Letter arrives – 56 years late

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. - It really was in the mail. It just took 56 years to get there and when it did, the envelope was empty.

A letter from the Aetna Life Insurance Co., postmarked June 5, 1936, and bearing a red 2-cent stamp of George Washington, arrived at the state Department of Transportation on Thursday. There was a second postmark on the back of the envelope, dated April 14, 1992.

The letter was addressed to "Albert L. Donneily, Highway Business Manager, State Highway Department, Hartford, Conn."

Donnelly retired in 1987. The highway business manager position has been eliminated and the state Highway Department changed its name and moved its headquarters to Wethersfield. Oh, and the cost of sending a letter has risen to 29 cents.

Toy bear logs 80,000 miles

PHILADELPHIA - When her favorite teddy bear left home neven weeks ago. Anne Wheeler had no idea if she would ever see it again.

When her father handed it back to her Monday, Care Bear had traveled 80,000 miles and been to more than a dozen countries. The 2-foot stuffed toy also brought back a log book full of messages and keepsales from people around the world.

"The way people took to the bear is incredible," said Anne's father, Mark Wheeler, a USAir customer service representative who had suggested the flight as a geography lesson for his daughter's kindergirten class.

Appel leads Rams in taking on and whipping every challenger

LAKE MARY - Good players come and go, but the great ones ... they come along so infrequently, they linger in our memory.

Just as local sports fans remember the halcyon days of Tim Raines at Seminole High School or, more recently. Marquette Smith during his Lake Howell career, they will probably recount the accomplishments of Lake Mary tennis player

Jason Appel with fondness and a touch of awe. Ranked No. 2 in the nation among 16-year-olds last year. Appel led the Lake Mary Rams to their first-ever state championship in tennis Tuesday. winning the No. 1 singles title and teamming up with Jason White to take the No. 1 doubles

Appel gave the Rams a boost at the district tournament just by being there. Because he is one of the nation's top players in his age group, it was expected that Appel would choose to play in the prestigious Easter Bowl tournament in Miami.

SANFORD - The Seminole County school board on Tuesday promised the teachers union that changes will be made in the decision-making processes at the school-level after the new superintendent is hired.

In a work session last evening, the board and the unions met to discuss a problem the unions have with the amount of power wielded by prin-

"The school board policy does not allow the district directors to discipline the principals in any way," said Helen Goodson, president of the Seminole Education Association. "They can make recommendations for change, but a principal can ignore that advice if they want to."

The union has been expressing their opposition to school-based management without tighter controla on principals since October when the plans were first presented by the school board. It was the union that requested last night's work session.

"We just wanted the opportunity to express our concerns to the board," Goodeon said. The board told union repre-

"I am very happy with the way they handled our concerns. Goodson said. Part of the strategic plan calls for each school to have a local school advisory board which is comprised of parents, teachers and community members who help with the deciaion-making process at the school level.

"But someone has to be held accountable in the end," said Dan Peiham, principal of Sanford Middle School. "When things go wrong someone has to take the biame and that someone has to be the principal.

Pelham spoke to the board on behalf of the principals in the district at last night's meeting.

"We have no problem with the concept of taking input from the teachers and the community." Pelham said. "We couldn't do it without them. It's just that in the end, someone has to take the responsibility for making a decision."

Pelham did not believe the teachers were "out of line" in requesting the changes, but felt the board understood that while the decision-making powers would be shared with the local school advisory councils, the principals must be held accountable for what happens at their schools and must, therefore, have the final word on all decisions.

Goodson said she believes that the board appeared "very open" to the idea of making sure the changes are made in the district structure that will ensure the power principals have in making decisions at the school-level will be more easily

"I don't think we're going to have to wait for the new superintendent to arrive to see how restructuring will effect this," Goodson said.

Hate crime law to be appealed

By JACKIE HALLIFAT Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - State leaders say they'll defend the constitutionality of Florida's Hate Crimes law, which a South Florida judge ruled was too vague.

"We have full confidence that Florida's hate crimes law is constitutional," Attorney General Bob Butterworth said Tuesday. "I believe this judge is flat-out wrong on this law."

He predicted the case would go directly to the state Supreme Court, bypassing the 4th District Court of Appeal because of its Importance.

Circuit Judge J. Leonard Fleet of Fort Lauderdale ruled Monday that the 1989 Hate Crimes law was too broad as he dismissed misdemeanor battery charges against a man accused of shouting derogatory names at a Jewish lawyer.

Gov. Lawton Chiles said he was disappointed by the ruling.

"We'll look at his decision and see how we can narrow the law." Chiles said. "I think there's a valid reason for having that law. If it's too broad, we ought to narrow it up and get another

Forty-three states have some kind of hate crimes law, but Florida's is the toughest, according to Arthur Teltelbaum, who oversees the Anti-Defamation League in 13 southern states from his Miami office.

Florida's Hate Crimes Act allows tougher sentences for crimes motivated by bigotry. It does not create new crimes, and defendants can be prosecuted under it only in connection with another crime. The law also allows victims to seek triple damages in civil lawsuits.

Teitelbaum called Fleet's ruling regrettable.

We ... want to be sure that the haters and bigots don't get the message that this ruling gives them license to target innocent persons for hatemotivated crimes," Teltelbaum said.

He said his organization would fight to get the ruling overturned.

Charlene Carres, a Tallahassee attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, said she thought the law needed to be interpreted by the state's high court because its language wasn't tied closely enough to legislative intent.

Cry of racism after blacks charged in fatal shooting

Acceleated Precs

CROSS CITY, Fla. -Charges against five black men following a brawl in which a white man fatally shot a black bystander has brought cries of racism in this North Florida town.

It started when Jody Akins drove into the black section of town the night of Jan. 10 and allegedly bought crack cocaine twice, witnesses said.

There were about 40 black men in the area when the shooting occurred after Akins fought with a black man, The Miami Herald reported for Tuesday editions.

Akins pulled out a .22-caliber rifle, but hit no one, the paper said. He was attacked but managed to escape. Minutes later he stopped to reload his rifle, then raced back and fired again, killing 24-year-old Royce Rutledge.

A Dixie County grand jury of 14 whites and four blacks indicted Akins on a charge of first-degree murder. Five black men in the crowd were charged with third-degree murder, riot, felony criminal mischief and battery. Many blacks in this town 100 miles southeast of Tallahassee are angry about the charges against the "Cross City Five." About 20 demonstrators Monday walked a half-mile from the shooting site to the county courthouse, shouting: "What do we want? Justice!

They believe the black men acted in self-defense.

Prosecutor David Phelos dismissed the charges of rac-

FORT MYERS - Seniors will be able to get tested for AIDS at a Lee County high school next month under a first-in-the-nation decision by the school board.

Panel members voted 5.0 Tuesday to allow the Lee County Health Department and the Lee County AIDS Task Force to offer the tests at Riverdale High School, east of Fort Myers, during the school's health fair.

'We're elated the school board made this decision," said Gil August, executive director of the AIDS Task Force. "We're creating a better access for students to seek counseling and testing. It will create more understanding, more education and hopefully prevention."

The county's six other high schools, which already have held their health fairs this year, will begin offering the tests in the

Pro-choice leaders: Florida not such a safe haven

By JACKIE HALLIFAX

Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Florida may not be as safe a haven for women seeking abortions as some believe, pro-choice leaders said as attention focuses on a Pennsylvania law being challenged in the U.S. Supreme Court.

In January, the National Abortion Rights Action League ranked Florida as a "low risk" state, with only seven states being considered safer havens of abortion rights.

However, Donna Burnell, president of the Florida National Organization for Women, said she thought there was a false sense of protection in Florida.

"I'm one of those who bristle when we hear that Florida is Roe-proof," she said. Roe vs. Wade is the 1973 ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court protecting the rights of women to get abortions before the third trimester of pregnancy. The nation's high court was to hear oral arguments today about a Pennsylvania law that imposes a number of restrictions on such procedures.

Pro-choice leaders in the northern state have aircady called, expressing interest in making arrangements to send women seeking abortions to Florida if the challenged law is upheld, Burnell said Tuesday.

If the Pennsylvania case is used to overturn or weaken Roc. the impact for Florida will be negligible — but only "in the very, very short term," said Janis Compton, executive director of the Florida Abortion Rights Action League in Jacksonville.

"In the short run, Fiorida women would be relatively protected;" Compton said.

Compton's parent organization based its favorable ranking of Florida on a fractured ruling handed down by Florida's high decision, commonly known as T.W., overturned a state law requiring parental or judicial approval for unmarried teens to get abortions.

In T.W., all seven justices agreed that a privacy provision voters added to the Florida Constitution in 1980 covered the rights in Roe vs. Wade. But only four justices said the privacy provision would stand independent of Roe. One of those four justices has since retired. Charlene Carres, a Tallahassee attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, said the T.W. court in October 1990. The ruling gives abortion supporters reason to be optimistic but don't constitute a foregone conclusion that abortion rights will be preserved.

"It's not a foregone conclusion that because of T.W. other abortion restrictions might not be acceptable," she said Monday.

The Pennsylvania law imposes a 24-hour waiting period, requires spousal notification and directs doctors to tell women about fetal development.

SANFORD - The process will begin this evening to eliminate many of the courtesy bus routes provided to some Seminole County students who live closer than two miles to their zoned school.

The hope is that the district will be able to save nearly $30,000 a year in transportation charges by eliminating all but the most essential routes.

Tonight, at 6 p.m. parents whose youngsters attend school in the eastern and southern parts of the school district will have the opportunity to express their concerns to the school board at Lake Howell High School, 4200 Dike Road in Winter Park.

The school district's transportation department has prepared photos and written descriptions of all the routes that are being slated for elimination.

Following the public hearing, the board will decide which routes will be eliminated and which will be retained. The one-item agenda meeting will make the final decision on which routes will be kept and which will not.

The schools which will be effected by tonight's meeting are:

Altamonte Elementary, Casselberry Elementary, English Estates Elementary, Geneva Elementary, Jackson Heights Middle, Keeth Elementary, Lake Howell High, Lake Orienta Elementary, Longwood Elementary, Lyman High, Milwee Middle, Oviedo

SANFORD - Organizers of the Seminole County petition effort to place Texas billionaire H. Ross Perot on the November ballot plans to establish their county headquarters in or near Sanford by this weekend.

County coordinator Kathleen Dickelman of Longwood said the grassroots petition effort has attracted 122 volunteers in the county so far, but mostly from the Longwood, Altamonte Springs and Winter Springs

Because the organization hasn't attracted volunteers from north Seminole County, few of the 1,275 signitures obtained so far are from this area. Dickelman said Tuesday. A recent petition effort in Lake Mary generated

"We need to get into the northern areas." said Dickelman.

Statewide, the signitures of 60,312 registered voters are required to place Perot's name on the Nov. 3 general election ballot. State elections cierta say the only requirement to sign the petition cards is that the signer is a registered voter. Other states have additional restrictions, but not Florida, a clerk said.

Democracy

For more than a decade, democracy has experienced dramatic growth throughout Latin America. But Peru's tragic recent reversion to dictatorial rule is an ominous reminder that democracy seldom thrives for long in the harsh climate of economic chaos.

Beset by a fanatical Maoist guerrilla movement and ruthless, highly armed drug traffickers. Peru has been on a steep downward spiral since the late 1980s. During the last year, President Alberto Fujimori sought to revive the prostrate economy through free-market policies, but was thwarted by opposition in Congress. ironically, his rash suspension of the constitution can only make his economic objectives far more difficult to achieve.

Fujimori's so-called "coup from on high" would not have been possible without the backing of Peru's powerful military leaders. who last ruled the country from 1968 to 1980. As part of the crackdown, the president dissolved the democratically elected Congress, arrested opposition politicans and journalists, and imposed censorship on the news media.

Because he now must rely on the military to keep his government in power, Fujimori runs a great risk of becoming simply a captive of the generals, in essence the civilian figurehead of another military regime. Even worse, his assault on democracy has undermined the prospects for attracting the foreign investment Peru desperately needs to restore economic growth.

Fujimori's proposed reforms now will be denied the crucial resources of the Inter-American Development Bank, the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank. These multilateral lending agencies, which have played a vital role in reviving destitute economies throughout the hemisphere, properly refuse to do business with a government that rules by decree rather than by law.

Peru also will have to do without $320 million in economic and military aid from the United States, which was rujmori's biggest ally in the war against the narcotraficantes and the Shining Path insurgency. On April 7. President Bush suspended American assistance to protest Fujimori's dismantlement of democracy.

Of all the problems confronting Peru, the growing guerrilla movement is the most threatening. In the past, the rebels' control was confined largely to the Andean highlands, where impovershed Indian and mestizo peasants harbor deep resentment toward the European elite of the coastal region. But in recent months, the "political religion" espoused by the rebels has been winning converts in the shantytowns that surround Lima. The breakdown of democratic rule may propel even more Peruvians into the Shining Path's camp.
Until civil liberties are restored, Washington and other members of the Organization of American States must take a strong stand for democracy by isolating Peru diplomatically and withholding economic support from its illegitimate regime. An unequivocal message by democracies throughout the hemisphere can help discourage generals in other trou-bled Latin American nations from attempting to overturn fledgling civilian authority. More important, it can drive home the lesson that economic progress and democracy must work in tandem to succeed.

Remembering a man who mattered

Because ideas have ancestors, and because ideas have consequences, let me tell you about my friend Tom Kahn. He died recently, too soon, at age 53. But he lived an important life.

1 met Tom in 1971 when he came to Washington to be a speechwriter on the presidential campaign of Sen. Henry "Scoop" Jackson. At the scribbler's trade, he was the best. He had the two qualities great speechwriters need: He could write in American. and he had thought-out ideas.

I used to kid Tom that he and his activist friends were a cabal, ingeniously trying to bury the Soviet Union in a blizzard of letterheads. It seemed that each of Tom's colleagues - Penn Kemble, Carl Gershman, Josh Muravchik and many more — ran a little organization, each with the same interlocking directorate listed on the stationery. Funny thing: The Letterhead Lieutenants did indeed churn up a blizzard, and the Soviet Union is no more.

1 never did quite get all the organizational acronyms straight — YPSL, LID, SP, SDA, ISL but the key words were "democratic," "labor," "young" and, until events redefined it away from their understanding, "socialist." Ultimately, the umbrella group became "Social Democrats, U.S.A." and Tom Kahn was a principal "theoretician."

They talked and wrote endicasly, mostly about communism and democracy, despising the former, adoring the latter. It is easy today to say 'anti-communist' and 'pro-democracy" in the same breath. But that is because American foreign policy eventually became just such a mixture, thanks in part to those "Yipsels" (Young People's Socialist League), with Tom Kahn as provocateur-at-large.

On the con. servative side. foreign policy used to be' anticommunist," but not very "pro -- democracy." And foreign policy liberal-style might be piously "pro-democracy." but nervous about being "anti-communist." Tom theorized that to be either, you had to be both.

The

Lieutenants

It was tough for labor-liberal intellectuals to be "anti-communist" in the 1970s. It meant being taunted as "Cold Warriors" who saw "Commies under every bed." and being labeled as - the unkindest cut - "right-wingers."

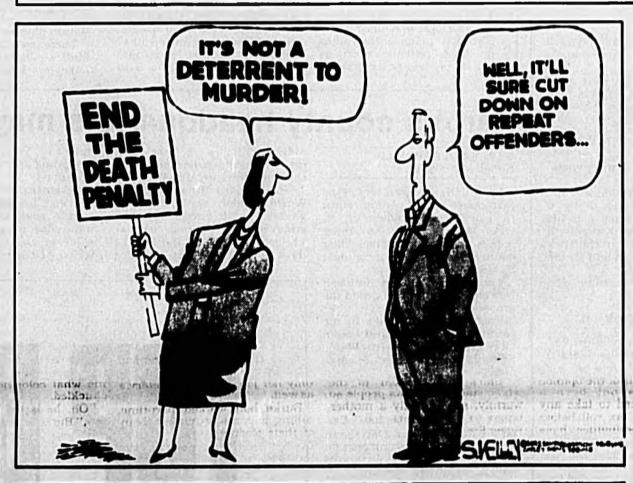

The parentage of ideas is complex; they often emerge from many places simultaneously. In Washington, Tom's idea-mongers found an hospitable environment in both the labor movement and the "Scoop Jackson wing" of the Democratic Party.

In George Meany and Lane Kirkland of the AFL-CIO the Yipsels found heros. In national union offices some of them found jobs, as Tom did at the AFL-CiO. By the early 1980s, when the Solidarity labor union challenged Polish communiam, Yipeels were already in place here as labor's foreign policy shock troops.

Tom Kahn saw the future early. He wrote in 1961 that the events in Poland should be seen as part of a process that could "dismantle" communism. Later, he became director of the AFL-CIO International Affairs department.

The AFL-CIO did the most to keep Solidarity alive (with help from the Pope and Ronald Reagan). Ultimately, Solidarity broke the legs of communism, and the great ugly beast fell, just as Tom said it would.

Poverty program missing link

BOSTON — The photograph in the Maine newspaper showed a young, attractive mother and her two small children. "I'm a natural at motherhood," the woman had happily told the reporter. "It's my job."

Nothing about these words or this job description would have stuck in my mind over the months since I first read them except for one decidedly nontraditional fact of her life. The 20-year-old and her children were living on welfare.

The "employers" for her AFDC "job" were taxpayers. The people who contributed to her paycheck included other "natural" mothers who went to work every day when they too might have preferred staying home with their toddlers. They also included working couples trying to figure out if they could afford what she already had: one child, or two.

This mother was not the Cadillac-driving welfare queen who starred in the 1980s welfare-basher scenario. No such stereotypes need apply. But today's portrait of a never-married teen-age mother with a sense of entitlement — to children and to welfare — has become the latest symbol of dismay and despair that is adding to the ranks of welfare skeptics.

Indeed this image is now the focal point of a series of welfare proposals from California to New Jersey that would cap benefits for any additional children. It is a centerpiece of the Wisconsin experiment that just got the green light from the federal government and a rousing send-off from the president. Among other things, this plan wold halve the benefits for a second child and eliminate them for a

Such proposals strike at the heart of our doubts about welfare itself. They spotlight our conflicts about values and dollars

On the one hand, Americans instinctively believe that the welfare poor should play by the same rules as the rest of us. A family that works does not get a raise for having a child. Why then should a family that doesn't work? Working Americans do some cost-accounting as part of their family planning. Why not those on AFDC?

On the other hand, we are properly queasy about punishing children for the behavior of their parents. Once a child is born, is it right to push that child further into poverty by forcing a family of three to live on the meager welfare income of two? What happens if we hurt some children as we try to change other mothers' behavior?

I find myself frankly uncomfortable with the young Maine mother's belief in her right to be supported on welfare. I find myself uncomfortable as well with the way that the focus of the welfare debate has shifted onto this subject.

Contrary to social myths, welfare mothers do not have more children than other mothers. They average 1.9 children. Contary to economic myths, it's very hard to hang human behavior by manipulating welfare dollars.

If we want to encourage responsibility, the starting point is with those policies that enforce education and job training in return for AFDC payments, if we want to encourage middle-class values, a more profitable place to begin is with fathers and missing childsupport payments.

If we want to get women off welfare. we need to ensure that work will pay. And before we punish women for having children we must be willing to pay for birth control and its backup. abortion.

And if we do all this. I think it's also fair to tell AFDC we won't pay more for more children born onto the welfare rolls. No-saying, for all of its limits, has one overriding benefit. It sends a message about values. As laabel Sawhill of the Urban Institute puts it, "It says that society has a whole doesn't believe there is a right to have children, regardless of someone's income or ability to support them." It says that welfare was designed to be temporary, for the emergencies and accidents of life.

What is

missing today is belief in shared values.

That measage is crucial if we are to shore up the weakest link in any poverty program: public support. What is missing today is the belief in the sense of shared values. Without that sense, public support has turned off in frustration and public concern has eroded into parsimony. More than one caring citizen ends up wondering where a 20-year-old mother of two got the idea that AFDC was a career opportunity.

Town wants return the pork; no takers

LOCK HAVEN, Pa. - Delivering an $86 million pork-barrel project to his constituents would sit like a jewel in any politician's

But this central Pennsylvania town is ungrateful, even angry. It would like to send the taxpayer dollars back to Washington but there are no takers in a government reeling from a $400 billion budget deficit.

Now residents here find themselves with an $86 million water project —despite the fact there are alternatives being overlooked that would accomplish the goal of flood control without the cost of 200 buildings. half a dozen busi-nesses and, a good bite out of the shrinking local tax

On the other side of the issue are the only city council members whose seats have yet to come up for reelection since the uproar over the Lock

William Clinger and Sen. Arien Specter, who worked hard for the project. When the grass-roots movement to scrap the levee project first gathered steam, Clinger and Specier and they would abide by what they were told by the local elected officials.

The town answered by replacing their mayor and a majority of the city council with levee opponents. It was too late. By the time the government was elected with a nearly 70 percent margin, the contracts had already been signed and the ground broken on a project that will forever change the face of a town that has looked out over the Susquehanna river since its birth more than a

Today the neat row of century-old trees that used to line the road next to the river have been reduced to piles of wood chips that lie in near proximity to the earth movers that are busy a few hundred yards down the river.

Jim and Barbara Rogers, who operate two small bed-and-breakfast establishments on Water Street, know that the town is more than likely to experience another flood sometime in the future. They told our associate Jan Moller that doesn't keep them from opposing the project.
"There's something rotten going on here," said Jim Rogers, a sturdy man who was a bodyguard for the Teamsters before moving to Lock Haven for the peace and quiet that the town offers. His wife, who grew up in the area and remembers the dimetrous flood of 1972, says a flood is something everybody knows can happen but is prepared to deal with. "When it comes, you just clean up and keep on going," ahe says.

Knowing that the new local government would give the flood authority fits once they were elected, the old city council voted away nearly all of the city's rights to oversee the icts, so they now find themselves with little left to do on the local level. Since both Clinger and Specter said they would abide by the town's wishes, the new leaders were hoping for some relief from Washington, but to no avail. Since the election, neither congressman has shown any willingness to abandon the pork that they diligently secured for their home districts.

In a statement Clinger anid, "This project is in the best interest of thepeople of Lock Haven and I will work to see that it is

The Board has announced intentions to relocate its offices presently at 1211 Mellonville Ave., to the Lake Mary site.

Six warehouse operations located elsewhere in the county would also be moved to the new facility.

The School Board has already approved the start of negotiations for the purchase of the property, for a cost estimated at $6.7 million. The amount would include about $3 million estimated for refurbishing the building to meet the needs of the board.

During last week's City Commission meeting, at Morris' auggestion, the commission directed the city staff to investigate all ramifications of the proposed purchase.

voted unanimously to oppose the move."

He added, "This position was not taken lightly, nor was it taken for a purely parochial position. The Board considered the impact of this move on the economy and educational effectiveness for the whole county."

In his letter, Farr listed four major points expressed by the Board of Directors; depressed economic times, additional costs, large building size and removing property from the tax

Wells today commented on each of the matters.

Regarding the economy, the Farr's letter observed, "At a time when educational efforts are being reduced by teacher cutbacks, material reductions and program eliminations, it is illadvised to consider a $10 million administrative expense."

It continues, "We understand that these are capital improve-ment funds; but feel not enough investigation has been made to the possibility of re-allocating these funds to operational accounts with the legislature's consent." Wells observed, "This is really a matter of whether we spend money in Sanford or Lake Mary. The matter is strictly a capital outlay program and will not effect any change in teachers salaries, or overall employment.

On the matter of costs, the letter to Warren says, "The Board is concerned about opera-tional costs of such a large building, the actual moving costs and the tendency to fill this new large building "because we have the space".

Wells observed, "If we would be considering buying a smaller building, there would be people complaining that we weren't planning for any future growth."

On the 154,000 square foot building, the letter states, "At a time when many of our businesses are reducing personnel and considering the public's attitude that there are too many administrators in public office, it would appear that this move will create a false need for additional personnel.

The only response to this matter from Wells was. "Personnel is strictly a budgetary matter and has little to do with the number of people in a building.'

Regarding consideration of other facilities, Farr explained, The Board feels that the School Board already owns existing sites that will accommodate the School Board Administrative offices. The Board is of the opinion that there has not been a demonstrated need to take any property off the tax roll before existing site possibilities have been explored."

Wells said, "Independant cost consultants who have studied this matter for the School Board have determined that this projected move to the NCR alte would be the most economical for us at this time." Farr concluded the letter by suggesting. "We trust that you will consider the action of this Board as it represents approximately 600 businesses in the Seminole County area. The Chamber Board has offered to appear before the School Board to discuss this position.

Morris is also concerned over the possibility of an additional use aside from the office headquarters. He cites, "These uses include the possible operation of an elementary school, vo-tech center, disabled students center, etc." He asked the staff, What are the impacts of these additional uses?" Acting School Superintendent Richard Wells does not believe the school board's use of the property will present Lake Mary with any problems. "We would have only about one-third the number of people as they had when NCR had the place," he commented, "so it's obvious the traffic would be much smaller." He also looked at an economic saving. "We have about 20 trailers that we are renting for adminstrative personnel and storage," he observed. "These would no longer be used for that if we get this large facility, and we can either eliminate the need to lease them, or turn them back into classrooms as they were intended to be."

Wells believes there would not be any problems with zoning. "The area is already zoned office and commercial," he said, "so I don't believe there would be any problems here.'

The School Board is presently negotiating the purchase, with formal action expected possibly the last week in May or early June of this year.

Morria observed, "Any time a major change is proposed that would have a potential impact on Lake Mary, I believe we owe it to the people to look closely at it." He commented, "This situation isn't like NCR, this is a government entity with a high use potential and deserves close scrutiny."

He added, "Who knows, our study could even find this would be beneficial to Lake Mary, but we still should do it."

The Mayor has urged that the investigation by the board and city personnel be accomplished as soon as possible.

TOKYO - As swiftly as the Soviet empire collapsed, Japan has risen as the new menace in the minds of many Americans.

The popular image is of businessmen and bureaucrats. supported by workers ready to die for company and country, on their way to world conquest through unfair trade.

Many experienced observers of Japan are more inclined to see a nation that, after decades of transforming itself into an economic powerhouse, has come upon troubled times and is trying to find its proper role in a period of rapid change.

Cheaper air fares still hard to find

NEW YORK - Don't be fooled by all the loud talk of simplified air fares, lower rates and reduced car rental costs: Travel can still be a pricey and stubbornly complex affair.

While American Airlines recently reduced its highest ticket prices, the lowest fares on hundreds of routes actually went up. Some new cheaper fares start expiring in less than a month. And a mind-boggling range of fare choices persists despite an initiative by American to whittle them down.

Landlubbers also need to shop around: Recent cuts in some car rental rates are not as far-reaching as they initially seemed. "People shouldn't let the perception of simplified fares make them less vigilant than they were before about getting the lowest rates," said Jeanie Thompson-Smith, president of Topaz Enterprises Inc., a Portland, Ore., company that follows air

Court: stop interfering with executions.

SAN FRANCISCO - In sending killer Robert Alton Harris to the gas chamber, the U.S. Supreme Court had a stern - and extraordinary — message for the nation's largest federal appeals court: Stop interfering with executions.

Harris, 39, was put to death at dawn Tuesday after a dramatic, all-night judicial duel between the high court and the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that had held up California's first execution in 25 years. The appeals court issued four reprieves in nine hours; the high court lifted them all.

There is no good reason for this abusive delay, which has been compounded by last-minute attempts to manipulate the judicial process," seven of the high court's nine justices said in overturning the third postponement.

Those justices responded to the fourth postponement with an edict: "No further stays ... shall be entered by the federal courts except upon order of this court."

Panel advises approval of AZT

BETHESDA. Md. - A panel of experts is recommending the Food and Drug Administration approve the limited use of a new antiviral drug in combination with AZT, the drug that is now the primary AIDS treatment.

The 11-member advisory committee voted 8-3 on Tuesday to recommend that the FDA approve a drug called ddC for use with AZT after deciding not to recommend ddC as a primary AIDS drug.

A final approval by the FDA is required before ddC can be prescribed.

FDA Commissioner David Kessler pledged speedy consideration of the approval of ddC, but he cautioned that the drug "is not the ultimate answer" to the treatment of AIDS.

FBI settles racial bias case

WASHINGTON - The FBI is settling racial-bias claims by a group of 300 black agents but without admitting discrimina-

Most of the money paid to close the case will go to outside consultants and lawyers, not to the black agents.

Under a tentative agreement announced Tuesday, six black agents will be promoted to supervisory positions and will receive a total of about $115,000 in back pay. An additional 67 will be given new positions or special training.

The settlement headed off a potential class-action lawsuit by the bureau's 483 black agents. The FBI agreed that disparities in treatment between black and white agents existed in some arelia of its personnel system, but it did not admit to racial bias.

Court to rule on abortion rights

By RICHARD CARELLI Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Morality, politics and the law collide in a case providing a conservative Supreme Court an opportunity to pronounce its verdict on abortion. The nine justices were to hear arguments today over a restrictive Pennsylvania statute that could prove the severest test yet over the constitutional right to abortion decreed by a predecessor, and more liberal, high court 19 years ago.

The enormity of the stakes in this election year has helped make it the most closely watched case of the court's 1991-92 term. Both sides agree that the conservative majority fashioned by Ronald Reagan and George Bush may use the occasion to reverse, explicitly or implicitly, the landmark 1973 Roe vs. Wade ruling that legalized abortion nationwide.

As the day began with a steady rain pelting down, several dozen people under to public disclosure, of all abortions the watchful eye of Supreme Court police sprawled in a basement corridor of the court building to begin a 10-hour wait for one of the 100 or so coveted courtroom seats reserved for the public.

Outside, a single policeman stood guard on the building's deserted marble plaza, which had been blocked off by yellow wooden barricades in anticipation of demonstrations. Kathryn Kolbert, representing Planned Parenthood, was scheduled to argue against the Pennsylvania law. State Attorney General Ernest Preate and Solicitor General Kenneth Starr, the Bush administration's top courtroom lawyer, were to defend it.

The state law requires: -Doctors to tell women seeking abortions about fetal development and alternatives to abortion. -Women to put off an abortion for 24 hours after receiving such information. -Doctors to keep detailed records, subject

-Married women in most cases to notify their husbands of their plans for an abortion.

The 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld most provisions of the law, but struck down the section dealing with spousal notification. In its ruling, the appeals court said the justices had eroded in a series of recent decisions the aweeping legal protection Roe vs. Wade gave to women seeking abortions.

The Supreme Court in 1986 struck down, by a 5-4 vote, almost identical regulations imposed by Pennsylvania. But three members of that five-justice majority are retired now. The court today is seen as far more hostile to abortion. Just last week, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals struck down a more restrictive Guam abortion law. The appeals court ruled in that case that Roe vs. Wade - until further word from the Supreme Court — is

Botched abortions send women on different paths

By CLAUDIA COATES Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH - Botched abortions that interfered with their ability to bear children sent two Pennsylvania women along different paths. One became an abortion-rights crusader, the other an antiabortion activist.

Mary Litman can't forget how those involved in her illegal abortion treated her "like a piece of garbage." She wants safe, legal abortion to remain avail-

Paula Molloy also can't forget how she was treated. Her abortion was legal, but she says the clinic's staff never warned her of the risks.

"If there's one thing I'll never get over, it's my abortion," she Both women '- along with activists around the country awaited the outcome of arguments scheduled before the U.S. Supreme Court today on the constitutionality of a restrictive Pennsylvania abortion law.

The law requires doctors to show patients, literature about fetal development and imposes a 24-hour waiting period for women seeking an abortion. Married women must notify their husbands before an abortion, and girls under 18 must have parental permission. Activists on both sides expect the court to undermine its 1973 ing the right to an abortion. A ruling is expected this summer.

Litman's ordeal began in 1958 at age 20 when she became pregnant by an older, married man. Her lover dropped her off at a rundown house where an illegal abortionist waited.

Afterward, Litman bled for a week. She rejected her roommate's plea to see a doctor, worrying she would be arrested. When the bleeding eased, an infection set in. Yet, not all her pain was physical.

"My. pain came from being treated like a piece of garbage. I just wasn't cared for anywhere along the way," said Litman, 54.

She wound up in a hospital and needed at least two blood transfusions and a scraping of the womb. When it was over, she couldn't conceive.

Ms. Molloy was 16, swayed by sex education classes and health clinic personnel when she had her abortion 13 years ago.

Although the procedure was legal, it was performed incorrectly and caused an infection that scarred her uterus. Doctors tell Ms. Molloy, 31, she has only a 20 percent to 30 percent chance of having a baby.

Litman works at a women's clinic in Pittsburgh where abortions are performed. She trains counselors, writes a newsletter and places advertisements. She is raising an adopted daughter.

McDaniel prepared to take on the challenge of superintendent

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Dr. Phillip McDantel, one of the top five candidates for the position of superintendent of schools said he doesn't like Florida's financial picture, but he is intrigued by the challenges of the Seminole County schools.

"Everybody all over the country has financial problems." McDaniel said. "But there's a special challenge for Seminole County where the student population is expanding while the money is shrinking.

McDaniel said he likes challenges. And he likes building. solid relationships between the administration, the staff, the parents and the community. that would help him attain his goals.

"The superintendent must work with and through others to make positive gains," he said.

He said he is not familiar with many of Seminole's unique situations, but said he is prepared to listen to all the concerned groups to help make informed decisions on the changes that need to be made and to help maintain those things which should not be changed.

The Washington Township (Indiana) school district where he is presently the superintendent has 10,500 students.

The graduates, who have carned associates degrees in subjects ranging from English to Computer Sciences, will hear Dr. John Hitt, the newly-hired president of the University of Central Florida, speak.

According to Craig Or-seno, the college's public information specialist, the talk will be Hitt's first in the Central Florida area. Hitt has not yet revealed the topic of his commencement address.

This year's graduating class at Seminole Community College is among the largest in the school's history. Most of the graduates are expected to continue their education at four year state schools.

"This is one of the largest graduating classes we have ever had," said Dr. James Sawver, vice president for student and information services. "The classes have been getting bigger each year.

Sanford police officers to vote on union tomorrow

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The vote to decide whether Sanford police officers will unionize is scheduled for tommorrow.

From 5 a.m. until 7 a.m. and from 4 p.m. until 7 p.m., balloting will take place in the training room of the city police station.

The ballots will be counted immediately after the 7 p.m. close. A total of 64 officers. corporals and sergeants will be eligible to vote in the election.

Eligible employees will have a chinese menu of options on the ballot: They may choose to have no union represent them. They may have the Florida State Lodge of the Fraternal Order of Police represent them. Or they may have the Central Florida Police Benevolent Association represent them.

Dorothy Green, attorney for the Sanford Public Employees Relations Commission, said the PBA option was added after the second union intervened in the city.

FOP unionization effort. If either the PBA or FOP receive the majority of the ballots cast, then they will become the official bargaining unit for police, said

Several police asked the FOP to provide information about their organization's representation in early 1991 after they became dissatisfied with promotions and treatment. Chief Steven Harriett has denied any favoritism in promotions and said any officer complaints could be addressed through the established grievance pro-ceedure. According to sources who asked not to be identified, 23 eligible officers called for a union vote in March 1991, about 4 percent more than needed to call for the vote under state PERC

The vote was delayed for a year after FOP attorneys discovered the city had its own rarely-used PERC and had to submit the petition cards to the

Tortoises removed to make way for new sports complex

By MCK PPENFAUF Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY - Gopher tortoises are leaving Lake Mary. The entire herd may be gone by the end of this weekend.

Approximately 70 to 80 gopher tortoises were found to be residing on 36 acres of land to be used for Lake Mary's major sports complex. Last month, the city allocated up to $18,000 to have them removed.

According to Lake Mary Parks and Recreation Director John Holland, "As of yesterday over a dozen have been relocated to the Seminole County landfill, and we expect the rest will be gone during the weekend."

When the contract for the removal was made with Dr. Storm Richards, it was determined that there were 113 active burrows and 16 inactive burrows. Each of the active ones will have to be dug up to determine the number of tortoises in the hole.

Richards is charging the city $150 for each one removed. The work includes digging, marking each tortoise for identification purposes, and relocating them to the landfill area at no more than two per acre.

Meanwhile, the city is still waiting for approval to begin construction of the park. "We're still waiting for our approval from St. Johns River Water Management in Tallahassee," Holland explained. "We expected to receive it several weeks ago, but are still waiting." Holland added, "We have no reason to believe the St. Johns people will turn down approval to build this complex, but we have no idea why we haven't received approval yet."

Sanford umpires clinic Sunday

SANFORD - All right all you aspiring umpires who can't attend two-day clinics. Here's a clinic for you.

The Sanford Officials Association will host a one-day ASA Softball Clinic this Sunday at the Downtown office of the Sanford Recreation Department starting at 8 a.m.

The clinic is for all those interested in becoming an A.S.A. (Amateur Softball Association) certified umpire.

Umpires who are already certified can attend the clinic for free while newcomers must pay a $20 registration fee.

For more information call: Duane at 333-4947 ог 330-5697.

Hunter education classes

SEMINOLE COUNTY - The Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission is again offering its Hunter Education course to the public in coooperation with Seminole Community College. To register for one of these classes, call the college at (407) 323-1450. There is a $5 per person registration fee.

The course covers many interesting topics including survival, wildlife identification, hunting laws, ethics, first aid and gun safety. Students will get to practice what they learn in a field trip that will afford them the opportunity to shoot rifles, shotguns and bows and arrows. The course is open to anyone and families are encouraged to attend and learn together.

Anyone born after June 1, 1975 is required to successfully complete a state hunter education course before hunting in the State of Florida.

The first class will be held on May 4th, 5th, 11th, 12th, 18th and 29th. The field trip will be May 23rd with the exam being given on May 28th. Classes will also be offered beginning June 8th, July 6th and August 3rd.

Guillen, Raines collide

CHICAGO — Shortstop Ozzie Guillen was lost to the Chicago White Sox for the season Tuesday when he tore two ligaments in his right knee in a collision with left fielder Tim Raines.

Guillen, in his eighth year with the White Sox. was scheduled for arthroscopic surgery Wednesday to repair his anterior cruciate and dial collateral ligaments.

Guillen backed up to catch Mel Hall's fly ball in the ninth inning of Chicago's 4-3 loss to the New York Yankees. Guillen collided with Raines. and the knee tangled with the outlielder.

"It was one of those in-between plays," Raines said. "When the ball is up in the air like that you have to keep an eye on it. You don't have a chance to see anyone else. It may be the toughest play in all of baseball. I'm just lucky that I didn't get hurt and Ozzie did. I did strain my left shoulder."

DBCC star sings with Murray

MURRAY, Ky. - All-State point guard William Moore from State Champion Daytona Beach Community College was among nine players who have signed national letters of intent to play basketball for Murray State, coach Scott Edgar said Tuesday.

Moore, from Indianapolis, Ind., was the Mid-Florida Conference Freshman of the Year last year and finished as runner-up to Seminole Community College's Brian Nason for MFC Player of the Year this season.

Murray State posted a 17-13 record last season and won the Ohio Valley Conference championship.

Rams take tennis title; girls fourth

From Staff Roports

TAMPA - Playing like a team on a mission - which, in fact, they were - the Lake Mary High School boys' tennis team ripped through the Class 4A state tournament Tuesday, claiming the team title and five of the seven singles and doubles crowns.

While the Rams all but had the team title wrapped up when play began Tuesday morning at Hillsborough Community College, they played each match like the state title hung in the balance.

By the time it was over, Lake Mary had as many team points (18) as the second and third-place teams - Plantation and Jupiter, respectively - combined.

"It was a tough tournament," said Lake Mary coach Scott Reagan. "There were only three teams that were really bidding for the title, but all the matches were close.

"If all the guys hadn't given 100 percent, we wouldn't have won it (the team title). And even though we pretty much had it clinched going into Tuesday, everybody gave it their all, right down to the very last

Jason Appel formally secured the state title for the Rams with his quick 6-3, 6-0 win over Hall of Tampa-Chamberlain in the No. 1 singles finals. He was followed suit by Jason White (No. 2 singles), Jack Whigham (No. 3 single) and Marc Urbainczyk (No. 5 singles).

Shawn Perce had to settle for second at No. 4 singles, where he lost in three sets to Magnones of Plantation, 2-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Later in the day, Appel and White continued the Lake Mary blits by winning their No. 1 doubles semifinal match over Gainesville-Buchholz's Balough and Thorsen, 6-1, 6-2 and beating the Naples the state cha Barron Collier due of Mulert and "The who

The Rams' No. 2 doubles team wasn't quite as fortunate, the duo of Perce and Urbainczyk falling in the semifinals to Shimony and Magnones and Plantation.

Looking ahead, Lake Mary should be favored to repeat the achievement next year as "only" White and Jake Garman graduate. Garman did not play in the state tournament, but was instrumental in the Rams' run through the district tournament last week.

"If it weren't for Jake, we wouldn't be here," said Reagan.

Afternoon rain storm remblee tournemente

SEMINOLE COUNTY - Sometimes you win, sometimes you lose and some days, it rains.

Mother Nature took a hand in the three different high school baseball and softball district tournaments being played around Seminole County this week as afternoon rains Tuesday forced everything to be pushed back a day.

The hardest hit is the Lyman High School baseball team, which now will have to play four games in three days - including a doubleheader today against Mainland (4 p.m.) and Oviedo (8 p.m.) to win the 4A-District 9 title. Other county schools in the district are Lake Mary, Oviedo, Lake Howell and Lake Brantley.

The situation isn't quite as severe in the 3A-District 5 baseball tournament, at least not for host Seminole. Where the other six district schools would have to win three games in three days, the top-seeded Tribe, which has a first-round bye, only has to win twice (on Thursday and Friday).

While the 4A-District 5 softball tournament, being played at Lake Brantley High School, was already scheduled to play Wednesday. Thursday and Friday this week, one team - the winner of the De-Land-Deltona game - will have to play two games Wednesday, coming back at 8 p.m. to face top-seeded Lake Howell.

There wasn't expected to be any change in the 3A-District 4 softball tournament, where Seminole is to play Ocala-Vanguard at 4 p.m. today in Spart.

Red Sox rebound to rip Cardinals

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — It's always tough to play a good team after they have lost their first game of the year.

The Cattle Ranch Cardinais learned that lesson the hard way Tuesday night as Trellis Smith and Antonio White combined to drive in 11 runs and four pitchers combined on a no-hitter as the defending City Champion K-n-D Trailer Hitch Red Sox routed the Cardinals 23-8 in Sanford Recreation Department Little Major League baseball action at Pt. Mellon's Roy Holler Field.

In the other game the First Union Bank A's barely avoided the 10-run mercy rule and went on to score 10 runs in the fifth inning and defeat the Fisher, Laurence & Deen Blue Jays 13-12.

After Tuesday's games the Red Sox lead the American Division with an 8-1 record. Trailing the leaders are the D.A.V. (Disabled American Veterans) Royals (4-4) and the A's, Blue Jays and Sanford Ace Hardware Orioles (all 2-7).

The standings in the National Division find the Korg U.S.A. Expos leading with a 9-0 record. Completing the standings are the the Rinker Materials Dodgers (5-3). the Sunniland Corporation Pirates and the Railroaders □See Little Majors, Page 33

Winged sprints set to run at Volusia County

Prem Staff Reports

BARBERVILLE - This Saturday marks the date when the Tampa Bay Racing Association (TBARA) will make its way to Volume County Speedway for the first of two events during the '92 racing season (the second date is elated for July 25th) as part of Steven's Tire Night. This will be the club's first appearance at the VCS 1/2-mile oval in several years.

TBARA was founded some 20 years ago by a group of sprint car owners and drivers who banded together to help further the cause of Florida srint car racing. Over the years, TBARA has competed throughout the southeastern part of the country on both dirt and asphalt tracks seeing such champions as Larry Brazil, Jimmy and Frank Riddle, Dave Scarborough, Wayne Reutimann, Donnie Tanner, Sonny Hartley, Robert Smith, Taylor Andrews and most recently, Sam Rodriguez.

These winged, outlaw sprints are very similar to the World of Outlaw Sprints (WoO) with the exception of the engines; the TBARA engines must be iron and can't exceed 366 cubic inches whereas the WoO run aluminum 406 engines.

A full field of drivers is expected to be on hand for the TBARA point race including Rodrigues, who is the defending champion and current point leader in his R & B Auto Body/Langston Used Auto Parts No. 03. Rodriguez debuted this brand new roadster on March 14th in the Jimmie Haynes Memorial and says it will be much stronger at VSC.

Other expected entries include Haynes Memorial winner Wayne Hammond in the Quickload ALuminum Boat Trailers No. 66, TBARA president Taylor Andrews in the Riverview Racing/Art Palmis Dodge City No. 88. long time Florida favorite Stan Butler in the Burch Auto Body/Tanner's Speed Equipment No. 1 and veteran Red Stauffer in the Stauffer/Luscomb No. 21.

In addition to the Steven's Tires presented TBARA, Mega Power Super Series open-wheel madness, a full NASCAR Winston Racing Series program is also on the card. Post time is 7:45 p.m.

For more information, contact the speedway office at (904) 985-4402 or 255-2243.

All players helped to get Rams to the top

While he didn't play a single set at the Class 4A state tennis tournament this week, senior Jasle Garman, above, still played a huge role in Lake Mary High School's state championship. With teammates Jack Whigham and Marc Urbainczyk in Miami tast week, Farman stepped in and, playing for the first time in nearly a month, helped the Rams win the district title and qualify for the state tournament, Lori Junker, right, finished second in the No. 1 singles draw at the Class 4A state tennis tournament to help the Lake Mary High School girls finish fourth behind Sarasota, Miami-Killian and Tempa-Chamberlain.

Little Majors-

Continued from 18 (both 4-4) and the Cardinals (3-6).

There will be a doubleheader Thursday at Roy Holler Field with the Dodgers playing the Royals at 5:45 p.m. and the Pirates taking on the Cubs at 7:45 p.m.

Saturday the Expos will face the Dodgers at 8 a.m., the Cardinals battle the Cubs at 10 a.m., the Pirates welcome the Royals at noon, the Orioles vie with the Blue Jays at 2 p.m. and the Red Sox and A's close the day at 4 p.m.

Despite getting no hits the Cardinals actually led 3-0 and 8-4 before the Red Sox exploded for 14 runs in the bottom of the second inning. The winners then closed out the win by scoring five runs in the third. Two run. home runs by Smith and Antonio White capped the scoring.

The quartet of Smith. Donald White, Levi Raines and Terrance Perkins combined to hurl the no-hitter. They did have some control problems, walking 10 and hitting two more, but eight of the nine outs came on strike outs.

Antonio White went 4-for-4 (two home runs and two singles) to drive in six runs.He also had a stolen base and scored four runs. Bmith went 2-for-3 (one home run and a double) and drove in five. He also drew a walk and scored three runs.

Also contributing to the Red Sox' 16-hit attack were Justin Erickson (one double, one single, four runs scored, one RBI). Nicholas Ireland jone double. one single, two rups scored, one stolen base, one RBI) and Perkins (two singles, one run scored, one RBO. Also adding to the offense were Raines and Donald White (one single and two runs scored each). James Bennett (one single, one run scored, one RBI).

Maldondo (one run scored, one RBI), Jonathan Septer, Evan Thompson and Marc Maldondo (one run scored each) and Troy Brinson (one RBI).

Adam Dryden and Mike Arrington scored two runs each for the Cardinals while Brett Witte. Terrell Hunt, Kevin Nicholson and Joe Sondheim scored one run each.

The Blue Jays scored five runs in the first inning and four runs in the second to lead 9-0 and increased the lead to 12-2 going into the fourth inning. All the Blue Jays needed to do was get three outs without the A's scoring and the game would have ended by the 10-run rule. But Brian Glover walked and came around to score on a pair of passed balls to keep the game going. With new life the A's took took advantage of the opportunity. A walk and Ricky Anderson's double scored the first run. After an out seven walks led to four more runs to make the score 12-8 before Gerard Williams launched a grand slam to tie the score. Anderson followed Williams' blast with another home run to give the A's the lead for good. The Blue jays had a chance to claim the win in the bottom of the fifth when they put runners on second and third with no one out, but the next three batters struck out to end the threat and

Doing the damage for the A's were Anderson (one home run. one double, two runs scored, two RBI). Williams (one home run. two singles, two runs scored, five RBI), Charlie Collier (one single), Luke Young (one run scored, one RBI), Chris Parra and Shane Rowland (two runs scored each) and Warren Hooke, Sylvester Wynn, Glover and Terrance Green (one run scored each).

Providing the offense for the Jason Ryll (one single), Philip Blue Jays were T.J. Martin (one triple, one double, one single, two runs scored, four RBI). Bryan Seelbinder (one single, two runs scored, one RBI). Charite Stokes (one single, one RBI), John Bryant (two runs scored, one RBI). Antoine Anderson (two runs scored) and Max Howard, Chris Evans, Tim Gilb and Tony Lilly (one run scored each).

Judge reverses self on tennis stadium

Associated Press

MIAMI - A judge who cleared the way for a new tennis stadium on Key Biscayne threw out his own ruling and said another judge should hear the case anew.

The unusual move by Dade Circuit Judge Gerald Wetherington cast uncertainty on the future of the International Players Championships, a $2.8 million tournament held on Key Biscayne each March since 1987.

Wetherington's decision stunned the stadium's backers and delighted opponents, who won a second chance to force the tournament off the island. They are seeking an injunction to halt construction, which began last month.

The tournament is on a tight schedule to complete the 13,000-seat stadium on Dade chairman Butch Buchholz said an injunction would be devastating.

"Obviously if there was a delay, it would have an effect on the tournament," Buchholz said Tuesday, "But it hasn't happened, and I don't anticipate that it will." Wetherington's order came Monday, just three days after he gave the county permission to carry on with its plans to build the stadium. Until now, the tournament has erected temporary grandstands each year.

Wetherington, who has worked closely with county officials in recent years, said he reversed himself because he was concerned that he might be perceived as lacking objectivity.

Neither the county nor the Mathesons, the Miami family that donated the park years ago and now seeks to block the stadium, had asked

Help find 'Best Mom' in county

The Sanford Herald is searching for an area mom deserving of our annual 'Mom of the Year' title.

We need our readers to help by writing letters of nomination, to be reviewed by our panel of judges.

Judging will be based on sincerity and clarity, with specific examples or anecdotes about why your nominee is a special mom a plus. Your nominee need not be your own

Only residents of Seminole County are eligible to be nominated but their nominators need not live in Seminole County.

Delicious use of Easter eggs

The week after Easter I'm usually looking for ways to use up the Easter eggs. In my search these recipes have surfaced and have proved worth the little extra effort required after we've caten deviled eggs and egg salad sandwiches.

The name may be silly, but it's a delicious way to use up the

Safeguard your family against risky seafood

The scafood industry is being harpooned by allegations that fish is unfit to eat. A recent issue of Consumer Reports charges that nearly one out of every three samples of fish bought by members of its staff during a six-month investigation was found to be of "downright poor" quality when sent for laboratory analysis. Specifically, the fish was contaminated with bacteria and/or other toxins. The article has spurred a spate of newspaper features and television segments that cast even further doubt on scafood's safety.

Fish sellers, for their part, have shot back with the help of a trade group known as the Na-tional Fisheries Institute, which maintains that "scafood has been and continues to be a safe. wholesome, and nutritious food and a valuable food and a valuable part of the human diet." The government has entered the fray too. The federal Food and Drug Administration says its own study on fish. conducted in cooperation with the Centers for Disease Control. shows a very low risk of fish comes from, whether far out scafood-related illness — one in a at sea, where the waters are million servings (after exclusion of raw mussels, clams, and oysters, which carry considerable risk if they are not thoroughly heated). The FDA also chides Consumer Reports for lesuing warnings about the safety of some types of fish based on the magazine's analysis of "just 113 scafood samples."

Certainly, 113 samples aren't very many when you consider that Americans eat roughly five billion pounds of fish a year. But Consumer Reports looked at flah from some of the top seafood retailers in the country and found that the samples in those highly reputed establishments were no less likely to be contam-inated than fish in ordinary supermarkets. That's particularly troubling because standard advice from both the government and the seafood industry is to buy from "reputable" dealers. Shoppers are also advised to ask seafood salespeople where their fish comes from, whether far out clean, or close to shore, where the risks of contamination from industrial pollutants are greater. But Consumer Reports staffers discovered that the men and women behind retail counters did not necessarily know. What in the face of all that uncertainty, are consumers supposed

First, do not assume that the best idea is to stop eating fish. Even Consumer Reports, with all its criticisms, doesn't make that recommendation. The reason for not panicking is that there are a number of steps you can take to make sure the fish that makes its way to your dinner plate is safe from causing the telltale signs of food-borne illness: nausea, diarrhea, fatigue, and

What to look for

 Buy only flah that doesn't smell "flahy." It's okay for fresh fish to have a faintly seaweedy or cucumber-like odor, but an unpleasant, somewhat sour or ammonia-like smell signifies that enough bacteria have multiplied on it to impair its taste and/or texture.

 Make sure the fish's ficah is moist and shiny and bounces back when gently presed with a finger. Dry, lackluster fish is older, more spoiled fish.

• When choosing whole flah, look for eyes that are bright. clear, and full, not cloudy and sunken — a sign that the fish has been out of the water too long to be "fresh." Also, check that the gills are bright red or pink rather than gray, brown, or

• Note how the fish is displayed. If fillets are piled high on a single layer of ice, the ones nearer the top probably are not beng kept cold enough to prevent the rampant growth of sgiving it about 10 minutes for bacteria. It's the same for fish eitting under hot lights.

Do not buy items containing cooked fish, such as scafood salads, that are displayed alongside raw flah. Imagine some bacteria from raw flounder fillets making their way onto a cooked fish product. The bacteria on the already cooked item have a particularly good chance of causing harm because that item won't be reheated before it is caten, leaving the microorganisms alive and well to do their "dirty work."

Once you get fresh food home, refrigerate it quickly in the coldest part of the refrigerator: cold temperatures help re-tard the growth of bacteria. Pish stays fresh longest in refrigerators that are kept at 32 to 38 degrees Fahrenheit, but many people have their refrigerators set at 40 degrees or higher. To check the temperature yours is net at, use a refrigerator thermometer, available in hardware stores and discount department stores for about $5.

Avoid storing fish for as many days as beef or poultry before cooking it. It spoils faster.

 Don't heat a piece of flah at 325 to 350 degrees for 30 to 40 minutes, as you would heat a piece of steak or chicken. For anfety that doesn't compromise taste, cook it at 450 degrees, every inch of thickness. The fish is done when its watery. translucent appearance takes on an opaque cast - which should be about the same time it flakes casily with a fork.

Boyond bectorie
Although following the eight tips will greatly reduce the risk of contamination from bacteria. they do not address concerns about other potential toxins in fish, namely chemical residues discreted by industrial plants. Among the most worrisome are PCBs, or polycharinated biphenyls. Those synthetic liquids, formerly used in electrical transformers, plastics, hydraulic fluid, and carbonless copy paper, were banned in 1979 but continue to linger in waters into which they were once dumped as well as in the tissues of species such as salmon. swordfish, and lake whitefish. The greatest concern with PCBs is that ingested in large doses by pregnant women or women who become pregnant, they could conceivably cause harm to developing fetuees.

A second concern for pregnant women as well as other women of childbearing age is mercury, the poisonous metal which is released into water by the □Bee Concumer, Page 58

More men preparing meals

NEA Food Editor

The number of men in America who are preparing meals for their family and friends is ever-increasing.

The image of Dad as sole proprietor of the barbecue grill is fading. Not only have many two-income families turned to the man of the house to pitch in occasionally during the week. due to Mom's work schedule, but a number of women have handed the cooking reins over to their husbands because they either don't like to cook or are less adept in the kitchen. As a result, many men have discovered that cooking is both relaxing and creative; numerous weekend "gourmets" regularly experiment with new recipes or even create their own.

Roasting walnuts to make walnut oil for a special salad should intrigue male cooks. It heightens the taste of a pasta primavers salad, which also contains crunchy walnut halves, fresh green beans and a carrot.

PARTA WALNUT SALAD 5 tablespoons walnut oil*

3 tablespoons lemon juice 1/4 teaspoon salt freshly ground pepper 2 cups rotini, uncooked 1/4 cup basil leaves, coarsely chopped 1/4 pound fresh green beans cut in 2-inch pieces, steamed until crisp-tender 1 carvot, thinly sliced

1/2 yellow, green or red bell pepper, cut into small strips 6 cherry tomatoes, quartered

3/4 cup walnut halves In small bowl, blend walnut oil, lemon juice, salt and pepper. Cook rotini according to package directions: drain.

In medium bowl, combine rotini, dressing and remaining ingredients; toes to mix. Cover: chill thoroughly. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 to 6 ervings.

*Walnut oil may be purchased or made by combining 1 cup of warm, toasted, chopped walnuts with 2 cups vegetable oil. Cover and refrigerate for 3 days. Strain before using. Makes 2 cups.

*To toast walnuts: in small skillet, heat 1 tablespoon vegetable oil. Add walnuts and cook table oil. Add walnuts and cook and stir until browned, about 3 to 4 minutes. Or bake in a 350-degree oven until browned, 12 to 15 minutes, stirring frequently. For a microwave, spread 3/4 to 1 cup walnuts in a single layer in glass pie plate. Microwave on HGH for 5 to 6 minutes, stirring every two minutes. Cool.

Pasta substitutions: Bow ties. mostaccioli, rigatoni, radiatore tri-colored rottni.

al waste and which accumulates in larger fish that live for many years - tuna, shark, and swordfish among them. Because no one knows just how much mercury and PCBs it takes to cause damage, Consumer Reports says the most prudent approach for women wo are planning to or are about to have children is to avoid eating the problem species.

On the other hand, many experts believe it's safe for such women to include those fish in their dieta as long as they avoid cating excessive amounts of any particular kind. There's no scientific consensus as to what is excessive, of course, but for large numbers of women the point is moot: many people cat swordfish, salmon steaks, lake whitefish, or shark only a few times a year.Tuna presents a different story, however; Americans eat more canned tuna than any other fish. The recommendation for expectant mothers: don't give it up, but if it's something you cat several times a week, consider cutting back a bit. # Should surgery always be advised for an aneurysm?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Approximately 2 1/2 years ago an abdominal sortic ultrasound revealed I had a 3.8 centimeter aneurysm. Today it still measures the same. Now my doctor is talking operation to me. Do you think I should even consider surgery since there is no increase in the size?

DEAR READER: Although all doctors agree that large ancurvams (measuring more than 6 centimeters) should be repaired, there is no unanimous agreement about smaller aneurysms, especially if they don't change in size year after

An ancuryam is a weakened portion of an artery, which balloons out -- constantly pushed by the pressure of the blood within the artery. Obviously, as the weak portion continues to stretch, its wall becomes thinner. Eventually, blood will leak through the weakened wall or the artery may rupture. Both these consequences are serious.

For this reason, doctors advise surgery if the aneuryam actively enlarges (as judged by ultrasound examinations) at any size, causes symptoms (such as abdominal pain) or has reached a critical size (the generally accepted figure of 6 centimeters).

I am not going to influence your decision one way or the other; this is something you should take up with your doctor. However, I will say that your ancuryam is moderate in size and appears stable; therefore, you can take all the time you want in making up your mind. If your doctor is aggressive in recommending surgery, you can obtain another opinion. As a general rule, aneurysm surgery is safe but, like any operation, is best avoided if possible.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I take lecithin capsules each day. Over the past year I've tried to do without them, yet each time I try, I suffer temporary memory loss. Is there a connection?

DEAR READER: No. there ring naturally in many foods. It is also manufactured by the human body, so deficiencies are virtually impossible.

Claims that large doses of supplemental lecithin improve memory, cure Alzheimer's discase or otherwise aid health are unfounded.

Nonetheless, a study did show

The second mini-quis book written last year by Hugh Kelesy is called "Test Your Card Play (Gollancz, $6,95, 212-866-5860). There are nine defensive and 27 declarer-play problems: in my opinion the deals are alightly easier than those in "Test Your Card Play 3."

Today's hand is especially instructive because it features both defensive and declarer-play possibilities. The only problem is that the bidding is contrived to reach three no-trump. Even though that contract is excellent, at the table it would be nearly impossible to reach.

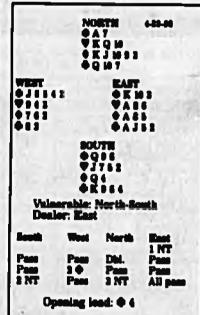

Cover the East-West cards. How would you play in three no-trump? West leads the spade East is marked with the spade king and the three missing aces.

With careful timing, he can be held to those tricks. You must win trick one with dummy's spade ace and then play a diamond to your queen. No matter how East defends, he cannot win more than four

Note what happens if South plays low from the dummy at trick one. If East wine with the king, declarer is safe. But if East inserts the spade 10, declarer is as dead as a dodo. After South wins with the queen and leads, say, a diamond, East wins with the ace and sacrifices his spade king to dummy's ace. When East regains the lead, he plays his last spade and West cashes three tricks in the suit.

The principle is that if declarer must win a trick in the suit (here the spade queen), you should give it to him as quickly as possible.

Down to Earth quotes

"We did not inherit the earth from our parents. We are borrowing it from our children." - Native

"If there is magic on this planet, it is contained in water...its substance reaches everywhere; it touches the past and pre ares the future; it moves under the poles and wanders thinly in the heights of the air. It can assume forms of exquisite perfection in a snowflake, or strip the living to a single shining bone cast up by the see." - Loren Elelsy.

The earth does not belong to man; man belongs to the earth. This we know. All things are connected like the blood which unites one family. All things are connected." - Chief Bestlie.

"Nature may be compared to a vast ocean. Thousands and millions of changes are taking place in it. Crocodiles and fish are essentially of the same substance as the water in which they live. Man is crowded together with the myriad other things in the Great Changingness, and his nature is one with that of all other natural things." - Tien Tung-Hau.

"The first day or so we all pointed to our countries. The third or fourth day we were pointing to our continents. By the fifth day we were aware of only one Earth." - Suiten Sin Salmen al-Soud, estrenaut.

"For the see lies all about us...in its mysterious past it encompasses all the dimongine of life and receives in the enti, after, it may be, many transmutations, the dead husks of that same life. For all at last returns to the sea to Oceanus, the ocean river, like the overflowing stream of time, the beginning and the end." - Reshel Careen.

"The concept of the state, moreover, is yielding rapidly at this hour to the concept of the ecumene, i.e., the whole inhabited earth; and if nothing else united us, the ecological crisis will.".- Jesseph Campbell.

"For the first time in my life I saw the horizon as a curved line. It was accentuated by a thin seam of dark blue light - our atmosphere. Obviously, this was not the ocean of air I had been told it was so many times in my life. I was terrifed by its fragile appearance." - Uff Merbets

Sanford protects water

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Conservation and protection of the environment is an ongoing project for the cities of Florida. They must so state in their Comprehensive Plans.

The state, through it's Florida Department of Community Affairs, requires cities to create such plans on a conti-nuing basis.

Sanford City Planner Jay Marder explained. "Our plan has been accepted and found to be in compliance with the requirements of the FDCA. but we are allowed to update the plans twice each year to keep them current."

Sanford's plan has two elements. One is the Data Inventory and Analysis. dealing with facts regarding the city. The second is the Goals, Oblectives and Policies, determining how the city will approach each item.

One of the major sections deals with various aspects of water. Sanford's plan promises to "Conserve, protect, and appropriately manage and restore the city's natural resources in order to enhance the quality of natural systems."

While that is the only pledge made in the section dealing specifically with bodies of water. other sections throughout the plan also relate to the protection of the water system. They

The largest body of water is Lake Monroe. Sanford has determined the lake is in excellent shape. The Data Inventory reports. "The water quality in Lake Monroe tends to remain stable because the main channel of the St. Johns River brings relatively clear inflow into the lake and carries pollutants downstream:

LAKE MARY — Known as the "City of Lakes." there is a great deal of continuing environmental protection needed in Lake Mary. Much of it is specified in the city's Comprehensive Plan.

The majority of the environmental portion of the plan concerns protection of wetlands, and flora and fauna. The plan calls for constant monitoring and awareness of such items as flood levels, stormwater runoff and other natural and man-made problems enect th on which the city sits. Following many of the procedures are the responsibility of the city Planning Department.

Schools recycle and kids love it

Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Most Seminole County schools have implemented recycling programs that have become a part of their daily routine and have cut back on or stopped using products that can not be recycled.

On the heels of that accomplishment. there is real action and a little less celebration this year in the schools when it comes to environmental insues.

The PTA at Wilson Elementary School. 985 Orange Blvd., Sanford, has decided to reenforce the environmental lessons they have been learning through a weeklong festival beginning April 20.

Earth Week at Wilson includes a variety of activities from visits by endangered animals to the creation of two trashy characters.

Tiger Eye Productions was to bring several examples of endangered species, including a Fiorida Panther, to the school on Monday and Tuesday, April 20 and 21 at 1 p.m. each day. Other wild animals were to be on hand for the programs which will teach the youngsters about ways to protect the wildlife in our couraged to participate.

The school will conclude its Earth Week festivities on Friday with Trash Day.

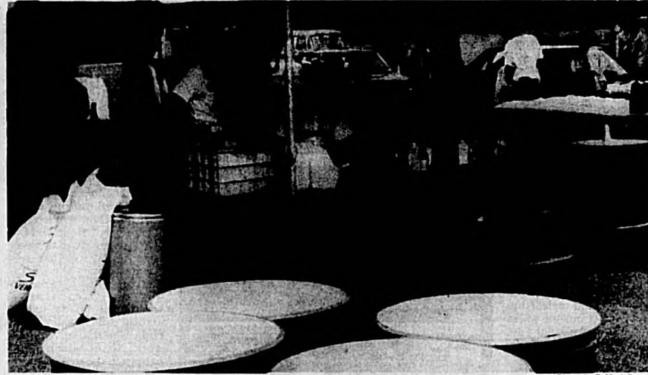

The youngsters will celebrate by gluing recyclable trash to two trashy characters:
"Lotta Litter" and
"Polly Styrene."

Lotta and Polly were invented by a group of parents who called themselves the Trash Moms. The Trash Moms wanted to find an active and visual way of getting the kids involved in the collection and recycling of trash.

The schools, under the direction of the school board, have incorporated environmental education in all levels of instruction from kindergarten through high school.

Budget cut-backs as well as environmental awareness have made many schools more aware of the need to reuse Items and conserve the resources available.

Whilethe environmenal celebration was revived last year and celebrated everywhere, Earth Day celebrations may be less plentful this year, but the lessons learned about conservation are emphasized year round in the schools.

Amnesty days whereby hazardous household waste is turned in are sponsored by Seminole County.

Associated Press Writer

EUGENE, Ore. - Before the morning bell rings at Washington Elementary School, the kids in Sherry Weber's fourth-grade class formake the playground to recycle paper their fellow students bring from home.

Their work is serious. As far as they are concerned, the future of the Earth is at stake.

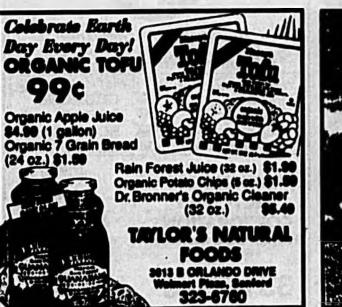

"If people don't keep recycling, by the time I grow up, the world will be polluted and there won't be many places to play," says Karl Fill-

"It helps to save things so our children and our children's children can have a place to live." adds Matthew Schenck.

More than twice as much waste was produced in the United States last year in the form of paper and paperbased than in any other leading category.

Saving the environment

Small effort, big change

The age of environmental awareness is infull swing; Americans have come to appreciate just how precious our natural resources are and how easily they can be destroyed. In the past decade, the emphasis on saving the environment has become increasingly prominent. Mothers, fathers, children and teens, teachers and celebrities people from all walks of life - have been joining together to implement programs designed to make our air fresher. our water cleaner, our soil healthier and our wildlife safer.

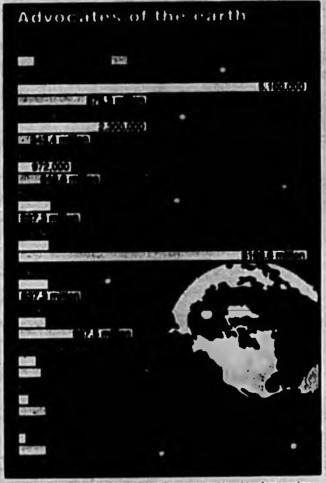

Books, television shows, concerts. fundraisers and, indeed, the efforts of entire communities, have been dedicated to this cause which is now recognized as a matter of life and death. From coast to coast, people who are concerned about the well-being of their families and our planet are doing what they can to clean up the Earth.

Getting involved

Carl Control

An ever-growing number of people are participating in recycling programs and conservation efforts, manufacturers have been compelled to respond to issues as wide-ranging as consumers' complaints about excessive packaging to the need for attractive and functional in-home storage containers for recyclables, and the number of publicaronmental issues has increased dramatically. More and more, Americans are coming to realize that each of us can play a significant part no matter how small it may seem - in protecting and preserving our natural resources. The popularity of The Earth Works Group's 50 Simple Things You Can Do To Save The Earth attests to that awareness. Published by Earthworks Press, this volume is itself a valuable resource. offering clear explanations on the causes and effects of areas of concern that range from air pollution and ozone depletion to acid rain and our vanishing wildlife, and providing concrete steps that can be taken to offset the damage that has already been done.

Below are just a few of the simple steps for sav-ing our natural resources suggested by the Earth Works Group:

• Keep rags in the kitchen to wipe up spills instead of using paper towels everytime. Then wash and reuse them.

• Use reusable containers to store food in your refrigerator.

 Don't switch your air conditioner to a colder setting when you turn it on. It won't cool the room any faster and will waste

• If you shave with the water on, you use an estimated 10-20 gallons each time. If you fill the basin, you use only one galion of water.

• With a low-flow shower head, a family of four which normally takes five-minute showers naves at least 14,000 gallons of water a year.

• In light fixtures that take three bulbs, try using only two. But for safety's sake, put a burned-out bulb in the last socket.

• As a fice collar alternative, try adding brewer's yeast and garlic to your pet's food.

• Bring a coffee cup to

Check your daily routine

April 22nd was first observed as Earth Day in 1970 but it has not been until quite recently that national concern about our deteriorating environment has moved to the forefront of the news.

For years, experts have been telling us that we are destroying the Earth and our health through our daily routines. whether it be by using aerosol cans, plastic foam cups or simply driving to work, all of which contribute to the depletion of the ozone layer. As the ozone diminishes, the earth receives more ultraviolet radiation, which promotes skin cancers and cataracts, and depresses the human immune system.

There are many ways in which we can help to save the planet: • Use pump sprays rather than acrosol. • Use a reusable coffee mug instead of plastic foam cups. Carpool to work with friends and coworkers, or take public transportation.

• Check the labels on household Items. Coffee filters and paper towels are white because they are bleached, but this process is responsible for creating dioxin, a deadly toxin which has been dumped into America's waterways. Buy unbleached products if you can find them.

To make plastic wrap cling, manufacturers use "plasticizers," potentially harmful chemicals that can work their way into your food. Use aluminum foll instead, and recycle it.

• Turn off the water when brushing your teeth, shaving, or washing the dishes. A household can save up to 20,000 gallons of water a year by controlling its water usage.

• Turn off the lights in any room not occupied. Choose lightbulbs with energy conservation in mind.

 By recycling plastic we can help to produce a number of other products, such as plastic lumber and fiberfill elceping bag insulation.

• Check your furnace for combustion efficiency and pollutants: clean and adjust it approximately every two years.

Wise shoppers cut trash

We Americans lead a trashy lifestyle.

Each year we drag more than 154 million tons of garbage to the curb — enough to fill the New Orleans Superdome from top to bottom twice a day, every day. Environmental experts say that at least half of what we toss out can be recycled.

Let's face it. Unless you're a modern-day Rip Van Winkle who has been snoozing for the past 20 years, you're aware that our trash problem isn't just another fairy tale. Obviously, we all know it's time to wake up and clean up our act.

How can we reform?

One way consumer product companies are beginning to ease the problem is by designing and manufacturing products and packaging that last longer, use less raw material, and are free of toxic substances. In fact, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has identified source reduction as the number one priority in integrated solid waste management solutions.

Piper and yard board make up over 30 percent, by weight and waters, solid wests discards. Glass makes up less than 10 percent, by weight.

Source reduction or "down weighting" seems to be catching on. Bottles are currently being produced with less glass, cans with less aluminum and even the newspaper you're reading weighs less than its predecessors.

Speaking of source reduction, when you think of trash pick-up day, what do you see? Rows of portly, overfed trash bags lined up at the curb, right? That's a lot of plastic bags being hauled off to our already buiging landfills. One-and-a-half billion pounds each year, to be exact.

Next time you're in the supermarket, do some environmental shopping. Here are a few suggestions: • Good things have less packaging: Packaging alone accounts for nearly one-third of all our garbage. Look for products that minimize wrapping — you're just going to toss it out anyway.

Coffee break: Buy a resuable coffee cup instead of disposable ones. In one year, you'd send hundreds fewer cups to landfills. Imagine how that would multiply if everyone in your office did the same thing!

• Less is more: The amount of plastic contained in trash bags is measured in mils. or thickness of the bags. Keep in mind tht thickness does not equal strength, which is determined primarily by other factors, such as resin quality and molding techniques. Buy lower mil bags that also list good tear and puncture testing results to minimize unnecessary solid waste without sacrificing the security you get from a strong Concentrate your efforts: Buy low- or nophosphate detergents.

Gators back, bask by lake

By MICK PPEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Just when most of the winter visitors have left, new visitors start arriving. Alligators can now be seen sunning themselves along the shores of Lake Monroe.

Alligator expert Arnole Brunell, with the Fish and Wildlife Commission in Eustis explained, "We start seeing the gators come out in late April through May." He added, "During the warmer water levels at this time of the year, you'll see the largest number of them basking along the shores of the lake.

While he admitted they are a great tourist attraction, especially when seen in their natural habitat, they are also dangerous. "Keep in mind," he warned, "It is illegal to feed a wild alligator, and we don't want people throwing anything at them to make them move or drive them off."

He also cautioned against swimming at night. He observed. "That's when most of the gators are out seeking their evening meal, and you wouldn't want to be the main course.'

"While we haven't taken a complete survey yet," he explained, "at the present time we don't expect the numbers to be any more or less than during the past few YEARS.

"Once the survey is finished, possibly in May." Brunell said, "we'll be able to determine the adult harvest for this year, and issue permits for alligator hunters for 1992."

"Water levels seem to be lower in the St. Johns River and Lake Monroe this year," he noted, "so it could give the appearance that we have more gators in the area, but it will just mean where will be more of them visible in the shoreline areas."

While the gators seen along the shore of Lake Monroe, especially in the early morning hours may appear to be 15 to 20 feet in length. Brunell said. "This is mostly an illusion. The state record for an alligator is 14 feet one sixteenth of an inch." He estimated, "In Lake Monroe, we probably wouldn't find a gator much more than 10 or 11 feet long."

Did you know??

- On July 1, new EPA regulations go into effect prohibiting business establishments that installs or services motor vehicles air conditioners, from dumping refrigerant into the atmosphere during work on the unit. The refrigerant must be removed from the appliance by a recovery machine.
- On November 15 of this year twelve-ounce cans of R12 refrigerant, commonly called Freon and sold in auto parts stores, can no longer be bought by consumers. They will be available only to certified air conditioning technicians. The refrigerant, used most in automobile air conditioners, will be only available to certified Automotive Air Conditioning Technicians who have training in refrigerant recycling.
- By late summer a rulling is expected from the Environmental Protection Agency on the proposal to halt CFC production. The decision follows a public hearing in Washington. By 1995 there will be no CFC production.

End all CFC production by 1995

The Alliance for Responsible CFC Policy, an industry coalition composed of CFC and HCFC users and producers, has endorsed the call by President Bush to accelerate the domestic and international efforts to protect the earth's ozone layer, and filed a petition with EPA requesting acceleration of the phaseout schedule for certain ozone depleting compounds. "The United States, both government and industry, will maintain its leadership position in the global ozone protection effort," said Kevin Fay, the Alliance Executive Director. "The President's action is responsive to the environmental concerns announced by NASA, and consistent with the technological advances by industry in developing substitute chemicals and technologies."

The CFC Alliance has urged that the critical steps necessary to accelerate the phaseout of CFC compounds are:

- the rapid approval by EPA of industry developed substitutes as required by the Clean Air

- Act;
   development of an action plan to deal with the huge base of existing installed equipment, primarily refrigeration and air conditioning equipment;
   invigorated diplomatic efforts to ensure the participation of all nations, particularly the developing nations, in the Montreal Protocol process; and swift action by the Federal government to implement procurement policies for ozone protecting technologies, as well as recycling, reclamation, and retrofit programs for government owned existing equipment.
   In response to the President's call to U.S. CFC producers to immediately reduce CFC production to 50% of 1986 baseline levels, Fay indicated that he believed that the U.S. producers, Allied Signal, DuPont, Elf Atochem, and LaRoche, would respond affirmatively.
   The Alliance reported that it filled a petition with EPA to accelerate the CFC reduction achedule.

DuPont, Elf Atochem, and LaRoche, would respond affirmatively.

The Alliance reported that it filed a petition with EPA to accelerate the CFC reduction schedule, achieving a phaseout of production by December 31, 1995. The petition also seeks a limited exemption from the phaseout in order to service the existing equipment base. The exception would only be utilized if subsequent technical developments do not produce cost-effective solutions for retrofitting this equipment and reclaimed and recycled refrigerant is unable to provide for its needs. The petition is consistent with the President's action.

The petition also seeks an accelerated phaseout of the atmospheric long-lived HCFCs, bridging compounds needed in order to complete the CFC phaseout. The Alliance requests that long-lived HCFC production be phased-out in 2020. The petition also addresses other issues pertaining to the implementation of Title VI of the Clean Air Act Amendments of 1990, including labeling deferrals, and identification of safe alternatives.

New EPA Regulations

The EPA and industry officials say leaky auto air conditioners account for most of the CFC's in the atmosphere. The alliance estimates there are about 130 million auto air conditioners in the country. In fact, even a good working auto air conditioner in excellent condition can lose as much as a pound of refrigerant every year and that Florida's auto air conditioners as well as radiators, wear out faster because of the state's high heat and humidity. Because refrigerant for auto air conditioners has been inexpensive, and plentiful, it has been cheaper to replace the coolant than to have the leak fixed. But the EPA ruled to restrict the sale of 12-ounce cans of R12 to stop that from happening. The refrigerant will be available to consumers only in containers of at least 20 pounds. Today's price of at least $4 per pound is expected to increase, a cost that the EPA will hope to discourage do-it-yourself-mechanics.

Once the old cars loose their cool, the new cars by 1995 must be equipped to handle the new refrigerant, called HFC-134a. This new refrigerant has been approved by the EPA.

Automobile dealers and certified air conditioning shops, will have to spend at least $3,000 for a new air conditioning refrigerant recycling. unit that meets EPA standards. Also the EPA requires that any leak found in a auto air conditioner must be repaired before any coolant can be injected.

According to scientific data, HFC-134a does not release harmful CFCs that ultimatly eat through the osone layer. Under a 1990 amendment to the Rederal Clean Air Act, Congress gave the President the authority to order the EPA to phase out production of the most harmful CFCs by the end of the century or sooner pending new scientific data.

In fact, over ing material. half of the respondents to a survey commissioned by Aluminum Company of America said a package's recyclability now affects their buying decisions.

"Consumers are beginning to understand that the products they select at the check-out line are the materials they must dispose of at home. The more easily the material can be recycled and the more valuable it is when recycled, the lower the cost the consumer will have to shoulder for recycling or landfilling," according to George Cobb, presi-dent of Alcoa Recycling Company.

Many shoppers base 20 years, long before the

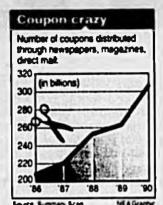

With this experience. Alcoa offers the following guidelines to consumers who want to buy the right thing - environmentally sound packages in order to do the right thing — recycle them.

• Determine whether a product package is sim-ply called "recyclable" or is actually recycled.
While many materials have the potential to be recycled, they are not all recycled, which means they end up in landfills. If a product package is not included in your town's recycling program or is not accepted by local recycling centers, con-sider selecting an alternative package -Alcoa has been recycl- one that is recycled, for loop process, best ing aluminum cans for example, not just re- exemplified by the alu-

•Select packages that are valuable to recycle. As recycling programs become more widespread, the cost of operating recycling programs will rely increasingly on revenue carned by the sale of recyclable materials. The costs not covered by recycling may be passed on to taxpayers in the form of garbage assessment or taxes.

Residents can help contain these costs by selecting materials that are valuable to recycle. As a guide, consider that last year the average scrap price per ton of aluminum cans ($1.174) was 21 times higher than glass ($54), 20 times more than steel ($58) and over seven times more than clear plastic beverage bottles ($162).

•Learn how various materials are recycled and choose materials with a "closed-loop, re-cycling process." Do you know what happens to a product when it's recycled? The ideal scenario is the closedminum can. A recycled can becomes a new can over and over again. saving energy and natural resources, and permanently diverting solid waste from landfills.

Some materials can only be recycled into different, less valuable products that will eventually need to be landfilled.

• Determine whether "recycled content" labels on products refer to production scrap or post-consumer material. Some products claim to have "recycled content" because they include scrap material retrieved during production. While production scrap is a useful waste reduction measure, it does not create as great an impact as post-consumer scrap: material used by the consumer and then reeveled. For example, aluminum beverage cans include more than 50 percent post-consumer content.

"Recycling is becoming a way of life in this country...by necessity. It is in residents' best interests to become more aware environmentally. The better consumers understand how recycling works, the more effectively they can take action to reduce the amount of solid waste produced, and to contain the costs of disposing of it," Cobb says.

Spring Hammock straddles U.S. 17-92 between Longwood and Sanford.

County working to buy, protect sensitive land

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Seminole County has taken the $20 million approach that the best way to preserve the environment is to buy it and protect it.

In November 1990, voters overwhelmingly agreed to pay a higher property tax to enable the county to spend up to $20 million to purchase important lands throughout the county. The county planned to add state land acquisition money to the $20 million to double the amount of land that will be bought.

Colleen Logan, county natural resources planner, said the first $15 million of bonds will be sold by June and the first land appraisals can begin soon after. The future of state land acquisition money is shaky, but the county will proceed with the purchases. Logan said. The county bonds will be repaid with property taxes during a 10-year period.

A group of leading central Fiorida environmentalists and scientists met for a year and toured 33 sites throughout the county. They hiked through field and swamp to examine flora and fauna to see what natural "value" the properties had. They also determined whether the land would be protected through zoning or was a prospect for development.

The 33 sites were ranked, with the highest priority placed on completion of Spring Hammock, the 1.850-acre forested swamp west of Lake Jesup that extends past U.S. Highway 17-92 to County Road 427. About 89 percent of Spring Hammock is in state or county protection, including Big Tree and Soldier Creek Parks. Twenty-one of the 33 parcels are in Spring Hammock. When purchased, the most-desired Spring Hammock property will be acquired.

Other land acquisition targets are 200 acres near the Wekiva River southwest Markham Woods Road and Markham Road and 120 acres east of the Central Florida Zoological Park.

According to Public Utilities Director Paul Moore, "Sanford has to get rid of 6.5 million gailons of reclaimed water every day, and this is one of the methods we have to use."

Moore explained. "Much of it goes into neighborhoods for yard watering. Some goes to the Mayfair Golf Course. and other areas."

Children putting ideals into action

By JEPF BARMARS
Associated Press Writer

GRANTS PASS. Ore. - They're turning off lights, pedalling their bikes instead of asking Mom to drive them, pestering their parents to recycle. planting trees, and cleaning streams.

They're also criticizing President Bush, landing corporate support and distributing newsletters read by millions.

Fearful for their future - and unimpressed by their elders' efforts more and more of America's kids are putting their ideals into action, working to save the Earth by starting with their own neighborhoods.

The seeds of the children's crusade were sown on April 22, 1990, in the media blitz that accompanied the 20th anniversary of Earth Day.

"It was sort of the youth equivalent of the Anita Hill-Clarence Thomas stuff. Something happens when you just get an issue in your face for a period of time," said Denis Hayes, executive director of the celebration and now president of Earth Seal in Palo Alto, Calif.

In the two years since, dozens of children's organizations have sprouted across the nation. Their names tell the tale — Kids for Saving Earth, Kids for a Clean Environment, Kids in Nature's Defense.

"On certain rare occasions, a shift in thinking that takes over an entire country can be seen first among the young. We saw that in the communist countries. I think that the same thing is beginning to occur with the global environment," said Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., who organized a special hearing this year for children to talk about global warming.

Perhaps the momentum can be traced to the fact that children aren't overwhelmed by the enormity of trying to save the Earth, the way many adults are, said John Javna, author of "50 Simple Things You Can Do to Save the Earth" and 'Kid Heroes of the Environment."

"Kids see their immediate environment as the whole world," Javna said. 'The street they walk on, the school they go to, is every bit as much the whole planet as our concept of different countries."

From Saturday morning cartoons to classrooms, these kids have been bombarded with warnings about rain forests destroyed to make pasture for Brazilian beef, global warming from the carbon dioxide released by cars and power plants, spotted owls pushed to the brink of extinction by too much logging, dolphins drowned by fishermen netting tuna.

And they have responded, in ways large and small.

Fisteen children's environmental groups claiming a total of 1 million members have joined in The CO2 Challenge Kids Coalition, which is working to cut carbon dioxide emissions by 1 million tons a year.

"I think that will really make a big difference, said Sherry Newkirk, county recycling coordinator.

The Florida Legislature, fearing poliution of underground drinking water supplies and limited land, passed a sweeping sold waste law in 1988. The law prohibited tires, appliances and other items from being taken to dumps and required counties to reduce the amount of other garbage being taken to the dump by 30 percent before 1995.

After studying Seminole County's garbage situation for more than a year, a joint city-county committee drafted a recycling program for un-incorporated areas and any cities that chose to sign on. The county adopted the program in August 1990. Most cities adopted the county program, although Sanford and Alternonte Springs adopted slightly different programs.

Beginning in November 1990, residents were asked to toos gians botties and jars, old news-papers, plastic drink bottles, and aluminum cans in plastic bins about the size of a laundry basket. Later, steel cans were added to the list of materials.

Each week, a special garbage truck stops at every household in the county receiving garbage service and separates the garbage in the bins into separate sections of the truck before taking them to a local recycling com-pany where they are sold and eventually resold to companies that turn garbage into new products.

Officials with the county's recycler, Southeast Recycling, located in Longwood, say they're constantly on the lookout for companies to buy other garbage materials.

According to Associate City Planner Mark Reggentin, "The Comp Plan is constantly being updated, based on newly established state requirements as well as various changes in our city codes."

At the present time, the city's latest improvements to the plan are awaiting conformation from Tallahassee. "We are presently negotiating with the Department of Community Affairs to obtain compliance," Reggentin said.

Aside from the requirements mandated by the Comp Plan, the City has also taken additional steps to insure a continued vigilance on the quality of the water in the lakes.

Entirely or partially within the city limits, are eight major lakes: Lake Mary, Little Lake Mary, Crystal Lake, Little Crystal Lake, Lake Emma. Lake Bingham. Lake Como, and Dawson Lake.

The city also has numerous smaller lakes and major size retention found in the North Pointe area, Timacuan, The Forest, and the industrial Park area.

Mentioned in the Comprehensive Plan, as well as stressed in City Ordinances are specific uses of water retention areas for new construction, especially in commercial oreas. Before any building permit is issued, the city staff studies the land involved and specifics exactly how much area must remain unpaved and how heavy amounts of rainfall must be handled through retention ponds or other water holding areas depending on the location and land Builders must agree to meet the requirements before site plans are approved or permits issued. At times, when an agreement cannot be reached, the builder or property owner is required to seek a variance from the Commission.

Separate from the Comp Plan, are other actions toward preserving and protecting the natural waterways of the

With concern mounting over lake problems. the Lake Mary Civic Improvement Association contacted the University of Florida, which sent a representative to the city. to help form a Lake Watch program and instruct members on the taking of lake water samples.

According to Mayor Randy Morris, "Brian Loe, president of the CIA. first brought this up to the Commission, and has been heading the watch program since it was first started."

"It's not a program to determine good or bad," he observed, "It's to obtain information from a single point of reference. with which we can make further decisions."

Each volunteer member of Lake Watch is assigned a specific lake to study. At times, two are assigned per lake. On a regular once-a-month basis they boat out and take samples of the water, which are then forwarded for analysis and logging to the main Lake Watch laboratory at the University of Florida. in Gainesville.

Morris commented. "We have already received some test results back, and, as an example, we have found the waters of Big Lake Mary have proved to be quite well." He added, "We'll be receiving information about other lakes as the reports continue to be evaluated."

Morris commented. Loe observed. "From "While they're out there, the Lake Watch volunteers also throw out what is called a "Seccie Dish". into three separate parts of each lake, to test the clarity of the water."

In addition to clarity of the water, and testing for various pollutants, the inspections also check the quality of weeds and other growth at the edge and in the lakes.

"Lake Mary is the "City of Lakes". Morris said. "And we want to do everything possible to make certain the lakes we have are in the best condition possible." He admitted some are not as good as people would like. "But, with more study and more work, they'll get back into condition too."

Sanford's Comprehen-sive Plan, as is the case with most others, specifically identifies the positions that will be taken to prevent problems. It includes such areas as conservation, protection of air quality, water quality, floodplan, wetlands, soil crosion, excavation, native vegetation, wildlife and hazardous waste.

Another thing we are working on now,' Marder said, "is a recent change in the wetlands protection section." He explained. For environmentally sensitive lands, the document states, "The City will maintain water and storage capacity of its watersheds, maintain recharge capacity of the groundwater aquifers. preserve fish and other wildlife habitat, and maintain a minimum of flood losses.

In the total package, a Comprenehaive Plan is designed to govern all aspects of city operation. "It will never be com-plete though," Marder said.
