Crash Stuns Tiny Idaho Town

School Group Switched To Doomed Jet

MELBA, Idaho (UPI) — The news that a teacher's wife and two honor students from the local high school were among 27 people killed on the ill-fated jetliner that crashed in Denver hit the tiny farm town of Melba like a bomb.

Eight students or former students from Melba High School and two chaperones, a teacher and his wife, were aboard the Continental Airlines DC-9 when it crashed while taking off in a blizzard Sunday, killing 27 people and injuring more than 50.

The group had won the Idaho state FFA

They originally were on a United Airlines flight from Kansas City, but on the layover in Denver, United refused to take off in the snowstorm.

competition and was returning from the national competition when the plane crashed, turning the trip of their young lives into a nightmare.

Asked what the mood was like at the school, Principal Jim Potter said, "Disbelief that it could happen here."

School Superintendent Norman Winters said the most-asked question was why the group was on the plane at all. They originally were on a United Airlines flight from Kansas City, but on the layover in Denver, United refused to take off in the snowstorm.

Among the dead was Tammy Daniel, about 30, the wife of teacher David Daniel, who had accompanied the kids to a national Future Farmers of America convention in Kansas City. Daniel was listed in serious condition with back injuries at a Denver hospital Monday. He had been a teacher at the high school for 12 years.

Also confirmed dead was slaight-A student Jannine Ledgerwood, 17 and another honor student, Sherry Nelson, 17.

Ledgerwood moved to Melba, a town of about 200 people near Boise, from Washington state. Her parents moved back to Pomeroy, Wash., a year ago, but she stayed to graduate, living with friends.

Nelson, a varsity cheerleader and student council member with a 3.5 grade point average, also was on the school's varsity volleyball and softball teams.

Pastor Ron Fredrick of the Quaker Church in nearby Nampa was in Melba, consoling students and teachers at the high school.

"People are in a state of shock here today," Fredrick said. "But in a small town like this, they lean a lot on each other. There is a lot of strength in relationships."

Word had come earlier that Daniel and six of the students survived the crash.

Grand Jury Probes Yankee Lake Deal

More Testimony Slated Nov. 30

By Richard Whittaker
Herald Staff Writer

The grand jury looking into allegations that Seminole County officials acted improperly when they purchased the 2,867 acres at Yankee Lake in 1985 will hear additional testimony Nov. 30.

The grand jury convened in Sanford Monday to hear evidence concerning allegations that the Seminole County Commission acted illegally in the way it bought the land from developer Jeno Paulucci for $7.5 million, a claim yet to be proved.

Jacksonville State Attorney Ed Austin, who was appointed as special prosecutor for the case by Gov. Bob Martinez last July, and the grand jury heard closed-door testimony from three witnesses during the day-long proceedings. Austin said he couldn't make any comments concerning the evidence or witnesses the grand jury heard Monday or on any future testimony before the panel.

Appearing before the grand jury Monday were County Commissioner Barbara Christensen and Seminole County residents Art Davis and Grant McEwan.

The only member of the commission not to vote in favor of the purchase of Paulucci's land by the county, Christensen would not make any comments about her two hours of testimony. By state law, no testimony before a grand jury can be related outside of the proceedings, according to Austin.

In the 2 a.m. meeting in which the purchase was approved by the county, Commissioners Bill Kirchhoff, Sandra Glenn, Bob Sturm and Fred Streetman all voted in favor of the purchase.

Davis and McEwan have both called repeatedly for an investigation into the Yankee Lake purchase. They have both said the county acted illegally in its handling of the deal, and are pleased the issue has gone before a grand jury.

Stephen Kuntz, Austin's assistant, said the grand jury is probably waiting until Nov. 30 to resume the hearing because of the Thanksgiving holidays.

"I really don't have any estimate about how long this (the grand jury's investigation) will take," Kuntz said.

Austin remarked the grand jury will keep meeting until all the witnesses—he said he doesn't know at this point the total number of witnesses to be called—have testified and all the evidence that can be obtained is presented.

The county commission wants to use the Yankee Lake property for a sewage treatment plant. The city of Sanford was also negotiating with Paulucci for the land when the county and the developer finalized their contract.

When the commission voted to buy the property in 1985, Christensen had remarked that the county should undertake the purchase of the Yankee Lake land through a joint effort with Sanford.

Rezoning Request Rejected By Longwood

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Longwood City Commissioners voted 3-2 Monday night to send a rezoning request scheduled on the agenda for preliminary consideration again back to the starting point overriding the opinion of City Attorney Michael Kramer.

The ordinance, assigning a Future Land Use designation of Commercial, General to a portion of Lot 7, on Orange Avenue at Highway 17-92, received a 2-2 vote on Oct. 19 in the absence of Mayor Ed Myers. Kramer said the ordinance was not moot since the commission had not adopted Roberts Rules of Order and the commission voted 3-1 to table it until Nov. 16 when all five commissioners would be present to vote.

Myers voted with Commissioner Harvey Smerilson, who made the motion, and Deputy Mayor June Lornann to require the developer to reapply and pay his fees again in order for the request to be heard over again. Commissioners Dave Gunter and Lynette Dennis voted against the motion.

Lornann said, in casting her vote, "I don't really wish to go against the city attorney, but we've stressed always going by the book, so I'm voting 'yes'."

Commissioner Harvey Smerilson made the motion "based on legal precedent" he said was set in a similar case involving the city of Maitland and Orange County, but Kramer said no such precedent is in the law books and in his opinion as attorney for the commission the ordinance was not dead.

Smerilson told Kramer, "This is not the first time I've disagreed with you. There is something here beside what it seems. I don't know why the attorney would want to buck the law. You did such a little research into the meeting."

Kramer replied, "I consider that an insinuation. I acted in a fair manner. Don't accuse me of impropriety."

Kramer said he does not feel a precedent was set by the Orange County case since the facts were different than those in Longwood and most courts consider cases based on

Manslaughter Charge Avoided With Guilty Plea To DUI

A Seminole County Man, who was involved in a 1986 accident that resulted in the deaths of two men, pleaded guilty to charges of driving under the influence of alcohol Monday.

John Michael Hagen, 30, 873 Lake Irene Drive, Longwood, was initially charged by the state with manslaughter by driving drunk after he was involved in an accident on Oct. 26, 1986, in which Scott Reasa, 20, Maitland and Brian Strickland, 20, Casselberry, were killed.

Even though an investigation cleared Hagen from responsibility for causing the accident, he was still charged with manslaughter because of a 1986 Florida law that allows drunk drivers involved in an accident to be charged even though they didn't cause it.

The accident took place on Red Bug Lake Road, after Strickland reportedly lost control of his car while speeding. The car carrying the two men then slid into the path of Hagen's vehicle.

Previous Officers Regain Board Seats

Humane Society In Turmoil As Three Officers Resign

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County Humane Society is in turmoil again, with the resignation of its president JoAnn Gates, secretary Clydene Rauch and attorney William Sheaffer.

Gates, who became president of the society last summer, has resigned effective the end of this month.

Gates resigned as a result of an internal fight on the board, which involved an attempt to name former board president Helen Wolk and former co-executive director Barbara Woodall to the board last month. Wolk and Woodall resigned last summer without giving specific reasons for their resignations.

Gates contended only the president of the society could appoint board members according to the organization's bylaws. Last week other board members amended the bylaws and appointed Wolk and Woodall to the board.

Gates had instituted a program to teach owners of sick animals how to care for them, and to improve relations with prosecutors so there would be more cooperation in animal cruelty cases. There was opposition by other board members to the cost of the new programs.

The board plans to hold workshops before the end of the month, when Gates' resignation become effective, in order to try to resolve differences.

The society operates an animal shelter on Old County Home Road, where animals are available for adoption, and conducts investigations of animal cruelty reports.

Last week the Seminole County Commissioners authorized Ken Hooper, county administrator, to begin negotiations with the Humane Society about the possibility of the shelter taking over the county's animal adoption program under contract. Hooper suggested the negotiations as part of the county's effort to improve the county animal control program, which is in the midst of reorganizing after the firing of its director and chief animal control officer.

POLICE

IN BRIEF

Sanford Man Charged With Lewd And Lascivious Assault, Battery

A 53-year-old Sanford man has been charged with lewd and lascivious assault on a child and with battery. Sanford police reported they arrived at the man's home just in time Saturday to prevent an assault on the girl, who said she has been attacked by the suspect in the past.

The girl's mother called the police after the girl had told her the suspect had demanded that she have sex with either him or his boss in exchange for a radio.

The man also allegedly hit the girl and reportedly was making threats to force her to have sex with him when police arrived and arrested him at about 10 p.m. Saturday.

Elvia Pagett, of 213 E. Fourth St., has been charged in the case and is being held without bond.

Man Gets Ride To Jail

A Seminole County sheriff's deputy who offered a ride home to a man Seminole County firefighters said was apparently intoxicated was rewarded for his trouble by being kicked. The man was found lying in the roadway of State Road 46, east of Sanford.

Sheriff's Deputy G.J. Hart reported that after he put the man into his patrol car the man began kicking the car's windows. When Hart pulled the man from the car the suspect allegedly kicked and hit Hart.

Donald Edward Hampton, 33, of 2795 Richmond Ave., Sanford, was arrested on a charge of battery on a policeman and resisting arrest with violence at about 7:30 a.m. Saturday. He has been released on $500 bond to appear in court Nov. 30.

Police Make Beer Can Bust

A man who said Bennie Mason, 59, of Oviedo, tried to grab $10 from him, allegedly hit Mason in the head with a full beer can. That brought a charge of aggravated battery against the accused basher, Charles Gainey, 43, of First St., Oviedo.

Oviedo police made the arrest at 3:40 a.m. Sunday on Douglas Boulevard at Franklin Street, Oviedo, where the incident occurred. Mason reportedly told police Gainey owed him $10 and he tried to take it and was attacked.

Gainey has been released from jail without posting bond.

Driving Under Influence Arrests

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on a charge of driving under the influence:

—Vernon S. Dabreu, 50, of 28 Jackson Court, Casselberry, was arrested at 11:15 a.m. Saturday after his car pulled onto the roadway in front of a Florida Highway Patrol car forcing the trooper to take evasive action to avoid a collision.

—Charles P. Baker, 28, of P.O. Box 4033, Sanford, at 7:55 a.m. Saturday after his car was in an accident on U.S. Highway 17-92 south of Sanford.

Counterfeit Money Passed

A clerk for Ross Dress For Less, Hunt Club Boulevard, rural Apopka, reported to Seminole County sheriff's deputies that a woman who made a clothing purchase at about 2 p.m. Saturday paid with three counterfeit $20 bills. The woman left the store before the clerk realized the bills were bogus, a sheriff's report said.

Armed Man Robs Sanford Gas Station

By Maryann Croes
 Herald Staff Writer

An armed robber held up a Sanford gas station clerk Saturday and fled with approximately $1,300 from the station's cash register.

According to police reports, clerk Olen Johnson, 22, was working when a man entered Tibbets Amoco, 1407 S. French Ave., at 7:03 p.m. and robbed the station. Johnson said the man had a firearm and took the money from the cash drawer.

Johnson described the man as about 25-years-old, 5-feet, 6-inches tall, medium build, and wearing a white t-shirt with "Hawaiian Tropic" written on the front and blue jeans.

A witness told police the suspect ran towards the wooded area on W. 14th St. According to Sanford police, the canine unit responded to the track of the man, but could not find him. Police said the man possibly fled in a vehicle.

Other actions investigated by the Sanford Police Department include:

• Someone entered the boys' football team locker room at Seminole High School Friday between 5:45 p.m. and 11:10 p.m. and took about $5,000 in various personal items from 26 different lockers. According to police, no damage or signs of forced entry could be found. Police believe entry may have been made with a key.

• A man stole a purse belonging to Bobbi Rhey Hughes, 19, 105 Vihlen Road, Friday at 9:38 p.m. Hughes said she was in the Winn Dixie parking lot, 2485 W. 25th St., when the man ran up behind her and took her purse containing $156 and assorted personal items. Hughes said the man hit her several times in the head while attempting to take her purse. Police said Hughes was not seriously injured, although she was shaken up by the incident. Richard Odell, 18, witnessed the incident and said he chased the man but could not catch him. The man is described as 6-feet, 4-inches tall, medium build, and wearing dark pants and a white sweat shirt with blue stripes.

• Robert Cooper, 82, 218 Bradshaw Ave., told police sometime between Nov. 9 and Nov. 13 his home was broken into and ransacked. Cooper reported a safe containing diamond jewelry, two firearms, and $600 was missing. The total contents of the safe are valued at $10,000.

• Willie Choice, 60, 1518 W. Eighth St., told police Friday between 6:30 p.m. and 7:15 p.m. a stereo, two speakers, and a 12-gauge shotgun were taken from his home.

• Purse belonging to Lori Dozier, 25, 3812 Skyline St., Deltona, and Mildred Ludwig, P.O. Box 512, Osteen, were reported stolen Friday between 8:45 p.m. and 4:15 p.m. The purses were in the women's vehicles at 300 E. Third St. when they were taken.

Sanford Man Jailed On Child Abuse Charge

By Susan Loden
 Herald Staff Writer

A 20-year-old Sanford man accused of battering his four-month-old son and fracturing the child's skull remained jailed today without bond. The baby is in the custody of his grandmother and Sanford Police Chief Steve Harriett said the baby "is doing fine."

Brian Vincent Graham Sr., of 54 Master's Cove Apartments, was arrested at his home at 1:20 p.m. Monday. He has been charged with aggravated child abuse and negligent treatment of a child.

Sanford police reported that the allegations against Graham were made after the baby's grandmother, Thelma Taylor, visited Graham's home at about 8 p.m. Oct. 30 and found the baby lying on the floor in a darkened bedroom.

Graham was at home with the baby and Taylor got his permission to take the baby to visit a friend. Instead Taylor went to the workplace of the baby's mother, Latesa Graham, and asked if she knew what was happening to the baby. The mother said she didn't know.

Taylor took the baby to Halifax Hospital in Volusia County, where he was admitted and treated for a fractured skull, a broken arm and a bite. The baby had also been burned in the past, police said. The hospital reported that the baby was also falling to "thrive."

On Nov. 9 Latesa Graham visited the Sanford police station and reportedly told police that she found out on Nov. 4 that her son was in the hospital.

She allegedly told police that she had asked Graham what had happened to the baby and he allegedly said the baby had knocked over a bowl of cereal and when he (Graham) jumped to clean it up the baby hit the floor.

Mrs. Graham also told police that once she asked her husband about a burn on her baby's fingers and she was reportedly told that the baby had grabbed a cigarette lighter. Mrs. Graham said the baby had also been burned once before, police reported.

Sanford police investigated the allegations and that brought the arrest of Graham.

Good, Bad News So Enjoy Yourself

By Fred H. Cooper
 Herald Staff Writer

How many times can you say it's wonderful, and be different. Or, at least apply new nuances to the phrase. Speaking weather-wise that is. Yes, w-i-s-e! Let others be wise. It is wonderful, and will last maybe another 24 hours. Then we should get some rain. Temperatures over Seminole should stay in the high 70s and low 80s and dip into the 60s at night.

That rain that's coming may be the leading edge of that front coming from the west. It produced those terrible tornadoes in Texas, then moved across Louisiana, jumped the mighty Mississippi and continues its movement east. Hit the Panhandle last night but only with heavy rains.

It'll keep coming but may not affect us down here, except for showers. Look for rain in the late afternoon Wednesday. Gonna be cloudy between now and then, however.

Did you hear about the Volusia County beach tolls. Residents of the county get an annual pass for $10. Seminole County citizens will have to pay $25 a year to drive and park on the beach. No dogs allowed. Maybe they'll establish a dogs only beach somewhere. Maybe we ought to charge Volusia Countians $25 to visit the shores of Lake Monroe.

By the way, don't forget to watch to comet tonight. In the western sky just after sundown, before the moon comes up. Be at its best Wednesday night.

Checked the high highs and low lows for the past twenty-four hours and got a surprise. Lowest low was at Valentine, Nebraska with an 8 degree reading. Highest of the high? Right here in the Sunshine State. Down at Naples with an 88 degree reading. Gotta love those Collier Countians. However, before you get jealous, consider the problems those folks are having down there.

Erosion has eaten away at the Gulf of Mexico beaches of this resort island west of Fort Myers for at least 60 years as islanders worked unsuccessfully to halt the loss of sand. That's just a few miles north of Naples.

Late last month, tides pushed by westerly winds washed away 20 feet of beach at a point where the island was only 400 feet across, and took with it nearly 100 feet of the only road spanning the 4.9-mile island.

The island's only water main was left exposed and in some places hanging over the washout and Australian pines lay toppled into the water.

Traffic was diverted around the washout through the dirt driveway of the aptly named Tween Waters Inn, which is at a narrow spot on the island between the Gulf of Mexico and Pine Island Sound. The resort, which once had 1,000 feet of beachfront, had just 200 feet.

Road crews tore up concrete and dumped rocks for four days and three nights rebuilding the stretch of road along a drop-off covered by jagged rocks and tree roots.

The washout occurred six days before islanders voted Nov. 3 on a proposed $8.9 million beach renourishment project.

A storm system that spun off a barrage of tornadoes killing 11 people in two days in Texas and Louisiana simmered a bit today as it moved across Alabama and Florida, but carried some of its "real punch" north as it extended to the Great Lakes, weather officials said.

Talk Can Be Cheap

Nicaragua surprised everyone when the Sandinista dictatorship announced it was prepared to negotiate a cease-fire through an intermediary with the democratic resistance, commonly called the Contras.

Managua did not name the third party, but in the past the Sandinistas have asked the Roman Catholic prelate, Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, to assume the role. If the cardinal's assistance is again sought, it will be a good omen. No one inside Nicaragua has done more to safeguard what few freedoms remain in that tortured land than the courageous churchman.

Although the regime of President Daniel Ortega adamantly refuses to negotiate directly with the resistance, as required by the Arias peace plan, the announcement was a reversal of the Sandinistas' long-standing position.

Under terms of the peace plan, which was adopted last August by the presidents of five Central American nations, Nicaragua and El Salvador had 90 days to achieve several objectives, including a cease-fire between government and insurgent forces, and an amnesty plan for rebel troops.

The signatories also were bound to terminate aid to insurgent forces and forbid use of their territory as a logistical base or staging ground for attacks on neighboring countries.

El Salvador's compliance with the plan has been exemplary. Earlier, San Salvador announced a general cease-fire between its armed forces and Marxist guerrillas. Characteristically, the rebels scoffed at the government's unilateral cease-fire and vow to keep fighting.

Additionally, President Jose Napoleon Duarte declared a broad amnesty that applies to all political crimes, absolving both rightist gunmen and leftist rebels from punishment. The law clears the way for the release of some 500 prisoners accused of being leftist rebels.

Duarte also called upon all outside states to stop aiding the Marxist insurgents, specifically the Soviet Union, Nicaragua, Cuba, East Germany, Libya and Vietnam. Ortega already has declared that he will continue to receive "generous" military and economic aid from Moscow.

Ortega announced that he would release 981 political prisoners. But that figure represents less than one-tenth the number of persons Amnesty International and others believe have been detained on political grounds.

The Sandinista leader also stipulated that the Contras must cease their operations inside Nicaragua before a general amnesty will be proclaimed that clearly violates the Arias plan.

Despite their willingness to negotiate with the Contras, albeit indirectly, the Sandinistas have yet to comply with another of the peace plan's key provisions: Democratization.

The essential component of democracy is free elections. The Arias plan requires only that each nation elect representatives to a Central American parliament during the first quarter of 1988. After these elections are held, national elections will take place according to each country's constitution.

Significantly, Nicaragua's present charter does not require local and national elections until 1990. True to form, no Marxist regime has ever provided the mechanism that would allow the people to vote it out of power.

All is not gloomy, however. Managua's decisions in September to allow the independent daily La Prensa to resume publication, and to permit Radio Catolica to return to the air at least temporarily signal change.

The question is, are the Sandinistas merely flirting with the Arias plan or are their intentions honorable? There is only one way to find out. The United States must keep Managua's feet to the fire by extending humanitarian aid to the democratic resistance. The 15,000 Contras in the field, not the Arias plan, are the reason Ortega wants to talk.

Iran-Contra Reports Expected Today

By Judi Hanson

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The congressional Iran-Contra panels are expected to complete their $4 million probe this week, but unlikely to lay to rest some of the most piercing questions of President Reagan's worst crisis.

The committees were expected to release two reports today: the majority report signed by all 15 Democrats on the panel and three Republican senators and a minority dissent written by all six House Republicans and two of the most conservative senators who served on the 26-member panel.

But the 11-month investigation into the secret sale of U.S. arms to Iran and the diversion of profits to the Nicaraguan Contras likely will still leave open the question of President Reagan's own role in the affair.

And it will leave for a special prosecutor investigating the scandal whether to prosecute people involved in running the affair, including Lt. Col. Oliver North, the National Security Council aide who engineered the Iran arms sales and diversion of $3.5 million in profits.

Although special prosecutor Lawrence Walsh has obtained two convictions of figures linked to the scandal, a federal grand jury is expected to return indictments later this year.

Portions of the draft dissent by Republican members obtained recently by United Press International conclude that Reagan did not know Iran arms sale profits were diverted to the Nicaraguan rebels and denounces the mostly Democratic majority for suggesting otherwise.

The majority report is expected to leave open the question of the president's role in the diversion of $3.5 million in Iran arms sale proceeds to the Contra rebels, according to the Republican dissenters.

In their draft dissent, the Republicans accused the majority report of being a "weapon in the ongoing guerrilla warfare (against the administration) instead of an objective analysis."

The Iran-Contra probe—the most extensive investigation of government wrongdoing since Watergate—will wind up costing about $4 million for the congressional investigation, which does not include the cost of special prosecutor Walsh, whose bill already has reached $3 million.

The televised hearings last summer made instant heroes or celebrities of some of the players, including North and his former secretary, Fawn Hall.

But it revealed a government out of control, run by people not elected to office and unaccountable to Congress, the president or the people.

Committee members, however, candidly acknowledged they did not get the complete story about the affair, and that job must be left to the special prosecutor.

"In this case, the laws were adequate if the persons involved had decided to abide by the rules, abide by the law and abide by the Constitution of the United States," said Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, chairman of the Senate panel which investigated the scandal.

Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, told a reporter recently that the Iran-Contra inquiry is only at "midpassage.... It won't be a dead issue after Walsh takes action."

VIEWPOINT

Dire Day Of Reckoning

By William R. Hawkins

(The author is economic consultant to the U.S. Business and Industrial Council.)

Peter G. Peterson is chairman of The Blackstone Group investment bank, a director of the National Bureau of Economic Research, and a former cabinet officer. For years he has been waging a campaign for fiscal responsibility, warning of a dire day of reckoning for the American economy if current trends are not reversed. His new essay in The Atlantic is must reading.

In the 1980s, Peterson argues, "America has let its infrastructure crumble, its foreign markets decline, its productivity dwindle, its savings evaporate, and its budget and borrowing burgeon." The country has been on a spending spree, living beyond its means while neglecting its future.

The crisis has been brought on by good intentions pursued by bad policies. For example, the "supply-side" economists became popular because they correctly blamed low savings and investment for slow productivity and growth. Their intent was to stimulate savings by reforming the tax laws. However, lowering taxes across the board on individuals rather than targeting activities directly related to investment or production merely fueled consumption.

But if the Reagan administration's fiscal policy failed to reverse past trends, Congress made matters worse by letting the budget balloon out of control. Between 1979 and 1986, federal spending jumped from 20.5 percent of GNP to 23.8 percent.

Americans are attempting to "ignore the law that limits consumption to production" not only by supporting free spending politicians but also by running their personal budgets in the red. But the debts being run up are no longer "owed to ourselves," as the Keynesian slogan had it. With U.S. output-per-worker stagnant, consumers have turned to foreign imports—and foreign debt. In 1980, the national per-worker balance with foreigners was a credit of $989. By the end of last year this had become a per-worker foreign debt of $2,500. How will this debt be paid? How will even the interest on this debt be paid?

There are only two ways out. Either the U.S. produces its way out, meaning more investment and fewer imports to put the balance of trade back in the black, or the U.S. turns its productive assets over to foreigners, the same way anyone in bankruptcy sells off their belongings to pay off their creditors. This second course means the end of U.S. prosperity and independence, but it is the course we are now on.

WASHINGTON — The FBI is looking at the court records of a lawsuit filed against a company once headed by Defense Secretary-designate Frank Carlucci. The review of the file is part of the bureau's background check of the veteran government official.

Carlucci left the now-defunct international trading company, Sears World Trade, to replace Adm. John Poindexter as national security adviser after the Iran/contra arms scandal broke last year.

Sheldon Rosenberg, a Miami attorney whose client sued Sears for allegedly cutting him out of the profits on an international trade deal he arranged, told our associate Stewart Harris that FBI agents visited his law office Nov. 4 to study the lawsuit records. The agents had been to the Dade County courthouse

Drug Abuse Increasing

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Despite assurances by the Reagan administration that federal programs have the problem under control, a confidential government study shows increased drug abuse in virtually every part of the country.

The report—"Patterns and Trends of Drug Abuse in the United States and Europe"—was put together by the National Institute on Drug Abuse. NIDA is a branch of the Department of Health and Human Services.

Based on findings by the Community Epidemiology Work Group—which is a force of NIDA experts based in communities throughout the country—the report covers 1986 and the first quarter of 1987.

The report shows drug abuse on the rise all across America. According to the NIDA findings, "Cocaine remains a predominant drug of abuse throughout the country." Also, contrary to some reports that heroin abuse has peaked, the report cites "... continuing and sometimes increasing abuse of heroin."

Among the specific findings: (BU) Emergency-room visits for cocaine abuse rose throughout 1986 and the first part of 1987. Among the cities singled out were New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Phoenix, St. Louis, Miami, Seattle and Detroit. For example, Seattle reported an average of 100 cocaine overdose and abuse emergency-room visits per quarter in 1986 as opposed to an average of 62 the year before.

(BU) Even more disturbing to experts is the rapid growth of intravenous cocaine use, and the mixing of intravenous cocaine with heroin by addicts in many cities. The report noted that "this is particularly distressing in light of the association with AIDS."

(BU) Hospitals are seeing a rising number of heroin abuse cases. New York, Washington, Denver, Phoenix, New Orleans, Seattle, Los Angeles and San Diego are among the cities singled out in this category. Heroin-overdose deaths are on the rise in many cities.

(BU) In several major cities the proportion of female heroin abusers seeking treatment has grown tremendously. In some cities the number of female addicts is almost as great as that of male addicts.

(BU) After being in decline for several years, PCP cases are being seen in sharply increasing numbers in many major urban areas.

(BU) After years of being on the decline, LSD abuse is once again growing in many parts of the country.

Critics charge that the administration is not putting enough effort or money into the fight against illicit drugs. This despite the passage by Congress in 1986 of massive anti-drug legislation giving the federal government sweeping new enforcement authority. Congress also has mandated new programs aimed at stopping illegal drug shipments and lowering demand through both treatment and education.

A particular target has been Attorney General Edwin Meese, who heads the federal government's anti-drug efforts. Every time federal drug agents make a major bust, Meese holds a press conference to trumpet the success. He has also issued reassuring figures that show drug use has peaked and is now starting a decline.

The NIDA report flies in the face of Meese's statements.

Critics also point to the way the NIDA report was handled. Normally reports of this kind are routinely released to the public. But this report was stamped "For Administrative Use Only," and only a limited number of copies were printed.

Bush Has Edge In Manchester

By Andrea Carlos

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — Three months before the New Hampshire primary, George Bush possesses the most potent presidential campaign organization in the state, but his Republican rivals are banking on more than money and manpower to get their message across.

The vice president, who has raised more than $12.5 million nationwide, is second to none when it comes to numbers. His New Hampshire campaign claims about 3,000 volunteers across the state and a staff of 11 full-time paid workers, most of whom work out of a large house not far from the center of Concord.

Yet while many of the Republican campaigns concede Bush is currently the front-runner in terms of organization, few say they have resigned themselves to anything but a win in the state's Feb. 16, 1988, primary—the nation's first.

Republican Senate leader Robert Dole and Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, both of whom have won the backing of at least one member of New Hampshire's congressional delegation, are next in line to Bush in the number of active volunteers.

While Dole's New Hampshire organizers will not disclose the number of their supporters, the figure is believed to be somewhere in the neighborhood of Kemp's, whose campaign claims 1,800 active volunteers across New Hampshire.

Former television evangelist Pat Robertson, whose Manchester campaign headquarters could easily be mistaken for a law firm, claims a corps of about 500 volunteers across New Hampshire.

But when it comes to finances and paid staff, the Robertson campaign is running a close second to Bush. Robertson has raised more than $11.7 million nationwide and has a total of eight full-time paid staff.

Far from acknowledging defeat, the Dole and Kemp campaigns are striving to portray the Republican race for the party's presidential nomination into a two-man contest: their candidate vs. Bush.

"Bob Dole is the clear alternative to the vice president in this state," said Paul Jacobson, Dole's news secretary for New England.

"We see it as a two-man race between Kemp and Bush," said Charles Douglas, Kemp's New Hampshire chairman. "We have to convince people that if you don't want George Bush, you have to go with Jack Kemp as the alternative."

Even those lower in the polls say New Hampshire voters will eventually see them as an alternative to Bush.

FBI Reviewing Carlucci Firm Deals

and discovered that Rosenberg had just checked out the case file.

The FBI refused to say why it was looking into the lawsuit.

The trading deal involved Sears and two Venezuelan aluminum suppliers. In a telex to Rosenberg's client, Richard Swaabe, dated Oct. 31, 1983, Sears World Trade recognized him as the Venezuelan companies' export agent.

"Any contracts where they are suppliers will be channeled thru Richard Swaabe Inc., a negotiating agent," the telex stated. In addition to the telex, Swaabe claims he received oral assurances to the same effect.

Two weeks later, however, an internal Sears memo pointed out the advantages of cutting Swaabe out of the deal. They were:

- "1) Direct contact/communication with the supplier.
- "2) Do not have to deal with

Richard Swaabe Inc. as a principal in this transaction.

"3) Will immediately establish a working relationship with a potentially very good Venezuelan company."

The memo does say that Swaabe would be paid a commission for his efforts, and the memo writer adds that "so long as this is handled in a proper, businesslike fashion, I do not anticipate any problems."

Both the telex and the memo are in the case file.

Simeon Kriesberg, attorney for Sears World Trade at the time, confirmed the authenticity of the telex. But he said it does not fairly represent Swaabe's relationship with the company. Sears' court argument was that Swaabe was merely a broker, and had disqualified himself from a share of the profits by trying to represent both sides in the transaction.

The judge agreed with Sears and threw the case out before it went to a jury. Swaabe is appealing; his lawyers will argue that the judge based his dismissal on case law that applies only to real estate brokers.

Where does Carlucci come into it? As chairman and chief executive officer of Sears World Trade, it is highly likely that he knew about the multimillion-dollar deal Swaabe was arranging—and the decision to cut Swaabe out of the profits.

In fact, the name F. Carlucci appears under the word "Approved" on the minutes of an Oct. 4, 1984, meeting of the Sears transaction committee, which normally had to give written approval for such transactions. The minutes show that the committee decided at the meeting to proceed with the Venezuelan aluminum deal.

Footnote: Carlucci did not respond to our calls for comment.

Iranian Attacks On Oil Tankers Said Retaliation For Iraqi Raids

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — Iranian gunboats attacked two U.S.-owned vessels in the Persian Gulf in two days in apparent retaliation for heavy Iraqi air raids intended to choke off Iranian oil exports.

Gunboats firing rocket-propelled grenades Monday ambushed an Exxon-owned supertanker in the southern Persian Gulf and struck a Greek tanker in the same area two hours later, shipping sources said.

The attacks occurred a day after another U.S.-owned tanker was hit by Iranian forces.

The vessel, laden with Saudi Arabian crude, was reported steaming at full speed out of the gulf after coming under attack off the United Arab Emirates, the shipping insurer Lloyd's of London said. No assistance was required, Lloyd's added, indicating minor damage to the supertanker and no injuries.

Two Nations Restore Egyptian Ties

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — The decision by Saudi Arabia and Bahrain to restore diplomatic ties with Egypt brings to seven the number of Arab nations that have renewed relations with Cairo since last week's Arab summit urged a unified front against Iran.

Bahrain and other Arab Persian Gulf states are worried the Iraq-Iran war might spill across their borders and are eager for Egypt's return to the Arab fold as a counterbalance to the Iranian threat.

Egyptian Prime Minister Atef Sidky, in a policy statement to Parliament Monday, affirmed Egypt's commitment "to support and back Iraq, Kuwait and other Arab states against any aggression or threat."

Saudi and Bahraini officials said Monday ties were resumed with Cairo to secure Arab solidarity in the face of threats against Arab nations — obvious references to non-Arab Iran.

Wright Defending Role In Central American Peace Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Speaker Jim Wright is defending his role in Central American peace efforts against a stern warning from President Reagan about the risk of "confusion" when members of Congress deal with foreign leaders.

Following a White House meeting with the president and top advisers Monday, Wright, D-Texas, turned the tables of criticism on the administration over the issue of negotiating with Nicaragua and Central Americans in general.

"Perhaps if they had an open-door policy toward people in Central America, maybe they'd go see them instead of me," the speaker said, suggesting archly that there "may be a small cadre of (administration) people ... terrorized that peace might break out."

Wright requested the meeting with Reagan after a weekend in which he was assailed by the administration for his discussions last week with Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega, leaders of the U.S.-backed Contra rebels and Catholic Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, asked to be an intermediary in peace talks.

Deficit Cutters Near 'Axe-Day'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anti-deficit negotiators say they have inched "down to the last five yards" in the push for a new tax and spending plan, but President Reagan wants Congress to launch the savings drive by killing an expensive housing bill.

Bargainers conceded that Monday's session, which marked the start of a fourth week of private talks between the administration and Congress, pushed them only slightly closer to agreement.

"We didn't make any progress," Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont., said glumly, "except we're 24 hours closer to the guillotine."

Williams referred to the Friday deadline for agreement on a plan to trim $23 billion from the deficit for fiscal 1988, which began Oct. 1.

Defense Slated To Open Today In Reputed Cocaine King Trial

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — Defense lawyers are scheduled to make opening arguments today in the federal trial of accused Colombian cocaine czar Carlos Lehder Rivas, described as being to "cocaine transportation what Henry Ford was to cars."

During about three hours of opening arguments Monday, U.S. Attorney Robert Merkle called Lehder the driving force behind the "Medellin Cartel", believed to be responsible for about 80 percent of the U.S. cocaine supply and numerous murders in Colombia and the United States.

Lehder, 38, is charged in an 11-count indictment returned in Jacksonville with conspiracy, importation and possession with intent to distribute cocaine. If convicted on all charges, he faces life in prison.

Gunter Condemns Insurance Ads

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter condemned insurance ads for using "scare tactics" and announced new rules designed to eliminate the commercials.

Among the ads for Medicare supplement policies Gunter cited Monday were a pair featuring endorsements from actors Eddie Albert and Dick van Dyke.

"It seems (misleading ads) are growing in intensity. There is more of the scare tactics, the 'we-pay-it-all' by people who are believable, the celebrities," Gunter said.

Gunter announced he had filed administrative charges against four companies for deceptive advertising. Continental American Life Insurance was cited for a misleading ad starring Albert, while National Benefit Life Insurance Co. was cited for ads in which Van Dyke appeared.

Also cited were Union Fidelity Life Insurance Company and National Home Life Assurance Company.

Prof: Don't Cut Social Security

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Cutting Social Security benefits to help ease a national budget crisis would push hundreds of thousands of elderly into poverty and could fuel a recession, a university professor said Monday.

"Cuts in spending for human services programs seem an easy answer," said Jill S. Quadagno of Florida State University. "But it would cut the purchasing power of a sizable percentage of the population — older people who have Social Security as their primary or sole source of income."

Quadagno, holder of the Mildred and Claude Pepper Eminent Scholar Chair in Social Gerontology at Florida State University, said shoring up the Social Security program is essentially a matter of legislation.

SCHOOLS

IN BRIEF

Lyman Students Will Present 'The Diary Of Anne Frank'

"The Diary of Anne Frank," a play about a Jewish girl and others as they hid during the Holocaust, will be performed at Lyman High School at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the school auditorium. Tickets, priced at $3 for adults and $2 for students, can be purchased at the door.

The play's 10 cast members have gone beyond normal rehearsals to recapture the emotions of the refugees who hid from Nazi detection, said Becky Moss, director of the production. "The cast members have read the diary, viewed two different productions of the play, read articles about Anne Frank, and plan to visit the Holocaust Center," she said.

'The Nutcracker' Scheduled

Longwood Elementary plans to celebrate the winter holiday season with the presentation of the musical program "The Nutcracker." In the school auditorium at 840 Orange Ave., a cast of students from kindergarten through fifth grade will present a PTA evening performance at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 1. Admission is free.

SCC Holds Leisure Time Seminar

Seminole Community College is offering a one-day seminar on "Procrastination vs. Productivity" as part of its Leisure Time program.

The seminar, which begins Saturday, will touch on excuses used for procrastination, how to understand why the behavior is common, and how to steps for change. A $10 fee will provide for the instructional cost. More information is available at 323-1450, ext. 303.

Two Local Students Honored

Two Seminole County Schools have honored students for the month of October.

Students of the Month at Sanford Middle School are Laketha Stallworth, Tony Davis, Rachel Swann, Brenda Svalenson, Taressa Gibson, Ronald Brooks, Susan Apperson, Sandy Wright, Deneice Martin, Harold Garmon, Leonard Boule, Kimberly Williams, Dien Tran and Elizabeth Frameli.

Terrific Kids of the Month at Pine Crest Elementary are Shirtonda Wynn and Willy Subbs, kindergarten; Cassandra Cockayne and Michael Hackney, first grade; Carrie Keeling and Darrell Foster, second grade; Amy White and Darwin Graham, third grade; Kelly Bussard and Jacob Hunter, fourth grade; Lara Richard and Khurram Habibi, fifth grade; and Wendy Watson and Chris Lemley, in exceptional student education classes.

"We were all living on hope," Lorraine Burrie, a school district secretary, said Monday. "Now the shock has finally hit. It is finally real, a lot of people were hoping it was just going to be a bad dream."

Classes at Melba High were suspended Monday as students huddled around television sets in the hallways, desperately awaiting word on the fate of their two classmates and Mrs. Daniel. When the dreadful news came, the kids broke into tearful embraces, and school was canceled. All after-school activities for the rest of the week were called off.

"It's like a bomb hit this place," one student said.

United spokesman Dan Sheehy in Chicago said the airline canceled 200 flights throughout its system Sunday, many of them flights going into Denver's Stapleton Airport that were canceled because of bad weather. However, he said he could not confirm that the students' flight was among those until airline officials checked their passenger lists.

Survivor Says Ice Was On Wings Of Continental Jet Before Crash

DENVER (UPI) — A survivor of the crash of Continental Airlines Flight 1713 says he saw ice forming on the wings, but the carrier says the jet was properly de-iced 20 minutes earlier and the "final decision" to take off in a snowstorm was the pilot's.

Investigators are looking at many possible factors in Sunday's crash at Stapleton International Airport that killed 27 of the 82 people aboard the McDonnell Douglas DC-9 en route to Boise, Idaho.

The jetliner's two "black box" flight recorders were retrieved Sunday for examination and National Transportation Safety Board investigators planned to return to the wreckage today for clues to the disaster.

Although more than a dozen people walked away with only minor injuries, seven people remained hospitalized in critical condition today.

The worst crash in the airport's 58-year history began as the airliner lifted off in a driving snowstorm, teetered, then caught its right wingtip in mud alongside the runway, turned over and broke into pieces.

Continental spokesman Bruce Hicks said he did not know whether a snowstorm might have been a factor in the crash on runway 35-Left. Six inches of snow, driven by 20-mph wind gusts, had fallen at the airport, but the runways had been cleared of all but three-eighths of an inch of snow. Bad winter weather is a fact of life at Stapleton. Planes are routinely sprayed with a chemical solution to prevent ice buildup in winter conditions.

Hicks said the jet was de-iced, well within the FAA-approved Continental de-icing guidelines, using a special mixture heated to 190 degrees and applied about 20 minutes before takeoff.

"There is no time element in the plan because conditions differ," Hicks said. "The captain makes the final decision (to take off). He understands — based on his training and experience — how to make those decisions."

Capt. Frank Zvonke, 43, of Carlsbad, Calif., who was killed, was an 18-year veteran of the carrier with 12,000 hours in the cockpit. His co-pilot, Lee Brucher, 26, who also died, joined the airline in July and was an FAA-licensed flight instructor.

Hicks said the Zvonke was under no pressure to pilot his jet down the Stapleton runway. "There's never been a pilot penalized for not going," he said.

FAA spokesman Dick Meyer in Seattle said each airline is required to have a de-icing plan as part of the carrier's operations plan but guidelines can be different for each airline. NTSB spokesman Ted Lopathewicz said investigators will review Continental's de-icing procedures.

August Crash Near Detroit Killed 154

Northwest Flight's 225 Wing Flaps In Wrong Position, Experts Claim

ROMULUS, Mich. (UPI) — Experts told a hearing into the nation's second-worst airline disaster that Northwest Flight 255's wing flaps and slats were in the wrong position for takeoff and a pilot who says he saw otherwise was tricked by an "optical illusion."

If the jet's crew had put the flaps and slats in the correct takeoff position, the airliner would have soared two football fields above the light pole it struck, the witnesses told the National Transportation Safety Board Monday on the opening day of weeklong public hearings.

The jetliner hit the utility pole seconds after takeoff Aug. 16 at Detroit Metropolitan Airport and crashed in a fireball on a highway, killing 154 of 155 people aboard and two people on the ground.

John B. Drake, the National Transportation Safety Board's chief investigator into the crash, said investigators are certain the flaps and slats were in the retracted rather than extended position when the MD-80 lifted off for Phoenix.

But Douglas Allington, a Northwest pilot who saw the takeoff from another plane 150 feet away, testified that the flaps and slats were in the correct position on Flight 255 and that he saw "absolutely nothing" abnormal about the doomed jetliner.

Allington said he had a clear view of the jetliner and plenty of time to look at it. He said he saw the entire takeoff and that "up to about 25 feet the aircraft appeared to be normal."

Then, he said, the plane went into a 10 to 15 degree roll. It accelerated and appeared to be under control, but then went into a sharper roll and struck a utility pole, he said.

"My observation was that the plane would have been able to fly out of the condition had it not hit the light pole," Allington said.

Asked about Allington's testimony, Ralph Bumbry, performance engineer for McDonnell Douglas of Long Beach, Calif., called it an illusion.

"There is a preponderance of evidence the slats and flaps were in the retracted position and perhaps it was an optical illusion the gentleman saw," Bumbry said.

Drake testified that information obtained from both the jet's cockpit voice recorder and flight data recorder indicate that the flaps and slats were in the fully retracted position when they should have been in the extended position.

The handle in the cockpit that controls the flaps and slats also were in the wrong position, he said.

NTSB investigators and the Airline Pilots Association disagreed over the likelihood that the jet's crew was warned electronically about the flaps and slats.

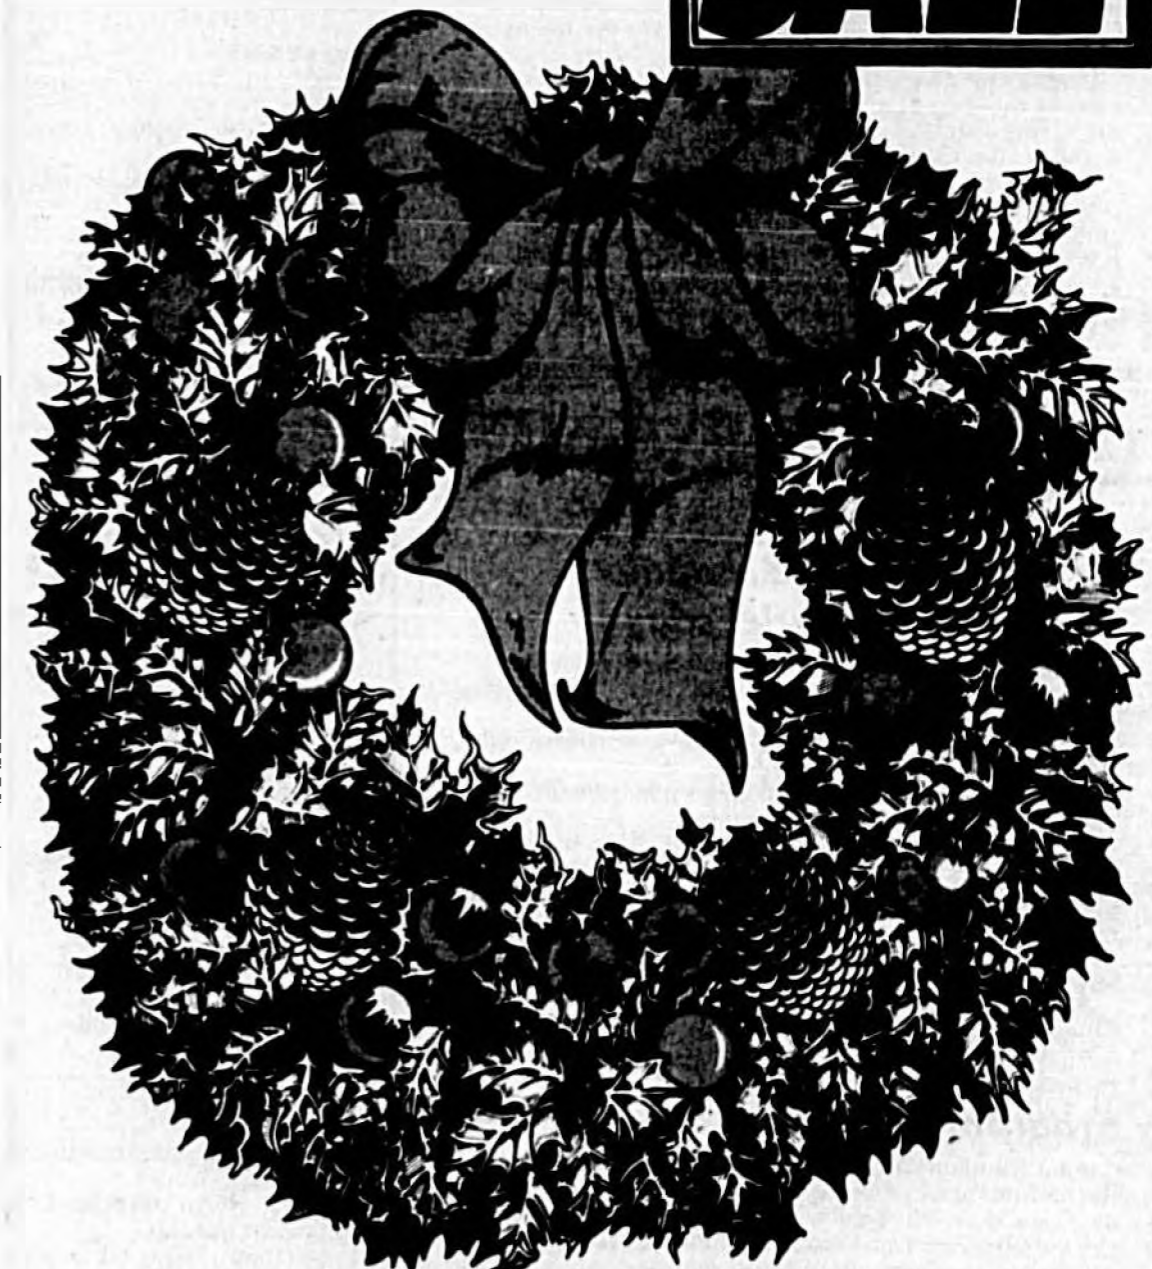

Before the hearing, a union official told a news conference that a key backup warning system that might have told the crew something was wrong probably was not working.

Capt. Don McClure, an Eastern Airlines pilot and head of the APA's accident investigation board, said an annunciator board — a lighted panel above the cockpit — should say "COWS Failure" in the event of an aircraft power failure. COWS stands for Central Oral Warning System. He said the MD-80 jet is designed with such a warning system but the system does not work.

In addition, he said the NTSB's examination of the last 32 minutes of cockpit conversation indicated that "the captain did not call for the taxi check list before or during the taxiing of the airplane from the assigned gate to runway 3-C. Neither was there a challenge and response dialogue between the captain and first officer regarding the individual items on the taxi check list."

Lyman's Rogers, Lady Tribe Relay No. 1 In Nation

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

Already established as a state power in track, Seminole County earned a spot in the national spotlight as Lyman High's Robin Rogers and the Seminole High girls mile relay team each posted No. 1 times in the nation this past season according to the recent edition of the Track and Field News.

Rogers ran the best high school time of the year in the 10,000 meters with a 31:38.5 at the Florida Relays in Gainesville last spring. His time was the only by a prep runner to qualify for the TAC Jr. National meet (qualifying standard was anything under 32 minutes).

"That race at the Florida Relays was something I planned on and trained for for four months."

Track

Rogers said, "Not many high schoolers attempt that distance and I made a lot of sacrifices to run that race. But it was definitely worth it."

Lyman coach Fred Finke said Rogers' time at the Florida Relays impressed a great many people, including over 100 college coaches who sent letters of interest to Finke. Rogers has narrowed his college choices to Florida State, East Tennessee State and Georgia.

"I'm hoping to get a full ride to one of the colleges," Rogers said. "I went up to Florida State at Oct. 31 for a visit and ran by personal record in the 5,000 (15:08) so that should help if I choose FSU."

At the present time, Rogers is a senior at Lyman High but is too old to compete at the high school level. Rogers was held back a year in school because of his size. He currently trains with the Lyman High cross country team and runs on the Track Shack Grand Prix circuit.

Among the upcoming meets Rogers is shooting for the Seminole Winter Classic in January, the Kodak Invitational 5,000 meters at East Tennessee and the Tenneco Relays 10,000 at FSU.

"I'm aiming for the two races on the track (Kodak and Tenneco)," Rogers said. "There are supposed to be some big names at the Tenneco meet and it should be a good open meet for me." The Seminole High mile relay team was the No.

1 ranked foursome on the Track and Field News All-American Team. The Seminole relay, which capped off the team's second consecutive Class 4A State Championship, ran a season's best time of 4:45.8 which was No. 1 in the country by a full second over the next fastest team (out of California).

The Lady Seminole's mile relay included Dorchelle Webster, Yolanda Baker, Adrian Hillman and Shownda Martin. All four of those runners will be back this season as Webster and Martin are seniors, Hillman a junior and Baker a sophomore.

"It's really phenomenal that two top times in the nation are coming from a small county like Seminole," Finke said. "That doesn't happen very often."

Armwood Possesses Impressive Power

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

To make the roster of coach Claudette Rice's Seffner Armwood team, players need only to keep one word in mind — power.

As far as power teams go in the state of Florida, Armwood may be the ultimate. Rice says every player on her team has the ability to put down a kill when given a good set.

Armwood has used its impressive power to build a 24-3 record and earn its first ever berth in the Class 4A State Tournament. Armwood, a fourth-year school, takes on Miami Sunset in Friday night's second semifinal, scheduled for 5 p.m., at Lake Brantley High School. The first semifinal has host Lake Brantley taking on Fort Walton Choctawhatchee (4 p.m.) and the final is slated for 8 p.m.

"Our greatest strength is offense," Rice said. "We're totally well-balanced. Everyone on the team can hit the ball and hit it hard. If our serve receive is good I think our offense can dominate almost anybody. I've never seen another high school team who has a stronger offense than we do."

The Armwood starting lineup boasts three players 5-11 or taller, including 6-5 middle blocker Debbie Payne, 6-1 middle blocker Shannon Pack and 5-11 outside hitter Kim Dix.

"Payne's main strength is blocking," Rice said. "If she backs off the net far enough, though, and gets a good approach she can hit it hard and straight down."

Of all the power hitters in the Armwood lineup, though, Rice says the best is 5-8 Lisa Peterson.

"She has an excellent vertical leap and is our most powerful hitter," Rice said of Peterson. "She has been first team all-conference since her freshman year and was the first pick from our area this year for the state all-star team."

Peterson also does some setting in Armwood's 5-2 offense while Darcy Hand is the other setter and Leslie Barnes provides additional strength as outside hitter.

Armwood comes out of an area that is traditionally strong in volleyball. Brandon High, in Armwood's district, won the state title two of the last three years.

"Every year we've had a really good team but we could never get by Brandon in the district," Rice said. "We finally put it together and beat them this year."

Armwood defeated Gibsonton East Bay, Plant City and Brandon in the district, then downed Tampa Galther in the region and Clearwater in the section. Friday's match will not be the first meeting between Armwood and Sunset. In fact, it is sort of a grudge match for Armwood.

"We played Sunset in the Tampa Bay Invitational and they beat us, 16-14, 7-15, 15-5," Rice said. "We've been wanting all along to play them again and we're glad we drew them first so we'd get to play them for sure."

Syracuse No. 1 In Preseason Poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — Louisville, a basketball program many try to emulate, is being pointed to for another reason by Syracuse Coach Jim Boeheim.

Boeheim wants his Orangemen to avoid the fate that befell the Cardinals a year ago. Coming off the 1986 NCAA title, Louisville was ranked first in the nation before last season but struggled to an 18-14 record.

Syracuse just missed the 1987 NCAA championship, losing by a single point to Indiana, and Monday earned the No. 1 spot in the preseason rankings by United Press International's Board of Coaches.

"My biggest job is to convince our players that what happened last year isn't going to win any games for us this year," Boeheim said. "The No. 1 rating is based on last year. We had a great year and we have some key guys back. But college basketball has such a balance of power that seven or eight teams could get the No. 1 ranking. But we are proud to get it."

Syracuse returns center Rony Seikaly, forward Derrick Coleman and guard Sherman Douglas from last year's 31-7 team. Also back are key reserves Stevie Thompson, Derek Brower and Keith Hughes.

The Orangemen garnered 17 of a possible 42 first-place votes and finished with 542 points in the balloting to outdistance No. 2 North Carolina, which had three No. 1 votes and 493 points.

The Tar Heels, who were also ranked second in last year's preseason voting, return two starters: center J.R. Reid and

The Orangemen and Tar Heels meet Saturday in the Hall of Fame Tip-Off Classic in Springfield, Mass. Syracuse beat North Carolina when the teams played in last year's NCAA East Regional final.

Rounding out the preseason Top 10 were defending national champion Indiana, Michigan, Pittsburgh, Purdue, Kentucky, Kansas, Missouri and Arizona.

Louisville heads the second 10, with Wyoming ranked 12th.

Banking On Quality Talented Brantley Shoots For 4A State Crown

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

At the district level in swimming, the team with the numbers will usually win out over the team with fewer swimmers but better quality. It's one of the few times where a Volkswagen could beat a Mercedes Benz.

When you get to the state level, though, you want that Mercedes in your garage.

Lake Brantley's Lady Patriots, second to the big-in-numbers Winter Park team at district, have the top-of-the-line quality that they hope will make a difference in this Saturday's Class 4A State Championships at the Justus Aquatic Center in Orlando.

"We know the only reason Winter Park beat us at district was their numbers," Lake Brantley senior Lisa Moon said. "We won every event except one. We swam well at district and none of us that made state were tapered. I think we have a really good shot at winning."

Swimming

The Class 4A State Meet will begin Saturday morning at 9 with preliminaries. Finals are slated for Friday night at 7.

Lake Brantley primarily relied on four swimmers to earn a second place at state a year ago. In 1987, the Lady Patriots have seven top-notch performers and believe that much quality will be hard to beat.

"We have seven very strong swimmers qualified to go to state and we feel we can do very well," senior Christy Bridgewater said. "We hope to get every girl to the championship finals for big points and for the relays to score well. I think both of our relays can win."

Bridgewater, who placed in the state in both the 500 freestyle and 200 free last year, is looking for her top times ever Saturday. Last year, she was fourth in the 500 free at 5:01.1 and third in 200 with an All-American time of 1:52.1.

"I haven't swam quite as fast as last season but that's because I've worked harder and have been pretty tired," Bridgewater said. "I'll taper this week, do less quantity and more quality workouts and shoot for my best times at state."

"I want to break 5:00 in the 500 free because that's a barrier I've been trying to get beyond for some time," added Bridgewater. "And I'm hoping to go All-American and place as high as I can in both events."

Bridgewater will also swim a leg on the 400 free relay team that the Lady Patriots hope will take it all Saturday. Also swimming on that team are Lisa Moon, Jennifer Moon and Jody Lake.

"I think it will be a fast relay," Bridgewater said. "We'll go faster than our time last year and hope to win it."

Along with the free relay, Lisa Moon will compete in the

Elway Outguns McMahon

DENVER (UPI) — John Elway and Jim McMahon both did what they do best Monday night.

Elway put on a dazzling display before the home crowd and brought his team from behind twice for a much-needed victory.

McMahon, meanwhile, touched off a controversy, just as he has done so often in his flamboyant career.

Elway threw for 341 yards and had three scoring passes on a chilly evening, overcoming 14- and 8-point deficits to bring the Broncos a 31-29 victory that kept them in the playoff chase. Denver improved to 5-3-1 while Chicago dropped to 7-2.

"I have to let it sink in," Elway said. "This was a tremendous game for us. This puts us back in the hunt and is a big, big confidence builder."

Denver, however, was helped along by a strange turn of events, midway through the second quarter that altered the complexion of the rest of the evening.

McMahon enjoyed the most productive game of his career, completing a personal-high 311 yards worth of passes, throwing for three touchdowns and running for another.

But with his team poised on the Denver goal line in the second period, about 15:30 up by two touchdowns, McMahon decided to change a play sent in by Coach Mike Ditka.

William "Refrigerator" Perry had been sent in as a decoy on the third-down play, but McMahon decided to hand Perry the ball instead.

Perry fumbled. Denver's Mark Haynes recovered and his return to the Broncos' 24-yard line set up a game-tying touchdown.

That decision brought a sharp rebuke from Ditka after the game.

"We're a very undisciplined football team," Ditka said. "I've never been this disappointed before. It's hard to win when you have no discipline. A coach can't give a team discipline. The guys won't sacrifice. We have a lot of trouble and I'm not just talking smoke."

"Perry was never supposed to touch the ball. The play was changed at the line of scrimmage."

McMahon admitted his mistake.

"I screwed up," he said. "I thought he could score, but I never should have handed him the ball. If we had scored there it would have been 21-7 and a different ballgame."

The Bears drove 90 and 86 yds the first two times they had the ball and went ahead, 14-0, on McMahon touchdown throws of 51 yards to Willie Gault and 6 yards to Cap Boso.

Thanks in part to the Perry fumble, Denver scored three times in the second quarter to take the halftime lead, the touchdowns coming on Elway passes of 22 yards to Vance Johnson, 22 yards to Mark Jackson and 35 yards to Ricky Nattiel. The last two passes came inside the two-minute warning.

Chicago reclaimed the lead in the third quarter with 15 points, McMahon throwing a 26-yard scoring pass to Gault and diving over from the 1-yard line for another touchdown before Kevin Butler kicked a 42-yard field goal. The Bears, however, botched both extra points in the third quarter.

Denver then rallied again on a 27-yard field goal by Rich Karlis, with 12:20 left and a 4-yard, game-winning touchdown by Steve Sewell with 4:58 to go.

The last touchdown was set, when McMahon threw an interception deep in Denver territory, a ball picked off by K.C. Clark, one of the few replacement players still in the Denver camp.

Glare Frequent Cause Of Nighttime Accidents

Ever been lost at night on a strange highway? You turn on the interior lights and get out a map. The car's movement makes it difficult to find the area you want and the light destroys your night vision to the point that if an object were in your way you wouldn't see it. It's the same with being uncertain of your location on the water.

Although having a chart in unfamiliar waters is important, it isn't what is significant here. Many people go boating at night who can't see beyond their windshields. The problem is glare, one of the most frequent causes of nighttime accidents. Not the glare from lights on shore, but the glare from the lights on their own boats. Their navigational lights.

While almost all manufacturers adhere to applicable portions of the Navigational Rules, a lingering problem is many builders fail to actually test navigational light installations to determine whether glare at the helm is a problem. This means some boat operators are forced to find their own solutions. Sometimes glare is so severe people turn off their navigation lights or put a sock over the masthead light. Other skippers try steering while standing up or while seated on the

HERALD
BOATING

gunwale or seatback. That explains why collisions with other boats aids to navigation or the shore aren't the only accidents caused by glare. There are also falls overboard.

The ALL AROUND LIGHT is the most frequent source of complaints about glare. The all-around light is a 360° light which may be installed on any powerboat less than 12 meters (39.36 feet) in length. Boats which lack an above gunwale superstructure such as a cabin, e.g. runabouts, bowriders, bassboats, etc. usually display an all-around light. One reason for the glare problem on these boats involves the storage of the fixture during the day. The typical all-around light installation on a bowrider, for example, consists of a telescoping rod attached near the stern of the boat. During the day the operator can lower the fixture to where it is flush with the deck or gunwale and out of the way. At dusk the operator loosens a threaded sleeve, pulls up the rod and tightens the sleeve again. With sidelights, usually combined into a single fixture on the bow, the boat now complies with INLAND NAVIGATIONAL RULES.

Unfortunately, the maximum height to which the telescoping rod will extend is usually dependent on the distance from the gunwale to the bottom of the boat. With the all-around light installed so far aft, the boat operator usually has a great view of the boat's shiny foredeck or rails, but the boat could be on a collision course and the operator would never know it.

Masthead lights also create nighttime visibility problems. The masthead light is a 225° light required on powerboats over 12 meters long. Some builders of small cabin cruisers less than 12 meters also install masthead lights. On these boats the glare problem from navigational lights is a matter of appearance rather than one of storage. Admittedly, a tall mast on a commercial trawler usually contributes to the overall appearance of the boat, but putting a mast on a small cabin cruiser or a boat with a fly bridge tends to make the boat look top heavy. Perhaps this explains why masthead lights are frequently installed where they can produce dangerous amounts of glare.

A properly installed navigation light complies with the Rules of the Road and does not produce glare. This means that the light shines in the correct direction, is invisible to the operator of the boat on which it is installed and does not shine on any parts of the boat. Basically, the boat should sit in a shadow. Instead of creating a shadow, the problem with most navigation lights is the light beam "spills" downward.

BOATERS' TIP: What needs to be done is to eliminate spill from the navigation light through what is known as "shielding." A future article will explore ways and methods of shielding. HAVE A SAFE BOATING DAY.

3 County Teams Ranked

All three Seminole County teams going to the Class 4A State Meet Saturday will go in ranked in the top 10 in the state. In the boys division, Lyman High maintained its No. 5 spot in the state rankings by finishing second at the Region 3 meet.

In the girls, Lake Howell, after winning the region, moved ahead of Palm Bay and into the No. 4 spot. Lake Mary, third in the region, is ranked eighth in the state.

Lyman High's Teddy Mitchell and Nick Radkewich remain two of the top-ranked individuals in the state. Mitchell, a sophomore, is second to Largo's Pat McDonough with Radkewich, a junior, fourth. The much-anticipated first meeting between Mitchell and Largo's McDonough will take place this week at the state meet.

Also, Lake Mary's Brad Smith moved back into the top 10 individual with his fourth-place performance at region. Smith qualified for state as an individual as the Rams did not make the team race.

In 3A cross country, Seminole High's Shownda Martin qualified for an individual spot in the state meet by finishing third in the region.

STATE AT TITUSVILLE

For the first time in quite a few years, the State Cross Country Championships will be run at a new site. Instead of the DeLand Airport, it will be held at the Dunn Airpark in Titusville. The day begins with a coaches meeting at 7:30 followed by the Class 4A girls meet at 8:45 boys 9:30; 3A girls 9:30; 2A girls 10:20; 2A boys 10:30; 1A girls 11: and 1A boys 11:30. Awards ceremony is 2 p.m.

Nebraska New No. 1

Cornhuskers Overtake Oklahoma In UPI Poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Nebraska Cornhuskers, who have been second to No. 1 Oklahoma since the preseason, today edged the Sooners by one point to claim the top spot in United Press International's Board of Coaches rankings.

The razor-thin margin set the stage for the biggest college football game of the season Saturday in Lincoln, Neb., when the two schools play for the Big Eight title and an automatic berth in the Orange Bowl.

The Cornhuskers earned 718 points and 21 first-place votes in voting by the 50 coaches. Oklahoma, which has struggled the last two weeks, had 717 points and 27 No. 1 tallies.

"I don't feel being elevated to number one in a poll will make any difference in the outcome of the football game," Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne said. "The matter will be settled on the field, not in the advance hype."

Despite the change up top, the next five teams stayed put with Miami at No. 3, followed by Florida State, UCLA, Syracuse and Notre Dame.

Clemson moved up a spot to eighth, Auburn jumped three positions to No. 9 and Louisiana State moved up a notch to 10th.

19. Alabama (7-3)	16
20. Iowa (6-3)	13

Others receiving votes: Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Indiana, Michigan, Penn State, San Jose State, Wyoming.

No. 11 Michigan State and No. 12 South Carolina each improved two positions. Michigan State leaped four places to 13th. No. 14 Texas A&M made the largest move up, six positions, and No. 15 Tennessee bettered itself by four.

No. 16 Georgia sank eight places and 19th-ranked Alabama plummeted nine. No. 17 Pittsburgh, No. 18 Southern Cal and No. 20 Iowa, all early-season visitors to the rankings, returned.

Indiana, which lost its Big Ten title showdown to Michigan State; Arkansas, a lower in a key Southwestern Conference clash to Texas A&M; and Penn State, defeated by Pittsburgh, all dropped from the Top 20.

In the last five seasons, the two top-ranked teams have been within 10 points only twice, both times in 1985. In Week 1 of the '85 season Oklahoma held a three-point edge over Auburn, and in Week 6, Iowa had a three-point lead over Oklahoma.

Nebraska started the season 187 points behind Oklahoma and has whittled that margin all year, trailing the Sooners by 32 points last week.

"All season we have just concentrated on playing the best we can and let the polls do their thing," Osborne said. "However, we're pleased that the coaches have confidence in our team. But we still have to do it on Saturday."

Nebraska, 9-0, was idle Saturday. Among the Cornhuskers' first four opponents this season were UCLA, South Carolina and Arizona State.

Brewer Killed In Crash

TYLER, Texas (UPI) — Former major-league pitcher Jim Brewer was killed Monday in a head-on collision on a rain-slick road during a thunderstorm, authorities said.

Brewer died at a hospital of massive injuries he suffered about 10 a.m. CST when his car slammed into a car driven by John Stanners Jr., 63, of Marshall, on U.S. 59, 10 miles south of Carthage, said Department of Public Safety officer Vaughn Nelson.

Brewer, 49, of Broken Arrow, Okla., was pronounced dead at 8 p.m. at Medical Center Hospital in Tyler about 70 miles southeast of Carthage.

Details of the accident were not available. The other driver was hospitalized with unknown injuries.

"It's very possible that it could have been weather-related, but we just don't know right now," Nelson said.

There were severe thunderstorms in the area at the time, officials said.

Brewer compiled a 69-65 record and 3.07 ERA in a 17-year major-league career that began with the Chicago Cubs in 1960 and ended with the California Angels in 1976.

With the Los Angeles Dodgers from 1964-75, he appeared in three World Series and one All-Star Game and was the team's all-time leader in games saved.

A native of Merced, Calif., he rejoined the Dodgers this year as a pitching coach for the organization's Great Falls, Mont., team in the Pioneer League. Before that, he coached at Oral Roberts and Northwestern universities.

Brewer recorded 132 saves, 125 with the Dodgers. He compiled 20 or more saves four times, averaging seven victories and 20 saves from 1969 to 1973. Only Don Sutton and Don Drysdale pitched in more games as a Dodger.

Just two weeks ago, Brewer completed an assignment as a pitching instructor at the Dodgers' Instructional League camp in Mesa, Ariz.

Brewer is survived by his wife, Patricia, and children Mark, Scott and Shannan. Services were pending.

Bruce Fired As Ohio State Coach

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Hours after saying he planned to stay at Ohio State, Earle Bruce was fired as coach of the Big 10 school effective at the end of the season.

Ohio State President Edward Jennings, saying he was "under pressure to make a coaching change," Monday ordered the firing of Bruce, but had Athletic Director Rick Bay, a staunch Bruce supporter, make the announcement at an afternoon news conference.

"Earle Bruce, after the game against Michigan, will no longer be the head football coach here at Ohio State," Bay said, then promptly announced his own resignation.

"I told the president earlier, when we were discussing all these rumors, that I could not be a part of that," Bay said. "So, I have resigned as athletic director."

Bruce has compiled an 80-26-1 record in nine years with Ohio State and won four Big Ten titles.

Bruce, accompanied by his wife, Jean, told his weekly media luncheon he planned to stay at Ohio State through the final year of his three-year contract.

"I don't have much to say, damn it," Bruce said Monday evening after learning of his firing. "They have the right to fire a person but I think it's very poor timing, right before the Michigan game, the most important game on our schedule. I don't think that's quite fair to our players."

"I'm a Buckeye. So are most of my coaching staff. I'm kind of proud of what I've done here, not only what I've done on the football field, but also in the classroom, with kids getting an education. I worked hard at my job and I'm loyal to Ohio State."

Football

This year's Buckeye team, favored to win the Big Ten and ranked third in the nation in the pre-season ratings, stands 5-4-1 overall and 3-4 in the conference. They have lost three in a row.

Bay, who became athletic director at Ohio State three years ago, said he could never understand the criticism aimed at Bruce.

"It's been a mystery to me that Coach Bruce has been under fire at one point or another all the time I've been here," Bay said. "I know that he has not been totally popular in some quarters, but I think that would be true of anybody who is here."

"I think he's done a whole of a job. He has won 75 percent of his games. His record is among the very best in the country."

"Furthermore and most important," added Bay, "he's done it with integrity. I don't know what more you can ask of any coach. My heart goes out to Coach Bruce and the entire staff. It's a dark day for Ohio State."

If the Buckeyes lose to the Wolverines, it would mark the first time since 1943 an Ohio State team has lost four in a row. Bay said despite the outcome of Saturday's game against Michigan, Ohio State will not play in a bowl game this season. It will snap a string of 15 consecutive bowl appearances for the Buckeyes.

Jennings, in a one-page release distributed at the news conference, said Bay will be replaced immediately by senior associate director of athletics James Jones. Bay, however, will stay with the university until the end of June on special assignment to the president's office.

Bruce took over the Ohio State team following the firing of Woody Hayes on New Year's Day 1979. Hayes, another strong supporter of Bruce, one of his former assistants, died last March.

Bruce returned to Ohio State from Iowa State, where, in six years, he revived the Cyclone football fortunes with a 36-32 record. Prior to that, he coached one year at the University of Tampa, posting a 10-2 record, and served six years under Hayes at Ohio State.

Following last January's Cotton Bowl win over Texas A&M, Bruce turned down a lucrative multi-year offer from the University of Arizona, deciding, at Bay's urging, to remain at Ohio State.

"That decision was the right decision for me and my family," he said at his media luncheon. "We thought we would have a good football team and a good season. Some things have happened that have made it a little longer than you'd expect."

50 freestyle and the 100 free. A year ago, she was fourth in the state in the 100 (54.0) and fifth in the 50 (25.0).

"I'm hoping to win an individual event this year," Moon said. "I'd like to do my best times but I don't really concentrate on times. When I go in to swim my races, I just look to win."

Moon believes both the free relay and the 200 medley relay will win and build up some big points in the Lady Patriots' quest for the state title.

"My sister (Jennifer) has been a big asset on both relays for us and, with all of us on the relay teams doing our best, I think we can win both of them," Lisa Moon said. "The relays is what scores the highest and we have to do well in those in order to win."

The 200 medley relay consists of Jennifer Moon, Mandia Davis, Kristen Pauley and Lake Moon. Moon does the backstroke, Davis the butterfly, Lake the freestyle and Pauley the breaststroke. All four will also compete in individual events.

Davis, a junior, is one of the best around in the 200 individual medley and could be a dominant force in that event as well as the 100 breaststroke if she's at her best. Jennifer Moon, a freshman, has given the Lady Patriots the strength they needed in the backstroke. Pauley, a senior, is a solid performer in the 200 free and Lake, also a senior and perhaps the most improved swimmer in Central Florida, is one of the top sprinters in the area (50 free, 100 free).

The Lady Patriots also qualified Dant Ohnsman who will look to provide additional points in the 200 IM.

"We're hoping quality will win out over quantity at state," Lake Brantley coach Clay Parnell said. "We know the competition will be tough from Seminole (St. Petersburg) and Pensacola Washington but we have a shot at taking first this year."

The Mercedes is in the garage, now the Lady Patriots hope to drive it to a state championship.

RACING ROUNDUP Faulk Outfoxes Gast

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — After outfoxing early leader Billy Gast in traffic on lap 18, Lee Faulk went on to win the 25-lap Late Model feature on Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway.

Faulk, in the new Champion TV Rentals Firebird, established himself as a strong favorite to win the 10th Annual Florida Cracker 200 Late Model State Championship scheduled for this Sunday afternoon. (Nov. 22) here at New Smyrna Speedway.

Gast, a veteran dirt tracker, who also does very well on asphalt, held off the extra strong pressure applied by Faulk till lap 18. At that point, the pair split around a lapped car, with Faulk coming out in the lead at the end of the front straightaway.

Joe Middleton was third, followed by fastest qualifier Greg Froemming and Stan Eads.

In the Limited Late Model main, David Russell took an easy "cake walk" win. Jerry Fitch was second, followed by Texan Rick Rapp and Jeff Earmhardt.

Gary Salvatore won the Florida modified feature.

Among the other feature winners were Wayne Marshall in the Roadrunner class, big Mike Keither in the Sportman division, Jerry Symons in the Four Cylinder class and Michael Williams in the "A" Bombers.

The "B" Bomber feature winner was Donnie Funk.

Art Chapman and Gary Salvatore won the Great American Sack Race, with the Detroit Demolition going to Ken Gryski.

Longwood's Meridith Wins

ORLANDO—Ed Meridith held off teammate David Russell to win the 25-lap Late Model feature on Friday night at Orlando Speed World. Third was Arnold Bovat, followed by "Rapid" Ron DiCandio.

The Sportman feature winner was Sid Siles.

Bobby Sears drove the Skip's Shoes and Western Boots Pinto to victory in the Mini-Stock main.

Two Indiana drivers, Terry Goff and Bill Luce, dominated the Three Quarter Midget action, as they took first and second finishing spots over a strong field of Sunshine State pilots.

The Florida Modified finale went to Gary Salvatore.

A rare dead-heat finish took place at the conclusion of the "B" Bomber main, with division's defending champion Rick Johns and Butch Pierce crossing the finish line dead-even.

Teenage race driver Ricky Marshall won the "A" Bomber main.

Cracker Weekend Set

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — The Tenth Annual "Cracker 200" weekend will start on Friday night, Nov. 20th at Orlando Speed World with a 100-lap Super Late Model race.

Then, on Saturday night, Nov. 21 at New Smyrna Speedway, the Super Late Models will compete in a 50-lap "Cracker 200" tune-up.

The next afternoon, Sunday, Nov. 22 at 2 p.m., the 200-lap classic will be preceded by feature events for all the supporting divisions.

In last year's Cracker 200, Daniel Keene, who lives 150 miles away, slept late Sunday morning, then decided to go racing. So he loaded up his three-year old race car on a small trailer, threw a jack in the back of his pick-up truck and took off down Interstate Four.

If the race had not been delayed by rain, he would have been too late, but luck stayed with him this time. Once he reached the track, he found an open parking spot next to Jack Cook's team. Cook's crew serviced Keene's car on his pit stop, allowing him to beat David Rogers back on the track and win the race. Lee Faulk was third, followed by Tim Noonan, Frank Wood and Jack Cook. All those cars were in the lead lap at the finish.

Two years ago, looking as good as he did in 1972 when he took New Smyrna's World Series title, NASCAR Winston Cup driver Joe Ruttman won the eight Annual Cracker 200. Three former track champions, David Rogers, LeRoy Porter and Jack Cook crossed the line right behind him.

The turning point of the race came on lap 183 when leader Porter and runner-up Rogers tangled and had to restart in the back of the pack, allowing Ruttman to take over the lead and the win.

As this year's Cracker falls between a string of several major Super Late model events taking place in Florida and other southern states, many of the top traveling pros are expected to be at New Smyrna Speedway on Sunday, Nov. 22.

Hillin Nears $1 Million

HAMPTON, Ga. — Bobby Hillin hopes to become NASCAR racing's youngest $1 million winner in the season-ending Atlanta Journal 500 Nov. 22 at Atlanta International Raceway.

Hillin's Miller American Racing teammate, Bobby Allison, will try to maintain his ninth-place position in the point standings in the NASCAR finale.

Hillin, 23, has amassed $990,242 in 118 career Winston Cup starts and needs to finish 11th or better in Atlanta to surpass to $1 million mark.

"Surpassing the million-dollar mark was a goal we established entering the season," said Hillin. "I just wish we could have done it before now. Maybe it'll happen in grand fashion, with my Miller American team winning the Atlanta race."

Allison, ninth in the NASCAR Winston Cup standings with 3,370 points, will try to hold off Ken Schrader, Geoff Bodine and Sterling Marlin for the position. Schrader, who is tenth, has 3,342 points, 28 points behind Allison. Bodine is 11th with 3,258 and Marlin is 12th with 3,243. The point fund pays the ninth-place finisher $40,000 more than tenth place.

DeLand's Raymond Green eyes Lake Mary linebacker Lance Stewart. DeLand and Lake Mary, along with Lake Howell, will take part in a three-way playoff this coming Monday for the District 5A-4 championship and a berth in the state playoffs.

5A-4: District Deadlock Howell, Mary, DeLand Playoff For Title Monday

It's finally over! Fans, coaches and sports writers alike have been speculating for the past few weeks as to what the outcome of the District 5A-4 would be. It appeared as though the most likely outcome would be a three-way tie between DeLand, Lake Howell, and Lake Mary.

And that's exactly what happened. DeLand's 14-0 win over Lyman last Friday night caused the district tie. If Lyman would have upset the Bulldogs, Lake Howell would have won the district.

A three-way playoff will be played on Nov. 23. The site has not been determined as yet. A Kansas Tiebreaker System will be used to break the tie. One team will be awarded with a bye, and will take on the winner of the first tiebreaker.

The team that came out of matters best last week was the Lake Mary Rams. The Rams won the Seminole Athletic Conference even though they beat Daytona Beach Mainland, 33-0, in a 5A-4 game. Lake Howell's 26-20 loss to Seminole gave the Rams the SAC crown.

Seminole played nearly flawless football in its win over the Silver Hawks. Seminole offensive coordinator Emery Blake mixed a strong passing attack with a solid running game.

"We knew what we wanted to do against them coming in," Blake said. "It was just a matter of sound execution."

Seminole (6-3 overall) will end the regular season next week when it travels to DeLand for a SAC clash. The "Noles" have won four in a row. Seminole will host the District 5A-4 winner on Nov. 27.

"We still need to win the game next week," Seminole coach Roger Beathard said. "We want to have as much momentum as possible going into the playoff game and this win should help us out quite a bit."

The game was a see-saw affair. The winning touchdown came after Lake Howell running back Marquette Smith dashed 45 yards for the go-ahead touchdown with just seven minutes left. The jaunt gave Howell a brief 20-19 edge.

Quarterback Jeff Blake had another fine game. Blake, a rifle-armed senior, threw for 147 yards and two touchdowns. "I had a lot of time back there," Blake said. "My offensive line did a very good job today."

The loss broke Lake Howell's four-game winning streak and dropped its record to 5-4. Howell will end the regular season next week when it travels to Oviedo.

"We are unhappy about losing, but we all know that we can rebound from it," offensive guard Jason Rosenblatt said. "Seminole is a good team, and it could have gone either way."

Howell defensive end Greg Astle said that the "Noles" were the best team that Howell has faced. "Blake is a great quarterback," Astle said. "We have been hearing all season long about how good he was, and it is true."

Lake Howell coach Mike

Biceglia said that the big plays hurt this team. "We got beat on three big plays," Biceglia said. "They are a very fast team, and it was a heck of a game."

Lake Mary figured to have an easy time with Mainland, and it did. The Rams broke out to a 33-0 halftime lead and coasted in the second half. The Rams (7-2) will travel to Apopka on Friday in a non-district/non-conference meeting.

After his best performance of his career in Lake Mary's 33-7 win over Oviedo two weeks ago, Lake Mary quarterback Carlos Hartsfield had another superb game against the Hues. Hartsfield threw for two touchdowns and ran for another.

Fullback Ray Williams also had a big game, running for touchdowns of 25 and 65 yards.

Lyman's loss to DeLand may have extinguished any bowl hopes for the Greyhounds. Lyman is 5-4 overall. The "Hounds" may have lost tailback Victor Farrier, the SAC leading rusher, for next week's season finale against Lake Brantley. Farrier had to leave the game against DeLand as he suffered a bruised ribs. Farrier suffered the same injury early in the season, and it took him a while to fully recuperate from it.

Oviedo lost a heartbreaker last Thursday to Orlando Edgewater, 15-14. The Lions had numerous opportunities to win the game, but missed two field goals and had the winning touchdown called back on a penalty. The Lions have lost five in a row and are 3-6.

Lake Brantley ended a four-game losing streak with a 21-19 victory over Spruce Creek.

Patriot quarterback, Scott Meridith, substiting for injured starter Clint Johnson, threw for one touchdown and ran for another. Wide receiver Nigel "Hands" Hinds caught a pair of touchdown passes.

Hanika Stuns Evert

NEW YORK (UPI) — After closing out the worst year of her career with a stunning defeat, Chris Evert could feel only a sense of relief.

On Monday night, there was little resemblance to the woman who has won a record 153 tournaments as Evert dropped a 6-4, 6-4 decision to Sylvia Hanika in the opening round of the $1 million Virginia Slims Championships.

Playing an opponent against whom she hadn't dropped a single set in 14 previous meetings, Evert struggled with her serve all night, committing eight double faults, six of them in the opening set.

When it was over, Evert wanted only to go home, rest for six weeks, and re-evaluate her commitment for 1988.

"I obviously thought I'd win the match, but after two or three games, when I saw how I was playing, I didn't have a whole lot of confidence," said Evert, who turns 33 next month. "The emotion I felt was disappointment that I couldn't play up to my standard."

"I'm also a little relieved that the year is over. It's been a long year for me, and I haven't been home for more than 10 days at a time."

Hanika, whose ranking dropped to as low as No. 110 before recovering to 14, used an aggressive serve-and-volley game, even attacking behind her second serve on occasion.

In the opening match of the evening, sixth seed Gabriela Sabatini defeated Bettina Bunge, 6-2, 7-6 (7-2).

Evert winds up her year with a match record of 72-13, equalling her career high for losses set in 1979. For the first time in 14 years she failed to win a Grand Slam title, and her ranking of No. 3 is the worst of her career.

"I've had four or five matches this year when I played below my standards, and that hasn't happened before," Evert said. "I just have to think that nature is taking its course."

Evert has endured an emotional year as well, including her divorce to John Lloyd, and she feels this has affected her game.

"I'm not that unemotional that I don't take it onto the court with me," she said. "But now I feel happy, but also disappointed. I've been on the road since I was 16, and now I'm 32. ... I think it's hitting me more than ever now that I don't want to be a gypsy. I want to stay home and do things like a normal girl."

Helped immeasurably by Evert's serving woes, Hanika had 14 break points during the one hour and 23 minute match against three for her opponent, The West German left-hander, two weeks shy of her 28th birthday, broke serve in the first and seventh games of the opening set.

Evert managed to take a 2-0 lead in the second set, only to see Hanika break back in the third and fifth games, and then run out the match.

"I didn't let her play very well," said Hanika, who has been working the last couple of weeks with Mike Estep, the former coach of Martina Navratilova. "I was upsetting her rhythm."

Group Criticizes 'Gotcha' Gun

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The popular "Gotcha" toy guns that shoot paint pellets in much way games have come under attack.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission prepared to release its annual Christmas toy list at an elaborate program complete with Santa Claus.

The Consumer Affairs Committee of Americans for Democratic Action warned toy stores Monday against selling the gun, citing the "mess" the game makes and the danger of putting out a player's eye.

Committee officials said the manufacturer, Entertech, a division of L.J.N. Toys Ltd. of New York, has put the safety burden on retailers by packaging "Gotcha" with a giant warning label. "This is not a toy."

"If the 'Gotcha' gun is not a toy, it should not be sold in toy stores," said Ann Brown, chairwoman of the ADA Consumer Affairs Committee. "Of course, toy stores sell some items that are not toys, but these are not items with a potential danger."

"The danger (with 'Gotcha') is hitting an eye. If a person is not wearing goggles and shoots too close, it could really put out an eye."

The game, which sells for as much as $50 and is suggested for people older than 16, contains a colorful plastic snub-nosed machinegun, goggles and small plastic pellets filled with paint. There also are five paper practice targets, a gun-cleaning kit and a handbook and game manual.

Purchasers also are urged to buy a $10 special protective "Gotcha" outfit, which resembles a painter's suit. "Gotcha" players are urged to play outdoors and not to fire at any person from a distance of less than 5 feet.

Brown said the manufacturer acknowledges by the inclusion of the goggles and the warning label that the gun is potentially dangerous, but the maker protects itself legally by stating "This is not a toy."

Company officials said only "There's no one available to make a statement."

"I predict it's going to be a hot toy for 1987," Brown said. She said one toy store sold out of the guns the day after an advertisement was placed in local newspapers. Another store had only two of the guns left and as the ADA was purchasing one, the store received telephone calls for the other.

Stocks Open Lower

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened sharply lower today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues, pressured by signs that participants in the deficit-reduction talks in Washington were struggling to reach an accord.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 14.08 Monday, was down 24.04 to 1925.08 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 670-234 among the 1,312 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 12,886,000 shares.

Budget negotiators conceded that Monday's session, which marked the start of a fourth week of private talks between the administration and Congress, pushed them only slightly closer to agreement.

"We didn't make any progress," Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont., said gloomily, "except we're 24 hours closer to the guillotine," alluding to the Friday deadline for agreement on a plan to trim $23 billion from the deficit for fiscal 1988, which began Oct. 1.

The stock market staged a final-hour rally Monday to close at higher levels despite the inability of Congress and the White House to provide a deficit-reduction agreement.

The Dow surged nearly 35 points in the opening minutes but then fell a few points into negative territory by mid-afternoon before the final runup.

Reagan's Statements Cause Dollar To Fall

The dollar opened lower on major world money markets Tuesday as currency traders reacted negatively to President Reagan's latest remarks on the budget deficit. Gold pushed higher.

Dealers who were selling the dollar said they were confused over President Reagan's remarks late Monday on the size of the cut he wants in the U.S. budget deficit.

Reagan, in a speech to the American Council of Life Insurers in Washington, said, "we are determined to achieve at least $23 billion reductions this fiscal year and stay on path to a balanced budget."

The currency markets interpreted his remarks as a retreat from the goal he outlined in a radio address last Saturday to cut at least $30 billion from the budget in the current 1988 fiscal year and $50 billion in fiscal 1989.

Dealers said his remarks appeared to be an admission of defeat in the current round of deficit-reduction negotiations between the White House and Congress, as the Gramm-Rudman budget law already mandates $23 billion in spending cuts.

Railroad Postpones Sale

CHICAGO (UPI) — Santa Fe Southern Pacific Corp. delayed the sale of a 267-mile subsidiary and 14 unions agreed to postpone a strike set for Tuesday until a federal court hearing on the railroad's move to bar the job action.

The unions had been set to strike the railroad and its parent Santa Fe Southern Pacific Corp. in protest of plans to abolish 200 jobs as part of the sale of the Toledo, Peoria & Western railway. The unions said the plan violates contracts that set work rules.

Santa Fe Southern Pacific Monday asked U.S. District Judge Harry Levinweber for a temporary restraining order to prevent the strike. He continued a hearing on the request until Friday with both sides agreeing not to take any action.

Court Grants Execution Stay

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Florida Supreme Court voted 4-3 today to grant a stay of execution to Bobby Marion Francis, who faced death later this week for the 1985 murder of a police informant in Key West.

Francis had been scheduled for execution Monday, but won a temporary stay from the high court. He asked the court to extend the stay so officials could not execute him later this week. His death warrant expires at noon Friday.

Justice Raymond Ehrlich, Leander Shaw, Rosemary Barkett and Gerald Kogan agreed he should have more time. Their order said: "The motion for stay of execution is granted and the execution of Bobby Marion Francis is hereby stayed pending further order of this court."

Dissenting were Chief Justice Parker Lee McDonald and Justices Ben Overton and Stephen Grimes.

On Monday, the court granted an indefinite stay to death row inmate Anthony Bertolotti. Like Francis, Bertolotti was originally scheduled to die Monday but received a temporary stay. Before he received the extended stay, Bertolotti's execution had been rescheduled for 7:01 a.m. today.

Francis was sentenced for the 1985 execution-style murder of police informant Titus Walters in Key West. Walters had helped in an investigation that resulted in Francis's arrest for selling drugs.

Francis tied up Walters and, after threatening him with torture and death for two hours, shot Walters in the head. When Walters did not die immediately, Francis shot him in the heart.

Bertolotti was sentenced to die for the 1983 murder of Carol Ward in Orange County. Bertolotti produced a knife and robbed Ward after she let him in her house to use the telephone.

When Ward asked Bertolotti to put the knife down, he became angry and attacked her. She died from 14 stab wounds in her chest and abdomen.

Lawyers for Bertolotti told the court early Monday that Bertolotti's trial lawyer had not given him adequate counsel, and that not enough attention had been given to Bertolotti's mental health problems. They asked for an indefinite stay.

Man's Body At Pony League

The body of a man estimated to be about 35-years-old was found at about 9:30 a.m. today at the PONY League Baseball Field, State Road 418, near Water Springs.

Seminole County sheriff's Lt. George Haged said the man has not been identified and the cause of death had not been determined. An autopsy was scheduled today.

Haged said the man showed signs of physical injuries, and he may have been

Court Upholds Conviction Of Wall Street Reporter

By HENRY J. RESKE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A divided Supreme Court upheld Monday the convictions of a Wall Street Journal reporter charged with violating federal law by giving stockbrokers advance notice of his articles so they would buy and sell stock.

The court split 4-4 to affirm convictions of reporter R. Foster Winans under the Securities Exchange Act, a decision that sets no national precedent.

However, the court ruled 8-0 that trading on the information was within reach of federal wire and mail fraud statutes, a ruling that does set national precedent.

Writing for the court, Justice Byron White said Winans' actions violated wire fraud statutes because it defrauded his newspaper of a real property interest.

"The Journal had a property right in keeping confidential and making exclusive use, prior to publication, of the schedule and contents of the ... columns (Winans wrote)," the court said.

The case was brought to the high court by Winans, a friend of his, and a stockbroker seeking review of a ruling by the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Winans was one of two authors of the influential and widely read "Heard on the Street" column and the charges that he gave stockbrokers advance warning about his upcoming reports caused a major scandal both on Wall Street and at the Wall Street Journal.

Newspaper editors and reporters were also concerned about the concept of Winans being charged and convicted of crimes usually associated with insider trading when all he did was gather information for a newspaper column and had no inside information.

In other actions before beginning a two week recess, the court:

- Let stand a ruling that will provide public access to documents about the development of Agent Orange.
- Rejected, in a dispute over the sanity of an Ohio man convicted of killing a 7-year-old girl, a state appeal of a ruling that a defendant's decision to exercise his right to remain silent cannot be used to dispute his insanity claim.
- Let stand a ruling that Florida courts can bar the public from viewing transcripts of sworn statements given in pre-trial sessions in criminal cases.
- Spared corrections departments nationwide from costly remodeling, rejecting a paraplegic's claim he was discriminated against when placed in a jail that was not equipped for the handicapped.

The Winans' case also involved David Carpenter, Winans' friend who worked as a news clerk at the Journal, and Kenneth Fells and Peter Brant, both stockbrokers at Kidder Peabody.

Winans, who has since written a book about his experience, became one of two writers of the "Heard on the Street" column in March 1981.

In October 1983, Winans entered into an agreement with Brant and Fells to leak information about the content of the columns before they appeared. The column is highly regarded on Wall Street and the stock of companies written about often goes up or down based on the column.

Brant and Fells, and later Winans and Carpenter themselves, traded in stocks to be discussed in the column. Over a five-month period, the group traded in stocks 27 times based on the advance knowledge of the column.

The trading netted profits of almost $700,000.

Winans was convicted on the basis that he knew he was not supposed to leak the information because of an often stated newspaper policy against such activity.

Winans was sentenced to 18 months of prison and a $5,000 fine. Carpenter to three years probation and a $1,000 fine and Fells six months in prison, five years of probation and a $25,000 fine.

Brant plead guilty and, in a plea arrangement, became a government witness.

Seeking high court review, attorneys for Winans, Carpenter and Fells argued Winans was not an insider and the violations were based solely on the fact Winans ignored company policy not to leak information and called the charges an "unwarranted expansion of the securities laws."

"The only duty in this case was Winans' duty to his employer, Dow Jones (publisher of the Wall Street Journal), and that duty arose out of internal corporate workrules designed to safeguard a private corporation's concern for its reputation for journalistic integrity."

"The criminality of Winans' conduct turned whole upon the existence of a particular Dow Jones policy which the public had not even been told existed, which did not exist at most other newspapers, and which Dow Jones itself was free — legally — to ignore if it chose."

active facts. The case was not appealed and did not proceed far enough in the court system to establish a precedent.

Gunter said he voted no on Smerilson's motion based on the attorney's advice. "That's what we hired him for and that's what we are paying him for," Gunter said. Whether three people don't believe it or not, the ordinance is still not moot."

Local real estate man, Ito Simpson, familiar with the Orange County case, agreed with Kramer that it did not set a precedent. He said the judge ruled based on the policy of the Orange County Commission, which is different than that of the Longwood City Commission.

The developer is also asking zoning be changed from R-2 Single Family Residential, Duplex, to C-3 General Commercial to match the front portion of the lot, which is already C-3. That ordinance was not addressed since the Future Land Use designation didn't pass.

The controversial change, recommended for approval by the Land Planning Agency, would allow a Mazda new car dealership to be built there. Monday night was the third time the request came before the commission.

Smerilson said Monday night. "We shouldn't consider whether or not a car lot would be built there. It's a matter of law. You can't go looking for legal loopholes."

When the issue first came up, there was opposition from Longwood Elementary School parents concerned about traffic and safety problems the proposed business might cause school children. Lot 7 is separated from the school by vacant property zoned R-2 Residential.

The project was given another chance when some commissioners later found they were misinformed and not given all the facts. Myers joined Gunter and Dennis in reviving the issue in that vote.

Most of the opposition was dropped when the developer, Leroy Strickland of Gainesville, agreed not to have an entrance or exit on Orange Avenue; agreed to abide by a list of restrictions and promised to build a sidewalk on the north side of the street and donate a strip of land next to the school for use as a playground.

A few residents still opposed the project and Smerilson said he was against any erosion into residential zoning.

Prior to the 2-2 vote on Oct. 19 the commission had voted to send the proposed zoning change to Tallahassee for state approval before giving it approval. The attorney said the motion still stands, in spite of the fact the state Department of Community Affairs requires prior approval by the commission before considering the merits of the proposed change.

Chamber Sets Member Blender

This month's Chamber "Member Blender" will be Nov. 19 at Fitzgerald's from 5:30-7 p.m. The blender is an opportunity for all members to meet, exchange business cards, and learn about new businesses in town. There is a $5 donation at the door which entitles the member to a drink ticket, snacks and a chance at a lot of door prizes.

The Commercial Committee which acts as the host for the social event is planning some unique activities for this month's Blender, according to Dave Farr.

Christmas Tree Program Designed For Needy Children In The Area

The Central Florida Kmart Good News Committee, composed of Kmart employee volunteers, invites the community to join in the "Christmas Tree Program" designed to help needy children at Christmastime.

From now through Dec. 18, the Central Florida Kmart stores will have a children's Christmas tree trimmed with colorful paper tags. The purpose of the Christmas tree is to provide local needy children with a new gift for Christmas.

Each tag will give information on an underprivileged child such as the first name, sex, clothing sizes and ages. People interested in making a needy child's Christmas brighter select a tag from the Christmas Tree and purchase a gift for the child. The child's name must be registered at the Kmart store, but gifts can be purchased at any business.

Presents for the children should be returned gift-wrapped to the Kmart store with the tag by Dec. 18. The Kmart committee will make sure each child's gift is ready to open on Christmas morning.

"This Kmart Good News Program helps make Christmas what it should be — the happiest time of year for children," said Jeff Parsons, Kmart district manager. "And it provides people with a way to express the joy of caring."

Kmart acquired the needy children's names from local organizations involved with these children on a regular basis.

For information, contact the Kmart store in your area.

Dawn Tonger, Heath W. Short Repeat Vows

Dawn Michelle Tonger of Longwood, and Heath Wayne Short of Lake Mary, were married Oct. 10, at 2 p.m., in the First Presbyterian Church of Lake Mary. The Rev. A. F. Stevens performed the traditional ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Tonger, Longwood, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Pat Rang, Orange Park, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Short, Altamonte Springs.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a floor-length organza over taffeta gown embellished with lace and seed pearls. The gently flowing skirt cascaded into a sweeping chapel train. A crown of flowers held her tiered veil of imported illusion and she carried a bouquet of white carnations and pink roses accented with baby's breath, fern and ribbon streamers.

Any Tonger attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore a pink satin gown and floral headpiece and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations and white roses.

Bridesmaids were Tina Larrison, Debbie McCarroll and Lisa Seleska. They wore pink satin gowns with floral headpieces and carried pink and white carnations.

Jeff Bailey served his brother as best man. Ushers were Tom Wilkes and Steve Stewart and Steve Bradley was the groomsmen.

Beth Pangle was the flower girl and Paul Mazlarz was the ring bearer.

The reception was held at the Lake Mary Community Building. Assisting as host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Arland Spiering.

Following a wedding trip to Longboat Key, the newlyweds are making their home in Lake Mary. The bride is employed by Oak Harbor Christian School and the bridegroom is employed by Cardinal Industries.

Lee Earns Mary Kay Cadillac

The brand new pink Cadillac being driven through the streets of Winter Springs Florida by Kathy Lee is a unique "trophy on wheels" recently awarded her in recognition of her leadership and sales achievements with Mary Kay Cosmetics, Inc.

In a company that awards vacations to top achievers in the more than 130,000-member sales force, Mary Kay's pink car is undoubtedly the most sought-after prize. The pink car was first offered as an award to top sales directors in 1989 after company founder and Board Chairman Mary Kay Ash had her personal car custom-painted pastel pink.

Ms. Lee, an independent sales director for the Dallas-based cosmetics firm, won the free use of the pink car by leading her sales unit to exceed specified sales levels during a six-month qualification period.

Youth Deputies' Winning Ways

Seminole County Sheriff's Department Youth Deputies Dewey Day Jr., 17, and Tracy Smith, 16, show off certificates they received as Outstanding Youth. Those awards were presented by the Casselberry Optimist Club during Youth Appreciation Week. Smith, of Geneva, shows the plaque she received as Seminole's Explorer of the Year. Smith who worked over 200 volunteer hours at the sheriff's office during the summer and who has recruited about 20 new youth deputies in recent months, was honored along with other outstanding police officers at Sea World's 13th Annual Law Enforcement Weekend, Nov. 14. Day, of Sanford, was recognized by the Optimist for his work to support his family during the illnesses of both his parents.

Couples Need To Call Truce In The Battle Of The Sexes

By Karen Timmons
United Press International

From all appearances, the battle of the sexes is escalating into a full scale war.

Many women have moved to the front lines in frustration — it may be easier now to gain entrance to the boardroom, but when they get home HE still won't pick up his socks, much less talk about his feelings. They gather in little cliques and admit that they too have had that crazy urge to kill a jerk of a former lover, as a deranged Glenn Close tried to do unto Michael Douglas after he jilted her in the movie "Fatal Attraction." Some women even cheered her on in the movie theater.

Wary and often defensive after the upheaval of nearly 20 years of social change, some men have addressed the fray in the traditional male battle stance of stoic silence. Others also go to the movies, and secretly applaud the caveman machoism of Rambo. And a minority have claimed themselves neutral by becoming newly sensitized men, a move which some of their brothers see as defection to the opposing camp.

Fanning the fire is a plethora of literature, often masquerading as self-help handbooks, that incites both sides with male bashing titles ("Men Who Hate Women ...") or openly hostile content, as in Shere Hite's recently released "Women and Love."

These are the public signs of the guerrilla warfare of the sexes gripping the '80s, but the private mood, according to some experts, is increasingly a yearning for detente.

While the thought of laying down arms and crying "truce!" is enticing, these experts say a new brand of sexual diplomacy is needed before the white flags fly.

"I think there needs to be a truce. There's no doubt about it," says Richard Meth, director of the Center for Marital and Family Therapy at the University of Connecticut and a counselor in private practice.

"Women have been talking for the last 15 to 20 years about how they have been victimized by the paternalistic world we live in and I don't have any disagreement with that," says Meth, who co-leads a group on men's issues for the American Association of Marriage and Family Therapy. "But women have been so caught up in the fact that they have been victims ... I think they've lost sight of the fact that men have been victimized by the paternalistic society as well."

One of the major roadblocks to a truce is still "lack of communication," the traditional catchall label for the root of all evil in relationships. Many experts have found that simply learning to talk about feelings is not enough. Real communication often can't begin until each half of a couple learns to understand the distinct, sometimes nonverbal, emotional language of the other.

"I've discovered over the years that one of the major bases for conflict in marriages is that men and women have been taught a different emotional language," says Meth. "Men have a language of doing. Women complain that men don't want to sit down and talk ... but that's not

Jean and Bill Norris admire the Nelson roses in bloom at Jean Norris Ferns and Exotic Plants, Sanford.

Jean Norris Ferns/Plants Has A Large Rose Selection

Jean Norris Ferns and Exotic Plants, located at 601 Celery Ave., Sanford, specializes in Nelson roses and has a good selection on hand including the newest varieties.

Jean and her husband, Bill, take pride in growing and selling roses. "We try to advise our customers on every phase of planting, growing and caring for them," said Jean.

Jean also sells supplies needed for planting and maintaining the roses.

Ferns are a specialty at Jean's and she has a large selection. They have orchid supplies and blooming cyrtidium orchid plants for Christmas. Jean will also be having other Christmas gift plants, such as poinsettias and African violets.

As usual Jean has blooming geranium plants and ivy geraniums in hanging baskets, bedding plants and vegetables.

Jean is having a clearance sale on hardwood shrubbery - ligustrum, holly and podocarpus. Large Formosa azaleas in 3-gallon container regularly $7.50 are now on sale at $3.50. Cold-hardy fruit trees, including apples, pears and figs, are on sale at half price. She also has grape vines suitable for Florida climate.

You'll find the fertilizers, potting materials, insecticides and other products needed to have a beautiful healthy garden at Jean's.

Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday. She accepts Master Card and Visa. Jean also offers customized landscaping. For information call 322-3978.

September Industrial Production Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A boost in production in motor vehicles pushed industrial production up 0.6 percent in October, the Federal Reserve Board said Monday.

Auto assemblies jumped to an annual rate of 7.3 million units last month, providing more than half of the gain in industrial production.

All figures were adjusted for seasonal variations.

Production of home goods — especially furniture and appliances — fell slightly after dropping sharply in September.

Company Flies High For Holiday Parades

By Betsy Kleason
 SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (UPI) — For much of the country, holiday preparations have barely started, but at the Aerostar International balloon plant in South Dakota, the seasonal frenzy is in full swing.

Aerostar's employees are scrambling to put the finishing touches on the last of four large inflatable figures that will fill the sky as the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade meanders through the skyscrapers along the streets of Manhattan.

The parade, long the traditional harbinger of the Christmas holiday season, is noted for its comic balloons of popular cartoon characters.

Aerostar, a division of Raven Industries, is home to the 'elves' who produce the helium-filled characters, a fixture of the New York extravaganza.

Macy's has commissioned the Sioux Falls company to produce the lighter-than-air specialty balloons since 1984, when Raggedy Ann and Garfield balloons made their debut in the Big Apple, after months of painstaking assembly.

This year, Aerostar is producing four balloons for the annual Macy's event, the most ever for one parade.

"It's a big year for us, and a big year for them," said Cindy Smith, a sales representative for Aerostar's commercial products division.

No matter how light and cute a balloon looks, creating the floating characters is no simple task.

Each balloon takes the equivalent of three months work by four full-time employees, although various teams are involved in the three production phases of pattern drafting, assembly, and painting, said Roger Wood, an Aerostar production supervisor.

Smith said Macy's Special Productions, a department within the retailer's parent R.H. Macy & Co. Inc., sells it's ideas for each year's featured balloon to a sponsor.

The sponsor is usually the cartoon syndicate, or the character's creator, Charles Schultz, for example, sponsored the production of the Snoopy balloon.

Macy's guards the identity of each new balloon until it begins the promotional events leading up to the annual event. One of the balloons initially cloaked in secrecy this year was Snuggly, the cute cuddly bear that serves as the mascot for a brand of fabric softener and is featured on television commercials for the product.

After each character is chosen, Macy's sends Smith an artist's rendition of the balloon in flight. The production teams also receive two fiberglass models, one painted, one plain, to help in the design process.

The Snuggly model was cast and painted for up by Macy's Special Productions Studio," Smith said. "We've worked without the models before, like for Garfield all we had was a stuffed animal; but we've found that the hard fiberglass model is the best way to go."

The unpainted model is cut into sections that pattern drafters use to plan the cutting of the fabric.

Smith said a bear's simple shape is particularly suited to a balloon, given its overall roundness and soft lines.

A balloon always naturally wants to take a rounded shape, so whenever you're trying to achieve anything with corners, or flat surfaces, it's much more difficult," she said.

"And we not only create a shape by the cut of the fabric, but we also have some internal structures that you don't see," she added.

Smith said there is little room for the artistic license one might expect in creating a balloon for the parade. Consider the case of Snuggly the bear.

"He's a very particular kind of bear, Macy's told me. His snout and eyes define just what kind of a bear he is, and we cannot stray from that at all," Smith said.

The bear's "hair" presented a particular challenge, as designers scrambled to come up with a highly-textured, fuzzy appearance on the balloon.

"His hair, it's not hair, and it's not fur, and it's not wool; it's a combination of all three. We have to achieve something that looks in between," Smith said.

To give the Snuggly balloon a plush look, artists used random brush strokes and several pale tones of paint for a light-and-shadow effect. The end result looks like one high-flying fuzzy bear.

Aerostar has not always made the balloons for Macy's, although its parent company, Raven, is well known for hot-air balloons manufacturing.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. made the first balloons for Macy's, from a black, neoprene-rubber coated fabric that was durable, but tended to be too thick and heavy.

After Goodyear, a smaller company, which Smith described as a "one man operation" took on the challenge of creating the popular balloons.

"When I first talked to them, there were designs that they wanted to do which were more complicated," Smith said. "They were always told, 'We can't make that shape.' Well, that was because of the limitations of their materials," she said.

Smith and Wood agreed that the earlier problems resulted from materials and technology inappropriate for the chosen projects.

"The material was heavier, and some of the balloons were just too small for the designs they were doing," Wood said. "They should never have been made that way."

"Sometimes they even crashed," added Smith.

Aerostar now uses a urethane-coated nylon which is similar in thickness and flexibility to an air mattress. The fabric is available in several colors, an inherent feature that avoids adding the additional weight of a coat of paint to the balloons.

Macy's was at first doubtful that newer materials would be durable enough for their balloons, Smith said.

Hairbiz Open House Features Free Hair Analysis By Redken

Hairbiz, located at 2640 Hiawatha Ave., Sanford, is pleased to announce an open house Thursday, Nov. 19. Redken representatives will be there all day to analyze your specific hair type and recommend the products that are just right for you free of charge.

They will also be giving away free samples. You are invited to come to the Redken party and take advantage of this unusual opportunity. Hors d'oeuvres and coffee will be served throughout the day.

Award-winning stylist Bonna Fitzgerald opened Hairbiz in January after five years experience in the beauty business in Sanford and it has already earned a reputation as one of Sanford's finest salons.

Bonna has completely remodeled the shop giving it a smart new look. She says business has been wonderful and she wants to thank her customers for making her salon a success.

Hairbiz is a family salon providing hair care and styling for men, women and children. They offer quality work at reasonable prices. The capable and enthusiastic staff uses Redken products and takes time to be sure things are done right, not halfway.

Hairstylists Jaime Underhill and Zara Alba and licensed nail technician Terri Oglesby have joined the Hairbiz staff. Monday is Senior Citizen Day at Hairbiz and Jaime and Zara offer perms to senior citizens for only $30.

They have many techniques for highlighting and frosting as well as a full range of services — haircuts, permanent waves, haircoloring, blow dry and shampoo and sets.

Terri offers a large variety of nail services including decorating them with handpainted custom designs appropriate for the season or your outfit, 14k nail jewelry, embossing and glitter. In addition to the regular manicure, she does the French manicure, hot oil manicure, sculptured nails, tips with acrylic overlay, backscratchers, nail wrap, single tip, polish change, fill-ins and jells.

Hairbiz is located on Hiawatha Avenue just off Highway 17-92 north of 27th Street and on the south side of the curve.

They are open Monday through Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Thursday until 8 p.m. Appointments are not always necessary. Call 322-2252 for an appointment.

NFL Players Cater To Age-Old Roman Obsession With Games

By Mark R. Horowitz United Press International

Players in the National Football League, as with other groups of workers, feel they have certain rights and justifiable demands. True, many of the players make more in one game that the average U.S. citizen earns in a year. But the sport is popular and players feel they can assert themselves.

The players' side seems to say that the average "playing time" of an NFL athlete is about 4 years, hence they need to cash in while they can.

The owners feel the players are pampered pups voluntarily joining a profession they know has high risks, high rewards and no dearth of replacements. No one forces someone to become a football player.

It is interesting to observe all this from a lost era where a public also enjoyed violent sport, high-paid athletes and endless chatter about "the games."

Only in this world, the stakes were not the starting position versus the injured reserve list. The stakes were life and death.

The Roman poet and wit Juvenal (c. 55-127 A.D.) would have found late-20th century America a familiar place. His ultimate reproach of his own Roman citizens — that they only cared about "bread and circuses" — is not far from our own weekend, even nightly, preoccupation with sports and food.

In his day, it was the gladiatorial games that commanded the interest of emperor and plebian alike. There were other games besides gladiatorial ones — the charioteers represented one of four "teams" and could reap fortunes if successful — but it was the spectacle of watching men, and beasts, kill each other that became part of daily Roman life.

Today, we have the NFL players union. Almost 2,000 years ago, there were the troupes of gladiators (familia gladiatoria) run by a manager. A troupe would contract with the rabble of society to become gladiators, with the promise of wealth if victorious. But these killers had no rights. They traveled wherever the manager arranged a contest, fought when and how they were told, and about half of them died in any given contest.

In Rome, it was worse. Gladiators were chosen from prisoners and condemned men. They usually fought to the death, although an enthusiastic crowd could ask the emperor for a "thumbs up" on a brave but fallen warrior.

Our players today say a prayer for victory before the game, with plans already made once the contest is over. The Roman gladiators saluted the emperor and yelled "Hail, Emperor, those who are about to die salute thee!" Post-contest plans were hardly considered.

Augustus Caesar (27 B.C.-14 A.D.) in a list of his accomplishments, tells us that he sponsored 8 gladiatorial games in which 10,000 men fought. He also staged 26 wild beast shows in which 3,500 animals were killed.

Football players today can retire when they want to, depending on their contracts. The Roman gladiators could only survive the arena by winning a wooden sword, an honor that meant liberation. Few did. Some aggressive gladiators — perhaps the forerunners of our linebackers — actually refused it. A gladiator named Flamma turned the sword down four times.

Gladiators who contracted with troupes or for their cities could receive pensions, but in a very different way than our own pigskin professionals. Pensions were based on merit and what a gladiator achieved when he was active.

Soviet downplay Chernobyl. U.S. maintains the disaster was catastrophic.

Chuck Baragona, owner of Commercial Chemical Products, Sanford

Commercial Chemical Products For Pool Repairs, Renovations

Pool and spa owners in the Sunshine State are fortunate in being able to enjoy using them outdoors most all year long. Although owners in this part of the country don't have to "winterize" their pools as is necessary in the North, now is the best time to take care of needed repairs and renovations.

Each year during the colder months, most pool companies experience a slow period in their business when men and materials are more readily available. For pool or spa owners this means quicker service and more competitive rates.

Commercial Chemical Products, Inc., can handle any repairs on heaters, pumps, motors and filters. They can take care of leak detection, tile, deck and resurfacing. There is never a charge for estimates on repair. Locally owned and operated by Chuck Baragona, Commercial Chemical Products, Inc., is located at 1107B Airport Blvd., Sanford. Automakers Drive Into Banking

By Jan A. Zverina
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — The nation's top automakers have been busy steering themselves head on into the banking business.

But how far they will be able to go may be marked by whether federal regulators allow Ford Motor Co. to acquire American Savings & Loan Association, the principal unit of troubled Financial Corp. of America, to make the cash-rich carmaker one of the nation's largest thrift companies.

With more than $9 billion on hand and a string of record quarterly profits that have topped the earnings of the biggest auto company, General Motors Corp., the No. 2 carmaker has strengthened its foothold in finances through its acquisition of First Nationwide Corp. In 1985, and U.S. Leasing International, a transportation equipment lending company, this year.

Ford's new Financial Services Group has about $61 billion in assets, but its crosstown rival, General Motors Acceptance Corp., remains the giant among the carmakers' captive finance units because of its sheer volume and reach into the consumer market.

GMAC, begun in 1919, has recently expanded into more than just an option for car and truck buyers seeking financing. It is now the largest finance company in America, and it ranks fourth when compared with major banks, just behind Chase Manhattan, with assets of $93.5 billion.

Through its acquisition of Colonial Mortgage Group two years ago, GMAC also is one of the country's leading mortgage lenders, although the program has been less successful than its vehicle financing and leasing business.

GMAC's earnings this year should account for nearly 80 percent of the parent company's profits as GM subsidizes the record low finance rates offered to car buyers during most of 1987. This is up from about 40 percent in 1986.

No. 3 carmaker Chrysler Corp. has parlayed its 23-year-old Chrysler Financial Corp. into a formidable player through a series of acquisitions, mostly masterminded by Robert S. Miller, the unit's former chairman.

Miller, now a Chrysler vice chairman, developed CFC — the only healthy part of the carmaker during its flirtation with bankruptcy seven years ago — by spending more than half a billion dollars in 1985 to acquire the commercial credit unit of E.F. Hutton Group Inc. and FinanceAmerica, a unit of BankAmerica.

That year, CFC, which now has assets of nearly $23 billion, also formed a joint venture with General Electric Credit Corp. to finance machinery and real estate.

But Chrysler has not moved into the deposit business as its big brothers have. That could change soon, especially if the Ford proposal for American Savings & Loan submitted last month to the Federal Reserve Board is approved.

"Is the government going to permit an industrial company to walk all over the preserve of the bankers? I don't know," Chrysler's Miller recently told Business Month, a closed-circulation publication. "But if the government says yes to Ford getting further into commercial banking's core business, we're all going to get there. You can count on it."

Industry observers said they feel carmakers will capitalize on their broad customer bases to branch into other financial services. Ford's First Nationwide has already entered K mart stores with banking centers offering a range of services.

The top automakers have built a substantial infrastructure by judiciously acquiring finance companies to support broad-based programs. The banking industry's share of the retail auto loan market, meanwhile, has fallen from 47 percent two years ago to 41 percent this year.

How far carmakers can go will probably be decided in Washington, where there is banking industry opposition. Banks charge the finance units undercut their business with subsidies from carmakers' manufacturing operations. They also charge automakers mask the true prices of their vehicles by causing buyers to concentrate on monthly payments instead of actual car costs.

Union Carbide Corp. To Pay $500 Million To Bhopal Victims

By Masbar Ullah
BHOPAL, India (UPI) — India's government and Union Carbide Corp. have agreed the U.S. company will pay $500 million in compensation to survivors of the December 1984 gas leak that killed nearly 3,000 people, sources close to the case said Monday.

The sources said the sum would be paid over 10 years, but the out-of-court settlement will not be announced until next month to give time for details to be worked out.

A spokesman for Carbide, which is based in Danbury, Conn., said he could not confirm a settlement had been reached and had no information on the matter.

"I don't even have confirmation, this is the first I've heard of it," said company spokesman Harvey I. Covert.

The Bhopal accident Dec. 3, 1984, was the world's deadliest chemical disaster, blamed for 2,889 deaths and more than 270,000 injuries.

Methyl isocyanate gas escaped through a ruptured valve, killing area residents as they slept. Most of the dead were children and elderly people crowded into shanty towns around the plant.

The settlement was reached in negotiations began after U.S. District Court Judge John Keenan of New York ruled May 12, 1986, that lawsuits filed against Union Carbide should be settled in Indian courts.

The Indian government contends Union Carbide's negligence was to blame for the gas leak and sued it for $3 billion in compensation for the people it said were affected. The company, claimed sabotage by a disgruntled employee caused the tragedy.

A judge last month said the two sides should reach an out-of-court settlement by Nov. 18 or he would proceed with the case, which lawyers said could drag on for several years.

The sources said the government and Union Carbide will ask the judge on Wednesday for more time before presenting the agreement in court.

They said Union Carbide had initially offered $323 million as compensation, but after protracted negotiations, the chemical company agreed to pay $500 million.

The sources said that according to a tentative agreement that is to form the basis of a final settlement, about 2,600 next of kin of those killed will receive $2,000 a year for the next 10 years.

An estimated 20,000 people who were seriously injured would be entitled to $1,000 each annually for 10 years, while those with lesser injuries would get $870 a year over the same period, under the reported agreement. Victims with minor wounds would receive a lump sum of $500 each.

Legal Notice

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
SEMINOLE COUNTY COMPREHENSIVE PLAN
INTERIM UPDATE

Notice is hereby given that the Seminole County Board of County Commissioners will conduct a public hearing to consider adoption of the Seminole County Comprehensive Plan: 1987 Interim Update and Evaluation and Appraisal Report. The hearing will be held on December 5, 1987 at 7:00 p.m., or as soon thereafter as possible, in the Seminole County Services Building, 1101 East First Street, Sanford, Florida, Room W 120.

This hearing is the second of two public hearings required to be held by the Board of County Commissioners under the Florida Statutes. The first public hearing, held in August, 1987, was for the purpose of receiving public input and recommendations of the Local Planning Agency (LPA) on the Seminole County Comprehensive Plan, and to transmit the Plan to the Department of Community Affairs for review and comment. As public comments and recommendations of the LPA were received at the first Board hearing, this second public hearing is for the purpose of considering comments from the Department of Community Affairs and other agencies/local governments, considering any new or additional information on the Comprehensive Plan, considering enactment of the Comprehensive Plan as an ordinance, and taking final action on the Future Land Use Map for properties within unincorporated Seminole County and the Plan Elements listed below:

Conservation & Recreation and Open Space • Future Land Use • Housing • Landmarks & Library Services • Public Safety • Traffic Circulation • Parks and Aviation • Public Water • Sewer • Capital Improvements • Intergovernmental Coordination.

The Board will also consider enacting an ordinance adopting the new Comprehensive Plan. The proposed ordinance is entitled:

ORDINANCE NO. 97-20
SEMINOLE COUNTY, FLORIDA
AN ORDINANCE REPEALING ORDINANCE NUMBERS 79-20, 79-21, 81-44, 82-28, AND ALL ORDINANCES MAKING AMENDMENTS TO THE LAND USE DESIGNATIONS ASSIGNED TO PARTICULAR PARCELS OF REAL PROPERTY; ENACTING THE SEMINOLE COUNTY COMPREHENSIVE PLAN: 1987 INTERIM UPDATE PURSUANT TO THE SEMINOLE COUNTY COMPREHENSIVE PLANNING ACT OF 1974, CHAPTER 216.02, LAWS OF FLORIDA, AND CHAPTER 188, FLSA, STATUTES; PROVIDING FOR THE AUTHORITY, PURPOSES, COMPONENTS, ASSUMPTIONS, CONCEPTS AND INTENT AS TO THE COMPREHENSIVE PLAN; PROVIDING FOR THE UPDATING OF THE 1982 EVALUATION AND APPRAISAL REPORT WITH THE 1987 EVALUATION AND APPRAISAL REPORT; PROVIDING FOR PLAN IMPLEMENTATION; PROVIDING FOR DEVIATIONS; PROVIDING FOR ELEMENTS OF THE COMPREHENSIVE PLAN CONSISTING OF: FUTURE LAND USE, TITLED: FUTURE LAND USE, HOUSING, CONSERVATION, TRAFFIC CIRCULATION, PORTS AND AVIATION, SEWER, POTABLE WATER, RECREATION AND OPEN SPACE, PUBLIC SAFETY, LIBRARY SERVICES, SOLID WASTE, CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS, AND INTERGOVERNMENTAL COORDINATION OF THE PLAN; PROVIDING FOR THE ADOPTION OF GOALS, OBJECTIVES AND POLICIES OF THE PLAN; PROVIDING PROCEDURES FOR AMENDING THE PLAN; PROVIDING FOR THE ADOPTION OF A LAND USE MAP; PROVIDING FOR THE REFERENCE OF BASIC STUDIES; PROVIDING FOR SEVERABILITY; PROVIDING FOR EXCLUSION FROM THE SEMINOLE COUNTY CODE; AND PROVIDING FOR AN EFFECTIVE DATE.

Interested parties may appear at the public hearing and be heard regarding the adoption of the plan and written comments may be filed with the Board of County Commissioners at the public hearing or by mailing same to the address below, c/o Planning Director. The hearing may be continued from time to time as found necessary. Further information pertaining to this process may be obtained from the Office of Planning, Room W301, Seminole County Services Building, 1101 East First Street, Sanford, FL 32771, 321-1120, Extension 321. Persons are advised that if they decide to appeal any decision made at this hearing, they will need a record of the proceedings, and for such purpose, they may need to ensure that a verbatim record of the proceeding is made, which record includes the testimony and evidence upon which the appeal is to be made.

Check Facts Regarding Transplantable Organs

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT - I'm a senior citizen in reasonable health. Would my organs be suitable for donation?

DEAR READER - In all probability, yes. Some of your organs - such as your corneas - could be donated. Check with the pathology department of your local hospital to determine the method by which you could most easily donate organs. The need for transplantable organs varies from community to community and state to state. Your local pathologist can advise you.

DEAR DR. GOTT - Is it possible to drink too much water? I drink at least 12 glasses of iced tea, water and juices a day.

DEAR READER - People who force themselves to drink water when they are not thirsty can develop water intoxication, a medical condition called psychogenic polydipsia. This can cause enormous amounts of urine and low blood sodium. Since thirst is absent, this condition differs from an abnormal physical need for fluid.

Twelve glasses of liquid may not be excessive, depending on your fluid loss. For example, people who perspire heavily in warm and humid environments have to drink more to compensate for the fluid lost in sweat. However, it is not necessary to drink liquids if you are not thirsty. Let your body be the judge of your water balance.

People who suffer from a glandular or kidney abnormality may experience uncontrollable thirst. This is called diabetes insipidus and results in a large fluid intake and urine flow. Another possible cause of increased thirst and urine excretion is diabetes mellitus (colloquially known as sugar diabetes). In this case, a person has increased thirst because the body needs extra fluid in order to get rid of sugar.

Remember that iced tea and juices give you more than water - for example, tannic acid, citric acid and calories. In excess, these compounds can affect health.

As a general rule, I think that it's appropriate to limit the consumption of beverages to a reasonable amount and drink extra water only if you are thirsty.

Dr. Gott's new Health Report, WEIGHT CONTROL THROUGH CALORIE CONTROL, offers healthy tips on weight loss, diet and exercise. For your copy, send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91389, Cleveland, OH 44101-3389. Be sure to mention the title. (C)1967, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
Sorry, but I would open the bidding with the North hand. North has prime cards, two and a half quick tricks, and 12 high-card points with a 10-spot for a kicker. But North did compensate for his original pass with strong subsequent bidding. I particularly like the four-spade cue-bid to tell partner not only that he had first-round control of spades but that he had passed a hand that many players would have opened. Still that's not the problem here. You get to five clubs, and West leads the spade queen. Blot out the actual East-West cards from your mind and plan the play.

location of the diamond honors favors the defenders. But you can combine all your chances. Trump the opening lead, keeping the spade ace for later. Then play a low diamond toward dummy. When West plays low, insert the 10. Maybe that will force the king. But East wins the jack and returns a heart. Take the heart ace, cash two clubs (leaving a trump entry in dummy) and then play a diamond to dummy's ace. When the king does not pop up, play the spade ace and throw your diamond queen away. You can now ruff a diamond, and to and behold, the diamonds are 3-3. You return to dummy with a club to pitch a heart loser on the long diamond, and you have taken 11 tricks and made your contract.
