Pilots' Club Sets Sights On The Sky

By Sarah Fischer Merald Staff Writer

Central Florida residents are taking to the skies as members of the South Seminole Flying Club, one of the oldest and largest flying clubs in the state.

Since its beginnings in 1966, the club has grown from a membership of seven to over 70 high flying enthusiasts.

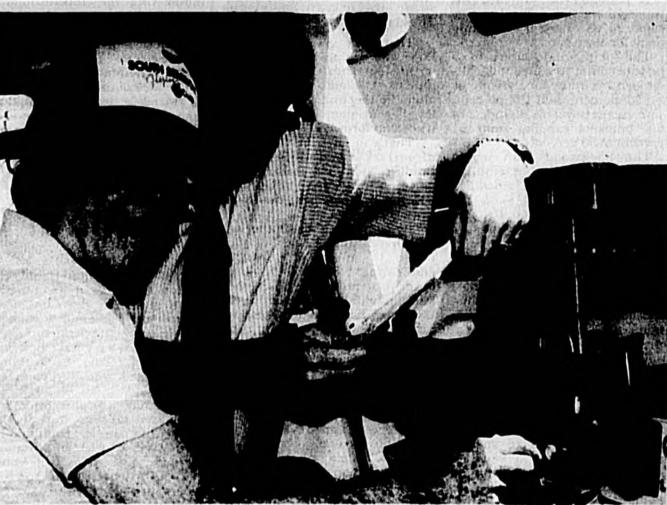

The Sanford Airport has been home to the organization for the past 15 years, where both training and social activities are held.

Young or old, man or woman, most anyone can learn to fly club members say — so long as they are young at heart.

Such an example is Pete Schirard, the club's oldest member, who earned his pilot's license last year at the age of 75. Schirard, a retired Sanford

The county is against Sanford's adoption of the planning map due to the city's having failed to subscribe to "responsible growth management principles," according to County Planning Director Tony Vanderworp, who said he will express this and other sentiments to city commissioners on Monday night.

Vanderworp said the city "has a responsibility" to develop these studies and also research funding mechanisms to properly prepare for the traffic increases and sewer and water services in these planned industrial and commercial areas.

Vanderworp also said environmental concerns in the more "fragile" of these new city properties should be studied prior to the map's adoption.

The Swimming Pool Alarm: Safety Device Or Complacency Tool?

By Susan Loden Merald Staff Writer

In this security-conscious society there are alarms to alert one to the threats of theft and fire. There's also another rather obscure alarm that one may have to beg to buy, but which just might save the life of a non-swimmer.

When swimming pool alarms, which, depending on design, can be attached poolside or float on the surface to sound a shrill alarm if the water is disturbed, were introduced early in the 1980s, they might have been welcomed as a device whose time had come. Especially in poolpacked Florida and with accidental drowning being the fourth leading children nationally.

Half of those drownings occur in backyard swimming pools, and even though some children are rescued from drowning, they may suffer brain damage in a near-drowning

But wholesale pool supplier Jack Manahan of Sanford said floating pool alarms are seen as "the little boy who cried wolf." The floating models he is familiar with are easily set off by wind or other slight disturbance of the water, and false alarms cause owners to become cause of accidental death among a child, and a lawsuit against the seller of the device, Manahan said, swimming pool suppliers are reluctant to sell the alarms. Other styles of alarms, non-floaters that attach poolside, are less sensitive, he said. But he hasn't sold any of that type to pool suppliers in Seminole County.

In Seminole County, he said, the floating alarms, which cost around $125, have to be specially ordered at the customer's request and the buyer usually has to sign a waiver releasing the seller of liability. That releases the seller from responsibility if the owner fails to respond to the accident.

Dy Barah Piceber Morald Staff Writer

Seminole County is to spend an additional $55,000 to remove asbestos ceilings at the county courthouse next month as part of the facility's renovation.

County commissioners Tuesday approved a bid waiver in the amount of $55,238 with Cross Construction Co. Inc. of Zephyrhills for removal and disposal of all assestes bearing material from the courthouse penthouse mechanical rooms, equipment rooms, air conditioner return shafts and telephone rooms.

The work was not included in the general contract for courthouse renovations because the asbestos was not discovered in those areas until after the contract had been awarded and renovation begun, said Robin

Lillibridge, construction begun, and recent Lillibridge, construction program manager.

Asbestos removal in the six or seven rooms is scheduled to be done over the Memorial Day weekend because the work will require shutting off the courthouse telephone and air conditioning systems.

Lillibridge said.
Clean air tests taken in those rooms show no instance of asbestos fibers in the air, however, more tests will be taken after removal because the work disturbs the material, he said.

Asbestos removal at the courthouse is expected to be completed in August, with over half of the material removed since the work began last May. Lillibridge said.

All asbestos has been removed from the first, second, third and fourth floors on the north wing. Work is to begin next month on the first and second floors in the south wing.

Removal of asbestos ceilings in the courthouse is slated to cost $459,000, or 20 percent of the estimated $2:3 million

Some 95,000 square feet of ceiling in the courthouse is being removed because of its

The Pentagon Scores SDI Research Breakthrough

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger says the Army scored a breakthrough in a "Star Wars"-related experiment, in which a missile packed with new guidance technology destroyed a target 12,000 feet over New Mexico.

A 41-second color videotape showed the 12-foot-long missile speeding at 3,000 mph into the target, an aluminum sphere 44 inches in diameter suspended 3,000 feet below a balloon riding at an altitude of 15,000 feet.

Guided by a miniaturized radar homing device and 216 thumb-sized rocket motors built into the sleek missile, the weapon destroyed its target by smashing into it, not with an explosive warhead. Army officials said Friday.

The experiment Sunday at the White Sands, N.M., test range was the fifth in a series of nine tests intended to develop technology for the destruction of missile-carried nuclear warheads in the atmosphere as part of the Strategic Defense Initiative, commonly known as "Star

The technology also could be adapted for a new generation of surface-to-air missiles, an Army official said. Weinberger termed the test "another significant breakthrough" in SDI research.

Deaver Probe 'Ridiculous?'

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Justice Department officials have received a request - called "ridiculous" by President Reagan — for an inquiry into the appointment of a special prosecutor to investigate former White House aide Michael Deaver.

Attorney General Edwin Meese received the request from the government ethics office and five Democrats on the Senate Judiciary Committee, Justice Department spokesman John Russell said Friday.

The request triggers an inquiry into whether a special prosecutor should probe conflict-of-interest allegations swirling around the former White House official and his 11-month consulting venture.

Deaver has been the target of allegations that in his consulting work he may have violated a federal law that bars senior officials who leave government from lobbying for one year on issues they handled.

Most of the questions center on Deaver's representation of Canada after leaving government and a subsequent agreement between Canada and the United States on acid

The Washington Post reported today that Canada had refused to help congressional investigators, possibly jeopardizing their independent probe of Deaver.

And the New York Times reported today that Deaver, in a report filed with the Justice Department April 18, said he represented the Korean Broadcasting Advertising Corp. at a meeting with a National Security Council official.

Prostitution Ring Smashed

NEW YORK (UPI) - "Madam Shih" and her daughter. 'Little Sister." operated a coast-to-coast prostitution ring that recruited women from Taiwan, charged them to enter the United States and then forced them to sell sex, federal authorities charge.

U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani, who coordinated nationwide raids that nabbed the mother-daughter team as well as 30 illegal aliens, said the ringleaders operated houses of prostitution in midtown Manhattan, in Chinatown, Denver and San Francisco.

The ringleaders were identified as Hsiao Pao Shih, also known as "Madam Shih." "Big Sister" and "Da Jeh." 48, of Queens, and her daughter. I Huei Chin, also known as "Little Sister" and "Miss Yi," 29, of East Brunswick, N.J. They reportedly were arrested in their homes. Chin's older brother, I Tai Chin, still was being sought Friday.

The women were charged with transporting some 50 women and girls, supplied by I Tai Chin, in Taiwan, across state and international boundaries. They face up to 15 years in prison and a fine of $10,000.

Giuliani said his office, the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the New York Police Department, the Denver Police Department and the Justice Strike Force in San Francisco coordinated the search of six locations — one each in Queens and East Brunswick, two in Chinatown and one each in San Francisco and Lakewood, Colo., a Denver

Terrorism Dims Cannes Stars

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - The threat of terrorism will reduce the size of the Hollywood contingent at Europe's best-publicized film festival, and even Rambo is staying away from Cannes.

Apparently believing that any large group of Americans in the Mediterranean area would be a tempting terrorist target, several celebrities are staying away from next month's Cannes Film Festival, a check with the Hollywood community showed Friday.

Stars including Sylvester Stallone, Burt Reynolds, Walter Matthau, Whoopi Goldberg, Barbara Hershey, Tony Perkins and Maureen O'Sullivan are among those who have changed their plans to fly to the French resort.

Directors Steven Spielberg and Martin Scorsese and musicman Quincy Jones also will not attend the festival

Some stars still plan to go, including Jon Voight and Eric Roberts of "Runaway Train" and Ronsanna Arquette and Griffin Dunne of "After Hours."

Fence Proposed For Capital

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Key congressional leaders. concerned that lawmakers are vulnerable to terrorist attacks, have proposed a $14 million security plan that would ring the Capitol grounds with an electronic fence.

A spokesman for Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas said the security plan also would include hydraulic gates, elimination of Capitol parking and more money for security guards.

Dole ordered an extensive review of Capitol accurity more than a year ago, but the recent wave of international terrorism fueled the concern for security improvements, said a spokesman for Sen. Alan Cranston. D-Calif.

Construction of a tall, iron electronic fence, similar to the one now securing the White House, was one of the recommendations of the security review, prepared by the nistant party leaders in the House and Senate.

"The big item is the fence. That would be the most radical change. It would pretty much eliminate parking on the plaza. Car bomba, as we all know, are a favorite of terrorists." Cranston spokesman Murray Flander said.

To pay for those generous proposed changes for individuals, the plan would repeal most existing deductions, including the tax write-off for contributions to Individual Retirement Accounts.

Traditionally sacred deductions like those for home mortgage interest, charitable contributions and state and local taxes would be eliminated under the plan. But in anticipation of immense resistence to such a sweeping proposal, a separate sheet lists the costs of retaining full or partial deductibility for each of the popular items. Keeping them would mean raising revenue elsewhere possibly in the form of higher tax reform effort. tax rates.

The Packwood proposal also would drop the top corporate rate from 46 percent to 33 percent and retain some of the provisions the committee adopted over the past month, such as repealing the investment Tax Credit - a lucrative and cherished business deduction.

It would raise $25 billion in unspecified excise taxes over five years - a hotly contested issue - and would impose a stiff minimum tax on individuals and corporate income to ensure that no one avoids paying taxes.

Together, the proposal would cut individual tax revenue by $95 billion over five years while raising corporate taxes by $70 billion over the same period.

Following the private meeting Thursday, Packwood said his proposal, designed to rescue his endangered tax reform plan, had new, radical plan to lower tax produced "interesting reactions ... (that) certainly were worth pursuing."

The committee spent the last month drafting a tax bill, but failed to meet its goals of eliminating loopholes to offset lower tax rates for businesses and individuals. By last week, the panel had voted to keep so many tax breaks that it was about $29 billion in the red compared to Packwood's original proposal.

At that point the chairman. fearing the committee would reject a key provision in his plan to increase and revise excise taxes on alcohol, tobacco and gasoline, called a halt to the drafting sessions.

But several committee members still oppose the elimination of key tax breaks that help certain industries or individuals. Asked if opponents were converted Thursday. Bradley replied: "I didn't see any burning bushes in there."

Soviet Airline Will Fly To U.S. Again

MOSCOW (UPI) - Promising in-flight "blini" pancakes, the Soviet Union says it is ready to resume flights to and from the United States after an eight-year suspension of service.

Although the Soviet media criticized the U.S. suspension of flights in 1978, it said Friday the resumption of the "air bridge" is a "reopening of the doors between the two countries.

"Aeroflot is now ready to fly," said Gennady Prikhodchenko, deputy director of the Soviet airlines, of the direct service that will be inaugurated Tuesday.

Soviet commentators and newspapers said the renewed air flights would promote business, cultural and scientific ties between the two countries.

Flights will take passengers to and from Moscow and Leningrad in the Soviet Union, and New York and Washington in the United States.

The Soviet airlines Aeroflot and Pan American World Airways will each be allowed a maximium of four flights a week under the agreement reached shortly after the November summit between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Pan Am is scheduled to renew service to Moscow Monday with a flight out of New York's Kennedy airport.

Britain, Spain Expel Libyans

By United Press International

Spain ordered the expulsion of 11 Libyans for alleged involvement in terrorism as 22 others deported from Britain arrived home in Tripoli chanting "Libya, freedom! Britain is a prison!"

Some 334 Libyan aviation students in Britain were banned from working on aircraft at British airports and from flying alone in moves authorities said Friday would force most of them to leave the country also.

The 22 deportees from Britain, nearly all students, denied they were involved in any acts of terrorism. They left London Friday giving clenched-fist salutes and shouting slogans denouncing Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

'We have done nothing wrong," deportee Kamel Merash. 30. a graduate political science student at Exeter University, told a airport news conference on arrival in the Libyan capital, Tripoli, late Friday.

The students walked into Tripoli airport chanting "Reagan. Thatcher, CIA! Our revolution will make you pay!" and "Libya. freedom! Britain is a prison!"

Judicial Reform Bill Weakened

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) - A right-wing bloc of congressmen won a decision to weaken a judicial reform bill by excluding investigations into death squads or political killings, political and diplomatic sources said.

Sources familiar with the legislative process said Friday the bill was narrowed to apply only to kidnappings. extortion and drug trafficking cases.

The original package — which was hailed as a milestone toward strengthening El Salvador's notoriously weak judicial system — allowed anyone implicated in a crime to testify against another suspect.

Views On Abortion Cross Social Lines, According To Poll

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Floridians do not follow religious or social patterns when it comes to abortion, a Florida State University poll shows.

The poll, released Friday, found that 49.4 percent of those polled believe a woman should be able to get an abortion for any reason. That approval level varies very little regardless of a person's sex, age or religion, the poll found. For example, 46 percent of both Protestants and Catholics interviewed approve abortion for any reason.

"When the analysis focuses on approval of abortion if the woman wants it for any reason, we expected to find large differences between groups." said FSU sociology professor Marie Osmond, a co-director of the poll. "However, the most consistent result in the Florida poll is the lack of extreme differences."

The exception to that consensus lies between very religious and non-religious respondents. Seventy-three percent of those who said they never attend church approve of abortion for any reason, compared to a 27 percent approval rate among those who attend church at least weekly. Respondents who identified themselves as "born again Christians" give abortion only a 28 percent approval rate, compared to 62 percent approval from those who do not consider themselves "born again."

Students Lack Motivation?

GAINESVILLE (UPI) - Students may not be as disruptive as their parents were, but they appear to suffer from a lack of motivation, a California expert on discipline

"Kids are not doing the work," said Douglas Naylor, director of the Educator Training Center in Long Beach, Calif., and one of several speakers at a conference on discipline at the University of Florida's P.K. Yonge Laboratory School.

"They are disenchanted with school and that's what is considered a discipline problem now," he said. "It's not that they are ripping up their schools. They're just not doing the work, they are not performing."

Faced with that, teachers must make an effort to get students back on track, Naylor said. Teachers must take more interest in students and become more skillful at creating situations where students can succeed.

Officials Plan Panther Protection

TALLAMASSEE (UPI) — It may not be nice to fool Mother Nature, but state wildlife officials hope a little fooling around will help them save the Florida panther.

The panther, Florida's state animal, is on the verge of extinction because growth in South and Central Florida has destroyed much of its hunting grounds. State biologists hope they give the panther's struggle for survival a boost with the help of a kinning count — the Western panther.

They plan to breed Big Guy, a Florida panther saved by surgery when he was run over on a south Florida highway, with a Western panther. Their offspring will be sterilized and released into the wild, possibly in North Florida's Appalachical National Passat.

If the kittens survive, Game and Fish will repetit the experiment with pure, unsterile Florida panthers.

Georgetown Students Protest With Shanty

Was over.

it torn down once the protest

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Police day demonstration, but ordered arrested 36 Georgetown University students Friday for refusing to tear down a shanty they built to protest South Africa's racial policies.

University spokeswoman Sara Forden said students erected the nywood snanty on the campus at a rally Thursday night, but would not take it down after the protest.

The students have demonstrated frequently at the university for the past month to force Georgetown to cancel its investments in companies operating in South Africa.

A handful of students have staged a 14-day-old sit-in inside the university's admissions building, saying they will not budge until the university divested. Campus police Friday arrested those students and other demonstrators - 35 in all - for refusing to comply with orders to leave with their shanty. Forden said.

One of the protest organizers. Charlie Potter, said the shanty was "big enough to be an cycsore and a symbol."

He said the makeshift building represents the adverse conditions in which South African blacks live under racial separation policies.

The university banished shantles from the campus Thursday, saying administrators 'could not provide protection to students conducting shan-tytowns." Forden said.

overachieved. No one around campus realized the UCF baseball team, with their 45-10 record, would actually have a shot at a post season bid from the NCAA and a national ranking. As things come down to the wire, it looks as if the Knights have a real chance at their first NCAA bid.

The Knights need to wrap up the final three games of the season with at least two wins. UCF must concentrate on top ranked Florida State and South Florida. The remaining game is against Florida, which the Knights descated earlier this season in Gainesville. A win against the two teams would almost assure UCF a bid.

One of the keys to the Knights success was their streak through the month of March, defeating every opponent in 28 straight games. The only downfall, pointed out by the NCAA, is many of the teams UCF played were Division II. But the Knights proved they can play with tradtionally fine teams when they drilled Stetson in both games in a two game series earlier this week. Stetson has recieved a bid before May 3rd.

Astronet Sells 'Phones To Bell

LAKE MARY - Astronet Corporation has announced that it has been selected by Southwestern Bell Mobile Systems, Inc. as the cellular system supplier for the Corpus Christi. Texas wireline cellular market.

William Woodruff, president of Astronet, stated that the firm's acceptance by a Bell company "is a major breakthrough and will be instrumental in finalizing other system contracts which are pending in the next several months with both wireline and non-wireline carriers.

Astronet Corporation is jointly owned by Mitsubishi Electric/Mitsibishi Corporation of Japan and Plessey of the United Kingdom.

Barnett's Good and Bad News

JACKSONVILLE - Barnett Banks of Florida, Inc. has announced that it now has 18.20 percent of the state's individual, partnership and corporate deposits (IPC), gaining 55 share points in 12 months and expanding its position as Florida's commercial bank market leader. which it has held since December, 1981.

The company holds $12.4 billion of Florida's $68.2 billion in IPC deposits as of December 31, 1985, according to data just released by the Florida Bankers Association.

The total represents a 16 percent increase from a year ago. Barnett added 32 offices during 1985 and now operates 372 offices in 42 counties which contain 95 percent of the state's population.

Barnett increased its market share in 35 of the counties but lost in both Seminole and Orange counties. The drop in Seminole was from 27.76 percent of the market at the end of 1984 to 27.23 percent at the end of 1985. The firm dropped from to 20.11 percent to 19.27 percent in Orange County during the same period.

Conglomerate Gobbles Charter

JACKSONVILLE - Charter Co. expects to emerge from bankruptcy court in the fourth quarter of this year, a company spokeswomany.

The oil and insurance conglomerate has been operating under the protection of the bankruptcy court since April

Charter amended its reorganization plan in bankruptcy court earlier this month so that Cincinnati-based American Financial Corp. will own a majority stake in the new company when Charter emerges from Chapter 11.

Company spokeswoman Joanna Stone said that under the revised plan. American Financial, a conglomerate that owns Circle K and National Brands, as well as insurance companies, will own 51 percent of the common stock of the new Charter. Charter will issue new common stock.

Owed $41 million. American Finanicial was one of Charter's major creditors. According to the repayment plan submitted to the bankruptcy court, it stands to get back $18 million, which will be used to buy the new stock.

The new unit combines the mortgage loan operations of Sears Savings Bank of California, Allstate Enterprises Mortgage Corp. and Sears Mortgage Securities Corp.

Edward A Brennan, chairman and chief executive officer, predicted that by the end of 1986. Sears Mortgage Corp. will serve a portfolio of 150,000 mortgages worth $8 billion, ranking it among the 15 largest mortgage banking companies in the country.

Jack Eckerd Corp. Going Private Again

By Susan Postlewaite UPI Business Writer

CLEARWATER (UPI) - Once dubbed the "nation's richest druggist," Jack Eckerd is getting ready to cash out on the giant drug store chain he founded 34 years ago.

If all goes as planned and the Jack Eckerd Corp. goes private again on April 30. the lanky Clearwater politicianbusinessman and his wife stand to pocket more than $36 million for their 1.1 million shares in Eckerd stock.

His nephew, E.M. O'Herron Jr., who founded the Eckerd stores in North Carolina, and his wife hold 1 million shares. They would walk away with $33 Chairman Stewart Turley, who owns

39,759 shares and has been chairman since Eckerd entered politics in 1975, stands to take home $1.3 million.

After a disastrous 1985 in which the $2.5 billion Jack Eckerd Corp., for the first time in many years posted an $8.3

million loss, company chairman Turley and 27 other members of top management have arranged to take the corporation private in a $1.4 billion leveraged buyout by Merrill Lynch Capital Partners. Eckerd Corp. has been publicly traded for about 25 years.

Jack Eckerd founded the firm in 1952 when he bought three drug stores in Florida, but he hasn't been active in the corporation since he ran unsuccessfully for Florida governor and started a foundation which sponsors camps for emotionally disturbed children.

In the offices of his Clearwater foundation, Eckerd, 72, has spent recent weeks working on his final speech to stockholders who will vote on the offer at the annual meeting Wednesday at the Airport Marriott in Tampa. He declined to discuss the buyout.

Eckerd management expects the offer to be easily approved. Seven stockholder lawsuits originally were filed opposing it. But all of the suits were settled April 18 when the Merrill Lynch group hiked the offer to $33 per share in cash. The initial bid included $28 in cash plus a $5 subordinated debenture.

"The $5 paper was of questionable value." said Richard Greensield, a Haverford, Pa., attorney who represented the stockholders. "There is no opposition at this point" to the buyout, he said a few days before the vote. Eckerd stock has traded near $33 for several weeks. It had fallen as low as $20 in the last year.

Analysts also say the corporation is facing increasing competition in the sunbelt drug store business, and going private will enable it to concentrate on getting its business back in order without having to worry about short-term stockholder carnings.

Competition has been building from companies such as Walgreens, Revco. Gray and SuperX, as well as the mass merchandisers like Kmart.

ney World's landlocked Magic Kingdom.

Minnie was mum. But her helper, Walt Disney Co. President Frank Wells, called the Grand Floridian Beach Resort project proof of "Walt's promise Walt Disney World will never stop growing."

The Grand Floridian is being built on a 40-acre site overlooking a lagoon along the Disney World monorail system. When completed in the summer of 1988, the complex will provide the most luxurious accomodations on Disney property.

The six-building hotel's theme - all Disney World resort hotels have themes — is to replicate the turn-of-the-century lifestyle at Florida's ocean beach resorts catering to the wealthy during the period from 1890 to 1910.

Plans call for five restaurants, ranging from snack bars to a 65-seat luxury dining facility called Victoria & Albert's. A quarter-million gallon swimming pool is going in, and white sand prices fell faster than petroleum

Pennzoil Corp., which is locked in a multibillion-dollar legal battle with Texaco, also had a 26 percent decline in earnings and cited "significantly" lower prices for oil and natural gas.

This week, Exxon Corp., the largest U.S. off company, reported a 37.4 percent rise in first-quarter earnings and Mobil Corp., the second-largest, logged a 37.5 percent rise.

Texaco, based in White Plains. N.Y., earned $328 million, or $1.37 a share, in the opening quarter, compared with $320 million, or $1.28 a share, in the first quarter last year. Revenues declined 20 percent to $9.6 billion from $12 billion a year earlier.

Texaco Chairman John K. McKinley, calling the first quarter a "transition period" for the oil industry, said worldwide crude oil prices fell more than 50 percent during the three-month period "in an abrupt reaction to increased supplies in relation to demand." McKinley said the "sudden oil prices" has reduced revenues and created uncertainty in the industry.

He attributed Texaco's improved first-quarter showing to better profit margins in manufacturing and marketing operations.

"Although petroleum products prices declined significantly during the quarter, these product price decreases in the marketplace were at a slower rate than the decline in feedstock prices." McKinley said.

A drop in exploration and production earnings, "caused by the acute decline in crude oil prices," partially offset the upturn in manufacturing and marketing results, he said.

McKinley warned that low oil prices will discourage high-risk investments in exploration and reduce U.S. oil production.

Standard Off, headquartered in Cleveland, reported its firstquarter earnings fell to $253 million, or $1.08 a share, from $343 million, or $1.46 a share, in the opening quarter last year. First-quarter revenues slipped 9.3 percent to $2.9 billion from $3.2 billion a year earlier. "Oil prices have dropped substantially and we expect significant volatility for the remainder of the year," said Standard Chairman Robert Horton. "As a result, our first quarter earnings may not be representative of the carnings for subsequent quarters. Houston-based Pennzoil earned $42.3 million, or 93 cents a share, in the first quarter, down from $57.4 million, or and sharp downward change in $1.20 a share.

Contractor's Loose Lips Accused Of Sinking Secrets

By Timethy Bannon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Super-secret Pentagon weapons systems are discussed by military contractors in "public restaurants, bars, theaters and on golf courses all over Washington," Rep. John Dingell says.

Not only could those conversations compromise national security, but the contractors bill the entertainment expenses to the Pentagon, Dingell, D-Mich., said in an angry letter to Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

Dingell wrote that contractors "discussing the nation's secrets in public" are "daily occurrences."

Cost information and other details on secret, or "black," Pentagon weapons programs, such as the Air Force's Stealth bomber and advanced cruise missiles, are closely held Pentagon secrets - even from Congress.

Some of the secret programs are suspected of accumulating huge cost overruns, but Defense Department officials say the programs are continuously reviewed.

With the letter, Dingell, chairman of a House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on investigations and oversight, released entertainment claims billed to the Air Force by an unidentified General Dynamics Corp. official.

The claims covered "business conferences" on secret weapons programs held at such places as the Kennedy Center theater in Washington and for dues at the Crystal City Country Club in nearby Arlington, Va..

Investigators from Dingell's panel have been looking into charges of fraudulent billing by contractors on secret weapons programs, but have run into repeated roadblocks in the Pentagon secrecy requirements. Dingell said in his letter to Weinberger:

"While we can both feel secure about the staff of this subcommittee in handling this information, neither of us can have similar faith in the various waiters, bartenders, caddies and ushers who may overhear these discussions."

Spokesmen for the Air Force and General Dynamics said they had not seen the letter and could not comment.

A Pentagon spokesman said that, while he could not respond in detail to Dingell's claims. "It must be understood that classified programs do not escape internal oversight," that programs were continously reviewed, and Dingeli's allegations would be studied.

Subcommittee investigators said that beyond the question of the discussions being overheard by bystanders, the bills raise legal questions about the extremely limited access to the weapon

Federal law bars officials from the executive branch and military services from accepting gratuities from military contractors.

"And it could be worse," one investigator said. "If they aren't talking to these people (govern-ment officials), who are they talking to?"

Dingell said the claims, which he asserts are not isolated incidents, mean that the contractors are either violating national security laws by discussing the programs in public places, or faisifying vouchers in violation of tax and federal the map," Simmons said of the local channels traversed prior to the map's submission to the state.

The county, after receiving a copy of the map from the DCA in late February, sent its 10-page response to both the state agency and the city of Sanford.

The state's reaction to the city and county submissions was addressed by DCA Local Resource Planning Chief Robert Kessler, who said. "The map is consistent with statutory requirements (of the 1985 com- sioners will also hear from city prehensive land use act)," although he added, "because of total acreage involved, we must comment on the the potential impact that these changes could have on other elements of the comprehensive plan."

Simmons said "very extensive" documentation addressing development ramifications for the new areas will be included in the new comprehensive land use plan that state law mandates cities to adopt by October of 1989.

According to Vanderworp. however, "The problem is, it will be too late then; the land will have already been developed."

they've come up with since the city lost its Yankee Lake condemnation suit in February. Simmons said purchase options for the alternate sites and their disposal capabilities will be addressed.

Yankee Lake and the alternate sites are the means targeted by Sanford to attempt compliance with a state Department of Environmental Regulation edict to cease disposing treated wastewater in Lake Monroe through the implementation of a land disposal system.

On Monday night, city commission will address Sanford's legal options regarding the Yankee Lake suit's dismissal, as well as the city's legal challenge alternative waste disposal sites of the state wastewater disposal edict.

City counsel will discuss, and if requested, offer recommendations to commissioners regarding both legal actions. City Attorney William Colbert said.

Sanford has at least three options regarding Yankee Lake: drop the condemnation effort. launch a new suit, or appeal the February dismissal, according to Colbert, who said the end of next week is the cut-off date for Sanford to file for appeal of the dismissal.

Colbert declined to discuss what he feels would be the city's best course of action prior to addressing the matter with city commissioners on Monday. The city filed its condemnation state mandate.

suit to obtain the Yankee Lake property in November, two days after the county bought the land for its own waste disposal program from Jeno Paulucci.

Two days after Monday's commission meeting. Sanford counsel will argue in court for dismissal of the $28 million civil suit that Paulucci's Heathrow corporation filed in ressponse to the city's condemnation effort.

In addition to the Yankee Lake condemnation effort, the city is also involved in wastewater related litigation with the DER and on Monday night, Colbert said he will discuss with commissioners the possibility of appealing the city's most recent loss in its legal challenge of the edict than the state agencies

The city disputes the DER edict on the basis that Sanford's Poplar Avenue sewage plant can be upgraded to advanced waste treatment capabilities which would enable continued wastewater disposal in the lake without adversely affecting its water quality.

The city's unsuccessful challenges during the last year were heard by state agencies. including the DER. However, following the last ruling, the DER edict can now be challenged in the court system.

According to Colbert, an appellate court might be more open to overturning the DER Knight was commanding officer of the South Seminole Aviators from all over Central Composite Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol for eight years. Squadron members originally formed the flying club to help activities.

Knight remembered the first plane the club purchased, a 1938 Taildragger Taylorcraft.

The club bought the singleengine plane for $800, when fuel flying club was headquartered at the Flying Seminole Ranch Airport near Oviedo. Later, it moved to the Sanford terminal.

Today, the club owns three late model aircraft, which members can rent at a cost per flying hour. The fees, and club dues, pay for maintenance of the planes, fuel and insurance. Knight said.

The flying club is headed by a seven-member board of directors, on which Knight serves as safety officer.

And, although members are still occasionally called upon to cassist in emergency situations. most of the flying these days is done for pleasure, he said.

"We are a leisure flying club and we also teach flying." Knight said.

Federal Aviation Administrasponsored by the club draw crowds of 200-300 people and are free and open to the public.

The seminars, held the first Thursday of each month at the local airport, offer safety films on subjects ranging from takeoff and landing to weather and in-flight emergencies.

The seminars also enable instructors and pilots to keep abreast of changing FAA rules.

Another feature of the flying club is its monthly fly-ins. Florida participate. As many as 12 planes and 30 people take part in the events. Knight said.

Recently the club flew to Lake train CAP members and provide Okeechobee for a day of fishing. aircraft for search and rescue food and fellowship. Upcoming fly-ins will include trips to Jekyll Island in Georgia and Cedar Key.

The club holds regular meetings the second Tuesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. at the Sanford Airport. A film, guest was 28-35 cents per gallon. The speaker and social hour are often featured, and it is at those meetings where many people's urge to learn to fly takes off. Knight said.

The club is not only open to the experienced pilot, but also those who want to try their wings for the first time, he said.

Learning to fly requires 20 hours of instruction and 20 hours of solo flight. Although the amount of time it takes to learn usually "depends on the person." the general rule is four hours studying for every hour flying until the pilot's license is carned, Knight said.

Seminole Community College and many private local ground schools offer what he called the "book part" of flying. In addition, home study courses, even videos, offer instruction in areas a pilot will need to know, such as tion (FAA) safety seminars operating rules, airpiane mechanics, weather and radio learning about what they're docommunications.

you to fly alone. A pilot's license, which costs between $1,500 and $2,000 to obtain, means you can carry passengers, but that is only gained after a flight test with an FAA instructor after the training. Then, there is the constant reviewing and a bi-annual flight test. In the 20 years Knight has been teaching people to fly, he said the best method is to "let them work at their own pace. I try to keep people motivated by setting goals, levels, to attain."

Most pass with flying colors. although a physical examination is required to receive a pilot's license, Knight said.

"If there is the desire to fly, you can fly," he said.

Noting the familiar claim that an airplane is safer than a car. Knight said. "the most dangerous part about flying is driving to the airport!"

Kenn Santerre, who has a floating alarm to protect his sons, one age two, the other eight months old, said he can't imagine not responding to the 85-decible piercing sound his Remington alarm has emitted the half-dozen times his older son, who has had swimming lessons, has fallen into the pool.

Santerre's pool alarm, which has only gone off accidentally a couple of times when storm winds forced a rubber raft into the device, would be hard to ignore, he said. "I always go out. I don't know what might have fallen into the pool. The only way to stop the noise is to go out.

If you can stand the sound for five minutes, after that the alarm will shut itself. Or, the sound can be silenced by picking up the battery-powered device and tilting it sideways.

He said friends with other brands of floating alarms complain that they are more sensitive and can be set off by a slight movement in the water. His alarm can be set to respond to the weight of the child being protected, and will not sound when a lighter object falls into the pool.

finished third behind a strong showing in the field events followed by Lake Howell, Lyman, Lake Mary, DeLand and Spruce Creek.

The top four in each event, individuals and relays, qualify for the region meet Thursday at Showalter Field in Winter Park.

Jones' leap of 50-14 in the triple jump also breaks the district record he set a year ago. The previous best for the Princeton-bound senior was 49-11% that won the National Junior Olympics this past summer.

After jumping in the 48-foot range on his first attempt Friday night, Jones let loose with his 50-14 on his second jump.

Rams Wear Crown

By Sam Cook Herald Sports Editor DELAND — Lake Mary's Rams didn't work by the hour Friday night - they worked by the inning. The Rams' assembly line of hitters didn't put in a full seven, they drilled Lyman's Greyhounds with one overtime effort in the second frame.

Coach Allen Tuttle's machine punched 15 players into the second-inning time clock while scoring nine runs en route to an 11-6 victory over Lyman for the school's first Class 4A-9 District Tournament Baseball championship before 377 fans at Conrad Lake Mary, No. 1 in the Florida Sports Writers Poll and No. 4 in USA Today's Easton High School Poll, qualified for the Class 4A-5 Region against the Orlando Boone Braves. The game is set for 8 p.m. Tuesday at Orlando's Tinker Field. The Rams have already beaten Boone twice this year.

Lake Mary, which equaled last year's record-setting victory total with its 29th win in 31 games, gained a measure of revenge against Lyman, which upset it last year in the district title game. Lake Mary's march through the district included 10-0 (Daytona Beach Mainland), 9-1 (Lake Howell) and 11-8 (Lyman) conquests. Lyman finished 17-15.

Righthander Mike Schmit picked up his 13th victory against zero losses while going the distance. Showcase

Seminole's Speed Runs Past Howell's Endurance For 4A-9 Title

By Chris Fister

Herald Sports Writer CASSELBERRY — The Class 4A-9 District Championships Friday night showcased the best of two worlds. One one hand, there was the speed of Seminole High's Lady Seminoles. On the other, there was the endurance of Lake Howell's Lady Silver

Both teams used their strengths to turn in strong showings as Seminole took first place with 106 points and host Lake Howell was second at 74%. Lake Mary's Lady Rams were a solid third at 61 followed by Lake Brantley at 39%, Lyman at 33. Daytona Mainland at 21. DeLand at 20 and Spruce Creek

The top four in each event Friday night qualify for Thursday's regional meet at Showalter Field in Winter Park.

Among the highlights for Seminole was the excellent performances of Dorchelle Webster and Michelle Pearson in the hurdles and sophomore Ramona

Jamison in the 100 and 220

Webster won the 330 low hurdles and ran the top time in the state with a 44.9, almost a second faster than her previous best. Webster also took first place in the long jump as she soared to a personal best 17-9.

"She (Webster) is just starting to peak," Seminole coach Emory Blake said. "Now all she needs is the confidence in herself that she can come back and run the 880 anchor on the mile medley."

Pearson blazed to a personal best of 14.9 in winning the 110 high hurdles while Jamison took first in the 100 meters at 12.3 and won the 220 dash with a time of 26.1.

Sophomore Shownda Martin took first place in the 880 at 2:22.7 but got off to a slow start in the 440 and wound up finishing second at 48.2 while Mainland's Brenda Mitchell was first at 48.1. Blake said Martin is still not at the point where he would like her to be.

"There's no question she has the ability to run a strong 440 and 880," Blake said. "She just needs to get it straight in her mind that she can do it.'

The Lady Tribe won both the 440 and mile relays but was upeet by a stacked Lyman team in the mile medley. The Seminole 440 team, which finished in 49.2, consisted of Jamison, Adrian Hillsman, Shun Cash and Tasha Wynn. The mile relay team, which came in at 4:09.0, included Webster. Hillsman, Pearson and Martin.

Along with Jamison, the Lady Noles also qualified Wynn and Cash in the 100 meters. Also qualifying were Sonja Montgomery in the discus. Adrienne Smith in the shot put and Hilleman in the 440.

Although Seminole won the meet handily. Blake said the Lady 'Noise still have plenty of work to do.

"We'll go back to the drawing board and give the kids some good workouts and try to get their minds right to do the job." While Seminole's strength is from the 880 on down. Lake Howell starts at the 880 and goes up. The Lady Hawks qualified three runners in both the mile and two mile and two more in the 880 and combined to score

41 of their 741/2 points in those three events. Leading the way was junior Lisa Samocki who ran season's bests in winning both the mile (5:11.6) and two mile (11:29.5). "That was what we were hoping for from Lisa (Samocki)." Lake Howell coach Tom Hammnotree said. "She's still not completely healed from her injury but she's worked hard mentally and tonight was a good sign for her." Also in the mile. Martha Fonseca took second place (5:19.5) and Mary Fonseca came in fourth (5:38.9). The same held true in the two mile as Martha was second (11:41.4) and Mary fourth (12:23.9).

The Lady Hawks qualified a pair of seniors in the 880 as Angie Smith finished second behind Seminole's Martin at 2:26.4 and Amy Ertel was third at 2:26.5.

"I was hoping for three qualifiers in the half but I was happy to get two," Hammontree said. "Angie (Smith) is running strong and I'm glad we've found a place for Amy (Ertel)."

Lake Howell also excelled in the high jump where it scored 111/2 points led by senior Cheryl Brinkley who won by clearing 5-2. Junior Kim Hammontree was tied for second at 5-0.

"Both of were jumping so well today I thought they might have a chance at 5-6." Hammontree said. "Both Cheryl (Brinkley) and Kim (Hammontree) have been to regionals before and they love the pressure jumps."

'Yes' — Brandenburg Slams Brantley Past DeLand

By Chris Pieter Herald Sports Writer LAKE MARY — "The Drive For Five" was the slogan of the New York islanders the year they went for a fifth consecutive Stanley Cup.

Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots didn't get too elaborate when they thought up a slogan for the Class 4A-9 District Softball Tournament. They made it about as brief as you can get and to the point - "Yes."

And that was the answer to the question of whether or not the Lady Patriots had what it would take to come back from a 6-2 deficit after four innings Friday.

Tracy Brandenburg's grand slam Tracy Brandenburg's grand slam homer capped off a six-run fifth-inning rally as Brantley stormed back to claim an 8-7 victory over DeLand's Lady Buildogs in the district title game at Lake Mary High.

"It takes a lot to come back the way these kids did today." Lake Brantley coach Renny Betris said. "They were determined to keep the raily going in the fifth inning and never stopped believing they could come back."

The hard-hitting DeLand team pounded lumps on the softball in the lirst three innings as the Lady as accred six runs on 12 hits.

DeLand took a 2-0 lead in the top of the first on consecutive RBI doubles by Shawn Lane and C.C. Hayden. Brawn Lane and C.C. Haysen.
Brantley came back to tie it in the bottom half as Kim Waln led off with a triple and scored on Niki Burke's groundout and Brandenburg risped a two-out triple to right and scored on Heather Meyer's base hit.

The Lady Buildage then took a 6-2 lead with three runs in the second and Woodcock then scored when Heather Eckman singled off Burke's glove.

In the third, Hayden and Kim Reeves both singled and Hayden accred on Wyche's double to right center. Brantley's defense then came to life when Brandenburg fielded Maggio's grounder and threw her out at first and first baseman Sherry "Ice" Asplen then gunned down Reeves trying to accre for what turned out to be a key double play.

double play.

While DeLand built its lead, the Lady Patriota went down in order in the second, third and fourth innings.

In the bottom of the 18th, Mandy Matthdesen flow out for the first out but plack hitter Michelle Weston then singled to center and surved all the tray up to third on an auditable error. Finch latter Angle May Subserved with a fly ball to center but Weston couldn't score on the play and DeLand was one out away from getting out of the inning unscathed. That's when the floodgates

Asplen, who had the winning hit in Thursday's semifinal against Seminole, got the rally going as she lined a single to center to drive in.
Weston. Wain followed with a base hit to center and Burke looked at four bad ones for a walk that loaded the bases.
Kim Robinson kept the tuning alive as she drilled a single to left to score Aspiem cutting DeLand's lead to 6-4.

Brandenburg then stepped up and unleaded a deep shot over the right fielder's head and the speedy freshman dashed around the bases for a grand slam homer that gave the Lady Patriots as 8-8 lead.

"It was the partiest pitch for me to go to right." Brandschung and. "It was on the outside corner and fat. I now before that the right fielder was playing challen and I was just larging to jet the right pitch."

LeLand made a final run in the top of the seventh but it was turned away by an excellent catch by left fielder Laura Davis.

With one out, Lawarda Whitmere singled to right and Chiquita White reached on an error, Lane then hit a hard shot at second baseman Walls but the ball took a wicked hop and west for a base hit, accepting Whitmere and trimming Brantley's lead to 8-7. With runners on second and third, Brantley intentionally walled, much to the chaptin of the DeLand faithful, the hard-bitting Hayden to lead the bitter. Reeves then hit a sinking itner in full territory that Dovis me up on said made a chaestring catch near the fines for the final out.

Torres' Hit Hands Mabie First District Title

Special To The Herald ST. CLOUD - Friday night's Class 3A-6 District Baseball Tournament championship baseball game between Oviedo and St. Cloud figured to be very close. The two teams split a pair of regular season games and came into the contest with a great deal of respect for each other. "It should be a helluva a game." Oviedo coach Howard Mabie said beforehand.

And it was. Frank Torres singled home Mark Merchant with the winning run in the bottom of the eight inning as Oviedo won its first district title in 10 years under Mabie with a 3.2 victory over St. Cloud before 277 fans at St. Cloud High School.

"I feel just great," said a jubilent Mable after the game. "I've been waiting for this for 10 years and the wait was well worth it."

Oviedo will move to 3A-3 Region competition Tuesday at the University of Central Florida. Game time is at 7:00 p.m. Mable said the opponent is not known.

"We had plenty of chances to win," said Bulldog coach Frank Fields. "We just didn't get the big hit when we needed it.'

The Bulldogs took the lead in the top of the first inning. With two away senior Shaun Purdy belted a Scott Bowers' pitch over the left field fence for hid eighth homer of the year.

The 'Dogs added a run in the top of the third inning. Senior centerfielder Dave Best led off with a single to left and stole second. He moved to third when Bowers was called for a balk. The Bulldogs then tried to execute the suicide squeeze, but when Purdy missed the pitch Best was caught in a run-down for an apparent easy out. However, Oviedo third baseman Bobby Bradley tried to throw the ball to catcher Mike Sink but it hit Best in the back allowing him to score and give St. Cloud a 2-0 lead.

The Lions tied up the game in the bottom of the third. Mcrchant was hit by pitcher Larry Heisler and stole second. Belflower singled to right scoring Merchant. Belflower took second when right fielder Joe Soltys bobbled the ball. Mike Sink followed with a double to left center that plated Belflower and tied the game at

In the fourth inning, both coaches made pitching changes. Purdy replaced Heisler while Craig Duncan took over for Bowers.

The Buildogs had chances to go ahead in the fourth, fifth, and seventh but could not produce the clutch hit as Duncan supplied the key pitch.

Purdy, meanwhile, was keeping the Lions bats in check with six strike-

St. Cloud's best chance, however, came in the top of the eighth inning. Soltys led off with a walk and Heisler bunted him to second. Designated hitter Rob Lindsey then singled to center but Soltys was held up at third due to Merchant's strong arm. Best ended the threat when he lined out to Bradley.

Oviedo scored the winning run in the bottom of the frame. Merchant reached base when second baseman Mike Wold overthrew first on a slow grounder. Merchant then swiped his second base of the night. Belflower was then intentionally passed to get to Torres.

Torres responded with a base hit up the middle. Best threw the ball to the plate but Merchant beat the throw on a close play.

"I saw it (the pitch) all the way."Torres said. "I was just trying to make contact."

For Mable, whose clubs have consistently won OBC titles but have come up short in the district, it fulfilled a decade of waiting.

"It feels so good to finally win it ." Mable said. "I've been close quite a few times and it feels just great to finally win it."

Johnson Tosses Finesse To Flatten Dodgers, 4-1

United Press International Slow pitches are winning Joe Johnson quick recognition.

A 24-year-old right-hander who has emerged as a competent starting pitcher for Atlanta. Johnson prospers when he avoids a power game. Friday night he used his finesse to pitch the Braves to a 4-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"Last year I started out with a 4-0 record, then I went 4-4," said Johnson. "I got hit hard because I tried to be a power pitcher and I'm not. Now, I'm just trying to

Washington homered to back improve to 2-1. Tim Raines

Jesse Barfield broke out of a three-week alump slowly, but in a big way Friday night. He started in typical fashion, striking out in his first two at-bats against Baltimore starter Storm Davis. He singled in the seventh, but Davis picked him off. "I wasn't too encouraged at that point,"

Barfleld said. Then, with two outs in the ninth and Baltimore leading 1-0. Davis hung a slider and Barfield tied the same with his first home run of the season, a blast to the left-field beachers. He won it for the Blue Jays in the tenth when he doubled home Tony Fernandes to give Toronto a 2-1 victory.

"I know I have to start relaxing at the plate," said Barfield, who was batting .211 with just one

RBI entering the game, "This road trip may be my chance to get back on the track. I think I made big strides tonight."

Barfield, who batted .289 and hit 27 home runs last season, was beginning to feel self-conscious about his sluggish start.

He decided to skip dinner one night last week because, as he said Friday, "I weighed 204 and was hitting .198 so I didn't want anybody to say I wasn't hitting my weight." The Orioles had gone ahead in the eighth when Alan Wiggins singled and took second on an outfield error. He went to third on Lee Lacy's grounder to winning pitcher Mark Eichhorn, 2-0, and scored on Cal Ripken's sacrifice fly to left.

Eichhorn had replaced Doyle Alexander, who had pitched seven scoreless innings for the Blue Jays.

Tony Fernandes singled to start the Toronto 10th, took second on an infield out, and scored when Barfield looped a double into short right

"All I could do when I hit that last ball was hope," said Barfleid. "I thought it had a chance the way Wiggins was going back." Don Aase, 1-2, replaced Davis after Barfield's home run and pitched into the 10th. Rich Bordi

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Peete Takes Lead At Houston; Littler's 7 Birdies Top Legends

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (UPI) - Calvin Peete, whose consistent play has him leading the Houston Open by two strokes, is unsure what will win the $500,000 event. 'Whatever it is, I hope I have it." he said.

Peete, who shared the first-round lead with Wayne Grady, shot a 70 Friday to take a 9-under-par 135 into Saturday's third round.

Grady. Nick Faldo and Tom Watson are all at 7-under 137 followed by Mike Sullivan and Jay Haas at 138. Sullivan shot a course-record 63 to help him go from 3-over to 6-under.

Masters champion Jack Nicklaus, who shot a par-72 Thursday, shot a 73 Friday and needed a birdle on No. 18 to finish at 1-over-par 145 and make the cut.

At Austin, Tex., Gene Littler made seven birdies Friday and then turned things over to partner Don January for some late-round support for a 9-under-par 61 that gave them a two-shot lead midway through the Legends of Golf senior's event.

At St. Petersburg, Lori Garbacz tied the tournament record with a 64 Friday for a two-stroke lead after two rounds of the $200,000 S&H Classic.

Year honors in 1979, displayed a constant right-to-left hook over the 6,013-yard Pasadena layout. She sank four birdies on each side after an opening-round 70 to stand at 10-under-par 134.

Allison Finney and 1986 money leader Pat Bradley each followed a 69 with a 67 to share second place at 136.

Allison Wins 11th Starting Pole

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (UPI) - Bobby Allison led second-round qualifying to nail down the 11th starting position for Sunday's Sovran 500 Winston Cup race at Martinsville Speedway.

Allison on Friday turned in a fast lap of 89.312 mph in his Buick, just ahead of Kyle Petty, who drove his Ford an average lap speed of 88.965 mph around the .526-mile oval. Jody Ridley earned the 13th starting spot with a speed of 88.935 mph in a Pontiac, followed by Tommy Ellis in a Chevrolet and Harry Gant, also in a Chevrolet.

Tim Richmond will start on the pole for Sunday's race. after turning a track-record speed of 90.716 mph in first-round qualifying Thursday. Darrell Waltrip will start second in Sunday's race, followed by Dale Earnhardt. Ricky Rudd, Rusty Wallace, Geoff Bodine, Terry Labonte, Richard Petty, Bill Elliott and Joe Ruttman.

The Sovran 500 is to begin at 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

Canadiens, Rangers Post Wins

United Press International

The spate of upsets in the early going of the playoffs set people to wondering if the Stanley Cup would go to some brash, young team.

Now, after Friday night's games, the tide may be turning for some very traditional, established teams.

The Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers, rivals since the NHL had only six teams, moved a step closer Friday night to a showdown in the Wales Conference final for the right to play for the Cup.

Each team took a 3-2 lead in its best-of-seven Cup quarterfinal Friday night and can advance with a victory Sunday.

The Canadiens defeated the Hartford Whalers 5-3 at the Montreal Forum, and the Rangers downed the Washington Capitals 4-2 at the Capital Centre.

Burger King Takes First Place

Forest City Burger King took over sole possession of second place in the Seminole Softball Club Hawks Division this past weekend with a 7-3 victory over Winter Springs Charite's Angels.

Burger King improved to 5-1 for the second half with the win and remains one game behind the unbeaten Forest City Gators. The loss dropped Charite's Angels two games

Burger King had 13 hits in the game led by Christine Riese who had a single and double and drove in two runs. Sandy Adams and Nicole Gorzka also added two hits and drove in one run each while Allison Gorzka. Nicole Rathbun and Rachelle Poppe contributed two hits each.

April Manning had the hot bat for Charlie's Angels with a double and triple while Susan Willia added a pair of singles.

Wilander Advances To Quarters

MONTE CARLO - Top-sesded Mets Wilander defea Yugoslavia's Sloboden Zivolinovic 6-1, 6-4 to advance to the quarterfinals of the $405,000 Monte Carlo Open tennis

Other third round winners included Andres Gos Joakim Nystrom, Fernando Luna, Stefan Edberg, Yan Noah, Ronald Agener and Jakob Masset. Agener upost Jimmy Arias while Hissort surpr Agreen Krickstein.

Price Wins 3, Hughes Sets High Jump Mark

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer
Oviedo High's girls track team has about as much depth as the Louisiana State basketball team had after a bout with chicken pox. But, while Ken Kroog's Lady Lions don't have the quantity of other teams, they have a pair of quality athletes in Kelly Price and Suzanne Hughes.

Price won three events and Hughes set a school record in the high jump Thursday night in the 3A-6 District Championships at Bishop Moore High in Orlando.

The top four finishers in each of Thursday's events qualify for the regional meet Thursday at the University of Florida in Gainesville. Bishop Moore's girls won the district meet with 85 points followed by Kissimmee Osceola at 80. Price and Hughes combined for 33 of Oviedo's 38 points.

Price, a junior, soured to first place in the long tump with a leap of 17-2, and continued her district dominance in the hurdles by winning the 110 highs in 16.1 and the 330 lows with a time of 46.6.

"Kelly (Price) ran two good races but her times weren't as good because she was running into the wind," Kroog said. "I think she has a good chance to go to state in all three events."

Track/Field

Hughes, only a freshman, cleared 5-2 to take first place in the high jump and also broke the school record of 5-1 that she had tied just last week.

"Hughes has been real consistent all year," Kroog said of Hughes. "She was at 5-0 most of the year and went up an inch last week and another inch this week. She's really coming along well."

Hughes also qualified for the regionals in the 440 dash as she finished third with a time of 63.8.

Price and Hughes also ran legs on the 440 relay team which qualified for regionals by taking third at 52.6. Joining Price and Hughes on that team were Michelle Landau and Sonja Washington.
WRIGHT BROTHERS FLY HIGH

The Wright Brothers, senior Bubba and sophomore Karl, were flying high once again Thursday as both turned in excellent performances at the 3A-6 District Champi-

Oviedo took third place in the meet with 62 points with Occools Kissimmee running away with the title with 104.

Karl Wright qualified for regionals in four events including a school-record tying performance in the 330 intermediate hurdles. Wright won the 330 hurdles with a time of 39.5. "And he could have done better but he didn't run very well from the last hurdle to the finish line," Kroog said.

Karl Wright also took second in the 120 highs at 16.3 and third in the long jump at Bubba Wright, running in his first meet after being sidelined for two weeks by an injury, took first place in the 220 dash with a time of 23.2 and also qualified in the 100 meters as he took third at 11.7.

The Wrights also combined with James Stewart and Robb Hughes to win the mile relay with a time of 3:32.5.

"It was a three-way dead heat." Kroog said of the mile relay. "All three of us (Oviedo, Jones and Osceola) finished together but they checked all the clocks and we had the best time."

Also qualifying for regionals for the Lions was Stewart in the high jump (fourth at 5-10), James Walker in the triple jump (second at 39-11%). Hughes in the discus (third at 128-5), and the 440 relay team of Pete Lingard, Mark Stewart, Willie Pauldo and Fred Hill which finished third at 46.4.

Spud Webb was cut by the Pistons last summer. Friday night, he played a key role in ending Detroit's season.

Webb sank a pair of free throws with three seconds left in the second overtime to help the Atlanta Hawks climinate Detroit from the NBA playoffs with a 114-113 victory at Pontiac, Mich.

Atlanta, which defeated Detroit 3-1 in the best-of-five series, advanced to the second round for the first time since 1979. The Hawks open a best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal series Sunday in Boston against the Celtics.

In the other game Friday, the Dallas Mavericks eliminated the Utah Jazz with a 117-113 triumph.

Saturday night, the Houston Rockets host the Denver Nuggets in the opener of their best-of-seven Western Conference semifinal series.

On Sunday, the only remaining first-round best-of-five series concludes in Philadelphia, with the Washington Bullets and 76ers tied with two victories each. Also Sunday, the NBA champion Los Angeles Lakers open their best-of-seven Western Conference semifinal at home against the Maver-

Webb, at 5-foot-7 the league's smallest player, was cut by Detroit after a rookie camp tryout. With six seconds left in the first overtime, the rookie from North Carolina State missed 1 of 2 from the line to send the game into another extra period tied 103-103.

With Detroit leading 113-112, Webb drove the lane on Joe Dumars and ran straight into Kelly Tripucka, who was called for a foul. Webb then swished both the game-tying and game-winning shots.

Detroit was but of timeouts, and Kent Benson inbounded the ball to Earl Cureton, whose shot from just beyond halfcourt hit the backboard and banged off the front of the rim as the buzzer sounded.

"Oh no, I wasn't nervous," said Webb, who has said he has no ill feeling toward Detroit for cutting him. "It's big pressure and I love to be in that type of situation."

Webb finished with 9 points. Atlanta's Dominique Wilkins led all scorers with 38, including 10 in the third quarter, and Randy Wittman added 29.

The loss did not sit well with Detroit. "That's not the kind of call that Should decide a great ball game." said Kelly Tripucka, who stood in Webb's way when he drove the lane and was

Detroit got just 6 points from the three substitutes it used, and that lack of depth wore out the Pistons.

"(Webb) is so little they don't want to hurt him and he plays on it and he knows it." said Isaiah Thomas, who led Detroit with 30 points. "When you play a game like we did, it's hard for anyone to lose." Bill Laimbeer added 27 points for the Pistons and Tripucka had 24.

At Salt Lake City. Sam Perkins scored 29 points and Brad Davis tied a postsesson record by hitting five 3-point goals to send Dallas into the second round. The Mavericks captured the best-of-five series 3-1 to earn the right to face the Lakers in the second round.

Mark Aguirre added 28 points for Dallas and Rolando Blackman 20 before he fouled out. Perkins also grabbed 12 rebounds.

Dallas used a 12-1 run late in the third quarter and early in the fourth to grab a 93-81 lead. The Mavericks then slowed the tempo to run out the clock on Utah.

Utah, playing without scoring leader Adrian Dantley for the fifth straight game, received 24 points from Thurl Bailey. Bobby Hansen added 22 for the Jazz. Mark Eaton 20 and 12 rebounds.

Lyman also got a pair of first places from Jeannine Gauvin as she threw a personal best 37-61/2 in the shot put and won the discus with a throw of 122-4.

"I was not satisfied with the long jump," Jones said. "I want to do whatever it takes to win state."

In the mile, Penick took control from the time the gun went off until the finish as he was not pushed by anyone except himself. Penick's time of 4:18.7 is a season's best by almost four seconds.

"He (Penick) needed to run something close to what he did in state last year." Seminole assistant Sid Blackwell said. "He ran the splits that he wanted to but still needs to get his last lap down a little lower.

Penick also ran the 880 anchor on the first place mile medley relay and completed a tough distance triple with a third in the two mile at 9:53.6.

"I ran the triple (mile, medley anchor, two mile) for the workout, but also because if something happens to the medley I can come back and run the two mile and hope to pick up some points for the team,"

Penick said. Joining Penick on the medley team, which finished in a meet record time 3:31.7, were Pat

Davis and Dwavne Willis on the 220 legs and Brown on the 440.

Brown also ran legs on the first place 440 and mile relay teams. Brown combined with Willis, Eric Martin and Davis to post a meet record 41.7 in the 440 relay and the same team won the mile relay with a time of 3:21.4.

"I felt pretty good but my hamstrings were a little tight from not working out." Brown. who missed the Seminole Jones also took first place in Athletic Conference meet. said. "I can feel a little pain in my have to work some on my flexibility."

The 'Noles also got a first place in the 100 meter dash from Davis who once again outran Mainland's Rod Johnson. Davis finished in 10.6 compared to 11.0 for Johnson. Martin, a junior, continued to dominate the open quarter as he won with a time of 48.4. Seminole also got a first place in the 220 dash as Joe Holden ran a time of 23.0.

One disappointment for Seminole came when hurdler Andre Jackson reinjured the hamstring that kept him out for a good portion of the season. Jackson did qualify in the 120 high hurdles with a first place time of 14.6 but his status is questionable for the region meet.

While Seminole High turned in a strong meet. Lake Mary's Rams did not do as well as they would have liked because most of the Rams' top sprinters were out sick.

The highlight of the meet for Lake Mary came in the two mile where it placed three runners in the regional meet.

Senior Ken Rohr pulled away from the rest of the field in the late going and took first place with a time of 9:38.4. Sophomore Eric Petersen passed Seminole's Penick in the last 220 to take second place at 9:52.7.

The big surprise for the Rams though came when sophomore Brad Smith outkicked Lake Howell's Anthony Howe for fourth place and the final regional bid. Smith finished with a personal best time of 10:07.

"Brad (Smith) has come a long way." Lake Mary coach Mark McGee said. "He's knocked almost two minutes off his time in the two mile during cross hill. Reid struck out 13 and country season."

Lake Brantley's strength was in the field events where Bucky Chambers took first in the shot put (46-2) and second in the discus (133-0). The Patriots also qualified Jim Conchelos and Mark Bousquet in the shot and Jeff Petersen in the discus. Mark Sepe qualified in 440 and 220 for Brantley while Sam Sears made it in the 330 hurdles and Chris

Ross in the mile. Senior Dylan Rowe soared over a personal best 13-8 to win the pole vault for Lake Howell's only first place of the meet. Along with the mile medley and mile relays. Lake Howell also qualified Anthony Howe and Chuck Buster in the mile, Brent Springhart in the 880 and Randy Nixon in the 330 hurdles.

Lyman's young performers continued to improve as the Greyhounds qualified freshman Darren Marshall in both the 120 high and 330 intermediate hurdles with Victor Farrier qualifying in the 120 highs. Senior high jumper Ralph Philpott cleared 6-9 for first place while Lyman also qualified Oscar Wilder in the long jump. Mike Mohler in the 880 and two of the Anton Reid did the job at the plate and on the mound Friday night as he was 4 for 4 with four RBIs and pitched a one-hitter as Knights of Columbus downed Smitty's Mower, 12-5, in Sanford Junior League action at Chase Park.

Knights of Columbus improved to 2.2 with the win while Smitty's fell to 0-4. Moose leads the league with a 3-0 record.

Among Reid's four hits were two doubles, a triple and a single and he also scored three runs. Tim Thomas and Demetrius Presley added two singles apiece while Henry June belted a two-run double in the six-run first inning.

in going the distance on the walked eight. The only hit Smitty's got off Reid was Calvin Donaldson's one-out single in the bottom of the fifth.

In Friday's second game at Chase Park, Ball Motor Line ralifed for four runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to pull out its first win of the season, 13-12, over Kiwanis.

Will Reno led off the seventh with a double for Ball Motor and Mike Hartman and Ken Foster followed with consecutive RBI doubles. Paul Rivera then drew a walk and the runners moved up a base on a wild pitch. Carlos Smith then smacked a single to drive in Foster with the tying run and Rivera with the winning when Gib Lundquist slapped a single to right and Marty Martin bunted him to second. Darren Boyesen's pop fly fell among three players in short right field to plate Lundquist.

The 15-player assembly line was next. Schmit started Lake Mary's second with a double into the right field corner. Overstreet walked Ryan Lisle and Brett Molle to load the bases. Neal Harris cracked a single to left center to chase home Schmit and Lisle for a 2.2 deadlock.

Lyman coach Bob McCullough then pulled Overstreet in favor of tunior Hovis, who turned in a strong 2% innings while picking up the victory in Thursday's semifinal win over DeLand.

Hovis was not as effective Friday. He faced nine batters. yielded three hits, three walks and one hit bataman. The first two hitters he faced provided the spark for inning's longevity.

T.J. Sutton rapped a ground ball near the third base bag. Lyman's Stevens stepped on third for the force but his return throw to first was low and got past Overstreet.

Hovis then jumped ahead of No. 9 hitter Doug Bandy, two strikes and one ball, but even-tually walked him on a 3-2 pitch eload the bases. Letterio, who had three hits, followed with a bouncer up the middle to send home two more runs for a 4-2 advantage. Bandy and Letterio moved to second and third on the throw to the plate.

Kelly Hysell followed with a fly ball to right field to plate Bandy. Pinckes crushed a double to left center to send home Letterio. McCullough then walked Schmit to reload the bases but Lisle foiled the move with a single over third base for another run and an 7.2 bulge.

Hovis then walked Molle and hit Harris, who had three ribbies, which forced in another run. McCullough went back to Overstreet who walked Sutton to push across the final run for a 9-2 advantage. Bandy flied out to left field to end the inning.

'When we all get loose at the plate, that's when baseball really becomes fun." Lisic said about the nine-run outburst. "We had a lot of fun in the that inning."

Lake Mary knocked out Overstreet again in the third. Letterio singled up the middle and state second. One out later. Pinckes walked and McCullough called for lefty Oswald. Schmit drew a free pass to lead the bases and Lies singled up the middle for a 10-2 lead. Molle drew a bases-loaded walk for the last run before Hovis returned to start a 1-3-3 double play with Harris' grounder to retire the

This win is nice for the school since its the first district championship. But we went more down the road. We want a state chempionship.

— Miko Schmit

Schmit, meanwhile, retired the side in order in the third before being nicked for a run in the fourth. Stevens stroked a one-out single to left and one batter later Martin delivered him with a single to center.

Schmit retired the side in order in the fifth and sixth innings before Lyman got to him in the seventh by sending nine men to the plate. Martin singled up the middle to start the outburst and Boyesen walked. Hysell, who moved to third base when Pinckes strained his hamstring, turned in a defensive gem when he speared Overstreet's hard one-hopper and tossed him

Burton followed with a single to right field to score Martin and Boyesen. When the ball rolled st Sutton, Burton reced to third. Brock grounded into a fielder's choice for the second out but Schmit walked John Bane and Stevens to load the bases. Schmit, though, reached back and struck out p Jim Lamb to secure the title.

Experts Take A New Look At Abuse Of Elderly

By Patricia Boad United Press International

Coping with the nation's battered and neglected elderly is a subject of intense debate among researchers, who disagree on the reasons the problem exists, but acknowledge it is intensifying with the graying of America.

Traditionally, experts have viewed the problem as one of an overworked caregiver pushed to the limit by a dependent, nagging, demanding elderly person — a flare-up that ends with a slap in the face or a hard shove.

The reality may be very different.

"We found that actually, in quite a large number of cases, the abusers were rather dependent on the people they were abusing. Karl Pillemer, author of Elder Abuse: Conflict in the Family" and a researcher with the Family Research Laboratory at the University of New Hampshire, said.

"Two-thirds of the elder abusers were financially dependent on the person they were abusing. In the Wayne State University study, financial dependency of the abuser on the abused person was a reliable indicator of abuse," he said. In 27 of 42 cases studied by Pillemer, the abusers were heavily dependent people "who could barely meet their own needs." The elders allowed them to stay because they felt a responsibility to care for them.

In one such case a woman opened up her house to her son and daughter-in-law and moved into a small apartment above them. They paid no rent and she did the laundry, cleaning and child care. After a short period, the daughter-in-law become very abusive toward the elderly woman and the situation worsened as the young woman's marriage fell apart.

"Typically, the abused elderly person is caring for an alcoholic or mentally ill child or an ill husband," Pillemer said.

He said in another case an elderly woman cared for her son, who believed he was Mohammed Ali and would challenge her to box with him. The woman stayed because she felt responsible.

Said another elderly woman in a similar situation, "If she had cancer I would stay with her. How is this different?"

But Suzanne Steinmetz, a researcher at the University of Delaware and author of "Duty Bound: Family Care and Elder Abuse," believes the majority of abuse is delivered by caregivers under stress.

"Everything is a battle of wits." Steinmetz said. "Within a context of 24 hours a day contact, it's understandable. They have very few resources. It's a powder keg just waiting to go off."

Lee Pearson, assistant manager of AARP's criminal justice division, agrees. "Things snap. The person who never expects to be the abuser finds himself delivering emotional abuse and sometimes physical abuse," she said.

"It has to do with the burden of care. The daughter is the only person responsible for the elder's care. Families used to share the burden," Pearson said.

Said one caregiver of an encounter with her elderly mother, "I ripped her dress off her when she refused to get ready to go out. I was sorry afterward to think that I had let her get to me. But she just refused to get ready."

Rosalie Wolfe, associate director of the Family Research Center at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center, straddles the views of Pearson, Steinmetz and Pillemer on the reasons behind the abuse.

"Our findings showed there is indeed an overburdened caretaker and a dependent victim. but that is more closely related to active neglect. The physical abuse is perpetrated by the more dependent type, with mental illness and alcoholism present." Wolfe said.

All agree that one factor is consistent previous family violence levels.

"One of the most consistent associations is that people who have been abused themselves or have seen their parents abusive toward one another are substantially more violent as adults themselves," Pillemer said.

When you divide samples into abusing and non-abusing caregivers, the elders' physical abuse was highly predictive of the family abuse. Some of the caregivers I talked with would say, 'Mother always slapped, screamed or threw things," Steinmetz said.

"Now, when Mom hits the daughter, the daughter will alug her right back. The only factor that was significant (in the study) was the elder's use of violence," Steinmetz said.

While patterns of family violence appear to contribute to elder abuse, it is by far the smallest category of violence in the home. Some hold the "older and wiser" theory, but others say the reason is that it simply isn't as accepted as hitting a child or a spouse.

"We live in a violent society. Close to 90 percent of people have hit their children when they were growing up. Most approve of the physical punishment of children. Many approve spouse violence," Pillemer said.

"It's much more of a deviant act to stike an old person. There is no acceptable way to be violent toward an old person. There isn't the popular approval," Pillemer said.

A problem with finding the causes of the abuse is in defining what qualifies as abuse. Experts generally divide elder abuse into five different types - psychological, physical, financial, medical and neglect.

TENHARDI IN Free Lectures Offer European Concept Of Inner, Outer Body Care

Brigitto Bornhardt hoads body care program.

By Sucan Loden Morald Staff Writer

Dino Lorenzo lectures en yega.

Geneva's Dino Lorenzo says he's a teacher and seems to have found an outlet to mix teaching with the concept of "total body care."

at a new Casselberry self-improvement institute. Although Brigitte Bernhardt's European spa-style program is geared to shape up — through massage, yoga, accupuncture, nutri-tion, colonic irrigation and beauty treatments a Yuppie crowd that can afford to pamper themselves, it also offers free lectures.

Lorenzo has coordinated a lecture series featuring poditary as the topic for April 30 and breathing and movement in yoga and tai chi scheduled for 7:30 p.m. May 7.

Ms. Bernhardt, the 41-year-old founder of this "body shop" that combines beauty treatments with "hands on" medical technicians whose Florida licenses permit them to perform massages or to cleanse clients' colons using a water system, said the colon treatments are controversial.

However, she credits having had 1,100 of such treatments herself since 1978, with having restored her health following a 1973 autombile accident that in addition to crippling her body. damaged her brain, making her the victim of grand mai seizures.

Americans are embarrassed by the idea of such treatments, she said. "but once they've had one they understand. Once they've seen and once they've read. It's just the knowledge they don't have." Such treatments. Ms. Bernhardt said, are widely accepted in California, where she studied, and in Europe. "It's basically inner health." she said.

Her institute, she said, is her tribute to her recovery and Lorenzo called Ms. Bernhardt, a native of Germany, "The hub of the wheel. The nurturing center," of her enterprise, which she opened about three weeks ago.

Central Floridians, she said, are innocent about everything that is available to them.

Her emphasis is on personalized internal and external pampering and Ms. Bernhardt who is working on her master's degree in nutrition said that Lorenso, with a background as a yoga teacher, artist and musician, fits in with her concept for her institute which combines European methods with American knowledge.

A 37-year-old native of New York, Lorenzo said he has chosen to live in Geneva to be close to nature and sees nature as the ultimate healer.

He calls himself a generalist in an age of specialization and said, "The oldest idea in healing, in the medical writings, is that what's doing the healing is nature and the physician is an attendant to nature, serving that power. So I like to live near the master, nature."

"We lose track with the elemental healers, fire, earth and water," he said. "Colonic irrigation is one thing a lot of people have a problem with because they sort of carry over a Victorianism, a prudish attitude.

"But when you think about what one of the major issues is, which is the disposal of waste and toxcitity, when you think about the job of the colon, which is to do that. And then when you think, what is the most conmon thing that we use to cleanee? It's water taken internally. put on the skin, it makes a lot of what we call fundamental, overlooked common sense." to cleanse the colon with a water irrigation, he

"The two main disease in the country, heart disease and cancer, are very much rela lifestyle function — how you eat, how you think, your level os stress, do you know how to relax, how to recreate, how to play. So I think it's very significant that we're so preoccupied with it significant that we're so much of a threat by environmental pollutants, the quality of for the fast pace of life. It's really a battle."

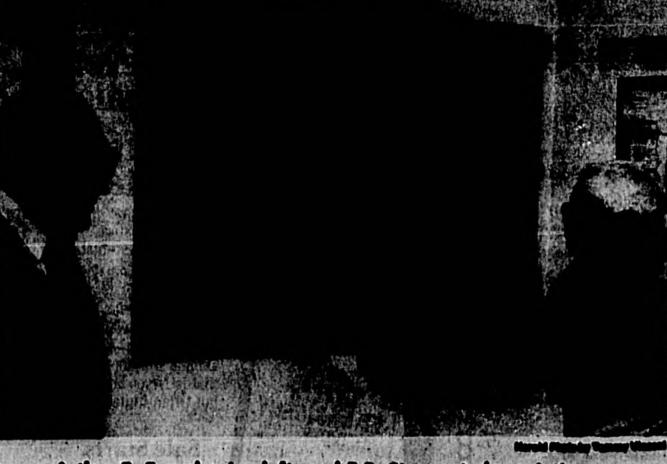

Lorenzo said it would be hard to say if physicians approved of his approach to health, although he has held seminars for some doctors. The development of such a lifestyle of self involvement is "for the person who is open. Knowledge is infinite, so no one knows it all nobody knows half of it, or one-tenth of it. Young Thieves Stretch Test Drive Into 3-Week Joy Ride

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are retired. We had a second car that we no longer needed, so we decided to sell it.

I parked the car on our front lawn with a "For Sale" sign on the windshield. During the noon hour, a young man rang our doorbell and said he was looking for a second car for his wife. (She was waiting in their car, in our driveway.) I went out, unlocked the door and started the engine. He asked the price and seemed interested. Then he asked if he could drive it around the block. I said he could, so he motioned for his wife to come. He asked her if she would like to drive. She got under the wheel, and he got in on the passenger side. She backed the car into the street. and they drove away.

Thirty minutes later, they had not returned, so I called the police. A policeman came out and checked the car this couple

Thanks to Professionals . . . I Enjoy Every Minute of Retirement

Going to the dentist used to be a traumatic experience for most people, but a visit to Sanford Dental Centre has a number of benefits, not the least of which is a friendly, relaxed atmosphere in which complete dental care is provided by an experienced professional staff at modest fees.

All efforts are made to please the patients and to save their time without curtailing the service. Sanford Dental Centre offers all phases of general dental care in a locally-owned and -operated dental health center in the Seminole Centre.

All patients receive dental exams, get estimates which are explained, and no work is started until they make sure the patient fully understands it. They offer work in caps, crowns and bridges, dentures and partials, relines and repairs in which same day service is available, oral surgery, implants, endodontics, restorative, cleaning and diagnostic/hygiene services. The work is done by experienced dentists in a completely equipped group practice setting.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY APRIL 27, 1986

Financial conditions will be favorable in the year ahead. You will continue to make money from situations that are producing for you now, as well as from an exciting new enterprise.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If others are not in complete accord with your ideas or suggestions today, don't take it as a personal affront. Let all think for themselves. Major changes are ahead for Taurus in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's best today not to use something belonging to another unless you have this person's permission. After you have consent, don't abuse what you borrow.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today you will not appreciate being dictated to by another. So that your day won't be spoiled, avoid the company of aggressive

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Should you find yourself in need of assistance today, don't expect others to instantly drop what they are doing and rush to help you. Be self-sufficient.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You could create a problem foryourself today if you poke your nose into something that is none of your business. Don't let your curiosity trigger trouble.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Where major issues are concerned, you and your mate will see eye-to-eye today. But angry words could ensue over something trivial.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're an exceptionally keen observer today and you'll easily spot faults in others. But to avoid trouble, keep your observations to yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Financial involvements with friends today should be clearly spelled out in advance or someone may end up getting the short end.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Companions will resent it today if you place your needs and interests above those of everyone else. Try not to be too selfserving.

YOUR BIRTHDAY APRIL 28, 1986

Partnership arrangements out to be the luckiest by far.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Bolder measures than usual are required today to accomplish your ambitious aims. You'll emerge victorious if you aren't afraid to take a chance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A condition that has had negative overtones will be altered in your favor today. Someone other than vourself will be the moving CANCER (June 21-July 22) Something that you cannot do on your own can be achieved today with the assistance of a competent partner. It's a person with whom you've worked with on two past occasions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Special rewards are in the offing at this time for work well done. Instead of merely doing what the boss requests of you, do a bit more and do it well.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you are fortunate enough to get an invitation today to go someplace where you can meet new people, by all means go. Happy surprises are in store.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's might not have worked out too important in this period that the off if you believe them to be well for you in the past, but the whole family pulls together opposite will be true in the year where your financial interests ahead. Joint ventures will turn are concerned. Collectively, you can generate an upswing. SCORPSO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

Today you will need active outlets for your mental and physical energies. Get out and move around, but don't tie yourself down to one place for

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Conditions for adding to your carnings are extremely favorable for you today. If you catch the scent of something that could mean money for you, ferret it

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

You have sound managerial qualities today. Be resolute in your decisions, and don't back

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Although you'll want to help someone today, unusual conditions will make it difficult. To do so, you'll have to make this person feel that it's he who is helping you. PINCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Something fruitful could develop today by getting together socially with one who can help further your commercial plans.

Don't use a hard sell.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're in a strong position at this time to add to your material resources. Opportunities will develop in two different directions.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

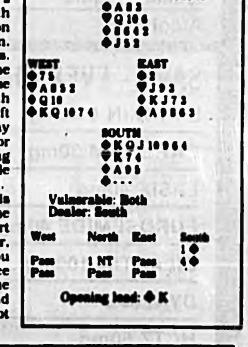

Suppose you were an undercover agent sneaking into a nudist colony. Naturally you'd strip. When you're declarer with plenty of trumps and entries to both hands, try to remember to do the same thing. It can't hurt and may help.

Declarer trumped the opening lead and played ace and a diamond. West continued clubs. Declarer ruffed and played another diamond. When that suit failed to split, declarer eventually had to play the heart suit for himself. Because of the unfavorable location of the heart jack, he had to lose two heart tricks and his contract. Stripping the dummy of the club suit before playing diamonds would have solved declarer's problem. Here is the correct sequence of plays. At trick two, declarer plays a low spade to dummy's switch to hearts.

eight. He then trumps a second club. A spade to dummy's ace is followed by a ruff of dummy's last club. Only then does South play ace and a diamond, on which West plays the queen. The defenders are now helpless. East cannot overtake with the king and play the jack because that will make dummy's fourth | 0 010 diamond a winner. If West is left | OKQ1074 on lead, he must either play away from the ace of hearts or must play another club, allowing declarer to ruff in dummy while discarding a loser from his hand. Notice that this strategy is correct because you welcome the defenders' attacking the heart suit. If your hearts were weaker. like A-x-x opposite J-x-x, you would play differently, since your best hope would be that the diamond suit was splitting and that the defenders would not

Elephants Have Fun, Too

By Mark Schwed UPI TV Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) - In America, elephants are peanut-gobbling zoo dwellers. In their natural habitat of Thailand, elephants don't eat peanuts. They play soccer — and very well, thank you.

If elephants as athletes strikes some as a bad joke, seeing is believing when PBS presents "Elephant Games" (airing April 28, 10:30-11 p.m. EST).

Every November in northeast Thailand, more than 100 elephants are gathered for one of the most unusual sporting evente in the world. It is known them in the Elegant Postival. and it attracts quite a tourist

Architect Jerry Mills

Strong Sense Of History Fused With Vision Of Future

By Karen Talley Herald Staff Writer

Architect Jerry Mills' affinity for the past does not preclude his turning squarely to face the future. The Sanford Historic Preservation Board chairman demonstrated that in February, when he went against a board majority to support Seminole County's "contemporary" plan for a new Sanford library.

During the city commission meeting at which the historic board's decision was overruled, Mills said he was "comfortable" with the project, saying the structure should be "grandfathered" into the district due to its site plans having been undertaken prior to the board's formation in October.

Mills, 37, played a role in Sanford's adopting its historic district ordinance last fall, a part for which he is well-qualified. The one-time Orlando Historic Preservation Board chairman holds a master's degree in architecture from the University of Central Florida and is a vice-president of the Winter Park architectural firm of Burke and Bales Associates, Inc.

With Mills' input, the ordinance
City Attorney William Colbert drafted set the historic district's boundries, created the historic board and mandated property owners within the district's confines seek board approval for any proposed exterior alterations to their structures.

Mills applied the term "all encompassing" to the ordinance's requirements as well as the board's application of them.

To elucidate the point, he cited the project of fellow historic board member and architect Gerry Gross, who is knee deep in plaster and paint inside the building adjoining the West First Street Dollar General store. It will be divided into a gourmet food shop and bookstore. (The Dollar Store building will be divided into about 10 stores.)

Mills said before his colleague stripped a layer of paint from the buildings' exterior, the historic district ordinance mandated his caming before his own board for project review. Gross readily complied, although the mandatory review delayed the project 30 to 60 days.

Mills said if anything, his "no advantages" viewpoint should be applied to Gross "more than anyone" due to his historic board membership.

"The board will not even think of playing favorites and Gerry agrees." Mills said. "In fact, we might be more strict with members who bring projects to us for review because they're the ones setting examples for others to follow."

Approximately 800 others may soon have to follow suit for exterior modification review if Mills can persuade city commissioners to add 10 new streets to the downtown historic district. As opposed to the present district's primarily commercial structures, the adjoining area proposed by Mills is predominantly residential. It runs from Third to 13th Streets, between Sanford and French Avenues.

Mills said a request for a $10,000 survey to enable the proposed area's listing in the National Register of Historic Places will be included in the June budget proposal he'll submit for the historic board's 1986-87 funding.

As for the purveyers of this potential district, Mills said his fellow historic board members are "definitely" up to the task. The board's fledgling status is belied by the expertise and concern its members bring to the welcome task of perpetuating Sanford's "tremendually special district and unique characteristics," Mills said.

In a word, the board's members are "fantaetic," he said.

Then again, it seems nothing less could be expected from a group of people who live and work in what Mills terms "the best place in the world.

"Sanford is blossoming," he said.
"It's obvious all around us. We've got tremendous attributes that are just beginning to be tapped."

just beginning to be tapped."

The areas Milis cited as being "on the verge of big change" are the Lake Monroe marina, the Sanford Airport and the State Road 46 corridor west of the city.

He also, however, cautioned against unsightly excesses. Of particular concern to him is frontage area along State Road, which "would be a mistake to develop industrially.

"It's people's introduction to Sanford," Milis said. The Interstate-4 exit that feeds drivers onto SR 46 brings them into the city..."And we don't want to present Sanford as an industrial etcle city."

industrial strip city."

He said SR 46 frontage "could be developed into commercial professional offices," while "heavy industrial" should be set "at least" three blocks south of the corridor.

Mills moved to Sanford from Virginia when he was five. He said his passion for the past began just three years later when he picked up an Indian arrowhead in a field off Airport Boulevard.

From then on, it became a matter of "wanting to save the past for the future," he said. "And in Sanford, we're in the enviable position of being able to do this.

"There's an excitment about the past," according to Mills, who said our predecessors were surrounded by "inventive and artistic" edifices, "not the junk we have today."

The profit of progress, he said, "spells our loss in a sense of quality."

Although the craftsman "are still out there," Mills said their prohibitive prices prevent everyman from employing their expertise.

He also said people "are starting to turn back to the value of tradition. They're discovering the sense of security that its familiarity offers."

Mills readily accepted the statement in reference to his own efforts to transport his 100-year-old 701 West Third Street residence back to the eriginal state. Although not located in the area he has proposed for historic re-districting, Mills said the three story home will easily be of historic register calibre once its renovation has been complete.

Poverty Rise No Mystery

NEW YORK — The first bright blossoms of spring could not shake the duli melancholy of the great detective.

Fernlock Holmes, distant cousin of the probably-late Sherlock Holmes, sat morosely in his tiny room on this city's Lower East Side. His long fingers tapped aimlessly on the tattered arm of the old davenport.

The detective, a specialist in economic investigations, was in one of his famous betweencase slumps. It had been nearly two months since he had been consulted at the highest levels in the matter of the missing currency, a case of such delicacy that it will be some years before I am able to report it in the public prints.

Holmes had asked me to come for a visit, hoping that some company might shake him from his doldrums.

He was wearily resisting my suggestion that we go for a walk when the knock came on the door. The great man brightened at the entry of a well-dressed man of medium build.

"Come in and sit down, my good man," Holmes said eagerly. "I see you have been to see your accountant about your taxes, gotten good news, and celebrated by dining on the excellent dim sum at Won Fat's down the street."

"Holmes, you astound me!" I ejaculated.
"Actually, sir, my records are such a mess that my accountant refuses even to look at them, but he still thinks I'm going to have to cough up thousands of dollars in penalties. An allergy to MSG keeps me away from Chinese restaurants."

"Drat!" the great man dratted. "Sit down and tell us how we can help you. Feel free to speak in front of friend Timothy, here, as he is my trusted assistant."

The man sat down on the small and uncomfortable chair that was the only alternative to the davenport and began his sad tale.

"My name, Mr. Holmes, is Jerome Finster. I enlisted in the War on Poverty the year President Johnson started it.

"As you know, we have spent trillions of dollars in the fight since. But the poverty remains.

"The problem is worst among the children. When I started almost 20 years ago, about 14 percent of our young people lived in poverty. Today, after all our efforts, that percentage has soared to 21 — a 50 percent jump in the incidence of poverty among our youth!"

Mr. Finster's earlier expression of quiet worry had given way to a wild gaze of desperation and wrath.

"Mr. Holmes, I am not a rich man. But I'll gladly pay anything I can to find out who has brought on this alarming state of affairs. I want him brought to justice!"

Holmes stared wordlessly at his distraught client, his pale-grey eyes seeming to pierce into Mr. Finater's very soul.

Suddenly the great man rose and left the room.

I exchanged a puzzled glance with our visitor. I had never known my friend to walk out on a client.

Just as suddenly Holmes reappeared, carrying a small hand-mirror done in an unfortunate floral print. He held the mirror directly in front of the startled Mr. Finster.

"I wanted you to see the culprit first-hand, Mr. Jerome Finster!" the detective said sharply.

"What?" Mr. Finster shot back. "My dear sir, you can't possibly mean ..."

"I can and I do," Holmes replied calmly as he sat back again in the old davenport. "You and others like yourself have created the very problem of which you complain.

"As you have tried to reduce poverty by making benefits more and more generous, you have increased the rewards of being poor. You have turned the rearing of illegitimate children into a money-making venture, with the not very surprising result that the practice has reached epidemic proportion.

"You have made the choice of poverty and the dole a viable alternative to work and self-support, entrapping much of a generation in a hopeless future of dependence."

The color had drained from Mr. Fineter's already pale face.

already pale face.
"You mean I, we ...?"

"You mean I, we ...?"
"Yes. you!" Holmes snapped. "As economists

My Fringe Encounter

Waiting For Lyndon LaRouche To Call

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Some years ago, when I lived on the suburban apron of New York City, I received an anguished call from the wife of a longtime friend. She said the big boob had left home the week before, permanently, she feared, to devote his life to an obscure political group he had joined.

What group? I asked.
The National Caucus of Labor
Committees, she replied.

I had never heard of it. But I remember it now because of subsequent events. The NCLC was a left-wing organization founded by a man who used a nom de plume of Lyn Marcus. His real name was Lyndon LaRouche, and, as current headlines attest, he and his group still operate on the political fringe.

now. He runs for president every four years, and fields candidates for state offices as well. Two of his followers won Democratic primary elections in illinois in March. followed by a gnashing of teeth, and the LaRouche group has suddenly become something of a national force.

It wasn't a force in 1971, however. And my friend's wife called to see if I would make some inquiries as to its purpose. I am a sucker for a weeping woman, and curious besides, so I consented on the condition that I would not be expected to argue against my friend's right to make his personal decisions.

I started the research by talking with the FBI, which, in those days, kept accounts on radical groups. I also asked for comments from the Communist Party, USA. Then I went to the NCLC itaelf: I offered my services as a volunteer, and I was invited to attend a small gathering of prospective recruits.

The meeting was held on the ground floor of a critically injured Manhattan building. Five people attended, and a man in his early 20s spoke endlessly of worlds to conquer. He said LaRouche, nee Marcus, was out to save mankind from democracy, foreign cars, economic Armageddon and the heartbreak of peoriasis.

I said I was confused about

I said I was confused about what seemed to be an anomaly in the NCLC philosophy. I said LaRouche claimed to be a Marxist, yet I had learned that he was trying to destroy the American Communist Party.

"What about it?" the speaker said.

Only Judges Can Provide Solution

The guilty sometimes go free, unpunished for their crimes against society even though the evidence seems clear.

The Constitution and the courts specify the rules and regulations by which lawenforcement agencies may operate in making arrests and obtaining evidence. Judges are bound by precedent to follow those rules and regulations.

If all the rules and regulations as set down in the law are followed scrupulously by both the prosecution and defense, a fair trial will have been assured, and it is assumed that a fair verdict will be rendered. There then would be no loopholes or technicalities for an enterprising defense attorney to use.

But it doesn't always work that way. Take the story out of Miami about a defense attorney whose philosophy is to find violations of the rules by the authorities. "The state has rules; they should live by them.'

the attorney said. And, yes, he finds those violations by authorities, which, he asserts, permits him to get almost any accused drunken driver off. He says he has never lost in more than 20 drunk-driving trials and usually is successful in avoiding going to trial - because he has discovered a violation by the authorities of the rights of the suspect.

His rationale is that anyone arrested is entitled to the best defense an attorney can provide.

An example of one of his cases: The passenger in a vehicle driven by the attorney's client was killed in a traffic accident. The driver and passenger had been drinking beer most of the evening. A blood test showed that the client's blood-alcohol level was higher than allowed by law. He was charged with driving while intoxicatedmanslaughter, a crime in Florida that carries a maximum 15-year sentence.

The attorney discovered that his client's blood sample had been taken by a nurse whose license had expired. The law requires the test to be taken by a licensed nurse. The attorney's motion to suppress the test as inadmissible evidence was granted by the court, according to the so-called exclusionary rule.

The charges were reduced and the attorney bargained for probation for his client, with the sentence to be expunged at the end of probation and his record wiped clean.

Outrageous? Yes. Unfair? It would seem to

There are no absolutes in law. The law is open to interpretation. A major abuse by law-enforcement officials or a violation of one's constitutional rights should be grounds for dismissal of a case or the inadmission of evidence. But some judges and courts carry to absurdity the dismissal or overturning of verdicts on the basis of minor technicalities.

In the case of the nurse who had taken the blood sample, but whose state-granted license had expired, was that not a trivial matter? The blood sample taken still showed that the suspect was drunk - regardless of whether the nurse had an up-to-date license.

There must be a balance to the freeing of the guilty on picayune technicalities.

There have to be sensible solutions to such questions.

Only the judges can provide those sensible solutions. For they are the ones empowered to interpret the law.

Will U.S. Continue To Live In Safe Neighborhood?

The contra vote has been delayed again, this time by cutesy congressional manipulation. Sooner or later, we will make up our mind. When we get around to it, I hope the central issue has been framed properly. Here is how I

Periodically. American generals and admirals are brought before the Congress and asked this question: "Sir, would you rather be in the military position of the United States or the Soviet Union?"

Our highest ranking officers invariably answer, "We'd rather be in the military position of the United States." They say this despite the fact that the Soviets have more troops, more tanks, more guns, more planes and a nuclear, arsenal that is at least equal to, and in some ways more potent than ours.

Why? Mostly because the Russians are surrounded by peoples who hate them - a potentially high crime area, if you will. On the other hand, we live in the geopolitical equivalent of a nice, safe, suburban neighborhood.

Consider: Within the Soviet Union itself are restive peoples. Then there are the peoples of the Soviet "satellites" - who know that they are "captive nations." Add a billion Chinese who are feared by the Russians, as well as the people in the socialist fraternal state of Afghanistan who are being killed by and are killing Russians every day. The Soviets have reason to be worried about their neighborhood.

And America? We have oceans on our east and west borders. Peaceful Canada is on our north. To the south is Latin America. At least until recently, the Latins have not caused us much serious trouble. Cuba has been a thorn. but after a failed attempt to foment revolution in our hemisphere, they've been sending most of their young mercenaries to kill and advise how to kill Africans in Africa.

Behind all of the (important) talk about who's a Somociata, a democrat, a freedom fighter or a Marxist-Leninist, is this issue: Will the United States continue to live in a safe neighborhood?

The current Nicaraguan Sandinista government is supported by the Soviets and the Cubans. If the Sandinistas survive and flourish in Central America, there will logically be a linkage of their activities and those of the Sovieta.

As has been pointed out, the contras are not the perfect force to stymie the Sandinistas, and the $100-million package may not do the trick. Perhaps there may be a better military plan to put the squeeze on the Sandinistas. But at the end of the argument there is this: It is extremely important to us. We should try something, particularly if young Nicaraguans are willing to do the hard part. If it doesn't work, we may have to try something else later.

If we don't, at some future congressional hearing, a general may well be asked who's in better shape militarily, the United States or the Soviet Union. And he will throw up his hands and say, "I don't know."

RUSTY BROWN

Well-Worn Friends

In his later years, my father had this reluctance to buy anything new and insisted on wearing 10- and 15-year-old suits that were obviously out of style. When I chided him, he would say, "I don't care what people think. I like these suits.

Well, I haven't totally given up buying new clothes, but I am beginning to understand his affection for old raiment. There's something trustworthy and attractive about the well-worn. My closet is sprinkled with favorites - jackets that feel just right, sweaters with a familiar softness.

There are a lot of things that go just right with the old standbys. A beige wool skirt, for example, has been a wardrobe mainstay for a dozen years. But I just discovered a tiny hole in it and the dry cleaner wants an outrageous $24 to reweave it. I am heartsick, knowing I shall probably never find another I like as well — even if it would be more up-to-date.

I am equally attached to an ancient bathrobe, one that was made with three big bath towels. Such robes were po Soft from innumerable washings, it is as much a part of my day as juice at breakfast. Two years ago, the neckline began to fray, so I repaired it with blanket binding.

I guess the robe has become a sort of security blanket. It has warmed me through the sleepless nights of a few life crises, and, over the years. it's been standard garb for reading the Sunday paper or packing school lunches on chilly mornings. There are even pulled threads on the lap where a lovely cat named Maria once sat. How could I give up anything so reliable?

I have this pair of fleece-lined hiking shoes, the only ones I've ever been able to wear for hours on end. The first time the thick-ribbed soles wore down to paper thinness, I tried in vain to find replacements. There's a new pair sitting in a shoe box in the closet, but somehow. they just don't measure up.

So, I've had the old ones resoled twice, and my husband laughs at me when the retreads come unglued and begin to flap.

As time goes on, I am less interested in wearing the "latest." I'm less willing to spend all that precious time shopping and endlessly trying on clothes. I like to think that's because of a more refined set of values and priorities and the realization that clothes aren't going to make me different. Whatever the reason. I figure why discard the things that have "mellowed" with me?

JEFFREY HART

Contra Aid Questions

Some serious questions have been raised about the contra aid being pushed through Congress with difficulty by the Reagan administration: is $100 million enough to be of much use in the situation faced by the contras fighting the communist regime in Nicaragua? From both left and right, the answer has often been coming back in the negative.

The left argues that the $100 million cannot possibly secure the defeat of the heavily armed Sandinistas, that it will only produce harassment along with needless killing of Nicaraguans on both sides. as well as hardship and even death to civilians caught in the middle. A sophisticated version of this argument maintains that President Reagan in fact knows that the $100 million is not enough, but wants it anyway so that the contras will at least keep fighting and so he, in turn, will be able to leave office while claiming that Nicaragua did not finally become a communist satellite on the Reagan watch.

The left, of course, is not arguing from the inadequacy of the $100 million to the conclusion that much more should be appropriated. The left does not regard communism in Nicaragua as a threat of any kind. Much of the left indeed continues to admire the Sandinistas, hoping that, at long last, a communist state will come into being which they can endorse. In any case, the left does not want more money for the contras, but no money.

On the right, criticism of the $100 million is rather different, and takes off from the description put out by the president and his spokesmen of the potential dangers we face if the Sandinistas do consolidate their

According to the administration. the Sandinistas have all along been a danger to the fragile nations of the region, preaching a "revolution without borders," and to the limit of their abilities have funnelled aid to fellow guerillas fighting in El Salvador. Indeed, the headquarters of the Salvador communist movement is in Managua, the Sandinista capital. The Sandinistas have attracted revolutionaries from around the world to Managua, including Palestinians, Libyans, East Germans, and so forth. We are urged to take at face value the lines in the Sandinista national anthem that call the U.S. the enemy of mankind.

Consistent with his politics, the Sandinistas aligned themselves with Havana and Moscow despite the large amounts of aid given them by the Carter administration.

Migod, say the critics from the right, with a threat of that magnitude a mere $100 million less than we spend annually on the National Endowment for the Humanities - is a kind of spitball flung against a hurricane.

That argument has some force. but the figure of $100 million was not arbitrary, a round number someone pulled out of a hat. For $100 million, 25,000 contras can be trained, equipped, and put into the field against the Sandinistas. That is not an insignificant force at all. Our experience with insurgencies indicates that guerillas can be extremely effective even when numerically inferior to the regular forces of their opponents. A force of 25,000 contras is about three times as large as the revolutionary militia that overthrew Somoza and his well-equipped army and national guard.

Therefore, on balance, the $100 million is worth spending and might forestall the need for sterner measures down the road.

It remains curious that the Reagan administration has not bet up an official Nicaraguan Government in Exile, with full diplomatic recognition, and a constitution and political program that would have wide appeal in Nicaragua - and. not least, in the United States. If that were added to the $100 million in contra support on the ground, it just might be enough to do the trick.

Navy's Target Practice Upsets Islanders

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON - Libyans aren't the only ones in an uproar over being bombed by American warplanes. Inhabitants of the U.S.-owned Caribbean island of Vieques have had some of their choicest real estate used for target practice by Navy bombers for more than 20 years, and they are un-derstandably unhappy about it.

So the Navy came up with an imaginative solution to the islanders' discontent. It persuaded one of its biggest contractors to go into the spice trade, and create job opportunities that will supposedly make the locals less sensitive to the sound of crashing bombs on the naval target range in their back yard.

Pentagon auditors stumbled across the bisarre arrangement and questioned its propriety. Although no public funds are apparently being used to finance the spice venture, an audit report wondered whether the Navy should put itself in the position of seeking an expensive favor from a major contractor.

Details are contained in an internal report by the Defense Contract Audit Agency. which discovered the Vieques spice deal during a routine audit of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., which does about 90 percent of its business with the Navy. Our associate Donald Goldberg obtained a copy of the report.

Over the years, Navy bombard-ment and Marine Corps amphibious exercises on the tiny island just east of Puerto Rico have raised repeated protests from Vieques residents. In addition to the obvious danger - in 1968, an errant missile almost sank a bost carrying the governor of Puerto Rico — they have complained of economic hardship wrought as fishing and tourism by the conversion of their trapical paradies into a permanent war

Last fall, possibly in hopes restalling renewed protests with the Navy's Ocean Venture exercise next month again subjects Viegues to friendly fire. Navy brass persuaded Newport News to put up $3.5 million in a joint venture with the South Bronx Greenhouse in New York City. The investment would finance the growing of 14 varieties of exotic herbs and spices to be sold by the greenhouse to gourmet-restaurants in New York. Chicago and other centers of haute

Gary Waldron of the South Bronx Greenhouse said the joint venture, begun last November, was expected to create "good PR" for the Navy by "generating 100 jobs and good profits" on bomb-battered Vieques.

Then the Pentagon auditors stumbled across a mysterious new account in the Newport News books: the South Bronx Greenhouse.

"My interest was piqued because I couldn't use any connection between a 'greenhouse' and the shipbuilding industry, especially a shippard primarily involved in building combatant vessels for the Navy," can auditor wrote. After first refusing to discuss the situation,

Newport News executives eventually told the auditors the story and referred them to Navy Secretary John Lehman.

"The concern that I have as a government contract auditor and as a taxpayer." the auditor wrote. "follows along these lines: The objective of the Navy appears to be to create good will with the inhabitants of Vieques so that the Navy can continue to use the bombing range on he island.

"It seems logical to assume that the Navy did not have a convenient means of creating this good will ... (so) it turned to Newport News as a means of solving its dilemms. Of course, one would ask why Newport News would enter into such a deal as this. This is the critical ques-

Navy officials were not available for comment, but a spokesman for the shipbuilder confirmed that the the shipbuilder confirmed that the spice deal had been suggested by the Navy. He added that the company's parent firm. Tenneco Inc., sees it as a promising business.

Congress Cheating On Spending Diet

By Virginia B. Lamp

Have you ever watched a person in the grocery line who appears to be on a strict diet - but for that package of gooey, double-fudge brownies slid under the four bags of carrots? Congress, not unlike dieters who want to trim down, find it hard to really start. Like the dieter, they find it easy to talk about it and to make grandiose plans for the future. But when it comes to actually cutting down on cating - or spending - that's something else.

Every president since Lyndon Johnson has talked of repealing or reforming two federal laws requiring that "prevailing wages" be paid by private employers with federal contracts. These laws inflate federal costs by $2 billion to $5 billion annually. impose significant regulatory burdens on small business, discriminate against minorities and are incapable of being fairly and effectively administered not to mention that they are now at odds with their original purposes.

Experts from Democratic and Republican adminstrations, the General Accounting Office, the Congressional Budget Office, the Grace Commission as well as other private and public groups have reported to Congress that these costly laws have outlived their original purposes. Yet, these Depression-era, inflationary laws — like that package of gooey, double-fudge brownies - remain in the Congressional shopping cart.

Enacted in 1931, the Davis-Bacon Act was intended to protect local workers from having their wages driven down by competition from unemployed black workers who were being hired for federal construction projects. Besides finding this discrimination intolerable in 1986, we now seek competition to provide better services for lower costs. As for protecting local wage-earners, studies have shown that only 28 percent of Davis-Bacon contractors are from the county in which a project is located. But 47 percent of non-Davis-Bacon projects, which were of similar size and type, are from the local county.

Davis-Bacon represents a direct and excessive tax on any federal project - a cost we cannot afford in this deficitconscious era. It affects less than 1 percent of America's work force and only 22 percent of the 3.8 million construction workers. But it inflates federal spending by $5 billion over a three-year period and is responsible for 5.5 percent of all the paperwork that comes to the Department of Labor.

Enacted in 1965, the Service Contract Act requires private employers to pay prevailing wage rates when a service is being provided the federal government. Like the Davis-Bacon Act. this law is outdated and inflationary.

Our annual federal deficit is fast approaching $200 billion and interest payments on the federal debt are nearly $50 billion a year. Although some members of Congress have demonstrated their seriousness about reducing our deficit, legislation to repeal or reform prevailing wage laws continues to linger in committee.

If members of Congress heard from taxpayers about the issue, they might stop dragging their feet on making this long overdue reform. The two major Davis-Bacon reform vehicles are S. 1005 introduced by Sen. Don Nickles. R-Okla., and H.R. 472 introduced by Rep. Charles Stenholm. D.Tex., and Arian Strangeland, R-Minn. Reform of the Service Contract Act has been proposed by Sen. Gordon Humphrey. R-N.H., in S. 2261. Without curtailing essential services, these pieces of legislation would go a long way toward assuring that Congress remain committed to its spending "diet." Encourage your representatives and senators to support or co-sponsor these

Families Important In Rehabilitation

Rehabilitation can be important to the older person who has had a stroke or had a limb amputated. It can mean the difference between being totally dependent and living as independently

It's important that the person's family be involved, says Stanley J. Broday. He is the executive administrator of the Piersol Rehabilitation Center of the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia.

In four years, Broday says, only 3 to 7 percent of HUP's rehabilitation-center patients have gone to nursing homes. He adds: "The national data shows something closer to 17 percent going from rehabilitation centers to nursing homes after rehabilitation. So the question comes up: Why the difference?'

The reason, says Broday, is the intensive involvement of the family: "Families are the basic tool or support for rehabilitation, both to ensure an environment in which it can take place and to help provide the motivation.

However, families must come to grips with certain issues during the rehabilitation process.

One major issue is the fact that a parent isn't the same person he or she was before, says Bertram Greenspun. the center's medical director.

Broday says it's important that families understand what their older relatives can and can't accomplish through rehabilitation. This way, families won't have unrealistically high expectations. Nor will they expect less, which makes the older person unnecessarily dependent and interferes with the goal of getting the person to function as well as possible.

"We help families to encourage the older person to do everything they can do for themselves," said Joan Bonner Conway, director of HUP's department of social work.

"Sometimes families, out of misguided kindness, will do things for disabled persons that perhal do for themselves," she says. "Families need help to realize they aren't being mean if they encourage their relatives to do things for themselves."

For example, mom may be able to dress herself, but it takes her an hour and a half — so her son or daughter may do it for her, since time is limited and he or she also has to get ready for work and send the kids off to school.

"It takes a lot of patience to encourage someone who has had a stroke." says Ms. Conway. "but if the family doesn't stand beside them and encourage them, they won't develop the proficiency, or they will lose the ability to do things.

"Then you have someone who loses more and more self-respect because they can't do things for themselves."

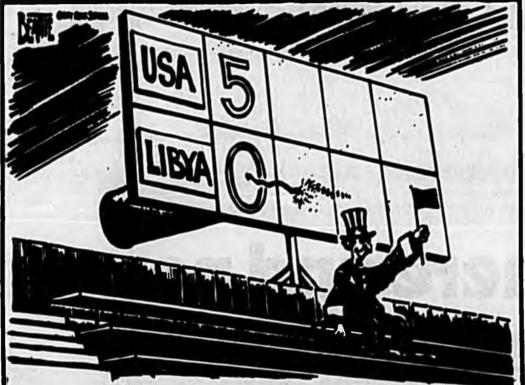

Ms. Conway says families should watch what the person is doing in therapy and follow instructions given by the therapist.

"Maybe the person won't ever be the same," she says. "A rehabilitation center can only help the patient use the 'well' part of themselves - what they have left.

"So don't get impatient and angry when someone absolutely can't do something they could do before," she says — although it's always hard to see a parent in a different way.

Keep A Dream Alive

The nation will long remember Christa McAuliffe - a teacher, astronaut and an American hero. She was a dreamer whose passion was to reach for the stars. Her imagination knew no boundaries.

Today, our future dreamers can be found in our nation's classrooms.

That is why the American Federation of Teachers established "Christa's Challenge," an education and scholarship fund that will pay for the education of our country's brightest students who wish to dedicate their lives to the challenge Christa loved most — Teaching!

Please help keep Christa's dream alive by sending your tax-free donations to: Christa's Challenge, P.O. Box 1930. Washington, D.C. 20013

> Albert Shanker, President American Federation of Teachers

Social Security has long been a favorite target of overzealous lawmakers trying to take shortcuts in balancing the budget. For this reason. Social Security should not be part of the unified budget. The Social Security trust funds should be taken off the budget much sooner than the 1993 target now in law.

There are two bills (H.R. 1457 and H.R. 3470) pending in the House which would accomplish this on the date of enactment.

Despite the fact that the President has declared Social Security off limits for deficit reduction and the Gramm-Rudman Act exempted it. every time one turns around he hears some senator or congressman calling for the climination of the Social Security Cost of Living Allowance (COLA) to help reduce the deficits. Not only does this cause unnecessary anxiety among senior citizens, it is also just plain nonsense from an economic point of

The Social Security trust funds derive revenue from Social Security taxes on salaries of wage earners. These taxes are independent of any other source of revenue and are deposited directly into the trust funds, not into the general revenue funds where the vast majority of the nation's tax revenues go.

The Social Security tax revenues in the Social Security trust funds are used exclusively to pay Social Security benefits and COLAs. No other sources of revenue are involved. Except for the peculiarities of the accounting system used in the unified federal budget, the Social Security System has no relationship to the deficit. If general revenues were being used to fund Social Security, that would be another story, but general revenues are not involved. You might ask you some very bright economists have occasionally argued for the elimination of the Social Security COLA as part of the deficit reduction effort.

For some it may be philosophical: they are liberals who do not want to see other federal programs eliminated or dramatically cut. As long as Social Security is part of the unified budget, any reduction in its expenditures would show up as a reduction in the budget deficit. however artificial.

The solution to our nation's deficit woes should not involve Social Security. The answer lies in eliminating unnecessary federal programs and cutting spending in areas funded by general revenues. Using Social Security to help solve the deficits is illogical

Another reason why Social Security should be removed from the unified budget was demonstrated this past fall. To avoid exceeding the statutory debt ceiling of $1.8 trillion, Treasury Secretary Baker cashed in $17 billion of government securities that the Social Security trust funds and several other pension funds had held. This allowed the Treasury Department to borrow money from other sources without technically increasing the federal debt. Ironically, part of the money borrowed was paid out to 36 million Social Security beneficiaries. As part of the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction bill, the Treasury reinvested the borrowed funds and paid back the interest lost, therefore insuring that the Social Security trust funds remained intact as if the borrowing never took place.

Removal of Social Security from the unified budget would take away the opportunity to abuse the trust funds in this fashion as well as end the irrational debate over cutting Social Security COLAs to help end deficits. Bill McCollum

What Newspapers Across The Nation Are Saying

Congress Denied Input In Libya Attack Decision

By United Press International

The Milwaukee Journal

Many congressmen complain - with good reason — that they weren't consulted about the decision to launch the strike against Libya, as the 1973 War Powers Act presumably required. ... The 1973 law requires the president to consult with Congress "in every possible instance" before introducing U.S. troops into hostile situations. However, when lawmakers were told of the impending attack on Libya, U.S. warplanes were already in flight ...

While some lawmakers grumbled about that, others proposed a law authorizing the president to respond to foreign terrorism without consulting Congress in advance. ... Perhaps many Americans would love to see their country murder Libyan chief Moammar Khadafy. But such murder is more than illegal; it also is immoral and impractical ... putting still more Americans in the cross hairs of reven

The War Powers Act ... perhaps needs to be updated. But ... sending U.S. troops into battle — even a battle of only hours — is a momentous decision in which Congress deserves to be an active partner, not an irrelevant bystander.

The Enterprise, Breekton, Mass.

David Stockman's pessimism is understandable. As President Reagan's budget chief, he led the charge against thousands of indersal programs that serve special interests at the expense of the national interest. Almost all of these are still intact - many because Reagan's own cabinet members helped protect them. The title of Stockman's new book gives his verdict: "The Triumph of Politics: Why the Reagan Revolution

But Stockman ... is so eager to air his disagreements with his former colleagues that he neglects other realities.

Stockman assumes that just because he failed to lick the special interests, nobody else will. ... Reagan's sunny temperament and his ability to take the long view are among his most formidable strengths. He knows it will take more than one presidency to diamantle the dubious structures Congress has been building for decades. ... Future histories will be more generous to him ...

The Hartford (Cons.) Courant
Gun owners with teenage children would do well to note an expert's observation that the high suicide rate among teenagers in the United States has a lot to do with the presence of firearms in so many American homes.

Of the approximately 5,200 teenagers who kill themselves in this country each year, almost two-thirds use their families' guns, according to Pamela Cantor, president of the American Association of Suicidalogy.

Buicide, she said, has become the third leading cause of death among teenagers. ... It's strictle that access to a lethal waspen shorters the distance between conception of suicidal and completion of the act.

Although homes contain things other than guns that can be used in suicide, a gun is likely to be the instrument of choice when certainty and speed are desired. If there are second thoughts as the trigger is pulled, they're erased by the bullet.

The Washington Post Senators will soon have an opportunity to demonstrate American solidarity with Great Britain in the resistance to terrorism. By chance, the proposed extradition treaty with Britain will be considered shortly after the British gave assistance and support to the American strike against Monmmar Khadafy....

The problem with the suspent treaty is that it bars the extradition of pursues whose orines are political. It is quite possible, therefore, that the gang that bombed a Brighton hotel in an attempt to kill Prime Minister Thatcher ... would not, if they managed to get to this country, he returned to Britain for trial. ... The new language would deny assectuary in this country to terrorists by deny annetuary in this country to terrorists by defining the term "political offense" to exclude ... murder, kidnapping, airplane hijacking and bombing ... the offenses most often associated with international terrorists...

Customs initiated the Drug Smuggling gling activities at the program's 24-hour-a-day. toll-free number ...

Since then more than 780 calls have been taken, leading to 200 Customs investigations.... The results have prompted Customs to expand the program to Georgia. North Carolina and South Carolina.

The program does offer incentives other than good citizenship. Rewards from $250 to $2,500 may be given for anonymous information. ... Customs officials want reports of such suspicious activities as airplanes that make repeated passes over pleasure boats or drop packages into the water ... A cell about such matters may ast the good guys need all the life

The New York Times

If South Africa's president, P.W. Boths, truly means to acrap rather than rename the hateful pass laws, it will be time to persove the quotation marks from his current series of "volume." He has stopped enforcement of the laws, one of the most degrading features of aparticid. But real cheering must wait a few more days until he defines a new, universal identity opinion. If that allows blacks to live and work where this change a new era may lasted be at home.

Smoking Is No Longer Fashionable

It's hard to believe that smoking was once considered fashionable. Now it's lower middle Saints And class. The Wall Street Journal reports that most of today's declining number of smokers come from blue-collar families.

There may be as many people quitting smoking for classconscious reasons as for health reasons. Who wants to be thought of as working class?

But smoking used to have a different image. Beginning in the late 1920s, smoking was a mark of sophistication. "Smoking in the outer lobby only please," the tuxedo-outfitted usher announced every Friday evening during intermission on the Lux Radio Theater. That was in the 1930s and '40s. We figured Barbara Luddy and Les Tremayne must also be lighting up in their dressing rooms between

Before women won the right to amoke. Chesterfield ran magazine and billboard ads showing beautiful women saying to their handsome, puffing male escorts. "Blow some my way." You had better not do that today.

But it was Lucky Strike which struck the match for equality in smoking. In 1927 Lucky Strike began an ad campaign in which women gave cigarette testimonials for the first time. The earliest lady endorsers were foreign opera stars. That was designed to soften the shock. Opera singers could always be dismissed as "fast women."

exceptions were Lutheran clergymen and Catholic priests who took the theological position that if something wasn't forcideen in the acriptures, it was permissible - for men.

The more fundamentalist churches found a biblical warrant for not smoking in Paul's reminder to the Corinthians that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost." Polluting the temple with tobacco smoke would be sacrilegious.

But in the end it wasn't these religious people - nor even the U.S. surgeon general — but non-smokers demanding clean air for themselves who may have driven in the smokers' final coffin nail. Some predict that by the year 2000 smoking will have disappeared from polite society.

At the start of the antismoking campaign, the crusaders were vilified as pests

Up until relatively recently, and fuddy-duddies. "Thank you church women never smoked in for not smoking" signs irritated public - certainly not at church and even enraged smokers. One functions. A professor of psychiatry at Yale Medical School says he sees a temperance movement gaining ground in the United States. He points not only to the disappearance of the three-martini lunch but to a nearly 15 percent drop in per capita liquor consumption in the last 10 years.

The cocaine drug epidemic, he says, is mobilizing public sentiment against dangerous drugs, including alcohol. The Yale professor says we are closer than we have been since 1919 (the year the 18th Amendment was passed) to embracing prohibition in this country.

U.S. Religious Leaders Split Over Raid

American religious community is split over last week's bombing raid against Libya: Protestants criticize the raid. Jewish groups support it and Roman Cathelic leaders remain atlent.

On Tuesday, the Rev. Arie Brouwer, general secretary of the National Council of Churches, made up of 31 Protestant and Orthodox church bodies, called the mission an "attack on America" and its ideals, but leaders of two Jewish agencies said President Roagan acted to defend U.S. citizens and the nation's values.

In a separate action, a leader of the American Jewish Committee also voiced support for the bombing.

Howard Friedman, president of the committee, and David Gordis, the group's executive director, called the action "fully justified in view of the extensive and irrefutable evidence of Col. In telegrams to Reagan and Secretary of State George Shultz they said the raids were com-

EASTER ISLAND, Chile (UPI) - The space age will come to Easter Island before it gets its first high school or paved road.

Lost in mid-Pacific, 2,000 miles off the coast of Chile and an equal distance to Polynesia, Easter Island is known mainly as an off-the-beaten track archeological and tourist site, featuring giant stone monuments that were carved out of volcanic rock and transported for miles by stone-age natives.

In May the Chilean construction firm Ingenieria Civil Vicente expects to begin a $7 million project of extending the runway to enable Easter Island to serve as an emergency landing field for U.S. space shuttle flights once launchings begin from Vandenberg air base in California.

The extension will make the runway 3,353 meters long, the 11,000-foot minimum needed for a space shuttle landing.

equipment will also be installed.

The U.S National Aeronautics and Space Administration will finance the improvements.

The airport upgrading is by and large welcomed by Easter Islanders, who see the possibility of more and cheaper airline flights with the runway extension, but opposition political leaders on the Chilean mainland have unleashed a barrage of criticism.

Historian Oscar Pinochet de la Barra. a distant relative of military president Augusto Pinochet, has said the NASA project was like "putting a dance hall in the middle of a museum," while ex-presidential candidate Radomiro Tomic, a Christian Democrat, said the base could be used for military purposes and was the "equivalent of putting Chile in the front line of atomic President Pinochet, who signed the eight-year agreement on Aug. 2, 1965, said the agreement was mutually beneficial with neither side "asking any" favor."

A U.S. embassy official in Santiago said the landing strip is one of a number of emergency air fields that NASA relies upon throughout the world.

"We have similar agreements for New landing lights and electronic landing fields in Senegal, Spain, France and Japan." the official said.

> Limited numbers of U.S. space mission personnel will be stationed on Easter Island whenever there is a launching from California, but otherwise the airport facilities and new equipment will be managed by Chileans.

"There is nothing about archaeology that will be touched or destroyed by the NASA project," he says.

He says about 2,000 tourists visit the island a year, an amount that can be doubled or tripled without disturbing the ecology. He says the Island's 400 hotel beds are now used "at only 6 to 9 percent capcity." leaving room for expansion.

"If we have what we call 'culture tourists,' people who come here looking more for archaeology and learning about things rather than a huge wonderful beach and casino, then I think we will be very happy." he says.

I was never contacted. and I didn't expect to be: I think the man felt that I also worked for Richard Nixon.

When I got back to my friend's wife, I told her the NCLC was a political cult. It had 200 to 3,000 members who swore allegiance, and donated their incomes, to an effort not clearly defined. I said I never saw her husband, but I felt he would eventually realize there was more to life than muscling communists.

She said thanks, but the point had become moot. She said my friend had filed for divorce. She said they were going to split custody of their children, the boy with him, the girl for her, and, she said that, on reflection, she was certain that one day he would regret the whole matter.

Sure enough. I talked with my friend the other afternoon, and he says he quit the LaRouche group a few years later.

My friend says LaRouche became known as anti-Semitic, for one thing. and fixed with the notion of breathtaking world conspiracies. He decided that Henry Kissinger was a communist, that the Russians were trying to assassinate him, and, let's tell the mountains. Great Britain was involved in the murder of Abraham Lincoln.

Today my friend believes Lyndon LaRouche is a dangerous screwball. Particularly since there has been one more development in this affair. The man says his son is now 20, and a chip off the old big boob; he has talked with LaRouche members in recent months and is thinking about joining the forces himself.

Behind the Peison Cloud, by Larry Everest (Banner Press, 192 pp. $8.95)

Except for reports from the New York courtroom where a liability settlement is being ground out, there is little in the news about the Bhopal disaster nearly a year and a half after a cloud of gas floated out of the Union Carbide plant and killed at least 2,000 people.

With an out-of-court settlement likely. the worst industrial accident in history will probably remain a historical footnote of the Orwellian year 1964.

Journalist Larry Everest's detailed and provocative account of the incident, its causes and its results serves, however, as a solid document for reference. And, uniquely for a behind-the-news book. Indian company. Everest, however, then quotes a former managing director for Carbide in India as saying a Carbide team from West Virginia "was assigned primary responsibility for engineering and construction of the Bhopal unit."

Double-Focused Le Carre His Best Ever

Much of Everest's account is of that nature - bringing up events then allowing both Carbide and its critics to have their say. But Everest then goes a step further to provide a context for the events.

He discusses the "Green Revolution" that Carbide's posticide plant in Bhopal was part of and concludes that the increase in agricultural production in India does not benefit the Indian people as much as it benefits American corporate interests.

In this context, Everest concludes that Bhopai was no accident, but, rather, was a "massacre" — a combination of actions both large and small where maximization of profit "shaped all the various components of the catastrophe."

All readers may not agree with Everest's conclusions. But his research is thorough, his facts clear and welldocumented, his analysis always atimulating and often gripping. -Bruce Olsen (UPI)

The rural people are looking for their needs to be met." Routh said. "Their only hope has been a third political party, but if they lose confidence in that, they will have no one to turn to.'

Routh hears from his Filipino friends that in the rural areas the situation is confused. On Mindoro, the people were loyal to local leaders in the Marcos party they had elected so when they were removed from office it caused confusion and resentment among the people.

The economic situation is not stabilizing, the peso has been devalued and the price of basic commodities has risen. Marcos had held down the price on basic commodities.

Unemployment is not getting any better, Routh said. "Even in our area where there are shipyards, jobs are not plentiful, especially for the young. A high school diploma (through 10th grade) is essential for the most menial jobs. Even technical school or college do not assure you a job."

Values are threatened. Closeness and responsibility toward the extended family, so much a part of the culture, is shrinking as they move toward a nuclear family, expecially in the cities. Routh said. The burgeoning population is straining the school system. The cost of private and parochial schools, and colleges is becoming too much for many people. Enrollment is dropping and some schools are closing.

TV and advertisers are targeting the Filipino housewife. who traditionally saves for things the family might need. encouraging them to buy on credit things they may see advertised, Routh said.

When the Rouths first went to Vietnam, their two oldest children Deanna and Donna were four and two years of age. The two younger children, Walter III "Buddy" and were born there. All were with them in the Philippines until they graduated from high school.

Deanna works for an Orlando newspaper. Donna. whose married name is Meeks, is employed by Edgewood Boys Ranch in Orlando, and Darlene, 20, and Buddy, 19, are both students at Wheaton College in Illinois.

While at home. Routh has spoken in area churches, at revival meetings, and mission conferences. He has been host to two Filipino pastor friends for separate three-month periods.

A graduate of Stetson University and Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky. Routh pastored churches in Chuluota and Ohio

Mrs. Routh, who is from Louisville, graduated from Georgetown Bible College and to a teacher. On the mission field she organizes and leads choirs. teaches English in a Bible College, and holds classes for wives. She also taught her children at home through eighth grade. As a missionary Routh's duties include teaching nonsectarian Bible studies, being a co-worker with local Filipino pastors. helping them to plant new churches, giving them counsel and encouragement, holding seminars, preaching at evangelistic meetings and writing Bible lessons at the request of local pastors. He teaches in a small Bible college under a local church to train young men and women for the ministry. "I have the philosophy of not supporting churches on a con-tinuing basis with outside funds to make them dependent on funds from the missionary country as it is counter productive," Routh said. He also doesn't tell the evangelistic churches he helps start what denomination if any they should call themselves.

A Vietnamese once told him. "You don't name them, just teach them the Bible and let them decide for themselves. You don't name a baby before it is

After the number of refugees coming to the Philippines from Vietnam decreased, the Rouths took a one-year New Tribes Mission language course in Tagalog in order to work with the Pilipino people. At the age of 42. Routh said he found learning a new language much more

But never so thoroughly as he does in that second interwoven "half" of this book has le Carre laid out the events and influences that bring an agent into that establishment and then make him want to leave it. Never so thoroughly has he explored the raw materials of personality - and particularly the bittersweet relationship between father and son — that go to make up the finished man.

Le Carre asys in an article written for the Book-of-the-Month Club — which has made "A Perfect Spy" its main selection for May — that this is the novel that percolated within him since before he even became a professional writer.

It has been well worth the wait, particularly since we have been so grandly diverted in the meantime by everything from "Call for the Dead" to "The Little Drummer Girl."

It is all here again, the richness and precision of language and dialogue, of plot and characterization.

But, somehow, le Carre has done it even better this time.
