BRISKS

No VA hospital money

U.S. Congresswoman Corrine Brown has expressed outrage at the elimination of proposed funding for the planned VA hospital in Brevard County. Last week, the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Veterans Affairs passed a bill that did not include any funds for the Brevard County facility.

"I cannot believe that this Congress has chosen, once again, to abandon the veterans in East Central Florida," she said. "Last year, President Clinton requested $184 million for a full hospital. Instead, a total of $25 million was appropriated last year for an outpatient clinic." She continued, "The VA hospital has been a political football for many years. It's time for Congress to put its money where its mouth is and produce this needed facility."

Massive surplus sale

Nine cities have combined resources to hold a surplus auction. It will be held on June 22 at the Seminole Greyhound Park, 2000 Seminole Blvd., Casselberry. Viewing will start at 8 a.m., with the auction beginning at 9 a.m.

Involved will be the cities of Sanford, Lake Mary, Altamonte Springs, Casselberry, Winter Springs, Oviedo, Winter Park, Maitland and Longwood. The cities will be auctioning off surplus property. Items are expected to include cars, trucks, boats, computers, printers, office furniture, lawn equipment, heavy equipment, and many other items including those which have been confiscated or found.

Copies of the individual lists of items are available at each city's Purchasing or Finance Departments. The total list for all cities is available for $2.50.

The auction will be conducted by Rene Bates Auctioneers.

For additional information, contact Denise Schneider, purchasing agent for the City of Oviedo at 977-6058, or George Millmann, purchasing agent for the City of Casselberry, at 283-3909.

Crossing guards wanted

SANFORD — The Seminole County sheriff's department is now accepting applications for school crossing guards. Applications will be accepted through Friday, June 21.

Applicants must be 18 years of age, a high school graduate, and must be available to work mornings and afternoons Monday through Friday.

The position pays $8 per hour for two or four hours per day, five days a week.

Applications may be picked up in person at the sheriff's office, 1345 28th Street, at the Orlando Sanford airport.

Warrant served for murder

CASSELBERRY — Seminole County sheriff's deputies served a warrant yesterday on Jonathan Hirsch, 32, of Casselberry, who was being held at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. Hirsch was wanted for murder.

According to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, Hirsch is accused of stabbing to death his mother-in-law, 47 year-old Carolyn Jones, on October 27, in Cincinnati where the victim lived.

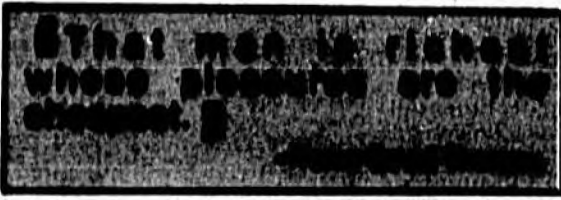

A Hamilton County, Ohio grand jury indicted Hirsch for aggravated murder on May 22 of this year. He is accused of traveling to Cincinnati in October of last year for the sole purpose of killing his mother-in-law.

A Big Romance

Cruise business thriving

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — One new change has already occurred in the Romance cruise operation with another scheduled within the next week or two.

The newest change is a 150-passenger ship, named the Queen Mary, now headquartered at one of the docks off Seminole Boulevard. Romance President/owner Bill Sternberg said the ship was purchased for use by groups for special events.

"We bought it about six months ago," Sternberg explained. See Cruise, Page 5A

You too can some day tell your grandchildren you had a party aboard the Queen Mary. The newest addition to the Romance Cruises is now housed in Sanford and ready for service along the St. Johns River.

Meeting future needs

LAKE MARY — Leaders of Florida cities routinely plan five years ahead, with Lake Mary officials no exception as they launch into an extensive study of the five-year budget plan at a special workshop Thursday.

While there are several projects under consideration during the five-year period, commissioners will focus on three of them this week. They include specifications for a new police station, advanced life support services, and a new maintenance facility for the Parks and Recreation department.

Drug fight: 'We're all in this together'

Alex Yi, owner of the South West Food Store, made an impassioned appeal to the community for help as Commissioner Daryl McLain listened and made some suggestions during a meeting Monday night at the Second Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church.

SANFORD — Beneath a banner calling for a commitment to God, county and law enforcement leaders pledged their support to the Lockhart community in the fight to rid the area of drugs and related crime.

On Tuesday evening, a small crowd gathered in the sanctuary of the Second Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church on Airport Boulevard. The discussion focused on the drug trade that has settled in for business outside the South West Food Store, a convenience mart owned by Alex Yi.

Led by Seminole County Commissioner Daryl McLain and supported by ministers and community activists, the debate centered on what the community wanted and what government and law enforcement could legally do. There was also a discussion regarding the responsibility of the people in the community to making improvements.

"We're all in this together," said McLain. "We will work with you if you will work with us."

In March, fed up with seeing drug dealers openly hawking their wares in the parking lot of Yi's store, a group of community and church leaders stood to say they'd had enough and they wanted something done to move the dealers out of their community.

In an effort to do just that, the county had torn down a series of abandoned buildings formerly used as "crack houses" where drugs were both sold and used. Without the buildings, the dealers simply moved to the South West Food Store parking lot.

Law enforcement officials expect they chose that location because it allowed them to see deputies approaching from a long distance and they could easily run into the surrounding neighborhood to elude officers.

Three months ago, the Rev. Henry Bradley began a petition drive in the community to protest what he and others perceived as inaction on the part of the county leaders, including McLain, and the sheriff's department. Last night, Bradley said he believed the community needed to be a part of the equation to make a difference.

"There are 60 people who signed that petition," he said. "That's 60 people who are wanting to make a difference."

Bradley and others who spoke noted they grew up in the community and did not want to be

Interstate construction under way

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

Construction will be taking place along local areas of Interstate-4 during the next year. Work which got under way Monday night is not expected to cause any severe delays, but work later in the year may prove to be a problem.

The work which got under way last night, involves a seven mile area of I-4 between Lee Road and S. Orange Blossom Trail in the Orlando area.

Department of Transportation spokesman Steve Homan said approximately 20 percent of the highway will be resurfaced. "Because the areas are concrete," he said, "they have to wait four to six hours to cure, and because all of the work will be done during nighttime hours, only about three hours of actual work can be accomplished before they have to wait for the curing process."

Homan said the work is expected to take about nine months to complete.

The other work could begin in just two months. See Road, Page 5A

Students value curling up with good book

By VICKI DeBORNIER

SANFORD — Curling up with a good book is how many of us will spend free time this summer.

Many Goldsboro Elementary School students have spent much of the school year in similar fashion. Reading a book a day (in some cases as many as a half dozen a day) the 100 or so members of the Golden Eagle Book club read nearly 30,000 books during the 1995-96 school year. "I really like to read," said third grader Alex Ennis. "I always have liked to read."

Alex reads two or three books a day, he said, mostly adventure books and books that allow you

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

University embarking on new construction, environmental plan

Grimes passes gavel to Kagan

TALLAHASSEE — State Supreme Court Justice Gerald Kagan took the oath for a two-year term as chief justice of the seven-member panel, with Gov. Lawton Chiles and legislative leaders looking on.

Kagan took the gavel Monday from Justice Stephen Grimes, who during his two years as chief justice has pushed for more respect, understanding and money for the judicial branch.

Chiles, who must act by the end of the week on the Legislature's nearly $40 billion budget proposal for the next fiscal year, jokingly asked how he should treat the spending request for the judicial branch.

Kagan, 68, was sworn in by Grimes as Florida's 47th chief justice.

A native of Brooklyn, N.Y., Kagan moved to Miami Beach when he was 14 years old. He attended the University of Miami and went to law school after his father talked him out of becoming a doctor.

Kagan worked as a lawyer for 25 years, including several as a prosecutor in the Dade County state attorney's office, before becoming a Dade County circuit judge in 1966.

He was appointed to the state Supreme Court in January 1967 by then-Gov. Bob Martinez.

Grimes, appointed with Kagan, continues on the court. The Ferris, Okla., native and Chicago Cubs baseball fan, was presented a Cubs cap and tickets to a Cubs home game.

FORT MYERS — Florida's newest tax-supported university is taking shape in southwestern Florida, but the debate over whether the school will damage the fragile environment it's built on is far from over.

Experts working for Florida Gulf Coast University say construction won't harm the surrounding wetlands, and will actually make the environment better. Doubtfuls say that refrain sounds similar to any construction in sensitive areas.

In order to get the necessary building permits, the university had to agree in a 10-year plan to restore the natural health of 577 acres of wetlands and other areas drained and infested with exotic plants.

The plan also calls for improving and protecting another 181 acres of drier upland and creating more than 50 acres of brand new wetlands on the 700-acre site.

The goal is to restore the uplands and wetlands that will cleanse water and conserve it, nurturing a healthy environment on the site and sending high-quality water downstream to the Suwannee River and Suwannee Bay.

Environmentalists who fought against putting the campus of the state's 10th public university in southern Lee County feared the damage to and surrounding development could do to the wetlands and the habitat of the endangered Florida panther.

But their doomsday scenario won't happen, according to those in the business of environmental restoration.

"It had marginal value (as natural environment). It has marginal value today," said Kevin Erwin, the university's environmental consultant, whose firm came up with the wetland restoration plan. "It would have had less value at time gone on because of the exotics, drainage and lack of management of the property."

The wetlands are infested with melaleuca and other exotic like Brazilian pepper. These plants multiply quickly, crowding out native vegetation and raising native wildlife habitat.

A network of drainage ditches diverts natural water flow resulting in overdrainage of site, which also makes it ripe for exotic infestation. Logging and wildfires have exacerbated the damage.

Men accused in drugging, rape

WEST PALM BEACH — Two men have been charged with raping a woman outside a nightclub after putting a memory loss-inducing drug into her drink.

Gregg Tippett, 24, a Boynton Beach travel agent, and Michael Hummel, 31, a Lake Worth tile contractor, assaulted the 20-year-old woman in a Swan Room nightclub parking lot on Feb. 28 after spiking her drink with a drug known as GHB, sheriff's deputies said.

Investigators said a blood test showed that the Starbuck Beach woman was sedated with gamma hydroxy butyrate, a synthetic weight-loss drug that causes memory loss.

The drug produces a state of euphoria but can also cause nausea, breathing problems and a slowed heartbeat. The side effects are more severe if the nonprescription drug is mixed with alcohol.

"Young women going into any nightclub need to be cautious," Palm Beach County sheriff's Sgt. Tom Neighbors said. "Don't leave your drink on the table when you go off to dance."

Arrests are rare in GHB cases because of memory loss. But a blood test confirmed the drug was in the victim's system, Neighbors said.

An arrest report said a nightclub employee witnessed the assault in a vehicle in a dark corner of the parking lot. Deputies found plastic bottles of GHB in the vehicle's glove box, the report said.

Tippett and Hummel were arrested Friday and remained today in the county jail without bond.

Report: Democrats offer to pay fines

TALLAHASSEE — Florida Democrats have offered to pay more than $45,000 in fines and costs to avoid charges that the party violated campaign spending laws in several state Senate races in 1974, a newspaper reported.

Party officials acknowledged charges raised last week and said violations weren't intentional, the Tampa Tribune reported today.

"The decision was made to move on and get the state clear and get some procedure in there that everybody has confidence in," said Mark Heron, a Tallahassee lawyer representing the Florida Democratic Party.

The state Division of Elections began investigating the party last year. A review of records of eight Democratic Senate races found evidence of at least 10 instances where the party "willfully" broke state laws, state records show.

The investigation showed Democrats exceeded the $50,000 limit on contributions to individual candidates, reported spending cash on one candidate while actually giving it to another and provided an inaccurate accounting of how money was spent on candidates.

Under a proposed settlement the Florida Elections Commission is expected to consider Thursday, the Democrats would pay $16,000 in civil penalties and $29,327 in costs associated with investigating and prosecuting the four related elections division cases.

"We acknowledge there were shortcomings in the party's procedure for record keeping during the last campaign," said Jo Higgins, the party's communications director. "That was unfortunate but in no way was it intentional."

The seven-member appointed FEC has final say over findings made by the elections division.

The division's primary case is filed against Democratic Party Chairwoman Torris Brady.

Crawford pushes tomato import duties

By The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Mexican imports have caused serious financial injury for U.S. tomato and bell pepper growers, Florida Agriculture Commissioner Bob Crawford said.

"Without question, Florida's tomato and pepper farmers have been devastated," Crawford told a U.S. International Trade Commission public hearing in Washington, D.C. on Monday.

He urged the panel to stick with a preliminary finding that the imports hurt U.S. growers, and to recommend that President Clinton slap stiff tariffs on them.

Crawford's office hopes presidential politics will add to the pressure for tariffs once ITC and U.S. Commerce Department recommendations reach the White House.

"Florida is a critical state" to Clinton's fall re-election bid, Crawford spokesman Terry McElroy has said.

The U.S. Agriculture Department said earlier this year that increasing competition from Mexico significantly reduced Florida's share of the U.S. market for a variety of fresh winter vegetables.

As recently as the winter of 1981-1982, Florida farmers produced 87 percent of the winter vegetables sold in the United States. A year ago, the share had dropped to 58 percent, USDA said.

The agency said Florida's 1985 tomato shipments dropped 48 percent from 1984, while Mexican sales in the U.S. rose 147 percent.

Sanford has most false alarms

By The Associated Press

SANFORD — If the city fined the biggest subject of sounding false alarms, it would have had to shut out over 50,000.

Usually the domain of restaurant bids at school, false alarms in Sanford are coming from city property in unusual numbers.

Government facilities accounted for almost 18 percent of the false alarms in the six months ended Jan. 31. More than half of those were at city facilities.

Police responded to false alarms 147 times at the Public Works Department shop, the most of any city facility. The calls would have generated $6,155 in fines, but the city doesn't fine itself.

During the same time frame, police responded to 45 other false alarms at city buildings, including 13 at City Hall.

"As far as I'm concerned, the city needs to get their alarms fixed and comply with the ordinance," said police Cmdr. Dennis Whitmore.

While the city is exempt from fines, government agencies are not.

The Sanford Housing Authority was cited for 66 false alarms at its office at Castle Brewer Court, Executive Director Timothy Hudson doesn't consider them false.

Hudson attributed almost all the alarms to attempted break-ins. A loud siren scares them off, police find nothing and mark it up as a false alarm, he said.

"Trust me, (would-be) burglars did not do it off," Hudson said. "These are evil people trying to do harm."

He said he understands the need to compensate the city for responding to the alarms. And where does that money come from? "The taxpayers," said Hudson, whose agency receives federal funds.

School officials said they are said Whitmore, indicates the ordinance works.

Officers tend to let their guard down when they respond to the same location time after time for false alarms, Whitmore said. That creates a dangerous situation because the next alarm may be genuine, he said.

The Public Works Department is working to reduce the false alarms, said Director Jerry Harman.

Although the Sanford Housing Authority was cited for 66 false alarms at its office at Castle Brewer Court, Executive Director Timothy Hudson doesn't consider them false.

Hudson attributed almost all the alarms to attempted break-ins. A loud siren scares them off, police find nothing and mark it up as a false alarm, he said.

"Trust me, (would-be) burglars did not do it off," Hudson said. "These are evil people trying to do harm."

He said he understands the need to compensate the city for responding to the alarms. And where does that money come from? "The taxpayers," said Hudson, whose agency receives federal funds.

School officials said they are frustrated they have to pay fines because they allow the city's recreation department to use their facilities for after-school, evening and weekend events.

Sanford Middle School Principal Bill Moore said the city uses his school about four evenings a week and most weekends, yet he was given no consideration when he asked for a waiver of fines.

Moore said he thinks some of his false alarms occur while the city is using the school, but recreation officials said they were not aware of that.

Still, Moore called the $615 in fines during the six-month period a small price to pay for protecting the school's equipment.

The biggest nongovernment offender during the six-month period was Sears at Seminole Towne Center. There were 26 false alarms at the mall store, which was fined $1,050.

Crash

Lake Mary police arrested Lyle G. Rasmussen, 29, of Altamonte Springs Saturday. Officers found in a 1981 Buick Wildcat, a vehicle with an engine block and valve train that the vehicle eventually crashed and flipped over at the Lake Mary exit of Interstate-4, and the person in the vehicle ran from the area. Rasmussen was subsequently located and identified as the driver. He was charged with first-degree involvement in an accident with injury, failure to stop, and failing to return a driver's license following three individual suspensions.

Traffic stops

Michael L. Ruderman, of 215 W. 7th Street, Sanford, was stopped by sheriff's deputies at Colony and Leontine Sunday. He was charged with driving with a suspended/restricted license (habitual offender).

Angel A. Meranda, 65, of Deltona, was stopped by deputies at SR-118 and Colony Avenue Friday. He was charged with driving under the influence.

Michelle Lynn Dean, 25, 1011 Strawberry Avenue, Sanford, was stopped by deputies at 12th Street and Seacrest Road Saturday. She was charged with operating a motor vehicle with a suspended/restricted/restricted license.

Bobby Lee Dewey, 25, of Altamonte Springs, was stopped by Lake Mary police on Interstate-4 Saturday. He was charged with driving under the influence.

Marion Ramirez, 26, of Geneva, was stopped by Sanford police on U.S. Highway 17-92 Saturday. He was charged with driving with a suspended/restricted license and criminal driving.

Retail thefts

Florida Highway Patrol troopers arrested two DeLand women Friday at the Seminole Towne Center. Officers said the women attempted to take a pair of shorts and a top, valued at $65.50 each, without paying. Nikki Johnson, 24, and Deborah Cooper, 25, were each charged with theft.

Domestic cases

Kathi D. Williams, 26, of Edward Higdon Terrace, was arrested by Sanford police at her residence Sunday following a reported dispute with her son. She was charged with battery, domestic violence.

Feres Lorentz Perry, 26, 59 Castle Brewer Court, was arrested by Sanford police Sunday following a reported altercation with his niece. He was charged with battery, domestic violence.

U.S. attack bomber mistakenly shot down by Japanese vessel

By Bill Stribling, Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU — A Japanese destroyer accidentally shot down a U.S. attack bomber during joint military exercises off Hawaii. Its two American crew members ejected safely and were rescued in good condition.

Japan quickly apologized for the accident, which happened at 7:15 p.m. HST Monday (11:15 a.m. EDT today) as the U.S. Navy's A-6E Intruder was towing a gunnery target 1,800 miles west of Hawaii. The Japanese vessel Yuugiri fired at the target but hit the plane, and it crashed in the Pacific.

The pilot and bombardier, whose names were not immediately released, were rescued within minutes by the Yuugiri and were able to walk on their own power. Japanese officials said one crew member had a minor cut to the abdomen, the other only bruises. The men were taken by helicopter to their home ship, the aircraft carrier USS Independence, and were expected to arrive back in Honolulu by Saturday.

"It's a unique and unfortunate accident, but it's not a tragedy because we recovered both crew members in good condition," Capt. Steve Clavess, spokesman for the U.S. Pacific Fleet.

The Japanese Defense Agency apologized to the U.S. military and decided to halt shooting practice using live ammunition, said spokesman Tomohide Masumura.

The 490-foot Yuugiri, which carries a crew of about 300, was using a 22 mm weapons system capable of firing bursts of 2,000 rounds per minute, said Tetsuaki Kobayashi, a Japanese navy official.

Kobayashi said mechanical trouble in the weapons system may have caused the accident. "Apparently the missiles were launched when they weren't meant to be," he said.

Cmdr. Keith Arbuthorn of U.S. Pacific Fleet said he couldn't confirm whether a mechanical malfunction was at fault.

Pentagon spokesman George Lennon in Washington said the Japanese reported the downing immediately back through the various chains of command. Japan Defense Agency official Tomohide Masumura said eight Japanese escort vessels, a supply ship, flying corps, eight submarine chasers and one submarine were participating in the month-long exercises, which began May 22.

The annual maneuvers — called RIMPAC, for Rim of the Pacific — were launched by Australia, New Zealand, the United States and Canada in 1971. New Zealand later withdrew from the group. Japan has been participating since 1980.

This is the first such accident involving Japan since it began participating in the RIMPAC exercises, Kobayashi said.

In the exercises, the participants are divided into teams that conduct mock wars. One team stages a mock defense of Hawaii while the other tries to capture it.

From the Japanese side, 1,200 naval personnel and 100 air force members are participating.

It has to be a partnership

Some progress is apparently being made in ending the amount of tax money being paid in Florida for welfare recipients. Of course, nothing is perfect, and there may be some honest people who will get hurt financially, but overall, we see this as a good step forward.

The first eight women, all from Pensacola, have now been cut from the welfare rolls under the state's experimental get-tough policy of dumping recipients who don't get a job within two years.

"They're probably very surprised," said state Rep. Cynthia Chestnut, D-Ocala, one of the chief sponsors of Florida's 1985 welfare reform plan.

Florida is the first state in the nation to introduce such a policy. It is being handled in cooperation with the Family Transition Program.

Women who are working out a personal plan with case workers and pursuing it are having good luck getting jobs, said Don Winstead, who oversees welfare reform statewide.

"So far, I think we can say having time limits definitely increases the sense of urgency for everybody — participants and staff alike. It really focuses attention on getting people off welfare," he said.

Even here in Sanford and Seminole County, we often hear about people who drive to a bank to cash their welfare checks in brand new clothes.

It's not surprising, then, why these people live such nervous lives, but you must admit, seeing this has a tendency to get people who are footing the tax burden, relatively upset.

In the case of these eight women, the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services said all but one seemed to have someone who could help out financially and the women can still get food stamps under a separate program.

Statistics are compiled from time to time, showing the number of welfare fraud cases we have locally and in the state. These who hold down a job and pay their taxes would be upset if they saw the numbers and what it is costing.

This is apparently the first step in helping reduce this expense. It will, without a doubt, end up in some court eventually. But we hope that it will be given the go-ahead.

"We hope the message will get out that the state is getting serious about this problem. As Don Winstead said, "If you want to enter the program, get trained and work to help improve your life situation, we're willing to work with you. But it has to be a partnership."

Sobriety day

A humorous attitude is commonly placed on alcohol. Such an attitude of amusement obscures the reality of propagating a culprit of tragedy in the lives of thousands. Furthermore, the seeds of destruction that are planted in people's minds under the guise of good humor, wreak havoc upon men's souls as they take root in the sadness of lost lives. ... and what could have been.

The need to us as a people is great: diversity, lost intelligence, 50 percent of all violent crime is under the influence of alcohol, 50,000 babies born with retardation and deformities due to fetal alcohol syndrome every 10 years, and their heartbroken parents. Over 100,000 untimely homicides, deaths and over 10,000,000 painful injuries due to drunk drivers every 10 years!

Perhaps a proclamation of a day each year, for remembrance of life-saving information about the dangers of alcohol. Similar to the National Suicide Out Day for cigarettes. A day for us to be reminded of the serious dangers of alcohol. A day for all Americans to start enjoying staying sober; many feelings of beauty, nature, gender and truth, are only available to sober minds.

A National Sobriety Day would mean happier lives for thousands of us each year. Safe roads for us all. A stronger country with healthier, smarter people. Remember to tell those who drink: Don't drink and cruise, sleep in your car, take a taxi, or have a sober friend drive.

A National Sobriety Day is certain to save lives. You can help save lives today, by asking the President to proclaim a National Sobriety Day, by writing him at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, DC 20500.

Hoping to remember a good future, and a long life.

A good case for day-care at work

It sounds like a win-win situation for everyone. Working parents take their kids to a day-care center located on the company premises. The kids have the security of knowing that Mom or Dad is in the next room or building. The parents are equally at ease. Not only can they check in with the kids and monitor their care, they can also avoid the mad dash between company punch-out time and day-care center closing time.

The employer, in turn, is rewarded with increased productivity in the form of fewer absences, lower turnover rates, increased loyalty, higher morale, and a more focused, less stressed work force.

Patagonia, an outdoor gear company located in Ventura, Calif., estimates that it saves anywhere from $18,000 to $60,000 in turnover costs — employment advertising, agency fees, training time, etc. — for each working parent who stays with this company to take advantage of its high-quality day-care center.

"I want employees who feel secure enough at home that they can be creative while at work. I want them focused. And if they're distracted by guilt, they can't focus. We don't provide these benefits because we're nice. We provide them because it's good for our company," said Patagonia Chairman Yves Chouinard at the recent White House Conference on Corporate Citizenship.

Chouinard's words are echoed by executives at many companies, including Campbell's Soup, Prudential Insurance and Johnson & Johnson's. These companies not only avoid the high cost of child-related absenteeism — an estimated $6 billion a year nationwide — they are also enjoying a lot of free publicity in stories like this.

It all sounds great, but it also begs the question: If on-site child-care is so cost-effective, why do so few employers provide it? I posed this question to several work-family experts, and the following are the most commonly cited: "When you say 'on-site child-care center,' people just see dollar signs without thinking about the long-term savings," says Wilburn.

"The lack of a Federal Advisory Service, Meritt Brantley Kropf, vice president of Research and Advisory Services for Catalyst, says that in order for a company to get on-site day-care, they must have a senior manager who is strongly backed by it. "A lot of companies will say, 'Let us make a commitment, we don't understand child care.'"

Kropf also says many high-level executives don't understand the pressures that working parents face. "A lot of companies are organized around an understanding of the work force that is outdated. They are organized with the assumption that someone is at home taking care of these things."

And this, says Kropf, will ultimately have to change. Because the problem of balancing work and families is right in front of us, but it's not going away.

"We don't provide these benefits because we're nice. We provide them because it's good for our company."

Just pretend we're individuals

Opponents of affirmative action wonder why blacks and other minorities don't just forget their group identity and learn to think of themselves in the American way: as individuals.

And whenever I hear someone speak that way, I find myself wondering: Where have you been?

Do such people think group identification is something that fell down on its face in order to ease a few jobs and college seats out of multi-racial white people? Do they believe blacks and other minorities actually prefer to live in a society that refuses to accept (or reject) them on the basis of the "content of their character"?

Two very different matters have put these thoughts on my mind. One is Ted Koppel's excellent "Nightline" series of last week (ABC-TV); the other, the New England Journal of Medicine's (NEJM) recent look at the link between minority physicians and minority health care.

Last Monday's "Nightline" discussion centered on Bridget Ward, a black woman who was chased out of her Section-8 home in Philadelphia's mostly white Bridesburg neighborhood on the explicit basis of her group identity.

Some of Ward's crowlike neighbors were almost indignantly opposed to their assertion that they saw her as a threat to their values, including their real estate values, solely because she is black. (Their subsequent discoveries that her rent on the Bridesburg house was paid by a government program and that she still owed money to one or more previous landlords reinforced, but did not account for, their determination to force her to leave.)

Tuesday's "Nightline" episode involved Greg Williams who didn't even know he wasn't white until, when he was 10, his father told him so. (His mother was white, and his father really is old enough to make him "black" in America.) Although Williams, who is now dean of the Ohio State University law school, told Koppel the discovery of his race didn't change his sense of who he was, or what he could accomplish, it did change the way many whites perceived him.

Expectations were lowered, doubts were expressed, race-based negatives surfaced. More recently, he said, a white woman who earlier had congratulated him for his "well-deserved" appointment to the law school later wondered whether he got the job "because he was black."

Did the problems endured by Ward and Williams (and by countless other minorities) stem from their refusal to think of themselves as individuals? Or was there, perhaps, another source?

The New England Journal of Medicine for

May 16 features a special article on black and Hispanic physicians in California. The authors (led by Miriam Komaromy) found two fascinating phenomena. First, areas where black or brown populations predominated had significantly lower doctor-to-population ratios, a finding that held for poor urban neighborhoods, middle-class neighborhoods and rural areas. Second, not only were black and brown physicians far more likely than whites to practice in these areas but they also tended to care for more patients and to accept more uninsured or Medicaid patients.

This rippling effect is the forgotten element of affirmative action. The tendency, especially on the part of opponents, is to talk about the unfairness of favoring black or brown individuals over white individuals. The position was taken explicitly by the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which ruled in March that it was unlawful for a state university to use race or ethnicity even as one factor in admissions decisions, even for "the wholesome practice of correcting perceived racial imbalances...."

As the NEJM article makes clear, racial imbalance, at least in the availability of medical care in California, is not merely "perceived." According to the Los Angeles Sentinel, American universities graduated only 970 black doctors last year. That is 6.5 percent of all medical school graduates, up only slightly from 5.8 percent in 1976.

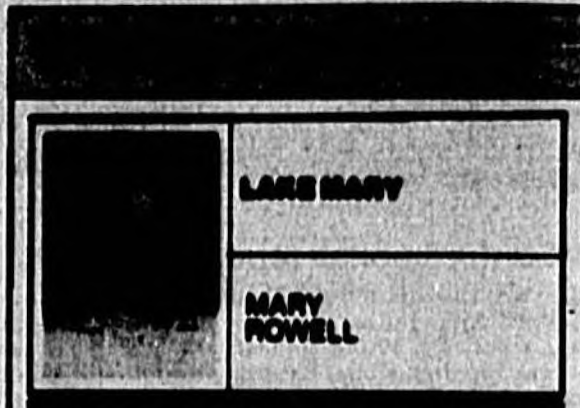

What is likely to happen to these percentages, and to the medical care available especially to low-income minorities, if the view of the 8th Circuit is upheld by the Supreme Court?

I don't like the idea of parading out the goodness of American life on the basis of group membership. But I am partial to common sense and reason.

Common sense tells me what some of Bridget Ward's neighbors made clear: Group identity still matters in America. How reasonable is it to tell minorities, and the institutions that are trying to correct at least some of the country's race-based injustices, that if we just pretend we are all mere individuals everything will be all right?

"Two very different matters have put these thoughts on my mind."

Summer of the dinosaur

I remember my carefree days of summer. We got out of school the end of May and I had to go back until the last of August. I spent the summer in Florida. And of course, there was always the family vacation.

Sometimes it was two weeks of torture, sometimes only one. I remember our last family vacation. I was 17 and had just finished my last year of high school. My three sisters were 16, 15 and 9.

My dad had been planning this vacation for quite some time. He had a big atlas and I don't know how many extra state maps. We were going to drive from McLean, Georgia to Denver, Colorado non-stop. Then, we'd head down to Texas and back over Georgia. We'd go through a bunch of states, but we'd only do photos at most. Going out, my mom and I did most of the driving. (My dad and my older sister have a disease called speeditis.) We took turns driving from sun up until about midnight. Then daddy would take over and drive overnight. After we hit Denver, we stopped the overnight driving.

Three places stand out in my mind from that trip: Arizona, Kansas, and Pike's Peak. My mom was driving through the wheat fields of Kansas on a moonlit night around 11. I was riding shotgun. I was beginning to doze off when Mama said, "Mary, did you see that?" I sat up and looked around. The road was a series of small hills. At the bottom, I saw nothing but wheat, but as we came to the top of the hill, I saw a very strange shape off in the distance. Each hill brought us closer to the shape. I couldn't tell what it was, but it was huge and it was moving. It was heading up and down. "This may sound crazy, but I think it's a dinosaur," Mama said. Topping the hill, I began to think my mother was right. The moon shone down on the dark beast and we both became a little afraid. We were debating whether to wake the rest of the family when I realized that the dinosaur only moved its head up and down. It wasn't moving any closer to the highway at all. "Mama, I don't think it's a dinosaur." Two hills later, we saw the beast for what it was. An oil rig.

I drove up Pike's Peak. I don't know if it's changed, but at the time, the road up Pike's Peak was a narrow two lane dirt road. My mother is terrified of heights as she chose to sit on the floor of the van. My 9 year old sister, Kathryn Margaret, decided to terrify my mother. "Oh, my gosh, Mama," she said looking out the window. "You won't believe how close we are to the edge! We almost went over that time," she'd say. "I can't believe you let Mary drive. We're so high up, I can't see the bottom!"

My poor mother got a little pale and a little greener with each statement. My father tried to reassure my mother, but Kathryn Margaret was such a good actress. My mother was convinced we were doomed to end up at the bottom of Pike's Peak.

There was times during that trip when I decided I never wanted to see anyone in my family ever again. (Watch the train come in Washington, Virginia and you'll see what I mean.) And there were times when I didn't want the trip to end; I wanted us to stay together as a family forever. We all grew up, we became very different people, I guess we always were, but now the differences are more obvious. But we will always be family. And I will never forget that trip. I will never forget the night we rode, and I will never forget the dinosaur and, briefly, beloved.

Drugs

driven out by the drug dealers.

"I was raised on Strickland Avenue. I raised 10 of my children here," Bradley said. "Strickland Avenue was the quietest, cleanest street around. Now it is the filthiest street in town. I don't want to move to Dallas or any of those fancy neighborhoods. I want to live right here. I want to clean up this area."

Though John Curry, with a pharmacy of the state cabinet regarding customer shipment checked freely in his hand, continued to call for the county to shut down Yi's establishment. McLain, Undersheriff Steve Harriott and community members agreed to work with Yi rather than put him out of business.

"That statute is not going to solve the problem without community support," McLain said. "We're all on the same page, we just need to work together."

Yi said he is fighting the dealers as best he can. When he sees someone he suspects of selling drugs he contacts the sheriff's department. Trespass warnings are issued. He has contacted several of the alleged dealers.

On Sunday he did that and on Monday morning he arrived at the store to find no electricity or phone service in the store.

"They'd ripped my electric box off the wall and cut the phone off, too," he said, his voice shaking and tears welling up in his eyes. "I'm scared. I want these people out too."

Harriott said the sheriff's department had a well-established neighborhood policing unit in place in the community, but he asked for community support in helping them make a difference.

"We need to discipline those thugs that think they own that corner," he said. "But we need your help. We need you to call those deputies who work in this neighborhood with specific information. You can't just call and say they're selling drugs at 18th and Southwest. We know that. You have to tell us that Johnny Smith is selling drugs. He's wearing a blue and white striped shirt and jeans that are out of. The drugs are in his right front pocket."

With information like that, Harriott explained, deputies will have "probable cause" to go through and search the dealers.

But, he noted, because of some inadequacies in the police system, the "same people" are arrested on Monday and taken out here on Wednesday. A more permanent solution must be found.

Despite the problems, Harriott and McLain said they see a lot of promise in the community and had high hopes for the future of the community.

"Let's associate the police here," Harriott said. "This is a strong community. We all need to work together to solve this problem."

Cruise

"It had arrived at a major vessel in the Chicago area. We have since had it completely refurbished and installed new power, carpeting, furnishings and equipment as it's in the best of condition."

Storberg said it took over 20 days to transport the 60 by 27-foot ship from Chicago to Green Cove Springs in Florida, a distance of 2,700 miles. "That's where we had the refurbishing work done," he said. "Now it's here in Sanford and ready to go into service."

The second change in the passenger operation will be in the major dining areas. The present restaurant, a 20 by 20-foot room, is to be replaced by another ship, one to be named Passenger. The restaurant, with a passenger capacity of 200 persons and seating capacity of 170, is being leased to a company in the Bahamas, and is expected to leave Sanford as early as next week.

"This will be six lanes, three in each direction, I-4 from the 89-484 interchange to Lake Mary, a distance of 4.7 miles," Hansen said. "This will include a widening of the bridge over 89-484 because that's where the wider highway presently tapers off."

The bids were opened on April

24, and Hubbard Construction of Orlando was selected as low bidder, for a project cost of slightly over $24 million.

Hansen said the work should begin in August of this year, and while there are bound to be some inconveniences to motorists during the actual construction, there are not expected to be any changes of present lanes unless something unforeseen occurs.

The top readers in the Golden Eagle Book Club, took a break with their trophies recently. In the front row were the top readers in each grade level (left to right) kindergartner Jonathan "Ryan" Fisher, first grader Ricky Fisher, third grader Alex Ennis, fourth grader Melissa Perry and fifth grader Gigi Germa. Second grader Rashelle Baker was to choose the path of the story. During this school year, he read 343 books.

Fifth grader Autumn Shearler read 80 chapter books this school year.

"I love Sweet Valley books and Goosebumps the best," she said. "I guess I'll read other things too."

She said she got interested in reading as many chapter books as she could during the school year because of the Golden Eagle Book Club. She said she was "bored" and taking part in the reading program gave her something to do.

Summer will bring a little reading, but she probably won't keep up the same pace that she did during the school year.

Kindergartner Jonathan "Ryan" Fisher logged 1,266 books read during the school year. Most of the books were read with the help of his mother, but he has developed an appreciation of reading and thinks he'll like reading even when he has to do it on his own.

"I like to read about fishing," he said. "Fishing books are my favorite."

Teacher Janice Miller said she tries to emphasize the importance of reading with her students, but wants to make sure they are well-rounded and involved in other things as well.

Alex likes to play catch with his father and will be joining a Little League team next year. Autumn likes to take part in other activities at school.

Fifth grader Gigi Germa joined the Golden Eagle Book Club simply because she wanted to win a prize.

"I like to read anyway, but I wanted to get a trophy," she explained.

Germa read 250 books. Her favorites are mysteries, because she likes to try to solve the mystery before the characters in the book do.

Some of the students read just to read. First grader Rick Fisher logged 1,266 books this year. He said he read a lot of those on his own, but he thinks his mother read a lot to him as well.

several months ago, which basically addressed these matters.

While nothing has been officially agreed upon as of yet, plans for the new Public Safety Building call for a 4.5-acre emergency facility with 11,000 gross square footage. It will house the police department.

There is also the possibility of a second floor addition.

The present Public Safety Building will be renovated to accommodate the Building Department and Fire Department, with some of the space to be used jointly with police.

The existing public works facility would also be refurbished, and a new emergency generator is to be added.

According to plans presently being discussed, the new public safety building addition (the police) will be built back there on the present building site. Work on the public works facility will be able to get under way.

Improvements for the fire department will be aimed at upgrading emergency medical services. In addition to facility work, retaining of current staff personnel will also be required, as well as the acquisition of additional state-of-the-art equipment.

The city has already determined that the Parks and Recreation Department is in need of maintenance and storage facilities. The present maintenance building in the old Lake Mary building is being used for storage.

Discussions on these items and a review of the 1968 five-year program is scheduled during the workshop session of the Lake Mary City Commission this Thursday, beginning at 8 p.m., in the commission chambers of Lake Mary City Hall, 100 N. Country Club Road.

Singleton, who gained 1,356 yards as a senior last season, was accused in May 1984 of breaking the jaw of David Santanilla during a fight outside a restaurant. He was also fined $14,000.
The Buccaneers also resigned tight end Dave Moore and claimed offensive lineman Matt Sonzogni off waivers from San Francisco.

Dolphins sign two, lose one

MIAMI — Miami Dolphins tackle Ron Heller retired after 13 NFL seasons as the team signed free agent linebacker Jack Del Rio and re-signed quarterback Bernie Kosar.
Heller, 33, started seven games at right tackle in 1985 before going on the injured reserve list after having surgery on both knees.
The 6-4, 346-pound Del Rio was the starting middle linebacker the past four seasons for the Minnesota Vikings. He started in nine games in 1985 and finished the fourth-leading tackler with 70 tackles, a career-high three sacks, two forced fumbles and one fumble recovery.
Kosar played in nine games with two starts last season. He completed 74 of 108 for 699 yards, three touchdowns and five interceptions.

Jaguars sign Davis, Thomas

JACKSONVILLE — The Jacksonville Jaguars signed cornerback Dave Thomas and safety Travis Davis to new contracts Monday.
Thomas, 27, was signed by the Jaguars as the 14th choice in the 1985 expansion draft, played in all 16 games in 1985, with two starts.
Davis, 25, started five games in 1985 after being signed as a rookie free agent from the New Orleans Saints' practice squad on Oct. 17.

Davis makes history
Lake Mary woman to pitch for Jacksonville Suns

By BOB FERGUSON
AP Sports Writer

JACKSONVILLE — Lake Mary's Pamela Davis thought she had realized her dream of playing professional baseball when she made the Colorado Silver Bullets' women's team.
It's not about to stop there.
Davis will pitch tonight for the Double-A Jacksonville Suns in an exhibition game against the Australian Olympic team, becoming the first woman to play for a major league farm club.
"I'm trying not to put my mind on that," said Davis, a 31-year-old right-hander with a fastball that approaches 80 mph. "I'll try to stay relaxed and throw strikes because I'll have a good defense behind me. I just want to go out there and make it another ball game."
It won't be easy. A woman has never played for a sanctioned men's professional team. Davis has been told this from the time she played for the baseball team at Lake Mary High School.
"I'll be living a dream out there," she said.
Davis will be following other women who have tried to make it to the top of a men's professional league — Ann Meyers, who tried out in the NBA with the Indiana Pacers in 1979, and Manon Rheume, who played in goal for the Tampa Bay Lightning in an NHL preseason game in 1982.
The Southern League, which announced the promotion in March, couldn't have found a better candidate than Davis.
She played for Altamonte Springs in 1980 and was the first girl to pitch in the Junior League World Series, a 7-3 victory over Canada.
"It would be nice if she does well," said Arnold Feltow, president of the Southern League. "But just her appearance in the game, quite honestly, is a very good beginning. It shows that a woman can get an opportunity. Hopefully, she'll showcase her talents."
The opportunity is part of the Southern League's "Give the Girl a Chance" program, which involves clinics for girls at various cities. The league agreed with the Silver Bullets to allow one of its players to join a pro team for a game.
"She's the best we've got right now," said Silver Bullets manager Phil Niekro. "She's earned the start and place in history."
Davis, who played softball for the University of South Florida and plans to go to medical school, is the best starter for the Silver Bullets. She has a 2-2 record with a 1.88 ERA, striking out 23 in 28 and two-thirds innings.

In her last start, May 25 against the Fort Bragg All-Stars, she went seven innings without allowing an earned run in a 5-3 victory.
Suns manager Bill Plummer, who has never seen Davis play, says she will pitch one or two innings of middle relief.
"I think because it's an exhibition game it'll be fine," Plummer said. "She wants to see what it's like. I don't know what kind of competition she'll be facing. It's not like she's facing a Double-A offensive club. It's more for publicity, and it's good for the Silver Bullets."
Davis couldn't have picked a better team — the Suns are an affiliate of the Detroit Tigers, who have the worst ERA in the majors at 7.00.
But this isn't about showing she can play in the majors. Davis is interested mainly in showing Little League girls that they should never give up on their dreams.
"This isn't just for me. It's for all the little girls that are playing baseball now. If they see me getting a chance, they'll realize it's not impossible. Maybe I can help some girl that's 8 or 9 right now get to the major leagues someday."
"If people think it's a joke, that's how they feel. I'm just going out to play baseball for the Jacksonville Suns."

Ben Hubbard awaits the throw as the Braves retired the White Sox' Johnathan Bean at third base in the first inning. The Braves made the big defensive play all day as they wrapped up the City Championship Saturday.

Braves clinch LML City Championship

From Staff Reports

BANFORD — Just like their major-league brethren did last fall, the Enterprise Trucking-Braves proved that their super regular season was no fluke as they claimed the Sanford Recreation Department Little Major League City Championship Series in two games.
Unlike last Thursday in Game one when they waited until the top of the seventh inning to pull off a 1-0 victory, the National Division champions jumped on the Stars White Sox for six runs in the bottom of the first inning and cruised to a 6-3 winning victory at Sunniland Field on Saturday.
The victory closed off a season in which the Braves posted a league-best 14-1 regular season record and an overall mark of 16-2. The White Sox, the American Division champions, were 12-2 in the regular season and 14-5 overall.
Jeremy Heckle reached on an error leading off the bottom of the first inning for the Braves, but he was erased on a grounder by Jason Sondheim. Mike Meeks walked and, after an out, James Boydara was hit by a pitch to load the bases.
The Braves then ripped four straight run-scoring hits. Ben Hubbard singled in a pair of runs and Robert Vanatta singled in one run. Keith Bertrand doubled in a run ahead of a two-run double by Chris Witte, the number nine hitter in the Braves line-up.
The Braves only had one runner reach third the rest of the game, but the damage had already been done.
The White Sox had at least two runners in each of the first four innings, but could not score against the Braves' Tyler Drake and Heckle.

The Sox finally got to Heckle and reliever Boydara in the fifth inning, scoring all three of their runs.
Witte got out and runners on first and second. Jason Smith singled in the White Sox' first run. The first three White Sox batters, Stuart Hicks, Darrell Jackson and Johnathan Bean all walked to force in the final two runs.
Facing the Braves were Bertrand (double, single, run, RBI), Witte (double, single, two RBI), Heckle (two singles), Hubbard (single, run, two RBI), Vanatta (single, run, RBI) and Sondheim, Meeks and Ronnie Bradley (one run scored each). Other members of the Braves were manager Ken Dryden and players Drake, Boydara, Turner, Davis, Matthew Pich and Jason Polaski.
Providing the offense for the White Sox were Eddie Dougherty (two singles), Smith (double, run, RBI), Kenny Scott and Frank Martin (one single each), Keith Wright and Danny Johnson (one run each) and Bean and Jackson (one RBI each). Other members of the White Sox were manager Frank Hicks, Luis Velaz, Reggie Grant, Josh Sovocool, Larry Thomas and Eddie Bloom.

Post 53 scored a run in the top of the first inning as Shaun Yates doubled and later scored on a single by Matt Krot.
But Post 112 answered with three runs in the home half of the first. Jeremy Kret led off with a bust single and stole second. With one out Neufeld was hit by a pitch and Devito followed with a single to score Krot. Joey McFarlane then singled in Neufeld and Devito.

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Triples by Tug Daniels and T.J. Thompson in the seventh and eighth inning, respectively, saved the Moose Lodge-Pirates Monday as the Sanford Recreation Department Babe Ruth Baseball League concluded its regular season at Sanford Memorial Stadium.
The Knights of Columbus-Cardinals had scored three runs in the top of the seventh inning to take a 6-3 lead, but an error allowed on run to score and Daniels tied the game with a two-out triple in the bottom of the seventh inning. Thompson then led off the eighth with another triple and James Drake followed with the game winning single as the Pirates won 7-6.
In game played Saturday, the Pirates edged the Elks

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation Department Spring Co-Ed Slowpitch Softball League returned to action at Pinehurst Park Monday night, but there was no change in the standings as both M.T. Muggs and D & D both cruised to easy victories.
D & D led just 5-3 after the first inning, but then scored the next 10 runs as it rolled to a 15-4 victory over Sunniland Corporation.
The second game was even more one-sided as M.T. Muggs broke a 0-0 tie with six runs in the second and
