a lighter in Golden Boy and the late Wayne Morris played so many fighters, starting with Kid Galahad in 1937, he almost became punchy.

Other stars to play fighters were Clark Gable, James Earl Jones, and such comedians as Bob Hope, Charlie Chaplin and Danny Kaye. Red Skelton's best character was Punchy Callahan.

Nickerson said of them all DeNiro comes closer to being a real boxer than anyone he has seen or trained for movie ring roles.

"DeNiro spent two years boxing in a gym before I even started working with him," Nickerson said. "He actually sparred with LaMotta and other pros. Believe me, he can hit with authority. He is a tough, tough man.

"Treat Williams has DeNiro's big heart. Treat had never worn gloves before I worked with him. It was like throwing a duck in water. He took to it fast. Treat knew what he was doing in 30 days.

"Once he learned the basics, he picked up Dempsey's style. I think he makes a convincing Dempsey in the Nickerson's principal job is to keep his actors from getting hurt and to make the fight scenes look as realistic as possible by putting professional boxers into the ring with the hams.

Certainly, no boxer could take the punishment absorbed in the Rocky pictures. But a lot of dancing around, sparring, jabbing and clinching would put audiences to sleep in a matter of minutes.

Nickerson choreographs fight scenes to create the impression that his actors are dealing out and receiving deadly blows when, in fact, none of his charges has ever had his nose rearranged.

Sylvester Stallone (above) as Rocky Balboa is probably the best known Tinsel Town pugilist, having starred in three smash movies. And Treat Williams (below right) smacks Jess Willard (Clay Hodges) around the ring in the upcoming TV movie Dempsey. But just how good are these actors portraying fighters?

Alternative Programming

New Year's Day watching football. But Enter-Tel Inc. will be presenting some alternative programming on the first day of 1984 with the first 90-minute satellite telecast of the Vienna Philharmonic, conducted by Lorin Manzel.

"The New Year's Day concert by the Vienna Philharmonic has been a family viewing tradition throughout Europe, the Far East and South America for the past 26 years," says Jann Steinmann, president of Enter-Tel.

The telecast, which will

Sports fans already know be broadcast via an ad hoc what they will be doing on network, will feature both live and taped dance performances along with scenes of Vienna. It will also be simulcast on radio in most of North America.

Future productions

Two members of the defunct "Bare Essence" series, Ian McShane and Jennifer O'Neill, will be part of the all-star cast for the NBC miniseries "A.D."

John Houseman and James Mason will also be featured in the story about the growing conflict among the Jewish zealots, early Christians and the Roman Empire.

Production has begun on "Air Force," a two-hour drama set turbulent days of the Cuban missile crisis.

Cindy Pickett, Craig T. Nelson and Keenan Wynn star in the story of an Air Force pilot who is sent over Russia to take reconnaissance photographs.

Carol Burnett and opera star Placido Domingo will begin work on their "Burnett Discovers Domingo" CBS special next month. It will be taped at Dorothy Chandler Pavilion in Los Angeles.

This is a week of mourning for the fans of "Cagney & Lacey" and all the other network series that will not be returning when the new season begins next week.

But the loyal followers of CBS' female cop series shouldn't despair. Series producer Barney Rosenzweig has not given up the cause even though the network has.

"I called everybody when it was canceled," says Rosenzweig. "I said, 'Don't let this one die.' I believe after one more year 'Cagney & Lacey' could have become part of TV history like 'Bar-ney Miller' and 'M*A*S*H.'"

The show also received four Emmy nominations, including one each for the title characters played by Tyne Daly and Sharon Gless.

'I'm thinking about 'Cagney & Lacey: The Movie," says Rosenzweig, "It would be a theatrical release. You can't save a series with a TV movie."

"The economy of making a justified this summer. The movie for TV is glutted. There are so many, they are selling movies for less than they did five years ago. 'Cagney & Lacey' is a show that refuses to die and I'm excited about doing things we couldn't do on

For TV's 'Star Search' – Heeeere's Ed

By Vernon Scott UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Ed McMahon, the nation's best all-round intro artist whether selling beer, shilling for banks or introducing Johnny Carson, has his own new show this fall, this time selling talent.

Big, jovial Ed will be seen weekly on 178 syndicated stations as host of Star Search, a linear descendent of Major Bowes, Ted Mack and Arthur Godfrey's amateur hours.

Ed, however, is limiting his contestants to professionals, undiscovered

Star Search, under the aegls of Bob Banner, who produces Solld Gold, offers national exposure to young hopefuls in several categories - actors, dancers, singers, vocal groups. comedians and beauties who do commercials.

Each hour-long show will feature 14 acts in eight categories with the talent being Judged by producers, casting directors, talent agencies and other professionals looking for star material.

There's an interesting twist for the acting aspirants. They are judged on scenes played with established guest stars on the show, among them Joan Collins, Linda Gray and Vekte Lawrence.

The stream of newcomers will be broken up with such other guests as Barbara Mandrell, Bill Cosby, Bob Newhart, Ben Vereen and Bob Hope. And it wouldn't surprise Ed to find Carson stop by, too.

"Our show will have no losers," Ed said. "It is an elimination contest over 26 weeks. If the winner remains on the air, he or she can collect $100,000. Each winner gets $2,000 and the runners-up collect $1,000.

You could say we are carrying on the old tradition of amateur nights but we'll be dealing with stars-to-be, not amateurs. It's more like an audition.

"I know about auditions. When I was a 16-year-old high school kid in Lowell (Mass.) I auditioned for WLLH radio and came in second to Ray Goulding, who went on to Boston and later became half of the Bob and Ray

"A lot of stars began this way. Sinatra was on Major Bowes' Amateur Hour four times and never won. Ann-Margret came in second once on Godfrey's Talent Scouts. We hope to spot talent like that on Star Search. And I think we will."

McMahon is an ideal master of ceremontes for a talent show.

He is a distinct American type. Of all the people in television, few have shown more staying power than big Ed, despite the fact that his principal asset is just being himself.

He has been Carson's sidekick and foll for 20 years. Ed is a household name who represents 50 different companies - 20 of them lending institutions - in TV commercials. print ads, trade journals and at industry conventions.

Companies gain a patina of folksiness when they associate themselves with the genial Irishman.

Ed is the sort of guy you expect to find with a beer in one hand and a bowling ball in the other at the local lanes. He could be the life of the party with a lampshade on his head at the office blowout.

It is the McMahons of the world who win the watermelon eating contest at the company picnic. He's the jovial, glad-handing conventioneer at the bar with the latest jokes.

"I suppose I look like the guy next door," Ed said agreeably. "I was president of the freshman class at Boston College and when I was in the service the other guys hung out at my

"Companies have done a lot of surveys on me and I guess they think I project trustworthiness and gregariousness.

"Wherever I go strangers start talking to me as if we'd just left off a conversation a few minutes earlier. I hardly ever get 'Mr. McMahon. Almost everybody calls me Ed immediately."

Ed's easy disposition will help quell the butterflies of the contestants on Star Search. After years of Introducing guests on the Tonight show, he's a big, comfortable cushion for the camera-shy.

Tom Selleck: The Nicest Guy In Hollywood

By Vernon Scott UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - The nicest guy in Hollywood lives in Hawaii.

Tom Selleck.

The star of CBS-TV's Magnum, P.I. is the most praised performer in show biz, admired by bigshots and plebeians altke.

In the bitchy movie colony where most actors are held in contempt, Selleck is an exception. Even tabloids can't find anyone to speak ill of the big galoot with the rakish mustache and self-mocking mien.

Selleck is hot, an international sex symbol for women of all ages, a fact that makes him as uneasy as a flea on a hot stove.

When gushy female interviewers comment on his handsome kisser. Selleck is like the guy who stumbles into the ladies room by mistake. panic-stricken and looking for an escape hatch.

But it's true. Selleck is such a nice guy that even his former wife, a blond beauty named Jacqueline, has only praise for the man.

CBS and the producers of Magnum. P.I. are astonished by their good fortune as the series moves into its fourth year. They've got a guy who isn't asking for a billion dollars to capitalize on his instant superstardom.

Neither is Selleck demanding more control, story approval, director approval or outright title to the network's logo.

He could easily quit on one pretext or another, hire lawyers to defend his counted millions making movies with huge profit participation.

Selleck is, in fact, importuned by agents, producers and other hustlers to decamp Magnum and flee to greener greenbacks.

Confronted with the fact that his contractual fidelity could set a dangerous trend. Selleck laughed easi-

'Hey, look," he said, "I stay with the series because I don't believe contracts were written to be broken. I'm not being noble. I'm operating in my own self-interest.

"If you treat people ethically, you can expect to be treated the same way in return. A contract to me is a legal clarification of giving your word. A man should always keep his word."

If Selleck hasn't opted out of Magnum for economic reasons, neither has he uncoupled himself for artistic reasons.

Many a successful series star hits up the networks for more money, saying, "I've done all I can with this character." or "The challenge is gone."

Says Selleck. "I'm not tired of Magnum, I enjoy the character. The work schedule is hard and it drains me, but I'm proud of our show. I'm happy I'm in it and I want to stay with

"Like all series, we do some good shows and some bad. But we always try. The cast and crew get along very well."

'People try to convince me to leave." he said. "They don't stop to think between 150 and 200 people would be out of work if I quit. I owe something to the rest of the cast, the producers and Universal TV."

Selleck is especially pumped up over the first Mugnum episode of the new season, which he thinks is the best so far.

It finds Magnum in danger of drowning, and through flashbacks he relives moments of his childhood with his parents and his combat experiences in Vietnam.

"We go into who Magnum really is and why he behaves like he does," Selleck said. "We are developing a whole past for Magnum, and a future

Off To See The 'Wizard'

By Cindy Adams

NEW YORK — Jack Haley Jr., son of the Tin Man in "The Wizard of Oz" and former son-in-law of its star Judy Garland (Junior was once Liza Minnelli's husband), has clamped onto some missing "Wizard" footage. "The Jitterbug," a song and dance segment that had been axed entirely, was found in the home of the film's composer Harold Arlen. Arlen's home movies of the segment, taken from a camera angle behind the scene, show a prop-man inside a prop tree moving the branches to the music. Haley Jr., producer of ABC's "Ripley's Believe It or Not!," will air this sequence on his show.

V 'Lottery' Tops Viewer Fantasy

By Vernon Scott UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - What would YOU do if you won a $5 million lottery?

Not a whole helluva lot, according to limited research of state lottery winners.

Producer Rick Rosner of the new Lottery TV series checked out a dozen big winners before starting the show and was surprised at how little individual lifestyles changed after the windfall.

"Almost all the winners were normal, average people who didn't let all that money make any radical changes in their lives," said Rosner, a youngish, articulate man who created the late, lamented CHIPs series.

"They usually did something nice for someone else with their money first. They bought homes for their parents or pald off mortgages.

Rosner's partner, Rickie Gaifney, a comely strawberry blonde, said, "One of the common acquisitions is a vacation home or early retirement - although many winners carry on their jobs as

According to Rosner, most Instant American millionaires aren't self-indulgent. They don't splurge on expensive cars, yachts or other flashy extravagances - at least not at first.

There was an Australian guy, however, who went bananas. After winning he took off for Las Vegas. lived it up with chorus girls, hit the casinos and luxuriated for six eventful, fun-filled months.

Then he returned to Australia flat broke to resume his house painting career.

More typical was the 75-year-old Chicago barber who bought the shop in which he'd worked for years and also bought two other tonsorial parlors across the street. But he continued to cut hair as always.

A Chicago cleaning lady who worshiped Sammy Davis Jr. flew to San Francisco to meet her idol and threw a party for him.

One woman who hit the Jackpot thought the bearer of her winnings was a practical joker and threw the envelope containing a million-dollar check, plus $5,000 cash, in a trash compacter. The check was rewritten but the five grand was lost

In some form or other, these tales have been worked into various scripts of Lottery, a show that is somewhat derivative of the old Millionaire series in which a philanthropist stunned strangers with checks for a million smackers.

Producer Rosner said Lottery is different because there are three winners in each hour episode. There are other differences as well.

"Our winners get from $2 million to $7 million and involve one main story and secondary stories one a runner, usually comic, and the other a blackout," he explained. "They are not three equal

"Also, our winners bought tickets in hopes of becoming millionaires like people who buy chances on the Irish sweepstakes."

Rags-to-riches is a cherished American dream and Rosner hopes to show money can buy happiness. All the same, he admits the odds are a billion to one a lottery ticket will be a winner.

Lotteries, indeed, are an American tradition. The first lottery was organized by Benjamin Franklin in 1775 to help finance the Continental Army.

Currently there are 18 state-sponsored lotteries.

Six additional states - California, Alabama, Florida, Iowa, Louisiana and New Mexico - are weighing the idea.

Lottery tickets vary in cost from $1 to $5 or more. Some states have increased the number of lottery games in progress. Delaware, for instance, now has Lottery sales have gone up from $800 million a couple of years ago to $4.2 billion in 1982. The Pennsylvania lottery this month split $18.1 million among three winners.

Asked what he would do with a $5 million lottery win, Rosner looked a bit self-conscious. That amount is probably a drop in the bucket to what he realized from CHIPs.

'Yeah," he said, "CHIPs paid off for me, but I'm working harder than ever. If I hit the jackpot I'd just continue what I'm doing but maybe take a year off to think things over."

Co-producer Gaffney didn't hesitate a moment. She said, "I'd move to Ireland for at least a year and I'd pay off my parents' mortgage. After that, I'd take things one step at a time."

Why Kenny Rogers Gambles On Acting

By Dick Kleiner

SEDONA, Ariz. (NEA) - Kenny Rogers is a notorious dilettante. He dabbles in this, he plays with that. But during his dabbling and playing. he goes all out.

At the moment, tennis and photography are his consuming passions.

He is in a beautiful but remote area of Arizona to do a follow-up to his successful CBS movie The Gambler. This one is called, naturally, The Gambler Part II.

As the star, he is busy most of the time - but not all of the time.

"If he can, he'll play tennis eight hours a day," says Ken Kragen, his manager, friend and producer of the film. "As for photography, he even has a darkroom set up in the back of his motor home. He is always taking pictures and then developing them."

Inside the motor home, indeed there is a small darkroom, and ribbons of photos crisscross the tiny room. It may all be a subconscious protest. because he's doing something (acting) that he claims he really never wanted

"I'd never acted." Rogers says. "I had done one play in high school -How Green Was My Valley - and one musical play - HMS Pinafore. But 1 can't imagine that I was any good in either of them.'

He never hungered for acting roles. even after he had achieved fame as a singer. He says he didn't need the money, didn't need the fame, and didn't need the artistic gratification. But the pressures were enormous for him to act - first on TV and then in features such as Stx Pack - so he

"I sort of enjoy it now," he says, "but I can't claim to be doing any real acting. The parts I play, like Brady Hawkes in these Gambler TV movies. are only slight variations of myself. And that's fine with mc - 1 have no urge to play King Lear."

There was one major reason why he resisted the offers to become an actor. Rogers suffers from a condition called nystagmus - the eyeball involuntarily jumps — and he felt if it happened while he was doing a close-up that he'd look foolish or cause delays in the shooting. But he says he's learned to cope with it and control it to a sufficient extent, so it's not troublesome.

His goals, however, are not acting goals. In fact, when pressed for his goals, he could only think of one.

"I know this may sound silly," he says. "but I'd really like to be taken more seriously by the press. One of these days. I'd likee to make the cover of Time or Newsweck."

Kenny Rogers

Rogers' career has had its ups and downs, although currently it seems to be all ups. Kragen recalls a time, however, when Rogers had just left The First Edition singing group and was working as the opening act for The Captain and Tennille. He was very depressed and discouraged.

'I managed to get him up again," Kragen says. "I had help from John Davidson in doing it. John was a guest host on Johnny Carson's show. and they allow the guest host to bring somebody with him, and John brought Kenny. That was a big help to

"Then Kenny played the Golden Nugget in Las Vegus - it's a downtown place, you know, less prestige than on the strip, but I went out and really promoted that gig. I got all the Vegas cabbies to come in, got the hotel help to come in. Even though it was the worst week of the year — just before Christmas — it was a sellout. That helped get Kenny up again, too.'

One of Kragen's business philosophics is always to return an investment, so when Rogers had his first big Las Vegas date, he made the singer return his first week's salary -$75,000 - in the form of buying ads. financing promotions and such.

'It worked for Kenny," Kragen says. "Kenny believes in that idea now as much as I do.'

Directors On Hollywood Work

By Dick Kleiner HOLLYWOOD (NEA) -Women's libbers try to make much out of the fact that Joan Darling directed one movie ("First Love") and hasn't directed one since. They read all sorts of sinister and sexist signs into that simple statement.

"The main reason I haven't done a feature since 'First Love' is that first experience was not totally satisfying," says Miss Darling. "There were some unpleasant developments nothing to do with the act of directing itself, but with the politics of it all, the fact that a lot of the picture turned out to be not precisely the way I had wanted it."

She says she has had offers to do other films, but because of the previous experience, she turned them down. In the intervening six years, she did some TV directing "but mostly I just

Her husband (screenwriter/painter Bill Svanoe) is allergic to Los Angeles' smog, so they moved to Vail, Colo.

"I find," she says,"that I can just sit around and do nothing and be very busy and satisfied."

But now she's back being busy and satisfied while directing her second feature, "The Check is in the Mail." It was written by and is being produced by Robert Kaufman and stars Brian Dennehy and Anne Archer.

These days she is even dressing for her directing role. When she did "First Love," she wore blue jeans and old shirts but, in retros-pect, decided that wasn't feminine enough. A director she may be, but she is a woman, too. So now she has assembled a wardrobe of what she calls "my going out to direct clothes," like the outfit she was wearing - a white sweatshirt, adorned with white frilly stuff, and a neat pair of white slacks. RICHARD FLEISCHER is the director of "Amity-ville 3-D." When it was fin-Ished he felt it was too loose, so he cut out 25 minutes to tighten it. But that made it too short for TV and so, for the TV version, he put those 25 minutes back.

When you eventually see It at home for the first time you will be seeing a TV version of a feature that is longer than the theatrical version, and contains footage not shown in theaters.

MICHAEL RITCHIE is another director worth discussing. His latest film is "The Survivors," with Walter Matthau, Robin Williams and Jerry Reed. It pleased some critics, displeased is the best thing he's done so far, and his credits include "The Candidate," "Smile," "The Bad News Bears" and "Semi-Tough."

"But," he says, "there is no correlation between the pictures I think are good and those that do well at the box office. Until this one, I'd always felt 'Smile' was one of my best. Perhaps the very best.
"But it was crushed at the box office - like Godzilla stepping on a wildflower. It did nothing, somewhere around $500,000 in its initial release. Yet, today, it's a cult film and many people tell me it's one of their all-time favorites. Joan Rivers says she has it at home and runs it often.

"On the other hand, there was 'The Bad News Bears.' It was, at best, a nice little picture, but as it turned out. it made me more money than I ever dreamed of."
