It's A No Win Situation, This

There are disquieting reports out of Washington that the White House is holding back on legislation to deregulate the trucking industry because of current contract talks between the Teamsters and the industry.

We are told that the administration hopes the Teamsters will abide by the President's voluntary wage guidelines, which include a seven percent ceiling on annual increases in wages and benefits.

There is nothing new, of course, about such political tradeoffs. They are the meat and potatoes of Washington politics. And, if a modest delay in introducing the administration's deregulation bill could, in fact, induce the Teamsters to settle for a non-inflationary three-year contract, the public interest would be well served.

However, as the President and his aides cannot have but noticed, the Teamsters appear decidedly unmoved by the administration's stalling on deregulation. It has been reported that the Teamsters are demanding a wage and benefit package that adds up to a whopping 71 percent increase over three years. So much for observance of President Carter's seven percent per year voluntary guidelines.

Frankly, we never entertained any great hope that the Teamsters' traditional militance at the bargaining table would be harnessed away for anything as transitory as a delay of a few months in the administration's laudable drive to deregulate the nation's trucking industry. Nevertheless, it is hardly fair to rebuke the administration's effects of a new Teamster contract anything like the one put forward by the union would be considerable.

These new inflationary pressures would far outweigh the deleterious effects of a brief delay in introduction and enactment of trucking deregulation legislation.

But now that the administration's strategy has proved barren, we see nothing to be lost by prompt introduction of the deregulation measure. Indeed, that is what we expect.

The only other possibility is that the administration might decide to scrap its deregulation proposal altogether in exchange for incremental moderation in the zeal with which Teamster negotiators pursue their 71 percent wage and benefit package. We worry about this because it would be a deal the Teamsters might conceivably accept.

The Interstate Commerce Commission's regulation of the trucking industry shields Teamsters from the competitive pressures that help restrain wages in other industries. Regulation is a golden goose for the Teamsters no less than for their protected employers. Union negotiators might well be tempted to settle for much less than a 71 percent increase should the Carter administration quietly promise an indefinite stay of execution for their regulatory goose.

The Teamsters would be happy and the administration could claim a "victory" for the President's battered anti-inflation campaign.

Should signs of such a deal develop, Congress and the country ought to rise in indignation. Washington's malodorous regulation of the trucking industry costs consumers up to $3 billion a year. For the Carter administration to perpetuate this burdensome waste for the sake of an, at best, partial triumph in the Teamster-industry negotiations would amount to a surrender of the public interest.

Now, let's see. There must be another country we can lead up with sophisticated weaponry that needs our supervision.

County Agricultural Agent Frank Jasa, chairman of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Agriculture Committee, says the committee has decided to hold the annual Farm City Day in November this year to coincide with National Farm City Week. The event was formerly observed locally in May. The Farm-City Week is held nationally each year on the week ending Thanksgiving.

Jasa says he hopes to arrange agricultural tours this year in conjunction with the observance to acquaint the community with various aspects of the Agri-business.

David Chacey who had just been elevated to Longwood's city administrator from interim status asked the city commission for permission Monday night to attend a school tailored for cities under 25,000 population to be held this week in Port Everglades. City Commissioner Ray Leibensperger asked, "What if we do without a city administrator for three days?" "I was gone three days last week," Chacey assured him, "and no one ever knew?" City Clerk Linda Martin agreed to take over Chacey's duties in his absence with one qualification... "all except building inspector."

Pssst, Such A Deal...

WASHINGTON (NEA) — If ever an industry should welcome a chance to clean up its image, it's the used car dealers so universally identified in the public's eye with sleazy sales practices, unreliable products and fast-buck artistry.

But with typical shortsightedness, used car dealers are strenuously resisting proposed government regulation that could significantly enhance consumer confidence in their industry and possibly increase their sales as well.

... Federal Trade Commission, pursuant to a 1974 mandate from Congress, is nearing the end of a lengthy rule-making process that promises to give consumers their first real protection in buying a used car from a dealer.

Simply described, the proposed FTC rule would require dealers to inspect all used cars offered for sale and to check off, on a window sticker, "OK" or "Not OK" for more than a dozen items ranging from "engine" and "electrical system" to "accessories" and "tires."

Dealers routinely inspect cars before they acquire them for resale, but they seldom pass on what they know about the car's mechanical condition to prospective buyers.

Dealers claim the sort of inspection the FTC plans to require could add anywhere from $100 to $200 to the cost of a typical used car, but the evidence in Wisconsin — the only state which already has such a program — refutes these claims.

Oil And Government And Politics

Energy. America's problem is not so much a shortage of it as it is a surplus of government — and politics.

In Long Beach, Calif., oil decreed by government as "old oil" stays in the ground because the mandated price isn't high enough to pump it out.

Energy Secretary James Schlesinger says that the oil industry is about to scrap plans for a terminal in Long Beach and a pipeline to Texas to move Alaskan oil inland for refining.

In Sanbrook, New Hampshire, the public utility that has fought tirelessly to build a nuclear plant to supply large quantities of electricity to energy-short New England, has been run out of construction money.

Seminole Fraud Investigator Eyes Casselberry Firm

By MAX EKKELETTIAN Herald Staff Writer Seminole County State Attorney continues to investigate the firm of Casselberry and Franta, which is being investigated for a consumer fraud probe by the Orange County State Attorney's office that has resulted in charges of grand theft and contempt of court.

State Attorney's office that has resulted in charges of grand theft and contempt of court. The charges were filed against John Franta, president of the firm, Oak Harbor Condominium, Altamonte Springs, and his brother Robert Franta, also known as Robert Rich, 1110 Australia Ave., Daytona Beach. Both men are free on $1,000 bond on each on contempt charges. They are due to appear in circuit court in Orlando one week from today on the grand theft charges.

Seminole County has one complaint against the firm by a consumer, according to Norris. "We have one complaint on the company in Seminole County and if they fail to follow through on the charges against them in Orange County, I'll certainly initiate proceeding here in Seminole County," said Norris.

A representative of Orange County's consumer fraud division met with Norris Monday to discuss the charges against the firm. Since the company has done business in both counties, Norris explained the two state attorney's offices action taken against the firm. "Really their office is located in Seminole County, but they do business in both counties," noted Norris. "It is in the best interest to pursue the charges in Orange County first, because of their history there and the fact that there are more complaints on them there."

Southern Lebanon: Christian Land A Buffer Zone

BINT JBEIL, Lebanon (UPI) — This Moslem village sparkles like a jewel on the green rolling hills of southern Lebanon where almond trees are bursting into blossom.

But the view is deceptive, as even a brief visit makes clear. The six-mile-wide strip between Israel's northern frontier and the Litani river is a Christian buffer zone between the Jews and the Palestinian guerrillas.

"There were four times as many people here before the fighting," says Hani Sharara, 51. He stands in front of his house where a shop, aluminum pots and colorful plastic wear spread at his feet. About 11,000 Arabs live in the village now.

All the rest are in America, Australia or working in Beirut," Sharara says. He was one of only a few hundred villagers who stayed when the Lebanese, trying to clear the area of guerrillas, swept through last March.

Israeli military sources estimate up to 500 guerrillas have infiltrated through U.N. lines and back into the hilly region since Israel withdrew its forces in June.

The battles left their mark on Bint Jbeil. The Israelis demolished houses that gave sanctuary to guerrillas. Bullets pierced walls.

But the central market now hums with commerce.

Christians are not allowed through guerrilla lines, but Sharara, a Shiite Moslem, is allowed to go to Beirut once a week to restock his store. "It's a three-hour ride by taxi," he says.

The undisputed ruler of southern Lebanon is Maj. Saad Haddad, who claims to command 800 regulars, though diplomatic defense experts credit him with no more than 200. Unkempt volunteer militiamen, mostly teen-age school-boys who train by night, can be called on in emergencies.

Haddad, since the 1976 Lebanese civil war, has managed — with Israeli military, financial and political support — to create an almost autonomous region south of the Litani where he says 100,000 persons now live, 60,000 of them Moslem.

Shaded area land won by Israel in fighting. Dots indicate towns in the South Lebanon region.

Between the guerrillas and southern Lebanonese — from the Hermon mountain range in the east to the Mediterranean Sea — stands the 6,000-man U.N. force.

Nearly all Haddad's military supplies come from Israel, from the two-way radio in the back of a battered U.S.-built Jeep, repainted a light gray, to the World War II-vintage M48 Sherman tanks.

Even Haddad's light blue regular soldiers in their late 20s and early 30s wear handmade fatigues given to the Israelis by the United States in the 1973 October war.

Beirut has threatened to cut off the salaries it still pays to Haddad's soldiers, severing what the stocky, mustachioed major says is the remaining link between Lebanon's capital and his region. He threatens to declare independence from Beirut.

His political adviser, Francis Rick, 46, says the threat is only a ploy to get more money from Israel.

Militarily, Haddad's control of southern Lebanon means Israeli forces can safely cross the frontier to raid guerrilla strongholds north of the Litani. In January more than 20 regular soldiers in their late 20s and early 30s were killed in a surprise dawn attack launched from this Christian-held territory.

Haddad says U.N. peace-keeping forces have allowed Palestinian guerrillas to reestablish themselves in the south. "If they continue to infiltrate, we will go after them and fight them." In the nearby Moslem village of Meis el-Jebel, school

New Order Of Illegal Aliens Border Plunderers Have Free Rein To Rob, Terrorize

By TOM TEJEDA
EL PASO, Texas (NEA) — The image of the illegal alien is by now almost writ in stone. His name is Jose, and he wears a sombrero, except when he swims the Rio Grande, in the dead of night, to enter the United States in search of honest labor, the profits of which he uses to feed his hungry family.

Well, strike it dead. Somewhere, no doubt, there are still decent if deprived Mexicans who must sneak across the river for the sake of economic survival, but the invasion phenomenon is changing dramatically, and for the worse.

On average, 10 percent of all arrests in El Paso are of foreign residents for crimes other than illegal entry. A third of the illegal entry, a third of the murders in San Diego County, here who come across the river in panteas. Each night, police say, they dry themselves alongside Paltano highway, and solicit passing motorists. Many of the prostitutes are 12 to 15 years old. Some will turn a trick merely to get a ride into the center of this storied border town.

And too, there are the brazen youth gangs. El Paso patrolman Manuel Salcido says the youngsters swarm across the river directly into residential areas. "You can see them returning home with bags on their shoulders, like Santa Claus. When they get near the Rio Grande, it's no use even trying to chase them."

Salcido says some young illegal entrants come over to rob in the hope of getting caught. "They let you catch them, because that way they can be sent to a U.S. training school. In school they learn English, and are taught a trade. That will help them if they intend to come here again and be permanent illegal aliens."

But why be a permanent illegal when a temporary one is so rewarding? Police say a thief who straddles the border has the best of both worlds. They can steal here, and be safely home in minutes. Some illegals simply stand on a corner with their loot, and catch the international bus into Mexico.

And in a very real way, police say they are powerless to stop this nonsense. "If we come down to the river to keep them from crossing," says Salcido, "they throw rocks at the patrol cars. What do you do then? You can't shoot. If you surround the most you will do is to generate an international incident."

Border town police are powerless to stop the illegal aliens who regularly cross over to plunder the U.S. side — Congress has never delegated the right of arrest for immigration infractions to local authorities.

was over (inexplicably, the man received 10 years probation), the lawyer confronted Salcido outside court: "I'm a member of the 23rd of September group," he said, "and you and your family are as good as dead."

So it is that the illegal entrant bent on crime has it easy in these curious times. Police over here are in many ways unable to stop him, and police over there don't worry about it. Small wonder, according to a local report, that El Paso citizens must pay $1.6 million a year to contend with the sneakers.

And actually, citizens here and all along the border pay much more. Glue-sniffing kids cross over to set fires. Homosexuals come up to stand panting outside the school yards. Besides that, there are the drug users and pushers; in one 16-month period, San Diego police arrested 400 Mexican dope fiends.

And police say the costs may go higher. Already, Arizona authorities have heard rumors "sold out." He says he has also been punched and spit on by aliens who would not dare do the same to police in their own country.

Indeed, Mexican police have a deserved reputation for short temper. Unfortunately, they also have a deserved reputation for extortion and bribery, therefore they are of little help in the effort to reduce the crimes of illegal aliens; in fact, many Mexican cops may be encouraging this kind of crime.

El Paso officers say some Mexican policemen are in league with border-crossing gangs. And so are some Mexican immigration officials. When the gangs return home with stolen goods, they simply pay the waiting authorities, and are then allowed to continue into Mexico to peddle the loot on the black market.

Occasionally, the Mexican cops have been known to take their payoffs in trade. Lt. Agan of the El Paso police, says illegal aliens recently stole a truck here that contained seven fur coats; the Juarez police were notified, and eventually made an arrest — but returned only five of the coats to this country.

Not all Mexican police are this way, certainly. And there is some cooperation — between border forces. But as a rule

Temple Survivors Salvage Their Lives

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (UPI) — Outside the ramshackle, two-story, yellow brick house in the Georgetown suburb stands a gray Volkswagen minibus with the lettering "Peoples Temple."

It is one of the few surviving signs here of the cult headed by Jim Jones, who killed himself and commanded the murder and suicide of 913 of his followers in the Guyana jungles last Nov. 18.

Inside the house, once the Temple's headquarters in the Guyanese capital, five survivors from the sect are trying to put their lives back together.

"We really don't know what was going to do," says 46-year-old Charley Touchette, former project manager for Jonestown who hails from Indianapolis, Ind., but moved to California with the cult in the early 1970s.

"Our lives have been planned for us for a decade long that it's hard to adjust to having to make it on your own," Touchette said. "Right now, we need to think that we're all going to be living happily together ever after, but I have no idea whether we'll stay together. The Peoples Temple is dead, of course — finished."

Touchette survived Jonestown because he was an assignment in Trinidad, along with Philip Hainey, a young black from California who now helps Touchette run an inter-denominational Caribbean freight service using the Albatross, a 20-ton freighter.

The last escaped a government embargo on all Temple assets because it was registered in the name of another company, although in fact Touchette was the real owner. He fled to the coast of the Guyana Defense Force, the nation's small army.

The other survivors still in Guyana are Philip Adams, 70, former member of the Peoples Temple; and James and Helen Smith, 60 and 55, respectively, who fled with Touchette.

Deborah cooks and cleans the house where Temple member Sharon Amos and her three children were killed by having their throats slashed the same night as the jungle massacres. Paula, Mike and Deborah happened to be in Georgetown the night of the tragedy.

Mike Touchette is trying to run a freight hauling service in Guyana with a Temple truck which the government has not yet laid hands on. But Mike and Deborah have been forced to sell off clothes, furniture and books for living expenses.

"I suppose eventually we might all have to get jobs — if anybody will hire us," says Deborah.

Deborah visits the Georgetown prison where two other Temple members await trial for murder. They are Larry Layton, the 33-year-old conscientious objector from San Francisco charged with the shooting deaths of Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., and the three women and a Temple defector, and Charles R. "Chuck" Beckman of Indianapolis, Ind., the cult's illiterate 46-year-old accountant, accused in the Amos killings.

Deborah visits Beckman twice a week, the maximum allowed. She has lost contact with Layton, whom she says always was "a bit out of it" and has become even "stranger" since the incident. She holds Layton "kind of responsible" for the death orgy which she says she didn't want.

The five survivors say they really don't have anything to go back to in the United States. Like all the others, they donated everything they had to the church.

All say they need remain in Guyana for the outcome of a lawsuit they filed, along with the two murder suspects and Jones' son Stephen. The suit's money and other assets, frozen by the Guyana government since the demise of Jonestown.

Youngblood Loses At Table, But Wins With Mets

By MILTON RICHMAN

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — Anybody can disagree. To disagree without becoming disagreeable, though, is something else again. Not many have that capacity. Joel Youngblood obviously has.

comfortable and confident. The most important thing was that I felt the Mets understood me better. That was my primary purpose, even more than the money. I wound up with a good raise, anyway, and I got a lot of publicity. People got to know Joel Youngblood better and he got to know them better. I think that makes for an excellent exchange.

He came away feeling he had actually won and his entire attitude reflects that. Now, moreover, the Mets were so tremendously impressed by the presentation he made before arbitrator Quinn Mills that they estimated him as an individual and a ballplayer has gone up appreciably.

He was a utility player who hit only .251 last season with 30 RBI and seven home runs, they pointed out. Youngblood was paid $44,000 last year. Now they were offering him $78,000 this year, a whopping 76 percent raise, and he was turning it down. What did he want, blood?

Cardinal Power Tips Blue Jays

Perhaps the wind was blowing in the right direction. The St. Louis Cardinals, who finished just three games ahead of the New York Mets for the National League's worst record last year and haven't changed their roster much since, slammed four homers in one inning Tuesday to defeat the Toronto Blue Jays, 7-2.

The win was the fourth straight for the Cardinals, breaking their losing streak. With one out and one on in the fifth, Terry Kennedy, Roger Pilon and Ken Belts hit successive home runs off Blue Jay starter Phil Hoffman. On out later, a Jim Lonnie singled, Mike Tyson then capped a six-run inning with a two-run homer.

Bob Bycher became the first Cardinal pitcher to work six innings this spring, allowing just two hits. Reliever George Frazier permitted the only two Toronto runs in the seventh, when Buck Altman homered after a walk to Joe Cannon.

Also, Levi Raines is getting another try at pro ball with the Miami Amigos, who are currently training at Sanford Memorial Stadium.

Levi played with the Minnesota Twins organization, and is the oldest of the three baseball-playing Raines brothers.

Hats off to 14-year-old Brian Morrissey, who plays No. 2 man on the Lyman High tennis team. Penn A Darkhorse In NCAA Picture

By United Press International The limelight continued to shine Tuesday on three of the four teams headed for Salt Lake City and the NCAA semifinals.

But the Earvin Johnson-Grig Kelsor duo spearheading the Spartans' show should be a challenge.

Top-ranked and unbeaten ISU enters the final round of four games outside the Big Ten in a Cinderella sweep. His team was underrated at the beginning of the season but may walk away with the nation's most prestigious basketball title.

MSU has lost only three games outside the Big Ten in the past two years — to Syracuse, North Carolina and Kentucky. And Penn just beat the first two.

"I hope our kids have respect for a club that beat two of the three teams that beat us in the last two years," Hestonice said. "And I think they will."

Penn starts four seniors including Tony Price, the 6-foot-7 forward who has scored 20 or more points in each of the four tournament games.

Michigan State still is unclear on their team who has even been selected as an umpire for the 40-golf plateau, having reached it eight times in his career, but seldom has he seen much of the game as important as one did Tuesday night.

"We are just happy to get a point out of this," Esposto said, after scoring with five seconds to play for the New York Rangers a 2-1 tie with the Washington Capitals.

"It's an important game for us guys," said Esposto, who has been introduced as the game's second star. "We are fighting with Atlanta and Philly for second place."

Nets Stop Lanier, Post 117-110 Win Vs. Pistons

By United Press International To New Jersey Nets. Coach Kevin Loughery, the answer was simple.

"Harvey Catchings did a job on Bob Lanier and got 15 points himself; all in the final period," Loughery said. "That's why we won."

"That was about as accurate a description as possible for the Nets' 117-110 victory over the Detroit Pistons Tuesday night. Catchings' 15 fourth-quarter points proved to be the difference in a game that was a close-foughted, rough, foul-filled game. Detroit was led by Lanier, who scored 26, and John Long with 21.

Well, Since You Asked...

Q. Whatever has happened to the Olympic sking champion Klammer this year? Has he turned pro? I haven't seen his name in the World Cup races. — F. N., Burlington, Vt.

Q. Whenever I watch a college football game, the commentators always seem to mention that the Big Eight Conference is the best in football. It seems in the last few years that the Southwest Conference has been dishing out some very good teams and players. I would like your comment on this issue. — Mike Jensen, Seymour, Mo.

Q. The Big Eight rightfully deserves mention because Oklahoma and Nebraska have been consistent challengers for the national championship in recent years. Teams like Missouri and Iowa State are not far behind. Overall, I don't put the Southwest Conference on the same level as the Big Eight, though. Conference measures up favorably with the Big Eight, though, and can cite the recent bowl game results to bolster my thesis. Q. I'd like to say a few things to people who "wouldn't cross the street to see a Yankee" or "wouldn't buy a Yankee cap." They seem to think the Yankees even buy the umpires. Umpires didn't make those great defensive plays at third for Graig Nettles, or in left field for Lou Piniella; they didn't watch the bat for Bucky Dent or Brian Doyle or pitch for Jim Beattie. None of the players mentioned would qualify as millionaires. The Yankees are wearing championship rings because they are the best. Do you think the Yankees bought the championship? — Kent Shumaker, Abilene, Texas.

Q. Yes, Neal Question. Q. Greg (Showboat) Page was offered the chance to fight Cuba's Teófilo Stevenson twice last year, but instead Jimmy Clark was the American fighter both times. Do you think Page was afraid of Stevenson? Also, since Page turned pro, there's no chance of meeting Stevenson ever, not even in the Olympics next year. Don't you simply adopt a victory over Stevenson would have enhanced Page's career as a pro? — George H. Chang, Santa Cruz, Calif.

Q. Buried in the annals of Duane Bobick's career (which is pretty well buried, too) is a victory over Cuba's awesome heavyweight in the Pan Am Games. Bobick was punched out easily by Stevenson in the 72 Olympics. You saw how much good Bobick's victory did him. I'm sure Page was leery of Stevenson. But Page's main reason for turning pro was to take advantage of a wide oblation of the same plateaus. I do feel that the Pacific-10 Conference measures up favorably with the Big Eight, though, and can cite the recent bowl game results to bolster my thesis. Q. I'd like to say a few things to people who "wouldn't cross the street to see a Yankee" or "wouldn't buy a Yankee cap." They seem to think the Yankees even buy the umpires. Q. Did Cassius Clay legally change his name to Ali? He's called Abdul-Jabbar or the same? — William Miracel, Santa Cruz, Calif. Q. Under English common law, which prevails in the United States, you simply adopt a name you want and use it legally. (Some states require that you implement it through court procedure.) Clay simply announced one day that he was Muhammad Ali. And the former Lee Alcindor emerged similarly as Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. For all legal purposes, that's who they are. Q. Could you tell me what happened to Harvey Haddix, who once played for the Pittsburgh Pirates? — Jeff Althouse, DuBois, Pa.

Haddix did more than just play. On May 25, 1959, the eighth (5-9, 16) left-hander turned in the greatest pitching performance in the history of baseball. He hurled 12 perfect innings against the Milwaukee Braves but lost the game in the 13th, 1-0. He pitched through 185 (14 seasons), then became a pitching coach, most recently with the Cleveland Indians from 1975 through 1978. You'll be glad to hear he's the new pitching coach of the Pirates, hired quickly when Don Orsborn had to resign because of illness. Q. Many thanks for your interesting column. Only one complaint. Not often enough. Where can I find a listing of some sort for ex-NFL coaches? In all of the sports books I have, less than 10 are ever mentioned. Inquiries to publishers prove fruitless. I am particularly interested in ex-L.A. Rams coaches. Can you help? — M.H. Nettles, Fortuna, Calif.

State Cabinet Critical Of Principal Probe

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—If Florida had watched the Cabinet handle a teacher disciplinary case Tuesday, they might have reconsidered last year's vote against abolishing it.

With Gov. Bob Graham presiding, the officials convened Tuesday morning to consider a Professional Practices Commission recommendation that the Cabinet certify to the State Board of Education that it should be removed from office for physical and verbal abuse of a student.

After two hours of testimony, the Cabinet criticized the commission for a sloppy record of confining testimony. Commissioner Gerald Lewis, an attorney, called it "guess work" and said, "legally, there is no real solid charge that is proven."

But the majority rejected further the plan that the case be sent back to the commission for further hearing and a new recommendation. The Cabinet then decided to split the issues of guilt and punishment and heard two hours of lawyer's arguments on whether Foote, a native New Yorker, called black students "niggers" and "niggers" and administered severe paddling to some students and denied adequate medical attention to others.

After hearing a room full of witnesses on both sides, the Cabinet voted 5-1 to uphold the commission finding of guilt. Before voting on the matter to revoke his teaching certificate, the officials listened to another 300 testimony from parents, including NAACP officials and teacher spokesman Frances Simpson who said Foote was cruel and inhuman to black students and school officials and parents who said he was a victim of a teacher vendetta and they had never seen him.

But he voted with Graham and Treasurer Bill Gunter to revoke his certificate for two years. It was a 3-4 tie vote. When a motion to let Foote off with a reprimand also was rejected, the officials turned around and voted 4-2 for the motion to make five hours earlier and requested, sending the case back to the commission for a full hearing and new recommendation.

Graham said it proved there needs to be a better way to handle teacher disciplinary matters. He told Education Commissioner Ralph Turington, who presided over the hearing, that he would like to see a new commission created to handle such cases.

At one point, Mrs. Simpson turned to Turington and charged that Foote "bragged all over Webster that he's been hearing and heard two hours of testimony from parents, including NAACP officials and teacher spokesman Frances Simpson who said Foote was cruel and inhuman to black students and school officials and parents who said he was a victim of a teacher vendetta and they had never seen him."

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Mom Jailed For Protecting Her Son Is Released

LOWELL (UPI) — Alma Ryan, a grandmother who could have avoided a three-year prison term for marijuana smuggling if she divulged her son's hiring place, was paroled from Florida Correctional Institution Tuesday. Mrs. Ryan, 59, embraced two of her boys outside the prison gate and headed home less than six months after she was incarcerated. She was released three weeks before she had spent the required six months in jail because the Florida Parole and Probation Commission did not consider her a risk.

Counterfeit Ring Broken

MIAMI (UPI) — A North Miami policeman and two other men were arrested late Tuesday night by the Secret Service on counterfeiting charges and denied $1.2 million in counterfeit bills. Patrolman Daniel Caruso, 29, Joseph Edward Dineo, of Opa-Locka, and another unidentified man were arrested on a North Miami street corner and booked into the Dade County Jail.

Lehman: Limit Chiropractors

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Chiropractors say Rep. David Lehman is trying to do "a witch-hunt" on them. Lehman, a Hollywood physician, has filed legislation that would limit the practice of chiropractors to correction, not treatment, of the spine. It also would prohibit their using the term "chiropractor" in advertising. Lehman insisted in an interview that he is not against chiropractors as long as they stick to what they are trained to do. He says he occasionally sends patients in pain to a chiropractor for spinal adjustments. But he said a lot of practitioners are what he calls "mixers." They don't want to be chiropractors, he said. "They want to be doctors."

Youth Gets Life Sentence

MIAMI (UPI) — A Miami youth pleaded guilty to first-degree murder Tuesday in the robbery slaying of a 77-year-old tourist from Philadelphia who stopped his rented car to ask directions to Miami International Airport. Gary Bernard Reid, 17, was sentenced to life imprisonment. The sentence requires that he spend at least 25 years in prison before becoming eligible for parole. Reid admitted the fatal shooting Feb. 4 of Edward Smet when the latter attempted to drive away instead of yielding to Reid's demand to "give me all your money."

Hospital Pays $250,000

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — A pediatrician and a doctor's group that operated the emergency room at Memorial Hospital agreed Tuesday to pay $250,000 in an out-of-court settlement to the parents of a boy whose spinal meningitis was wrongly diagnosed as an upper respiratory infection. The boy, Gordon L. Holmes Jr., now 8, is severely retarded and unable to function due to brain damage caused by the meningitis.

Special Election Race Set

MIAMI (UPI) — Elementary Carrie Meek easily defeated Hilda's re-election in Tuesday's election. Meek, a Democratic primary runoff and will face Republican Roberto Casa next week for the right to succeed late Rep. Gwen Cherry. The special election to fill Mrs. Cherry's seat will be held next Tuesday. Mrs. Cherry died Feb. 6 in a Tallahassee automobile accident.

Suit Settlement Sought

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Assistant Attorney General will try to negotiate a settlement with Justice Department officials threatening to sue the Florida Highway Patrol for not hiring enough minorities and women. The Cabinet decided Tuesday to seek a settlement, but only after two of Florida's 14 black troopers went to bat for the agency and its efforts to recruit minorities.

AREA DEATH

CLIFFORD MCKIBBIN SR., Clifford W. McKibbin Sr., 61, died March 19 in Birmingham, Ala. following a lengthy illness. The father of Clifford McKibbin Jr. of Sanford, he was a frequent winter visitor to Florida. Born in Lansing, Mich., he received his BS and Master's degree in Forestry from the Michigan Agricultural College, of which he is former alumni secretary. He was president of Lansing Capital Savings and Loan and a banker and brother and past president of Michigan Real Estate Association.

Other survivors include a son, John McKibbin and daughter, Miss Elsie McKibbin, both of Birmingham; several grandchildren including Alan and Bruce McKibbin of Sanford and Clifford McKibbin III, Sanford, Conn. Funeral arrangements are not yet complete.

Infighting Delays Lykens Appointment

Sanford Police Lt. William Lykens' hopes of being hired as Orange City's next police chief have been temporarily bogged down in a morass of political infighting.

At a meeting Tuesday night the city council voted 4-1 to ignore Mayor Willard Dennis' endorsement of Lykens for the job and instructed the mayor to come back next Monday with a new selection procedure.

The council was critical of the mayor's failure to follow the hiring procedure which he had proposed and they had approved, one councilman said. Dennis had recommended Lykens for the post at the March 12 council meeting, but members refused to act on the recommendation because the item was not on the agenda and Dennis had only interviewed Lykens and not four other applicants in the running.

Since that meeting the mayor had interviewed three of the five former applicants, but the council considered the move after-the-fact as he had said he already made up his mind about Lykens. The Sanford police lieutenant is on leave of absence without pay while seeking another job.

"The council was not satisfied with the procedure," said Dennis. "So now I have to start over with day one and go through it all over again."

Councilman John B. Crowther voted against the motion requiring Dennis to go through the hiring procedure again. He said the council cannot select another candidate, and could not "trust the mayor to follow a new procedure so we should allow him to make his recommendation and either approve it or reject it."

A screening committee appointed by Dennis and the council had narrowed the list of candidates to five and Dennis was supposed to have interviewed all five, but said he had only talked to Lykens, contending Lykens was far more qualified. Since he took office in October, Dennis' term has been marked by firings and resignations including the firing three months ago of former police chief Charles Garland, who has filed a lawsuit challenging his dismissal. At the time of the firing the council voted 5-2 to reinstate Garland, but to override the mayor a 4-1 vote is required.

Cook Of The Week

She's A 'Clipper' Who Tries Anything

By ELDA NICHOLS
Herald Correspondent

Dorothy Berg, of Longwood, is a "clipper." She clips recipes out of magazines, newspapers and just about anywhere she sees one.

"I try anything! Anytime I see a recipe I think we'd like, I cut it out and save it. I generally get around to trying most of them," she said, adding, "I really enjoy baking cookies and making desserts."

She and her husband, Karl, are from Northern New York, where they still have a home. "We have a huge garden there every summer. Especially tomatoes. They grow so well there. Just before we left last year, I gave away five bushels of green ones," she said.

Dorothy can't help her own pickles, jams and jellies. After Karl prepares the ground for the garden, she takes over. "I love to work in it! I have a lot of flowers that I care for also," she said.

Dorothy's cooking ability is well known among Longwood Tourist Club members, where she is secretary-treasurer, and also the Sanford Shuffleboard Club. However, she doesn't strictly follow a recipe to the letter, saying, "I like to add some other things to suit our own taste. Gives things an individuality."

While Karl doesn't help with the cooking, he quickly admitted, "I like to eat!" Dorothy sews and makes some of her own clothes. She also has some beautiful afghans and pillows she has crocheted. She is a member of the Ladies' Organization of Presbyterian Women in her native New York.

Beta Sigma Phi Chapters

Gamma Lambda

The Riverview Avenue home of President Lois Smith was the setting for the March 16th meeting of the Gamma Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. Social Chairman Mary O'Brien announced that a rush party for pledges Darcy Sono, Debbie Brooks and Wanda Brownson will be held at the camp of Chris and Donna Frank. Steak and trimmings will be served to honor the new rushees.

Zeta Xi

Awareness is the watchword for women advised Betty Smith of the Seminola County Sheriff's Department, who spoke to members of Zeta Xi Chapter Beta Sigma Phi at a meeting held in the home of Dot Ralston.

Her subject was rape and Mrs. Smith gave pointers on how to avoid vulnerability. A lively discussion followed. Later refreshments were served to Charlotte Blades, Kathy Baker, Marty Colgrove, Catherine Jones, Cathy McNabb and her mother, Deborah Partlow, Virginia Powell and Donna Thomsen.

Getting Married?

Engagement and wedding forms are available at the Herald office to announce these events. The forms may be accompanied by professional black and white photographs if a picture is desired with the announcement. Wedding forms and pictures must be submitted to the Herald office two weeks of the wedding. Contact The Herald (NICHOLS) editor for information and

MARINATED BEEF ROAST

Place a 4 1/2 to 5 lb. roast in large plastic bag.

Combine:
1 cup sliced onion
1 cup sliced celery
1/2 tsp. thyme (leaf)
1 bay leaf
1 clove garlic sliced
1 tsp. salt
1 whole allspice
1 can condensed beef broth
1/4 cup dry red wine

Four over meat. Fasten bag securely. Place in a pan and refrigerate at least 3 hours or overnight. Remove meat from marinade, saving marinade. Brown meat on all sides in 2 tbsp. fat. Bring marinade to boil and pour over meat. Cover tightly. Cook in 325 degree oven until meat is tender — about 3 hours, turning often. Strain juice — add water to make 2 1/2 cups. Combine 1/4 cup water and 1-3rd cup flour. Add to liquid, stirring constantly for gravy.

ZUCCHINI CASSEROLE
4 med. zucchini sliced 1/2" thick
1/4 cup shredded carrots
1/4 cup chopped onion
6 tbsp. butter or margarine
3/4 cups Brownberry Oven's Cheddar Cheese Croustons
1 can condensed chicken soup
1/4 cup sour cream

Cook zucchini in a little boiling salted water until almost tender, drain. In a saucepan, cook carrot and onion in 4 tbsp. of butter or margarine until tender. Remove from heat; stir in 1/4 cups of croustons, the soup and sour cream. Gently stir in zucchini. Turn into 1 1/2 quart casserole. Mix remaining 2 tbsp. of butter or margarine and add rest of croustons. Top

PINEAPPLE-CHOCOLATE FLECK CAKE

1 can (20 oz.) crushed pineapple
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup sugar
1/2 tsp. baking soda
1/4 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. cinnamon
1 cup nutmeg
1 pkg. (4 oz.) sweet cooking chocolate-coarsely chopped
1 cup chopped nuts
1/4 cup coarsely chopped raisins

2 eggs slightly beaten
1-3rd cup butter or margarine, melted
Drain pineapple, reserving 1/4 cup of syrup-set aside. Mix flour, sugar, soda, salt, cinnamon, and nutmeg. Add chocolate, nuts and raisins. Combine eggs, pineapple, measured syrup and butter or margarine. Add to flour mixture and mix to moisten all flour. Pour into greased 9" tube pan, lined on bottom with waxed paper. Bake at 350 degrees for about 1 hour or until tester comes out clean. Cool cake in pan for 15 minutes.

THREE-C BREAD
3 beaten eggs
1/2 cup cooking oil
1/4 cup milk
2 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup sugar
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. ground cinnamon
1/4 tsp. salt
2 cups shredded carrot
1 3/4 oz. can (1-3rd cups)

flaked coconut
1/2 cup snipped maraschino cherries
1/4 cup raisins
1/4 cup chopped pecans

Combine beaten eggs, oil, and milk. In large bowl, sift together flour, sugar, baking powder, soda, cinnamon and salt. Add egg mixture; mix just until thoroughly combined. Stir in carrot, coconut, cherries, raisins, and pecans. Turn into a well-greased and floured 16 oz. fruit or vegetable cans or into 1 3/2x2 loaf pan. Bake in 350 degree oven for 45 to 60 minutes or a bit less for smaller loafs. Remove from pans and cool thoroughly. Wrap and refrigerate overnight or until used. Also freezes very well.

DELICIOUS BROWNIES
Butter a pan 9" square by 2" deep and dust it with flour. Set oven at 350 degrees.

Melt 4 ounces (4 squares) of unsweetened chocolate over hot water and when it is melted, stir in 1 cup (1/2 lb.) softened butter, piece by piece — that way it blends in easily. Remove from the heat and add 2 cups sugar, 3 rather lightly beaten eggs and 2 tsp. of vanilla. Mix well.

Now stir in 1 to 1 1/4 cups of chopped walnuts or pecans, depending on your preference (walnuts are more traditional). Gradually add 1 cup of sifted all-purpose flour and mix well. Pour the batter into the prepared pan and bake at 350 degrees for about 40 to 45 minutes, or a little longer but don't let the brownies get too well done or they won't be chewy and gooey. Cool in the pan, on a cake rack, before cutting into squares.
