City responds to residents' lawsuit; argues plaintiffs don't have a case

Attorneys for the city of Sanford have filed a motion to dismiss a lawsuit filed by a group of Historic District residents.

The residents' lawsuit contends the city violated its own ordinances and regulations when the city commission granted a parking waiver to Seminole Volunteer Enterprises.

In its motion to dismiss, the city argues the seven residents, among other things, failed to "articulate the manner in which Plaintiffs are aggrieved or adversely affected. Furthermore, the city argues in its motion that the plaintiffs do not have standing to file a lawsuit because they do not live adjacent to the property at issue.

Commissioners may see pay slashed

By Russ White
Staff Writer

SANFORD — The most resounding decision the County Charter Review Commission made Wednesday was to "cut" the salaries of those who serve on the Board of Seminole County Commissioners. How much of a reduction will be discussed at another meeting.

The Charter Review Commission also voted down a proposal to elect a County Chairman, similar to what is done in Orange County — that would have made the chairman responsible for running the day-to-day operations of the county. Fred Stretman, a highly respected county commissioner made the motion to lower commission salaries and received unanimous support — a 13-0 vote by the Charter Review members present. Paul Tremel and Terri Hattaway were absentees.

Charter review members must determine size of pay cut

BCC members are currently paid $60,366. Hattaway has proposed cutting this to $6,000. Charter Review member Jimmy Ross has suggested establishing the same salary for county commissioners and school board members. School board members now earn $30,218. Whatever the Charter Review Commission decides to recommend would go to the voters in a referendum election.

"The work of a county commissioner is part-time, and a person should not seek the office because of the pay," Ross said. "And the pay should not be the means to earning a living. A person should offer himself/herself for public office because of a desire to serve and make a contribution to the community in which he/she serves."

Ross said he knew of no reason why there should be such a disparity between commission and school board members. Two men, running for a commission

Police arrest 'chop shop' operators

Business may have ties to Orlando, Miami

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Investigators arrested two men Wednesday for operating a chop shop out of an unlicensed Longwood auto body business. Five stolen cars and stolen auto parts worth an estimated $125,000 were seized by investigators at Anderson Paint and Body, located at 104 Baywood Avenue.

Investigators believe a used car dealership in Orange County, as well as a business in Miami, may have been involved.

"It's hard to say how far this is going to go," said Steve Olson, a spokesman for the Seminole County Sheriff's Office. "We know about the suspected Orange County and Miami connection."

Business owner Andrew Anderson, 38, and employee James Martin, 37, both of Orlando, are charged with five counts of grand theft auto, and with operating a chop shop in which stolen auto parts were used to rebuild totaled cars. The unsafe cars would then be placed back on the road, investigators said. "More charges could follow," said Olson.

Anderson has a relative in Miami who may have been involved in the operation, according to investigators. "They may have been shipping the cars down to Miami," Olson said. "From there, the cars could be shipped elsewhere."

The stolen cars seized by deputies are all from model year 1998 or 1999. The brands include Mitsubishi, Toyota Camry and Toyota Corolla. Investigators believe the operation bought wrecked cars, legally, from auto auctions. Cars that matched the wrecked cars

Teachers needed; shortages predicted for years ahead

By Nick Pfeiffert
Staff Writer

Education officials in Tallahassee as well as locally, are predicting a critical teacher shortage during upcoming years, especially in special education areas.

Seminole County Schools Director of Personnel and Human Relations, John Reichert said, "We are about in the same condition as the rest of the state, especially in a shortage of special education teachers."

He said right now there is a need for speech/language pathology instructors in the Exceptional Student Education program. While this need is expected to continue, in the future he said there will be several additional areas where there will be a critical need, such as advanced math and science and chemistry in elementary and middle schools.

"We maintain a job hotline which operates 24-hours a day," he explained. "We put openings on the line for a period of at least three days, and if we receive no applicants, we often put the jobs on line again." The hotline phone number for Seminole County Schools is 407-320-0300.

Statewide, the Florida Department of Education has listed four teacher categories already in need and will be bringing a request before the State Board of Education on Feb. 22, for hiring as soon as possible. They include teachers of English for students who speak other languages, technology education, middle and secondary level mathematics and science, and exceptional student education teachers.

Under the exceptional student education, shortages include persons who would teach emotionally, mentally, and SANFORD — Seminole County students ranked number one among the state's 67 school districts for the percent of 1997-98 Florida graduating seniors receiving a Bright Futures Scholarship, according to a report released by the state.

A total of 991 students received Bright Futures Scholarships out of 2,836 graduating seniors in Seminole County, for a percentage of 34.9 percent.

The students received either 100 percent or 75 percent scholarships for the 1998-99 school year, based on their high school GPA and SAT or ACT score.

"This is a remarkable accomplishment," said Seminole County School Board member Larry Furlong. "It's a system wide accomplishment. That's money in parents' pockets."

The University of Florida Lab School ranked second with 28 students receiving the scholarships out of 95 graduating seniors, for a rate of 34.1 percent. Finishing third was the Taylor County school district at 31.7 percent, with 44 students receiving Bright Futures Scholarships out of 139 graduates.

Valusia County ranked No. 7 with 786 recipients of Bright Futures Scholarships out of 2,598 graduating seniors, a rate of 30.3 percent. Meanwhile, Orange County ranked No. 44 in the state with 1,271 recipients of Bright Futures Scholarships out of 5,490 graduating seniors, a rate of 23.2 percent.

To use the scholarship, a student must enroll in an eligible Florida public or private post-secondary educational institution within three years of high school graduation.

 seat in 2000, agreed with the Charter Review Board proposal. Andrew Van Gaale, a Democrat opposing incumbent Grant Maloy in District 1 and Bob West, a Republican opposing incumbent Daryl McLain in District 5, said they were seeking office to serve and not to make big bucks.

"I'd serve for no salary," Van Gaale said. "What's important to me is the quality of life for everyone in the county, the quality of life for our children." West said the charter committee made a good call. "This is exactly what we had in mind when we wrote the Contract for the County," West said.

Prior to its salary call for commissioners, the Review Board ran into a number of snags on its proposals to lessen the powers of government in regard to taxes, capital improvements, purchase of property, issuance of bonds and placing a limitation or cap on the insurance of bonds.

Harry Stewart, who will serve as legal counsel to the commission, said that the above restrictions to government were inconsistent with general law — in other words, illegal. There would be an inconsistency with the state's taxing authority. Ross agreed, saying that the way to stop the county commissioners from spending was to limit indebtedness.

The Charter group has nine more issues to discuss at a meeting on February 23. The issue dealing with the County Clerk of the Courts was delayed to that meeting.

The scholarship program is funded through the state lottery. Annual awards from the scholarship program may be for up to 45 semester credit hours or the equivalent.

Funds from any scholarship within the program may not be used to pay for remedial or college-preparatory course work.

Seminole County school-district officials begin discussing the Bright Futures Scholarship Program with students when they are in middle school.

"Seminole County has always had students perform very well," said Robin Purdy, a counselor at Seminole High School. "Awareness is the number one thing."

Counselors at the schools encourage students to take preparation courses and practice tests for the Scholastic Aptitude Test and the ACT.

"If they don't do well on a test the first time, we tell them to keep working at it," Purdy said.

In addition, students are also encouraged to take honors and advanced placement level courses, which offer boosted grade standards.

Boy slips in tree, hangs himself

By Bill Kerns

LAKE MARY — Two off-duty reserve deputies for the Seminole County Sheriff's Office on Wednesday rescued an 11-year-old boy who accidentally hung himself with a vinyl dog leash.

Sam Todd remains in critical but stable condition at Arnold Palmer Hospital for Children and Women. He is suffering from anoxia — oxygen deprivation — according to hospital spokesman Joe Brown.

"He has been placed on ventilator assistance to get a higher concentration of oxygen into his bloodstream," Brown said. "The first 24 to 48 hours will be critical."

Reserve Deputies Mike Bernosky and Dave Herman were preparing to leave the Mandy Run Subdivision at about 4:15 p.m., having completed landscaping jobs for their company, To Protect and Cut Lawn Service. Before turning onto the subdivision along Rhinehart Road, they noticed Todd hanging from a full-sized oak tree located within a retention area.

"We send out our prayers that he'll have a full and complete recovery," Bernosky said. "It was just a tragic accident."

The incident occurred when Todd took time from walking his dog to climb a tree. He carried the 3-foot leash with him while making the climb, and the leash became stuck on a branch.

Bernosky and Herman said they found him hanging nine feet above the ground, unable to breathe. His dog was under the tree and barking, but ran as the two reserve deputies approached.

"I noticed what appeared to be the lifeless body of the boy hanging from the tree," Herman said. "At first, we were both in disbelief. We pulled over and ran to him."

Herman cut the leash while Bernosky pulled the boy from the tree. Although the child did have a pulse, he was unresponsive.

The two assisted the child in resuming breathing.

"He was completely unresponsive to verbal commands," Herman said.

Lake Mary police responded to the scene after Herman and Bernosky called for assistance. Police were able to locate Todd's parents.

"We got a call about 4:16 p.m. from a landscaper who said he found a young boy hanging from a tree," said Deputy Chief Sam Belfiore of Lake Mary Police Department. "He said the boy had stopped breathing."

Paramedics were called, and Todd was airlifted to ORMC. He was later transferred to Arnold Palmer Hospital.

"The little boy was playing with his dog," Belfiore said. "He began climbing a tree, and we believe he had the leash wrapped around his body in some way when he slipped. The leash became caught on something and it strangled the boy."

"If it wasn't for the landscapers, the boy would have died," Belfiore said.

Belfiore said that parents should talk with their children about making sure they do not have anything like a rope or a leash that could seriously injure them if they were to slip and become tangled in it.

 physically handicapped, as well as those who are speech and language, hearing and visually impaired or have specific learning disabilities.

Education Commissioner Tom Gallagher said these particular areas are badly needed immediately.

Gallagher said that while enrollment growth has begun to taper off recently, following a massive influx of students, he still expects an annual increase of one percent or more through the year 2005. He said the need for teachers will be higher however, as the teacher workforce dwindles because of age. Most Florida teachers were born in 1947 than any other year.

The number of college graduates in the field of education has been growing with the 1997-98 graduates said to be the largest ever, more than double the number graduating in the mid 1980s. In 1997, Florida public and private colleges and universities produced 6,055 new teachers. However, the distribution of graduates by subject does not match the demand for new teachers, creating a continuing shortage in specific subject areas.

Long term, Crawford said the number and percentage of minority teacher education graduates are up, but the percentage of minority teachers continues to lag behind the percentage of minority students in Florida's public schools.

 were then stolen for their parts, and the wrecked cars were repaired with the stolen parts. Vehicle identifications were removed from the stolen parts.

The wrecked cars would then be placed on the market for resale, according to investigators.

"You can buy totaled cars for the parts, but you can't legally put them back in the road here in Florida," Olson said.

The investigation began on Monday based on a tip. Surveillance was performed Tuesday by agents with the multi-agency City-County Investigative Bureau. The business was shut down when Anderson and Martin were arrested Wednesday.

"Someone in the community thought something shady was going on," Olson said.

In addition, safety inspectors are also looking into electrical code violations at the business.

Cousin's cutting remarks may sever family tie

DEAR ABBY: I'm at my wit's end. My cousin "Sheila" and I are very close. She lives around the corner and comes over almost daily to play with my 20-month-old daughter, "Megan." The problem is, Sheila says unkind things about Megan's behavior, such as, "Evidently those child-rearing books you read haven't worked," or, "If you can't control her at 20 months, how will you control her when she's a teen-ager?" The worst is, "You know, I have a love/hate relationship with Megan — I really love her, but after a while I can't stand being around her."

Megan likes to squeal. She sometimes cries a little too loudly and doesn't always want to share her toys, but my husband and I try to discipline her. The rest of our friends and family members think she is well-behaved, and many of them think the problem is with Sheila. They say they've seen her encourage Megan to act wildly just to see what my husband and I would do.

I love my cousin, and Megan loves her, too. However, I'm not sure whether or not I should put some distance between us. Sheila is very sensitive, and the last time I spoke to her about this, she wouldn't talk to me for a week. Megan is attached to Sheila, and I am not sure I should jeopardize their relationship. Please help.

MEGAN'S MOM IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR MOM: Something is wrong with an adult who derives pleasure from getting a child in trouble. If it continues, your daughter will never know where she stands with this immature and somewhat sadistic individual.

Tell Sheila to stop popping in and out of your home dispensing unkind and unasked-for observations about your child-rearing ability. If she wants to be part of your daughter's life, she should start giving Megan "unconditional love" — or stay home.

Message in bottle — Coca-Cola downsizing

From what we're hearing, Coca-Cola has some troubles. Stock is in a tailspin, 6,000 workers are going to be laid off. The bottle club's new president is a man named Daft.

How can this be? How can America be so well off when the country's favorite soft drink is losing its fizz? Is there a greater American treasure than Coca-Cola?

Once upon a time there was a Coca-Cola plant in Sanford. It was operating as early as 1908 when this newspaper was born imagine the Herald outlasting Coke in Sanford.

The great Ty Cobb invested his baseball earnings in Coca-Cola and became a multimillionaire. He was a clever business man who made shrewd investments. Cobb was said to be worth $10 million when he died in 1961. I don't know if he drank Coke.

Remember the song, "Rum & Coca-Cola?" That was a long time ago — the 1940s. I still hum the tune. It was catchy. I have a feeling the Andrews Sisters sang it. Someone like Britany Spears isn't old enough to sing or to drink Rum & Coca-Cola.

Through the years we've been told that "Things Go Better With Coke," and that "Coke is the Real Thing." Coca-Cola became a quintessential global giant because of its catchy slogans and despite the ill-fated "New Coke" it tried a few years ago.

A friend gave me an antique advertising poster for Coca-Cola of ventriloquist Edgar Bergen and Charley McCarthy. A flea market, of course, isn't the real thing without Coca-Cola collectibles. Douglas Daft is up to his executive neck in Coca-Cola treasures.

The Coke machine at the Herald is reloaded every other day. One of the perks of working here is the 50-cent Coke.

Apparently, Coke is 75 cents or more in most vending machines. It's probably $3.00 at the Orlando Arena (or whatever it's being called nowadays).

Coca-Cola was a nickel when I was a kid. That was before Coke came in cans.

When Denny McLain was pitching in the Major Leagues, he used to drink a case of Coca-Cola a day. Some days he had two cases. McLain won 31 games in 1968. He's the last 30-game winner in baseball. He's also the last guy to down 200 cases of Coke in a single season.

While wishing Mr. Daft well in his efforts to run the world's No. 1 soft-drink company, I can not promise to be a buyer. I'm not a Coca-Cola drinker. Never have been. Didn't taste the stuff until I was 18. I've had a dozen or so since then.

Coke isn't the real thing in my life. Neither is Pepsi especially with those goofy television ads.

Dedication Of Good Samaritan Rest Home fulfillment of Mother Ruby Wilson's dream

Editor's Note: The following is a page from the April 27, 1972, Congressional Record regarding the dedication of the Good Samaritan Rest Home.

Mr. CHILES: Mr. President, during my campaign walk through Florida in 1970, I had the opportunity to attend the groundbreaking ceremony for the Good Samaritan Rest Home in Sanford. This bi-racial home for the aged is a living tribute to Mother Ruby Wilson, a black lady who has been an inspiration to the entire Sanford community. On that day, I said that it seemed a shame that her life should be hidden in Sanford, rather than being an influence all over the State.

On April 16, 1972, I again had the privilege of being in Sanford—this time for the dedication of the new home. It was a happy day for Mother Wilson, for the small community and for the entire State of Florida. As Ruby Wilson so often stated:

"All things are possible through the grace of God."

Mother Wilson, born in 1908, has been caring for the afflicted and the needy since she was 9 years old. She wanted to be a nurse, but nursing training was not available for blacks in Florida at that time, so she learned practical nursing.

In 1948, members of the Free Will Holiness Church, under Mother Wilson's guidance, built the first unit of the building as a haven for the aged, the handicapped, and the helpless, where no one was turned away because of lack of funds. The State board of health told them they would have to close the home, because of inadequate fire protection.

However, Mother Wilson would not be discouraged and she started the building project involving a cost of over $50,000. Contributions came from all over Seminole County and from outside the county.

Since the first opening of the home, over 500 people have been cared for by Mother Ruby Wilson and her dedicated staff. The Good Samaritan Rest Home is a nonprofit corporation, still associated with the Free Will Holiness Church. Mother Wilson also oversees Rest Haven, a shelter care center for the children of working parents and a storage house. In this storeroom, Mother Wilson gathers food, clothing, appliances, furniture, wood fuel, and other useful items donated by the general public. She then dispenses them as "blessings" to the needy persons in Sanford.

The dedication, devotion and hard work of Mother Wilson and the citizens of Sanford should serve as an example to us all. On this auspicious occasion — have watched the people of this community — black and white — rich and poor — work together for the common good. It has been a heartwarming experience for me and it reaffirms my faith in local community action and participation. I ask unanimous consent that an article from the April 17, 1972, Sanford Herald be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Good Samaritan Home Dedicated By Ann Siczekowski "The Impossible Dream" No, not impossible — not even improbable — not with abiding faith in God which sustains that unshakable attitude of a wonderful woman, Ruby Wilson, who unswervingly believes that "All things are possible through the Grace of God".

Sunday was a day of profound impact on the lives of 26 residents of the Good Samaritan Rest Home, and on the lives of the incredible Mother Wilson, her husband, Timothy Wilson, and the board of directors of the Home which has been for so many, a home, love, care, and work, all of which contributed to the restoration of a will to live, a revitalized sense of personal dignity and worth, and a desire to return that kindness received at Good Samaritan with good service to others.

For today marks the realization of a dream long held by Mother Wilson and her board of local citizens whose efforts throughout the past several years has culminated in the ceremonies celebrated on a Sunday afternoon made brilliant with the glorious rays of Florida sunshine and further enhanced with the families of equal brilliance on the faces of those who have worked for so long for this day to arrive.

On this auspicious occasion — the dedication and ribbon cutting signifying the opening of the new Home for at least 26 residents — a home where citizens from all walks of life and from all over Seminole County, as well as many from outside the county, have contributed toward its completion and still contributions come in.

Present to share the joy of the home were steering committee chairman John Krider; treasurer Robert Daehn and members of the committee, Dr. and Mrs. Vincent Roberts, Henry McAllister, Mrs. Randall Chase, Mrs. J. J. Siczekowski, Dr. George Starke, Charles T. Phillips, Dr. J. C. Ringling, Arthur Mackey, Robert Ek, Martin Nelawander, D. A. McCoy, Mrs. G. Jackson, Rev. J. E. Conley, Gordon Bradley, E. L. Blackshear, Sidney Vihlen, Mrs. Helen Tucker and George Touhy.

It was in 1948 that members of the Free Will Holiness Church, under Mother Wilson's leadership, built the first unit of the building which has served since that time as a refuge from a world where nobody else cared. The aged, the handicapped, and helpless persons came or were sent by authorities, or were brought by someone who knew of the work going on at Good Samaritan. The Home is open to anyone regardless of race, color or creed. If the person has the means, he is requested to pay a small fee but he will not be turned away because of lack of money. In addition to caring for those who require special attention, Mother Wilson also has, through the generosity of the area citizens stocked a small storehouse with good useable clothing, appliances, furniture, dishes, and fuel. These are dispensed among the needy persons who are brought to the attention of Mother Wilson.

And these two functions are not the end of her boundless energy and remarkable contributions to this community — she also established a day nursery for working mothers, in which classes are held and taught by Lelia Ross, wife of one of Mother Wilson's assistants. Mrs. Ross, who studied at Stetson University, performs these services at the little school at considerable financial sacrifice but says that she would have it no other way. Also sheltered from the environment which denied them are orphaned and abandoned children.

Stirring musical tributes were sung by the Community Singers under the direction of Joseph Williams and selections by the Woman's Club Chorus of Deltona with Mrs. Paul Rose, director, evoked enthusiastic applause as they sang for the large crowd assembled on this momentous occasion to celebrate the realization of "The 'Not' Impossible Dream," the dedication of a new Good Samaritan Home and the beginning of another era in unexcelled community service by Mother Wilson and her staff.

Master of ceremonies for the dedication program was Daehn, treasurer of the steering committee. The inspiring invocation was given by Charles Phillips. Acting Mayor Gordon Meyer spoke of the asset to this entire area, which is embodied in the operation of the home. Dr. Starke referred to the dedication of this home as a dedication to mankind, as it has always been truly a dedicated service to the less fortunate. The blessing and benediction spoken with such reverence and gratitude by the Rev. William Pickett, of Community United Methodist Church of Casselberry, concluded the programs, followed by the ribbon cutting and an open house celebration.

The church and the new home were filled to capacity with well wishers and it was a joyous and beautiful thing to see how much has been accomplished. To see the faces of some of the residents being taken through the new home and hear them say, "Is that really going to be my room?" was enough to make one glad that one had even a small part in today's events. And it was enough to make first time visitors want to become a part of that home by helping.

Government regulates construction industry

The introduction to the sections in the Florida Statutes that deal with construction contracting specifically indicates that the Legislature recognizes that the construction and home improvement industries may pose a danger of significant harm to the public when incompetent or dishonest contractors provide unsafe, unstable or short-lived products or services. Therefore, it is necessary in the interest of the public health, safety and welfare to regulate the construction industry.

The construction industry is regulated by the Department of Business and Professional Regulation. In order to afford the public the most protection reasonably possible, the department requires that, absent an exemption, anyone who engages in the business or acts in the capacity of a contractor be duly certified.

In order for a person to become a certified contractor, the person must apply for certification in writing, pay the applicable fees and pass an examination in the area or areas in which certification is being sought. In turn, in order for a person to be eligible for licensure by examination the person must fulfill three basic requirements.

Manny Acevedo

First, the person must be 18 years of age or older. Second, the person must be of good moral character. Third, the person must have a combination of education and experience as defined by statute.

Presumably, because the requirements of "good moral character" could be interpreted differently by different evaluators, an applicant may be refused for failure to satisfy this requirement only if: (1) There is a substantial connection between the lack of good moral character of the applicant and the professional responsibilities of a certified contractor; and (2) The lack of good moral character is supported by clear and convincing evidence.

As indicated above, the person seeking licensure must also have a combination of education and experience as defined by statute.

Any one of the combinations described below will fulfill this requirement:

(1) The person must have received a baccalaureate degree from an accredited 4-year college in the appropriate field of engineering, architecture or building construction and have one year of proven experience in the category in which the person seeks to qualify.

(2) The person must have a total of at least four years of active experience as a worker who has learned the trade by serving an apprenticeship as a skilled worker who is able to command the rate of a mechanic in the particular trade or as a foreman who is in charge of a group of workers and usually is responsible to a superintendent or a contractor or his/her equipment, provided, however, that at least one year of active experience shall be as a foreman.

(3) The person must have a combination of not less than one year of experience as a foreman and not less than three years of credits for any accredited college-level courses; has a combination of not less than two years of experience as a skilled worker, one year of experience as a foreman and not less than one year of credits for any accredited college-level courses.

The requirements described above will not always protect the public from dishonest practices in the construction arena. However, if the person seeking the work is informed about who they are working with, the chances of getting "taken" are greatly diminished. In the coming weeks we will discuss the different types of certification available as well as other requirements for "upgrading" the certification.

The food is cooked fresh daily and the plates are adorned with fresh fruit, very pleasing to the discriminating eye. it truly has a wonderful family ambience. It has a full bar for those wonderful margaritas and for the teetodlers, 6 different flavored smoothies! Their speciality of the house is the Fajitas. As delicious as they are, the rest of the food is equally wonderful.

Owner-drivers try to hang on How much is $5 million? Not enough, not nearly enough. Not when many of the big players at the table are sitting on stakes of $10 million or more. Nevertheless, some of the little guys are game, and maybe an underdog will surprise us this time. But don't bet on it.

It has never been easy being an owner-driver on the NASCAR tour, but it has never been tougher than now. "It is easier to sleep at night when you don't have to worry if the bills get paid, or if this guy sick, or who's on vacation now, all those things," concedes Geoff Bodine, a one-time owner-driver who bailed out of that nightmare two years ago. "When I was doing it all, I said, 'Oh, it's no problem.' But I lied. It was a problem."

The nostalgic image of those Lone Rangers of NASCAR, challenging the guys with the big bucks and tight Detroit factory connections, is more romantic than realistic. And the Alan Kulwicki phenomenon is fast fading into distant memory.

One of the most famous of the fiercely independent owner-drivers was Bobby Allison, as independent a cuss as ever came along this road. But even Allison finally gave up the fight after so many years of struggling against the big guys.

There has always been somebody with a heckuva lot of excess cash out there wanting to play the NASCAR game and making it hard on the rest. And never has the Detroit factor been so critical to success or failure, never have NASCAR officials seemed so powerless in Daytona-Detroit debates — perhaps because never have NASCAR executives been so tight with Detroit, because of the sport's current marketing mania.

The NASCAR bosses, of course, like to keep a firm grip on their sport, and thus have a vested interest in making it difficult for unwanted outsiders to jump into the game. And they have been saddled more than once over the past 50 years with a car owner or two they might just as soon have never seen in the Winston Cup garage.

Owner-drivers have had their moments on the tour over the years, most impressively in 1992, when Kulwicki and Darrell Waltrip logged five wins for the "underdogs."

The last time an owner-driver won a Winston Cup race was Ricky Rudd at Martinsville in 1996, in an exhausting upset. But Rudd had to sell his team last season after his sponsor defected.

So how many owner-drivers are left in NASCAR? Bill Elliott, Brett Bodine, Dave Marcis, and Kyle Petty — and this season a newcomer, Robby Gordon, in one of the tour's most curious owner-driver bids. Gordon, the super-talented Indy-car star, has been just a bit too demanding to suit many in NASCAR, so he has put together his own team, to prove he can do it. And he says he has the money to back up his bid.

The plight of the fast-fading NASCAR independent may be best seen in Elliott, one of the few left of that once-promising breed spawned by Kulwicki's success in 1992. Elliott hasn't won since 1994, and last summer he found out his longtime sponsor, McDonald's, wasn't happy and would be moving on to another team at the end of this season. So Elliott is looking for a sponsor, and to hear talk in the garage, he's also listening to Ray Evernham's pitch to join the Dodge camp, although Elliott has been a Ford man since the day he bought Roger Penske's stuff years ago.

"Just trying to regroup from last year, because it was very much a disappointment for me," Elliott said. "Just hope we can get things turned around and going in the right direction."

The Dodge question? "I want to get through this year first, before I start worrying about next year," Elliott said cautiously. "I'm looking at a lot of different options for next year. We've got several months here to work on a plan, and if it doesn't come in one direction, I'm going to shift gears and go somewhere else. Wait and see."

Daytona gives hard-luck drivers a chance for a fresh start

By Rea McLeroy
LapbyLap

(Clockwise from upper left) Ken Schrader, Jimmy Spencer, Mike Skinner and Michael Waltrip have high hopes for the 2000 season.

Sitting alone in their shops, homes or planes, the drivers quietly are pondering the future. They are assessing new tire changers and crew chiefs and owners. Interviews with the media are nearly done, contracts have been signed and sponsors have been pleased. It is early February, and they believe.

This is the season they'll win a Winston Cup race. The bad luck days are over. This is the year. It just has to be.

As more than 50 Winston Cup teams head to Florida for a week of Daytona 500 activities, each one is prepared to start again and improve. Rejuvenated crews dismiss any hint of a dismal past. At least 20 drivers will tell you it's their year for a victory. At least 25 believe they can finish the season in the Top 10.

Most likely, familiar faces will appear in victory lane, with the same 10 or 13 drivers dominating the points standings. Last season, Dale Jarrett took the points lead in May and never trailed again. In 1998, Jeff Gordon moved to the top on June 28 and never trailed again.

But they all believe.

No one considers the possibility that his team could leave Daytona Beach without qualifying for the 500.

At least six teams won't make the race. No shop in America is aiming for a top-30 finish, even if that would be a huge improvement over last season. Every driver here has been a winner somewhere, why not in Winston Cup?

"There's teams that are never going to have a chance and there's teams that have a chance every now and then," driver Ken Schrader said. "You can be a team that has a chance and still hasn't done it."

The facts cannot dissuade the optimism. Some drivers turn tense under the pressure, others laugh their way through the near misses at wins. But all believe.

"It's a new team, a new season and a new millennium. Maybe I can win a race," Michael Waltrip, winless in 14 seasons, said with a laugh a couple of weeks ago.

Waltrip is one of those drivers who has been close countless times. Like Dale Earnhardt, he runs well on the superspeedways. He challenges for wins at Daytona and Talladega.

Unlike Earnhardt, he hasn't managed to grab one. His 428-race winless streak in points races is the longest in NASCAR.

Mike Skinner knows how Waltrip feels. Skinner has been on the verge of his first Winston Cup win for two years. He has led late and dominated races. He hasn't won.

"This is a tough business," Skinner said. "We went from being [truck series] champions to grass looking a little greener on the other side of the fence."

Lots of people have been close. Schrader hasn't won since 1991. Jimmy Spencer, who led late in two races last season, won two for Junior Johnson in 1994 before hitting a dry spell.

Darrell Waltrip, embarking on his self-proclaimed "Victory Tour 2000," won his last race in 1992. Ward Burton finished second to his brother three times in '99 — he last won in 1995.

All of them are tired of hearing about their losing streaks.

Skinner looks incredulously at people who ask whether he was disappointed with a winless 1999.

"Nah, I didn't really want to win any, so we just decided we'd do it this year," he said. "We're going to win twice as many this year as we did last year. Heavens, yes, it was frustrating."

"This is a good race team, and I'm sure we'll win some races. February would be a good time to win a race."

Last year, 11 different drivers won races. That was the same as in 1998.

Mark Martin, Bobby Labonte, Gordon, Jarrett, Jeff Burton and Rusty Wallace. These guys are expected to win on an annual basis.

Add Tony Stewart to that list. Terry Labonte, John Andretti, Earnhardt and Ricky Rudd generally win at least once a season. Figure on a lot of multiple wins, and the 34-race schedule doesn't have a lot of room for new names.

Schrader, Ward Burton, Skinner and Jeremy Mayfield have been so close so often, it seems unbelievable they haven't won recently. It seems inconceivable that the four could enter December still searching for that next victory.

Schrader has switched teams, taking crew chief Sammy Johns with him. The driver who consistently has finished in the top 15 wants to break into the top 10.

"The team was real close to breaking out a couple of years ago, then Ernie [Irvan] got hurt," Schrader said. "Then Ernie was able to come back and they ran good [last season,] and Ernie gets hurt again. They've got the resources available; they've got a lot of talent."

If Schrader didn't think he could win races, he wouldn't bother to run them.

"If I had to convince myself, I'm serious, I know what it feels like to hit that concrete," he said. "You do this because you love it and because you want to win. If I thought I couldn't win, I'd do something else. ... We're going to get back there."

And others are going to get there. Sometimes, it just takes time and patience — things that are in short supply in the immediate reward world of stock car racing.

But in February, they believe.

Three's welcome for UCF

Special to the Herald

ORLANDO - The University of Central Florida women's soccer team signed three highly sought-after recruits, including a local star out of Lake Howell High School, to its Trans America Athletic Conference championship squad this week.

Patty MacDowell, a 5-foot-6 defender/midfielder from Maitland, Andrea Clarkson, a 5-foot-9 forward/midfielder out of Titusville, and Courtney Haahruea, a 5-foot-6 midfielder from Tacoma, WA, all signed national letters of intent to play for the Golden Knights.

The three will be primed to fill positions left vacant by the graduation of three-time All-TAAC defender Margrette Auffant, two-time All-TAAC Tournament midfielder Wendy Willsey, team captain Alison Thomas, and four-year starting midfielder Monica Holschauer.

"We have a well-rounded incoming class, picking up a forward, an inside midfielder/defender and outside midfielder," said UCF head coach Amanda Cromwell. "There is a lot of great potential among the three and given that we had three freshman start this year, it would not be out of the question for any of these recruits to see some start time next season."

MacDowell was the defensive MVP for the 1998-99 Lake Howell Silver Hawks, a team ranked first in the nation by USA Today. She took All-County and All-Conference honors for her role in carrying Lake Howell to the Seminole Athletic Conference, District, Regional and Florida State Championships in 1999. Her defense has helped Lake Howell post 15 shutouts so far this season.

MacDowell was a member of the K.C. Kumba with five current UCF players, including All-TAAC selections Jackie VanLooven (Lake Mary HS) and Brooke Aaby (Oviedo H.S.). MacDowell helped carry Kumba to three Florida State Cup Final Four appearances, winning the championship in 1994 and taking runner-up honors in 1995.

An OPD (Olympic Development) state finalist every year since 1994, MacDowell was named to the University of Florida Elite Camp All-Star team in 1998. She won the District championship in the Triple Jump and the 4 x 100-meter medley as a member of the 1998 Lake Howell track and field team.

Clarkson scored 78 goals and 44 assists in her first three years with the Astronaut high school War Eagles. She helped her team to three District championship titles, three Regional championship appearances, and a berth in the Florida State Cup Final Four in 1997. In 1997 she was the only freshman selected to the All-Space Coast team, repeating the selection in 1998 and 1999.

A two-time All-Cape Coast Conference honoree, Clarkson was voted to the All-State team last year. Also a member of her high school track and field team, Clarkson won the 800-meter at the 1997 regionals and helped her 4 x 800-meter relay team to three regional titles.

A three year ODP regional team selection, Clarkson took her club team, the Brevard Premier, to seven State Cup tournaments. She captained the runner-up squad in 1994 and the finalist squad in 1999.

SANFORD - The Seminole Community College softball team opened the 2000 season the way it expected too, just not in the way it thought it would.

The Raiders swept the doubleheader from Brevard Community College at Lady Raider Field, but the scores were 1-0 and 2-1, not quite what coach Courtney Miller and her charges were hoping for.

"Hopefully I can chalk our offense up to first game jitters," said Miller. "We hit .217 on the day and just pressed too hard at the plate instead of relaxing. The kids were getting frustrated, as was I, because we knew we were a better team."

"Brevard played good defense and had control pitchers, but ours was just a bit better today. I was very proud of all three pitchers. They won these games for us. Freshman starters Jodi Wood (Colonial) and Sarah Reeber (Oviedo) looked like veterans out there and sophomore Kat Ciccarone, who has been rehabbing from an arm injury, pitched two strong innings for a save."

The only run of the first game came in the bottom of the sixth inning. Sophomore

Raider women suffer crushing MFC defeat

By Dean Smith
SPORTS EDITOR

JACKSONVILLE - An early-season prophecy came true Wednesday night.

When the season began back in November, local female hoops expert "Basketball Bob" said that people should not overlook Florida Community College at Jacksonville, because it had one of its best team's in years.

And the Stars proved that, putting a huge monkey wrench in state tournament hopes of the Seminole Community College Raiders with a 74-63 Mid-Florida Conference triumph.

FCC-J had served notice on Saturday that they were no slouches as they took league-leading Daytona Beach Community College down to the wire before falling, 68-66, to the Falcons in Daytona.

SCC, which has always struggled in the Stars' gym no matter how good they were, got off to a fast start, taking a 36-29 halftime lead behind nine points from 6-foot-9 freshman Suzy Gyarias, eight points from sophomore Satu Raimesalo and six points each from sophomores Keicia Smith and Shermel Donovan.

But the second half belonged to FCC-J as Nataasha Davis hit three three-pointers, April Steele buried a pair of bombs and Kim Vaughn tossed in a sixth as the Stars outscored the Raiders 45-27 over the final 20 minutes.

Davis and Steele led FCC-J (17-7 overall, 3-4 in the conference) with 21 points each, while Vaughn added 14 and Margie Mobley 12.

Gyarias paced SCC with 18 points, four rebounds and six blocked shots, while Smith, who fouled out, tallied 12.

They were the only Raiders to score in double figures as Raimesalo did not score in the second half and Donovan only hit a pair of free throws as they both finished with eight points and the team's leading scorer on the season, Kaisa Tuure, only scored seven points.

Freshmen Shaketa "Kiki" Kindred and Kristi Jones chipped in with four points each and sophomore Mevett Woolley completed the scoring with two points.

SCC fell to 23-5 overall and 3-3 in the M-FC and have lost back-to-back games with formidable Central Florida Community College, which spent most of the year ranked No. 1 in the state before suffering back-to-back losses to the Raiders and Daytona Beach, coming to town Saturday.

The game figures to be a "must-win" for SCC as they are now in a dog-fight with both CFCC and FCC-J for second place in the conference and an automatic berth in the state tournament in Chipola.

Saturday's doubleheader has the women playing at 6 p.m., followed by the men, CFCC's IROC series at Daytona.

"It's really my first experience at Daytona or with these types of cars," said Ray. "Dick Trickle and Dave Marcis have given me some helpful hints and drafted with me today. I'm having a lot of fun and it's really neat to be down here in the middle of all this."

Shawna Robinson, driver of the No. 8 Kmart Kids Race Against Drugs Ford, had the fastest speed in morning practice for the Pro2Call 200 ARCA Bondo/Mar-Hyde event at 187.813 mph.

Robinson finished runner-up in last year's ARCA event at Daytona and will be running a full schedule in the ARCA Series in 2000.

"I'm really excited and everything's very new, but to start this year off knowing I'm running a full schedule is huge for me because I love to compete," said Robinson. "I'm basically running for rookie of the year and the championship at the same time, and I feel that we can get the job done."

Matt Hutter, driver of the No. 1 Phoenix Construction Chevrolet, had the fastest overall time at 189.534 mph.

In addition to Robinson, three other female drivers will be participating in Speedweeks 2000. Tina Gordon, Angie Wilson and Kelly Sutton will attempt to qualify for the Feb. 12 Discount Auto Parts 200 Goody's Dash Series race at Daytona.

Speedweeks continues Thursday with qualifying for the Feb. 13 Pro2Call 200 ARCA Bondo/Mar-Hyde Series race and the Discount Auto Parts 200 Goody's Dash Series event on Feb. 12 presented by ACDelco Rapidfire.

MAX PAPI'S SETS FASTEST TIME AS MIAMI SPRING TRAINING OPENS

HOMESTEAD - Max Papis turned the fastest lap Wednesday at Homestead-Miami Speedway on the opening day of the fifth annual CART Spring Training. The driver of Bobby Rahal's Miller Lite Reynard-Ford turned a lap of 206.044 mph on the 1.5-mile oval, which will host the Marlboro Grand Prix of Miami presented by Toyota, the opening race of the 2000 CART FedEx Championship Series season March 24-26.

Spring Training concludes Thursday with extensive testing for the 200-mph racing machinery.

1999 Indianapolis 500 winner Kenny Brack, Papis' teammate, was second at 204.176 mph in the Shell Reynard-Ford, followed by Patrick Carpentier in the Player's/Forsythe Ford, at 203.482 mph.

Dario Franchitti crashed in turn three moments before the end of Wednesday's activities in the only incident. He was taken to Jackson Hospital for precautionary x-rays.

In other Spring Training news, Sylvester Stallone announced he will be making a film - currently titled "Champs," based on CART FedEx Series racing. Stallone will play a retired driver working with an up-and-coming star in the film, which is scheduled for a release in mid-2001.

Also, J. Kirk Russell was named CART's Chief Steward, replacing Wally Dallenbach, who retired in 1999 after 18 seasons. Russell was promoted from his position as vice president of competition.

Tickets for the March 24-26 weekend featuring the CART FedEx Championship Series are on sale during Spring Training. For additional information, call (305) 230-RACE, or visit the on-

HOROSCOPES

Your Birthday

Friday, Feb. 11, 2000
The aspects indicate that what you have going for you at the present time may be far better than you think, so continue on track in the year ahead in order to reap a harvest.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Should you find yourself in an authoritarian position today, be very explicit in your directions for what and how to handle an assignment. The results could be undermined if not fully grasped. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences that'll govern you in the year ahead. Send the required refund form and for your Astro-Graph predictions by mailing $2 to Astro Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1754, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to state your Zodiac sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Utilize only the pragmatic and realistic side of you today when making any judgments. Wishful thinking cannot be permitted to take place in your decision making processes.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
If you want to achieve your objectives today, you must be extremely honest and realistic about your financial wherewithal to carry out your plans and play within your abilities.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
If you have the will and determination to do so, an important objective can be achieved today. Keep your eye on the target and your hands on the bow and fire away.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Before falling for a sad tale of woe brought to you by someone who is good at whining, check out his or her story to see if it warrants you opening your heart, let alone your wallet.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Even when dealing with a friend, put all agreements in writing today to avoid any misunderstandings down the line. It's best not to take anything for granted in any business ventures.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
When it comes to any collective involvements today, be extremely careful that you do not become involved with someone who left you holding the bag previously when things didn't go right.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Someone from whom you're expecting some vital information may let you down today. To be on the safe side, begin research on the project yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Be especially careful if you have to deal with someone today who is a known manipulator to suit his or her purposes. Don't kid yourself into believing this person will be different with you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

Win at Bridge

Could he have been deflected?

Kit Woolsey, who lives in Kensington, Calif., is one of this country's most thoughtful players. He won the Rosenblum Cup world team championship in 1986, and did a good job on this deal from the 1978 Rosenblum.

Woolsey's four-heart bid is routine for an expert, but looks excessive to a less capable player. But what had Woolsey promised? Nothing. Yet he held five trumps, the heart queen and a single diamond. Opposite a partner who has made two takeout doubles and a cue-bid, these values add up to a game-bid. A club lead would have been effective, but West understandably selected the diamond king. Woolsey won with dummy's ace, ruffed a diamond in hand, finessed the spade jack, ruffed dummy's last diamond, finessed the spade queen, cashed the heart ace, played off the spade ace, and led a trump to his queen. Now the stage was set for an endplay. He had eliminated the spades and diamonds from both the dummy and his hand. Also, he had trumps remaining in both hands. So, when he led a club, the defenders had no chance. If West played low, declarer would cover with dummy's nine. East was welcome to his jack, but would have either to lead back into dummy's ace-queen of clubs or to concede a ruff-and-discard. And if West inserted the club 10, Woolsey could cover with dummy's queen with equal effect.

Perfectly played! But what would Woolsey have done if, on the second round of spades, West had played his king, the card he was known to hold? Maybe exactly the same, but it would have taken longer.

Doctor Gott

Try reading, before Ritalin

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a 2-year-old who has been labeled "hyperactive." Thanks to my mother, who insists that my daughter is a normal, active infant, we have discovered that soft music, reading books out loud — and no TV — at bedtime helps calm the child so she easily falls asleep. Maybe other parents should try this approach before rushing off for the Ritalin.

DEAR READER: I agree. I believe that it's important for parents to discriminate between a child labeled "hyperactive" by non-professionals and a youngster diagnosed by appropriate authorities as having attention deficit hyperactivity disorder. Most 2-year-olds are hyperactive by adult standards. I remember a marvelous feature in Life magazine many years ago: A fully-trained Marine was asked to mimic every movement and gesture made by a normal toddler. The photographs were revealing. Within a few minutes, the Marine was totally exhausted. He simply could not physically keep up with the child's activity rate. This wasn't due to the child being "hyperactive"; the Marine got tired because adult muscles cannot match the seemingly random motions of a child. Many tots tend to become "wired" at bedtime. They may not be as tired as they're expected to be, and they are ready for new activity. In addition, they are easily (and inappropriately) stimulated by electronic babysitters, such as TV programs, and by other factors in their surroundings. Therefore, I agree with you that a quiet period before bedtime is necessary for most children.

Such a common-sense approach is unlikely to make much a difference to a child with ADHD. This affliction, which may affect up to 10 percent of schoolchildren and is 10 times more common in boys than in girls, appears to be caused by a poorly understood malfunction of the central nervous system. ADHD is marked by impulsivity, inattention and (sometimes) hyperactivity; it is usually related to learning disorders and can be treated with drugs, such as Ritalin.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 30-year-old daughter was recently diagnosed with adnexal cysts. What are these?

DEAR READER: The term "adnexa" refers to appendages. In gynecological lingo, "adnexa" means the ovaries and the structures around them, including the ligaments and Fallopian tubes. For practical purposes, the term also includes parts of other organs, such as the colon, which adjoin the ovaries. Your daughter apparently has fluid-filled cysts that lie in or around an ovary. Usually, these cysts are benign, but they can cause pain. If so, they can be surgically removed. Ultrasound tests are safe and inexpensive methods of monitoring the size of adnexal cysts.
