Over 'Bill Of Rights'

Fired Probationary Cop Sues City, Chief

By DENNIS FEOLA
Herald Staff Writer

Does a probationary policeman in Florida have the same privileges as permanent policemen under the state's "Police-men's Bill of Rights?" An Altamonte Springs lawyer, representing a former Sanford probationary policeman fired recently without being told why, thinks so. And it's on that premise that the lawyer, Harvey M. Alper, has filed a suit in Circuit Court at Sanford against the city of Sanford, Police Chief Ben Butler and City Manager Warren E. Knowles.

In the suit, former Sanford probationary policeman Thomas H. Sands Jr. alleges he was denied his rights under the bill of rights when he was fired Aug. 25.

The Sanford city attorney was reviewing the suit today.

Sands claims he was not informed of the nature of the investigation when he was interviewed by Sanford police. He claims he was not "informed of his rights, of the officer in charge of the investigation and has since been denied access to records pertaining to his dismissal."

Butler has maintained since Sands was a probationary employee, no reason was necessary for his dismissal.

Sands was denied hearings before the city's Complaint Review Board and Civil Service Board because he was a probationary employee.

Alper filed the suit in circuit court Thursday seeking Sands' reinstatement with back pay and compensatory and punitive damages.

The suit also contains allegations that Butler punched Sands Nov. 18 in the Pevter Pub in Sanford. The suit alleges Sands was hit in retaliation for exercising his rights.

Butler has denied hitting Sands.

State Attorney Douglas Cheshire is expected to decide today if there is sufficient evidence to charge Butler in the incident.

The suit also alleges the city has no system for investigating complaints by police department employees in violation of Florida statutes.

Bachelor No. 1: Alias 87907645

DAVENPORT, Iowa (UPI) — Police almost had given up hope of finding James Shelton — who escaped from a minimum security facility a year ago — until they spotted him as bachelor No. 1 on the television show "The Dating Game."

Shelton was serving a year's probation for a larceny conviction in a Davenport residential correctional facility. He went to work one day in November 1977 and never returned to the facility.

A former employee of the correctional facility was watching "The Dating Game" in early November and saw Shelton as bachelor No. 1.

Using his own name and calling himself a "clothing designer from Chicago," Shelton tried to win a superdate on the show that was taped Sept. 13.

He did not win a date, but police are more than interested in meeting him.

Davenport police asked law enforcement agencies across the nation to be on the lookout for Shelton, who has not been spotted since the show was taped.

"I've heard of a lot of ways for people to get caught, but this is the most unique," R.D. Dunkin, director of the correctional facility, said. "It certainly took guts."

"The ironic part was bachelor No. 2 was a probation officer."

Bug-Breeding Tires Still Piled High

By MAX KIKILETTIAN
Herald Staff Writer

Tires left in a lot near Third and Holly that Sanford city officials said five months ago would be cleaned up in 10 days remain in the lot today and the owner of the property says he will need more time to remedy the situation.

J.D. Freeman, 461 Mellenville, said today he was granted a 90-day grace period by the city to remove the tires and clean up the lot. That period ends next week, he said and he plans to seek a 90-day extension at the Dec. 11 city commission meeting.

In late July, when David Taber, 216 Holly Ave., complained to city and health officials, Sanford Public Works Director Bob Kelly said the tires would have to be removed within 10 days. If the tires were not removed, he said, the city would remove them and bill Freeman for the expense. Taber lives across the street from the lot.

The grace period was granted, Kelly said today, because the buildings and tires on the lot had been condemned by the city building department. When property is condemned, the owner is automatically given 90 days to bring the property up to standards or remove the condemned items.

Kelly said the city tried to enter the property in August when the tires had not been removed. However, the gate was locked.

"When we tried to go in, the fence was locked, so we decided to

No Women In Jaycees? Seminole Could Care Less

By JOAN MADISON
Herald Correspondent

Jaycees throughout the nation — Seminole County included — are facing an ultimatum: Get rid of women members by today (Dec. 1, 1978) or face ouster from the 200,000-member national organization.

The dilemma has stirred controversy nationally, with seven states threatening to withdraw or having withdrawn their units from the national organization.

But, ultimatum or not, Seminole chapters could care less. And for good reason: none of the chapters has women.

But what if...?

Emory Spair Jr., president of the Sanford-Seminole Jaycees, has an answer.

"Even if we did have women members," he says, "I don't go along with that. Nobody has the right to dictate to the local organization who they should have."

So there. Or is it?

"You cannot have women on the Florida Jaycees roster," explains Michael McCracken, District 25 president. "In Florida, Jaycees there are two organizations: the Jaycees and the Jayceettes, the woman's side of it."

And, continues McCracken: "We do allow women to be involved, but they are not members of the Jaycees. That's just the way the bylaws are. The National organization would not accept them."

Spair likes the idea of separate organizations.

"It seems to work out better when you have all men and all women," he suggests. "Men get together and shoot the bull... women can do the same thing."

McCracken agrees.

"It would take away a lot of the 'brotherhood,'" he says. "It's like a fraternity. I don't presently see a problem with women being members, except that it's a guy's organization."

The Jayceettes, he says, provides women the same opportunities as men.

"The auxiliary is a support function of Jaycees," says McCracken. "They operate that way, but they are developing themselves while they are doing that. They sponsor their own projects and have the same training as men. It's just recognized as a separate organization, separate and apart from Jaycees."

As far as Joe Furling, president of the Altamonte-South Seminole Jaycees, is concerned, it's a matter of "identity."

"A lot of Jayceettes," he says, "my wife included, don't want to be in Jaycees. They want to keep their identity."

"We've been through this before," notes Spair, "about six or seven months ago. The state organization at a convention voted they didn't want to allow women in the Jaycees. Women concurred as they felt it would create a lot of problems. It was mutually agreed they would keep the organizations separate and apart. They work more effectively that way."

Mimi Pajonaveta, vice president of the Altamonte-South Seminole Jayceettes, agrees. She wants to keep the organizations separate.

"I feel we have the same opportunities the guys do for individual leadership and training," she says.

Again, Seminole chapters seem to be backing the trend. The Chicago Jaycees chapter, one of the seven threatening to quit, for example, elected a woman president.

And the controversy is growing.

In February, for instance, an amendment will be proposed at the women's state conference allowing single women to join Jayceettes (as does Altamonte-South Seminole now).

McCracken feels this is a "forerunner to allowing women to join Jaycees."

"Eventually," he predicts, "we'll get to the place where the state organization will recognize women. The trend just seems to be that way."

Leisurely
 Hospital
 Helpers

Don't call them Pink Ladies, although there are some men.

They are the Seminole Memorial Hospital Auxiliary consisting of 130 men and women who put in thousands of hours of unpaid work at the hospital.

A volunteer is required to put in a minimum of 40 hours a year, but most put in far more than that in their leisure time.

The Auxiliary started in 1966 when the hospital was on Oak Avenue, but moved when the hospital opened its present facility on First Street in 1968.

Some of the volunteers have been putting in one or two days a week ever since the hospital opened its doors. As one walks into SMH, there are two volunteers at the front desk from 9 in the morning until 8:30 at night.

The gift shop is staffed by volunteers and two others push a cart around the wings offering snacks and personal items for the convenience of patients.

Every newborn has his or her picture taken and a copy made available to the parents by the Auxiliary. A sewing committee makes head supports for the pediatric wing.

Orders for medical supplies are picked up and filled around town and delivered back to the nursing stations. They also deliver orders to labs and to the X-ray department.

SEHERA or the Seminole Hospital Eye Bank is also part of their work. Funds raised to make their eye banks upon their death to help restore the sight of others may make the arrangements through the Auxiliary by filling out a simple form.

When a relative is undergoing surgery or in intensive care, an Auxiliary volunteer is in the surgical waiting room to offer assistance and act as liaison between the relatives and hospital staff.

"It takes a very special kind of person to help during a real stressful time," said volunteer Grace Smith.

"The volunteer tries to be as helpful as he can without getting in the way."

Now Along Comes Joan To Tell Of Sister Feud

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD — As a writer, I resent actors who write well. How dare they have so much talent!
 It always makes me feel better when I read a book by an actor who obviously can't write at all. Poor Jimmy Cagney — a great actor, but his autobiography showed he might have had better luck with the letters from a cast of alphabet soup.

 Reading his book restored my faith in the fact there are actors and there are writers and they are two different talents.
 But David Niven spoiled all that, by writing better than almost anybody. And Lilli Palmer. And Liv Ullmann. And now along comes Joan Fontaine with a sassy autobiography which she calls "No Bad Of Names."

 It's well-written and it tells all — at least one side of all — about Joan's famous feud with her sister, Olivia De Havilland. (The word is that Olivia has now decided the time has come for her to tell all, or, specifically, her version of all.)

Still an elegant looking woman, Joan Fontaine lives now in New York, and loves it. She decided to write her autobiography for two reasons.
 "First," she says, "I was dismayed recently when people didn't even know who I was. I said I had been in pictures to someone, and he said, 'In what capacity?' I decided I had to set that person and all the others who didn't know me, straight."

"And, second, I was in a long-running play, 'Bilko Spirk,' and I had some problems with some of the cast, and so it was sort of unpleasant backstage. So I began writing to keep myself occupied."
 The result is a very classy book, as you might expect from this very classy lady. And it tells interesting things about Hollywood, about herself and her very odd early life and her marriages.

"If I have any sense at all," Joan Fontaine says now, "I will never marry again."
 She has sense, all right, but she also shows, in the book, that she has a lot of emotion. And sometimes emotion has a way of getting in the way of sense.

 Professionally, Fontaine says that she is very careful what she does nowadays. She admits that she really doesn't need to act for the money involved, so if she acts, she does it only for the pleasure it gives her.
 She recently did "The Users," which was seen on TV. She says she liked the part, which was funny and somewhat different for her.
 "But I really do not do very much television," she says. "I am offered parts quite often — 'The Love Boat' not very long ago, for example — but they are small and they don't pay very much."
 "I don't really need the money, so why should I do them? I haven't done a motion picture since 1968. I get offers, but they all seem to be terrible parts in terrible pictures, and I don't want to be associated with them."
 She lives alone in New York, but insists she is far from being lonely.
 "Einstein said something about solitude being dreadful when you're young," she says, "but a luxury when you're middle-aged. And I feel that he was so right. Nowadays, I really feel a very strong need for solitude most of the time."
 "I have no husband now, and my children are grown — and I tell you it is a glorious feeling."

Still an elegant looking woman, Joan Fontaine lives now in New York, and loves it. She decided to write her autobiography for two reasons.

"First," she says, "I was dismayed recently when people didn't even know who I was. I said I had been in pictures to someone, and he said, 'In what capacity?' I decided I had to set that person and all the others who didn't know me, straight."

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: I pose a question to the concerned parents and special interest groups who oppose sex and crime on TV during the family hour of viewing. Where do you hide the children during the showing of soap operas? Monday through Friday a child learns more about moral conduct, sex, crime and infidelity on soap operas than on any showing of such shows as "Kojak" or "Starkey and Hatch." RICKI WILLIAMS, Bangor, Mich.

A devilishly good point. Those soap operas are really slices of life, from the seamy side out. And there are many TV producers who mean about the double standard, about how they are not allowed to have their nighttime characters do and say every with regularity. I don't know the answer, but if sure is a good question.

DEAR DICK: I saw on the front cover of a magazine today that John Travolta and Olivia Newton-John were secretly married and are expecting a baby. I would like to know if this is actually true. YVONNE MARTINEZ, West Covina, Calif.

You must have been reading the latest copy of Startling Nonsense or else Today's Bologna. Untrue, totally.

DEAR DICK: Would you do me a favor and print the real names of movie stars. I know most of the old stars and I sure would like to know their real names. I know a few, but I am sure you can get the names easily. AMBROSE BOURG, Gray, La.

There are so many of them, that I can't possibly print a list. It's interesting that that seems to be going out of fashion. Today's stars — Pacino, DeNiro, Winkler, Kaplan, Travolta — keep their names. I'll give you a few of the Miggins, just as examples: Cary Grant was Archibald Leach; Dean Martin was Dino Crocetti; Kirk

Douglas was Louis Demazy; Mickey Mouse was Michel Rodant.

DEAR DICK: What TV series, other than "Delvecchio," has Judd Hirsch starred in? Also, what was the name of the lawyer series located in the Southwest, in which the attorney drove a camper-truck and lived in a trailer, and who starred in it?—C. OWENS, Rock Hill, S.C.

Hirsch's only series, before "Taxi," was "Delvecchio," unless you count "The Law." That wasn't really a series, although they tried to make it work as a series. The lawyer in the Southwest was "Petrocilli," played by Barry Newman.

DEAR DICK: What was the name of the movie which came out in the '50s starring Clark Gable as an American doctor (I think) and Gene Tierney as a Russian ballerina. They fell in love and he tried to take her out of the country, but the government foiled their plans. CAROLEE HOPKINS, Warsaw, Ind.

That was "Never Let Me Go," from 1953, but Gable played a news correspondent in it, not a doctor.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me the name of the guy who plays Chris in "Days Of Our Lives"? M. B. Galesburg, Mich.

Yes, that's Josh Taylor.

DEAR DICK: I would like to know who she is in the Carter Family besides Mother Maybelle, and what relation they are to her. CINDI PHILLIPS, Dison, Ill.

Mother Maybelle, who died recently, was part of the original group. The others were A.P. Carter, who was Maybelle's brother-in-law, and A.P.'s wife, Sara. Later, Maybelle's three daughters, Helen, June and Anita, took over, as A.P. and Sara departed. June, as you probably know, is now Mrs. Johnny Cash.

DEAR DICK: Here is more information on John Gary. He is still recording, because I have his two newest albums, recorded within the last year or two in Dallas, Tex. He lives in Mesquite, which adjoins Dallas. RAYMOND RIDGELL, Joplin, Mo.

Thanks for that information, which I am sure all of us Gary fans will appreciate.

'The Christmas Years' - A Look Back At Bing

"Bing Crosby - The Christmas Years," a new special hour woven around highlights from the Christmas shows of the late entertainer will be presented on CBS, Dec. 8.

Crosby's legendary voice continues to be a part of Christmas, a season he celebrated in song for more than 50 years. Crosby's family shares their memories of Christmas past as they gather for a holiday reunion.

Among the highlights of past Crosby Christmas shows, which viewers will watch along with the special's stars, Kathryn (Mrs. Bing) Crosby and the Crosby children, Harry, Mary Frances and Nathaniel, are memorable moments with Fred Astaire, David Bowie, John Byner, Jackie Gleason, Robert Goulet, Michael Landon, The Mitchell Sings Boys and Connie Stevens.

The Crosby family, scattered during the past year in their respective pursuits of career and study, gathered from different parts of the world to celebrate Christmas and look back at their Christmas with Bing Crosby and Jackie Gleason.

through shared memories. Included among the highlights of the memorable past Christmas shows are their Christmases with Bing Crosby and Jackie Gleason as two Santa Clauses in a duet of "Put It There, Pal," from the 1976 Crosby Christmas special; Crosby, Robert Goulet and The Mitchell Sings Boys performing "The Cop and the Anthem," excerpts from Crosby's one-man musical "The State vs. Santa Claus" in 1974; and Fred Astaire singing "Pick Yourself Up" to Mary Frances Crosby on the 1975 special.

The first appearance of Kathryn and the children on a "Hollywood Palace" Christmas show with Bing in 1968, when the children were 4, 7 and 8, respectively is also seen, as is the melody of "Little Drummer Boy" and "Peace on Earth" sung by Crosby and David Bowie in an old English manor house music-room setting on "Bing Crosby's Merry Old Christmas Special," which Crosby taped in London five weeks before his death on Oct. 14, 1977.

Crosby, Michael Landon, Connie Stevens and John Byner in their presentation of "Ballad of the Christmas Star" from a show shot in Sun Valley, Idaho, in 1973, is also among the highlights included, as are various scenes of Crosby with his children, such as a vocal and guitar rendition of "The Christmas Song" with son, Harry.

The hour of warmth, humor, music and bitter-sweet nostalgia, all part of the Christmas feelings that Crosby kept the world aware of, closes with a segment from the 1966 "Hollywood Palace" show in which Bing, backed by his young family, sings a melody of carols.

Fusspot Neatnik Or Plain Old Slob?

By ANNE TRAYER
Are you a Felix or are you an Oscar?

With the cult following for "The Odd Couple" series starring Tony Randall and Jack Klugman increasing with every re-run (it's seen in some cities three times a day) probably only a Rip Van Winkle, back after a 20-year snooze, would be puzzled by the question. For almost anybody else, Felix has become a synonym for a fusspot neatnik. "Oscar" equates with slob.

How do the celebrities line up? Both the perpetually glamorous Marlene Dietrich and the late Joan Crawford revealed themselves repeatedly as slob-pure Felixes because both went in personally for scrabbling floors.

No one in our rundown, however, has proven himself, or herself, to be an equally fervent OSCAR.

Early in his career, when he was co-starring in Westerns, Lee Majors spoke warmly of his ramshackle hillside rental that only got swept once in a while.

Then something happened. Maybe he just grew up? But by the time he played the second lead as a young lawyer on "Owen Marshall," Mr. Majors was reborn in stylish, well-kept Bel Air and wearing three-piece suits. And that all pre-dated the advent of the beautiful Farrah into his life.

Stunning, brunette Marie Masters (she's Susan Stewart in "As the World Turns") says that as the divorced, working mother of 8-year-old twins, a housekeeper on the scene is essential for her, too.

Marie, a haute-cuisine cook, does, however, do all the hot-stove work herself when guests are coming.

Although she has bawdy convictions about cleanliness, she draws the line way short of the Felix standards.

In fact, Marie sizes letting anybody pave the chiller too fine in her digs. "Only once in a great while can I throw out newspaper clippings and old magazines. And I think most creative people are this way."

And what of Jack Klugman and Tony Randall's real-life orientation?

Randall once quipped, "Jack may be more of a Felix than I am. I can be a true Oscar and throw my clothes around because I have a wife who will pick them up. She's a real Felix."

'Prophecy': Film Security To Stymie TV Rip-Off

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — The first person I met, when I visited the set of "Prophecy," was John Shirley. He was a pleasant man

"If it was meant to have happened, it would have"

with a pleasant smile and a pleasant handshake. He was also, they said, a former CIA man and the film's security chief.

There are security people on most sets, but generally they keep a low profile. On this set, they paraded Shirley early, as though to impress on me the strict importance the company places on security.

What are they so secretive about? I still don't know. The film is, they say, a horror film.

But, like many such films today, they say the horror element is secondary to the story that deals with people, issues, and things like that. Here's all I know, or could find out:

"Prophecy" is set mostly in the Maine woods. It involves a threat to ecology of some sort, smog maybe or what happens when a paper mill pours pollutants into rivers.

Anyhow, the horror comes from the smog or the pollutant which "changes the behavior pattern of forest creatures."

That phrase is put in quotation marks because it was given to me carefully, word for word, so there would be no mistake.

At first, they had used the word "mutation," but then they revised it to the quoted phrase.

There are no photographs available for whatever forest creature has had its behavior pattern changed. You are, as I was, left to use your own imagination. Is it a 20-foot tall mankrat? Or a brown bear with fangs like scorpals?

"I've supported myself very nicely for years..."

My money is on a deer whose antlers become flexible, so they become like the tentacles of an octopus. Whatever it is, the hope is that it scares you all into the theaters.

The security is so tight, they say, in an attempt to keep TV from ripping the idea off. That happens.

TV can turn these things out fast, and if they find out what the idea is, they can have a TV movie about it on the air next Tuesday. "Prophecy" stars Robert Foxworth. For him, this film is a major step. He should have been a big star a few years ago, but somehow didn't make it.

He has all the tools — a brilliant actor, very attractive, hard-working, a nice person — but it just hasn't happened. Yet.

He thinks that maybe this part in this picture will do it for him. He says he's given a lot of thought to why and how come he hasn't become a big star before this.

"I've been able to arrive at no conclusion," he says, "except that it simply is fate. If it was meant to have happened, it would have happened."

Now maybe it will happen. It should, because the picture seems to have all the elements.

It has a class director, John Frankenheimer; and it was written by the man who wrote the original "Omen," and produced by the man who produced "French Connection II" and "Black Sunday."

ROBERT FOXWORTH

The writer is David Selzer, the producer Robert L. Rosen.

But, of course, having all the elements is no guarantee of success.

There is no such thing as a guaranteed success in movies. Foxworth thought he had a sure thing earlier with "Damien — Omen II," which fell on its spear.

"If it happens now, fine," Foxworth says. "If it doesn't I'll keep on working, just as I've always worked. I've supported myself very nicely for years, and I'll continue."

He has another iron in the fire now, too — writing. For the past five years or so, Foxworth has been with Elizabeth Montgomery — they met when they did the TV movie "Mrs. Sundance" — and now they have decided they want to work together more.

What's In An Address?

— Not much as tangled county postal routes cause identity crisis

By JANE CARMELISBY
 Herald Staff Writer

Do you find it difficult to relate to being a Seminole County resident if your address is Orlando, Apopka, Maitland or Winter Park — all in Orange County?

Well, don't feel badly — this is the case with thousands of South Seminole residents.

An effort was begun more than a year ago by postal officials to untangle some of the confusion caused by overlapping postal delivery areas in South Seminole County.

But it is still bogged down by union grievance appeals, according to Nolan Slaughter, manager, delivery and collection, for the Orlando District Center Area.

"The union is just doing what is their right. It is a matter of time," said Slaughter, "and we will probably leave by January if we are going to stop this, after that it could go to arbitration if neither party backs down and that could take up to a year."

"There have been some examples in other places where management went ahead and made the district changes and then when it went to arbitration, they were ordered to go back and many customers their mailing addresses would be changed back to what it was again," he explained.

"It makes sense to wait, however long it takes. When we adjust our route we adjust them all, so the carriers can get together and decide to file a grievance. The union is just doing what is their right. It is a matter of time."

Sanford Candidate 'Demands' City Panel To Examine Police

By MAX ERSKETTIAN
 Herald Staff Writer

Third district Sanford City Commission candidate Dave Farr plans to "demand" the commission create a "non-ribbit" panel of interested citizens to examine the police department.

Farr said he will go before the commission Dec. 11, whether or not he is elected in Tuesday's balloting and call for the action.

"I'm going to demand the city commission create a five-member committee to investigate the police department from the top to the bottom and make recommendations at a public meeting," Farr said.

"If they find irregularities, mismanagement or poor administration, they should make recommendations at a public meeting," commented Farr.

"If there are no irregularities they should make that finding, too, and put this thing to rest, so we can go about the business of running the city as usual, but somebody or group has got to let the city know what is going on."

Farr said he decided to propose the committee as the result of citizens concerns voiced to him while canvassing Sanford neighborhoods in his bid for office.

"Their comments to me have been something like, 'the first thing we've got to do is clean up the mess at the police department. That's a typical comment,'" said Farr.

"The citizens of Sanford lack confidence in the police department, because of the official investigation or questions of legitimacy such as the incident at the Proctor Park police reservation; low morale at the department; and the fear of retribution by police officers who want to speak out."

Farr was referring to an incident at a local bar in which a former police officer fired by Chief Don Butler charged Butler hit

Heavy Crime Calls Cited; Polk Urging Look At The System

By DENNIS FEOLA
 Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County Sheriff's Department received its highest number of complaint calls in the history of the department during the month of October.

The statistics coincide with previous reports that crime in Florida is up 4.3 percent so far this year.

Although the complaint call statistics do not reflect actual crime, they do reflect the number of calls handled by sheriff's deputies.

In addition, available statistics indicate crime is increasing in Seminole County at triple the statewide average.

There were 326 crimes reported during October 1977. There were 170 crimes reported in October 1976. That's a 15-percent increase.

Seminole County Sheriff's Department spokesman John Spohl said statistics are not available for the total number of crimes reported so far this year.

"Characteristically, October runs high," Spohl said. "The increase is not directly proportional to the increase in population in Seminole County."

In addition to increasing population, Spohl cited the "recession" of Orlando as another reason for crime increase. The Orlando area is a state-designated high crime area, Spohl said, and Seminole county is getting some of the overflow.

"The month of October has been our high month for the past three years," Sheriff John Polk said. "If it continues like it is, we'll have to create a position of desk officer to take a more money to handle the increased calls.

"A lot of our calls are late emergency calls or late emergency calls," Polk said. "But in the past three services have always been provided."

"I think you have several reasons for the increase," the sheriff said. "Population increase, high density — I found where Disney World set an attendance record, San World set an attendance record, this increases the number of transients."

"We are solving our major crimes, but we continue to fall back in solving a lot of vandalism and other misdemeanor-type crimes," Polk said.

"I don't think we can hire enough police officers to put out an every street corner, so to speak," he said.

"It's going to make us look at ourselves, we're going to have to make better use. The state attorney should be given

READY TO ROLL

The two buses from the Orange, Seminole, Osceola Transportation Authority (OSOTA) that will carry riders over three routes in Sanford are ready to roll for the first time Monday morning. The buses were brought to the Seminole County Five Points complex Friday afternoon. The buses will circulate through town every half hour making several stops along the way. They start schedules and stops will be set after the buses have run a few days, according to OSOTA officials. Bus fare is 50 cents and OSOTA has an information number for those seeking further details: 628-2285. OSOTA has also distributed brochures about the routes downtown and in the Sanford Plaza. Not Invited To Parley, 2 Lake Mary Candidates Miffed

Two Lake Mary City Council candidates feel they have been snubbed by a group that organized a "non-ribbit" gathering at the Robinson Saturday afternoon.

Incumbent district four Councilman Don Parke and district two candidate Mary (Mary) Bacon were both not invited to the gathering. Parke and Bacon said Saturday they would attend the meeting.

Members of the organizing group, Lake Mary Citizens for a "non-ribbit" meeting, however, the citizens have listed only the names of 28 candidates. District four candidates, and Frank Hart and Gene McDuffie, district two candidates.

Both Parke and Bacon have said they will attend the meeting, however.

"It's a good non-ribbit candidate meeting," said Parke, "but since I'm a part of the public and the public is invited, I'm going to go down and meet some of the candidates. There are some I haven't met."

Bacon contacted the meeting chair and they don't like to see things like this.

Kay Seaman, former city clerk, who is organizing the meeting, said Parke and Bacon were not being snubbed.

"The feeling is that Mary is well known and so is Don because they've been on the council before," said Mrs. Seaman.

Bacon arrived at the council last night and was invited to move to Ocean. He returned to Lake Mary in August.

"There is nothing stopping either one of them from coming," said Mrs. Seaman. "This is open to the public. We just thought that some other candidates have not been on the council and are not as well known as people should meet them."

"That's a pretty curious," Bacon said of Mrs. Seaman's explanation. — MAX ERSKETTIAN
