Olympic flame arrives in Seoul

SEOUL, South Korea — The Olympic torch arrived in Seoul today protected by scores of riot police on the final leg of its circuitous, 22-day journey across South Korea to light the flame of peace and officially open the Summer Games.

The sacred flame was scheduled to burn through the night in a cauldron before the final spurt of the hand-to-hand relay to the Olympic Stadium and the opening ceremony of the 24th Olympiad Saturday.

The final torch bearer who will light the flame of peace remained a secret, but rumors focused on Korean marathoner Sohn Kee Chung, 76, who won an Olympic gold medal in the 1936 Berlin Olympics.

Brady takes treasury reins

WASHINGTON — Wall Street's Nicholas Brady was called to the White House today to be sworn in as the administration's third treasury secretary.

Just two days after the Senate overwhelmingly approved his nomination, the oath of office ceremony was arranged quickly so Brady would be able to get to work next week at a meeting in Berlin with international finance ministers.

Progress made on fire control

Containment of two of the vast forest fires that have raged through Yellowstone National Park since spring — unthinkable only a week ago — could be just a few days away, fire bosses said. More cool, damp weather on Thursday helped the force of 6,700 firefighters and U.S. Marines make steady progress against fires that have charred 1.5 million acres in and around the park since one of the worst fire seasons on record began in May in the West.

Yankees gain on Red Sox

Seeking to duplicate their dramatic charge to the finish 10 years ago, the New York Yankees delivered a reminder to the Boston Red Sox Thursday night.

"I'm sure it sent a message," said center fielder Claudell Washington, who stole home for what proved to be the decisive run in New York's 5-3 victory over the Red Sox.

"It probably sent a flashback to 1978," Washington said. "This game wasn't as dramatic as some of those games, but it sends a message that we're a hungry ballclub."

Texas braces for Gilbert

200,000 flee as storm threatens Gulf Coast

United Press International

BROWNSVILLE, Texas — Hurricane Gilbert slashed within striking range of the western Gulf Coast today with 120-mph winds and 11-foot waves, putting the Texas-Mexico border "under the gun" and more than 200,000 people fled as the killer storm took aim.

With storm refugees jamming coastal shelters and inland motels, Gilbert began lashing the shore with 40-mph squalls late Thursday. The National Guard went on alert, police patrolled deserted streets to prevent looting and hospitals turned away all but emergency patients to prepare for the potential disaster.

At 7:30 a.m., Gilbert's center was near latitude 23.8 north, longitude 95.9 west, or about 180 miles south-southeast of Brownsville. The hurricane was moving toward the west-northwest at 12 mph — a pace that could send it ashore near the Texas-Mexico border this evening, the National Weather Service said.

There was still a possibility Gilbert could veer farther up the Texas coast.

Hurricane warnings flew over 900 miles of coast from Port O'Connor in central Texas to the Mexican port of Tampico. A hurricane watch was posted from Port O'Connor north to Port Arthur on the border with Louisiana.

Gilbert killed at least 47 people in a devastating march through the Caribbean Sea to the Gulf of Mexico, and more than 200,000 people along the Texas and Louisiana coasts evacuated as the storm howled toward land again. Six thousand people on the Mexican coast streamed inland to refugee camps set up by the government.

"Everybody is leaving," said Gil Gonzales of Port O'Connor. "The water is already coming over the seawall and the tides are coming in. If Gilbert turns north, Port O'Connor could be wiped out."

State meteorologist Tom Larkin warned that Gilbert is the equal of Hurricane Allen, which caused $300 million damage in a 1980 assault on south Texas. "The southeastern half of Texas is under the gun," he said.

About 40,000 people fled Brownsville, a mostly Hispanic city of 100,000, and officials said they feared for the safety of thousands who stayed in vulnerable slums.

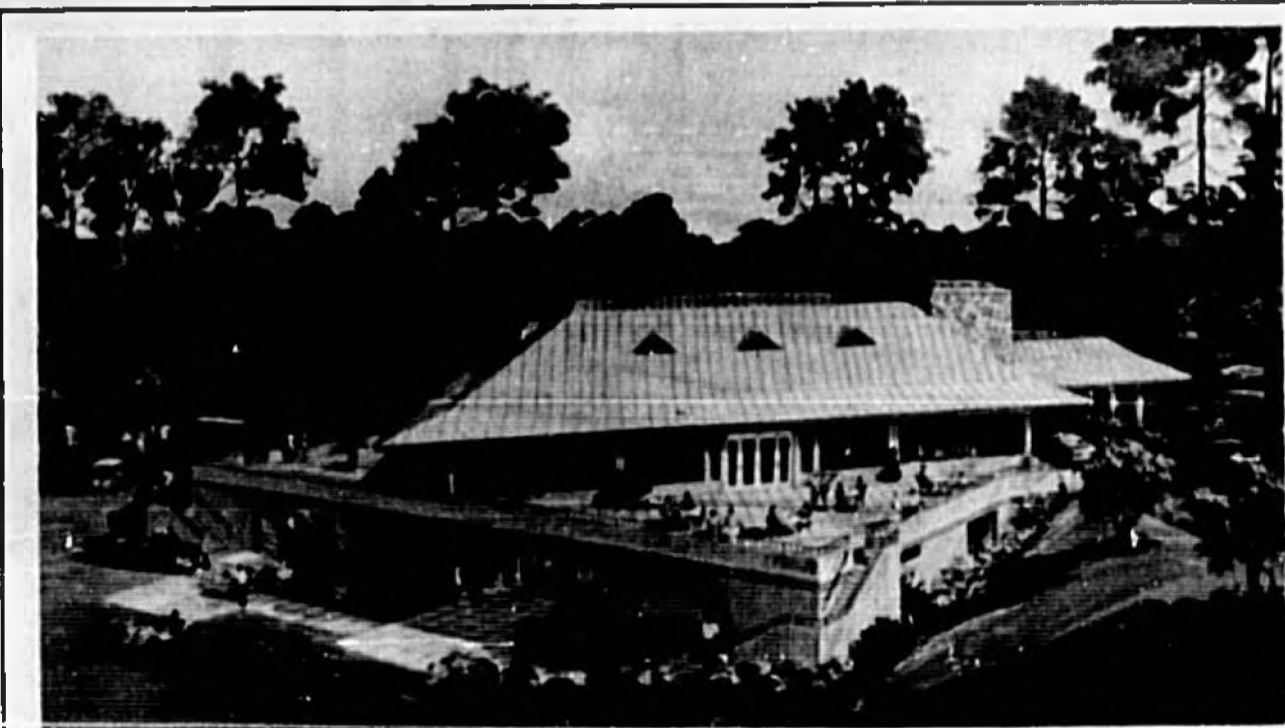

"We are not a rich community," police Sgt. Luis Martinez. "And that's what the problem is. They have nowhere else to go."

With residents making runs on storm supplies, complaints of price gouging poured in to police, and Texas Attorney General Jim Mottow vowed to prosecute "unconscionable and greedy" merchants.

"We already have had complaints from across the Texas coast about price gouging in the sales of plywood and bottled water," he said. "They are doubling and tripling the prices for the products. It is unconscionable for persons to take advantage of others who are in desperate need."

Galveston imposed an emergency ordinance freezing the prices of all goods and services, and two men were jailed Thursday on charges of

Timacuan to get new clubhouse

By SANDRA BOUCHANINE

LAKE MARY — Groundbreaking for a new $3 million clubhouse for the Timacuan Golf Club is scheduled for Monday morning.

Timacuan owner Patricia Stenstrom said the McCully Construction Company of Orlando has been contracted to build the new clubhouse, which will replace a temporary one in service since the golf course opened.

Rick Neal, project manager for McCully, said completion of the structure is scheduled for late April or early May.

The two-story building will include 22,000 square feet and will feature a restaurant decorated in "Santa Fe style," according to Dennis Cone, project manager for Timacuan. The restaurant will be open for breakfast, lunch and dinner, Stenstrom said.

The clubhouse will be built in the "old Florida" style with a sophisticated metal roof, Neal said, and will utilize lots of glass to show off the view overlooking the first, third and 18th greens near the 40-acre lake.

Dennis Cone, project manager for Timacuan, said the clubhouse will contain a pro shop and lockers in addition to the restaurant. Tennis courts will be

Building heights to be limited

By SANDRA BOUCHANINE
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary Commissioners gave Heathrow Land and Development Corporation several options during their meeting last night concerning building heights, but no decisions have been made.

After lengthy discussion among the commissioners, they agreed upon 70-foot high buildings for most of the property with 45 percent open space, as much as 30 feet lower than what the developers wanted.

The issue, which has been a continuing one, was what proportion of open space should there be in relation to the building height? At the outset, the developer wanted 140-foot high buildings located in the P and Q tracts adjacent to Interstate 4. They asserted that taller buildings would create more open space. They agreed to strike a compromise with the commissioners and Lake Mary City planners, however, and opted for lower structures.

The commissioners argued that high buildings would

Longwood buys new computer equipment

By JANE CABELBERRY
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — The city's new $118,877 IBM AS/400 computer hardware is being installed in the city hall annex and the software is expected to be delivered Monday, according to City Purchasing Director Rhonda Ledford. She said an additional three-percent discount off the state contract will amount to a $342 savings.

The city commission adopted an ordinance Monday providing for execution of a municipal lease and option agreement for acquisition of the state-of-the-art computer equipment. The IBM equipment costs $77,602 including a one-time fee of $11,701 for operating programs.

According to Finance Director Rick Holt it may be mid-November before the entire system is operational, allowing all of the terminals and personal computers in the various departments to be networked with the main frame

He said he hopes to at least have the accounting system up and running by Oct. 1, so employees can start entering the general ledger. He said the new system will be run parallel with the old one until it is proved that the software for each function is working properly. This will mean entering the same data into both computers for that period of time.

Holt said he has received good news from the city's auditing firm, Kane and Associates, which has completed a pre-audit for the 1987-88 fiscal year. Because of problems with the last two audits that prevented balancing the city's books due to quirks in the old software, it had been expected that the books would have to be completely reconstructed on the new computer system. However, Holt said, the auditor has decided the audit trail for the past year is substantial enough that the books will not have to be reconstructed.

Fired SHA boss files grievance

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald city editor

SANFORD — The Sanford Housing Authority learned Thursday night that Elliott Smith, former executive director who was abruptly fired Sept. 8, has filed a grievance against the board. A hearing must be set within seven days.

The commissioners were meeting for the first time since firing Smith and forcing the resignation of its attorney, Ned Julian, Jr., during a special meeting.

No date for the hearing was set until the board's newly appointed attorney, James Sweeting III, can research whether the seven days include weekends. He told the board the hearing could be Wednesday if weekend days are included, and could be Thursday or Friday of next week if they are not.

In his first ruling as the board's attorney, at the request of Commissioner Robert Frazier, Sweeting said the action taken at the last meeting was legal. Although a special meeting, Sweeting said the firing of Smith and the acceptance of Julian's resignation was legal because the Authority's bylaws allow the board to act on the matter for which a special meeting is called, plus "any and all business" which comes before it as long as all members are present.

Commissioners Terri Buratti, Bob Ball Sr. and Alberta Detreville voted to fire Smith and accepted Julian's resignation after a resolution to fire him was read by Ball. Commissioners Frazier and Wyun voted against the motions.

Sweeting, who is with the law firm Perry & Lamb P.A., said the firm's terms for his representing the Authority were that he act in that capacity on an interim basis until Dec. 30 at a fee of $75 per hour. The board accepted those terms.

The board had scheduled hearing from the 14 employees who had filed grievances claiming poor management practices have been

Candidates view the pocketbook

To the average voter, one of the most salient distinctions separating George Bush and Michael Dukakis is a straightforward five-letter word: Taxes.

Mr. Bush flatly rules out tax increases as the means to reduce the federal deficit. He argues that raising taxes merely gives Congress more license to spend. To the Republican presidential nominee, continued economic growth coupled with spending cuts is the best formula to balance the budget by 1993.

Moreover, Vice President Bush calls for cutting the capital-gains tax rate from a maximum of 28 percent to 15 percent. His supply-side premise is that the move would boost government revenues by channeling capital to the most-productive businesses and by increasing investment and economic growth.

Mr. Dukakis, keenly aware of Walter Mondale's suicidal pledge to raise taxes four years ago, says he would increase taxes only as a last resort. But the Democratic presidential nominee's record in Massachusetts demonstrates that higher taxes are an option to which he resorts regularly.

In his first gubernatorial campaign, Mr. Dukakis also promised to raise taxes only as a last resort. But, during his first year in office, when projected revenues fell short of his spending plans, Gov. Dukakis pushed a tax hike through the legislature. Similarly, when Massachusetts faced a fiscal squeeze earlier this year, he covered the deficit with a $115 million increase in income and cigarette taxes.

On the spending side, as well, the candidates have very different priorities.

The vice president is committed to a "flexible freeze" under which overall government spending would be allowed to rise only enough to account for inflation. Gov. Dukakis declines to specify how much additional spending he would support, but maintains that billions of dollars in higher outlays would be made possible by stepping up collection of unpaid taxes.

Another philosophical difference between the contenders is illustrated by their approach to government support for child care. Mr. Dukakis backs a $2.5 billion federal spending program for day-care centers, while Mr. Bush pushes a plan that primarily involves tax breaks to help families defray the costs of private child care of their own choosing.

The two men also differ fundamentally on the federal government's proper role in managing the economy. The Republican nominee spearheaded the Reagan administration's deregulation campaign and defines government's prime mission as "keeping the markets as free as possible ... keeping tax rates down and providing an economic climate in which employment can increase." His Democratic rival, on the other hand, questions the deregulation of the airline industry and emphasizes greater government intervention in antitrust matters.

The continuing challenge for voters is to discern the many differences between the two presidential candidates while ignoring attempts to label the individuals or cloud the issues with irrelevant trivia. The coming debates will give citizens a great opportunity to obtain such insights.

America's salvation by immigration

Will America decline? Economically? Geopolitically?

Looking ahead to the 1990s, the United States and our competitors in Japan and Western Europe all face problems. But America has one potential solution not available to the others. It can be our "comparative advantage" in the great battles of competition to come. Congress, barely realizing it, has the opportunity — right now — to maximize our advantage.

The economic problem: There will be a shortage of young adults. The cause: a sharp drop in birth rates that began about 20 years ago. The only solution: immigration. (You can conceive extra new babies. Young adults can only be imported.)

As it stands now, during the 1990s the number of young adults in America will decline by about 20 percent. Roughly the same phenomenon will transpire in Japan and Western Europe. That means economic turbulence.

For a rough sketch of one example, consider the new housing industry. That industry, broadly defined, makes up about 10 percent of America's Gross National Product. Demand for new housing is triggered by the coming-of-age of young adults. These young adults either buy new houses or buy old houses so that the owners of old houses can buy new houses.

When those young adults are not around (because they were never born 20 years ago) who suffers? Who loses jobs? Only builders, architects, real estate brokers, carpenters, lumberjacks, landscapers, cornice and carpet manufacturers, electricians, refrigerator and dishwasher manufacturers, etc. You get the idea.

Such a demographic situation has never existed before in a modern capitalist economy. Anyone who claims to know how it will play out doesn't understand the situation. But it probably won't be good.

It goes beyond mere economics. How does one know whether America is in decline? In October, the Census Bureau, for the first time in our history, will issue a set of projections showing a "most likely" scenario of long-term diminishment of total population. A nation shrinking in numbers is not likely to be in global ascendancy.

One way to reverse that trend in the long-term is for Americans to have more babies. That is proving to be difficult. An easier way is to bring in more immigrants. Our competitors, who do not live in pluralist societies, can't do it. The Japanese live in a xenophobic culture; they don't like "furriners"; they don't want and don't take in immigrants. The Europeans take in some; then they try to deport them.

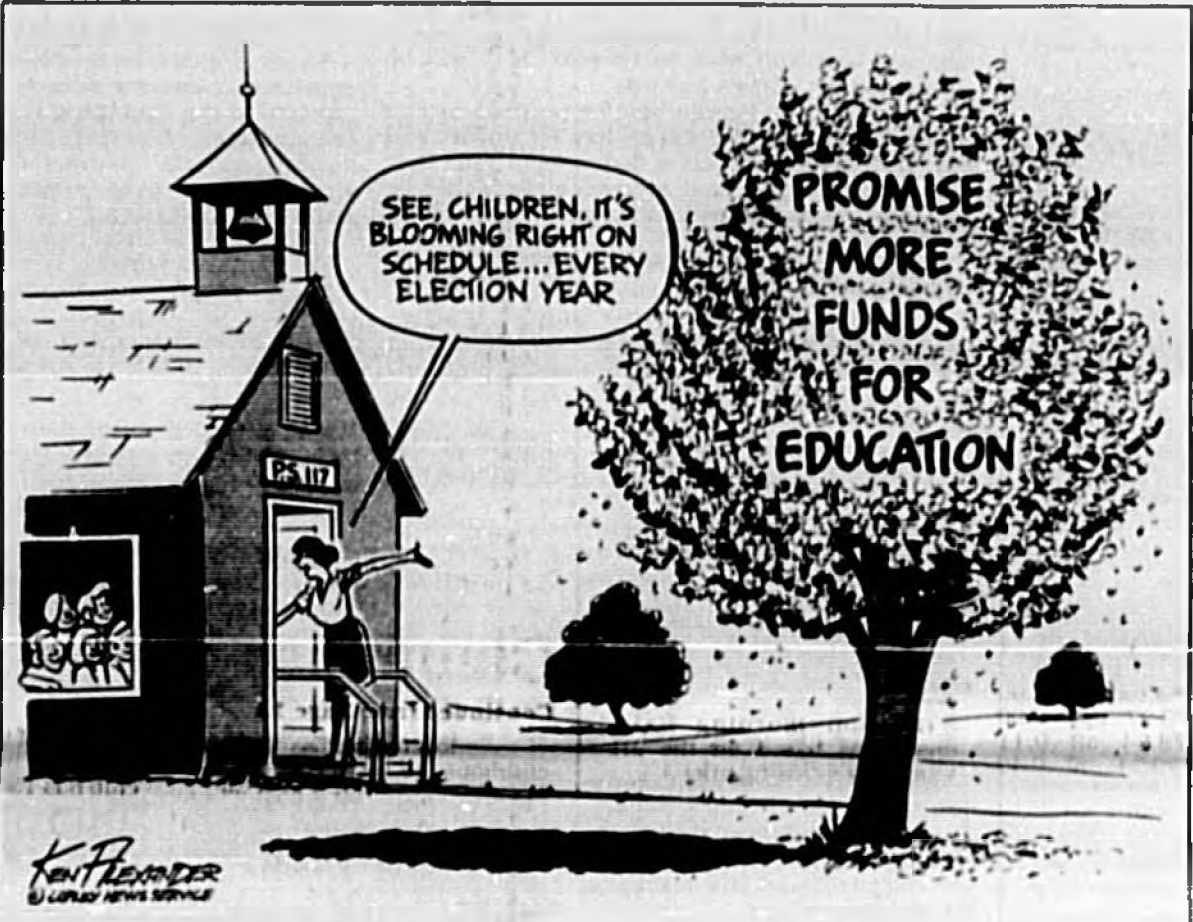

Congress is now considering a new immigration bill. There is a good House bill and a not-nearly-as-good Senate bill. There are only a few legislative days left in this session. If there is no bill passed, that will probably mean a delay of at least a couple of years. The tock is clicking.

The legislative wrangle gets very technical. For our purposes, there is a significant difference in the two bills. There is an argument about it, but the Senate bill would raise legal immigration by no more than about 80,000-100,000 people per year. That only makes up for the decline that will be caused by the 1986 immigration act, which cuts back illegal immigration.

A nation shrinking in numbers is not likely to be in global ascendancy.

Frustration of Democrats

HACKENSACK, N.J.—The frustration Democratic Party pros feel about the ineptitude of Michael S. Dukakis' campaign in recent weeks was captured in the words of one longtime New Jersey legislator. Asked about his reaction to the presidential nominee's decision to restore once-exiled campaign manager John Sasso to a place in the high command, this hard-bitten veteran of the political wars said, "Well, at least John's not another damn lawyer."

In part, that reflects party-wide chagrin at the way the top lawyers in the Dukakis hierarchy—campaign chairman Paul Broutas and campaign manager Susan Estrich—were taken to the cleaners by George Bush's mastermind, James A. Baker III, in negotiations over the campaign debates.

But even worse, in the pros' eyes, was the legalistic, inept response to the Republicans' Pledge of Allegiance issue, an issue Dukakis should have seen coming and could easily have turned to his advantage.

For months, everyone has known that Bush campaign manager Lee Atwater would try to break Dukakis' high favorability ratings by isolating him on the wrong side of an "us-and-them" divide, using wedge issues of ideology to paint him as a far-out Massachusetts liberal who does not share common American values.

There was nothing subtle or pretty about the tactic. But when Bush attacked Dukakis' veto of a bill requiring teachers to lead the Pledge of Allegiance, Dukakis could easily have showed himself so tough that Atwater would have thought twice about trying such a stunt again. Instead, Dukakis, as is his wont, fell back into legalisms, saying he was bound by an "advisory opinion" of his state supreme court. When that didn't work, he started reciting the Pledge at his own rallies, giving TV reporters a further peg for repeating the original Bush charges.

The Bush people could hardly believe Dukakis was such a patsy. Even they acknowledge that if he just forgot about the merits of the charge, which are negligible, he could have stolen Bush's issue to inflame voters on class lines, where Bush is most vulnerable.

The script is so obvious even a political reporter can write it. At the first news conference where Dukakis was questioned about the Pledge issue, he should have said:

"I am sorry my opponent has chosen to inject this question, because there are far more important things to discuss. But since it has come up, let me say just this, and then I do not intend to return to it.

"My name may be Mike Dukakis, but I DO NOT NEED LESSONS IN PATRIOTISM FROM GEORGE HERBERT WALKER BUSH."

(At this rare show of seemingly spontaneous anger, the TV producers are fantically signaling their camera operators to keep rolling.)

"I respect my opponent." (This to show Dukakis has not lost his cool, and to soften Bush up for what is to come.) "He served his country well as a Navy officer and he's been appointed to many important positions."

"But I am going to insist that he treat me with equal respect. I served my country as an Army enlisted man in Korea and I have been elected three times by the people of this Commonwealth as their governor."

"And I want to say," there he starts to turn the issue from an attack on Michael Dukakis to an attack on all the common people "that the voters who elected me as their governor, the people of Malden and Chicopee and Lexington and Concord," (if you got it, haunt it), "are every bit as patriotic as the people with whom George Bush grew up in Greenwich and Kennebunkport."

"My parents came as immigrants to America early in this century, long after some other people's ancestors arrived. But they, like millions of other immigrants, imbued their children with a love of this country, and its flag, second to none. We do not measure patriotism in America by the date of your arrival or the ship on which you came. The sons and daughters of those who came in chains on the slave ships love America." (Hear that, Jesse?) "The children of the steerage passengers from Ireland and Italy and Poland and Greece love America. The love of our country shines in the faces of our newest immigrants, from Vietnam and Cambodia, from the Pacific, from Mexico and Central America." (Are you counting your losses in Texas and California, Mr. Bush?) "and yes, from the Soviet Union, too. They, even more than others, understand the precious hope of freedom that America presents."

Cartel issues death threats

WASHINGTON — The drug-running Medellin Cartel of Colombia is offering a $1 million bounty for the dead body of any American drug enforcement agent — the latest step in the cartel's barefaced campaign to eliminate anyone who gets in the way.

Colombian officials have put their lives on the line fighting the cartel, which has murdered hundreds of drug agents, judges and journalists. The reign of terror in Colombia left the cartel sitting comfortably on its drug profits. But its style has been cramped since Colombian authorities began working with U.S. officials to bring drug traffickers to justice.

The U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration can't afford to let the cartel win this war — approximately 80 percent of the cocaine smuggled into the United States comes from the Medellin Cartel.

The cartel was founded in 1981 when more than 200 drug traffickers met at a restaurant in Medellin and plotted a war against the Colombian terrorist group, M-19. The terrorists preyed on wealthy drug dealers by kidnapping their family members and demanding ransom.

As we reported recently, the drug dealers spilled the blood of enough of the terrorists to subdue M-19. Then the two groups formed an unholy alliance, with the cartel paying M-19 to do its dirty work. In a celebrated incident in 1985, the cartel paid the terrorists $5 million to take over the Colombian Supreme Court building and destroy extradition files on cartel leaders. In the ensuing battle with police, twelve Supreme Court justices were killed.

The cartel has vowed to kill any Colombian police officer or informant working with the DEA. It carried out that threat with the assassination of the DEA's most important drug informant — American Barry Seal — in Baton Rouge, La., in 1986.

Seal was a Special Forces pilot in Vietnam who turned to drug trafficking in 1977, eventually flying drugs for the cartel. His fortune was said to be in the neighborhood of $75 million. But after the DEA arrested him in 1983, he began fingering cartel members. Seal aided in the extradition and prosecution of cartel kingpin Carlos Lehder, who is now serving a life sentence.

The cartel put a price on Seal's head — $1 million alive and $500,000 dead. If Seal had been brought to Colombia alive, he would have been tortured to death.

Our intelligence sources allege that cartel leader Pablo Emilio Escobar was behind the hit team that gunned down Seal in Louisiana. That team traveled through two countries — Panama and Mexico — relying on the graces of corrupt public officials who were chummy with the cartel.

Emboldened by the Seal hit, the cartel has secretly put out the word that it will pay $1 million for the murder of any DEA agent, according to our intelligence sources. It doesn't matter if the agent is working directly against the cartel or against drug traffickers from other regions.

One official has come under a much more specific threat. He is the chief DEA official in New York City, Robert M. Stutman. The DEA has posted a 24-hour guard around him because they received reliable intelligence that the No. 3 man in the Medellin Cartel, Jose Gonzalo Rodriguez-Gacha, has targeted Stutman for assassination.

Rodriguez-Gacha is annoyed over a large seizure of cartel cocaine in New York. DEA sources say he is also angry about a cache of weapons that was seized in Mexico.

Mormon bomber takes overdose

SALT LAKE CITY — Mark Hofmann, a master forger who admitted blowing up two people to cover up a complex plot in which he sold phony documents that embarrassed the Mormon Church, was in critical condition after taking an overdose of an anti-depressant drug in prison, authorities said.

Hofmann, 33, was found unconscious Thursday in his cell at the Utah State Prison and flown by helicopter to University of Utah Hospital, where he was listed in critical and unstable condition in a coma.

Hospital spokesman John Dwan said Hofmann, a disaffected Mormon who is believed to have forged the so-called "white salamander letter" that tarnished the image of Mormon Church founder Joseph Smith, showed toxic levels of an anti-depressant drug on an unknown type.

Bakker to present his case next month

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Fallen evangelist Jim Bakker says he cannot remember how much or how often he was paid as head of the PTL or why ministry money was used on such things as an $1,800 glass box for his shoes.

Bakker spent several hours Thursday listening to questions — but answering very few with certainty — by current PTL owners Heritage Ministries, who are seeking $52 million in damages from Bakker, wife Tammy Faye and former top aide David Taggart.

It was the final day of Heritage Ministries' side of the case. Bakker will begin his defense next month against the charges he mismanaged the ministry and used PTL funds for personal purposes and vacations.

No cover-up for table grapes

FRESNO, Calif. — State agriculture officials did not try to cover up the illegal use of a chemical related to cancer-causing Agent Orange on table grapes, an enforcement officer said in response to a magazine article claiming the practice is widespread.

Jim Wells, chief of the Pesticide Enforcement Division for the Department of Food and Agriculture, said Thursday there was no attempt to downplay the investigation into the growth-stimulating chemical Fix, saying an agency press release was issued July 1, 1985 stating that three growers had been caught using the substance.

An article in the current issue of California Farmer titled "The Big Fix" accused "greedy" grape growers of illegally using Fix, a chemical related to an active ingredient of Agent Orange, the notorious carcinogenic herbicide used during the Vietnam War.

Cavazos awaits Senate confirmation

WASHINGTON — Texas Tech University President Lauro Cavazos, the first Hispanic selected for the Cabinet, won unanimous recommendation from a Senate committee and looked for the full Senate to confirm his nomination.

OUTLOOK good for wildfires

United Press International

Containment of two of the vast forest fires that have raged through Yellowstone National Park since spring — unthinkable only a week ago — could be just a few days away, fire bosses said.

More cool, damp weather on Thursday helped the force of 6,700 firefighters and U.S. Marines make steady progress against fires that have charred 1.5 million acres in and around the park since one of the worst fire seasons on record began in May in the West.

In Oregon, however, a fire apparently started by a careless smoker was spreading into new areas of the Willamette National Forest Thursday night, having already burned more than 6,300 acres and destroyed almost $16 million worth of valuable timberland.

In Nevada City, Calif., a transient accused of starting a devastating fire that wiped out more than 100 homes in the Sierra Nevada foothills was arraigned Thursday on charges of reckless burning and public drunkenness and held on an unusually high bail of $50,000 that authorities said they set to ensure the man's safety in an angry community.

Gary Parris, 39, a bearded wanderer with a record of arrests for drunkenness, has admitted starting the wildfire that charred more than 50 square miles of California's Gold Rush country north of Sacramento.

Parris was burning trash Sunday at the abandoned cabin in which he was living when the flames were picked up by brisk winds, and the inferno roared out of control, forcing thousands to flee from their homes before it was contained Thursday.

Damage estimates range up to $15 million.

Parris's public defender, Gary Gordon, told reporters he was concerned about his client's safety.

"There are a lot of irate people in this county. We understand that," Gordon said.

Parris was charged with felony reckless burning, which has a maximum prison sentence of four years, and with two misdemeanor counts of public drunkenness unrelated to the fire.

Gilbert price gougers face prosecution

UPI report

AUSTIN, Texas — Amid complaints that prices for emergency goods are soaring as Hurricane Gilbert bears down on the Texas coast, Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox vowed to prosecute those preying on people "in desperate need."

"It has happened before. Whenever there is a disaster, the insensitive, uncaring and greedy surface to prey on the vulnerable. We are prepared to deal with them," Mattox said Thursday at a Capitol news conference.

"We already have had complaints from across the Texas coast about price gouging in the sales of plywood and bottled water," the attorney general said. "They are doubling and tripling prices for the products. It is unconscionable for persons to take advantage of others who are in desperate need."

Mattox said he has organized a task force of lawyers and investigators to prosecute people for overpricing emergency goods under an ordinance approved by the Galveston City Council to protect citizens against price gouging.

Contras hope to resume peace talks

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — A senior Contra leader says representatives of the U.S.-backed rebel group will travel to Guatemala next week for preliminary discussions with Nicaraguan officials on resuming stalled peace talks.

Roberto Ferrey, a member of the seven-member directorate of the Nicaraguan Resistance, said Thursday by telephone from Miami that the rebels had accepted an offer from the leftist government to resume contacts.

Ferrey said the Contras' acceptance was contained in a letter sent recently to Nicaraguan Deputy Foreign Minister Victor Hugo Tinoco.

Declaring that the Contras want to end the country's 7-year-old civil war, Ferrey said the rebels would send a delegation to Guatemala to meet Monday and Tuesday with representatives of the government.

There was no immediate response from the government in Managua.

President Daniel Ortega last week urged the Contras to resume peace talks that broke off abruptly June 9 after several rounds of discussions. A fragile cease-fire in the war, which has claimed 50,000 lives and caused $12 billion in damage, has been in effect since March 23, and each side has accused the other of truce violations in sporadic outbreaks of fighting.

"It will be a simple meeting to examine the possibilities of overcoming obstacles, which fundamentally are prisoners," Ferrey said of the forthcoming meeting in Guatemala. "It is impossible to negotiate with the Sandinistas as long as there are political prisoners."

Kidnappers may be willing to talk

BEIRUT, Lebanon — In a possible breakthrough for American hostages in Lebanon, a pro-Iranian group apparently has eased its conditions for the release of four captives and says it is willing to take positive steps if the United States reciprocates.

The Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine said in a statement delivered Thursday to the offices of a Western news agency in Moslem west Beirut that "our organization declares that it is willing to take a positive initiative in solving the hostages issue."

"But (the group) needs the appropriate reactions in the international platforms toward the rights of our Moslem people in their struggle against the Zionist enemy," said the hand-written statement in Arabic.

Walesa holds talks with government

WARSAW, Poland — Solidarity leader Lech Walesa said his discussions with government officials on setting an agenda for unprecedented round-table talks on his banned union's future were constructive but "the problems are very difficult."

Walesa was scheduled to meet for a second day today with Interior Minister Czeslaw Kiszczak and other officials to iron out details of the upcoming talks between the communist leadership and opposition activists.

The leader of the banned union met Thursday for about four hours with Kiszczak and Politburo member Stanislaw Ciosek. Also at the meeting were the Rev. Alojzy Orszulik, representing the Roman Catholic Church, and Andrzej Stelmachowski, a Catholic intellectual who is acting as mediator.

Aquino launches new political alliance

MANILA, Philippines — President Corazon Aquino has launched a new political alliance similar to a party led by former ruler Ferdinand Marcos, and critics said the coalition would seek Aquino's re-election in 1992.

The inaugural meeting of the Laban ng Demokratikong Pilipino, or Fight of the Democratic Filipino, was reminiscent of the political gatherings of Marcos's New Society Party.

Many members of the new alliance were staunch allies of Marcos, who fled to exile in Hawaii after 20 years in power following the popularly backed military revolt of February 1986.

Aquino's alliance was formed by relatives and people close to the president who said it was aimed at supporting government programs and policies. It includes 153 of the 200-member House of Representatives and six of the 23 senators from at least six existing political parties.

Burmese protesters demand democracy

RANGOON, Burma — Thousands of anti-government protesters demanded democracy and an end to authoritarian rule as opposition leaders met with state representatives to discuss the formation of an interim government, diplomats and political sources said.

Crowds, estimated at more than 100,000 people, marched through Rangoon early Thursday carrying banners and chanting anti-government slogans.

The world comes to Seoul

SEOUL, South Korea — The Dragon Drum Ship fronts a flotilla weaving down the Han River. A grand tympanic symphony rains over 70,000 spectators at the Olympic Stadium. Jets thunder overhead in an aerial salute to the flame.

The moment nears. The Games of the 24th Olympiad — a 15-day gathering of 9,627 athletes from 159 countries — open at 10:30 a.m. Saturday (8:30 p.m. Friday EDT).

"We are on the threshold of a magnificent Olympic triumph," Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee President Park Seh-jik said. "It has become clear that the entire Olympic family sees this as an opportunity for a true celebration of the Olympic ideals."

Before a global television audience estimated at 1 billion, the festivities will climax with the lighting of the Olympic flame. Some will pay as much as $3,000 a ticket to enter the stadium that serves as a symbol of this city's recovery from war.

UI's Edwards still enrolled

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Jay Edwards, the Indiana basketball standout who has tested positive for drug use, says he has not withdrawn from classes as the school reported, a published report says.

Edwards told the Indianapolis Star in its Friday edition he attended classes Thursday and wants to remain in school while attending counseling sessions for use of the unidentified substances.

School officials Wednesday said Edwards had withdrawn from school and enrolled in a substance abuse treatment program.

Edwards, however, said the school made his situation sound worse than it actually is.

"I'm not an addict," Edwards said. "I started (using drugs) for recreation and that can lead into other things and I wanted to stop before it does."

Three tied at LPGA event

KENT, Wash. — Kathryn Young, Susie Redman and Cathy Johnston, all seeking their first LPGA tour victory, each shot three-under-par 69 Thursday for a one-stroke lead after the first round of the $225,000 Safeco Classic.

Former Safeco winners JoAnne Carner and Judy Dickinson, as well as Kim Bauer, Debbie Massey, Anne Marie-Palli and Lynn Adams all shot 70. Defending champion Jan Stephenson was another stroke behind.

Redman collected five birdies, including three in a row, against two bogeys. Young birdied two holes on the front nine against one bogey, then finished with birdies on the 17th and 18th holes.

Johnston, playing the back nine first, birdied her fourth, sixth and ninth holes, then parred every hole on the front nine.

Redman's best finish this year came in the Ocean State Open at Cranston, R.I., where she tied for eighth. She is currently 102nd on the money list with $17,243.

Fiesta Bowl has new TV deal

PHOENIX — The Sunkist Fiesta Bowl and NBC-TV announced a new television contract Friday, which officials said will increase the bowl's team payments to a level competitive with the Cotton, Orange and Sugar Bowls.

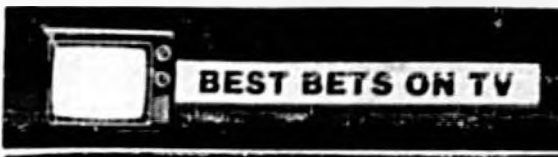

Under the new contract, Fiesta Bowl kickoff will be changed from 11:30 a.m. to mid-afternoon on New Year's Day.

Since 1972, the Fiesta Bowl has preceded the Rose Bowl. The Rose Bowl has moved to ABC-TV and the Fiesta Bowl now will be in competition with it for the ratings.

"We feel this is a great opportunity for the Sunkist Fiesta Bowl," said Fiesta Bowl president Phil Motta. "In past years, we have been opposed on television by two other games. This change allows us to move to a more prestigious and less contested network programming slot."

Officials did not specify a new figure for payments to participating teams which were just over $2 million per team for the 1988 game.

Rams vs. Pats: Key 5A-4 game

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

LAKE MARY — Don T. Reynolds Stadium will be the center of attention tonight when Lake Mary's Rams and Lake Brantley's Patriots collide in a renewal of one of Seminole County's most fierce rivalries.

The Rams, 0-1, lost to Winter Park last week in their opener while the Patriots, 0-1, lost a heartbreaker to Oviedo.

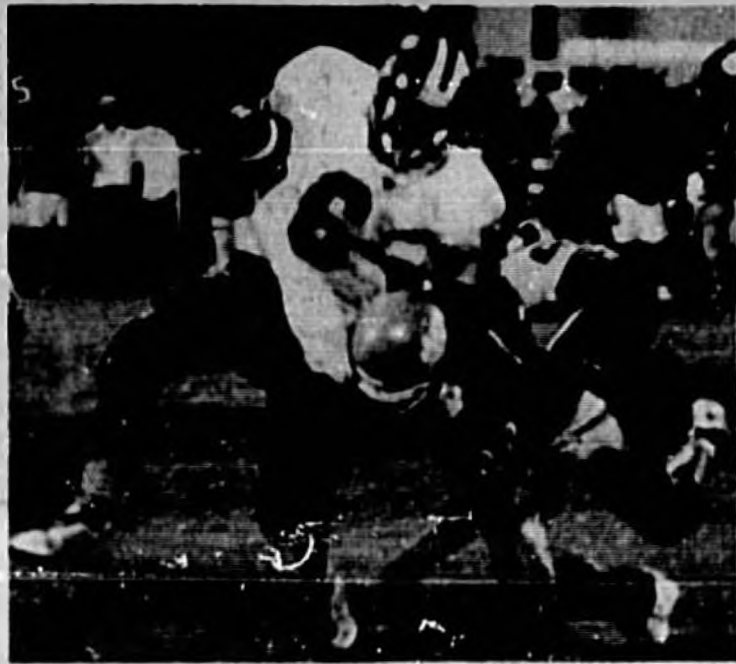

It will be a big game for many reasons, first and foremost it is a District 5A-4 meeting and also a Seminole Athletic Conference matchup. The pride factor, though, is usually what takes over and both teams play their best football.

Lake Mary has won the past three meetings between the schools but that could change with the size Lake Brantley has this season.

Brantley's defensive line is the largest in the Central Florida area and is anchored by Pat French and Kurt Thomason. Brantley's linebackers are also blue chip players and are very quick as well as big and are led by Sammy Smith, Jason Varitek and Matt Miller.

The Patriots strength, though, is in their secondary, a place where they'll need it the most. Pete Fowler and David Bacchus

SHS to air it out vs. Eagles

By CHRIS FISTER
Herald sports editor

SANFORD — Last week's game against Titusville Astronaut was a rarity of sorts for the Seminole High offense. Only 32 yards passing for a unit run by Emory Blake is almost unheard of.

Blake promised tonight, though, that SHS would go to the air as much as possible if that's what it takes to defeat Edgewater's Eagles. The home and District 4A-7 opener for the Fighting Seminoles begins tonight at 7:30.

"Last week in Titusville, the defense took control of the game so fast our offense couldn't really set up a complete game plan," Blake said. "We need to put the ball in the air more this week. We want to be a 50-50 ballclub."

"It took going to the air against Edgewater last year," added Blake. "And, if that's what it takes, we'll do the same thing this year. We're not holding anything back for this game."

SHS, defending district champion, opened the season with a 29-12 victory over Astronaut. Edgewater, which finished second to Seminole in the district last year, had a rough opening night as it went to Tallahassee Lincoln and dropped a 44-6

Seminole has super debut

SHS claims Edgewater championship

ORLANDO — Seminole High School had its full team competing for the first time Thursday, and the squad's 1988 debut turned out to be a super one as SHS won the Edgewater Invitational in the class 3A-2A-1A division at the University of Central Florida.

Seminole, who has only three runners with varsity experience, used its three experienced runners to build up a big enough lead to hold off the depth of Titusville. The Tribe finished with a team score of 89, compared to 99 for Titusville.

"I wasn't surprised with our top three, but our young runners really came through," Seminole coach Ken Brauman said. "They're still learning the sport and had a real good race today, they really did an outstanding job."

Seminole was led by Jason Kaiser who ran a much better race this week than in the Titusville Astronaut Invite a week ago and placed second with a time of 16:44. The course was 3.15 miles long opposed to the usual three mile course devised for high school cross country.

"I was tired at the Titusville meet because of a road race I had run a couple of days before," Kaiser said. "I felt a lot better today, I wasn't nearly as tired and I was able to run a much better race."

Right behind Kaiser was sophomore standout Dalvin Davis who finished fifth overall with a time of 17:11. Brent Posey placed 14th overall at 18:12 to give the Tribe a solid top three. Jeff Lee was the next Seminole runner to cross the line in 28th place followed by David Wallace who came in 40th.

Seminole's Brent Posey (right) and a Titusville runner cross the line at the same time in Thursday's Edgewater Invitational. The SHS team turned in a super performance as it took first place in the Class 3A-2A-1A race.

"We ran a real good race on a course that was too long," Brauman said. "Jason (Kaiser) came on and ran like he ran and the others just followed his lead. I'm extremely pleased with our performance."

Rams' Snell sails to 1st place

By CHRIS FISTER
Herald sports editor

ORLANDO — Ability is something Allison Snell has had since she began running cross country. Maturity is what has enabled the Lake Mary junior to become one of the state's top individuals.

On a humid Thursday afternoon at the University of Central Florida, Snell ran an impressive tactical race as she made her move at the right time and came away with the Edgewater Invitational individual crown.

Snell completed the course, which was longer than the two miles it was supposed to be, with a time of 13:01 while Lake Brantley's Heather Camino came in second at 13:10.

"Allison ran the race the way she wanted to run it," Lake Mary coach Mike Gibson said of Snell. "And her mile splits were the best so far this year. She was 6:18 at the mile, and ran a 6:43 second mile. That was a 25-second differential which is almost 10 seconds better than last week."

Palm Bay won the girls Class 4A team battle as it came on in the last 50 yards to overtake Lake Howell. Palm Bay finished with a team score of 50 compared to 54 for the Lady Hawks. Lake Brantley was third at 75 followed by Lake Mary at 83.

"This will be a learning experience for us," Lake Howell coach Tom Hammontree said. "We packed well, but not well enough. We should have split up Palm Bay's four runners."

In the individual battle, it was

Knights prepare for biggest game ever

By DAVID CORCORAN
Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — The University of Central Florida Knights, in a game in which head coach Gene McDowell calls "the biggest game in its history," play host to the Troy State (Ala.) Trojans Saturday night at 7 at the Florida Citrus Bowl.

The Knights (2-0), with impressive victories over Bethune-Cookman and West Georgia, are ranked No. 3 in the NCAA Division II poll, their highest ranking ever, and the Trojans, (2-0), last season's national champion, are the No. 1 ranked team in Division II. In last year's playoffs, the Trojans took advantage of eight Knight turnovers and went on to win the game, 31-10.

Pat Clarke, Sports Director of WFTV Channel 9 in Orlando, and the host of UCF's weekly football program "Our Home Team", feels that "the game could be the watershed event for the football program, and if the Knights keep their poise and stick to their game plan, they should win the game."

Also, Clarke sent Greg Wormath, the weekend sports anchor for Channel 9 to scout Troy St. two weeks ago during their season opener, and said that the Trojans "were just as strong as last

McDowell feels that the Trojans strength is in its defense, where they return nine starters from last seasons squad, and "they don't appear to have any weaknesses, a very solid team."

Also, McDowell said that the Trojans' wishbone offense will give his "Nightmares" defense a major test, even without Mike Turk at the controls.

Turk, the outstanding quarterback (1984-87), for the Trojans who won the Harlin Hill Trophy as the NCAA Division II Player of the year, is now the quarterback coach for the Trojans.

Troy State will be led by sophomore quarterback Randy Barnes (5-11, 175), who replaced Turk and made the Trojans wishbone offense just as effective as ever. Also leading the offense are running backs Robert Carter (6-2, 205), who gained 410 yards and scored 3 TDs last year, junior Freddie Taylor (5-11, 185), and sophomore Tony Jackson (5-10, 205).

On defense, the Trojans will be anchored by senior All-America linebacker candidate Gerick Pimentra (5-11, 215), who led team with 198 tackles last season, and will be the school's all-time tackle leader before the season's over. Other top performers are strong safety Doug Parris (5-10, 170) and seniors Jerald Trevis (6-3, 245), and Daryl Blow (6-1, 230), on the line.

The Knights' chances for the upset will ride on the arm of quarterback Shane Willis.

Willis, the 5-11, 185 sophomore lefthander from Lakeland, got his first action ever for the Knights in the second half of the Troy State game last season, when McDowell decided to replace starter Darrin Slack after he threw three interceptions. Willis completed 19 of 32 passes for 204 yards and 1 interception and ran for 38 more yards.

Willis has had a strong 1988 start, led by UCF's "Bomb Squad", the wide receiver tadem of Arnell Spencer, Sean Beckton, and Shantel Roundtree, Willis has completed 41 of 67 (61.2%) for 568 yards and 4 TD's with only 1 interception.

Willis gives his offensive line and the receiver corps, especially tight end John Osborne, credit for his success.

"It's time we pay back Troy for what they did to us last year," Willis said. "We want to be No. 1."

McDowell feels that: "We stand to gain a lot more friends with a win than any game we ever played. And we should set an all-time home attendance record."

Ram swimmers sweep Lopez

The Lake Mary High swim team successfully opened its season with a 123-00 dunking in the boys and a 93-79 victory in the girls over host Father Lopez in prep swimming action at Daytona Beach Thursday evening.

Kostowicz added victories in the 100 butterfly (57.26) and the 100 backstroke (1:02.7) to go along with the 400 free relay win. Bridgewater was the most impressive though as he swam the first 350 yards of the 500 freestyle while doing backstroke and still managed to drown the competition with his 5:36.87.

Rob Baker in the 50 free (24.24) and the 200 medley relay team of Barry Heins, Marc Russell, Zach Simecek, and Baker. The girls meet wasn't a complete runaway as the Lady Ramphibians could only manage three first places.

Hungry Yankees upend Bosox, 5-3

In two runs to power the Yankees' to their seventh win in their last eight games. In the fifth, Washington drew a leadoff walk and took third on Don Mattingly's single to left-center. After Roger Clemens retired the next two hitters, Washington broke for home and slid in safely when catcher Rich Gedman mishandled the pitch.

At Oakland, Calif., Dave Parker drove in three runs. Tony Phillips homered and Todd Burns threw a seven-inning lead. The A's reduced to five their magic number for clinching the American League West. Burns, 7-2, threw his second complete game of the season. Bobby Witt, 6-10, took the loss.

At Toronto, Jeff Musselman and Tom Henke combined on a five-hitter backed by four Toronto double plays. Musselman, 6-4, yielded four hits in eight innings, striking out four and walking one. Henke allowed one hit and earned his 24th save. Mike Walker, 0-1, lost his first major league start.

Houston falls further behind Dodgers

The reversal of a controversial call was not enough to keep Houston third baseman Buddy Bell in the game as they fell further behind the NL West-leading Los Angeles Dodgers. Bell, who was traded to Houston from Cincinnati in June, was ejected in the third inning of the Reds' 7-5 victory over the Astros.

At Philadelphia, Vince Coleman went 3 for 3 and Scott Terry won his seventh straight start for the Cardinals. St. Louis pounded out seven doubles on the night, including two by Coleman. Terry, 9-3, who has seven victories and a no-decision since entering the Cardinal rotation last month, gave up five hits, struck out six and walked one for the victory.

At New York, David Cone won his sixth straight decision and Kevin McReynolds clubbed a two-run homer into the upper deck at Shea Stadium to lead the Mets. Cone, 17-3, carried a no-hitter through five innings before giving up an infield single in the sixth to Shawn Dunston. Cone struck out 10, giving up five hits and one walk in seven innings before Terry Leach pitched the final two innings to notch his third save.

As lots become smaller and yards are being fenced in, more people should consider the use of espalier. Espalier is the training of a tree or shrub against a wall or fence. Although an espaliered plant requires periodic pruning, it is well worth the effort.

The use of espalier against a fence can help diminish the hemmed-in feeling and give the illusion of more space. Espaliered plants used in foundation plantings can be trained around windows, thus allowing for a tall plant that will not obstruct the view. Or they can be used in narrow beds or small areas where an untrained plant would be too large.

Citrus, ligustrum, confederate-jasmine, podocarpus, loquat and magnolia make good espaliered plants in Central Florida, as well as camellia, holly, photina, pyracantha, dogwood and euonymus. Allamanda, bougainvillea, poinsettia and lantana are excellent choices for protected areas. Plants not included in the above list may be used if they produce many lateral branches and can be severely pruned. An espaliered plant must be first pruned to obtain the proper shape, then pruned to maintain the shape.

Plants to be espaliered should be planted 6 to 8 inches from the wall in well-drained soil. It is best to start with a young plant. Pruning will depend on the type of espalier wanted and the number of laterals on the plant.

Remove all unwanted laterals or branches. If the laterals are badly placed or there are not enough to produce the design you want, cut them all back to the main shoot. Do not cut the top of the main shoot until the desired height is reached if you want to achieve a design with a dominant main shoot, such as a pyramid.

If you prefer a design with pronounced lateral growth, such as one of the U or T forms, the terminal should be cut at the level of the first cordon or branching, usually 15 to 18 inches from the ground. If no special design is desired, the branches may be tied in their natural position as long as no branches cross. If a design is being followed carefully, bend the branch into the desired position and tie it into place. Do not use wire to tie the branches because it may girdle the stem. Outdoor twine that will not rapidly decay may be used.

Branches should be tied so that they are 6 to 8 inches from the wall. This allows for better air circulation, less disease and insect problems, and increased depth. When the desired height is reached, cut the terminal and continue to prune the plant to the desired shape.

Espalier not only allows for plants to be grown in areas where other types of plants would be unsuitable, it also brings out the natural beauty of the plant. The stem, which is usually covered, can be exposed to reveal interesting patterns, bark color and texture. Leaf color, texture, and shape are more noticeable as well as the flower and fruit, which may be larger due to the added care.

He returned home from Job Corps to visit his family

Phelps Kelvin Davidson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Davidson Sr. of Sanford, was home on leave recently from the Earle C. Clements Job Corps center in Morgantown, Ky., and returned Tuesday. He has been attending the center since Feb. 18, has earned his G.E.D. and is currently working on a trade in the brick masonry field. He also is enrolled in English, psychology and computer science college courses offered at the center.

Davidson said that after his 10th month at the center, he would have earned at least $1,000 in his Job Corps savings account.

The Job Corps is a free federal training program designed to provide the help necessary for young people who want and need assistance in finding and keeping a job. Corps members receive room and board as well as paid living allowances during their program enrollment. This program is for young men and women among the age group of 16-24½ who are from homes considered to be economically disadvantaged. Corps members' allowance is separate from the $80 a month spending money and the periodic clothing allotment they receive.

The Job Corps program provides job placement assistance to members who complete the program. Davidson said that he would have the opportunity to receive job placement in Atlanta, Ga., or at Disney World in Orlando for jobs in the brick masonry area after his graduation next May.

Young people who would like to receive information on joining the Job Corps may contact the local Job Corps recruiting office for Seminole County, located in the Sanford office of the Job Service of Florida. This office is very proud of Davidson's accomplishments. Contact Kawanna Jay at 322-7322 or visit the office at 2460 Park Ave., Suite 101.

Davidson celebrated his birthday while here visiting his family and friends and has recently returned to the Earl C. Clements Job Corps Center in Kentucky.

Angry housewife has bone to pick with 'supermoms'

DEAR ABBY: I have had it up to my eyeballs with phrases like "working mom" and "supermom." Just because I don't have a job outside my home does not mean that I am illiterate, lazy or braindead. So many people say, "So you're just a housewife?" or ask, "What do you do all day?" Some assume that my husband is a male chauvinist who demands that I stay home. Abby, my husband and I made this choice together. I stay home raising my children because we believe it is best for our family.

I am also bored with this "quality time is better than quantity time" baloney. By the time supermom gets her super self home from her job downtown, prepares a super dinner, then gives the kids a super bath and has them in bed by 8 or 9 p.m., how much time does she have to read to them, sing songs, bake cookies, go for walks or build a snowman?

Who saw her child's first steps? Noticed his first tooth, or heard his first words? She, or a day-care worker?

I would never assume that all children growing up with two "working" parents are destined to be losers, so I respectfully ask that you supermoms keep your opinions about us who are somewhat less than super to yourselves.

GOT IT TOGETHER IN IOWA

DEAR GOT IT: You surely must be aware that many moms have jobs outside their homes because they can't make ends meet with one paycheck. Others are single parents. After this runs, some of those supermoms may sit down and write some rebuttals. And if they do, I'll print some of the super ones.

CORRECTION

Due to inaccurate information given to the Herald, meeting days of two early childhood development programs were incorrectly listed in Sunday's People section. In conjunction with Partners in Learning, a program at the PreSchool Center of First Presbyterian Church of Sanford meets on Tuesdays and a program at Hamilton Elementary School in Sanford meets on Mondays.

Does excess protein cause kidney pain?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I had a kidney removed nine years ago and have been fine. Since then, I've noticed that whenever I go on a high-protein diet to lose weight, or whenever I consume a lot of products with aspartame, I get kidney pain. Why would the excess protein cause kidney pain?

DEAR READER: It wouldn't, to my knowledge. However, before giving an answer, I'd have to know the reason that you had one of your kidneys removed. Some patients with diminished kidney function are put on low protein diets to reduce the production of nitrogen, a waste product of protein metabolism. Kidney pain is not a usual consequence of excess protein.

The pain you are experiencing may be due less to protein and aspartame (which contains protein substances) than to the foods that contain these compounds. For instance, your remaining kidney may be having difficulty dealing with the fluid overload that can result from eating more than usual or consuming excessive quantities of diet drinks. Ask your doctor why you are having symptoms and please let me know what he or she says.

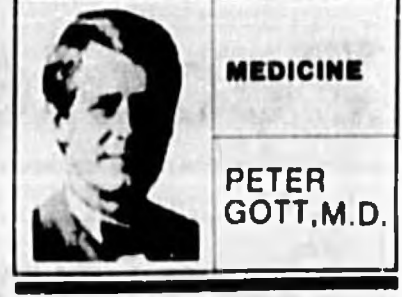

DEAR DR. GOTT: A friend's baby has Lenz Majewsky syndrome and we can't find any information on this subject. Can you enlighten us?

DEAR READER: You really sent me scurrying to the books on this one — and still no dice. I cannot find a listing for Lenz Majewsky syndrome in any of my reference books. Any help out there?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I live in a very dry climate and my nose is irritated a good deal of the time. What would you recommend?

DEAR READER: A humidifier

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Here's another deal from last June's trials to determine the U.S. team for the world championship to be played next month in Venice. When South opened two no-trump, North raised to three. If the diamonds didn't come home, it would probably be a bad result, but North could not risk bidding game in diamonds with his ragged suit and no outside tricks. In fact, three no-trump was risky even when the diamonds did come in, since declarer had to develop game-going tricks. If he could force out the spade ace in time, game would be easy.

At one table, West selected the apparently safe lead of the 10 of clubs. That did not figure to give away a trick. Unfortunately for West, declarer now had time to make the contract with either two club tricks or some spade tricks to go with the diamonds and the heart ace. Sitting West for our team at the other table was Bob Hanuman, who took a more aggressive course. He led the two of hearts. That established the defenders' heart suit before either black ace could be forced out, and resulted in setting the contract.

Is there a guideline to tell you when to lead passively and when to be aggressive? When you're playing the total points or team game, overtricks aren't crucial but beating the hand is. Therefore, you might as well lead from your best suit. That way, if you catch partner with the right stuff, you may be able to beat the hand. So lead aggressively and hope to be right.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father) are now available at bookstores. Both are

HOROSCOPE

What the day will bring...

By Bernice Bede Oool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
September 17, 1988

In the year ahead you may not get an immediate handle on your most promising objective. However, don't despair because your goal will arrive through trial and error.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be on guard today if you get involved in a competitive development. The persons or persons you go up against might be holding more trump cards than you. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Comments you make to others today will be quoted later. Be certain that you have all the facts at your disposal before passing on information.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is not a particularly good day to go on a shopping excursion because you may be tempted to spend funds earmarked for essentials.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your second thoughts could reveal some errors you make in judgment today. If you happen to get off on a wrong track, rectify matters promptly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're not apt to be too motivated today to do things for others unless you see something in it for yourself. This will not go unnoticed by your contemporaries.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's best to avoid groups or cliques today that contain members with whom you do not feel comfortable. Stick to pals who know and like you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 20) Do not feel a need to comply today if you're dealing with a manipulator who is trying to extract a promise from you. If you don't like the proposal, say "no," and mean it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A friend may ask you for a critique today, but what really is wanted is your endorsement. Try to keep this in mind when you make your response.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Strive to be prudent in the management of your resources today. It's not a good policy to spend funds that are not yet credited to your bank account.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There's a possibility today that you may optimistically read more into what others say than they intend. This could cause you to count on something that may not be forthcoming.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Keep close tabs on anyone who performs work or services for you today. They could either do it incorrectly or charge you more than they should.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Certain responsibilities that should be attended to early might be left until the last minute today. You could have difficulties squeezing them in under the wire.

Seascapes that sooth the savage soul

Story and pictures
By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

Seascape Sand Art that forms an ever-changing, colorful, watery scene may be the post-energy crisis answer to the lava lamp to sooth the common man.

Once Seascape developer Josh Ducas builds and seals a wood-framed, two sided plexiglass pocket to hold sand, colored water and air bubbles, the design that flows into view in the panel is self-forming.

Ducas, 37, of Kissimmee, who about three years ago began to develop and improve his Seascapes, based on a Dutch model designed 22 years ago, said before that he sold socks.

He's not an artist and he's not a chemist, but has called on the talents of those who are, he said, to create a near perfect form of this art, a craze that is sweeping Florida flea markets, gift shops and supermarkets. His artistic enterprise extends into 11 states, and he said he competed with foreign and California makers of similar works.

Tourists from other states as well as nations such as England, have extended the realm of these watery scenes, which may be the new rival of the flamingo and palm tree as a symbol of Florida.

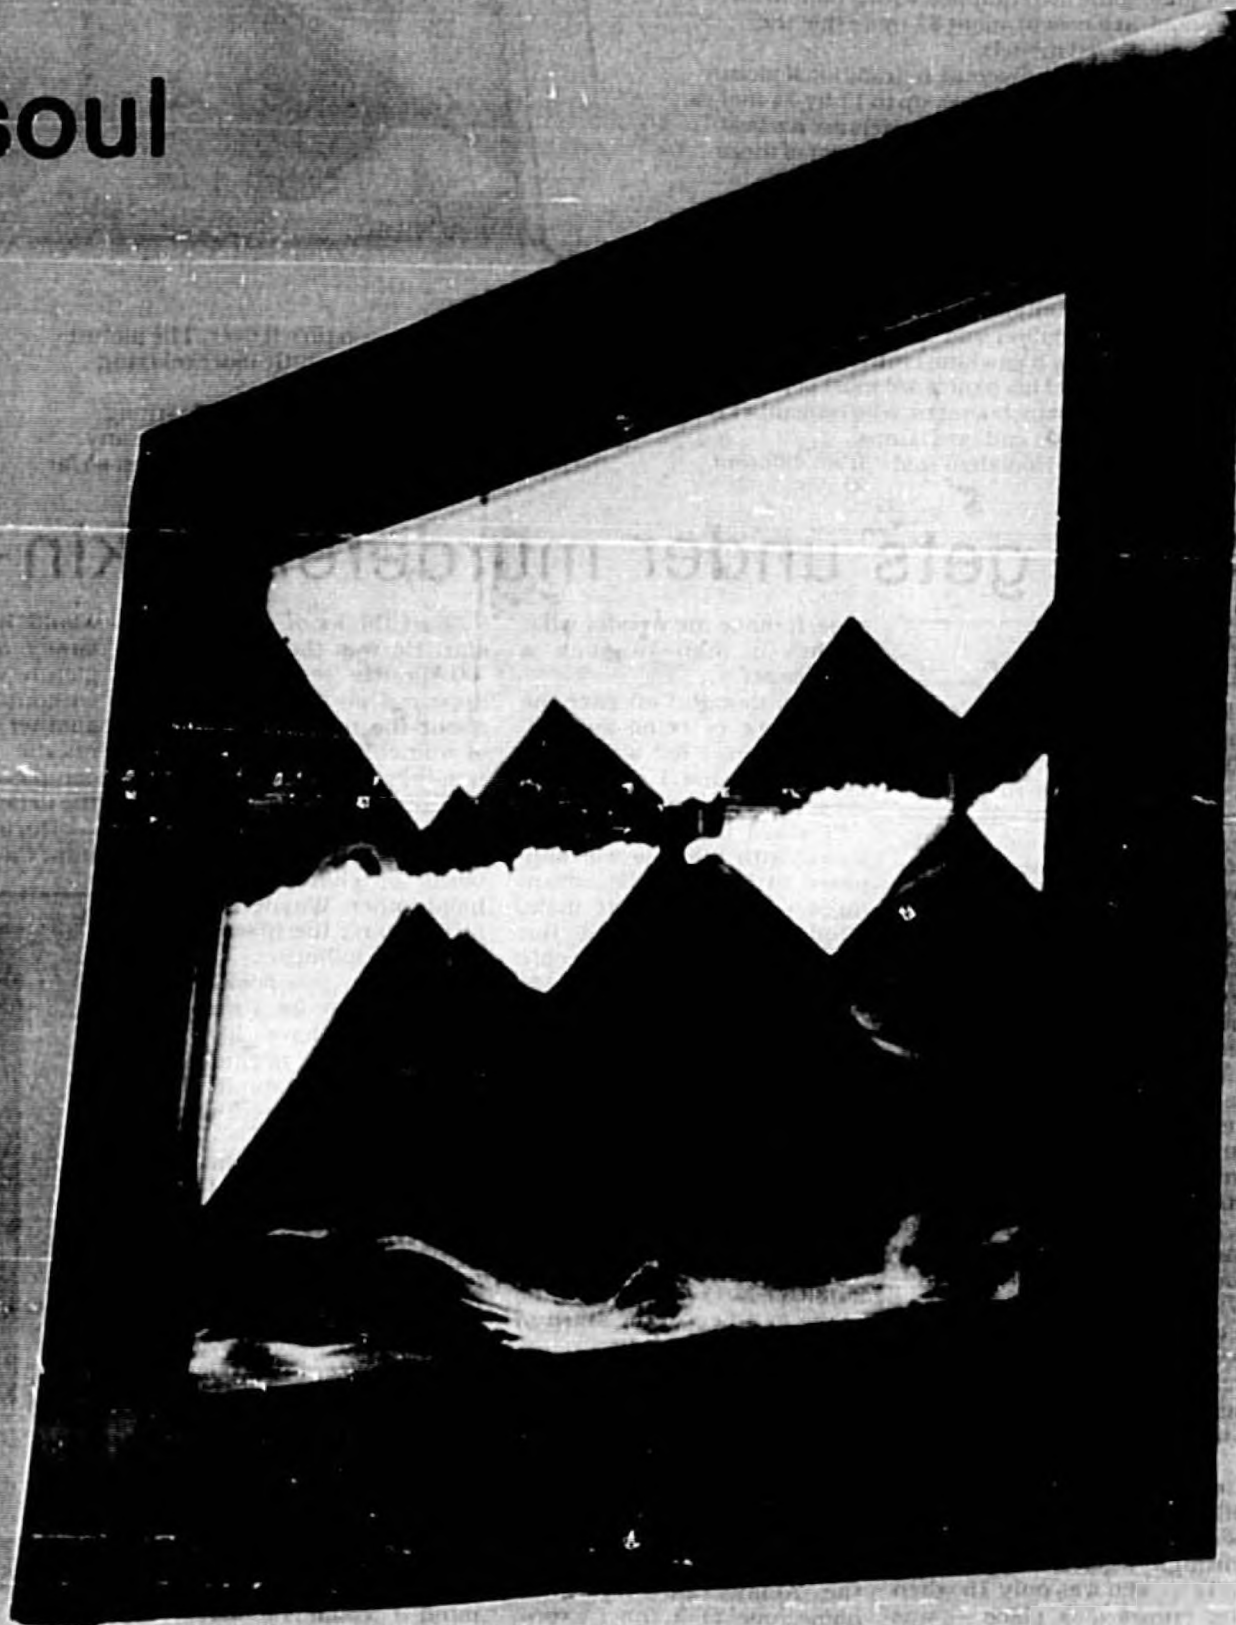

Once Ducas perfects the balance of sand, water and air for his works, the designs formed when each panel is flipped over are made by the hands of fate and under the natural pull of gravity.

Like the ebb and flow of the tides, gravity draws down the sands that fall to its growing peaks and points, in unique patterns that usually resemble mountains.

The effect is "very comforting, soothing, relaxing. It changes your mood better than watching a movie. It mesmerizes you," Ducas said.

He has a very large 20-inch by 30-inch Seascape Sand Art panel in his house. He puts lighted candles behind it and watches it flow, as he might watch a fire in a fireplace, he said.

The amount of air that has been injected into the system determines the time it takes for a panel to form. Jim Bolton, who sells the panels at a Sanford flea market said it can take several hours for some designs to complete. If the panel is not touched the design will stay for up to eight hours, he said.

The slow flow of the three different weights of volcanic sand through the colored water, which may be any shade — mauve, green, blue, or beyond — is relaxing and fascinating to the viewer, Ducas said. The sand picks up color from the water, adding varied hues of the same color to the design, which is clear, but colored and reflects natural light where there is no sand falling or forming.

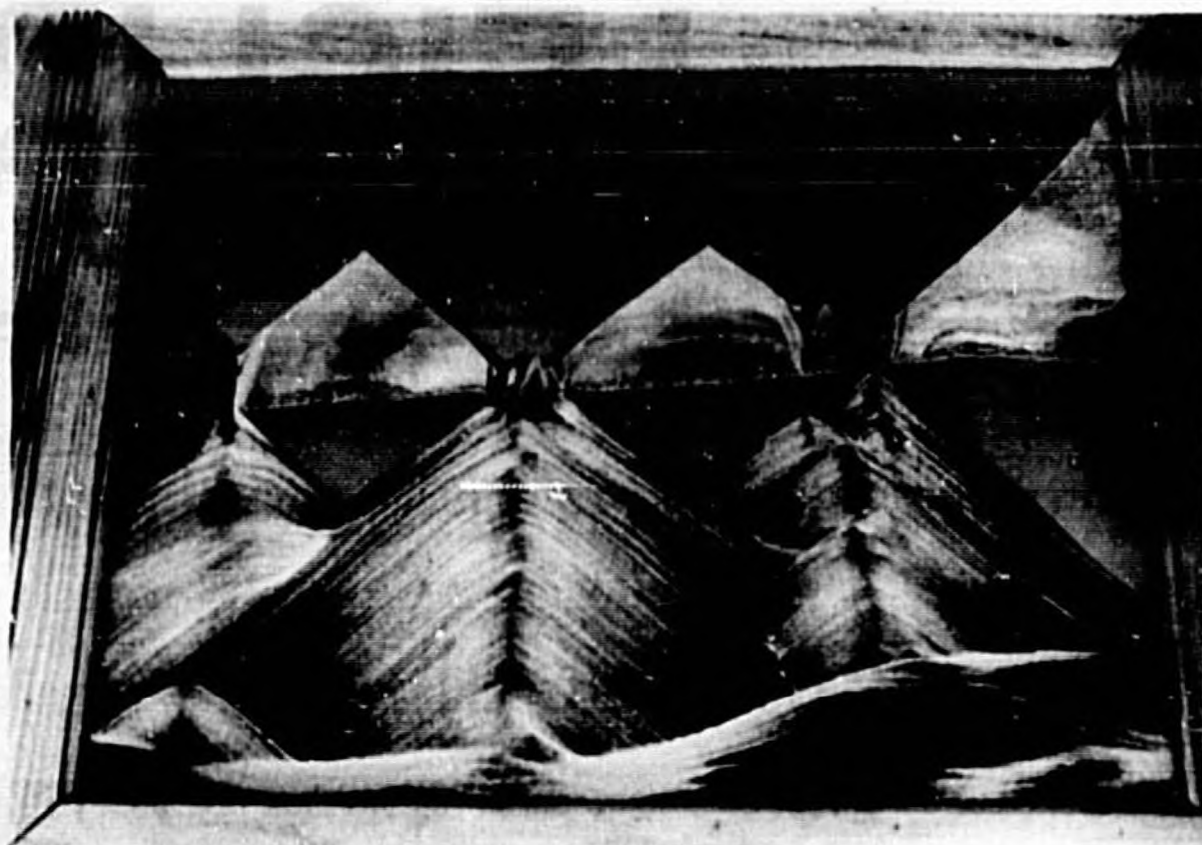

Jim Hoolahan, who also sells Ducas's panels in Sanford, has some multi-colored designs, with varied color sections separated in a single panel with strips of silicon.

To set the scene in motion all the viewer had to do is flip the panel upside down. For those who want greater ease of movement for the panel, some are equipped with a built in swivel stand, at a cost of about $2 more than the hand-moved models.

Standard panels come in traditional picture sizes from 5 by 7-inches, up to 11 by 14-inches. Bolton said 6 by 14-inch models are his best sellers, and blue is the favorite color of those who buy his stock. About half the panels he sells, Bolton said, are sold as gifts. The rest are for the use of the buyer. "I used to think they were all for gifts," but not any more," Bolton said.

Age is no boundary to being mesmerized by the moving art, Bolton said. Where ever the panels are on display a gawking crowd gathers. But Hoolahan said his panels are most popular with well-heeled baby boomers, who remember the psychedelic '60s and lava lamps.

"I love it," Hoolahan said. "It's a different picture every time you turn it over. The picture takes its own form. It's a little more relaxing than watching television."

Production of the scenes is still a learning process for Ducas, who said he will make any sized panel people might order. His largest so far is 30 by 60 inches, the size of a door. That work was created in three separate sections, mounted to rotate together, he said.

He has apparently found an attractive package for peace and tranquility.

Actor gets under murderer's skin—and vice versa

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD — In the early days of his career, James Wilder probably never thought his first major film role would be playing a real-life killer — or that his research for the role would include meeting the man he would portray.

In the new movie "Murder One," Wilder plays Carl Isaacs, who was convicted and sentenced to death for the murder of six members of a Georgia farm family in 1973.

Wilder, 24, met with Isaacs in prison, and later described the encounter as unnerving, but he said he got a certifiable fix on the mind and character of the killer.

"Carl was 19 when he committed the crimes and he was 33 when I talked to him," Wilder said. "So he was a half-life different from the person who killed six members of the Alday family, with his brother, a half-brother and a friend.

"I had no trouble talking to Carl or his younger brother, Billy. Carl was given the death penalty, which is still going through legal channels, and Billy — who was only 15 when the crimes took place — was given a life sentence.

"Before I met Carl, I expected a sort of Manson-esque killer. But he was the antithesis of Charles Manson. It was bizarre that he behaved and appeared so normal after having gone so far over the edge. It made me wonder what pushes a man to such a horrible act.

"Even though Carl gave the appearance of being an ordinary person, I felt a sense of hatred for what I saw in his eyes. They were cold eyes.

"I asked myself what went wrong with him. He was supposed to have all the advantages — a young white male, strong and good-looking. But obviously something deeply disturbing had gone on inside him.

"My meeting with Carl was more than just curiosity. Anything that brings an actor closer to the source of his role should never be denied. What I found was a killer who didn't even know why he had committed the crimes."

Wilder also read two books on the infamous killings and studied news reports about the crime, but he said he failed to learn "why."

"That was the frightening thing," he said. "There was no purpose, no motivation, no reason. They were robbing the Alday trailer when one of the family came in. They killed him. Then they waited in the house and killed five more of the Aldays as they came home, one at a time, execution-style.

"After 14 years in prison, Carl's attitude was weird. He thinks he's very important. He bragged and said he made the Alday family famous. Both Carl and Billy were excited about 'Murder One.'

"Carl thinks of himself as a star. He was the subject of a '60 Minutes' segment and had appeared on other TV shows about the murders. All kinds of women write to him, telling him they love him and sending him gifts and food.

"To give you an insight into his character, Carl sent a bottle of champagne to his half-brother, Wayne Coleman, in prison on the first anniversary of the killings.

"How can you possibly feel any sympathy for a man who thinks and behaves like that? From the very beginning he admitted they committed the murders and he never showed a moment's remorse."

Wilder, who began his show business career at 11 as a street performer in San Francisco, toured in Vienna and Paris at 14, and at 19 joined Mickey Rooney and Ann Miller in the musical "Sugar Babies."

Also a veteran of television and few minor films, he said he suffered a crisis of conscience before accepting the role.

"I don't believe in glorifying or personifying senseless killers," he said.

"There was no way in my mind I could rationalize or overlook the fact that the survivors of the Alday family — a very large number of people back in Georgia — would not know about 'Murder One' and be affected by it.

"I was torn between the repercussions the picture would have on this innocent family and the fact that the picture would be made with or without me in the role. ... If another actor played the role, maybe he wouldn't be as compassionate as I am about the delicacy of the situation.

"During my interview with him, Carl indirectly invited me to his execution in the electric chair. He wants the execution filmed in color and shown on television. That's the kind of personality he has.

"As far as I'm concerned, he should be executed. And I won't feel a moment's sympathy for him when they pull the switch."

American Carl Lewis (above) faces off with Canadian runner Ben Johnson in the men's 100 meter final. The race airs Friday, Sept. 23, as part of the 1988 Summer Olympics. Opening ceremonies are Saturday, Sept. 16. Olympic coverage will be provided by NBC and can be seen on WESH-TV, Channel 2.

Did Mr. T wear real jewels?

Q. We watch re-runs of "The A-Team" all the time. One question: Is all the jewelry that Mr. T wears for real? — M.P.A.O., Houston.

A. If you mean was it all Mr. T's own jewelry, the answer is that most was. Once in a while, the wardrobe department flung another chain around his neck. If you mean was it all real gold and real gems, the answer is, again, most of it was. A few pieces were not, but the majority was the real thing.

Q. On "Amen," why does Sherman Hemsley lock his car door from the outside? — J.B., Gooshen, Ind.

A. The producers think they might be teaching TV viewers some good habits. If you lock your car door from the outside, you will never run the risk of locking your keys inside the car.

Q. When did McLean Stevenson die and from what cause? — V.L.M., Colby, Wis.

A. Whatever happened to Victor Buono? He was a heavy actor in the '50s and '60s and I haven't seen him in years. — B., Corpus Christi, Texas.

Q. When I was a young girl, I used to see Clara Bow. What became of her? Tom Mix was my favorite cowboy star. What became of him? — Mrs. W.D., Griffin, Ga.

A. What can you tell me about an actress named Maria Montes? I haven't seen her lately. — W.W., Kirby, Wyo.

Q. I would like to know the correct age of Angela Lansbury, Jessica on "Murder, She Wrote." I think she is in her 70s, but my friends say she is in her 60s. — F.Y., Mesa, Ariz.

A. Your friends are right.

TELEVISION

DICK KLEINER

Angela will reach her 63rd birthday this coming Oct. 18.

Q. Long before your time, there was a movie called "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine." Who played the leading characters? — P.M., Morgantown, W.Va.

A. Not much was before my time any more. That 1936 film starred Sylvia Sydney, Fred MacMurray and Henry Fonda. It was noted for being the first outdoor film shot in Technicolor.

Q. Is the man who plays the lonely Maytag repairman on their commercials the same person who played Cagey Calhoun on "The Ann Sothern Show"?

— R.B., Sloux City, Ia.

A. Yes, Jesse White worked with Ann Sothern on both of her shows and was also with Danny Thomas on his show. He is a veteran Broadway stage actor, and was in many movies, including "Harvey," "The Death of a Salesman" and "The Reluctant Astronaut."

Q. I look forward to your column but I can't understand why a man of your knowledge answers such stupid questions, like who is related to who, who looks like who and so on. Come on, give us some good trivia. If you can answer my question, I'll take it all back. My subject is The Sons of the Pioneers. Who were the originals and are they still living? — R.A.W., Hamburg, Pa.

A. One man's stupid is another man's good. A lot of people would think that The Sons of the Pioneers are not all that important in the cosmic scheme of things. Anyhow, the founding members of that group were Roy Rogers, who is still alive; Bob Nolan (died in '80) and Tim Spencer (died in '76). Karl and Hugh Foss joined in '34 (Karl died in '61, Hugh in '80). Lloyd Perryman and Pat Brady joined later (Perryman died in '77; Brady is alive). Others who have been SOP include Ken Curtis (who became Festus on "Gunsmoke"), Dale Warren, Roy Latham, Billy Armstrong, Rusty Richards, Billy Lebert and Rome Johnson.

Q. Why did the networks put Donahue, Shriver and Downey all on at the same time? I like all three, but you can't look at all of them. Why not put one against Oprah Winfrey, then I wouldn't have a problem. — M.R.S., Mesa, Ar.

A. Nobody ever accused the networks of being smart. But, actually, blame it on your local stations, because Shriver and Downey are not network shows. Your local stations do the programming of those two shows.
