Sheriff seeks tips on bank robbery

The Seminole County Sheriff's Office is seeking information about a reported holdup at an Altamonte Springs Nations Bank night deposit machine just before 9 p.m. Monday.

A woman reports she was making a deposit of the day's receipts from a local business when the robbery occurred at the bank, located at 2601 West State Road, 134 near Altamonte Springs.

The victim reported she was having difficulty opening the night deposit box just before the robbery suspect approached her with a handgun. It appears the night deposit box had been jammed intentionally, said Steve Olson, spokesman for the Seminole County Sheriff's Office.

The suspect is described as a black male last seen running across Wekiva Springs Road. Anyone with information is asked to call the Seminole County Sheriff's Office at 407-665-6600 or Crimeline at 1-800-423-TIPS.

Comair may expand at Sanford airport

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

Delta Connection group to purchase 500 aircraft

SANFORD — Sanford's airport is bracing for possible expansion of its Comair facilities, following a record-breaking regional jet purchase.

Delta Connection carries Comair and Atlantic Southeast Airlines (ASA) on March 29 agreed to order up to 500 aircraft in the next decade, the largest regional jet order in aviation history.

The deal, expected to be completed in the next few months, includes orders for 94 Canadair Regional Jets (CRJs) produced by Bombardier Aerospace in Montreal, valued at $2 billion. There are also options for up to 406 additional Canadair Regional Jets, valued at another $4 billion through 2010.

The main branch of Comair's aviation academy and a maintenance facility is located at the Orlando Sanford Airport. There are 600 students at the aviation academy's four branches statewide, including 400 students at the Sanford campus. Details on how the aircraft purchase will impact the aviation academy and maintenance facility have not been announced.

"This means that they want to grow," said Victor White, director of the Sanford Airport Authority. "We need to ensure them that we can accommodate their growth as part of our plans."

Students at the aviation academy's Sanford campus engage in a one-year program to attain their flight ratings, then become instructors at Comair for another year before interviewing with airlines to become professional pilots.

Comair has 300 employees at the Sanford campus, including more than 100 instructors. The campus was established in 1989.

Comair, which operates regular service out of the Orlando International Airport and Cincinnati, was bought by Delta

Sanford Civic Center hosts cat show

By Michelle Jorja
Managing Editor

SANFORD — Things got kind of catty in Sanford over the weekend. More than 200 fancy felines and their owners came to Sanford for The City Beautiful Cat Club's two-day Spring Fling cat show.

Starting Saturday, the cats took their turns in each of the three judging rings in the Sanford Civic Center in hopes of receiving a spot on the "top 10" list for each of the three areas of showing. However, there was no best of show.

According to Show Secretary and Treasurer Emily Turner, cat shows, unlike their canine counterparts, do not award a single top honor.

"That's one thing that makes it less interesting than dog shows," Turner said. "We don't do best of show. Cat shows, unlike dog shows, are not specific enough to do that."

Instead, Turner said cats are judged in one of three areas — kittens, adults and premiers, which are spayed or neutered animals. Judges look at every animal in each area and choose their top 10 based on a written set of standards determined by the Cat Fanciers' Association (CFA).

"However, once a cat is in the judge's ring, it becomes somewhat objective," Turner said. "Beauty is always in the eye of the beholder."

Nevertheless, some cats do have a certain look most judges recognize and honor. Jori Pironti of Fort Lauderdale has one of those cats.

Ask many cat lovers attending the shows what "the perfect cat" looks like and they will point you to Pironti's 7-month-old Persian named Jem Doll. With her shiny coat, small ears and flat face, the long-haired feline hits the mark when it comes to the standard.

And, the judges have noticed. Pironti's goal for Jem Doll is to get to nationals, which means the kitten needs to earn 2,550 points at various cat shows during the year.

"This year, we have been to five shows, and she's done well at every one," Pironti said. "We're almost there."

Grand jury indicts ax murderer

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

SANFORD — Thea Kersch testified at a grand jury hearing Tuesday, less than a month after the ax attack by a handyman in which she was left for dead and her husband was killed.

Following her 20-minute testimony, the Seminole County grand jury handed down an indictment for first-degree murder, burglary, and robbery against 39-year-old John Michael Buzia.

Thea and Charles Kersch, both 71-years-old, were attacked at their 460 W. Palm Valley Drive home in Winter Park. She suffered fractures to her face and right arm and cuts to her head. Her husband was found dead on the kitchen floor with a gash to the head.

Buzia had worked for the couple as a handyman.

The case's lead investigator and Thea Kersch were the state's only witnesses on Tuesday.

When he was arrested the day after the March 14 attack, Buzia confessed to investigators that he waited 20 minutes in the couple's four-bedroom home until they arrived. He entered the home sometime between 1 p.m. and 2:30 p.m., then

Despite rainfall, fire danger continues

By Nick Pfeiffaut
Staff Writer

With the lack of rainfall, not only in Central Florida but throughout the state, more and more people are giving words of caution regarding the threat of wildfires.

Everyone is becoming involved including the Governor, businesses (mostly insurance companies) and local officials.

In early March, Governor Jeb Bush issued an executive order allowing local firefighters involved in dangerous wildfires, to call out the National Guard, should the need arise.

At that time, he pointed out that, in the first two months of this year, more than 1,300 fires had burned approximately 34,000 acres statewide. That figure has grown, even though there have been occasional days of rainfall.

AAA has also issued words of caution, offering tips for motorists who may find themselves in wildfire areas. AAA

The unlike cases of Gates and Gonzalez

On the day a federal court judge ruled Chairman Bill Gates for violating anti-trust laws, his personal fortune fell by $11.5 billion and Microsoft stock tumbled by 15.5 percent. Next thing you know, Attorney General Janet Reno will send Elian home to his father. Elian's relatives in Miami are fighting to keep him from returning to Communist Cuba.

Russ White

The difference between the Microsoft case and Elian's is the difference between big business — no matter how powerful — is not nearly as emotional as one that concerns the conscience and the heart of a country as great as America. Janet Reno wants to see by the letter of the law in each case. Elian's case requires a higher law.

I appreciate the kindness of heart and efforts that Sen. Connie Mack has been making to issue U.S. citizenship to Elian and perhaps his father, Senator Mack is not running for office. His is a voice of compassion and reason. The same applies to Mel Martinez.

If America is to remain a great nation, it must uphold its laws but at the same time embrace those who come to its shores for liberty and justice. Bill Gates was found guilty of breaking the law. Now he must pay. Elian Gonzalez is a victim of inhumanity. Should he be punished for that?

Elian's story has divided America on what is best for the Cuban born 8-year-old whose mother lost her life trying to

Our View

The Big Picture

Commission needs to look at entire issue before voting on settlement

Despite controversy over the soup kitchen compromise — which was supposed to quell the controversy in the first place — it appears likely the Sanford City Commission will approve the mediated settlement agreement that limits the hours of operation and number of patrons the soup kitchen can serve. However, it could be the wrong decision if the commissioners fail to broaden their focus in order to look at the big picture surrounding the issue.

For the record, we believe the compromise — as it relates to the residents and the soup kitchen — is a good one. The residents' concerns are addressed and Seminole Volunteer Enterprises can accomplish its stated mission, though on a limited basis. Neither side fully gets what it wants, but that's the case in most compromises.

The problem rests with City Commission. Even if it approves the compromise, the debate over the soup kitchen will not go away. Commissioners have yet to address the legal ramifications of granting the development order which waived all of the off-street parking requirements. At the heart of the residents' lawsuit was the argument the city egregiously violated its own Land Development Regulations by granting the development order. City regulations require 40 parking spaces. Metts had only six, and even those were eliminated when Commission approved an ordinance outlawing parking on public rights-of-way.

"What's the big deal?" some may ask. Quite a bit, actually. While Metts' parking situation may not stop traffic like I-4 on a Friday afternoon, the larger question is what happens when the next organization asks for a substantial variance of city rules.

Who might do so? Well, Wal-Mart for one. The national retailer almost always aggressively pursues some type of variance whenever it builds a new store. And with the size of its Super Centers, it's not hard to imagine a situation where Wal-Mart might not have enough land for all the necessary parking. Having granted Metts a variance that requires her to provide no parking, how will the City Commission deny Wal-Mart or another large retailer when they ask for a variance of 100 or 200 less than the required minimum?

"That's an extreme example. Wal-Mart is not looking to build in Sanford," some might argue. True, but currently there is a national restaurant chain eyeing a piece of downtown property. The company's development office is watching this debate unfold because they may need to approach the Commission about a parking variance. The bottom line — Commission can't deny any request for a parking variance unless it wants to lose a very lengthy and expensive legal battle.

This leaves the commissioners with a dilemma: If they approve the compromise that could end acrimony between residents and the soup kitchen they still leave the taxpayers liable for hundreds of thousands of dollars in legal fees.

There is a possible solution. Companies in downtown Sanford, like Miracom, don't have adequate parking in front of their buildings. Instead, these companies provide parking in other sites. Miracom, for instance, pays for its employees to park in nearby lots. Before approving the mediated settlement agreement, the City Commission will have to approve an amended Development Order reflecting the reduction in the number of patrons Metts may serve. As part of the amendment, Commission should require Metts to implement a parking plan. Since Metts has agreed to serve 50 patrons three times per week rather than the original 100, the parking requirements would decrease. Such a reduction may allow Metts to establish parking agreements with nearby businesses, lease the adjacent property from the railroad company CSX, or work out other viable solutions.

The Sanford City Commission has an opportunity to rise above the rhetoric and bring peace to a rancorous debate, while at the same time protecting itself from costly lawsuits. Will commissioners succeed? Only if they're looking at the big picture. If they take the narrow view, get ready to open your wallets.

Patterson unhappy about motivation behind statement

Editor's Note: The following letter was sent to Lake Mary officials on April 4.

To The Mayor and City Commissioner of Lake Mary

On Friday, March 31, 2000, a news advisory was released with my name and phone number. It is important to me that you all are aware of the untrue statements made on this message. This is not only unfair to our Mayor, it is also unfair to me as the "so-called organizer" of a non-existing press conference. I did not in state nor did I authorize this statement to the press.

The Sanford Herald has apologized for printing the news advisory in their past Sunday's paper. As for the other media's attendance, I am sorry that someone caused you unnecessary work, money and time for no good reason.

Regardless of what your personal opinion was on the Paradise Park project, I always displayed open respect for each other. That is why this incident is so troubling to me. This is a result of someone orchestrating a rally not for the park preserve, but for their own political gain. I find this extremely dishonest and disrespectful professional, political behavior. This can't even about the park which was always the cause. This is about some one using others to benefit themselves.

As for the postcard entitled "We Want Our Park" call Mayor Meador today at 407-322-4496 and tell him "We Want Our Park". This postcard went out to homes across Seminole County last week. Please look at the return address to see where it originated from. It states Seminole County DEC with a phone number to get involved call 407-365-6100. I think we all should call the number and "tell them" what we think about their political strategy to improve

From what I understand the Paradise Park Preserve may never again be under consideration. If there is any way to reverse the issue and make a difference in favor of Paradise Park, I will be happy to respond. As always, I am available to discuss with you in more detail. Don't want to see this preserve happen, but not at the expense of someone's reputation and character. It is important that together we do some great things for our City of Lake Mary. I know that by working together respectfully, we can make a positive difference for future generations in our community.

Most Sincerely,
Lisa Patterson

The making of the Propaganda Broadcasting Network

The definition of propaganda describes ABC News' decision to enlist the services of a actor and teenage heartthrob, Leonardo DiCaprio, to interview President Clinton about the environment — the spreading of ideas, information or rumor for the purpose of helping or injuring an institution, a cause or a person.

DiCaprio, who has about as much scientific credibility as those actors who testified before Congress in 1989 about the supposed dangers of the chemical Alar used to promote ripening of apples, is said by his spokesman (apparently DiCaprio has trouble speaking without a script) to have "been interested in the environment for a long time." I'm interested in the Broadway theater (what's left of it), but no one is offering me a role because I'm not an actor.

DiCaprio will be in Washington for Earth Day, April 22, along with other scientific geniuses who act just so they can put high-priced bread on their expensive tables. Melanie Griffith, Chevy Chase, David (Sperm Bank) Crosby, Ted Danson and Mary Steenburgen. At a time when the college transcripts of presidential candidates have been released, may we please at least know what grades this bunch got in school?

An ABC publicist says the 25-year-old (9) star was "the catalyst" for the presidential interview, and it was DiCaprio who approached ABC. White House spokesman Jake Siewert said, "We thought it was a good opportunity to educate Americans about the importance of climate change and a host of other issues."

Phyllis M. Grady, the executive producer of the interview, said the idea came from conversations between DiCaprio and his friend Chris Cuomo, a correspondent for 20/20 and, coincidentally, the son of former New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, who has another son, Andrew Cuomo, coincidentally the secretary of Housing and Urban Development. Chris Cuomo will anchor the program. All take the liberal position that the world is doomed without more environmental laws.

At least we had the possibility of George Stephanopoulos covering the event. He's a former "factor" for the Clinton administration who has been morphed into an ABC News correspondent.

There are scientifically defensible opinions in opposition to "global warming," but they rarely see the light of day on ABC or any other network. On the limited occasions when they do, they are characterized as takes from the kook fringe that "legitimate" and "mainstream" scientists reject.

coming after our SUVs, closing businesses judged to be "polluters" and hiring the newly unemployed to work in a huge government bureaucracy. This is a scenario favored by Vice President Gore, whose stated goal is the elimination of the internal combustion engine.

A television network owes viewers an opportunity to consider more than one side of an important issue. And it should employ the services of experienced reporters who are not supposed to be promoting an agenda but searching for truth.

In his 1996 book, "News Values," Tribune Publishing Company President Jack Fuller writes on the imbalance of environmental reporting: "Once journalists became persuaded that powerful interests were causing danger and using their strength to cover it up, the tilt set in. It was not easy to learn from news reports about the evidence suggesting that emissions from tall smokestacks do not cause widespread acid rain damage to forests or that Agent Orange's dioxin does not cause severe health problems in human beings or that the white-spotted owl seems to be living happily in unendangered numbers in non-old-growth forests.

Viewers of the DiCaprio-Clinton interview are not likely to learn anything but what the environmental lobby wants them to learn. That's propaganda. Would ABC News consider asking NRA President Charlton Heston to interview a conservative president about gun laws, or the head of National Right to Life to ask a president about abortion? If the answer seems obvious, why is ABC News giving credibility to DiCaprio and his views by allowing him to interview President Clinton?

Advice for parents: Be there for your children, spend quality time with them. They grow up so fast and they need your help and support. Enjoy every minute with them.

Advice for students: Stay focused. Stay organized. Remember that teachers are your friends and your helpers.

Advice for new or prospective teachers: Get out there and teach. You will learn so much from your students and your colleagues.

Best advice you have ever received: A great teacher is a student's role model. New teachers should be a role model for everyone.

Persons who have inspired: My parents and my teachers. My father passed away when I was 10 and my mother when I was 15. They were my role models and I will always remember them. I will always remember my teachers who have inspired me to be a teacher.

Favorite part of teaching: My kids. My kids are my life. They are my joy and my pride. They are my future and my hope.

Most memorable experience as a teacher: My first year of teaching. There was one little girl who was always suspended and getting into trouble. One day in class she gave me a note that said "Ms. DeLoach, thank you for thinking good thoughts of me when the rest of the world didn't. I like to think that you can change lives for the better and help out in a lot of ways as a teacher."

Biggest challenge for teachers: To deal with all the issues that come with being a teacher. There are so many things that can go wrong and it can be very frustrating. But it is also very rewarding and it is worth it.

Cats

It won't be hard for Pironti to find other cat shows to enter her prized Persian. According to Carter, every week there is an average of 10 shows held in the country. Many follow the standards set by the CFA, which is the largest cat registry in the world.

"And, many would say it holds the most prestige," Carter said.

The CFA is a non-profit organization founded in 1906 when it held its first licensed shows in Buffalo and Detroit. Today, more than 400 shows are held annually worldwide under CFA guidelines.

The CFA presently recognizes 33 pedigreed breeds in the championship class, two breeds in the provisional class and five breeds in the miscellaneous class. Breeds include the popular Persian, the British short hair, the Devon Rex and the Japanese.

During the Sanford show, Keith McDaniel of Melbourne had numerous cats entered, including his pride and joy Persian, Asti Spumante.

McDaniel, who often serves as a clerk at various cat shows, started showing cats in the early 90s.

"I went to a cat show in Gainesville and fell in love with the cats," he said. "I went out and bought two and have been showing ever since."

According to McDaniel, getting a cat ready for a show takes more than just picking them up and placing them in the judge's ring. And, a person has to be dedicated to making the cat show rounds.

"Cat people are crazy," he said. "Actually, they are people who just love animals."

"But, where else are you going to find people up at 5 a.m. blow drying their cats to get them ready for a show?"

Cat shows aren't only a place to find some of the fanciest cats in the area. They also are a place where someone can find anything imaginable for or portraying the four-legged animals.

Mary and Ernie Decker of Orlando travel area cat shows selling there wares, including cat toys, cat food, cat photo frames, cat books and many other items with the cat theme.

Decker said she and her husband, who are both cat lovers, first attended shows as participants with their cats. However, it expanded into their business, Decker Cat Supplies.

"My husband got bored with the shows, so this happened," she said. "We started with a couple items, and now we have a mobile store."

Decker said she has been attending and selling her wares for so long, she doesn't think anything is too unusual — as long as it pertains to cats. The couple even have found a niche in the market.

Ernie believes he is the first to create the unique and popular cat toy called "Lizard on a Stick."

Comair

Airlines in January for $1.9 billion. The orders will be held jointly by Comair and ASA, which operates out of Dallas-Fort Worth and Atlanta. ASA was acquired by Delta last year.

The firm orders, to be delivered by 2004, include a mix of 40-, 44- and 50-seat CRJs that will enable both Comair and ASA to accelerate their plans for an all-jet fleet.

Comair's Florida operations should be all jet by next year, said David Siebenburgen, president and CEO of Delta Connection and former president of Comair.

"This order gives us the tools to do what we've been talking about since we announced the acquisitions," Siebenburgen said.

The aircraft orders, expected to fulfill both Comair and Atlantic Southeast Airlines' fleet growth plans for the next decade, also further Delta's plans to expand in the regional airline market.

The smaller capacity jets will give Delta the ability to serve smaller routes and feed the traffic into airport hubs with greater traffic, Siebenburgen said.

Delta and Bombardier are still discussing how to configure seating on the smaller capacity jets, but officials said they would probably include additional storage and galley areas.

Because the smaller capacity jets will be built using the same CFM engine and aircraft platform as the 50-seat versions, they could be upgraded to carry that many passengers.

The new jets also will allow the Delta Connection to expand direct flights to other larger markets, such as Comair's recently announced plans to offer direct flights to New York City's LaGuardia Airport and Dallas Love Field.

Comair now operates a fleet of 93 50-seat regional jets and expects to have an all-jet fleet operating out of its Cincinnati hub by the end of this year. Comair expects to introduce 70-seat regional jets next year.

suggests monitoring the car radio for updated reports of road closings, suggesting people take alternate routes when near a fire, and keeping a road map handy to determine the best alternate highway to take.

Wildfires aren't the only concern in this dry weather. Home safety is also a matter of concern. Allstate Insurance Florida Regional office has issued a statement regarding the dangers of wildland fires that have a tendency to be near residences. Allstate suggests clearing the roof and gutters of leaves and other debris, creating a defensible zone around the house, at least 30 feet, and keeping household items handy that can be used as firefighting tools such as a rake, an ax, chain saws, buckets and shovels.

FLASH, Inc., the Florida Alliance for Safe Homes, is suggesting, during this spring planting season, homeowners choose fire-resistant plants when they spruce up their landscaping. Plants characterized as less-flammable include dogwood, viburnum, ferns, redbud, sycamore, magnolia, red maple and others recommended by the University of Florida. FLASH recommends against planting wildfire-prone conifers (cedars, pines and cypresses) too close to homes.

The American Red Cross suggests residents clearly mark all driveway entrances and display names and addresses, to assist firefighters in times of emergency calls, planning escape routes, posting fire emergency phone numbers, and reporting any potential dangers to the fire department or law enforcement at the earliest possible time.

Most recently, Florida State Fire Marshal Bill Nelson announced that his department and RadcoShack are teaming up for the third year to distribute smoke detectors, free, to lower-income and elderly residents around the state. With 100,000 smoke alarms donated in the past, Nelson said Florida firefighters will give away another 21,000 this year. For information, phone the local fire department or 1-800-342-2762.

attacked the couple with an ax, killing the husband and leaving the wife critically injured, said Seminole County Sheriff Don Eslinger.

Buzia stole cash, credit cards and a car from the couple. Eslinger said the attack was motivated by the robbery.

Buzia found the ax in the garage of the couple's home, located in the gated Riverwalk neighborhood just north of the University of Central Florida.

"Major crimes investigators, deputies and technical services specialists worked long hours on this case," said Steve Olson, spokesman for the Seminole County Sheriff's Office. "We believe we have strong evidence to get a conviction, including statements from witnesses."

Olson said that witnesses include Thea Kersch and bank personnel who saw Buzia try to cash a check belonging to the couple the next morning.

At about 8:30 a.m. the morning after the attack, Buzia attempted to cash a forged $850 check belonging to the couple in the drive-in lane of the National Commerce Bank located at 2200 Aloma Avenue in Winter Park before the bank was open.

A teller recognized the license plate of the couple's stolen 1993 Toyota Camry as published in news reports, and called the Winter Park police.

Winter Park police had Buzia in custody at 8:45 a.m.

Investigators do not know how long Buzia had known the couple. However, Eslinger said Buzia had been performing work for the couple as a handyman the previous three days.

Buzia has an extensive criminal record which includes possession of drug paraphernalia and DUI. However, he denies that the attack is related to involvement with drugs.

Sanford team to compete in 7th Annual 'Great Moonbuggy Race'

Special to the Herald

HUNTSVILLE, AL. - A high school team from Lake Monroe Christian Academy in Sanford and a college team from Embury-Riddle Aeronautical University in Daytona Beach are approaching their final tuneup phase in preparing for the 7th annual Great Moonbuggy Race, April 7-8 at the U.S. Space & Rocket Center in Huntsville, Alabama in which they will represent the state of Florida.

More than 40 teams — the most ever for the event — from 17 states and Puerto Rico have entered this year's race.

The competition is inspired by the first lunar roving vehicle, which was designed, developed and tested at NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville. The event challenges students to design and build a human-powered vehicle so they will learn how to deal with real-world engineering problems — similar to those faced by the original Marshall Center lunar rover team.

"This is an excellent program for inspiring high school students and students going into engineering fields," said Art Stephenson, director of the Marshall Center. "It's really exciting to build something and then actually see it work. And that's one of the fun things about the space program."

Teams must confront stringent requirements. For instance, prior to the race, the unassembled vehicle must occupy a space no more than four-feet high, four-feet wide and four-feet long. During the race, vehicles powered by two team members, one male and one female, race one at a time over a half-mile obstacle course of simulated mooncape terrain.

Winners in each category — high school and college — are determined by the fastest vehicle assembly time, plus time through the course. An additional prize is awarded to the team with the best technical approach to solving the engineering problem of navigating the "lunar" surface.

The event is sponsored by the Marshall Center, the U.S. Space & Rocket Center, and the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics.

The high school competition begins at 10:30 a.m. CST Friday, April 7th, with design judging at 7:30 a.m. CST and race times from 8:30 a.m. to approximately 5:30 p.m.

High school teams will begin their timed runs through the course at 12:30 p.m.

An awards presentation will follow the race.

College division entrants compete Saturday, April 8th, with design judging at 7:30 a.m. CST and race times from 8:30 a.m. to approximately 5:30 p.m. See Race, Page 2B

Rams rally past Warriors

Ho keys Lake Mary's romp over West Orange in boys Lacrosse

By Dean Smith
SPORTS EDITOR

LAKE MARY - Did anyone get the number of that truck?

That must have been what West Orange was asking at Don T. Reynolds Stadium Monday night after Lake Mary senior midfielder Ken Ho scored three first quarter goals to erase a 2-0 deficit and finished with seven scores as the Rams ran over the Warriors, 16-7, in boys lacrosse action.

West Orange came out strong controlling the ball and scored the first two goals of the game.

But Ken Ho scored the first three of a five late first period goal explosion and Lake Mary then scored eight more unanswered goals in a strong second period put the game away for the Rams.

Ho added an assist to his seven goals to lead the way for Lake Mary, but he got plenty of help from teammates Chad Sloan (three goals, three assists), David Sloan (two goals, seven assists), Greg Podraza (three goals), David Wong (one goal, one assist) and Daniel Griffin (one assist).

Providing the offense for the Warriors, who fell to 1-4 on the season, were Jeff Hansen, Chris Brannan and Brett Claffin (two goals each), Josh Bryant (one goal, one assist) and Brian Jones (one assist).

The Rams, who outshot West Orange 37-28 in the game, evened their record at 5-5 and will host The Bolles School from Jacksonville tonight at Don T.

Reynolds Stadium.

Game time is 6 p.m. and it is Senior Night. Prior to the game the senior players and their parents will be honored.

Junior catcher Jason Wolf had a big game on both offense and defense on Tuesday, calling a five-hitter behind the plate for winning pitcher J.C. Blass and then blasting a pair of solo home runs (his second and third of the season) as Oviedo (18-3) crushed a very good Florida Air Academy team (14-1), 11-1, by the run rule in Melbourne.

Oviedo storms over Florida Air Falcons

By Tony DeBermier
HERALD CORRESPONDENT

MELBOURNE - It finally did thunder and lightning Tuesday afternoon on the Space Coast, but not in the fashion that the weather forecasters predicted it would.

Slamming four home runs (the thunder, to extend the metaphor) and stealing six bases (the lightning), the Oviedo Lions routed the Florida Air Academy Falcons, 11-1, in a game stopped after five innings by the 10-run mercy rule.

"This was a good win for us," said Oviedo head coach Harold Hitt. "There's still three weeks before the district tournament, so I hope we're not peaking just yet. But it looks like we're finally starting to come together. The rest of this week will tell."

The Lions (now 18-3 after posting their ninth consecutive win) travel to Lake Brantley tonight and host Lake Mary Friday in a pair of critical 6A District 3 contests.

Blaine Schulte got the Lions going with a three-run home run (his sixth of the season) in the bottom of the first inning. Jason Wolf added lead-off solo home runs in the fourth and fifth innings while Justin Holmes had a two-run homer in the fourth.

Florida Air Academy's sole run came on a leadoff home run by Prince Fielder (the son of former major league star Cecil Fielder) in the bottom of the second, one of just five hits surrendered by Oviedo starting pitcher J.C. Blass (4-1).

"J.C. has struggled a bit his lately," said Hitt. "It was important for him to go out and have a strong outing against a good team."

Blass struck out one and walked one.

Losing pitcher Corey Veith (3-1) was tagged for six runs (four earned) on four hits by the Lions.

Providing the offense for the Lions were Wolf (2-for-3, two home runs, two RBI); Schulte (home run, three RBI); Holmes (home run, two runs, three RBI); Larry Grayson (single, run, RBI); Jamie Zugelder (single, two runs); Nick Tenekedes and Paul Lubrano (both with a single and a run scored); Jeff Knapp (single, RBI); and Jered Goodwin (one run).

Holmes also stole two bases while Tenekedes, Grayson, Knapp, and Zugelder each stole one base. As a team, the Lions are now 70-for-82 on stolen base attempts.

Aside from Fielder's home run, Florida Air Academy (14-3) also received singles from Danny Gonzalez, Juan Figueroa, Henry Gutierrez, and Jose Cruz.

Junior's win highlights an exciting weekend

FORT WORTH, TEXAS

Sunday was "Little E Day" here, and the punch line to the DriveTV 500 was an Earnhardt family reunion in Victory Lane, this time with Dale Jr. being treated by a proud father, for the first time on the Winston Cup tour — but probably not the last.

And NASCAR's marketing gurus would dearly love for this 25-year-old son of the meanest, toughest stock-car driver of them all to become the sport's next superstar. The Earnhardts shared the day with the race itself, the track and Britton Smith's vision of racing's future.

At the end of the day, after 223,000 people had watched Earnhardt Jr. get his first Winston Cup win, the question of why NASCAR runs 10 Winston Cup races a year within three hours of Winston-Salem and only one within 1,000 miles of Dallas-Fort Worth makes all the marketing whizzes in Daytona Beach look pretty silly.

The racing itself was, if not great side-by-side stuff, certainly hot and heavy and more than entertaining enough to keep everybody's attention.

Indeed, one of the growing traits of super-fast Texas Motor Speedway is its extraordinary unpredictability. Perhaps one reason is the exceptional asphalt racing surface, possibly the best on the tour — although a 10 mph cut in speeds might make the second groove come in a little quicker.

What other place has so backfired Jeff Gordon, who calls this "the toughest place to pass on the entire tour"? In one sense, it's a giant Darlington: one mistake and it's all over, as Dale Jarrett and so many others found Sunday during the 12-caution race that stretched on an interminable four hours.

What other place could bring Earnhardt to tears? NASCAR is already two months into the season with seven different winners, a pace that if kept up would generate 34 winners by the end of the season.

Earnhardt Jr.'s victory came with an overpowering performance, even more remarkable after his three straight weeks of crashes, at Atlanta, Darlington and Bristol, that he conceded merely tested his confidence. He drove almost flawlessly this time, on a day that many of the best in the business couldn't quite handle the track.

And then Junior crawls out of the car and dashes out that honest and refreshing "Golly, gee, aw shucks" stuff, with just the right touch of self-deprecating humor. Imagine what it must be like to be Dale Earnhardt's son, how tough listening to the taunts and teasing over the years. Then imagine what it must be like to get in a race car and try to live up to the man's reputation, to live up to his standards, on the track and off.

And then imagine what it must be like to finally succeed. But Sunday's win was not just a personal triumph for Dale Earnhardt Jr., and not just a family victory for a son who has often while growing up missed the old man who was busy out on the road making a living. It was also a triumph for Dale Earnhardt Inc., the business that Earnhardt Sr. cranked up only four years ago.

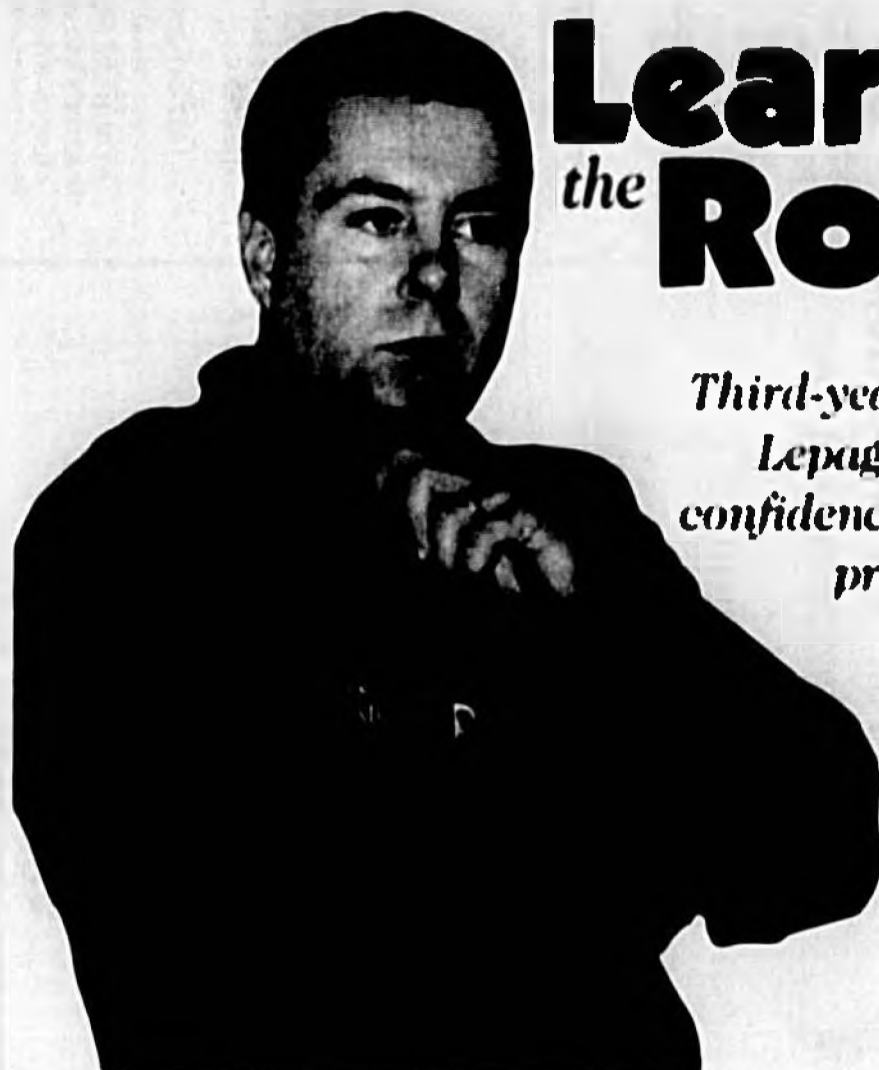

When Earnhardt Sr. announced that he was forming a race team of his own, naysayers said that he wouldn't spend enough money to get the good guys, that the venture would falter like so many run by star drivers who turned out to be less than star businessmen. But the elder Earnhardt has clearly proven them wrong. Of course, it helps that he has two of the biggest sponsors in the business.

The Earnhardts weren't the only son-and-father team on the track. Adam and Kyle Petty had their little bit of history, too. Adam, just 19, made his Cup tour debut (he'll run next at Charlotte) and did well, running 215 of the 334 laps before losing an engine. He experienced that moment of terror that comes when Dale Sr. or Tony Stewart takes the air off your spoiler, and he kept his nose clean.

"At least I didn't tear it up, and we learned a lot," Adam said.

"When the race started, I didn't know my limits. Then Tony Stewart took the air off me a couple of times, and Earnhardt took the air off me a couple of times, and I realized my limits then. And I realized how to race those guys. This is totally different than the Busch series. I think I'm a 10-times better race-car driver now than before I started this race."

Third-year driver Kevin Lepage is gaining confidence as the season progresses

By Rex McLeroy
LAPBYLAP

They took no time to relish their stellar run. On Monday, Kevin Lepage's team headed to Talladega Superspeedway to test for the April 16 race. This is what a team that wants to win does — learns from one race and immediately starts planning for another. There's little time to relax to the success of a moment.

So instead of celebrating tying his career-best Winston Cup finish of fifth, Lepage headed to Alabama to test. Or so he planned.

Instead, he watched it rain at the track. He headed to his hotel, only to be sequestered in the lounge with the other guests waiting for a tornado front to pass.

Ah, the glamorous life of a professional driver. Days such as Monday may not be the greatest, but Lepage and crew chief Pat Tryson mind them less and less. When things are going right, it's much easier to deal with the setbacks.

The two started working together shortly before the fall race at Darlington last year. Lepage qualified ninth for that race and wound up with his other fifth-place finish.

"For me, as a confidence-builder [that] was a boost," Lepage said.

To that point, his 1999 season had been a bit of a roller coaster. Tryson smoothed out the rough spots and started changing the pit crew and building new cars. In the off-season, the team auctioned most of its cars, determined to copy the one that put Lepage on the pole at Atlanta last fall.

"We worked real hard together, and through the off-season one of the things that we decided we were going to do, we were going to make all our race cars the same," Lepage said.

"When he [Tryson] came on board, they weren't the same. There were a lot of mismatched cars."

Things looked great. Then the team lost its sponsor and seemed in danger of folding. Jack Roush shocked the garage by promising to keep Tryson and Lepage together — sponsor or no sponsor. They started this season with a blank car.

Their autograph cards had driver "For Sale" ads on them. Finally, two races into the season, they signed FamilyCheck.com.

Tryson and Lepage were free to concentrate on racing.

"I wouldn't say it distracted me," Lepage said of the sponsor hunt. "It was disappointing to have one of the finest car owners in the sport and here he is with a car without a sponsor on it. I felt bad for my team because they went to the track wearing plain, generic uniforms with nothing on them. The guys were not in genuine uniforms. Everyone else got furnished a uniform with a sponsor on it. I felt bad for them."

But Roush's support gave the team something more important than a logo.

"Jack had a commitment to the team to run with or without a sponsor, and that made them feel more special just walking around," Lepage said.

Since signing the sponsor, the team has put itself in good position in every race except Bristol. A mechanical failure sidelined the team in Atlanta, but Lepage was running strongly to that point. He finished 11th at Las Vegas, 10th at Darlington and fifth in Texas.

Just what has caused this sudden revival of the team? Lepage credits Tryson — and the relationship the two share.

"He understands what I want in the car the longer the run goes and what I want in qualifying," he said. "We surprise people. When you look at the sheet, I'm 20th to 30th in practice, then I'm in the top 10 in qualifying. I've always been a driver who doesn't show all he has in practice because it doesn't pay off."

But it's not all Tryson. Lepage, in just his third full Winston Cup season, has only 71 races to his credit. He's becoming more comfortable and confident on the track.

"I am qualifying better," he said. "I am a better race car driver this year, a smarter race car driver."

Does that equate to continued success? "I hope so, I really do," he said.

Rex McLeroy covers NASCAR for the Richmond, Va., Times-Dispatch.

Who's Not: Kyle Petty. After struggling through the early part of the season, Petty failed to make the field last weekend in Texas.

On the Record

Help For Snoring And Sleep Disorders

(NAIPSA)—While snoring has been the subject of many jokes, for many, the condition is no laughing matter.

It's estimated that 40 million Americans have this condition. It not only interrupts the sleep of the person who snores but disturbs the rest of anyone who must listen to the snoring.

Snoring occurs when floppy tissue in the airway relaxes during sleep and vibrates. Most snoring is caused by a vibration of the soft palate at the back of the mouth.

Until recently there were only two treatments, invasive surgery designed to remove tissue and laser surgery to reduce the size of the soft palate.

A new treatment, the Somno-plasty Procedure, created by Somnus Medical Technologies, offers a minimally invasive alternative to treat snoring. The procedure uses temperature controlled radio frequency to reduce the size of the palate and it can be performed on an outpatient basis.
The palate procedure for snoring is only recommended after other causes such as chronic nasal obstruction and sleep apnea are ruled out.

Paul A. Levine, M.D., Chief of the Department of Otolaryngology-

A new procedure promises relief for people who snore.

Head and Neck Surgery at The University of Virginia Health System, has treated between 25 and 30 patients with this procedure in the past year. He describes the procedure as simple, relatively painless, and reasonably successful.

"It seems like Somnoplasty is a big improvement over most of these other treatments. Some of the simplest procedures provide the greatest satisfaction for the patients. We have been able to significantly affect some couples' lives without causing them too much trouble. And that's been rewarding," said Levine.

Hearing about the procedure,
may help some people rest easier.
