Business leaders support strong mayor

By Chris Bowhead

SANFORD — Business leaders in the city of Sanford overwhelmingly support a strong mayor form of government.

The Sanford Chamber of Commerce conducted a straw poll Tuesday evening gauging its members' opinions. At issue is whether the city should adopt a form of government that places a mayor who is responsible for the day-to-day operations of the city over the current government where the elected commissioners appoint a professional manager to handle those duties.

Sanford voters will have a chance to potential-by regular their vote on March 5 at the polls.

By a 440-1 margin, chamber members approved changing to a strong mayor form of government, with 37 members voting in favor of the change and 9 voting against.

"This was one of the larger turnouts we've had," said Angela Cordero, president of the Seminole-Seminole County Chamber of Commerce. "We believe this is an important issue. Once the chamber can take a stand, we need to know what our members want. They can't decide."

David Garschke attended Tuesday evening and he was pleased with the results.

"We wanted to have good representation of all businesses in the outcome, we could accurately say it represented the position of the chamber membership," said Garschke.

We actually had more than a dozen more members who couldn't attend for medical needs, death, or other reasons, so we didn't count those, but every one of them voted in favor of a strong mayor.

Business chamber president says small growth will be key factor in vote to come. Garschke said the votes cast carried this idea to local and state government officials, that they're a leader who can facilitate the continued overall growth while still maintaining a high-quality of living.

"With the western community's success, it's time for us to look for a strong leader in the 12-year-old student is dancing his way to top

By Jamie J. Anderson

SANFORD — Drew Stanley of Sanford has danced his way to the top — literally.

The 12-year-old tap dancer was recently named Florida's Male Dancer of the Year by the Florida Dance Masters' Competition held in Orlando.

Dancing is like breathing, says her dad. "You just got to do it."

After competing against other male dancers from 11 states, Mr. Stanley danced his way to the top of the male division and taken the gold medal. This is the fourth consecutive year he's won the title.

"It's a combination of hard training, practice and experience," said mother Vickie Stanley of Drew's success. "He's been taking classes at the school of dance, which is run by Vickie and Valerie's School of Dance Art in Sanford. You might dance for a judge and likes ballroom more than any other style of dance and you might like country according to that preference. That's a choice you make."

"You just get out there and do your best," said Vickie.

Four of Vickie's students represented Florida and Valerie's School of Dance Art in the competition. White Stanley finished in the top position, the school's other qualifiers placed respectfully. Malory Gladman was the second runner-up in the male division while Claire Schindler and Shelly Ratchford both placed in the top 12 in the female division.

"Drew is kind of new in relation to dancing, but the judges love him," said Vickie. "Everyone finds his personality appealing on stage."

This is the third consecutive year the school has taken top honors in the male division. During the 2000 competition, Vickie Anderson was honored as Florida's Male Rising star, followed by Logan McLamb in 2001.

Stanley began dance lessons four years ago at Marion and Valerie's School of Dance Art with Vickie. Although concentrating on tap, he also attends classes in Arizona man arrested in Stonebrook rape case

By Chris Bowhead

SANFORD — Police arrested an Arizona man wanted in connection with a rape and robbery situation.

Charles "Tyree" Tyree, 25, was arrested Friday by Sanford police after a three day search for a man who raped a woman at a nearby residence, and then committed robbery, said police.

At approximately 11:15 p.m. Sunday, officers responded to a residence located on the west side of the city after a woman called 911 to report she had been sexually assaulted. According to police, Tyree is a resident of Arizona and was working for Princeton Trust, a company that drops off employees to an area for a short period of time when an agent is assigned to that location, police said.

Leo P. Zeots, known for his love of his family, music and the U.S. Navy, died Saturday, Jan. 12, 2002. He was 80.

According to a family report, Leo, an incidentals apprentice private, was attending a dance in the Daytona Beach area this past Friday night, when he developed cramping in one of his arms. The following morning, he passed away because of a blood clot.

Leo worked with the Daytona dance band for many years and was well known for his energetic voice at the Sanford Civic Center during the Daytona Wednesday afternoon senior dances.

One of his loves was the U.S. Navy. He spent over 20 years in the Navy first during World War II, then after a brief stint in the Naval Reserves, was recalled to duty for the Korean War.

Sanford resident saves lives 1 pint at a time

By Michelle Jorda
Managing Editor

SANFORD — Carl Gilliland recently reached a milestone in his effort to save lives.

The Bram Tower resident donated his 10th gallon of blood Monday afternoon at the city's blood bank. It's taken Gilliland several years to reach his 10th goal.

"There are a lot of benefits to giving blood," Gilliland said. "And, why not give. It doesn't take but a few minutes, and you are helping someone, someone else."

As long as he can remember, Gilliland has been giving blood. He became a bone donor when he turned 16, and a little more than a year ago.

With no fear of needles, Gilliland said giving out a pint for 10 to 15 minutes is the least he can do for his community.

"I actually give the people who work at the Blood Bank all the credit," he said. "All I do is lay on the couch and squeeze a ball for a few minutes."

The people at the Blood Bank, however, think Gilliland and people like him are doing an invaluable service for the Central Florida community. And, since the Sanford resident's O positive blood contains rare antigens and antibodies, he is saving people throughout the country.

"Carl's blood, because it is rare, goes to help anyone in the country, not just in this area," said Dennis Walker, donor services specialist. "Each time he gives, we like the information in the computer and there is a radical record of it."

It's not only rare blood types that are currently needed — especially now when blood is in short supply due to the holidays, travel schedules, inclement weather and illness. According to Walker, every

SEMINOLE SUMMARY

A GLANCE AROUND OUR COUNTY

Son placed for adoption kept secret from fiance's family

DEAR ABBY: Almost two years ago, I placed my beautiful baby boy for adoption. His name is William. A wonderful man adopted him. As difficult as it was for me, I know I was doing the right thing.

My fiance's family knows nothing about William. I want to tell them, but my fiance doesn't want me to so I've kept quiet. This has bothered me for two years, and I carry a lot of unapppress made because of it.

I am considering telling my fiance's family without him present, but I'm afraid I could lose him over this. Should I allow this situation to go on and wait for my fiance to tell his family, or should I be honest with them about William?

Please give me your opinion, Abby.

SARAH IN TEXAS

DEAR SARAH: I admire you for wanting to level with your fiance's family. It's the right thing to do because "secrets" like yours have a way of coming to light eventually.

However, I strongly feel that you should not tell his family unless your fiance is beside you. It is important he makes it clear to them that regardless of their reaction to the news, he loves you and you are the person with whom he intends to spend the rest of his life.

DEAR ABBY: I come from a large family. Because there hasn't been a family reunion for more than 25 years, I thought it was time. I contacted all my aunts, uncles and cousins and asked them to provide me with names and addresses of their children and grandchildren so I could send invites.

After receiving the information, I sent everyone a letter announcing the place and time of the reunion — and asked them to $25 per family to cover the cost of food, beverages, paper products, etc. Several people who agreed to come were extremely offended and said they had no way to attend a family reunion if we weren't coming!

Abby, do you think I was wrong to ask some financial help?

"NOT WEALTHY" IN YEMEN

DEAR NOT WEALTHY: No, I do not. Perhaps this is one of the reasons it has been 15 years since the family gathered. Considering you involved the amount you requested was not excessive. I hope you held the reunion without the complaints and that it was a success.

DEAR ABBY: I don't know what's wrong with me. I am an 18-year-old girl, and I date only older guys who either have a girlfriend or are engaged. It's like I can't be happy with any single or available.

Sometimes I have even dated my friends' boyfriends behind their backs. I'm afraid in the future this will all catch up with me. I don't want to act like this anymore, Abby. I really don't. Please help.

"SALLY" IN CINCINNATI

DEAR "SALLY": It is an intelligent person who recognizes she for her is engaging in self-defeating behavior — and that certainly qualifies. I don't know if you have a fear of commitment or whether "poaching" gives you a feeling of power. Whatever your motivation, some counseling to get to the bottom of it would be very helpful. Unless you're willing to examine your behavior, the pattern will continue.

Boom in town center projects is a bust for some developers

A nationwide boom in development of sophisticated mixed-use town center districts - from town centers in suburban neighborhoods to major urban redevelopment projects like Thornton Park in Orlando, CityPlace in West Palm Beach, and The Grove in L.A. - is creating unusual development patterns nationwide, says an economist who has been watching the trend closely.

Some developers and municipalities eager to capitalize on the latest trend are making some big mistakes, said David Marks, founder and president of Marketplace Advisors, Inc. in Orlando.

Developers who are used to building strip centers base their decisions on a simple set of factors, said Marks. "A successful town center district, from a main street program in a small town to a regional attraction like Winter Park Village or Kierland Commons in Scottsdale, is governed by a much more complex and sometimes subtle set of criteria."

Marks should know. Over the past two years he has conducted a massive nationwide study of town center districts, compiling the world's largest database on the genre.

"We can look at patterns of development, it's very clear that each community is unique and the success or failure of a district depends on the developer's skill in matching the characteristics of the individual market," he said.

Marks recently presented at the International Council of Shopping Centers (ICSC) annual CenterBuild Conference in Scottsdale, Ariz., where the chatter among development professionals was focused almost exclusively on town centers.

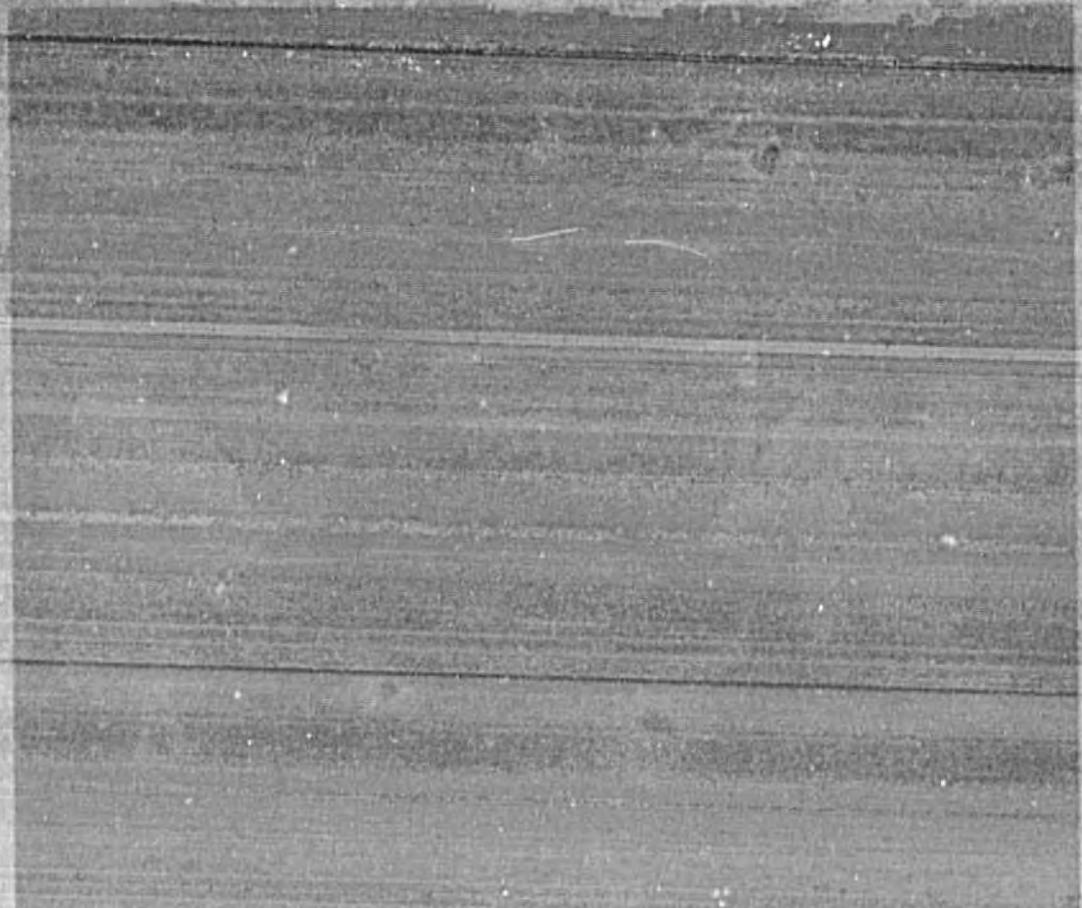

A lot of communities around the country would prefer not to see any more strip centers. They are looking for higher quality development," Marks explained. "Developers, on the other hand, are worried about costs. A strip center constitutes relatively low-cost design and construction program, but part of the attraction in a successful town center district is the architecture, the articulated facades, the landscaping, the extra details, the human scale of the buildings."

Community leaders and developers who don't study their market closely are in for an economic drubbing, Marks said.

"Developers who rely on a town center concept to make their development project a success without having their economic fundamentals analyzed are fooling themselves," he added. "The urban plan and the architecture are very important parts of a town center program, but other elements are also critical to the success of a project such as transportation access, demographics and competition. It is like baking a cake, if the proportion of the various ingredients are off, no one will want to eat your cake, or visit your town center as the case may be."

Cambata donates to Navy memorial

Helton Cambata, left, president of Cambata Aviation International LLC, stands next to Jack Dow, chairman of the Sanford Naval Memorial Committee, after Cambata donated $5,000 to the project. The memorial will be located in front of the Orlando Sanford International Airport to remember the J.S. Navy's History in Rankord and to honor the men and women who served in Rankord. In return for the donation, Dow presented Cambata with a framed painting of the RA-5C Vigilante. A fleet of the Vigilante reconnaissance jets were stationed in Rankord.

Engineered Homes names Oviedo resident as VP of construction looking itself for what is expected to be another active home-building campaign. Winter Park-based Engineered Homes has made a key top-level change in its Construction Division with the promotion of Dennis Perez to Vice President of Construction.

Perez, an Oviedo resident who has been with the Engineered Homes since its inception in 1996 and had previously served as Director of Construction, will oversee all field and construction operations for the company which has residential developments in Seminole and Lake counties.

The appointment provides Engineered Homes with the experience, expertise and leadership necessary to help the company through the important challenges of the new year," says President Igor Tepitsky.

Perez has been instrumental in the company's rapid emergence over the past several years as one of Central Florida's fastest-growing production builders and will play a major role in its future growth and development, adds Tepitsky.

Engineered Homes, which chalked up a record $77.4 million in gross volume last year on 343 home sales, has been one of Central Florida's busiest builders over the past four years and expects to be even busier this year. The company currently has three developments underway in Seminole County and another in Lake County totaling nearly 900 homes and is expected to launch several new communities this year.

Perez has more than 16 years experience in the construction industry, including the past 14 in the residential construction field. In his new capacity, he will be responsible for developing and managing the budgets for all new projects, construction schedules and overseeing engineering and quality control.

Over the years Perez has worked all field related positions including labor foreman, assistant superintendent, superintendent, project manager, area manager and is a licensed General Contractor. Prior to joining Engineered Homes, he served as Area Manager for Crown Homes and was responsible for the company's semi-custom operations in Orange, Osceola and Seminole counties.

Amnesty Day slated for Feb. 9

On Sunday, Feb. 9, Seminole County will hold its annual Household Hazardous Waste Amnesty Day at the Seminole County Central Transfer Station from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. This is a free household hazardous waste collection for residents of Seminole County. Residents may bring in items such as batteries, paint cans, oil-based paint, lawn chemicals, medications, household cleaners, glassware, used motor oil, oil-based paint, and plastic containers.

This year, the event will also include the collection of old electronics for recycling. Residents may bring in items such as computers and computer accessories, cell phones and televisions from their homes.

For further information, contact Solid Waste Management Customer Services at 407-363-2262.

American Red Cross of Central Florida offers safety tips in preparation for cold weather

American Red Cross Safety Tips for Cold Weather

The American Red Cross of Central Florida encourages local families to stay safe during cold weather. Exposure to cold can cause injury or serious illness such as frostbite or hypothermia. The likelihood of injury or illness depends on factors such as physical activity, clothing, wind, humidity, working and living conditions, and personal health and state of health. Following these tips to stay safe in cold weather:

- Dress appropriately before going outdoors. The air tem- perature does not have to be

- below freezing for someone to

- experience cold emergencies

- such as hypothermia and frost-

- bite. Wind speed can create

- dangerously cold conditions

- even when the temperature is

- not that low.

- Dress in layers so you can

- adjust to changing conditions.

- Avoid overexertion or overex-

- posure that can lead to heat ill- ness.

- Recognize frostbite warning

- signs, which include:

- Loss of your body heat

- Freezing skin, which may

- cause skin discoloration, numb-

- ness, and waxy-feeling skin.

- Seek medical attention imme-

- diately if you have these

- symptoms.

- Holiday travelling and

- winter can be a dangerous combination. Allow extra time when traveling. Monitor weather conditions carefully and adhere to travel advisories.

• Keep a winter storm survival kit in your car. This should include blankets, food bars, water, gloves and first aid supplies. Visit the National Oceanic and Atmospheric

Administration Web site for a more extensive list.

• Remember to keep your pet indoors during very cold days and nights. Also protect plants that might be affected by the low temperatures.

Blood

three minutes, someone needs blood. Blood has a shelf life of only 11 days, which means it constantly needs to be replenished.

"Donating blood is about giving the gift of life," Walker said. "That's what it is all about."

Every day in Central Florida, blood is required in hospitals and emergency treatment facilities to save the lives of accident victims, patients with cancer and other diseases, as well as those undergoing routine surgeries, Walker said. The Central Florida Blood Bank has facilities in 17 counties and services 51 hospitals.

There are several other benefits of giving blood on a regular basis — especially for men.

According to research, donating blood three times a year can dramatically reduce the chance of a heart attack and certain types of cancer in men. Medical evidence shows that too much iron in the human body may lead to iron cancer and clogging of the arteries, which in turn may lead to a heart attack.

Blood 2000 is a simple way to rid the body of excess iron. Because men store iron at a much higher level than do women, it is important for them to be able to continually reduce the level.

Regularly donating blood is one way to lower the level of iron in blood, thus reducing the risk of heart attacks and strokes.

People can donate blood as often as once every eight weeks, Walker said. As long as a person's iron levels, blood pressure, pulse and temperature are in check, blood can be donated following the required registration.

"We have people who come in every eight weeks," Walker said. "Some of them come in a little sooner to get checked out so they know they can give blood."

Now that Gisland has given his 30th unit of blood, he plans on setting another goal for himself and reaching it. He will be back at the blood bank in eight weeks ready to give another pint.

"People like Carl, I think they are just wonderful," Walker said. "We just have to have these donors."

Walker said right now is also the perfect time to give because the Central Florida Blood Bank is challenging the community to donate 25,630 units of blood during the month of January as part of National Volunteers Blood Donor Month.

Last year the blood bank collected 24,057 units of whole blood, during the month-long observation.

"Our goal is to ensure that blood is available to patients whenever and wherever it is needed because it is the blood on the shelves that saves lives," said Karen Shou Lipton, chief executive officer for American Association of Blood Banks.

The Sanford branch of the Central Florida Blood Bank is located at 1272 E. 7th Street, and can be contacted by calling 407-322-0822. Hours of operation are Monday and Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., and Thursday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. People should remember to eat within several hours prior to donating blood.

For more information on the Central Florida Blood Bank or becoming a blood donor, visit its website at www.cfb.org.

DANCE

ment of the year, with particular focus on ballroom dancing.

Sterling attends six classes at the studio and practices a minimum of 30 minutes a day.

He is a member of the Ballet Guild and the 2003-2004 Ballroom Dance Hall of Fame. He has received many awards, some of which are currently displayed at the dance school.

"When he was just nine he began to teach the odd horsepower with Fred Astaire and George Rogers," his mother, Nedra, said. Sterley said, "He was always very fine and active dancer but he seemed to have a real flair for it."

"I think we need to see Michael Peake's 'Lord of the Dance' this year. He was solo on dancing," she said.

She said that Peake's "Maze" routine had Sterley performing solo in a few weeks. Sterley will compete in Orlando City, Disney, America Highway, Hardwood, and the McDonald's Dances of the Year next year in the future. Sterley says he will pursue an acting and dancing career like that of his favorite performer, Donald O'Connor.

"He will have a wonderful background in dance to help accomplish this goal," said Nedra. "He has every reason to believe that he can succeed."

Arrest

solution. After finishing the demonstration, the victim believed Frank would allow her to depart, but instead forced her to the floor.

The other physically pushed her down or threatened her several times. She grabbed him with his tie and laid her hands behind her back, threatening to kill the victim and as well as himself. At one point he also used a wine bottle against her.

Frank kept the victim trapped in her apartment for about 21 hours, leaving the residence slightly before 100 pm. the following day. The victim alerted police soon after he left and the story ran in the news the following few days.

On Jan. 17, police received notice that Frank's co-workers were transporting him to the Orange County Sheriff's office.

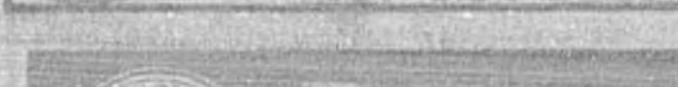

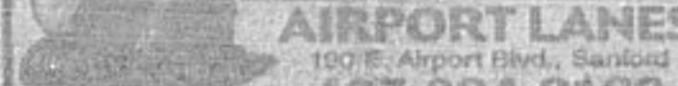

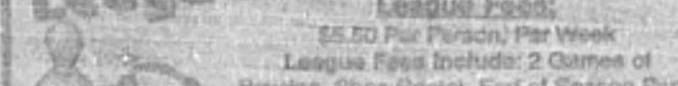

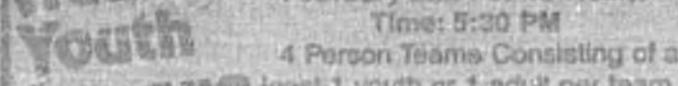

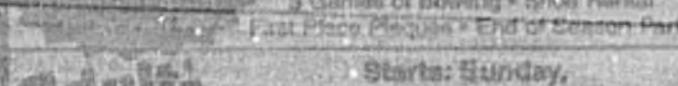

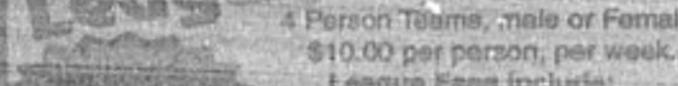

When the authorities saw the news, he arranged to take Frank to the police station, Cohen said. "In my knowledge [Frank] did not know prior to his arrest."

He was arrested upon a log of the victim and denied the accusations. He is charged with two counts of aggravated battery.

Cohen suggested Frank's behavior reflected the strong religious and conservative nature of his community, as evidenced by his arrival at church a few days earlier. He added that the community has been shocked by the incident.

Robert Lee, city manager of Melbourne Beach, Fla., will speak on behalf of the city during the press conference.

The hearing begins at 2 p.m. and the public is encouraged to attend.
