

Lake Mary City Attorney To Be Fired

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Gary Massey, after serving seven years as Lake Mary city attorney, is to be fired.

The City Council, on a 3-2 vote Thursday night, asked Mayor Walter Sorenson to replace Massey, the second person to hold the position since the city was incorporated 8 1/2 years ago.

Sorenson said after the meeting that he will follow the council's wishes. Today he added that Massey will be "unappointed when I appoint a new attorney and the council confirms my appointment." He could give no definite time deadline on when this will occur.

Sorenson said he will advertise the position and perhaps "let his fingers do the walking" through the telephone book to find applicants for the post. Massey is paid a $750 monthly retainer to attend council meetings, write ordinances and give advice at other times, and is paid additional sums for court work.

Massey said today that he will remain on the job until his replacement is named. "The city needs somebody," he said.

At the end of a lengthy council meeting Thursday night, Councilman Gene McDonald proposed that Massey be fired. He said the city could replace Massey from a cost standpoint without budgetary problems.

"I'm not satisfied this is the best spending of city funds," McDonald said of Massey's fee. He said Massey has been complacent in the job and does not have legal information when the council needs it.

McDonald said he discussed the matter with Altamonte Springs City Attorney James "Skip" Fowler and Casselberry City Attorney Kenneth McIntosh, suggesting that either, if appointed to the office, "would do a bang-up job, in my opinion."

He asked Sorenson to appoint McIntosh or Fowler after the council studies which of the two men might be better.

Voting with McDonald in asking for Massey's removal were Councilmen Ken King and Richard Fess. Ray Fox and Vic Olvera opposed the move.

Fox questioned what effect replacing Massey would have on several court cases the attorney has been handling for the city. McDonald responded that there will never be a time when the city has no lawsuits pending.

"If Massey expires, God forbid, the city would still continue," McDonald said. He added that Massey could continue representing the city in the lawsuits even if he were replaced as city attorney.

Fess questioned whether the individual councilmen had relayed their dissatisfaction with Massey individually, and asked for a two-week delay so he could investigate the matter.

Fox asked whether the problem is that someone is not happy with Massey's legal opinions. "I've not seen any lack of legal opinions," he said.

McDonald insisted, however, that the majority of Massey's opinions have been noncommittal. Fox responded that the council has the habit of ignoring the advice of the city's consulting engineer (Paul Porter) and city legal counsel, on a regular basis.

McDonald, pushing for an immediate vote, said his colleagues could opt for the status quo of complacency or find a better way to spend the city's money.

Fess insisted he would vote for removal if his fellow councilmen would agree to include Massey among the applicants for the job. He suggested the council interview a group of lawyers together, asking all of them legal questions.

"If I were a lawyer and a bunch of laymen tried to give me a law exam, I'd tell them to jump straight into Hell," Fox said.

Asked by Fess whether he would consider applying for the job and competing with others, Massey said he would have to think about it.

"We need someone fresh and eager to do the job in harmony" with the staff and the council, McDonald said.

Massey said it appears McDonald doesn't agree with his approach or style. "Gene wants someone who will give definitive answers when something comes up here (at a meeting). If an attorney does that, he is shooting from the hip half the time," he said.

Will Trailer Owners Be Forced To Move?

The residents of 14 house trailers on a two-to-three-acre tract off Humphrey Road in Lake Mary may or may not be allowed to remain on the property.

Faced with an almost overwhelmingly complicated problem concerning mobile homes in the community in general, the Lake Mary City Council voted unanimously Thursday night to:

- Instruct the city attorney to prepare an amendment to existing city law to permit variances to a section of the zoning ordinance concerning house trailers.
- Advise and adopt the amendment as quickly as possible so house-trailer residents can remain if the city's Board of Adjustment approves.
- Include in the ordinance the right of those residents to appeal decisions of the Board of Adjustment to the council.
- And delete mobile homes as an allowable use in agricultural zoning. This would in effect eliminate the future parking of any mobile homes except in established trailer parks in the city.

The council, until after the ordinance is prepared and adopted, could not say whether any or all of the 14 Humphrey Road trailers will remain, how long any of them has been parked at the site or how they all got there in the first place.

Last week the county's Division of Environmental Health ordered the owners of four parcels of property where the trailers are parked to comply with health laws within 30 days or face prosecution.

And the county health agency said the only way more than four trailers could remain is if the city grants zoning approval and the property owners apply for a trailer-park permit from the state.

City Attorney Gary Massey told the council Thursday night that it has no authority under city law to grant zoning approval and will be hard put, at the same time, to enforce city law and force the owners to remove the trailers.

Russ Miller, county director of environmental health, said 10 of the 14 trailers would have to move to comply with state health laws. In addition, the county department gave the property owners, Barbara Jo H. Harper, Nellie Maxine Mullins and Elwin W. and Emily Hoyle, 30 days to correct health-code violations at the site. Among the violations were improper sewage disposal, improper accumulation of trash and garbage at the site, and an unapproved water supply.

The City Council on Thursday night tried unsuccessfully to answer the questions of how the site came to be in the unsanitary condition it is, how so many house trailers got parked in the area and how long they have been there.

City law permits the parking of a mobile home on no less than a 10-acre site in an agriculture zone after a permit is granted by the city.

Mrs. Harper told the council two weeks ago that her trailer had been at the site for many years and was "grandfathered in" under county law before the city was incorporated.

Under "grandfather" provisions, a trailer could remain at the site if it was there prior to the city law limiting numbers of trailers to certain areas.

But under the same type of provision, the trailers could only be repaired, and not enlarged or replaced.

The council on Feb. 18, on a split 2-2 vote with Mayor Walter Sorenson casting the deciding vote, approved a request from Mrs. Harper to replace a dilapidated trailer at the site with a larger and newer model.

Councilmen Ray Fox and Gene McDonald voted for the waiver while Vic Olvera and Ken King voted against it. Councilman Richard Fess was absent.

To compound the difficulties of the situation, the ordinance does not permit waivers of the rule concerning the 10-acre requirement.

And Massey stood firm Thursday night with his opinion that the council cannot grant special permission to allow any or all of the trailers to remain.

The issue became even more complicated when Massey said the council also would have problems if it ordered all the trailers removed from the site.

"If the people refused to get off the property, you would have to instruct me

Longwood Officer Dow Under Departmental Probe

By MARK VOGLER
Herald Staff Writer

The Longwood police officer who challenged the Police Department's decision to remove her from an undercover narcotics assignment is under investigation for alleged departmental and city personnel violations.

Danielle Michele Dow has already asserted that she was "demoted" from a Seminole County Sheriff's Department narcotics task force and reassigned to road patrol because of her role in an investigation "which involved political figures being paid off by narcotics traffickers within the Longwood area," according to her lawsuit.

Orlando lawyer Steve Summers, who is representing Ms. Dow in an appeal next week before a Policeman's Bill of Rights review board, said Thursday that the Police Department has launched an investigation "to retaliate" against a previous suit filed by the officer.

"I think they're (Longwood Police Department) out to fire her. There's no way they'd do this if she hadn't filed that lawsuit," said Summers.

"This investigation is clearly to retaliate for the trouble she has caused them. It's pure harassment. The department says it's not related to her suit. I think it definitely is related," he said.

When Ms. Dow returned from temporary leave in January, she was advised by Police Chief Greg Manning that she was reassigned to road patrol. She contested that move and filed a suit against the department in Seminole County Circuit Court.

Although Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. initially issued a temporary restraining order preventing the city from going ahead with the transfer, he later determined the matter should be referred to a police review board and thus dissolved his initial order on Feb. 9.

Several weeks ago Ms. Dow was advised that she was under investigation for "engaging in conduct unbecoming an officer."

Police Capt. Joe Palumbo advised her in a letter that he felt it was necessary to investigate several allegations about her conduct, including failure to report for duty on Feb. 15, absence without permission Feb. 18 through 24, abuse of sick leave, falsified employment application, and disobeying a lawful order of a superior officer.

Frank Kruppenbacher, an Orlando labor lawyer retained by the Police Department, today said an outside investigation is being conducted by St. Cloud Police Chief Frank Ross.

Kruppenbacher took strong exception to Summers' assertion that the investigation was a retaliatory action on the part of the department.

"That's totally false. This is an investigation into substantial allegations that surfaced after the suit," Kruppenbacher said.

"Some of the questionable conduct occurred prior to the suit.

When we looked over her record, there were some other things that came to light that probably should have been questioned earlier," he said.

Kruppenbacher called Ms. Dow's allegation that she was asked to abandon an investigation involving local political figures "absurd."

"It's totally absurd. To my knowledge there was never any ongoing investigation of political figures involved in narcotics. She was reassigned to road patrol because of a decision made to discontinue the task force. Officers from other police departments were given the same order," he said.

"Anyway, for her to make a statement like that is an extreme breach of confidentiality. No officer should be making allegations of this sort. It's just totally out of order," he added.

Capt. Palumbo also disclaimed the drug link to political figures. "Whatever she's talking about, I disagree with," he said.

No Reprimands In Jowais Case

Seminole-Brevard State Attorney Douglas Cheshire probably won't have to worry about any criticism from Gov. Bob Graham on his office's handling of a controversial vehicular homicide case that was dismissed when a judge ruled it wasn't brought to trial on time.

No reprimands are expected to be issued by Graham which would question the professionalism or conduct of Cheshire's office in the prosecution of 18-year-old Jerome Alexander Jowais of Longwood, according to an official in the governor's office.

A preliminary evaluation of the case reveals "a matter of misinterpretation" of the state's 180-day Speedy Trial Law rather than any instance of misconduct said Richard Schoditsch, executive director of prosecution coordination for the governor.

"From what we have determined so far, it looks like a matter of misinterpretation of the Speedy Trial Law.

Everyone seems to have his own opinion on the time element. It doesn't seem to be an issue of negligence on the part of anyone," he said.

State Rep. Dick J. Batchelor, D-Orlando, late last month asked Graham to review the prosecution's handling of the case to determine whether Cheshire's office acted irresponsibly and thus contributed to the dismissal.

"It is imperative that someone be held accountable, and if there is misfeasance or malfeasance, the attorneys or state attorney involved should be charged with such misfeasance or malfeasance," wrote Batchelor.

Schoditsch said whatever decision the governor's office makes in the investigation requested by Batchelor probably will be influenced by the recent opinion rendered by Circuit Judge Dominick J. Salfi.

It was Salfi who ruled Jan. 21 that the state had not brought Jowais to trial within the required 180-day period, and for that reason dismissed the manslaughter charges stemming from last May's death of Laurie Anne Hebel, 14, of Longwood, who was killed when a car ran into a group of five girls walking along Wekiva Springs Road, Longwood.

Salfi altered his position on the case last month when he said it was possible the state might have been correct in its interpretation of the Speedy Trial Law, but concluded, "This court lacks the authority (jurisdiction) to correct an error of law, even though it be an invited error."

The judge said he believes that if the state were to appeal his decision to drop charges against Jowais, his ruling would be overturned by a higher court.

"His (Salfi's) opinion does put the case in better perspective," said Schoditsch. "It's something that we will consider."

Unemployment Hits 8.8%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's unemployment rate returned to the recession peak of 8.8 percent in February — with 9.6 million people out of work and women bearing the brunt of increased joblessness, the government reported today.

There was a jump of 280,000 unemployed Americans over the month, the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

The jobless total was 1.8 million above last July's level when the current surge in unemployment began. At that time the unemployment rate stood at 7.1 percent.

The 0.3 percentage point increase in February to 8.8 percent matched December's seasonally adjusted figure.

The department also said the number of persons working part time for economic reasons — those sometimes referred to as the "partially unemployed" — rose by nearly a half million in February to a record 5.6 million. Nearly all of the monthly increase in that category was attributable to persons who usually work full time, the department said.

Every general category of workers experienced an increase in unemployment in February, with adult women experiencing the largest numerical increase — an additional 182,000 out of work — and a 0.4 percentage point increase to 7.6 percent, matching the level for adult men.

Hispanics and teenagers both showed 0.6 percentage point jumps. The rate for teenagers rose to 22.3 percent and for Hispanics to 12.8 percent.

The rate for black teenagers, aged 16-19, rose to 42.3 percent.

Total employment during February was 99.6 million, about the same as the previous two months.

The gloomy figures, indicating the nation is still in the heart of a recession, came as both Reagan administration economic officials and opponents from organized labor anticipated unemployment might go to a double-digit level before easing.

Murder Suspect Facing More Charges

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

Additional charges have been levied against a man accused of first-degree murder in the Thursday stabbing death of a Casselberry man.

David Vernon Middleton, 32, address unknown, has also been charged with burglary, assault and petty theft in connection with the death of Michael Karpowich, 27, of 740 Jasmine Rd. at about 3:15 a.m., police said.

Middleton is being held without bond in the Seminole County jail.

Karpowich's body was discovered by Casselberry police in a wooded area east of Winter Park Drive and north of Red Bug Road, according to Casselberry Police Chief Fred McGowan. He had been stabbed in the chest with a pocketknife, McGowan added.

According to the testimony of witness Frank Fry, 22, of Casselberry, he and Middleton had been living in a tent in the wooded area near where Karpowich's body was later discovered, police reported. Karpowich, who lived with his grandmother, reportedly came to the campsite and accused Middleton of stealing bread, eggs, sausage and hamburger from his grandmother's home, police said. Karpowich's grandmother later told police a man, whom she described as Middleton, entered her home, pushed her and stole the food items, police added.

Fry told police that the two men began arguing and Middleton pulled out a pocketknife. Karpowich reportedly told Middleton, "Go ahead and stab me." Moments later, Karpowich said, "Frank, he stabbed me. He stabbed me," Fry told police.

Fry said Karpowich then attempted to leave the campsite but was detained by Middleton, police said. Karpowich then said he wanted to be down and did so about 150 feet from the tent. Middleton then returned to the tent and went to sleep, Fry told police.

Fry said he checked on Karpowich's condition and found he was bleeding severely and went to get help, police reported.

Fry later returned with a friend and then called authorities to report the incident, police said.

McGowan said when Casselberry rescue and police units arrived on the scene, "Karpowich was believed to be dead." A medical examiner at Seminole Memorial Hospital pronounced Karpowich dead on arrival at the hospital.

Middleton was arrested and charged with the fatal stabbing and subsequent charges by Casselberry police and transported to the county jail, McGowan said.

CASSELBERRY SUED

A south Seminole County man is suing Casselberry and three of its police officers for an unspecified amount of damages in excess of $5,000 for false arrest.

According to court records, James Martin was riding his motorcycle through Casselberry on the afternoon of June 10, 1980 when he was stopped for not having a license tag. The charge ultimately was dismissed by Seminole County Judge Harold Johnson.

In his lawsuit, Martin alleges that officers Michael Toole, Durbin Gatch, and Lewis Collier arrested him "wrongfully and maliciously without a warrant or lawful authority."

He says he lost time from his job as a result of the incident, incurred legal fees, and suffered "humiliation, embarrassment, and mental suffering."

No trial date has been set in the case.

CHURCH SIGN SWIPED AGAIN

Members of the Seminole Heights Baptist Church constructed a cement-based sign along Markham Woods Road to announce the future home of their church, which is now meeting at the Lake Mary High School. However, for the second time in recent weeks, the sign has been stolen, deputies said.

Jay Cosmato, the church's pastor, told deputies someone stole a sign previously constructed at the site and that church members replaced the stolen sign with the cement-based sign to discourage further thefts. The new sign disappeared sometime between Friday and 10 a.m. Monday.

COURT ACTION

A 25-year-old Midway man is facing up to 15 years in prison after being convicted of aggravated battery in the Dec. 11 stabbing of a Midway woman.

Alan "Pee Wee" Williams of 2481 Center St. was convicted by a six-member Seminole Circuit Court jury of knifing Linda O'Neal, 24. He was acquitted of two other knifing charges.

Sentencing has been scheduled for April 22. Williams was accused of stabbing three women with an ice pick or a butcher knife at their Center Street home.

Williams' ex-girlfriend, 37-year-old Jimmie Lee Daniels, told sheriff's deputies an argument began when Williams demanded money from her. She attempted to flee, but was thrown to the ground and stabbed in the chin with an ice pick. Daniels' sister, Dale Cotton, 30, claimed she was stabbed with a butcher knife in the left shoulder when she tried to break up the assault.

In other action, Steven D. Shelton, 31, of Longwood, faces up to 30 years in prison after pleading no contest to trafficking in cocaine.

Also, Bruce C. Myrick, 26, of Orlando, pleaded guilty to possessing 2,200 methaqualone (Quaalude) tablets, 1,500 Secaloin pills, and about 50 grams of marijuana.

Both Shelton and Myrick are scheduled for sentencing next month.

OSHA Fines Firm $240 For Death

The federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) has fined a Tampa-area sprinkler installation firm $240 for safety violations in connection with the January death of a construction worker at the site of the new Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford.

OSHA last month cited the Wildcat Supply & Sprinkler System Co., of Seffner, with negligence in connection with the accident that killed Estell Brown Naylor, 56, of Ormond Beach.

Naylor, an Otis Elevator Corp. employee, died of a massive hemorrhage of the heart after he was struck by a three-inch steel stud accidentally discharged by a .22 magnum-powered stud gun, according to Seminole County Medical Examiner Dr. G.V. Garay.

OSHA ruled that two workers who were trying to release a safety device on the jammed stud gun where not properly trained to operate the tool. The agency also found that the tool gun didn't meet proper safety standards and that it was not properly tested.

Naylor was standing in a room on the first floor of the hospital reading blueprints at the time of the accident. The two workers who were trying to adjust the stud gun were in an adjacent room.

Donald Bittenbender, a field team supervisor at the OSHA office in Tampa said Wildcat didn't appeal the citation by the Tuesday deadline, so would be subject to the fine. Wildcat officials declined comment on the matter today.

to take them to court," he said.

"Then there would be several suits and I can't guarantee what would happen. Those people will say they have been there however many years, and the city knew it," he said. A judge would not understand how the city could have let the situation develop, he added.

Massey said the proper way to handle the situation would be to amend the city ordinance to provide a way for the people living in the trailers to seek a variance to the city law. He suggested the amendment could allow them to go before the Board of Adjustment. If they didn't like a decision of that board, they could appeal to the council.

At the same time, McDonald, sympathetic to the trailer dwellers, said he would encourage them to hire a lawyer and sue the city if an attempt were made to force them to move.

Fess, absent from the meeting two weeks ago when the special permit was granted to Mrs. Harper, brought the issue up for discussion Thursday night.

Fox said people were living on the property in the early 1960s.

Oiversa who urged his colleagues to personally look at the property before it granted Mrs. Harper's request two weeks ago, said the city should let the county Health Department enforce state regulation. "Then see what is left. I believe the problem will be solved," he said.

McDonald said the situation at the trailer site, which he called a swamp, is "a grim one." He insisted the trailers are the only homes those people have.

To McDonald's insistence that the city find out how long each of the trailers had been on the site, Massey said the expense of making that determination, if it could be done, would be excessive.

Oiversa said that while he had some sympathy with those people, he has no sympathy with people who break the law. "We have 3,000 other citizens who live by the law in Lake Mary," he said.

McDonald responded that he couldn't indict everyone "who lives in the swamp as hedonistic and criminal."

FLORIDA

IN BRIEF

Drug Paraphernalia Law

Will Be Upheld, Smith Says

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Attorney General Jim Smith says the U.S. Supreme Court ruling on drug-paraphernalia laws convinces him that a similar law in Florida will eventually be ruled constitutional.

The Florida law, passed in 1980, has never been enforced. A federal district court, which upheld parts of it and struck down others, told police not to enforce it until its validity had been ruled on by the nation's highest court.

Gay Researcher Killed

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — A Northern Illinois University professor researching homosexual runaways in the city's gay community was shot and killed outside a gay bar in an apparent robbery.

James Beaudry, 53, an associate sociology professor on sabbatical, was gunned down early Thursday morning after leaving Johnny's Village Inn. Police said he was shot once in the face in the incident.

University Enrollment Up

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Contrary to what the projections say, state-supported universities in Florida are looking ahead to increased enrollment next fall, a survey showed Thursday.

The survey by the Gainesville Sun found that all of Florida's public universities, with the exception of Florida State and Florida A&M in Tallahassee, reported increases over last year in admission applications.

Getting Ready For A Hurricane

The various aspects of hurricane preparedness will be on the agenda when the East Central Florida Regional Disaster Preparedness Advisory Committee meets Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. at the Altamonte Springs City Commission chambers, 225 Newburyport Ave.

Progress reports on the Hurricane Evacuation Project and the Inland Shelter Study will be presented.

Florida's Job-Growth Rate Down

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Labor Secretary Wally Orr is out with a gloomy report on the growth of new jobs in Florida.

Orr says the annual rate of new jobs added to state pay rolls dropped significantly in 1981. Projects, he said, indicate an even "more severe decline" this year.

In a report issued Thursday, he said a slowdown in the growth of non-farm jobs during each of the last five months of 1981 resulted in an annual average growth rate of 4.1 percent. That compares to 6 percent for the previous five years.

Current trends indicate the 1982 annual average rate will dip to 2.9 percent, he said.

"We believe the recently reported slowdown in the rate of population growth in Florida, combined with prolonged high interest rates and inflation, are the factors contributing to the reduction in the job-growth rate," he said.

The downtrends beginning in the last half of 1981 was especially evident in government, construction and manufacturing.

Government wound up the year with 4,200 fewer jobs than the previous year, largely as a result of cutbacks in federal funding. Another 17,200 government jobs are expected to be eliminated by the end of this year, he said.

Construction, hard hit by high interest rates, is expected to gain only 2,500 jobs during this year, a sharp contrast to a 1981 gain of 18,600 jobs. Manufacturing is predicted to add 2,700 jobs compared to a 1981 increase of 10,100.

The service industry — which includes tourist-oriented businesses — is the only industrial category expected to experience a higher growth rate this year than last, Orr said.

The annual average number of non-farm jobs last year was 3,721 million or 145,500 over the 1980 annual average. But, the average increase during 1980 from 1979 was 195,000 when the growth rate was 5.8 percent.

Based on the trends of slower growth at the end of last year and the continued sluggishness of the national economy, Orr said the 1982 annual average number of jobs will be 3,827 million, an increase of only 106,200 jobs over last year.

Non-farm employment decreased by 19,900 jobs in January as the recession and seasonal factors trimmed almost all the seven major industrial categories.

Construction suffered the greatest loss, eliminating 9,600 jobs while manufacturing lost 2,800 jobs. Services gained 5,900 jobs, mostly in health-related industries and amusement and recreational operations.

2 Convicted Killers Set To Die

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham seems determined to make executions in Florida common again.

Graham signed two more death warrants Thursday, only days after two executions he had ordered were blocked by the 11th Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta.

He signed warrants for convicted murderers Sampson Armstrong and James McCrae and their executions were scheduled for 7 a.m., March 31, at Florida State Prison.

Armstrong was convicted of killing Thomas and Eunice Kersey during a robbery of their Hardee County home. McCrae was convicted of raping and killing an elderly Fort Myers woman, Margaret Mears. Armstrong and McCrae likely will win stays from the courts.

Graham has signed 27 death warrants during his three years in office, but only one has been carried out, resulting in the 1979 death of John Spengelink.

The federal appeals court issued stays last weekend to prevent the executions of convicted killers Arthur Goode and William Thompson, scheduled for Tuesday.

Graham, asked why he continued to sign death warrants despite repeated stays granted by the courts, said it was his duty to carry out the law of Florida. He noted he has commuted five death sentences to life in prison since taking office. Five of the stays were granted by state courts and the rest by federal judges.

Armstrong, 27, and McCrae, 31, were immediately moved from Death Row to small cells a few feet from the room housing the electric chair. They will be closely guarded 24-hours a day.

Shortly before Graham announced he had signed the new death warrants, Florida's Supreme Court affirmed three more death sentences — for Walter Gale Steinboer for the 1977 Sandy Creek murders near Panama City, McArthur Breedlove for killing a Miami man in 1978 and Kenneth D. Quince for the slaying of an elderly Daytona Beach woman in a 1979 burglary.

U.S. Maintaining The Manila Tie

When Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos declared martial law and began to rule by decree nearly a decade ago, he opened fissures in U.S.-Philippine relations that have yet to close. Three American administrations kept Mr. Marcos at arms length as a way to signal displeasure with his dismantling of a functioning, if flawed, democracy.

But the vital interests of both the United States and the Philippines argue powerfully for maintaining the closest possible ties between Washington and Manila.

The American air and naval bases in the Philippines are virtually indispensable as support pillars of Washington's foreign and defense policies in Asia. Similarly, the U.S.-Philippine mutual security pact and the economic and military assistance that accompany it yield multiple benefits for any government in Manila, including that of Mr. Marcos.

Accordingly, both President Marcos and the Reagan administration have moved dramatically during the last year to smooth over the cracks in U.S.-Philippine relations.

Mr. Marcos helped things along by lifting martial law and submitting himself to the voters, although these concessions to democratic norms were in some respects more apparent than real. Nonetheless, it seems obvious that the Marcos regime is gradually easing away from the politically repressive policies of martial law.

The Reagan administration sought to encourage this trend, and to signal its support for traditional allies, by dispatching Vice President George Bush to Manila last June. Mr. Bush's rhetoric — "we love your adherence to democratic principles..." — may have been excessive, but the diplomatic intent of his praise was self-evident.

To underscore the point, Mr. Marcos was invited to pay a state visit to the United States this year; a politically significant courtesy denied him during the eight years of martial law.

However justified the Reagan administration's decision to improve relations with the Marcos regime, policymakers in Washington must bear one caution in mind. American interests in the Philippines must not become overly dependent on the survival in power of any single regime, or of any one leader.

Iran and Nicaragua have provided two disastrous examples of what can happen when American interests in a Third World country become too closely identified with one authoritarian ruler. We hasten to add that the Philippines is not Iran or Nicaragua, and that Ferdinand Marcos is neither the late shah nor the late Anastasio Somoza.

Still, the Reagan administration and its new ambassador to the Philippines, Michael H. Armacost, would be well advised to keep open the lines of communication to leaders of the large, but presently disorganized, democratic opposition to Marcos. Failure to do so would only tend to drive more Filipinos into the embrace of radicals who oppose both Mr. Marcos and American interests in the Philippines.

With that caveat, we think the Reagan administration is moving wisely to encourage further democratization of the Marcos government while simultaneously strengthening an alliance that serves both nations and the larger cause of regional stability in Southeast Asia.

Reciprocity: A Matter Of Definition

Here's a new buzzword for you: Reciprocity.

It describes the guise that protectionist sentiment is assuming these days as the United States continues to run heavy trade deficits, with You Know Who the chief beneficiary.

Essentially, it is an eye-for-an-eye approach to international economics. The idea is that where countries make it difficult for American products to enter their home markets, the United States should reciprocate by making it equally difficult for their products to compete in the American market.

What can be said for reciprocity is that it would not mean raising trade barriers across the board. Application would be selective and theoretically would not affect exchanges with partners where the United States comes out ahead.

What can be said against it is a) it wouldn't work that way and b) it could boomerang disastrously.

What reciprocity really comes down to is a new way of trying — repeat, trying — to get at the Japanese when the old ways have failed.

The chronic trade imbalance can't be corrected, the current argument goes, because American products do not have fair access to the Japanese market thanks to a maze of non-trade regulations blocking entry. Therefore, the United States would be justified in reciprocally blocking Japanese access to its market.

There is a point in this. The import complications raised by the Japanese are notorious. Under intense pressure from all their industrial trading partners to open up, they have agreed to a 67-point liberalization program.

But it is doubtful that it will make much of a difference or, in fact, if a completely open Japanese market would. It is difficult to envisage cars from even a reformed Detroit flooding Japan. And as recently observed by Mike Mansfield, U.S. ambassador in Tokyo who is probably more informed on the problem than anyone else in either government, the Japanese would still probably run a sizable surplus "because there is a demand (in the United States) for Japanese goods. They produce what people want; they're quality, they're competitively priced, they have a reputation that stands up."

The most notable consequences of reciprocity in U.S.-Japanese trade would probably be more bad feeling and a search by protectionist-minded Americans for some other magic formula.

Elsewhere, they could be worse.

In 1980, as spelled out in a State Department survey of worldwide trade, the United States imported $241.2 billion in goods and exported $207.7 billion for a net trade deficit of $33.5 billion. Japan accounted for about half of this — $31.8 billion in sales to the United States, $20.8 billion in purchases of American goods.

But the figures are much different in respect to Western Europe, which, as the survey observes, "is much more important to the United States as a customer than the United States is to (it)."

The Europeans took $66.8 billion in American goods — more than twice what Americans took from the Japanese.

James Edwards' DOE Is Nearly DOA

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan campaigned on a promise to abolish the Department of Energy, and in Energy Secretary James B. Edwards he picked the right man to preside over the agency's dissolution. The affable dentist from South Carolina is no match for Washington's experienced politicians and lobbyists. They respond to his friendly chairside manner by chomping on his fingers.

Even enthusiastic foes of the department concede that there's no chance of legislating its extinction in an election year. But Edwards is well on the way to achieving the de facto demise of his agency. Budget cuts have crippled the DOE; able employees are leaving in droves, and morale among those who remain is at an all-time low. And all Edwards does is assure the public that "this won't hurt a bit."

It would be unfair to blame the Energy Department's sorry plight on Edwards, though. He knew from the start that he was taking over a doomed agency. And if his lack of expertise and dedication have probably accelerated the department's terminal illness, it's unlikely that even a dynamic, politically savvy secretary could have defended the DOE against its enemies in the White House and on Capitol Hill.

Still, those who favor keeping the DOE intact feel that Edwards might at least make a greater effort to see that the department does the job it was assigned to do as long as it's still around. Instead, he has all but abdicated the department's responsibilities — a situation, the pro-DOE forces concede, that makes it difficult to argue that the agency is essential and should be saved. In his strange, bumbling way, Edwards is dissolving the department by default.

Meanwhile, though, serious energy problems remain, and with the Energy Department floating in limbo, there is no identifiable source of government policy for anyone trying to grapple with the problems. Even those who devoutly wish for the trained police dog can cost up to $10,000," Etchberger said. "We want to protect our interest in him."

"Who would be Bullet's beneficiary if he were killed or disabled?" asked Commissioner Cheney Colardo.

"It would be a split with the city and the officer in charge of Bullet since he owns the dog," Etchberger replied. "The city would be covered for the costs involved in Bullet's training and the manhours put in for that training by our officer."

Etchberger said he will provide further insurance information to the commission at the March 9 City Commission meeting.

In addition, Etchberger said that efforts to convert a city vehicle to transport Bullet have been completed.

"The car has been revised and, for the information of those who may come in contact with Bullet in his car, he can unlock the back door and get out, if necessary," Etchberger said. "The moral of the story then is don't make Bullet upset with you."

In other news, the Seminole County sheriff's department is saying, anchors away to Beth Williamson who has served as a secretary to the intake division for about four years.

Ms. Williamson said she is leaving the department to enlist in the United States Navy. She will be enrolled in the Orlando-based Naval Training Center communications school and, "from there I could be sent anywhere."

Ms. Williamson said she is "excited" about the career move and is "looking forward to new things, challenging things."

She added that her brother is currently enrolled in a training program at the Orlando training center.

"We had planned to go in together but it didn't work out," she said. "I'm going in on the delayed entry plan. I have been talking with them for several months. I knew what I wanted to do if I went in and now it looks like I'll have a chance at it."

While Ms. Williamson doesn't officially resign from the sheriff's department until March 15, she has taken two weeks of vacation leave and is "just enjoying sleeping in and resting."

Congress Hasn't 'Put Up'

President Reagan has been going around the country challenging Congress to put up or shut up on the federal budget, and he has a point.

There is a lot of talk about trimming the defense budget a bit, and of compromises here and there on various budget items, but amid all this no one in Congress has come forward with a plausible alternative to the Reagan package.

Reagan is saying in effect that Congress is responsible for that swollen federal budget, and that Congress must discipline itself to do something about it, and yet none of Reagan's critics in Congress has yet been willing to address the realities of our actual situation.

We hear a great deal about unemployment, for example, but who among Reagan's critics has suggested a plausible remedy? One gathers from their rhetoric that many Democratic liberals would favor a "full employment" federal policy, which really means running up the deficit to create unproductive jobs. Does anyone seriously think that is the answer?

The fact of the matter is that in many industries real wages have been increasing faster than productivity. This is not a situation responsive to the orthodox liberal tax-spend prescriptions.

The only plausible solution appears to be the one advanced by Reagan — a determined effort to reduce the size of the public sector and restore the incentives for investment and production.

No one should think for a moment that this can be done painlessly. There will be dislocation, but the thing must be done.

So far, Congress has simply been refusing to face the fact that the growth of welfare state spending must be brought under control if the productive sector of the economy is to function properly. In the absence of such budgetary discipline, trying to fight inflation by a tight-money policy at the Fed inevitably drives interest rates upward.

We hear a lot of Congressional talk about the need to raise taxes in order to trim the projected $100 billion-plus federal deficit.

The idea of raising taxes ought to be recognized for the cop-out it really is.

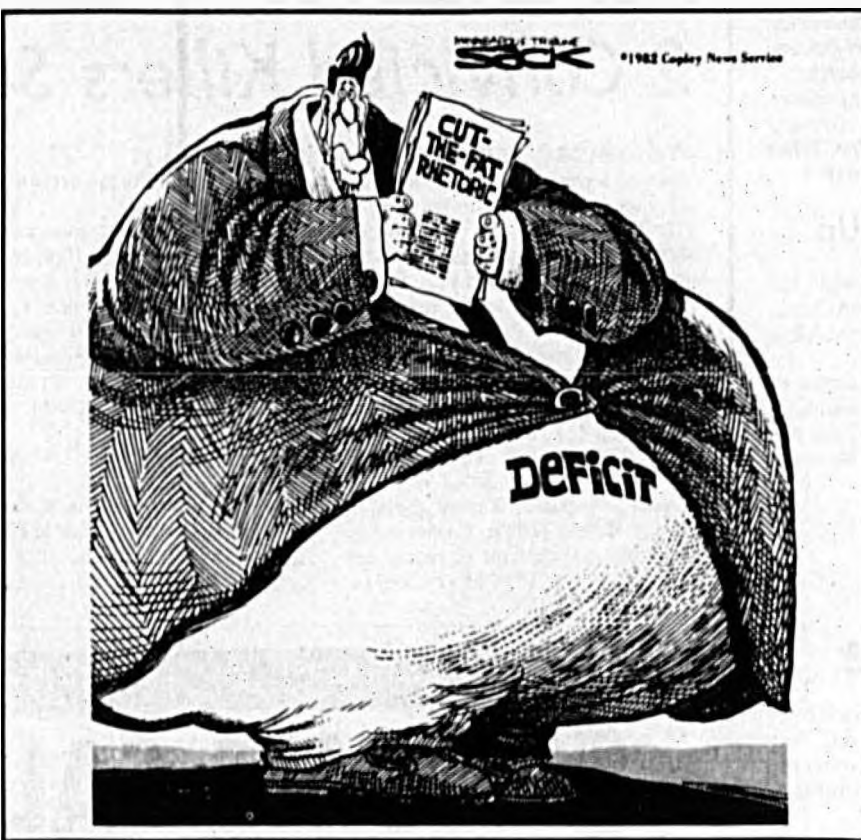

Raising taxes would allow Congress to avoid the necessary task of eliminating or restricting federal programs.

Raising taxes is Congress' way of postponing the political heat, but it would not be an act of political responsibility.

It is perfectly understandable that Congress would like to remain wrapped in the cotton cocoon of business-as-usual, but at least we should be clear that this is what they are really talking about.

For about 10 years, a poisonous combination of inflation plus stagnation has been sending us unmistakable signals about the unhealthy state of the economy.

For those same 10 years, Congress has been conducting business as usual, pumping tax dollars in ever-increasing sums into federal programs — thus starving investment, reducing incentives, deepening the problem. Now along comes Reagan with a dose of truth.

ROBERT WAGMAN

Wooing Hispanic Voters

LOS ANGELES (NEA) — "If I can get 35 percent of the Hispanic vote in California this year, I will elect both a governor and a senator. And I think that 35 percent is a realistic goal."

So says Dr. Tirso del Junco, the Cuban-born surgeon who chairs the California Republican Party. He is leading a major GOP effort to woo Hispanics away from the Democrats and to turn them into voting Republicans.

Hispanics represent substantial voting blocs in four states: New York, Florida, Texas and California.

They make up 19 percent of California's population today and are expected to make up more than 50 percent by the year 2040.

Republicans think they should be able to make substantial gains among Hispanic voters. Therefore, they are aggressively stepping up their efforts in the Latino communities, especially in California.

At the forefront of the campaign is del Junco, who is the first Hispanic ever to head a state political party, either Democratic or Republican.

"You have to remember that Hispanics by heritage are conservative, traditional and family oriented," he says. "We are very much law-and-order supporters. These are basically the same values held by the Republican Party."

"If we can get this word out into the Hispanic community, not only here but in other parts of the country, I believe that you will see large blocs of Hispanics coming over to the Republican side."

Del Junco is spreading this message not only within California but throughout the country in his position as head of the Republican National Committee's Hispanic Advisory Council.

In California, the GOP has established a Spanish-language communications division to distribute materials to the Spanish-language media and to develop other voter appeals in Spanish. The party has opened a headquarters in East Los Angeles, the most heavily concentrated Hispanic community in the state.

The state GOP is also making a concerted effort to woo local Hispanic officials away from the Democrats. Eighty such office holders, almost all of them Democrats, recently were brought together to hear a pitch from the Republicans.

Hector Godnez, prominent in Orange County's large Hispanic community, has announced that he is switching to the GOP, and party officials predict additional defections. The Republicans say that they have even received inquiries about changing parties from non-Hispanic Democrats who represent heavily Hispanic areas.

The national party, both here and in other areas of high Hispanic concentration, has started an "outreach" program to school Hispanic Republicans in political organizing and the other tricks of the political trade. Those trained will work as volunteers and paid professionals in Hispanic voter-registration drives planned for 1982 and 1984.

There was some speculation that the GOP's efforts to win over the Hispanics had received a blow when the highest-ranking Hispanic in the Reagan administration, Michael Cardenas, recently lost his job as head of the Small Business Administration. But del Junco does not think that this incident will be a major setback.

"It is simply a case of Mike being shifted from one administration job to another," he says. "It is regrettable the way the publicity was handled. But I have been given assurances at the highest levels of the White House that in the coming months this administration will appoint Hispanics to high-level jobs, and I don't think this incident will have a long-range effect."

"Hispanics are not dumb. They realize that despite all the Democratic Party has promised, both here in California and nationally, Hispanics have not really been given access. All the Democratic social-welfare programs have failed to improve the basic living conditions in the barrios."

Just how out-of-touch Edwards is was illustrated by his repeated assurances that the administration would submit legislation on natural gas deregulation this year. The White House decided such a move would be impossible, or at least impolitic, in an election year — but nobody bothered to tell Edwards. In another case, Edwards had promised Big Oil that the administration would not levy a tax on imported crude. Unbeknownst to him, though, just such a tax proposal was drafted by the Treasury and Budget Office and sent to the president for his decision. Although Reagan ultimately decided against the tax, industry officials were horrified that the proposal had made it all the way to the Oval Office without Edwards' knowledge.

When my associate Peter Grant asked a high-ranking White House aide if the absence of participation by Edwards in the oil import decision reflected the secretary's lack of influence, the reply was, "Your question answers itself."

It has been suggested that Edwards' fumble-fingered approach is all part of a subtle administration plan to get the Energy department laughed out of existence. As for the secretary himself, he has been reported as saying he hopes his department will be phased out by spring so he can go back home to South Carolina. "That's when the fishing is good," he explained.

Miss Cockrell, Dick S. Aiken Repeat Vows

Rebecca Colleen Cockrell of Tallahassee, and Dick Seaborn Aiken of Sanford, were united in Holy Matrimony, Feb. 20, at 2 p.m., at the First Baptist Church of Tallahassee. The Rev. Johnny M. Perkins Jr. performed the double ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Randal Cockrell of Pensacola. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bedford Elias Aiken, 222 Elliott Ave., Sanford.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a white satin gown, fashioned along the princess silhouette with a schiffli lace yoke and long fitted lace sleeves.

The high neckline was finished with a band of embroidered lace. The lace trimmed A-line skirt cascaded into a graceful chapel train. A white lace headpiece secured her mantilla veil of illusion, accented with re-embroidered lace motifs. Her flowers, the same design carried by Princess Diana, was a cascade of silk roses, orchids, stephanotis and lily of the valley centered with yellow sweetheart roses and interspersed with trailing ivy.

Linda Fletcher Woodward of Quincy was the bride's only attendant. She wore a powder blue slim Chantilly lace gown styled with a high neckline and long puffed sleeves. She carried a French hand bouquet of yellow silk roses, baby's breath and maidenhair fern. Her headpiece was a spray of yellow roses and baby's breath.

Lani Ouzts of Tallahassee, was the flower girl.

Jay Williams, Sanford, served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Raymond Cockrell, brother of the bride, Pensacola; and the bridegroom's brothers, David Aiken,

MRS. DICK SEABORN AIKEN

Leesburg, and Michael Aiken, Sanford.

Following a reception in the church parlor, the newlyweds departed on a wedding trip to New Orleans.

They are making their home at 2102 Cordova Drive, Sanford. The bridegroom is employed as Tusawilla Branch manager, Flagship Bank of Seminole. The bride is customer service officer for Southeast National Bank of Orlando, Matland Banking Center.

A Sentimental Journey

Time For 'Nothing'

By DORIS DIETRICH
OURSELVES Editor

Margaret Ganas has embarked on a new venture—retirement. At least, it's a new and sentimental journey to her.

During the first week of doing "nothing" as Margaret puts it, she says she "recommends it for everyone" while watching a game show on television early one morning.

Margaret retired last Friday as executive secretary of United Way of Seminole County Inc., after serving a 20-year term. The former "Mrs. United Way" has been showered with a lot of attention which she rightly deserves for a job well done—superbly.

On the afternoon that she left her UW office in the Atlantic National Bank building, Sanford, for the final time, Margaret dashed to another office in the same building where a party in her honor was in progress.

Accountant Val Colbert's office was lined with well-wishers. Assisting Val as hostesses for the retirement fete were her secretaries, Brenda Echols, Peggy Martin, and Irene Laney.

Sorry, but Brenda Echols had to renege. She was too busy to carry out her hostess obligation. Motherhood beckoned and Brenda delivered a baby girl while the merrymakers were toasting Margaret.

About 45 friends stopped by for a variety of luscious party refreshments. The hostesses presented Margaret with a patio chaise longue and a corsage. "We had a great time," Val said. What does Margaret plan to do? "Nothing."

Association Reelects Officers For New Term

At the regular monthly meeting of the Geneva Citizens Association, the current officers were elected to serve another term. They are: Art Vaughn, president; Paul Christie, vice president; Lorraine Whiting, secretary; and Bill Myers, treasurer.

Mrs. Margaret Cammack gave an update regarding the power tower issue. Rep. Bob Hattaway, has arranged a meeting in Tallahassee on March 11 with some of the governor's cabinet and representatives from PAPI (People Against Power Intrusion).

Mrs. Whiting gave a report on the upkeep of the community hall, stating that several areas of the building were in need of tender loving care. She also issued a plea for help in purchasing the needed paneling, plywood and drywall boards. Those attending the meeting "purchased the materials" a sheet at a time until everything on the list was spoken for.

The next time you are in the community hall, check the new look of the restrooms and kitchen. They're both having a facelift.

The next association meeting will be April 5 at 8 p.m. in the community hall.

For some teachers, and students alike, it will be their first train trip.

The garden at the elementary school lives on. In fact, the next planting day will be March 10.

The principal reports that early watermelons have already been planted in hopes that "we will have a watermelon party before school recesses for the summer." Strawberries have also been set out.

If you'd like to try your hand at having a strawberry patch, here's an offer that can't be beat. By sending $1 to cover postage and handling to: Van Bourgondien Bros., Box A-822, Babylon, NY, 11702, you will receive ten "Fort Laramie" strawberry plants and a 52-page catalog. Offer expires May 15.

The Geneva Homemakers will meet March 10 at the community hall. The meeting will begin at 10 a.m.

Another function at the community hall next week will be the free health clinic, March 12, starting at 10 a.m. The county nurse will be present to update inoculations for children, take blood pressure and give eye examinations.

Friendship Ranks Above A Chance For Romance

DEAR ABBY: Jerry, the guy my best friend, Anita, has liked for years, asked me out last week. I turned him down because I didn't want to hurt Anita. Being the close friends we are, I told Anita that Jerry had asked me out but I turned him down. She said I should have accepted, but I got the feeling that she was really glad I didn't.

Anita has had a crush on Jerry for a long time, but he's never asked her out. Although she knows Jerry has no interest in her, she still has feelings for him.

Recently a friend of Jerry's told me Jerry wants to ask me out again, and I don't know what to do. I don't want to hurt Anita, but this guy is really nice and nice guys are hard to come by these days.

It's a sticky situation. What are your thoughts on this, Abby?

DEAR CONFUSED: Anita would have to be both immature and unrealistic to consider you less a friend because you dated a guy she "liked a lot" but who had no interest in her. (Merely liking a guy doesn't make him her property.)

However, since you already told Anita that Jerry asked you out and you turned him down, and you got the feeling she was "glad," you'd probably feel guilty accepting a date with him now.

You're right, a nice guy is hard to come by, but so is a best friend. If you can handle the guilt, go ahead and date him.

DEAR ABBY: I'm scared! All this sudden interest in reuniting natural parents with the children they gave up makes me very uneasy. You see, I gave up a child for adoption years ago, and I do not want to be "reunited."

Even you are advertising ALMA — an agency that "matches" adopted children with their natural parents. Why?

Is there any way I can be sure it will never happen to me? The fewer people who know about my past, the better. Thanks.

DEAR NEW: There is no way that you can be absolutely sure that the child you gave up for adoption will never find you. But be assured that the only agencies I recommend are those that reunite parents and children only if all parties are agreeable.

DEAR ABBY: Lately I have become very self-destructive in my sleep. Kicking the walls has gone on for quite some time, but just recently I woke up with a black eye, a bruised jaw and a swollen lip! I was really embarrassed to go to work looking so beat up. When I explained that I did this to myself in my sleep, nobody believed me.

My dad keeps teasing me about getting a straitjacket. I am a 20-year-old non-violent Christian, if that helps. Any ideas?

NIGHTTIME BOXER
DEAR BOXER: Better see a psychologist about all that pent-up violent behavior you suppress during your waking hours but vent in your unconscious state. In the meantime, "save face" and provide yourself with some kind of restraints.

Everybody needs friends. For some practical tips on how to be popular, get Abby's Popularity booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed stamped (37 cents) envelope to Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 32823, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Meade Knocks Out Knights; Ebeling Leads Mocs' Victory

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (UPI) — Terry Meade scored 21 points, including 19 in the second half, to lead Southeast Missouri to a 60-35 win over Central Florida Thursday night in an NCAA Division II South Central Regional game.

The Southeast Missouri Indians advance to Friday night's regional championship final against the winner of a game between Central Missouri and Tennessee-Martin Thursday. Central Florida, 21-7, will play the loser for third place.

Meade, a 6-2 junior forward, was joined in double figures by Warren Wendling, who scored 13 points, and Jewell Crawford, who added 10.

Jeff Dorachner scored 18 points to lead Central Florida. Willie Edison contributed 12 and Jimmie Ferrell 10.

At the half, Central Florida led 25-24. Central Florida led by as much as 6 in the second half with 13:05 to play, 34-28. Southeast Missouri took the lead for good when Meade made a three-point play with 7:08 left. The Indians went ahead 44-2 and although tied twice more never trailed the rest of the way.

Southeast Missouri, 20-9, has won 15 of its 17 games and are the regular season Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Conference champion. The Indians lost in the finals of MIAA postseason tournament to Central Missouri.

In other tournament action, All-American John Ebeling scored a game-high 31-points and grabbed 15 rebounds Thursday to help Florida Southern defeat Northwest Missouri State 80-74 and move into the championship game of the NCAA Division II South Regional at Lakeland.

Florida Southern, 19-9, faces Livingston, Ala., University Friday night.

Florida Southern held a 42-30 lead at halftime and stretched that to 16 points early in the second half. Northwest Missouri cut the margin to 10 points with just over 10 minutes left in the game, but fell short.

Mark King and Oliver Smith scored 13 points each for Florida Southern while Hob Zipko added 10.

In the earlier game, Will Cotchery and Marvin Wesley combined for 41 points to lead Livingston to a 75-72 victory over Biscayne College.

Sanford Cagers In Tourneys

The Florida Intermediate Boys League and the Florida Junior Boys League state tournaments both open in Orlando today and Sanford will be represented in both tournaments.

Both Sanford teams finished second in district tournaments last week, both losing to Apopka. But several teams in the Tallahassee area dropped out of the state organization, leaving a vacancy in the eight-team state tournament fields.

Sanford, Apopka and host Orlando will represent District 4 in both tournaments.

In the Intermediate League tournament, Sanford plays East Volusia at 4 p.m. today at Howard Junior High School.

The Sanford Junior all-stars swing into action at 8:30 p.m. at the Davis Armory, playing the District 7 winner, expected to be Palm Beach Gardens.

The Intermediate all-stars whipped Kissimmee 114-38 in the district tournament last weekend, before falling 81-60 to Apopka. Terrence Marshall combined for 41 points in the two games to lead Sanford in the scoring department. William Carr, Steve Dennis and Charles Ruffin also hit for double figures in both games.

Hounding out the starting five is Joe Corso, who turned in several outstanding defensive plays in the district tournament.

The junior all-stars opened with a 41-27 win over Cocoa Beach before they were beat 59-39 by Apopka.

Perez Perry, the league's top scorer this season, was held to a total of 18 points in the two games. Reginald Bellamy scored 25 points against Cocoa Beach, but was shut out in the first half by Apopka and finished with just nine points.

Santa Fe Spoils SCC, 7-3

This wasn't the way Seminole Community College coach Jack Pantelias had planned the Mid-Florida Conference season to begin.

Perennial also-ran Santa Fe jumped on Raider starter Jody Ryan for three runs in the first inning and never looked back to a 7-3 victory at SCC.

SCC, 15-7 and 0-1, takes today off before traveling to Jacksonville Saturday to play Florida Junior College.

Lake Mary, Patriots Tie, 11-11

Don Smith's Lake Mary Rams and the Lake Brantley Patriots junior varsity brought out the bats Thursday afternoon at Westmonte Recreation Center, but when darkness signalled the end of the seven-inning affair, the teams were deadlocked, 11-11.

Rod Metz crashed a two-run homer for the Rams and Greg Shatto added a solo shot and a single. Paul Alegre had two hits. Brad Correia and Kevin Bass had round-trippers for the Pats. Rich Vanderwilde and Scott Anex each stroked two hits.

The 2-1-1 Rams travel to 3-0 Lyman today for a 4 o'clock game.

Edgemon, Barley Lift Netters

Seminole's Angie Barley and Patti Edgemon pulled out the no. 2 doubles Thursday to lift the Tribe past Lake Brantley, 4-3, in Five Star tennis action.

The victory was the second in a row for coach Donalyn Knight's netters and improved their record to 5-3. The boys lost to the Patriots and dropped to 0-4.

Other Seminole winners included Barley and Edgemon in the singles and Susanna Huaman.

Elsewhere in the county, the Lake Mary girls of Beth Whigham continued to roll, dropping New Smyrna Beach, 6-1. The Ram boys also whipped NSB, 5-2.

Seminole meets Lake Mary Tuesday at Bayhead at 3 p.m.

Riggins Sets Off Tribe Bomb, 14-8

Seminole softball coach Beth Corso knew her team was like a ticking time bomb.

But after four straight losses which included only 12 runs and 16 hits, you couldn't blame her girls if they turned a deaf ear.

"I knew we were going to break out of it," said Corso Thursday morning after Wednesday's setback to Mainland. "The big thing was just keeping the girls' confidence up."

Then came Thursday and a boom that a deaf ear might even hear. Seminole exploded for 22 hits and scored in every inning to bombard Lyman, 14-8, at Longwood in Five Star Conference action.

Senior outfielder Robin Riggins was the main detonator of the explosion. Riggins smashed four hits and chased home seven runs as the Tribe broke open a 9-8 ball game with three runs in the sixth and two more in the seventh.

"She really showed me a lot," said Corso about her four-year standout. "Robin hit the ball from one side of the field to the other."

It has been a trying year for the likeable senior. During the basketball season, Riggins' eye became infected which caused the talented guard-forward to miss the second part of the year.

Just as that was clearing up, she developed a resistance to an antibiotic and the infection returned. Always a graceful fielder, her judgement was hampered and she seemed uncertain at times in practice, according to Corso.

That uncertainty vanished Thursday, though. "Robin made it a tough day for (Michelle) Kuhrt," pointed out Corso. "She snagged everything Michelle hit her."

"There was no hesitancy today. She moved all over the outfield to get the ball," Corso added.

Prep Softball

Riggins received ample support from pitcher Dee Hogan. The blonde-haired righthander banged out three hits, one for a triple, and drove in three runs. She also picked up the mound decision despite yielding 12 hits.

Catcher Susan Bagley stroked three hits as did outfielder Brenda Sanders. Steady Cindy Pendarvis collected her usual two singles and sophomore Katie Barbour and Johnnie Bennett each smacked two hits.

Bennett, a slick-fielding shortstop, turned in the defensive play of the day when a bad-hop grounder knocked her off-balance, but she tossed to Pendarvis at second for a force out, while lying on her back. She also turned in a double play.

The victory evened the Tribe's mark at 1-1 in conference and 1-4 overall. Seminole hosts Apopka Tuesday and Lake Brantley next Friday. Both games are at Ft. Mellon Park at 4 p.m.

Coach Karren Newman's Greyhounds, meanwhile, suffered their second defeat in two days. They are 0-1 in the Five Star and 1-2 for the year.

After trailing 4-1, Lyman broke loose for four in the fourth and three in the fifth to pull within one, but the bats went silent in the last two frames.

Junior Kathy Richardson rapped three hits to lead the 'Hounds. Kim Gilliam and Marcie Lewis stroked two apiece. Kuhrt and usually hard-hitting teammate Sybee Helms were held to one each. Richardson suffered the loss.

Girls Rely On Relay

When Seminole High track coach Emory Blake gets in trouble he knows he can rely on the relay.

That's what Blake did Thursday afternoon in DeLand and it paid off for a 64-59 dual meet victory over the Bulldogs for the Fighting Seminoles.

"Sharon Jenkins has put a whole new life into our relays," pointed out Blake. "I think we're really getting things going now." Seminole goes to Apopka Tuesday for a tri-meet with the Darters and West Orange at 3:30 p.m.

Jenkins had her legs in all three relay wins. In the 440, she combined with Maxine Campbell, Traci Brown and Tony Hardy to run a 49.6 for first place.

Later on, she joined the Caldwell sisters—Revonda and Crystal — along with Brenda Davis for a 4:25 in the mile medley for the top spot.

Then she ran with Crystal Caldwell, Hardy and Davis for a first place in the mile relay in 4:04.

Hardy had her usual good day as did sophomore Arlene Jones. Hardy won the long jump (18-4) and the 330 low hurdles (46.8). Jones captured the 110 hurdles (18.7) and the high jump (4-6). Hardy was second in the high jump, while Jones was second in the long jump (17-3) and Charita Medlock, Croom's talented jumper, took third (17-1).

Davis, a top 40 runner last year, took her specialty in 60 seconds. Senior Cathy Jones threw the discus 103-4 for first place.

Coach Hank Daviero's Seminole boys travel to DeLand Saturday for the "Big D Invitational."

Consistent Hoch, Soli Scale Bay Hill

Pro Golf

ORLANDO (UPI) — Scott Hoch is playing consistent golf these days and he says it's because he's learned how to calm down on the golf course.

The boyish-looking Hoch displayed calm and consistency Thursday in firing a 6-under par 65 to tie Mick Soli for a one-stroke lead in the opening round of the $300,000 Bay Hill Classic.

Hoch, who finished in a three-way tie for second place in last week's Doral Open, made three birdies on the front nine then birdied the 10th, 12th and 13th holes for a 33 on the back side of the 7,089-yard Bay Hill course.

Soli had four birdies on the front nine for a 32 and two on the back nine for a 33.

One shot back at 5-under 66 were Craig Stadler and Bob Eastwood. Scott Watkins, Jay Haas, Gil Morgan and Fuzzy Zoeller were two strokes off the pace going into today's second round.

Eight golfers, including Hale Irwin, Dave Eichelberger and Hay Floyd, were at 3-under 68. Jack Nicklaus was among 13 golfers at 69, and Andy Bean, trying to defend his Bay Hill title and coming off a victory at Doral, fired a 76.

Hoch said Thursday's round was the best he's had all year because "I hit the ball well and I made the putts."

"I played well last week, but I didn't make the putts," he said. "If you want to score well on the tour, you have to hit the ball well and then make the putts."

Hoch has also made some improvements since the time when he used to get mad at himself on the golf course.

"I was getting upset at my bad shots and it really hurt my game," he said. "Now, I don't get frustrated."

Hoch said his game changed considerably after he was robbed early this year during the Tucson Open. He said he was watching television in his hotel room with his wife when a man claiming to be a policeman burst in the room and tied the two up.

Doyles, Dunk Begin Saturday

More than anything else, this smiling Little Leaguer to my left represents baseball's opening day and the universal call of umpires around the world of "Play Ball!"

There is a certain optimism that the first day of baseball brings that can be felt by all. After all, every team is undefeated.

Forgotten are last year's tribulations. Expectation always runs high on opening day. From the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers to the Altamonte Springs T-Ball players, everyone is in the pennant race.

Two of the county's most successful leagues — Five Points and Altamonte — will hear that vibrating cry from the umpire Saturday morning.

Seminole Pony Baseball, which had its Bronco team finish second in the World Series last year at Lafayette, La., has 12 hours of non-stop baseball and softball action beginning at 9 a.m. at the Winter Springs Complex on State Road 418.

Seminole Pony Baseball draws teams from Casselberry, Forest City, Longwood, Sanford, Winter Springs and Lake Mary.

The Longwood Women's Auxiliary will be selling coffee and donuts for the early risers and a specialty sandwich later on.

Not to be outdone, the Seminole Women's Auxiliary will give every ball player a chance to take his shot at his coach.

Imagine the opportunity. The coach doesn't start you for the first game. He says your accuracy isn't good enough. Then you just happen to wander by the "dunking booth" and there he sits on a plank above a tank of water.

With three balls for 50 cents, that accuracy might improve a little. Not to mention a chance to show your coach he's all wet. Literally.

While Seminole Pony had an outstanding entry in the post-season tournaments, Altamonte also did well. Coach

Gene Letterio's Major League squad came within one pitch of whipping highly-regarded Belmont Heights from Tampa.

Letterio's crew finished second in the state, however, and Belmont went on to finish second to Taiwan in the Little League World Series at Williamsport, Pa.

Altamonte, which is made up of T-Ball, Minor, Major, Triple A and Senior Divisions, has an opening day ceremony planned with the Doyle brothers from Winter Haven throwing out the first ball at 10 a.m.

Denny Doyle, who played eight years in the Major Leagues for the Phillies, Red Sox and Angels, will make the ceremonial first toss. He will be accompanied by his brother, Blake, who played in the Baltimore Orioles' farm system.

The other Doyle, 1978 World Series hero, Brian is in Oakland trying to work out his contract with the A's. The Doyles operate the Florida Professional Baseball School in Winter Haven.

The ceremony will be followed by day-long two-to-three innings of exhibition games.

Along with the opening days Saturday at Altamonte and Winter Springs, the big boys get their exhibition season going with the Grapefruit League.

Either travel expense or laziness will put a crimp on the teams you'll get to see at Tinker Field against the Twins this year.

Most teams aren't venturing too far from their spring training base. And when they do, usually most of the stars don't make the trip.

The Montreal Expos go to Vero Beach on Sunday, but don't expect to see Sanford's Tim Raines. He had originally thought he would make the trip since the Expos were playing the Dodgers, but a secretary told me this morning that Raines will go to Miami for Montreal's split-squad game and not Vero.

About the only chance you'll get to see Raines in this area is March 25 at Winter Haven against the Red Sox. Game time is 1:30 p.m.

At Tinker Field, there will be no Yankees this year, but the Dodgers, Orioles, Phillies and Red Sox will come to town. Minnesota has a lot of good, young ball players this spring as usual.

Two youngsters — third baseman Gary Gaetti and catcher Tim Laudner — will be familiar to fans of the Orlando Twins' fans. They both hit homer after homer out of Tinker Field last year while leading the O-Twins to a championship and Southern League homer record.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Don't Mix Milk And Diabetes

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband, who is 67, is a diabetic. I am a borderline case. We would like some information about Lact-Aid. I have received a sample but haven't used it as it converts lactose in milk into sugar. I am wondering if there is enough sugar in the Lact-Aid to warrant not using it.

DEAR READER — For the benefit of other readers, Lact-Aid is an enzyme preparation you can put in milk and it will digest the milk sugar lactose into its two single sugars, galactose and glucose.

At birth we all have a similar enzyme in the small intestine that digests milk sugar and does exactly the same thing. Unfortunately, 10 to 20 percent of adult Anglo-Saxons and as many as 80 percent of other ethnic groups do not have enough lactose enzyme in the intestine to do this. These people develop milk intolerance which causes symptoms similar to a spastic colon or worse.

I presume you are concerned about milk intolerance since you have gotten Lact-Aid. Lact-Aid can be gotten from the Sugarlo Company, P.O. Box 110, Pleasantville, N.J. 08232.

The lactose in milk is sugar. It is a double sugar of galactose and glucose (Called a disaccharide). Table sugar is a disaccharide of glucose and fructose. You will not get any more glucose from milk after using Lact-Aid than a diabetic without milk intolerance will get from ordinary milk.

In other words, if your diet allows you to use milk in conjunction with diabetes there is no reason why you can't use Lact-Aid. It really doesn't make any difference whether lactose is split by an enzyme in your intestine or split by an enzyme added to the milk before it is used. The end result is the same. The question about milk in general for diabetics is how rapid you absorb single sugars (double sugars are not absorbed and that is what causes the bowel symptoms).

It can cause symptoms you describe and may be mistaken for appendicitis. It can cause sinus tracts including erosion into the bladder. Prednisone causes a remission in about 60 percent of cases in about eight weeks. Sulfasalazine may help in three to four months. It is a difficult disease to treat.

To give you more information on milk intolerance I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-2, Milk Products: Good and Bad. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have Crohn's disease. Can you tell me what causes it? I have severe low abdominal pain which at times really makes me sick. When the cramping is at its worst it causes me to have chills and nausea. The diarrhea usually lasts only three to four days. The constipation can make me feel as bad as the diarrhea.

Lately I have been told my intestines are pushing against my bladder, causing an indentation and reddened area inside the bladder and that it could eventually rub a hole into it. I was told nothing would be done about it. I am overweight as well. Could this be causing the problem?

DEAR READER — No, being overweight is not the cause. Crohn's disease is also known as regional enteritis. It is a granular inflammation that most typically involves the area where the end of the small intestine (ileum) joins the colon in your lower right side but it can involve other areas, too.

It can cause symptoms you describe and may be mistaken for appendicitis. It can cause sinus tracts including erosion into the bladder. Prednisone causes a remission in about 60 percent of cases in about eight weeks. Sulfasalazine may help in three to four months. It is a difficult disease to treat.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

March 6, 1982
Unusual conditions are likely to develop this coming year to make it possible for you to advance in your chosen field. Be on your toes, since these opportunities will be of a fleeting nature.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're a good producer today when the pressure is on, but once conditions begin to alleviate you may start to slow down and seek reasons to quit.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Enjoy yourself today, but keep in mind not to abuse a good thing. There's a possibility you might overindulge and later pay a price.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Something opportune could unexpectedly develop today, but you might not take advantage of it owing to the advice of others. Make your own judgments.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Think carefully before making commitments today. Your intentions at the time may be good, but you might not be able to follow through.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Financial conditions are likely to be mixed for you today. In some instances you will get maximum mileage from your dollars, while not from others.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you feel inspired to take certain actions today, do so promptly. Time isn't your ally. You could become ineffective the more you dawdle.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Persons you should treat with consideration today may not get preferential attention, while you might shower with favors those who are less deserving.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't be reluctant to speak up today if friends want to go someplace expensive that you feel isn't worth the price.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be aware of the limitations of your companions' budgets today. They could be embarrassed if you insist upon something they can't afford.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may be able to do things with ease today which others find extremely difficult. It won't help your relationships if you compare your accomplishments.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In business matters today, don't underestimate those with whom you're involved. You may go in thinking you have the edge, then suddenly discover you haven't.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In situations today which require a joint effort, there is a chance the parties involved will be pulling in different directions. Plan ahead.

WIN AT BRIDGE

The really remarkable feature about his three national wins is that they all were in tough men's team events and occurred in 1965, 1972 and 1973.

Jack is an overbidder at rubber bridge. In so doing he keeps lots of pressure on his opponents. Furthermore, he has a faculty of playing to make doubtful contracts.

Most players would go down at six spades. Here is how Jack made the slam: He took dummy's ace of clubs and ruffed a club at trick two. Then he led his ace of spades and got the bad news. Undaunted he led a diamond to dummy's queen and ruffed another club.

Then came a heart to the king and a ruff of dummy's last club. Now he cashed his ace of hearts and ace-king of diamonds while West had to follow suit. Now he led a red card.

West was down to Q-10-8 of trumps but could only score one trick with them. Jack still held his trump king and dummy the J-7-3, so it made no difference what card West ruffed with. He could only score his queen.

John E. Simon of St. Louis is a bridge aficionado. Born in 1897, Jack still heads the oldest stock exchange firm west of the Mississippi. He plays lots of rubber bridge but has given up tournament play.

Bob Hicks, owner of a Lake Mary nursery, puts the finishing touches on a large desert plant arrangement. You can do the same thing with flowers and vegetables on an even larger scale. It's called mini-gardening.

Getting Involved With Your Plants

By TOM DAVIS
Special To The Herald

For the vast number of Floridians who live in apartments, condominiums, and mobile homes where there is little or no backyard to be had, why not try mini-gardening?

Just because you don't have a lot of room doesn't mean you can't grow vegetables. In fact, the vegetable gardener who gets emotionally involved with a strawberry barrel or half-a-dozen tomato plants probably has more fun than anybody else.

In addition to being an enjoyable activity, mini-gardening can be practical and ornamental. Containers can fit almost anywhere. . . along walks and drives, on patios, porches and balconies, even on the roof.

Depending on the crop you plan to grow, there's practically no limit to the kinds of containers you can use. Old pots and pans, milk jugs, hollow concrete blocks, bushel baskets, trash cans, barrels, drums and even plastic bags. Just be sure the container will keep the soil in while letting excess water drain out.

Quite a number of vegetable crops are well-suited to mini-gardening. Tomatoes, strawberries, bush beans, lettuce and herbs are among the favorites.

Once you have a container and have decided what to grow, it's time to think about what kind of potting mixture to use. Of course, you can plant in ordinary garden soil or a prepared soil mix. But with a container garden you can also consider soil substitutes, things like sawdust or wood shavings. Remember that if you plant in a light-weight soil substitute it'll be easier to move the container if necessary.

A good choice is a growth medium made of one bushel of vermiculite, a bushel of peat moss, one-and-a-quarter cups of dolomite and a cup of 8-8-8 fertilizer with trace elements, all mixed thoroughly. You could also use a bushel of sand or garden soil mixed with a bushel of peat, cow manure or well-decomposed compost. Either way, you need the dolomite and fertilizer.

Fertilizing and, to some extent watering, will be a bit different from what you may be used to with a backyard garden.

The more porous growth media, such as sand or gravel, dry out rapidly and don't hold nutrients very long. Using this kind of medium, you'll need to water and fertilize often. Normally, the container must be drenched with a nutrient solution once or twice a day. . . as many as five times a day if it's especially hot and dry.

The growth medium mixtures mentioned earlier have plenty of organic matter and include some fertilizer so they don't need extra fertilizer as often. Every week or two should do it. You can drench with a soluble fertilizer or spread common dry garden fertilizer on the soil surface and water it thoroughly into the root zone. Just don't apply too much or you may cause fertilizer burn. Either way, follow label directions for container-grown vegetables.

While we're on the subject of growing plants in containers and for those of you that find ornamental plants more appealing, why not try to create your own terrarium? A terrarium is a miniature garden enclosed in glass, either a round glass globe, aquarium, large-mouth bottle, large-stemmed glass or another type of clear glass container. Terrariums are ideal for growing plants under adverse conditions. They produce artificially a more or less ideal atmosphere for growing numerous plants that could not stand the normally dry atmosphere of the average home. In addition, the lustre and reflection of the glass add interest not found in open arrangements. The glass enclosure also protects delicate foliage, brittle stems and leaves that would be difficult to grow in the open, even if the humidity could be maintained.

Terrariums are relatively simple to make and set up, and once established, they are easy to maintain and will thrive for long periods with minimum care.

The type of container you select for the terrarium will be governed by several factors. First, choose one suitable to the room where it will be used. One not adapted to a certain situation because of shape or size will lose its effectiveness. Second, select your container for ease of planting. Remember, the smaller the opening in the container the more difficult it will be to plant.

Once you have selected your container, all you have to do is follow these few steps to have a successful terrarium.

Place at least one inch of pea-size gravel in the bottom of the container. Terrariums are easy to overwater and some provision must be made to take care of excess water. Excess water filters down into the gravel and remains there to serve as a reservoir, gradually returning to the soil by capillary movement as the soil on top dries out.

After the gravel is in place, cover it with from three to four inches of good organic soil mixture. A mixture of one part of volume of peat to one part sandy soil is ideal. To this mixture add and mix one teaspoon of 6-6-6 fertilizer for every 2 quarts of soil. When you place the soil mixture in the container you can level it as if it is to be seen from all sides or form it into slopes, depressions and various shapes if it is to be seen mainly from one side. Many people prefer the latter, as they say it looks more natural.

Any of the following plants can be grown:

Native plants such as fairy footprints (Fustoria procumbens), partridge berry (Mitchella repens) and maidenhair fern.

Cultivated plants — African violets, Caladium (dwarf varieties), creeping fig, Cryptanthus, English ivy (small varieties), Philodendron, and snake plant (small varieties).

Set the plants at the same depth they were growing in the wild, garden or pot. If you use narrow-mouth containers you will have to use a long pair of tweezers and planting sticks.

A glass cover is a must for most terrariums. It helps to maintain the humidity and prevents the terrarium from drying out too rapidly. It should not be fastened too securely since it must be removed occasionally to ventilate the terrarium.

Watering is not a problem since plants in a terrarium require only a small amount. Water only when the surface of the soil becomes dry and then add only enough to moisten the soil again.

The plants will survive for long periods without fertilizer. The objective should be to keep the plants healthy but growing slowly, just short of a starvation diet. If a terrarium is fertilized frequently the plants will soon outgrow it. The terrarium should be kept away from direct sunlight. Plants grown in terrariums are those naturally adapted to growing in dark, damp areas in the woods.

Write FCC For Help On TV Interference

DEAR DICK: At this moment, I am attempting to watch a special TV broadcast, but for the past hour the picture has been blanked out every five to 10 seconds with interference and voices from some type of radio. This situation has been on-going. I am angry and frustrated because it happens all day and through prime time. Is there anything I can do to eliminate the nuisance these people are causing? V. COMINSKI, Yardville, N.J.

Yes, but what you can do depends on the causes of your problem, so there is no way of telling you that here. The best thing for you to do is to send for the FCC's booklet on the subject, "How To Identify and Resolve Radio-TV Interference Problems." Write to the Federal Communications Commission in Washington, D.C. 20554, and they'll send you a copy.

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: I belong to a club in school called the National Forensic League. I am involved in memorizing scenes from movies and performing them at speech contests. I saw a fantastic movie last summer called "When She Was Bad," with Robert Ulrich and Cheryl Ladd. I have the speech I want to do from that film, but cannot present it because I don't know the author's name. Can you help with the name? MELISSA L. POTTER, Carthage, Mo.

Yes, the screenplay for that film was by Carmen Culver.

DEAR DICK: What's Kris Kristofferson's problem? He used to be able to sing. But on that recent Anne Murray special, I was shocked. He couldn't sing alone or stay in time, was off key and his voice was weak. Anne carried him. Any main reason? V.J.L., Vancouver, Wash.

I didn't see that show, but I have heard no other comments on Kris' performance then. I saw him entertain recently at a dinner here in Beverly Hills, for Danny Kaye, and he was the same old Kris Kristofferson. He's not my favorite, but I saw nothing wrong with him, and he seemed to please his fans.

DEAR DICK: The death of Paul Lynde recalls "New Faces of 1952" (30 years ago!) wherein Paul got his first big break. Besides being a terrific revue, "New Faces" must have set some kind of record for launching successful careers. Could you please give us a rundown on that great cast of beginners? JOE DROLEN, Kalamazoo, Mich.

You're right about that show. I saw it on Broadway, and dug out my program. The cast included: Lynde, Alice Ghostley, Carol Lawrence, Eartha Kitt, Ronny Graham and Robert Clary. The producer, Leonard Sillman, died not long ago, too.

Talk-Show Spots Give Stars Boost

The talent coordinators for talk-variety television shows (they're the folk who book the guests) roll out red carpets when the star of a hot new movie, major television series or special, accepts an invitation to tell Johnny, Merv, Mike, or a leading local anchor all about it.

And since television promotion is the surest way of whetting the public's appetite, wise stars talk up their new vehicles to as many host-interviewers as they can manage.

It has to feel good to be that much in demand. But for the talented who are invited on the big shows at other than peak moments in their careers, the invitations are even more of a personal tribute.

Burt Reynolds credits Johnny Carson — and later Dinah Shore — with helping him believe in himself after two television series had been canceled in their first seasons: "Hawk" and "Dan August." "I remember him sitting in the Algonquin Hotel in New York saying that even if a good role didn't come along it wasn't going to rob him of his sense of humor or self-confidence any more. "Since Johnny asked me to be a guest host, I figure I can make a career talking if not acting, and I enjoy it. We'll see what happens."

What happened, of course, is, well, history. The movie offers rolled in until he is now regarded as this generation's Clark Gable. The new "king." But he still credits the talk shows with showcasing him, and giving the first evidence that there could be a twinkle in the eyes under those beetle eyebrows of his.

Currently being swamped with interview invitations from everywhere is Pia Zadora who got the Golden Globe award as the most promising newcomer to movies for "Butterfly." Her inquisitors puzzle over her transition from singer-dancer to actress. Would she have made the leap if her millionaire husband, Meshulam Riklis, had not produced "Butterfly?"

She says yes. I say yes. She got her first Broadway at the age of 7 in "Midgie Purvis," starring Tallulah Bankhead. She hasn't stopped working since, but as a teenager she phased into singing and dancing, "until I could find the right dramatic role."

It was reprising her Vegas act on Merv Griffin programs that first blazoned Pia Zadora's name to television audiences. So it was the dancing that first made her a television attraction. It has also kept her nymphet body in such fine form that in her 20s she is a new sex kitten.

'Open All Night' Is Good, But Wierd

"Open All Night" is a slightly bent, slightly satirical ABC sit-com that may find an audience once it finds itself.

The show is not a complete success. But it is daffy, engaging and a little something different. Consider it liver and onions on a menu with nothing else besides hamburgers.

Our hero is Gordon Foester (George Dzundza), a lovable, exasperated loser with a weight problem and a shittail that won't stay tucked in. A comb wouldn't hurt. Gordon was born and raised in Columbus, Ohio, and kicked around as a college student, door-to-door salesman, short-order cook and soldier before finding his true calling: Gordon manages a "364" all-night grocery store in the undistinguished Los Angeles freeway suburb of Inglewood.

The store, an obvious take-off of the Seven-Eleven stores, is a magnet for late-night lunatics and desperados. Typical exchange between Gordon and a zonked-out punk disciple with purple hair:

"Do you have any Astroturf?"

"No," says Gordon. "Then how about Kitty Litter?"

"Yes, we have Kitty Litter," he replies.

"Well, at least we eat tonight," says the much-relieved punk.

In truth, the store's customers must complete for weirdness with its regular inhabitants. For starters, there's Gordon's flaky wife, Gretchen (Susan Tyrrell), who has been married several times before. Gretchen alternates between a kittenish purr, complete with fluttering eyelids, and a teensy, high-pitched whine that makes her sound on the verge of total hysteria. There is no in between.

She and Gordon live over the store in an apartment with her teen-age son, Terry (Sam Whipple), a slow-witted, obnoxious zombie with a prominent Adam's apple and a vast collection of pet snakes and spiders. Terry can swallow an entire pork roast whole — it's a trick he learned from his boa constrictor.

He and Gordon don't get along well. "Tres humeroso, Gordone," he draws if Gordon tries to joke around with him. "You'll make me miss the Reptile Festival," he complains if Gordon asks him to do any work in the store.

Mostly, Terry likes to talk to Robin, the night manager and part-time philosopher, played by the gigantic exgrizzer Bubba Smith, who has honed a delicious deadpan on all of those Miller Lite commercials. "I like to keep myself suspended in a semi-Zen state," Terry explains to Robin, who replies, "Have you read Hegel? He has some very interesting thoughts on the Teutonic metabolism."

For regular relief, a highly inefficient man-woman prowl car team, Steve and Edie (Jay Tarsa, Beverleigh Banfield), drops in for coffee or a cup of ice-cold Gurgle, the "364" specialty. The stories aren't bad.

Gordon seems to spend most of his time and energy battling off those who would deprive him of his little place in the smog.

One week, the same guy keeps robbing them at gun-point in the wee hours. "He's our only repeat customer," complains Gordon. Gretchen wants to get a gun. He refuses. They attend a self-defense seminar given by a gung-ho ex-Marine that proves so useless that Gordon does agree to get a gun. But he is unable to use it, and employs words instead of bullets to get rid of the robber.

Another week, Terry, in a rare behind-the-counter appearance, falls for a scam and buys 20 cases of pineapple chutney while Gordon and Gretchen are at a big "364" convention in Oxnard. Gordon returns, furious, only to suffer the humiliation of getting slung himself on phase two of the scam — the whole store is cleaned out.

"Open All Night" is a bit uneven. The scenes away from the store, like at the defense seminar and convention, are of a different, broader style than those taking place in our main arena. The weirdo regulars like Terry and Robin must make the difficult jump from one-joke loony to flesh and blood character, like Reverend Jim and Latka are able to do in "Taxi."
