

GRAPEFRUIT JUICE

Washington, April 29.—A simple method of bottling the juice of grapefruit for use in making acid beverages is advocated by the United States department of agriculture as a means of gaining a useful by-product from hundreds of thousands of cases of grapefruit which now are wasted. An investigation was undertaken at the urgent request of Florida grapefruit growers who reported that the market during the season would not take up a large proportion of the grapefruit crop, and asked the department to determine the possibility of utilizing the fruit of its juice in some profitable way.

All that is necessary, according to the government's fruit juice specialists is to bring the grapefruit juice to the boiling point in a porcelain lined or enameled kettle, pour it while still hot into bottles, which then are hermetically sealed. The juice, when so handled will keep indefinitely, and provides a base for grapefruit ade or other acid beverages having the characteristic acid, somewhat bitter flavor of the fruit. Experiments show, however, that it is highly important that the bottle be completely filled so that no layer of air be left between the top of the juice and the cork or seal. Where air in any amount comes in contact with the top of the sterilized juice it will cause the juice to change its color. In handling the juice it is particularly important that it be kept from coming in contact with iron or other metals easily acted upon by acids.

The investigators found also that it was possible to freeze the grapefruit juice solid and then by whirling the ice in a centrifugal machine, to take out a large part of the water and leave the solids and flavoring matter of the fruit. This freezing and concentrating of the juice greatly reduces the bulk and makes a product which can be sterilized by heating and kept indefinitely. Care must be taken to keep the juice from coming in contact with iron.

Those who wish to make a clear juice may filter the grapefruit juice before it is heated by adding to it from two to three per cent (about three ounces avoirdupois to the gallon) of infusorial or Fuller's earth well washed with hot water. The mixture is then forced through a non-metallic filter press and the clear juice reheated and bottled. With the freezing process, the juice is filtered after concentration, about twice the amount of infusorial or Fuller's earth being used per gallon of concentrate.

The chemists in connection with the bottling of grapefruit juice, notify the public that the same process is not suitable for bottling the juice of oranges and lemons, which will not retain their flavor if handled in this way.

While as yet, as far as known, there is no commercial market for sterilized grapefruit juice, it is believed that many persons will find this juice, with the addition of water and sugar a pleasant variation from lemonade or limeade. Those who like grapefruit should find the beverage inviting. The method is so simple that those in regions where grapefruit are cheap and plentiful can prepare this product on a small scale with ordinary household appliances.

World's Oldest University.
Founded in the year 972 A. D., the Mohammedan university of El-Azhar ("the Luminous") is the oldest existing university in the world. It is the Oxford of the Moslem world, and is at present attended by upward of 10,000 students of all ages, and from every eastern country, from the Caucasus to Somaliland. Board and lodging is free. The teaching consists chiefly of Mohammedan dogma, which is laboriously committed to memory from sacred books.

PLAYERS GETTING TOO MUCH

President Charles Ebbets of Brooklyn Team, Says Salaries Are Altogether Too High.

Charley Ebbets, president of the Brooklyn National League club, declares that salaries of ball players are away out of proportion to the value of services rendered by the men and that he for one does not intend to be held up by them any longer. If they are not satisfied with what he offers them they can jump to the Federal league. Discussing the subject not long ago Ebbets said:

"I've grown tired of coddling the players and submitting to their hold-up tactics. All last season I tried to keep my players in line by meeting the Federal league offers. That has cost me a lot of money. But I am through with those tactics.

"The whole gang can jump, if it wants to. They can't gouge me for another dollar. Salaries have been boosted far beyond proportion. Every dollar being made in baseball is going to the players these days.

"I'm offering my men salaries that I think are in keeping with what they earn. During the past year I have paid them salaries above their earning capacity. I'm through now. Any of my men who want to jump can jump. I'll fill their places; I'll get semipro, if necessary."

NEVER SAW BASEBALL GAME

Man Employed by Cleveland Club Twenty-Two Years Never Has Been Able to Witness Contest.

The oldest man connected with baseball has never seen a game.

He is David Riblet of Cleveland. For 22 years he has been present at every game in Cleveland's baseball park, and on such terms of intimacy with the stars of the diamond that they have called him "dad" and "Uncle," but David refers to the stars as "Mr. That's how much of a fan David is.

If Riblet lives until March 13 he will be ninety years old. For the last four years he has been the watchman in the club rooms of the Naps. He says he has reached the century mark.

"But I don't ever expect to see a ball game," adds Riblet. "You see, I'm one of those kind of men who always stick at their post, no matter what is happening near by them."

For 18 years Riblet operated the turnstiles at the bleacher gate. He says he sometimes grew a bit curious to learn what was happening when the thousands of fans shrieked their applause at some great play, but he never deserted his post of duty.

And now Riblet can't tell a three-base hit from a strikeout. "And I never got a chance even to think about such a thing as a baseball until I was past sixty years old," said Riblet.

Mining Tin One Woman's Work.
Mining tin to produce her operas and producing operas to make enough money to hold on to her Alaskan tin mines is the double profession of Miss Emma R. Steiner, who, broken down by her musical efforts in New York, went to Alaska to recuperate. Here she was struck with the gold fever, but while her "find" turned out to be tin and not gold, it promises to bring her in its weight in gold, especially in view of the precarious state of the smelters in Belgium, which has already led to the establishment of the first American smelters in Bolivia, much nearer to and therefore less expensive in the way of transporting raw material.

TO ENFORCE GAMBLING RULE

Manager Branch Rickey of St. Louis Browns Plans to Be Hard Boss — Ban on Card Games.

"I am going to offer no new rules. The players will not be permitted to gamble. That's an old rule, but wasn't enforced last season," said Manager Branch Rickey of the St. Louis Browns, the other day. "By gambling, I mean that the men must not wager for any sums that they cannot afford.

"No gambling will be permitted in the hotels. The players may promise to break up their games at eleven o'clock, but they seldom do that. So the ban is on gambling in the hotels, no matter what the promise is for calling the contest earlier, or of limited stakes.

"A little session on the train, under my observation, will be permitted. I can then see that the players cease card playing, and retire at a reasonable hour. I do not favor gambling, however."

WILDCAT WAS BIG AS GOAT

Alabama Hunter Kills Huge Bobcat Which Had Been Preying on Animals in Vicinity.

Bay Minette, Ala.—K. R. White, one of the leading hunters of this vicinity, is exhibiting a mammoth bobcat which he killed several days ago about five miles southeast of town. The animal is almost as large as a goat and is noted as one of the fiercest of the wild animals yet in the woods of this county. The animal has been preying on the smaller animals in the vicinity of the White home, and when chase was made the hunter and dogs were able to capture it. The fur is very pretty and it is highly prized by the owner.

EPIGRAMS OF GAYNOR.

There are people who think they are plums when they are only bilious.
The last thing we should try to do in this world is to force our religious opinions and prejudices on others.
Some people say they do not believe in God even. I do not believe them. No one can sincerely say that.
You ask me to give an interview saying what I would say to the readers of 3,000 newspapers. I would say to them to be very careful about believing all they see in the newspapers.
I know of no place where there is more philosophy than in a barnyard. You can learn much from animals. Within their circle they know much more than we do.
He who cares to do no more than he is paid for will never be paid for more than he does.
Public clamor is almost always in the wrong. It is so loud that we think it includes everybody, whereas, in fact, it may include very few. One stridentulous grasshopper in the angle of a fence makes more noise than the whole noble herd of cattle near by.—W. J. Gaynor, Late Mayor of New York.

MORE BRICK STREETS IN SANFORD CITY AND GROWING SUBURB

CITY COUNCIL DECIDES TO START PAVING ON THE HEIGHTS AS SOON AS FEASIBLE

Not only Seminole county but Sanford city is receiving publicity on account of the large amount of brick paving being done at the present time.

Last night a petition of the property owners on Sanford Heights for a brick road from Tenth street to Hughey avenue and from Park to Sanford on Hughey was presented and although the city treasury is sadly depleted the members of the city council were anxious to do something for the people who have been paying city taxes on suburban property and decided that the petition would be acted upon.

The operation of the ordinance is made contingent upon the ability of the property owners along the route raising some of the cash at once to defray the expenses of the brick and freight but this will be done and Sanford Heights will soon have a good brick paved street all the way to Sanford avenue.

Paving brick is much cheaper now than it has been in some time and the city council will pave as many streets as they can with the money on hand or that can be raised.

The work on Sanford Heights will not be started before August or September but it will be done and the good people out there are rejoicing over their good fortune.

Woodland Park Notes

The Eighth grade boys and girls of the Sanford Grammar School under the care of Messrs. Wildman and Christopher, Miss Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Brownlee and Mrs. Diederich had a glorious time at Woodland Park last Saturday. Four or five autos and a launch conveyed the lively youngsters, who made as much noise as a Gatling gun.

Snow in California

San Francisco, May 1. One of the worst storms that ever visited the Pacific coast has caused millions of dollars worth of damage in this state. Hail, wind, rain and snow have swept the California Coast for the past few days and the damage is untold.

Two persons are known to be dead and it was feared other lives were lost in the violent wind storm which last night reached a velocity of nearly one hundred miles an hour.

The wireless station on the Farallones disappeared to the leeward of the islands and wrecked later was washed ashore.

Property damage in this vicinity is estimated at other coast points is known to be considerable.

On Monterey Bay, fifty four small boats were piled up on the beach.

Record breaking cold weather followed the storm.

Orchards in California and Oregon suffered. In eastern Washington, Idaho and Montana the temperature fell twenty-five degrees in twelve hours.

In Los Angeles 44 degrees was registered at 6 a. m. today, the coldest since 1902.

Michigan Mosquitoes Ferde

Had you ever noticed how "thick" the mosquitoes are the past day or two?

You had? Well here's some inside information. They are not thick at all. They are thin. Seriously they are thin enough to crawl through the meshes of the screens.

Nearly everywhere one goes one hears about mosquitoes. Since Sunday morning when it warmed up they have been thicker than the proverbial fleas on the back of the neglected dog.

Mosquitoes seem to be no respecter of persons. Some perfectly good men have been seen clutching at their itching backs. Girls, too, they do hit. A young lady with which they come in their sudden and healthy gestures. It is also understood the little fellows attended church Sunday in Jackson's best houses of worship.

There is every indication that better marketing methods will this year result in the potato growers of St. Johns county realizing better returns upon their crop. The growers are working together quite well and by so doing avoid glutting any particular market so that there is no reason permitted to exist for a reduction in prices.

A NEW DIRECTORY FOR SANFORD WILL BE COMPILED SOON

THE PIEDMONT DIRECTORY COMPANY HAS REPRESENTATIVE HERE MAKING CANVASS

Sanford will have a new directory. The last directory for this city was published about three years ago and it is high time for a growing city of this size to come to the census again and have a first class directory.

Such a directory will be published by the Piedmont Directory Co., of Asheville, N. C., who are represented here by Mr. E. E. Mayfield, one of the most experienced directory men in the south.

Knowing that the city needed a directory The Herald investigated this company and finds that they have given satisfaction in every city in which they have published a directory. They are careful and correct in their statistics and their books can be relied upon in every particular.

Mr. Mayfield will make a canvass of the business men of the city and it is hoped that he will receive sufficient encouragement to enable him to give Sanford a good directory and one in keeping with the ever increasing population.

City directories are on file in many of the larger cities and business men of other cities are anxious to secure a Sanford directory, especially one that will be a comprehensive description of the city and its resources.

Let us have a new directory and get ready for the big winter season.

FROM OVER THE STATE

How it stands in the past fully supported with candidates for the various positions opened up by the creation of the new county. Already ambitious politicians are signifying their willingness to serve the new counties in the various capacities and the race for office is being almost completed.

There is every indication that better marketing methods will this year result in the potato growers of St. Johns county realizing better returns upon their crop.

A new aeronautic class of officers and men of the navy desiring to take up that work will be sent to the station at Pensacola for instruction by the government within a few days.

San Antonio, a town of less than four hundred population, has let the contract for a mile of sidewalks. Already of half of this amount has been completed.

Braxton Beacham of Orlando has let the contract for the erection of a colonial mansion on the site of his Orange avenue residence.

H. B. Coney now has a Ford car that will be equipped with a double deck arrangement for carrying Elder Springs water to Orlando and Sanford for the thirsty. Daily trips will be made and the water will be delivered to the door.

BIG SHIP YARD ON THE LAKE SHORE LATE IMPROVEMENT

SHERMAN MAKES ARRANGEMENTS TO COME TO SANFORD AND BEGIN OPERATIONS

Sanford will have the yacht club, the pavilion and the boat works on the lake shore, on the order of the plan as outlined in last Friday's Herald.

Mr. S. Sherman, the veteran boat builder who has made such a success at Beresford in the city yesterday and today and has made arrangements for his location on the F. L. Woodruff lot, between Sanford avenue and Cypress on the bulkhead. He appeared before the city council last night and was given permission to erect his ship yard to comply with the provision of the city ordinance and City Engineer Williams suggested to confer with Mr. Sherman and draw up an agreement with the city for a period of years.

This will be good news to the many people here who have been anxious to own a good launch but had no place to keep the same in time of storm. Mr. Sherman will have a first class ship yard where he can build any kind of boat, make all repairs and keep boats during the summer months for water tourists. He will also start a yacht club and have a pavilion and other amusements where the Sanford people can go in the evenings and enjoy beautiful Lake Monroe.

The move in the right direction and in Mr. Sherman the city will have a most progressive citizen. He will employ a force of skilled mechanics and will add a substantial payroll to the city's coffers. His coming here and establishing this plant will mean much to Sanford in many ways.

NEWS OF THE LEGISLATURE

The two bills introduced by people an industrial school for girls and a state normal school at Madison will be likely to become laws is evidenced by the attitude of the Governor toward these measures.

The bill passed authorizing the appropriation for the establishment of a normal school at Madison has been passed at the time of the appropriation of that time was in excess of the needs of the establishment and maintenance of the school, and this year when the bill appeared the joint educational committees of the legislature journeyed to Madison on an investigation trip. The result of this trip is the bills now pending.

Today a representative of this paper asked the Governor: "What will be your attitude toward the two bills pending for the establishment of a girls' industrial school and a normal school at Madison?" "I recommended in my message the establishment of an industrial school for girls, and if the Madison proposition is in proper shape this time I expect that it will meet with my approval," said the Governor in reply.

In addition to the industrial school for girls and a normal school at Madison, the boys' industrial school will be re-established at Marianna. The educational committees of both houses are working hard for the establishment of all three schools, and it now looks as if the bills will meet favorable consideration at this session.

Florida is gradually coming to the front in educational matters. The state now boasts of more accredited high schools, whose certificates are recognized in any college or university in the country without further preparation than any other state in the south.

Senator Hudson has introduced in the senate a bill to provide for the compensation of bond trustees, since it is contended that when the law is repealed, abolishing the office of state treasurer, the pay of trustees will also be abolished.

The amounts will be based on the following basis: On the first five hundred dollars, one and one-half per cent; for all over first five hundred dollars, one per cent. The same amount shall be allowed for paying any warrants as is paid for receiving funds.

Under the amendment of the Brevard county fish law passed in senate Tuesday Senator Hudson says it will permit fishing with seines in several "wet" weather lakes in Brevard county between April and September, the dry season. This is much desired because of the fish lost by low water, under the present provisions of the law. Now seining will be permitted only in these lakes, the remainder of the fish law to stand.

Floods in Texas

Eagle Lake, Texas, May 1.—The flood waters of the Colorado river and its tributaries continue to rise here. About six hundred acres in potatoes in the low lands are still under water and the river is still rising. It will be impossible to estimate damage until the crest of the flood passes here. Indications are for further rains. Less than 1,000 acres in potatoes seem subject to overflow at this point.

Kansas City, April 30. The editor of the Eagle Lake Herald wired the Packer Thursday night that the flood situation was serious in the country surrounding Stanton, which is in Fort Bend county. He also confirmed the report that 600 acres of potatoes at Eagle Lake had been overflooded. The condition at Wharton was also said to be serious.

Houston, May 1. Reports reaching here from Eagle Lake and other points in the potato producing district on Tuesday were to the effect that many of the fields have been washed badly by recent rains and were in danger of total destruction if crops this week by the flood waters of the Colorado river and adjacent streams. A bridge of 15 feet in the levee on the Eldridge plantation was reported Monday with the water overflowing a large acreage. However, most of the overflow land in that section was planted to corn. The Colorado through the bottoms at Eagle Lake continued to rise slowly, with considerable damage already being done.

At Wharton, the Colorado river continued to rise. Monday night it was reported that the river had a greater volume of water than at any time since the flood of last year. Potatoes on low ground were endangered. Old Caney was reported full but was carrying off much of the water which fell out here. No more than 100 had been reported and it was not thought that the heavy snowfall would save N. Y. River.

Broward County

The legislature bill creating Broward county out of a part of Dade was passed by the senate last Tuesday afternoon, having passed the house several days previously. Only the signature of the Governor is now necessary for the bill to become a law. There was some opposition from the residents of certain sections of the new county, but its formation was generally favored and the opposition failed to develop any considerable strength.

Fort Lauderdale is specified as the county seat, and on receiving news of the passage of the bill that town went wild with enthusiasm and a big demonstration was given.

Broward county, according to the bill is 28 miles from north to south boundary, and 55 miles from east to west boundaries, extending from just below Boca Raton to a point one-half mile north of Ojus. Seven towns are included in the new county, not all of which are incorporated—Hullandale, Dania, Fort Lauderdale, Progresso, Colahatchee, DDeerfield and Pompano. The assessed valuation of the property included in the district is $2,600,000, and between 7,000 and 8,000 people live in it, it is estimated.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Walseman left last night for points in Virginia where Mr. Walseman will look after the refrigerator car business. The Walsemans are Sanford residents now and expect to move into their beautiful bungalow on Magnolia when they return next winter. Their many friends were loath to see them depart but happy to know that Sanford will claim them again in the fall.

BIG CATTLE RANCH IS BEING IMPROVED IN MANY WAYS

TOSOHATCHE RANCH HAS NOW 32,000 ACRES UNDER FENCE FOR CATTLE AND SHEEP

Tosohatche Ranch located near here bids fair to become as famous as the 101 Ranch of Oklahoma. Tosohatche Ranch now has 32,000 acres under fence and upon this immense range are 5000 cattle and 2500 sheep. There are thousands of hogs also but they are of the razor back breed and were there when the ranch was fenced and the new owners lay no claim to them.

At the present time dozens of cow boys are busy at this immense ranch branding calves and shearing sheep and making cattle dipping vats and otherwise getting ready for the big season. Florida beef is now a recognized commodity in the market and as there are several large ranches near this city the markets are assured of good beef at all times.

The owners of Tosohatche ranch built an inside pasture of 3000 acres where there are thoroughbred cattle and this pen will be used for breeding purposes. Some of the finest stock obtainable is confined within this enclosure and the ranch in time will be one of the finest in the state.

Many wells have been driven at various points on the property, good flowing wells that will give the cattle and sheep all the fresh and pure water needed when the smaller streams happen to be dry. Added to the pure water the owners will plant many different kinds of grasses and stock feed and the stock will be provided with feed of all kinds to supplement the native grass.

The dipping vats being constructed of concrete and are said to be models of their kind. The cattle on Tosohatche will be freed from the cattle ticks and will have nothing to do but feed, eat and sleep and make dividends for their owners.

Highway Route is Much Discussed

The Dixie Highway, from Chicago to Miami is rapidly materializing, and it is very important that it should be put in the right place in groups to get the whole state's system of highways.

The great host of tourists and homeseekers who will soon be coming over it into Florida are largely interested in agricultural matters and while the route contemplated should run to Jacksonville from Live Oak, where it enters the state, the main line should run south by way of Lake City, Gainesville, Ocala, Palmetto, and then to Miami.

There should be a spur from Arcadia to Fort Meade and 284 and the cross highway would cover all the important farming and fruit sections of the state.

At Gainesville as a junction there are three other important roads running to the east coast, and at Brooks ville three important roads to Tarpon Springs, Tampa and St. Petersburg, and at Lakeland the great cross highway from Daytona to Tampa will intersect it, and all the central cities will connect with each other. "So anybody can go anywhere."

The Dixie people will make a great mistake if they carry it only to Jacksonville and then on down the East Coast to Miami directly south.

Everybody interested in central and western Florida's property should get busy and write to the two commissioners, Mr. G. W. Saxop, at Tallahassee, and S. A. Belcher, at Miami, and urge them to investigate by a personal visit to this region and to realize the advantages of the proposed route before they make their report.

No time should be lost as they meet to close the matter in about ten days.

Panama Pictures

For the service at Holy Cross church this Wednesday night at 7:30 the subject will be the Church's Missionary Work in Panama. Incidentally many beautiful pictures will be shown of the Isthmus and the Panama Canal.

Reply to Pearson's Letter
Editor Herald:

Mr. Pearson says he did not intend to publish any of the "inside workings" of trade unions. He has not done so, nor need he, as far as the local situation is concerned, for a very superficial survey of the outside evidences of the "inside workings" is sufficient for anyone to diagnose the case at once. The ill-concealed gripings and groanings, accompanied by pitiful contortions and frequent eruptions of fetid atmosphere all point to the same cause. For treatment see a veterinarian.

Now, if it were conceivable that any other organization could possibly stoop to so low a level as that of the local carpenters' union in seeking to deprive me of my God-given and constitutional rights by the despicable methods employed by them, you can just bank on it that Mr. Price would have the audacity to ask them questions and would not stop with asking questions either. Get that? It's useless to plead not guilty—there is an infallible test set forth by St. Matthew nearly two thousand years ago, "By their fruits ye shall know them" and St. Paul gives a long list of these fruits. Here are a few of them which seem to fit the present case: "Being filled with all unrighteousness, covetousness, maliciousness; full of envy, debate, deceit, malignity; whisperers, backbiters, boast-ers, inventors of evil things, without understanding, implacable, unmerciful, etc." In fine with this, Mr. Pearson says in his postscript, "All the world's greatest public disturbers have been diseased." As practically all the world's labor troubles have been caused by organized labor (strikes, boycotts, dynamiting, riots, etc.) necessarily it follows that they are diseased.

I am indeed glad to say that I cannot give the names of the five men desired by Mr. Pearson. See reason in next paragraph.

The first and second questions were asked simply to lead up to those following and while I do not entirely agree with the answers given will not discuss them at present, also passing over the first half of the third with the observation that while wages are now higher than ever before, expressed in dollars and cents the purchasing power of a d y's wages is probably lower. "Things are not what they seem."

Then the statement is made that their methods are always peaceable, that there is no record of any strikes among the building trades unions of Sanford. Why no strike? Several times the carpenters' union has notified the contractors that on or after such and such a date they would refuse to handle any work made by myself (nominally non-union work). Why no strike? Learning in each case that the contractors would not accede to their demands, at the last moment they would call a special meeting and rescind the action—the ring in control not having the necessary backbone to back up their demands. They would "eat crow" rather than take chances of having nothing to eat. Possibly we will see more of their peaceable methods in the near future.

Mr. Pearson charges me with "insinuating" that non-union labor is honest, etc., and union labor the reverse. Right here I want to say distinctly that I do not use insinuations. When I have anything to say, I am man enough to say it plainly. Only cowards use insinuations, lacking the courage to face the responsibilities for their inferences. I have always contended that membership in any organization did not necessarily alter his character or ability in any way. It is merely a matter of choice with each individual and should never be used as a condition of employment. Furthermore, it was Mr. Pearson's ad which was nothing but insinuations, which led to the present discussion.

Really, Mr. Pearson, I do not know where you got the idea that I had a trap set for you. I did have a trap set out home, but not for you. It was for a four legged skunk and I got him, too. As to your denial of the use of the boycott, I wish to assert that the principal of the boycott is still a very potential weapon in the hands of organized labor. Its direct use has been declared illegal; its direct use as a gentlemen's (?) agreement is still very apparent. As you profess ignorance on this point you are referred to the records of the recent cases of the Danbury hatters and the Buck Stove & Range Co., and in connection with the latter, the contempt case of Mr. Gompers, who was convicted and escaped punishment only by legal technicalities.

While on the legal phase of the question please note that organized labor is a self confessed monopoly, having sought exemption from prosecution under the anti-trust law. Because of this amendment attached to the appropriation bill President Taft vetoed the entire bill, leaving the federal government without funds to carry on business for several months. President Wilson would have taken a similar course had he not recognized the fact that there were other funds available for such prosecution.

As Mr. Pearson did not tell the real reasons for that ad., I will tell one or two of them. The organized building trades had for a long time enjoyed a practical monopoly of the building operations in Sanford and at that time and since then for labor was getting a much larger share than was agreeable to the trust, hence their frantic appeal to the public. Then, again, they wanted to create a prejudice against "certain people" who were employing "negro mechanics." They were too cowardly to say so openly but have been working over time telling that and other lies and calling names in secret. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

Mr. Pearson again dodges the question in the sixth, asserting that the question lacks sense. In every strike the union members brand the non unionists as about everything that is mean and inefficient and proceed by every means possible to get them to join the union, giving them a working card which is evidence that they are honorable and capable. So the working card should be considered an asset? Rather an evidence of lie-ability in such a case.

Before saying more on the negro proposition I must ask for further information. Would like to have specific charges and an authorized definition.

Without saying anything disparaging as to Mr. Pearson's reputation as a carpenter, he has certainly missed his calling. His facility in dodging entitles him to a position in a side show dodging baseballs. The word "scab" is a very popular and choice epithet used by union labor in referring to their opponents, and as they have often applied it to me (not openly) it is entirely right that they be requested as to its meaning. He also evaded the "float-er" inquiry.

Then Mr. Pearson seeks to put his organization on record as endorsing the principles of organized labor as set forth in my last article. These principles are fundamentally opposed to trades unionism and are absolutely impossible under their constitution and by laws, and any assertion as to the contrary is a deliberate lie, told to deceive people who are unacquainted with the facts.

We all understand the minimum wage idea, and admit that any employer has the privilege to pay as much more as he please. But some of us also know that the minimum wage is set so much higher than the minimum ability of the membership to earn it that it is seldom exceeded. Therefore I claim that it is practically a uniform scale.

As Mr. Pearson has misrepresented my position on organization, it may be well to let the people know just where I stand. I am heartily in favor of legitimate organization and cooperation of all kinds, labor, religion, politics or capital. By no other means can the greatest results be obtained. But when such organization seeks to become a monopoly and deprive others of their rights, or uses under pressure or coercion to force them into membership in order to retain such rights, it becomes anarchy and I am unalterably opposed to it.

When a plague infects a flock, the wise herder removes the stricken ones instead of allowing them to remain with the flock and corrupt the whole. Just so I claim that the local carpenters' union is largely in control of a corrupt and mechanically inefficient ring which has brought the entire membership into disrepute and that he who exposes this condition and seeks to eliminate it is a better friend of trades unionism than he who defends or seeks to cover it up. Let the slogan be "Every union man a carpenter" instead of "Every carpenter a union man."

The assumption of Mr. Pearson and his associates, that I would doubtless have opposed the union of the thirteen original colonies is best answered by a little personal history. My father gave four years of his life in defense of that union and carried the scars to his grave. I also seriously injured my health in carrying the gospel of liberty to our oppressed brothers in Cuba. Now, where was Mr. Pearson and his patriotic bunch at that time? Why were they not fighting for their beloved union? I can tell you why? Go down to the postoffice and read the first line of the Government's call for soldiers. It says MEN wanted! They failed to qualify. I have an honorable discharge from such service, personally, endorsed by the commanding major—"character excellent—service honest and efficient." They have—a working card.

I have been a resident of Sanford for six years and during all that time have been subjected to the insults and annoyances of the gang who have dominated the carpenters' union, because I would not become one of them and endorse their methods. It has been the custom among intelligent people to honor those who have served their country. For six years this organization has been continually and assiduously seeking to find some flaw in my record or character whereby they might drag me down. They have utterly failed, and at last in sheer exasperation they vent their spleen and inadvertently expose their real characters to the public, by an inconceivably despicable attack on a fellow being because he suffered in the service of his country!

Let the people judge.
Very truly yours,
W. S. Price.

DOUBLE LIVES OF MANY NEW YORK GIRLS.

Life is a waste of wearisome hours which seldom the rose of enjoyment adorns. And the heart that is soonest awake to the flowers, is always the first to be touched by the thorns.

How truly it has been said that one half of the world knows not how the other half lives. Those who have pitted the poor little milliner, the typewriter, and shop-girl, troubling over how dark and desolate their lives were, might open their eyes wide with surprise to find how many of them wrest pleasure from even so dreary an existence as is theirs. They read few papers, yet they are abreast with the current events of the day. They are far removed socially from people of wealth and luxury. They can unfold, however, an intimate knowledge of them that is marvelous. Beforehand, they are able to whisper when a love match is about to blossom into an engagement. They see the beginning and growth of affairs that end in scandals.

Watching these women and their ideal lives, as it seems, is the one joy of these girls. The manner in which they touch elbows with these rich women is somewhat unique. During the day, these young women work at their allotted tasks, as though life contained nothing else for them. When the closing hour comes they hurry eagerly from their labors to their lonely hall bedrooms, lit like the birds that twitter outside their windows. Usually two young women share their room together. They are in cramped quarters; must take turns in cooking their frugal suppers over the oil stove. If there are pleasures ahead they don't mind the hardships.

Girls are clever with their fingers, and help one another to fashion simply out of odds and ends their evening gowns that would vie with a million alre's wife's sumptuous robe, and not look out of place by comparison.

During their evening gowns, throwing scarfs round their shoulders, the girls scurry eagerly forth. To the cheap picture shows for an evening's amusement! Oh, no! A dark skirt and plain shirtwaist would answer for going there; their attire would not be closely-observed. On past the morning picture places they go, their destination being one of the grand hotels. The drawing room and lobby are free to all guests who look to the manner born. They loiter in the beautiful lobby for a while, sitting on the rich divans they are so near the favorite of fortune they could reach forth their hands and touch their robes. They drink in their floating bits of conversations; feast their eyes on their dazzling gowns, inhale the exotic perfume from the rare flowers they wear. Like the fabled Cinderella of legend, these girls seemingly are transported into a different world. The dreary hall bedroom fades away from their memories. In its place are marble halls, strains of sweetest orchestra music.

The rich and the great ebb and flow past them. They secure seats in the magnificent dining room. To be sure it is an obscure corner; still they are part of that rich throng. The girls order rolls and milk. Evening is spent amidst surroundings of bright lights, flowers, gaiety, happy laughter, and all that makes life one grand sweet song. When it is over they slip out, unobserved, retracing their steps homeward, eagerly chatting over all they have seen and heard. They make the rounds of the great hotels and restaurants. Managers know them; they are unobtrusive, quiet girls. Usually they are sorry to refuse them a table, but tell them their tables are all engaged for the entire evening. Their expenses are high. They reserve tables for those who spend money generously. It does not take long to make the rounds; while it lasts these pretty, innocent girls have their fling in leading a double life, as it were. They are surrounded by hardships in day time and luxury by night.

IF A CHILD BINDS THEM.

Remember the homes where the light has fled. There the rose has faded away and love that glows in youthful hearts, soon, though it while you may! Make your home a bower of flowers, Let joy bloom there through childhood hours. God pity the child of divided hearts.

The chain of love is no stronger than its weakest link. The couple who step to the altar to be made man and wife should understand they are leaving the old life behind them and entering a new world, as it were. After marriage neither the husband nor the wife can do absolutely as he or she wills,—there is another to consult, advise with and please.

The trouble is, many a married couple wake up to the fact too late. The husband who has always had his own way does not take kindly to being dictated to by a woman. His mother or always gave him his own way; he expects his wife to do likewise. The spirited young wife who has been petted, spoiled and coddled by her family is quite as determined that she must be the ruling spirit of the household. Slight disagreements end all too soon in open quarrels.

This is bad enough if there are no little ones, but if there is a child looking on with frightened eyes and bated breath, parents should never utter the bitter words that rise to their lips. Unconsciously, even in its earliest years, the child will take sides with one or the other. The scene will be engraved upon its memory while life lasts.

Frequent quarrels of parents, lead to estrangements and contemplation of divorce. Ere parents should take that extreme measure, they should give a thought to the innocent child whose future they would deliberately wreck by such a course. When the divorce has once been decreed, the fledglings have no heart to return there again. Where there is a child to bind them, a husband and wife should make every sacrifice in keeping back their resentment and difficulties for the sake of the little life that would not have looked out wistfully in this cold and bitter world had it not been for them. Parents owe it to their children to make a home for them and to cause happiness to reign within its walls.

The wife who speaks slightly of her husband before her children makes a fatal mistake. The husband who speaks sneeringly to his wife with the children looking on paves the way to be slighted himself by them when he is old. Father may endeavor to influence them that mother's in the wrong. But in the calm judgment of after years their hearts will turn to her, as the sunflower turns to the sun. Children should bind husband and wife in love and peace till death do them part.

IF HIS LIFE WERE AN OPEN BOOK.

Nay, grieve not for the dead alone. Whose song has told their hearts' sad story. Weep for the voiceless, who have known The crown without the crown of glory! A few can touch the magic string And nobly I am proud to win them. Alas, for those that never sing, But die with all their music in them!

The man who shows no disposition to indulge in the society of the fair sex should not be singled out for persistent attention by women.

There is generally a good reason he has when a man fights shy of matrimony. It may be his nature to be polite to the opposite sex, but it shouldn't be taken for granted that courtesy means liking which may lead to a tender sentiment.

He may appear to be very lonely and much in need of woman's sympathy. But appearances in such cases may be deceptive. Instead of being a bachelor, as every one supposes, he may be a widower, with a large family of children, whom his mother, in a far off city is aiding him to care for. His one thought may be to make name and letters for his motherless brood. He may be firm in his avowed intention never to entertain the thought of taking a wife until his children are educated, grown up, married and in homes of their own.

Then, again, many a bachelor may have had a heart-entanglement in his early youth which causes him to forswear marriage for all time to come. Or he may have habits such as an ungovernable temper, which he knows that no woman could put up with for long, or love of drink. If every man's life was an open book that all might read, men who seem so desirable might be shunned while others, who seem to possess all the faults in the calendar, might be considered worthy of reforming, eye, jewels in the rough. Even a man to whom a woman is wedded may not be just what she imagines him. He may be supporting dependent relatives whom he has never mentioned to his wife and of whom the world knows not.

If a man wishes to close the book of his past from all prying eyes it is wisest and best to let him have his own way. If a man is interested in a woman he will not have to be coaxed to seek her out; for there is no magnet on earth as strong as love to bring two together who are intended for each other.

Have Chickens Some Sense?

In Farm and Fireside, in the poultry-raising department, a contributor tells the following story about an experience with his chickens: "An amusing incident happened last summer. I had a fine flock of chickens in an old garden adjoining the yard. I cared for them, and as it happened no one else went about them for weeks. I was in the habit of taking the fresh air and sunlight remedy—not wearing a hat. One day I went toward the gate with my hat on, and the entire flock took to flight. Relying myself of the scarecrow I again went into the yard, and the excitement immediately ceased. "Chickens are quick and alert to every noise, object and movement. They observe before they venture. "Chickens love and trust their master. They watch and wait for his coming. They understand every movement he makes, and know the general contents of the different vessels he carries."

Farm and Garden

THE FARMER AND THE CROW.

Virtues of the Bird Are Beginning to Be Recognized.

[Prepared by the United States department of agriculture.]

None of our native birds so much concerns the average farmer of the eastern states as the common crow. Many of our present criticisms of this bird, while pulling sprouting corn, feeding on ripening ears, damaging poultry and wild birds and disseminating diseases of live stock, were common complaints in the days of the early colonists. Many of the virtues of the crow, now quite generally recognized, also have been matters of record for many years. In recent times, however, scientific study of these problems, including the examination of the stomachs of hundreds of crows secured in every month of the year and under a variety of conditions, has enabled us to render a much fairer verdict than was formerly possible.

THE COMMON CROW

The crow is practically omnivorous. During spring and early summer any form of insect life seems to make a desirable item in its diet, and in winter when hard pressed nothing in the animal or vegetable kingdoms which can take a morsel of nutriment is overlooked.

The insect food of the crow which comprises about a fifth of its yearly sustenance, does much to atone for its insectivorousness. Grasshoppers, May beetles and their larvae, crane flies, caterpillars, weevils and wireworms stand out prominently. In 1907 stomachs examined these highly injurious forms comprised over 80 per cent of the insect food. Grasshoppers are naturally taken in greatest abundance in the month of August, September being the month of largest consumption, when they form about a fifth of the total food. May beetles and their grubs are taken in about an equal amount in May. In this case, grasshoppers are a favorite food, and weevils of various kinds are taken in varying quantities throughout summer and fall. About half of the remaining 20 per cent of insect food is composed of beneficial ground beetles, ladybirds, predaceous bugs and peevish wasps, and related forms. The rest consisting of water bugs, dragon flies, beetles, and numerous other insects, which are not named, where birds of this class have been favorite food of crows, whose activity has resulted in a moderate suppression of the pest. When the amount of food required to sustain the individual crow is considered, the work of these birds appears all the more important. Single stomachs containing upward of fifty grasshoppers are not uncommon. Thus in its choice of insect food the crow is rendering an important service to the farmer.

In the other animal food of the crow are several items of the utmost economic importance. Spiders are taken in considerable numbers in May and June, but the yearly total is a little over 1 per cent of the food. In early spring cowbirds are eagerly sought and other notable food is fish and mollusks. Lead variety to the crow's bill of fare the year around. In the consumption of toads, salamanders, frogs and snake-eaters, which together compose a little over 2 per cent of the yearly food, the crow is doubtless doing harm. Small rodents occurred in the stomachs collected nearly every month, but it is often difficult to determine whether small mammals found in birds' stomachs were taken alive or found dead.

Mangels as a Stock Feed. The mangel crop is a heavy yielder, and it is considered to be one of the most satisfactory of the root crops for cattle, says the Iowa Homestead. Horses do not like mangels very well, and even if they did the crop is too watery to use in large quantities. Of course it can hardly be said that this crop can be made to take the place of corn in the central west, and under ordinary conditions mangels can be used only in supplementary quantities for cows, young cattle and even for fattening steers. There is considerable labor involved in handling the crop, and for that reason we would advise no man to grow a large area.

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

A problem which is rather difficult for owners of little farms to solve is that of supplying fodder for their cows and other stock. After a silo has been erected there is less difficulty, but otherwise the question of economical feeding is always pressing.

An energetic family on a farm should keep a number of cows. There is money in it, but the work must not be allowed to become drudgery. A milk or butter business requires painstaking effort seven days in the week, and all through the year. Still, a farm is not a farm without cows, and the proper thing is to divide the work fairly and keep as many animals as can be fed without too much strain on the resources of the place.

A place of ten or twenty acres should have a silo, and when the land amounts to thirty acres or more there may be two of them. Eight to ten acres of corn will fill two 10 by 25 foot silos, and if an acre or two of cowpeas or soy beans can be mixed in the feed will be of the highest merit. Silage uses up the crop cleanly and gets all the nutriment from the stalks, as well as the grain. It is an excellent feed in winter and unsurpassed for keeping up the milk supply or pushing beef production during summer droughts.

People who have had no experience with silage crops should be warned when they are first advised to try it. Some small farms must have restricted pastures, and all pastures are not at times. Silage is best made in good condition, maintains milk production and yields the waste which otherwise goes to the waste. There are many making ideas and are important on large farms, as well as on small ones. The farmer who keeps a few cows should have a silo. He should make it large enough to hold the crop for a year or two. The silage should be made in good condition, maintains milk production and yields the waste which otherwise goes to the waste. There are many making ideas and are important on large farms, as well as on small ones. The farmer who keeps a few cows should have a silo. He should make it large enough to hold the crop for a year or two.

It is also necessary for American farmers to improve their pastures for the economic production of milk and beef. For a permanent pasture we want a wider range of grasses, including timothy, alfalfa, white clover, blue grass and orchard grass. These will succeed on a wide range of soils. Five pounds each of timothy, redtop and alfalfa with two pounds of white clover give the best results, with possibly three of bluegrass. The little white clover will spread as no other clover will and cover the ground in the face of great obstacles. It will grow and flourish on almost any kind of soil and should be included in any grass seed mixture intended for permanent pasture. It volunteers year after year, and the pastures and roadsides are often covered with it even after blue grass has given up the fight.

Office in Herald Building Telephone No. 148

Recent visitors to the city have remarked upon the many building operations started in Sanford. This sounds good coming from people who have been in other parts of Florida and demonstrates that Sanford is progressing despite the war in Europe.

No use to worry about the route of the Dixie Highway. The people who come from Chicago to Florida by auto will take the DeLand, Sanford, Orlando, Kissimmee trip to Tampa and no other attractions will prevent it. The best part of Florida and the section that has the most brick roads will appeal to the tourists.

Spring crops are looking well, fish are biting fine, new buildings are going up, the bulkhead will soon be finished, the brick roads are being completed, the legislature will soon adjourn, the new postmaster will soon be appointed, the city election will be on, the new churches will be ready for occupancy and why should we worry?

House Bill No. 107 should be relegated to the list of the bills that go into the waste basket. The present law is all that is needed and 107 will stir up more trouble for the real newspapers of the state that we can settle in the next century. Some people frame bills without going into them deep enough to investigate their merits and all such bills do is to clog the calendar and prevent good bills from becoming laws. The house should kill Bill No. 107 and kill Bill Mapoles with it.

R. J. Holly, past grand president of the state press association and one of the best it ever had, has this to say about his own home town: "In some ways Sanford is one of the best cities in the state and in other ways it is absolutely dead and laid out." But galvanic batteries have been known to bring the dead to life so Sanford will live again when Holly's Herald turns on its best current.—Miami Metropolis.

An exchange intimates that Bob Holly has his eyes on the gubernatorial chair. Well, what of it? One might look a long way and find worse material and there's no denying the fact, that Holly is not only capable but well polished.—Zolfo Truth.

Whaddye mean, well polished? Are you speaking of our top piece?—Sanford Herald.

Since you mention it we believe that shining dome did sorter inspire our little squiblet. But that bean of yours, Bro. Holly, though smooth as a billiard ball, is no more polished than your manners, and when you are seated in the governor's chair it will add a touch of dignity that will certainly contribute a large share of prestige.—Zolfo Truth.

CREDIT WHERE IT IS DUE

To tell who are the friends of the Crop Pest Bill would be to mention pretty nearly every one who voted for it. In the senate special mention should be made of Senators Hudson, Drane, Fogarty and Wells. In the house, Hardee, Wood, Lake, Penny, Martin, Busey, McDonald, Dawson and Adkins were particularly helpful. Some others did not say much on the floor, but did excellent work outside.

H. Harold Hume writes that Lake, of Seminole, stood manfully by his guns and handled the situation in fine shape. We can forgive Lake everything else for this. Prof. Hume states that the state is to be congratulated upon the men it has sent to the legislature.—Florida Grower.

Thanks to Harold and Edgar. This Christian spirit is beautiful and brings more forcibly to our mind the little parable about the difference it makes when the brindle bovine is hooked or in ancient Jagnunge whose ox is gored. Since Lake is forgiven he can die happy.

FLORIDA ROADS

The state is receiving considerable attention in the engineering and good roads publications now, on account of our road building. Some of the publicity is favorable and some of it unfavorable.

Florida is getting credit for spending more money for good roads than any other state just now, but is being criticised on the mileage she is getting. The technical papers are of the opinion that much of the money we are spending on brick highways in the country is a bad investment—that we are putting down the bricks at a very heavy expense, thereby lessening the mileage of roads we get for the amount of money it costs us, and criticising the cost of upkeep in the way of road repairs for brick highways as well as others.

There can be no question but Florida might have done better than she has with the money she has raised in the past ten years for road building. There is no doubt but that brick roads last much longer, but the brick highways in the country are very expensive. Whether or not they are the more expensive in the long run and are not so much expense to keep in repair as other roads that have been built in the state. But nobody has figured the matter out to an exact science, and applied that science to the building of new roads in this state. Florida is not far from where she was a few years ago, in that she is still guessing on the paving material, and still experimenting with road building.

There should be not only a highway commission in Florida, but there should be a board of engineers and estimators. We ought to know practically to the pennyworths what it will cost to build various kinds of roads, how long they will last, and how much it will cost annually for upkeep.

Good roads have been built all over America, and all over the world. They have been built in countries where the soil and conditions were very much the same as in Florida. Few states and few countries are now experimenting with good roads. They know to a definite scientific certainty how much it costs to build and maintain the various kinds of roads. We should have the same certainty in Florida, and we could build in this state thousands of miles more of good roads, and not have them cost too much, or put too great a burden on the present or the future. We ought not to be straining at the gnats of small engineering cost and swallowing the big camels of waste in road construction.—Jacksonville Metropolis.

HOUSE BILL NO. 107

Requiring the County Commissioners to Rotate the Public Printing Among the Several Newspapers of Their Respective Counties.

House Bill No. 107, originally designed to make a rate on legal printing has been amended in such a form that it would work harm instead of good and the legislature has been petitioned to change it or kill the bill entirely. Hon. H. H. McCreary, editor of Gainesville Sun has the following regarding it:

To the Honorable Members of the Florida Legislature:

The passage of this bill in its present form would defeat the very object of the law requiring publication of legal notices, which is to give publicity to the same. Why should the commissioners be required to select a certain newspaper without any circulation outside its own hamlet as their official organ, when probably a half dozen or more other newspapers in the same county have twice as many subscribers in that very community, and a hundred times as many subscribers in the county? A newspaper should be treated as any other business enterprise, and not subsidized.

The county commissioners are capable of letting the public printing to the papers that will give the best service for the money, and in many instances they are rotating the county printing among their respective newspapers. This is only just and proper where the newspaper deserves recognition and can render the service, but they should not be required to select some 2x4 paper to do the county printing which cannot possibly render the service.

Take, for instance the publication of the list of qualified voters in Alachua county. It is next to impossible for the supervisor of registration to furnish the list to the printing office in time to give more than two or three days to put it in type, and it would be impossible to issue it within the time required by law from the newspaper office in the county outside of Gainesville. The same is true of the tax sale and list of property on which valuation has been increased. The writer, who has been engaged in the printing business in Gainesville for 35 years has on many occasions been compelled to personally labor from 18 to 20 hours for several days at a time in order to get out the public printing within the time required by law, and the work could not possibly have been done elsewhere in the county, nor could it be done today.

Furthermore, in these days of high taxation, when the county commissioners should reduce expenses in every possible way where it will not prove detrimental to the public service, House Bill No. 107 requires them to pay the legal rate ($1 per inch for the first insertion and 50c per inch for each subsequent issue), for "all notices required to be published as well as for their proceedings."

The enactment of this bill into law would cost the taxpayers of Alachua alone $1,000.00 additional per year, as the commissioners have never heretofore paid one cent for the publication of their proceedings, but under this bill they would be required to pay one dollar per inch for such publication.

Another objection to House Bill No. 107: Under its provisions the commissioners would be required to designate, in its turn, a newspaper published by negroes. There are several newspapers in the state at present owned by negroes, and the undersigned has during the past week submitted an estimate for the publication of a paper in Gainesville by members of this race.

During my twenty consecutive years service in the Florida Legislature, four years in the house and sixteen in the senate, I never failed to oppose every effort to create a monopoly of the public printing at the county seat, and I was pleased to see Representative Mapoles pursue the same course in the house recently.

The claims of all legitimate newspapers should be considered in letting the public printing, but at the same time the county commissioners should be permitted to exercise the discretion necessary to the protection of the public in the rendering of service, as well as in the matter of circulation.

The passage of House Bill No. 107 will cripple the public service, increase county expenses, force many people to subscribe for a different newspaper every year; therefore, for these and other reasons, should not be passed.

Very truly,

H. H. McCreary,

Editor Gainesville Sun
Gainesville, Fla., May 3, 1915.

SPENDING PUBLIC MONEY

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH

Money raised by taxation is raised to conserve public welfare.

Under a representative form of government, appropriations are made from this fund by those who are selected to perform the functions of government, because it is inconvenient, even impossible, that every taxpayer shall have a voice and a vote in determining the apportionments.

The duty of government is to do for the people those things which they, as individuals cannot do for themselves, to provide such conditions that every individual shall be protected from unlawful depredations and shall be guaranteed his rights and safety in the pursuit of his own business and in his home. Government determines, among other things the amount necessary to be raised by taxation for public purposes, it collects the amount assessed and finally determines in what manner the fund so collected shall be expended.

This is at least one of the fundamental ideas of the model government. How far actual government, federal or state or municipal departs from this idea is determined by the fallibility of those who exercise its functions. In spite of a more or less popular belief, graft and dishonesty are rare in government affairs in this country. Stealing by public officials or employees is the unusual exception. More often errors are made through mistaken judgment.

Certain things are of prime importance to the people—police and fire protection and individual safety from physical harm probably come first, matters that affect directly the life and property of the individual. Unquestionably next in importance are those matters that affect his health, for individual and public health are; next to life itself, the biggest assets of the family or the community.

In the appropriation of public funds it follows naturally that these most important things should be conserved before all other interests, and the wisdom of legislative action is determined by a recognition of this principle.

Florida's rapidly increasing prosperity during the past quarter of a century has been advanced more by effectual efforts for its sanitation, by the gradual dispelling of the wide spread idea that it was not one of the most healthful sections in the world, than by any other agency or influence. That specter of yellow fever has been banished, and the world has shown that a semi-tropical climate may be as healthful the year around as that of northern latitudes.

Education has shown the people of Florida how to live, how to take full advantage of splendid natural conditions for their own good, and it has brought to the state a sturdy capital to develop its natural resources.

Do you believe this could have been brought about unless the gospel of clean, sanitary living had been preached without ceasing? Unless the barriers had been built up by medical science to keep out the epidemics of the tropical islands, and unless these facts of actual accomplishment had been advertised to the whole world.

If Florida is to continue its rate of progress, the way must be led by its health authorities, as in the past. Already Florida is known throughout the Union as one of the most progressive of all the states in health and sanitary matters, and the fact seems to be recognized less distinctly at home than elsewhere.

To maintain this reputation and the splendid activity on which it is based, requires the powerful aid of the state government through wise appropriations and recognition and moral support, and hardly less by county and municipal and community backing. It appears at the present writing that the Legislature of 1915 will do much in support of the work of the state Board of Health, and that wider usefulness will be possible to that body.

Let the people of Florida recognize the value of health and bodily strength as necessary preliminaries to mental and spiritual vigor, and the state will move all the quicker to a realization of its ultimate possibilities.

The Fishing Banks.

Newfoundland would be nothing without the great submarine plateau known as the "banks," on which all the fishing is done. At a small station within the edges of the great bank that the cod lozes so well the sea is quite smooth. It is usual for vessels fishing on the banks to inquire from those that have arrived from the open sea as to what sort of weather it is.—Exchange.

Slavery Originated in the East.

Absolute slavery seems to have appeared in the eastern colonies somewhat earlier than in the southern, for slavery existed in New York in 1628, in New Jersey in 1628, in Massachusetts in 1630, in Connecticut in 1631 and in Delaware in 1636. There was a statutory recognition of slavery in Massachusetts in 1641, which was considerably ahead of such recognition of slavery in Virginia or Maryland.

Coming to the Star Friday, May 7

At the request of the Woman's Club Manager Herndon of the Star Theatre has arranged to show to the lovers of good, clean amusement and patrons of the Star, Jack London's famous story which portrays in a vivid and realistic manner the true alcoholic experience in the life of the author. This feature has broken all records where it was shown. In the Strand Theatre, New York City this film ran for three solid weeks and was considered by the press and pulpit as being the greatest aid to the moral element, than any method that could be used, to open the eyes of the people showing them the trouble, ruin, crime, distorted lives, ruined homes and eventually death caused by John Barleycorn.

In the west the "wets" were fearful of the effect the presentation of this picture would have on the spring election so the Personal Liberty League offered the Bosworth Co. $25,000 in cash if they forbid this picture to be shown where the "booze" question was pending. After the film was completed they tried to buy state rights on it, with no other intention than to destroy all copies. Many other drastic measures were taken to destroy this picture.

Every man, woman and child is urged to avail themselves of the opportunity to see this unusual feature when presented at the Star Friday, May 7th Matinee and night.

The admission to this picture will be adults 15 cents and children 5 cents.

Sew-Sew Matinee Party

Mrs. J. S. Wilson entertained the members of the Sew-Sew Club with a charming little matinee party Friday afternoon. The guests assembled at the home of Mrs. C. E. Henry and proceeded to the Star Theatre where the House of Temperley was the attractive and old English play full of romance and paths of great loves and greater sacrifices. After the play Mrs. Wilson and her guests repaired to the Bonita where delicious refreshments were served consisting of vanilla and strawberry ice cream, fruit punch, coconut macaroons and lady fingers. The tables were prettily adorned with bowls of panais and at each place a corsage bouquet of roses for the guests. Those enjoying the gracious hospitality of their hostess were Mesdames Henry, Holly, Peck, O. L. Taylor, F. L. Woodruff, McLaulin, B. A. Howard, Symes-Wallace and John Thomas.

The Mystery

A mysterious command to appear without fail at the home of Mrs. W. P. Carter, Friday afternoon met with an enthusiastic excited, curious response in the person of the neighbors, and then and there was organized the Club of Mystery, with twelve members, this number being the limit of membership.

Delicious little thrills of anticipation and fear, chased-up and down one's spinal column as each newcomer was ushered into a darkened room with grinning skulls and Jack o' lanterns upon every side, and long forgotten mummies of Egypt's famous queens nodding and smirking at the ghosts of bygone ancestors, seated in grim silence among the other relics of the past. Members were sworn to secrecy with the "cross my heart, hope that I may die" pledge to make the oath binding and compulsory. Subjects of conversation to be tabooed upon which a fine will be imposed, if broken, will be husbands, cooks and gossiping. Altogether it is the most delightfully mysterious club that has been organized anywhere, of which we shall hear more anon. The club will meet weekly during the summer at the homes of the members. Mrs. J. H. Ferguson will be the next hostess, May 11th. Mrs. Carter and Mrs. A. D. Smith, hostesses Friday afternoon, served strawberries with whipped cream and devil's food. Those present at the initiation were Mesdames Carter, Smith, W. H. Peters, Ferguson, J. K. Johnson, Ernest Krupp, E. L. Taylor, Renfro, Meisch, O'Connor, and Terhune.

Recital at High School

The annual May recital of piano pupils of Mrs. Fannie Stenbridge Munson will be given Monday evening of Commencement week, May 17th, at 8:15, at the High School auditorium.

Assisting talent will be Miss Edith Louise Hubbard, soprano; Mrs. Madge Ward Deas, accompanist; Mrs. Lucien Philips, musical reader.

Seats may be reserved as formerly in rows of nine seats ninety cents, eight seats eighty cents. This nominal price of ten cents each for program expenses. For reservations phone 262.

Informal Evening for Guest

Mrs. B. W. Herndon was the charming hostess on Saturday evening at one of the most delightful informal affairs of the season, in honor of her house guest, Miss Annie Parramore of Jacksonville. A number of Miss Parramore's old school friends dropped in for the evening, and various amusements made the hours fly on the wings of pleasure.

Missionary Social

The social service committee of the Methodist church and the Junior Epworth League gave a very delightful social at the home of Mrs. L. R. Philips Friday afternoon, in which the Juniors took a prominent part. Group songs and missionary exercises featured the program. Solos, duets and recitations had their places on the program of charming diversity, the young people deserving much praise for the capable manner in which they rendered the parts assigned them. Pleasing and enjoyable numbers were given by the adults. The commodious house was crowded to its capacity. Refreshments were served the children upon the lawn, while the older people enjoyed their treat indoors. An especially pleasing number were the tiny torch bearers in their little white gowns bearing lighted candles and repeating the ten cute little rhymes of the story. A neat sum was realized by the proceeds of the silver offering.

Ten Ten Social

Mrs. Frank and Mrs. Shipp will give a dime social at the home of Mrs. Frank on the Heights Thursday afternoon for the benefit of the Ladies' Union of the Congregational church. All the members of the church and their friends are cordially invited to be present.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Union will be held at the Congregational church Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Children's Day Exercises

An interesting program of songs, recitations and exercises was rendered at the open air meeting of the Methodist Sunday school at the Park Sunday morning, from ten to twelve o'clock. The entrance to the band stand was used for the children who took part on the program, while the members of the church and Sunday school and their friends formed in a semi circle about the park in front of the stand. It was an inspiring sight to see the members of the Sunday school as they marched from the Star Theatre to the Park, the tiny tots of the primary department leading the procession, followed by the various classes in the order in which they are enrolled from primary to the Brotherhood classes. Just ahead of the Brotherhood class of young men walked the Truth Seekers, the mothers of the Sunday school, many of whose children were in the line ahead of them. Banners carried by different classes were Temperance, Purity, Victory and Missions. The children's day exercises began with the singing of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," the subject for the day being "Soldiers of the King." During the song of the primary classes, "Dear Old Flag" the national colors of the flag of conquest were unfurled by Pierce Griffin and Lillie Ruth Spencer, followed by prayer by Rev. F. E. Steinhilber. Anthem by choir and Supt. Mettinger's address on "Children's Day and its Purpose."

Bonita Wins the Prize Bonita is the new name for the new ice cream parlor and restaurant of Nicolopoulos Brothers in the People Bank building. Not having any name for the new place the proprietors allowed the ladies of Sanford and vicinity to choose the name, giving as a prize a gallon of ice cream. There were many names to choose from and the committee had a difficult problem on their hands to choose the proper name, but out of all of the good ones the name of Bonita seems most proper. Bonita is Spanish and means beautiful and the committee finally chose this name. Mrs. S. A. Irwin was the lucky lady, having given Bonita in as the name and was given the prize. The proprietors wish the following card of thanks published:

I wish to express my thanks to Mrs. Irwin for giving such a beautiful name, Bonita, to my new ice cream parlor.

Also I express my thanks to the public for the large patronage of the new ice cream parlor, Bonita.

FLORIDA CITRUS EXCHANGE

This spring for the first time in its history the Florida Citrus Exchange has had the marketing of more than half of the citrus crop of Florida.

Almost the very day that the control of the fruit remaining within the State passed to the Exchange, prices became satisfactory and they have grown more and more so ever since.

This fact is all the more remarkable in view of the industrial depression prevailing throughout the country and of the fact that low prices had obtained generally the first part of the season.

The contention of the founders of the Exchange that whenever the organization was given the marketing of over fifty per cent of the citrus fruit produced in Florida, the industry would be placed on a sound and stable foundation, has been fully justified by recent events. Join the Exchange!

It is a small, soft-bodied insect, and is very destructive to the fruit of the pear tree.

EVEN THE GATE POST NOT IN IT

A CHIEF IS AMONG YE TAKING NOTES AND FAITH. "HE'LL PRENT 'EM"—SO SAYS SAUNTERER.

Look Pleasant

We cannot, of course, all be handsome. And it's hard for us all to be good; We are sure now and then to be lonely, And we don't always do as we should.

To be patient is not always easy, To be cheerful is much harder still; But at least we can always be pleasant, If we make up our minds that we will.

And it pays every time to look kindly, Although you feel worried and blue; If you smile at the world and be cheerful, The world will smile back at you.

So try to brace up and look pleasant, No matter how low you are down; Good humor is always contagious, But you banish your friends when you frown.

I see the pile drivers and other appliances for the Clyde Line docks are on the ground and ready for the work. The Clyde Line probably wanted the bulkheading finished before they started their work but as yet the filling in has not been completed but we hope for the best and have the assurance from the council that the filling in will be done regardless. Our lake front will soon present a fine appearance with the new hotel, new Clyde Line docks, a new boat works and the new pavilion that will be erected as soon as the bulkhead is made. Sanford will then get the benefit of the lake front and not till then.

The Sanford Building and Loan Association has loaned money recently for seven homes and this makes about twelve new homes to be built in the next few months. I wish to commend the good work accomplished by the building association for without it the many new homes that have been built here during the past five years would never have been constructed. This association has done much for the city and I want right now to inform some of the monied men of this city that the building association is the place to invest your money instead of foreign fakes that have taken so much of Sanford's money and given nothing in return. The amount of Sanford money that has been invested out of the state is appalling and most of it was placed in gold brick schemes. Some people never think about investing in a home enterprise, although they make their money in Sanford. Nevertheless the building association continues to prosper and grow and is safe and sound and in capable hands.

Never in history has such a doctrine been preached as we find today—the doctrine of "Smile, Bless you, smile!"

In the corrupt days of Rome there was a supposedly optimistic doctrine common of "Eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die," but that is far different from the exhortation of these days—the exhortation to smile and keep sweet, to look on the bright side of things and to keep your troubles to yourself.

Cherfulness has even been found to have great therapeutic value and great moral value, and the world is beginning to have suspicions that a grouch is a carrier of evil germs of several malignant species.

In the home, the grouch saps the life out of the other members of the household, so he is a criminal performing slow murder.

In the church, the grouch saps the life out of the other members of the love of God, and his depression affects all who come under his influence.

In the business world the grouch is the calamity howler and the obstacle in the way of progress and his existence is like any other pestilence broader.

If people would practice looking for the happy things in life—and here let us say that the happiest people are those who forget to hunt for their own happiness in their endeavors to make others happy—if people would keep on the lookout for happy things, they would find them in vastly larger numbers than the unhappy ones.

The very alleviation of misery is accomplished better by people who know how to smile, people who know how to smile deep down in their hearts and who can go about carrying the belief that this is a fine old world or God would never have made it.

The Sunday closing business is being agitated again and as I remarked before the closing would be brought on by a certain few who would not use some reason in opening for a few hours on Sunday. I do not believe that any one has objections to a few places keeping open for an hour on Sunday morning or afternoon, provided that no noise or crowd disturb the peaceful and even tenor of the day, but if you give some people an inch they want to take a mile, and from a few hours of opening some of them want to take the entire day and this is what has called down the wrath of the good people of the city upon the heads of all the dealers. I have never believed there was any harm in keeping a drug store or a store where a cool drink could be obtained or a newspaper or a cigar on Sunday open for an hour or so and closing them up during church time. As far as I am individually concerned they can close all of them up for I do not need anything on Sunday but I am broad enough to wish to see others enjoy the day if possible and there is certainly enjoyment in being able to get a cool drink or an ice cream cone or a newspaper on Sunday. This is just my idea and probably does not meet with the approval of the people who wish to close up everything and who do not want to ride in an auto, get a paper or cigar or a cool drink on Sunday. My contention has always been that by closing up a city on Sunday so tight that one cannot even get a meal at a hotel or restaurant, get gasoline for a car, get a soda or take any pleasure whatsoever on the Sabbath is getting back to the Blue Laws of the Puritanical day when everyone was compelled to go to church the entire day and read nothing but the Bible. This will not force people to go to church, and they are not any better off for being forced into church. It only makes them leave Sanford for some other place where they can purchase these things and can have some amusement. But I have also said that if the dealers persist in keeping open the livelong day, making noise and flaunting the fact in the face of the church people then the wrath would fall upon all of them and the Sunday closing would mean that nothing could be purchased in Sanford on Sunday.

I want to tell you good people right now that you are overlooking the greatest crime against Sunday and that is allowing the stores to remain open until Sunday morning because you do not choose to do your shopping early Saturday morning or afternoon and causing the proprietors and clerks to stay in the stores until after midnight on Sunday morning. I go to the different churches and I fail to see very many of the business men or their clerks there on Sunday morning and asking some of them why they did not attend church their answer was invariably that they stayed at the store so late Saturday night that they could not possibly get to church on Sunday morning. Now this is something that the church people can well take up and if they want to do something for the young men of the city look after the late Saturday night trading. It is something for them to think about for the very people who are so strict for Sunday closing are the ones who shop late Saturday night and the ladies are the worst offenders.

And another thing. I understand that the city will not take up the Sunday closing but will ask the county to take it up and thus place the burden on the city officials under the plea that the state law covers it. I want to say that this is getting out from under the organic law of the constitution and demonstrates that the city of Sanford cannot attend to her own affairs but must call in the assistance of the sheriff to enforce the laws and when this takes place the city government takes a back seat. This method is all right for the villages in the county that are not incorporated but for Sanford to call in the county officials looks to me like the city officials cannot or are afraid to take hold of this proposition. The other cities in Florida that have attempted this are heartily tired of it and to me the simplest and best plan would be for all parties concerned to offer a substitute for this Sunday closing, allowing certain places to open for a limited time under certain restrictions or else close up everything in Sanford even to the hotels and boarding houses and that is just what the state law means if enforced to the letter.

But as I remarked, there are many things that are worse than the Sunday opening and they have never occurred to the reformers, probably because the reformers are the chief offenders.

George Carey, the old time "Scoop," who got religion at a Billy Sunday revival, is now doing missionary work for the Anti-Saloon league in Ohio.

Bill Rodgers, the Cleveland club's second sacker from the Northwestern league, has fitted in so well with Shortstop Ray Chapman in practice that Manager Birmingham is expected to make him the regular keystone guard.

Bill Sweeney, released by the Chicago Cubs, signed with the Boston Red Sox in preference to other offers, so that he could be at home in Boston and look after his insurance business.

Shortstop Arthur Fletcher of the Giants, who went to Honolulu with the baseball tourists last winter, reports this spring heavier than he ever was in his life. In his case the extra flesh is needed.

He Had It. In honor of a visit to his plant by the governor of the state an automobile manufacturer once had a complete car assembled in something like seven minutes. Some weeks later, after this feat was heralded in the daily papers, the phone rang vigorously. "Is it true that you assembled a car in seven minutes at your factory?" the voice asked. "Yes," came the reply. "Why?" "Oh, nothing," said the calm inquirer, "only I've got the car."

Nature Supreme. Not all the product of artificial greeneries are so lovely as that of the fields, the country garden, the fence rows, the first roses, the daffodils, the arbutus which hides under the hillside leaves, the first buds of the rhododendrons and the other forms telling of the life blood drawn direct from the earth, while poor mankind has to take all second hand.

to enforce the laws and when this takes place the city government takes a back seat. This method is all right for the villages in the county that are not incorporated but for Sanford to call in the county officials looks to me like the city officials cannot or are afraid to take hold of this proposition. The other cities in Florida that have attempted this are heartily tired of it and to me the simplest and best plan would be for all parties concerned to offer a substitute for this Sunday closing, allowing certain places to open for a limited time under certain restrictions or else close up everything in Sanford even to the hotels and boarding houses and that is just what the state law means if enforced to the letter.

But as I remarked, there are many things that are worse than the Sunday opening and they have never occurred to the reformers, probably because the reformers are the chief offenders.

BASEBALL NOTES

It is quite possible that McGraw regrets that he ever permitted Hein Groh to go to Cincinnati.

R. W. Delahanty, a semi-pro, pitcher of Elgin, Ill., has signed with the Bloomington club of the I. L. League.

The Columbus club of the Nebraska State league has made Pitcher Moss Justus manager for the coming season.

Larue Kirby, the big outfielder, who at one time was turned down by John McGraw, is making a hit with the Stouffers.

The Wards retain their righteous stand and again declare their Break-fests will not be allowed to play back on Sunday this year.

Hughey Jennings is taking unusual interest in George Boehler, youthful southpaw, who had only a fair season with the Tigers last year.

George Carey, the old time "Scoop," who got religion at a Billy Sunday revival, is now doing missionary work for the Anti-Saloon league in Ohio.

Edna the New York American. "Ping Bodie makes a home run against the Sox. But Ping did his best work against them when he was playing with them."

Did you ever notice that the "funniest play a ball player ever saw" was one made by some other fellow, and the "best play he ever saw" was one he made himself?

With the Harrison grounds only a few minutes ride from New York city, it is likely that many of the Newfeds will be commuters—playing in one state and living in another.

Bill Sweeney, released by the Chicago Cubs, signed with the Boston Red Sox in preference to other offers, so that he could be at home in Boston and look after his insurance business.

Shortstop Arthur Fletcher of the Giants, who went to Honolulu with the baseball tourists last winter, reports this spring heavier than he ever was in his life. In his case the extra flesh is needed.

Bill Rodgers, the Cleveland club's second sacker from the Northwestern league, has fitted in so well with Shortstop Ray Chapman in practice that Manager Birmingham is expected to make him the regular keystone guard.

He Had It. In honor of a visit to his plant by the governor of the state an automobile manufacturer once had a complete car assembled in something like seven minutes. Some weeks later, after this feat was heralded in the daily papers, the phone rang vigorously. "Is it true that you assembled a car in seven minutes at your factory?" the voice asked. "Yes," came the reply. "Why?" "Oh, nothing," said the calm inquirer, "only I've got the car."

The more fertile the land the better the pasture, but for economic reasons the rough fields and gullied hillsides should be the first to be used for grass. The increasing prices of meats and of farm labor will often make the fertile fields more profitable in pasture than in tilled crops. The convenience of water for the stock should not be overlooked in choosing a field for a pasture.

PASTURE LANDS.

The more fertile the land the better the pasture, but for economic reasons the rough fields and gullied hillsides should be the first to be used for grass. The increasing prices of meats and of farm labor will often make the fertile fields more profitable in pasture than in tilled crops. The convenience of water for the stock should not be overlooked in choosing a field for a pasture.

GENERAL SPRING SEEDING.

Sowing by Hand and With the Aid of a Disc Drill or Harrow. Some men can sow seed evenly by hand, while others make a bad failure of the job. The trouble with sowing broadcast by hand is that in most cases the seed is distributed very unevenly. In thick patches here and thin patches there. The inexperienced hand, too, may sow more seed than is necessary to the acre, or he may not use enough seed. A few experienced men can sow fine seed broadcast almost as evenly as can be done with a mechanical contrivance.

Where seed is to be sown by hand broadcast the surest way to have the ground covered evenly for a perfect stand is to sow lightly both ways of the field. However, mechanical seeders which distribute seed evenly and in set amounts to the acre are cheap and by all means should be used when it is possible to secure them. Of mechanical seeders for small seed there are many different kinds, ranging from the wheelbarrow seeder to the small seed attachments to grain drills. The wheelbarrow seeder is one of the best of these kinds for one man use only.

Common sense and good farming practice should teach us that all seed should be planted if it is expected to germinate and produce a crop of good plants. Every year literally thousands of bushels of high priced seed are wasted simply by "throwing" the seed upon the bare surface of the soil to take its chances with rains and elements. The reason so much of the valuable seed is wasted is that it never becomes covered with soil, hence much of it never germinates and grows.

Much is washed away by rains and melting snows. Some that does germinate on the surface of the soil never makes good plants because the young roots are too near the surface. They are killed with the first dry spell of summer.

Sowing clover and other kinds of seed in February and March on snow or home-combed ground is well and good if after conditions are such that the seed will sink into the soil deeply and become well covered where it fell without being moved. If the wet, alternate freezing and thawing soil will really plant it, then it will be all right.

The surest way to plant small seed of all kinds at any season is to open the surface soil with a disk drill or disk harrow, sow the seed so it will fall into these small furrows made by the disks and then cover with a smoothing harrow. With some disk drills where the soil is medium dry and friable the seed will be sufficiently covered with the drill drag chain attachments, thus saving subsequent mechanical covering. It is no foolish and wasteful to place wheel coats, rye, barley, cotton or any seed on the surface soil and allow it to be covered by chance as it is to sow small seed in the old style way without being covered.

Small seed must be planted the same as large seed, and when farmers come to realize this important fact less good seed will be wasted and much surer results will be secured.

Garden Hose Reel. The making of useful garden wood work is something which is within the ability of any one with ordinary ingenuity. In the accompanying cut is shown a cheap, strong and serviceable garden hose reel. It is perhaps not as desirable as a reel such as one would purchase, but it is useful and particularly desirable by those who cannot see their way clear to buy one. The stand is made of four inch by two inch scantling for the sides and two inch by two inch stretchers. Two of each are wanted except in the case of the legs, where four are wanted. The construction of the stand is simple. The sides have to be mortised to take the stretchers and also the legs. The stretchers have to be tenoned to fit into the sides, and the same applies to the leg stretchers and the legs. The only part of the construction which is not altogether simple is that of the legs, which, of course, are on a slope and must be tenoned accordingly. The reel is formed with two circles of wood made up of three boards, the narrowest in the middle. The boards are held together by small circles screwed to them. The reel will run on an iron bar passed through the middle of the sides. Metal or wool washers should be placed between the reel ends and the sides of the stand. To make the arrangement a lasting one it should all be painted before being put together. It should be repainted in the spring when it is perfectly dry.—Farm Progress.

STATE LAW MAKERS CONTINUE TO MAKE

A LARGE NUMBER OF BILLS COME BEFORE THE LEGISLATURE BUT FEW ARE CHOSEN

Tallahassee, May 6.—An anti-fee system bill introduced by Representative Wood, and which is entirely different from every other measure aimed at the abolition of the present method of payment for services by county officials, has received a favorable report at the hands of the house committee on county officials.

The Wood bill makes tax assessments as the basis for figuring the salaries of the various officials.

Four classes are enumerated as follows: Counties having an assessed property valuation up to $2,000,000, counties having a valuation between $2,000,000 and $5,000,000, counties between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 and counties over $10,000,000.

In the first class the monthly salaries would be as follows: Clerk of Circuit Court $150, Tax Assessor 100, Tax Collector 100, Sheriff 150, County Judge 50.

In addition to the County Judge would receive all fees paid into his office, which includes marriage license fees and others.

County Commissioners would receive a monthly salary of $25 in addition to an allowance of five cents per mile for traveling to and from the meetings.

In class two, up to $5,000,000 the following salaries would prevail: Clerk of Circuit Court $200, Tax Assessor 150, Tax Collector 150, Sheriff 200, County Judge (with fees) 75.

County commissioners would receive $45 monthly in addition to five cents per mile for mileage.

In class three the following salaries would prevail:

Clerk of Circuit Court $250, Tax Assessor 200, Tax Collector 200, Sheriff 250, County Judge (and fees) 100.

County commissioners would receive $50 monthly in addition to five cents per mile for mileage.

In class four the following salaries would prevail:

Clerk of Circuit Court $300, Tax Assessor 250, Tax Collector 250, Sheriff 300, County Judge (and fees) 150.

County commissioners would receive a monthly salary of $100 per month in addition to five cents per mile for mileage.

By the proposed measure the commissioners in the smaller counties would receive some less than the $100 allowance given them annually as now. In the counties above this class, however, the commissioner would begin to receive considerable more. In the very largest counties where the assessed valuation amounts to ten million or more dollars the commissioners would receive $100 per month.

Tallahassee, Fla.—The house committee appointed Friday to investigate into charges of drunkenness in the legislature Monday afternoon reported its findings and absolves any member of the house from any such charges.

In a weekly letter recently sent to the Manatee River Journal of Bradenton, Representative Wilson spoke of the shame and disgrace of drunken lawmakers. His statement was challenged by Representative Harrison of Duval and Representative Goldstein of Nassau offered a resolution demanding a full investigation.

Messrs. Goldstein, Turnbull and Griffin were appointed a committee to conduct a probe. A hearing was held Monday morning, and the report submitted shortly after the house convened in the afternoon.

The anti-coupon law, passed two years ago and which had been a bone of contention among the merchants of the state, some demanding its repeal and others holding the law to be good and to the best interests of the people, bids fair to be repealed. The bill repealing it was passed by the house late yesterday. It is believed it will be passed by the senate.

This law has been the subject of litigation, its constitutionality being questioned.

In the senate yesterday afternoon there was a lengthy debate on the bill providing for filing of petitions in cases where individual property rights of women are concerned, by contractors or builders or others furnishing material or labor for improvement of such property. Senator Himes vigorously opposed the bill, contending that it was unnecessary and smacked of special privilege. He thought women have sufficient protection in the matter of property rights. Senator Wilson contended they had insufficient. The bill advanced to third reading.

The Harrison anti-trust bill, which passed the house with ease last week has been favorably reported out of committee and the indications are that it will be passed.

"It is rumored" that Senator Igo will be a candidate for the office of Commissioner of Agriculture; that Capt. R. E. Rose will continue to be the state chemist, that Carey Hardee has the gubernatorial bee buzzing; that Senator Farris has already been stung by that insect; that Forrest Lake believes he will make a good comptroller, and is apt to go after the office.

"It is said" that there is not a member of the senate who has not some well defined political aspiration to office higher up, and that more than three-fifths of the house are confident that the next session they will be in the senate and "show that bunch how to do things."

President Charles F. Davis of the senate, so it is said, wants to be a congressman in the Second District, but has just a suspicion that he had better wait and see how the people generally are going to take his big bill before going out to sea for election.

So far Attorney General West is unopposed, at least there has been no boom for any other man found floating around on the troubled political sea of Leon.

It may not be such a joke on the senate after all that it passed the Fellsmore charter bill carrying women's suffrage with it. It will be remembered that at the time it was supposed that provision of the Fellsmore charter, but by the senate, because of its custom of expressly naming of local bills acted for by the members directly interested. But this morning the senate put through a measure giving to women the right to hold office, and later on it will be called upon perhaps to pass upon the grandfather amendment with the word "male" stricken from it. Whether the latter passes or not it will likely be considered by the public that the enactment of either are more sought after than the suffrage franchise, and that is just what the senate proposes to give them, so far as appointive offices are concerned.

That this bill should have come from one of the strongest local option senators belonging to the legislature, Senator Jones of Escambia county, seems to refute in a way the oft repeated statement that the local optionists are afraid of mixing the women in politics. According to the statement of at least one man, it goes even further than that. It demonstrates that while local optionists are unwilling to drag the women down in the mire of curbstones and precinct politics, they are willing to give the women all they can of the best there is in politics.

MANY NEW HOMES

So many new homes are being built in Sanford these days that the Herald can hardly keep in touch with all of them. This week we note two new houses on the McCuller corner lot of Ninth street and Myrtle being erected by L. P. McCuller for rental purposes.

Judge Herring is having erected on the lake front near the Gabbett home a fine residence and he will bulkhead the property and have a fine home here.

Leslie Bryan is having a well put down on his new lots on Sanford Heights and will start work on his new home next week.

Against Sunday Pictures

Tallahassee, May 5.—Representative Robson of Polk county asks that all picture shows and vaudeville shows be prohibited on Sunday. There are but few towns in the state of Florida where these performances are now permitted, and it is understood the bill will meet with strenuous opposition from these cities. Delegations from Jacksonville and Tampa are expected here this week to appear before the committee on miscellaneous legislation in an effort to kill the bill. The contention is put forth that every city has a right to regulate such matters by ordinance and that no new state is needed.

Cheap Rates to Richmond

The Atlantic Coast Line has been designated as the official route to the Richmond Remount of the United Confederate Veterans on June 1st to 10th. The A. C. BIRD DAY OBSERVED

Last Tuesday was Bird Day and was generally observed all over the state and here in Sanford the parade of the school children and the exercises at the high school auditorium were all that could be desired. The children made a pretty sight as they marched through the streets with their banners, the smallest starting the parade and the largest bringing up the rear guard, each teacher accompanying her class.

It is certain that the parade gave the citizens something to think about as few of them realized how many children are in attendance at the Sanford schools and the needs of the children at this particular time regarding buildings are great. Some of the children had signs relating to the proposed bond issue and their appearance on the streets no doubt strengthened the idea that bonds are necessary for more school buildings.

The parade stopped at the High School where appropriate exercises were brought to a grand finale by a most excellent talk upon bird life by Doctor Blackman, formerly the president of Rollins College and one of the well known authorities on bird life in this state and others. Dr. Blackman is a great lover of birds and is most active in their behalf and his most interesting talk to the children on Tuesday will be of great benefit in their protection.

The school board and teachers are to be congratulated upon their having so effectively directed the children and their faithful observance of Bird Day.
