Grant May Force Library Delay

Construction of a county library in Sanford may be delayed for as much as a year if a federal grant is approved for the proposed Casselberry library.

The Casselberry facility would have to be given first priority, County Librarian Jean Rhein told county commissioners in workshop Tuesday, because federal grant rules require construction begin within nine months. The grant requested is for $200,000.

The Sanford library has been the county's first priority since a bond issue was approved for libraries construction.

While Feb. 11 is the deadline for the county to file formal application for the grant, a preapplication was filed several weeks ago putting the federal government on notice that the grant would be requested.

Commissioners Monday Instructed staff to prepare a contract to purchase a 5-acre site on the Oxford Road extension near state Road 436 in Casselberry, even though suitability questions remain.

The commission also approved the final contract to purchase from Marna Hunt for $130,000 the site for the new Sanford library. The site is immediately behind the present library on 1st Street in downtown Sanford.

Closing on the sale is to be completed before the end of the month.

When the Sanford library is built the old facility given to the county by the city of Sanford is to be converted into library office space.

For the Casselberry facility, both the library advisory committee and library staff have recommended the purchase of the Oxford Road See LIBRARY, page 8A

Doctor Clarifies Colleagues' Stand O

By Jane Casselberry

Herald Staff Writer Dr. Gonzalo Huaman, chief of staff of Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, has taken issue with a headline in Sunday's Herald (Jan. 6) which, he sald, gave the erroneous immilitary draft. A study by the conservative Heritage Foundation claims that present military personnel could treat as little as one in 10 wounded on the battlefields of a large scale conventional war.

In fact, Dr. Huaman said, the doctors indicated in case of such a war or other national emergency happening, the armed forces would not have any problem getting enough

Dr. Huaman took a sampling pression that doctors at the of the opinions of a relatively hospital are resisting a call for small number of the 75 active physicians on staff (22 of whom have experience serving in the military) of a proposed mandatory registration of doctors and nurses for Selective Service in the face of what the Heritage Foundation says would be a severe shortage of medical personnel in the event of a major conflict. Many of those he spoke to, however, questioned the need at this time for doctors and nurses physicians. "The feeling overall to be required to register "for opposed to serving their country, possible rapid induction into the armed services in the event of war" since all of the information such as name, age and qualifications by skill that would be provided is already available from the State Board of Examiners and the American Medical Association. Others felt such a system would "mean they will be singled out as a group." Huaman said.

Huaman emphasized, however, in the event of a war, "The doctors at CFRH are prepared to serve their country no matter where that takes them. And we would be prepared to care for the wounded in a battle situation. regardless of who they are. That's why we're doctors. No ... the doctors at CFRH are not women in the medical profession we just question the need for a registration at this time."

The study said the armed forces face a shortage of 60,000 medical specialists. To address the deficiency, the study recommended doctors and nurses be required to register.

Paula Massey, associate executive director of the Florida Nurses Association, said "Our profession has a history of responding to the need in a crisis and because of the fact that many of the nurses graduating from nursing school are finding the job market not as open as it was two years ago many of them are going into the military because of the opportunities."

Retired Army Maj. General Henry Mohr, former chief of the Army Reserve, who wrote the Heritage study, said the Pentagon determined as early as 1981 that "only one in 10 wounded servicemen would receive necessary lifesaving care if a major conventional conflict broke out."

A Sanford man revives the forgotten art form of his ancestors. In LEISURE.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan between Secretary of State George Shultz hopes will lead to improved superpower

At a nationally broadcast news conference - his first at the White House since July -Reagan said Wednesday the objective of forthcoming "new negotiations" on nuclear weapons on Earth and defensive weapons in space "will be the reduction of nuclear arms and the strengthening of strategic stability." Ultimately, he added in an opening statement, the goal is "complete elimination of nuclear weapons"

It was the 27th formal news conference of Reagan's presidency and probably the last of his first term. He appeared to have anticipated most of the questions, gently chided reporters at times and expessed regret that many questions were left unasked during the half hour.

Reagan appeared exhilarated over the success of the talks Monday and Tuesday says the success of last week's arms talks and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei means the United States is opening "a new Gromyko in Geneva, Switzerland, and shied dialogue" with the Soviet Union that he away from his previous tough rhetoric in discussing the Kremlin.

He did, however, warn that the negotiations will be difficult because "our differences are many and profound." But he vowed the United States will be "flexible, patient and determined."

"Today, it's my hope that this week's meeting in Geneva, while only a single step. is the beginning of a new dialogue between the United States and the Soviet Union," he said. "It's also my hope that as 1985 unfolds, this year will emerge as one of dialogue and negotiations, a year that leads to better relations between the United States and the Soviet Union."

Reagan made it clear he intends to pursue research on the Strategic Defense Initiative - known popularly as the "Star Wars" defense system - and is not ready for a trade off in that area. However, the president expressed his willingness "to discuss trade-offs" between forms of offensive weapons. U.S. officials have said this might involve U.S. reductions in bombers, for example, in exchange for Soviet cutbacks in heavy land-based missiles.

During the news conference, Reagan:

-Said he would welcome a summit meeting with Soviet leader Konstanin Chernenko "as long as it was a two-way street. Our problem in the past has been that it's been a one-way street and we were going the wrong way."

-Said he was "resistant" to reducing cost-of-living adjustments for Social Security to reduce the federal deficit but would agree to do so if he was faced with "an overwhelming bipartisan" sentiment in

-Remained firm against any further limits in the growth of military spending.

Reagan congratulated Shultz on "a lob well done" and boasted about the "unanimity" of the U.S. team.

Reagan Agrees With Social Security Freeze To Chop Deficit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan would be willing to go along with a freeze on Social Security to reduce the deficit if faced with "overwhelming" congressional approval, but remains steadfastly opposed to tax hikes or limiting military spending.

Senate Republican leaders, who scheduled a meeting with White House aides today. Wednesday called on Congress to have the "guts" to freeze Social Security and defense spending as a way to reduce the deficit.

But Reagan rejected the halt in Pentagon increases. "Defense is not a program in which we can determine what we want to spend," he said at his news conference Wednesday night. "That is dictated by things outside this country. What if some development across the ocean makes it necessary to do something?"

President Mum On Hodel Move

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan says he "ain't talkin'" about reports, which originated in his administration, that he plans to move Energy Secretary Donald Hodel into the more visible Cabinet post of interior secretary.

But sources in the environmental and energy communities say they expect an announcement today.

"I ain't talkin'," Reagan told a White House news conference Wednesday night. "I'll tell you when we've made a decision."

Hodel, a former Interior Department undersecretary, was regarded by many as a natural choice to succeed William Clark, a longtime Reagan aide who told the president last week he wanted to go back to his ranch in California.

Handicapped Can Fight Bias

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The nation's handicapped have won the right to challenge discrimination against them and demand remedies in federally supported programs regardless of whether the bias is premeditated or unintentional.

The Supreme Court, adding a legal weapon for handicapped rights groups, ruled Wednesday that programs and projects supported by federal funds must be free of both willing and unintentional discrimination.

The unanimous decision should help handicapped groups challenge alleged discrimination in a wide array of programs that receive federal funding in the areas of health care, education and construction, among others.

New Rules Allow Medicare To Cover Prepaid Health Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The government pay their monthly Part B premium for beneficiaries. expects hundreds of thousands of older Americans to sign up for prepaid health plans under new rules that let Medicare pay the monthly fee.

Under final rules published in the Federal Register today, elderly Medicare beneficiaries may sign up next month with health maintenance organizations or other plans that deliver a comprehensive package of care in return for a prepaid fee.

The plans must provide doctor and hospital care at least equal to Medicare's. Beneficiaries may be charged small monthly premiums — one trade group estimates the average will be $15 — but do not have to pay the usual deductibles and 20 percent share of doctor and hospital bills. Enrollees must use the plan's designated doctors and

The government estimates the rules will prompt 200,000 more elderly beneficiaries to join health maintenance organizations or other prepaid plans by next year. Currently, 400,000 are enrolled. The government expects the program to be in high gear by midyear.

The new rules mark the first time Medicare has ventured into the prepaid health business. Some Medicare beneficiaries are already enrolled in HMOs. but the government reimburses them for each service rendered.

GM Sees Saturn Division Key To Firm's Survival

WARREN, Mich. (UPI) - The Saturn Corp., the first new General Motors Corp. car division since Chevrolet's 1918 debut, may determine whether the nation's No. 1 automaker has a future as a domestic producer. GM officials say.

GM Chairman Roger B. Smith Tuesday introduced the small-car subsidiary that will join Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick and Cadillac as passenger car nameplates. He described the announcement as "an historic occasion."

'Perhaps more than any other factor, we believe Saturn is the key to GM's long-term competitiveness, survival and success as a domestic producer," Smith said.

"We expect that what we learn with Saturn will spread throughout GM, improving the efficiency and competitiveness of every plant we operate and every product we build."

Smith said forming a new division will enable GM to use new technology and incorporate Japanese management and assembly techniques it has observed at its joint venture with Toyota in

"I don't believe we could be here today announcing Saturn if we hadn't had the experience with Toyota," he said.

Smith said Saturn eventually will have total assets of $5 billion and provide about 20,000 jobs at a site to be determined. It initially will produce 400,000 to 500,000 four-door and two-door subcompact sedans a year.

Smith said the new cars will be smaller and lighter than GM J-Cars but with comparable interior space. The target fuel efficiency is 45 miles per gallon city and 60 mph on the highway. Smith said prices "will be competitive."

Joseph J. Sanchez, 54, former general manager of Oldsmobile Division, will be the Saturn Corp. president. He will remain a GM vice president.

The new company is expected to negotiate a labor agreement patterned on concepts developed by a GM-United Auto Workers union task force during the three years of Project Saturn.

UAW Vice President Donald Ephlin, who attended the news conference, said he did not believe Saturn employees would make less than other GM workers.

"As far as I'm concerned, the whole idea is to become competitive with these other producers while maintaining our standard of living," Ephlin

Sanchez said the relationship between the union and company has been established and Outgoing Mayor Lee P. Moore, left, chokes "now it's a function of what we can get through that relationship that is acceptable to the company and the employees."

GM officials said Saturn will set up its own dealer network, probably with facilities separate from present dealerships. However, GM President F. James McDonald said current GM dealers will get first consideration.

Remote Cable Stations Take Telephone Pulse Of World

By Gino Del Guercio UPI Science Writer

GREEN HILL, R.I. (UPI) - In a remote underground bunker on the Rhode Island coast, George Benford listens as thousands of telephone calls flood in from across the Atlantic.

Yet all he hears is silence - that is unless something goes wrong with either of two 3,500-mile submarine cables that begin about 25 feet from his desk and end in France and Spain. Then bells go off and the phone starts ringing like a small-town firehouse during a five-alarm fire.

Benford, a tall bearded New Englander, is responsible for making sure almost 5,000 simultaneous telephone calls reach their destinations around the clock. "It's always interesting. You never know who you're going to get when you pick up the phone," he said. Benford receives requests and trouble calls from all over the world.

He and his seven-member team keep Telegraph's Green Hill submarine cable station, one of two stations that transmit signals directly to Europe. The second is located in Tuckerton, N.J.

AT&T also operates two West Coast stations, at Point Arena and San Luis Obispo, Calif., that transmit signals by three cables to Hawaii and on to Guam and Asia. One cable from Tuckerton goes to Bermuda and on to the Caribbean and South America.

in addition, cables from Florida stations in Jacksonville Beach, Vero Beach, West Palm beach, Miami and Key West go to Puerto Rico, St. Thomas, Jamaica and Cuba.

The cables are jointly owned and run by AT&T and the destination country. On the opposite end there is a bunker almost identical to the Green Hill station run by technicians from that country.

Green Hill's two undersea cables run up the beach and enter the underground bunker through a concrete wall facing the ocean. They thread their way overhead until they descend straight down into two refrigerator-sized boxes. The station's electronics filter the signals into individual conversations. The deciphered calls are sent to their destinations spread across North and South America.

The two undersea cables are of different thicknesses. The thinner and older of the two is only about 2 inches thick. The second is about twice that

The first transatiantic cable was laid in 1956 between Carenville, Newfoundland and Oban, Scotland. It was a double cable so that each cable carried conversations in one direction. The two cables carried 36 voice channels.

Before telephone cables there were telegraph cables. Conversations were also carried by radio signals that were bounced off the lonosphere.

You see, Floridians 55 or over can now take advantage of Barnett's Senior Partners package.

As a Senior Partner, you'll receive free checking, as well as personalized checks, traveler's

There's A Better Way

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo and Ed Koch. mayor of New York City, are finding little support among New Yorkers for their denunciation of the vigilante who shot four teenage hoodlums trying to rob him on the subway three days before Christmas. Quite the contrary, thousands of callers have swamped the police hot line praising the mild-mannered, bespectacled man for "a great job," for doing the "right thing." Many want to draft him for mayor.

New York's new folk-hero turns out to be 38-year-old electronics specialist Berhhard Hugo Goetz. He delivered himself to New Hampshire authorities, and now is free on $50,000 cash bond waiting additional court action. Perhaps the stage was set for Mr. Goetz's violent leap to national attention by a previous mugging four years ago in lower Manhattan.

In any event, Mr. Goetz decided to take the law into his own hands when four 18- and 19-year-olds, armed with sharpened screwdrivers, surrounded him on the subway and demanded money. He pulled out a .38-caliber revolver and fired bullets into each of his assailants and escaped the scene after telling a conductor they had "tried to rip me off." The four would-be muggers, all of whom have police records, were hospitalized and one, with a shattered spine, is permanently

Gov. Cuomo and Mayor Koch were correct. of course, in speaking out as they must against vigilantism.

The New York subway, once the wonder of the world, has become an infamous snakepit. Nearly 12,000 felony crimes were reported in the subways during the first 10 months of last year - approximately 40 every day. During 1984, there were 5,000 subway fires and hundreds of riders were hospitalized for smoke inhalation or injuries. Almost all of the system's 6,140 cars are smeared inside and out wth graffiti, much of it vile, and 70 tons of trash are collected daily from the trains, H tunnels and 465 stations.

But with New York City traffic almost deadlocked in record congestion levels and midtown parking rates running $16 a day in places, more than 3.4 million persons have little choice but a daily descent into the filthy. dangerous subway. Worst of all, the subway is a trap for the crime victim. There's no escape, no place to run; a passenger is at the mercy of the criminal any hour of the day or night (the Goetz episode took place at 1:30

The discouraging, not to say alarming. aspect of New York's Intolerable subway situation is that the transit police force, consisting of 3,600 officers - an astonishingly large number — is so obviously incapable of coping with underground criminals. But there is a bit of room for a little optimism in recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions that have broadened the previously too-strict interpretation of the "exclusionary rule" and Miranda warning technicalities. which provided unbalanced advantage to the criminal. The certainty of swift, sure punishment for criminals is the best longrange hope for making New York's subways

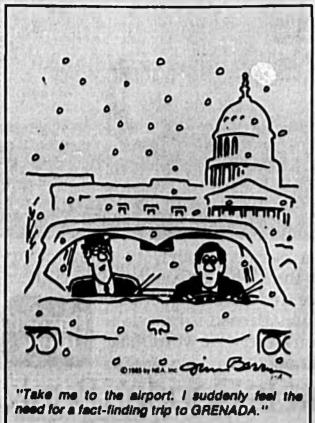

Meanwhile, Gov. Cuomo and Mayor Koch are obliged to do whatever is necessary to protect more effectively the millions who are compelled to be subway commuters.

More police should be added, if only temporarily, until the courts can begin handing down more than token sentences to subway criminals.

That it took the desperate act of an otherwise apparently law-abiding citizen to focus attention on a national disgrace speaks volumes on how bad the situation is in our largest city.

South And West Hold Key To '88

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Now that Congress is once again in session, the Democrats are girding for battle, trying to recapture the momentum from the bruising Presidential defeat last November and spearhead through legislation that they believe will earn them a decent shot at recapturing the White House in 1988.

However, no matter what their record in the 99th and 100th Congresses, none of it will do the least bit of good unless the Democrats can nominate someone who is acceptable to the South and the West. It is critical to break through the solid phalanx that the Republicans have captured there.

The last Democratic winner who was not from either the South or the West was, of course; John Kennedy. Although the legend of Mr. Kennedy has grown in death as perhaps it never could have in life, it is fair to say that he represented the best candidate the Democrats could have fielded that year.

Yet even he won by a razor-thin majority in the popular vote, although the Electoral College margin of 303 to 219 was somewhat more

But let us suppose that the Kennedy-Nixon election were being held today, and that each state voted for the same candidate now that it did in 1960. The winner today would be -Richard Nixon. The reason for this change is the switch in population; for example California and Florida have together gained 26 electoral votes since 1960, while New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, and Illinois have lost a total of

Indeed, it would now appear that unless the Democrats decide to nominate someone from one of those regions, the South and the West (excluding Hawaii) can be delivered as a solid block to the Republicans. This is more than enough to win the election without picking up a single electoral vote from the Midwest or the East. Those two regions currently represent 280 electoral votes, with the number likely to rise to 290-295 by 1992.

So what is to prohibit the Democrats from nominating a moderate who could at least provide a standoff in the South and West while garnering a substantial majority in the Midwest

Here we come to the peculiar disease of the Democratic party as it is now constituted, which is its system of primaries. For reasons which were perhaps historically valid but are now meaningless, all the key early Democratic primaries are held in the East. Thus it is not the voters of Texas, or Colorado, or California who decide the Democratic candidate, but rather the voters of New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and anyone from the South after the Jimmy Carter flasco, and since Westerners generally are not particularly popular in the East - they are perceived to lack understanding about the problems of overcrowded, deteriorating cities and minorities - they invariably garner only a smattering of the early votes.

Since the Democrats are loath to nominate

Thus the Democrats appear doomed to pick another candidate in 1988 who will score heavily in the Northeast - and hand the Republicans an absolute majority by being blanked in the South and West.

The Unhappy Truths

During the Christmas season. Hanol mounted an offensive in Cambodia that has so far driven 63,000 refugees across the border into Cambodia, and is waging an all-out water against three Cambodian guerilla factions.

But this is only the latest. Since coining to power in the south in 1975, Hanol's behavior has created 600,000 Vietnamese refugees, most of whom fled by boat into the South China sea. Hanoi, 10 years after the war ended, still has 10,000 political prisoners rotting in prison. Hanoi has invaded Laos, using poison gas to subdue the hill people.

With the collapse of anticommunist power in Southeast Asia, one of the more remarkable slaughters in history ensued, as Pol Pot's guerillas overran Cambodia.

But the full reality never seems to aink in. Two liberal congresamen. Rep. Stephen Solarz of Brooklyn and Rep. Robert Torricelli of New Jersey, have been touring Vietnam. Laos and Cambodia, and have announced in surprised tones that Vietnam does not seem to want serious talks about reaching a settlement of the fighting in Cambodia.

"If Vietnam were really serious about seeking a settlement," said Mr. Solarz at a press conference in Pnom Penh, "they would be willing to meet with Son Sann (a rebel leader) and Prince Sihanouk. Or they would be willing to spell out in more detail the kind of political arrangement they would be willing to consider in order to achieve national reconciliation in Cam-

One can imagine Mr. Solarz complaining from Berlin in the summer of 1939 that Hitler was not really serious about resolving the Polish crisis because he had not gone into sufficient detail about what negotiations might suffice to bring about a "reconciliation" between the two nations. The Reichchancellor's crowd up at the Eagle's Nest in Berchtesgaden would have laughed into the wee hours over that one.

One almost expects Mr. Solarz to ask Hanol to "give peace a chance."

There is absolutely no way to deal with a regime of that sort except to apply sufficient force to it. We failed to do so. And, of course, we not only got a bloodbath, we got a permanent bloodbath.

These truths are unwelcome and unpleasant, but they are not, on that account, less true.

WILLIAM RUSHER

Geneva Propaganda

NEW YORK (NEA) - The diffleulty of trying to conduct diplomatic negotiations on behalf of an open society, under the baleful gaze of its opinionated media, has never been better illustrated than by the preliminaries to the Shultz-Gromyko arms-control talks in Geneva.

President Reagan devoted his first administration to building this country's strength back up to a point of rough equivalency with the Soviet Union - a process that so outraged the Kremlin that it walked out of the previous Geneva negotiations. Now Mr. Reagan has lured the Russians back to the conference table by hinting that his next step may be to replace deterrence through mutual assured destruction (the defense on which both sides currently rely) with a space-based defense against nuclear missiles.

What Moscow's real reaction to these developments may be, and what strategy its negotiators are following in Geneva, are of course deep secrets. On the American side, however, the formulation of the government's position has been accompanied by such a chorus of leaks, denials, charges, countercharges, and unsolicited advice that one is reminded of Bismarck's warning about letting outsiders know how sausage is made.

Throughout, the gagerness of the liberal media to manipulate public opinion has been apparent. Worse yet, if possible, some conservatives have tended to treat every liberal trial balloon and rumor as an accurate description of President Reagan's own mind-set. Early on, the liberals picked up indications that the Russians were desperately anxious to avoid having to compete with the United States on a space-based defense, both because of its cost and technical complexity and because its deployment would render largely uscless the vast quantity of nuclear missiles Russia has constructed. So our media began a campaign to discredit any such "Star Wars" proposals. The usual leftist scientists swore it wouldn't work (not bothering to explain why, in that case, the Russians were so worried about it).

Toward the end of 1984, such attacks were supplemented by a barrage of alleged leaks from within the administration. CBS-TV quoted what it called "reliable administration sources" as saying the United States was considering offering a temporary moratorium on the deployment of Euromissiles and on the testing of space weapons. Three days later, national security adviser Robert McFarlane publicly denied this. Next came a hot tip that the United States was ready to use the concept of a space-based defense merely as a "bargaining chip."

Meanwhile the Russians said nothing, presumably counting on the Western media to smoke out their adversaries for them and of course (as always) to put America's negotiators under heavy pressure to come home with some sort of agreement, no matter how illadvised or premature.

Robots In Health Care

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) -Robots, which have been employed more and more for industrial and commercial use, may soon go to work in hospitals and nursing homes, freeing health professionals for more skilled tasks. Scientists expect the development of mechanical devices to help flex stiff joints of patients in physical therapy, bathe elderly people in nursing homes, assist surgeons in operating rooms and process blood or urine samples in medical

In Japan, scientists have already built and clinically tested a twoarmed robot manipulator that can transfer patients between hospital cart and bed. Some hospitals in the United States have experimental mobile robot carts that follow preset paths to deliver meals and linen. 'Robots have a potentially rich and complex future in medicine,' says Larry Leifer, a Stanford University professor of mechanical engineering who envisions robots rolling down hospital corriders delivering some forms of routine patient care. At the Palo Alto Veterans Administration Medical Center, Leifer heads a Rehabilitation Research and Development team of medical and engineering experts who are developing robiotic devices to help the disabled.

Dr. Paul Haber, who directs programs for the elderly at the VA Hospital, said he is a strong advocate of robot technology to help older patients.

'We don't want to depersonalize nursing homes, but many nursing tasks are boring, difficult, unpleasant and demeaning for both patient and caretaker."

Robots, he said, could do things such as toileting, bathing, feeding, transferring and grooming patlents."

The major product of the VA team has been development of a microcomputer-directed mechanical arm that manipulates objects in response to voice commands and small physical movements of its operator.

Leifer said its dexterity could help loosen the shackles of paralysis for an estimated 40,000 quadriplegics in the United States and assist another 200,000 people with severe physical limitations.

Robots, at an estimated $6 an hour, could also reduce the cost of attendant care which now has a net cost of $15 an hour, Leifer said.

How To Wage Economic Warfare

WASHINGTON - The Federal Emergency Management Agency has commissioned a $100,000 study on how to wage economic warfare.

The private contractor, who conducted the study with substantial input from agency officials. proposes a series of new federal task forces and committees. Their purpose would be to implement a "coherent, organized and effective" federal program should the United States go to war with economic weapons. Naturally, FEMA will be in charge.

FEMA, an obscure federal agency that is supposed to prepare for natural and man-made disasters. has been criticized for attempting to grab more power than it is due. Director Louis Giuffrida has been assailed by none other than Attorney General William French Smith for trying to create an "emergency czar" role for his Washington officials question FEMA's authority to direct economic warfare. But a FEMA spokesman cited a 1962 executive order, which apparently gives the agency the claimed jurisdiction.

The spokesman insisted that "economic warfare" wasn't the agency's name for the phenomenon described in the study. FEMA prefers the term "economic defense" to define the methods of "denying adversaries U.S. resources."

But my associate Donald Goldberg has obtained a draft report of the study, and it clearly states that FEMA has "activated a pilot program to identify the ... elements of a federal offensive and defensive economic-warfare program."

The inch-thick report does not advocate any particular method of waging economic warfare; rather it recommends implementing measures on a case-by-case basis. For instance, the section titled "Offensive Economic Warfare Actions" reads as if it were written by a CIA bureau chief in Latin America. It includes these possibilities:

(1) "Currency and exchange-rate restrictions and-or manipulation"; (2) "Manipulation of gold, silver and other precious metals sales or stockpiles": (3) "Economic espionage": and (4) "Misinformation on products, statistics, patents and so forth."

The uninitiated might think some of those would constitute "dirty tricks" unworthy of the U.S. government. But the FEMA study is not so squeamish. It identifies (without advocating) a number of other techniques under the heading 'Dirty Tricks." including:

"The use of propaganda and false information includes measures such as publishing false information of economic failures and-or successes (i.e., disinformation)."

- "Economic disturbance and aggravation includes counterfeiting currency, fomenting labor strikes - "Covert, illicit and illegal actions include bribes, the stealing of technical secrets and providing a safe haven for terrorists who are hostile to the enemy."

- "Infrastructure sabotage and destruction includes measures such as industrial sabotage."

The authors of the FEMA study evidently knew what the customer wanted for his $100,000. One of the recommended systems for waging the economic-warfare program is an inter-agency committee supervised by an inter-agency policy board. The members of both panels would be chosen by - who else? - the director of FEMA.

Footnote: Agency sources say the draft study is still being evaluated. and there's no evidence that FEMA plans to pursue the subject. This would make it just another $100,000 boundoggle. Officials of the firm that did the study declined

McNeal Wants To Atone For Super Worst Moment

MIAMI (UPI) - Don McNeal's worst moment on a football field came during a Super Bowl. It hasn't been easy, but he'll finally get a chance to McNeal, a starter since his rookie year, was coming off an outstanding season in 1982 heading into the Super Bowl against the Washington Réd-

But a missed tackle on John Riggins gave Washington its winning touchdown and a string of bad luck followed for McNeal.

The former first-round draft choice from Alabama missed the 1983 season with a ruptured Achilles tendon suffered in pre-season. He missed five games this year with a knee injury. then his father died on the day of Minmi's first playoff game against

When healthy, however, McNeal has been the Dolphins' best cornerback. Miami Coach Don Shula points to McNeal's return as a major reason the Dolphins emerged from a mid-season defensive slump and rolled into the Super Bowl against the San Francisco 49ers.

"Don McNeal is one of the things I'm really happy about as far as this football team." Miami Coach Don Shula said. "He's battled back and then had to go through the tradgedy of his father dying, but he battled back from that, too.'

McNeal said the battle has been shared by all of the Dolphins.

"This team has been through so much, especially defensively," McNeal said. "We've had all the lows and highs. We had to live without going to the Super Bowl last year when we lost to Scattle, and Washington beat us two ycars ago.

"But I'm sure San Francisco doesn't care about that.

McNeal's most vivid memory from the Redskins' Super Bowl is his missing Riggins on his 43-yard touchdown run with 10:01 left in the game. McNeal let Riggins slip away in the backfield on a 4th-and-1 play with Miami leading 17-13. Washington went on to win 27-17.

"I didn't rise to the occasion and make the tackle," McNeal said. "Everytime I see the play I say to myself 'I'm going to stop him this McNeal has helped the Dolphins stop offenses all year. He defensed 10 passes, intercepted three, recoverd a fumble and forced three more.

The Dolphins' secondary will be sternly tested in the Super Bowl against Joe Montana and his corps of receivers.

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI) - The food lines will be considerably shorter at this year's Super Bowl - 310-pound Louie Kelcher will be on the field.

For the first time in his 10-year career, Kelcher will be in uniform for the Super Bowl.

Were it not for an about-face on a retirement decision, the massive nose tackle would have been eating his words Jan. 20.

While en route to the San Francisco 49ers' Rocklin, Calif. training camp last summer. Kelcher decided to quit - for a second time - after nine NFL seasons. He turned his car around on Interstate 5, headed to his home near San Diego and called in his farewell address.

"Now I'm really glad I changed my mind," Kelcher said Wednesday as the 49ers' took an hour off from their practice for the Super Bowl against the Miami Dolphins.

"I probably would have had bruises on my backside from everyone kicking me and telling me how stupid I was." Kelcher, a three-time All-Pro, was traded to the 49ers from the San Diego Chargers before this season. He had prematurely retired after eight games in 1983. "This is the ultimate," he said. "Some guys get this the first year they're in the league, but I've been around 10 years."

They were ten lean years.

"My first year in San Diego, we were 2-12 and punting on third down because we were so bad," he said. Kelcher plays sparingly for the NFC champions, with rookie Michael Carter getting most of the work. "I'd like to play more, but at this point in my career, it doesn't make sense for me to say anything." he said. "It beats the heck out of selling cars in Texas. It's cold there now, you know." Keicher could have been before a fireplace in Texas watching the Miami offensive show, but the plans now call for him to be in Stanford Stadium - in

FJC Tips Raiders

By Sam Cook

Herald Sports Editor JACKSONVILLE - The last shot isn't always the best shot in basketball. SCC's Raiders know that today after they watched three attempts go awry in the closing seconds Wednesday night while losing a tough 87-86 decision to Florida Junior in the Mid-Florida Conference opener for both teams.

"They got the crucial re-bounds and we didn't, that was the difference," said SCC assistant coach Dean Smith. "We got three chances to win it at the end, though, and couldn't get one to go down."

Florida Junior took what looked to be a safe lead, 87-83, when Ron Lucas converted a three-point play with just 33 seconds to play.

The Raiders, however, weren't ready to fold the tent as Calvin "Kiki" Bryant was fouled as he fired up a shot with 18 seconds to play. The shot went in Bryant calmly dropped home the free throw to trim the deficit to one

The Raiders then fouled George Beaton and the strategy paid off when Beaton threw up an air ball which gave SCC possession on the sideline. "We wanted to take a shot with eight seconds left," informed Smith. "That way, if we missed, we'd have a chance for the offensive rebound."

The strategy almost worked. Kenny Edwards tossed up a running one-hander which missed. Greg "Skywalker" Bates sailed high in the air but missed the tip. Linny Grace then grabbed the ball with his back to the basket. His hurried attempt also missed with four seconds left. Neither team could control the ball during the last four seconds as FJC held on for the

"Linny could have gotten a better shot, but he didn't know how much time was left," said Smith. "Florida Junior was just standing and watching by that time."

Grace had another fine game na he tossed in 10 of 13 floor shots and 3 of 4 free throws for 23 points. Edwards was next with 18 while Bryant and Bates each had 10. Scott Hughes added eight.

FJC won the rebound battle, 29-28, as Anthony Mosley pulled down nine boards. Greg "Slim" Johnson grabbed eight before fouling out for the Raiders. Edwards and Bates each had five, Grace and Edwards handed Pinkney hurt the Tribe inside in the early going and Seminole couldn't get its offense on track as Winter Park built a 12-6 lead after the first quarter. Seminole came alive in the second quarter, but the Lady Wildcats kept up their first quarter pace and took a seven point lead, 28-21, at halftime.

Mona Benton provided most of the offensive punch for the Lady Seminoles as she matched Pinkney's 20 points for scoring honors. Court Upholds Tree-Burning To Prevent Spread Of Canker

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - The state has won one legal battle over the destruction of trees in the fight against citrus canker but other cases remain pending.

An appeal court ruled Wednesday that the state has the right to destroy privately owned citrus trees even if the trees are healthy.

The 3-0 ruling by the 1st District Court of Appeal supported Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner's decision to order the destruction of between 4 million and 5 million seedlings and trees in the, thus far, vain effort to eradicate the plant disease.

However, other canker-related court cases remain pending, including one action accusing Conner of negligence for failing to spot the canker spreading through Florida carlier.

Toxic Gas Locations Unknown

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Florida's top environmental official is warning lawmakers that the state does not know all its storage locations of toxic gases or their quantities.

In a report to the Senate Natural Recources Committee Wednesday, Environmental Regulation Secretary Victoria Tschinkel said: "The quantities of toxic gases and volatile liquids used and stored in the state is not yet known nor is the specific location of chemical producers, formulators or Tschinkel said there are no laws or regulations requiring chemical plants in Florida to have approved safety plans and meet minimum construction and operational standards. The industry is basically self-regulated, she said.

Tschnikel recommended that the state conduct an extensive review of chemical storage in Florida and determine what additional regulations are needed.

Miami Gets First Black PD Chief

MIAMI (UPI) - Miami's first black police chief, who started as a foot patrolman 24 years ago, faces the task of restoring stability in the politics-torn department and promoting harmony in the city's multi-ethnic community. Clarence Dickson, 50, a balding man known for his cigar and cowboy boots, was appointed police chief Wednesday and officially begins the job Monday. He replaces Herbert Breslow, who retired amid rumors he was about to be fired.

Dickson was chosen for the Job because he had demonstrated the ability to deal with the city's multiethnic population, said acting City Manager Randolph Rosencrantz.

Hospital Offers Winter Classes

Fresh start can mean two different things to smokers in this new year.

"Fresh Start" is the name of a course being offered by Central Florida Regional Hospital beginning Jan. 21 to help smokers kick the habit. And if attendees follow through, then it will be truly a fresh start for 1985.

Free, the course will be offered from 7:30-8:30 p.m. Jan. 21, 24, 28 and 31 in the hospital dining room.

The sessions also explore ways to overcome side effects which they might encounter when they first stop smoking, and how to combat the temptation to begin again.

A new lifestyle for diabetics is emphasized in the upcoming series, "Diabetes Update."

The free six-week series will be held from 2:30 to 4 p.m. on successive Thursdays from the 17th through Feb. 21 in the hospital classroom.

Both classes are limited and pre-registration is encouraged. Call Nursing Education at CFRH, 321-4500 or 668-4441, extension 607.

Questions Parents Ask About Religion In The Public Schools

By Patricia McCormack United Press International

Nancy Berla, an editor of 'Network," a paper for parents, sits at the business end of a hotline that gets about 300 calls a month, airing assorted school

The paper is put out by the National Committee for Citizens in Education of Columbia, Md., a non-profit group that keeps advancement of one religious parents on their toes about public schools and advocates involvement.

About 17 percent of the hotline calls stem from discipline problems, including suspensions, physical punishment. And 16 percent are made because parents have problems with services for handicapped children. Placement in school, rights to school records and parents' and students' rights are topics of other calls.

But Berla also gets questions about religion and at this time, due to provisions of the newly enacted federal Equal Access Act, she wants to share some of them - and answers.

She said the calls about religion are only about one percent of the total - but that they raise questions that many parents may be thinking about.

Examples of typical questions.

son attends distributes pocket Bibles and calendars with Bible verses to all children. Is this A. "The courts have ruled that it is unconstitutional to distrib-ute Bibles or other religious material to public schoolchildren, because this represents belief. There is no constitutional violation in having copies of the Bible in public school libraries. And Bible study courses may be taught in public schools if the instruction is objective, historical and non-devotional.

Q. (Ohio) "My son did not attend a school Christmas program held in the evening because of our family's religious beliefs. The school is giving him a zero for non-attendance. Is this

A. "The student in this case certainly has the right to be excused from the program if its contents are offensive to or in disagreement with the religious beliefs of his family. The school's action to punish the student for not attending the program is clearly illegal and should be overturned.

Q. (North Carolina) "We recently moved to an area in the Bible Belt.' The school has a spoken prayer before lunch. Is this legal?"

A. "Reciting prayers in a public school is a religious constitutional.

The fact that a school-sponsored prayer is denominationally neutral and participation voluntary does not make it constitutional. Thus, reciting a non-denominational prayer composed by public school officials, or the Lord's Prayer, reading devotionals, or even reciting religious verse or prose in which the word 'God' does not appear have been held unconstitutional by the courts."

Q. (Pennsylvania) "A group of students at my son's high school were refused permission to hold a prayer meeting at the school before regular school hours. We thought the new Equal Access Amendment ensured that right but the school responds that no

> "Thus, if any meetings are scheduled at the hour requested for the prayer meeting, the school is required to provide space for them. However, if the school is not open to any groups at that hour, officials may be in compliance with the Equal Access Amendment by refusing to let the group meet.

The 8-year-old [I'll call him Bobby) is constantly being spanked for throwing temper tantrums, talking back, hitting, not doing as he's told, etc. I strongly object to this kind of punishment and have told my daughter and her husband so. Vigilante Hounded By Media While Victim Slips Into Coma

NEW YORK (UPI) - Hounded by reporters and autograph-seekers and rating mention at a presidential news conference, confessed subway vigilante gunman Bernhard Hugo Goetz spent a second day free on ball today as one of his victims lay in a coma.

Goetz, 37, who has described himself as a self-employed electronics specialist, is charged with shooting four teenagers who harassed him on a subway train and asked him for $5 Dec. 22.

One news report said Goetz had top government clearance to work on electronic systems for

One of his victims, Daryl Cabey, was paralyzed by a bullet and fell into a coma Wednesday at St. Vincent's Hospital, where he was in critical condition today.

A grand jury considering an indictment against

Goetz will be kept informed of Cabcy's condition if relevant, a spokeswoman for Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau said.

If Cabey dies, charges of attempted murder and illegal weapons possession against Goetz could be upgraded to include murder.

Goetz remained silent at a court appearance Wednesday as a crush of reporters jammed into Criminal Court for a look at the man who has been compared with the vigilante in the movie

"Death Wish." The routine hearing was to determine whether Goetz should be held during the grand Jury investigation. Judge Jay Gold granted prosecutors an adjournment until Jan. 16 and continued Goetz' $50,000 bail. Goetz paid the $50,000 Tuesday and was released after more than a week in custody.

Discovery May Lead To Senility Clues

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - The discovery of an infectious agent called a prion, the probable cause of a rare but fatal form of senility, may lead to clues about the more common forms of senile dementia, including Alzheimer's disease.

David Kingsbury and Jeffrey M. Bockman, reporting in Wednesday's New England Journal of Medicine, said the apparent cause of Creutzfeldt-Jakob discase is an infectious agent called a prion, previously identified only in animals.

Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease is a degenerative neurological disorder that killed choreographer George Balanchine.

Researchers at the University of California identified the infectious agent three years ago and said it was the same particle that infects the brains of sheep.

Terrorist Group Says 'Wise Men' Were Robbers

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) - A terrorist group that counts in its ranks a Wells Fargo robbery fugitive - one of the FBI's 10 most wanted - also is boasting the membership of "Three Wise Men" who handed out pricey Christmas gifts to ghetto

The FBI in Connecticut continued hunting today for three men who reportedly handed out toys, food, cash and appliances to children in Hartford last Sunday in the name of Los Macheteros - or wielders of a long knife used for chopping, a terrorist group seeking independence for Puerto Rico.

The group claims it plotted for Wells Fargo guard Victor M. Gerena, 25, to vanish with $7 million of his employer's cash from a West Hartford garage on Sept. 12, 1983.

The heist is the second-largest in U.S. history, surpassed only by the $11 million in cash stolen from Sentry Armored Car-Courier in New York

Dec. 12, 1982. Gerena is on the FBI's 10 Most Wanted List and Wells Fargo has issued a $500,000 reward for his capture and return of the money.

An anonymous spokesman for Los Macheteros called various media outlets in Hartford and Puerto Rico Monday and Tuesday to say group members had distributed toys purchased with money from the robbery.

The spokesman for the Macheteros said some 400 children in Hartford and 200 in Purto Rico received toys including bicycles and brand-name playthings in top demand.

Court: Indians Can Kill Eagles For Religious Rites

ST. LOUIS (UPI) - Indians may kill protected animals - including bald eagles - on reservation lands as long as the feathers and body parts are used only for religious purposes, a federal appeals court has ruled.

The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said Wednesday that century-old treaties giving Indians reservation lands included exclusive hunting privileges. The court rejected contentions that indians should be governed by federal laws protecting endangered species.

The case was heard by eight of the nine appellate judges, with three dissenting. The dissenters said the rights of Indians to kill eagles were abrogated by environmental legislation.

"The plaudible purpose behind conservation statutes gives rise to strong emotions, especially where bald eagles are concerned, but does not necessarily reveal a congressional intent to eliminate rights protected by federal treaties," the majority said.

Undercover agents of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service posed as traders and collectors in purchasing carcasses and parts of endandered birds from a number of Indians, including Dwight Dion Sr. and Lyle Dion.

A charge of killing an eagle in violation of the Eagle Protection Act was dismissed against Dwight Dion because the bird was killed on the reservation. However, he was convicted of selling the carcasses of one golden and seven bald eagles. Lyle Dion was convicted of killing a bald eagle and offering it for sale.
