1954 CHRISTMAS GREETINGS 1954

SEALS—Shown above are this year's Christmas Seals which will be distributed in Seminole County Nov. 22.

Christmas Seal Sale Will Start Nov. 22

Jaycees, Woman's Club, Firemen Assist In Preparations For Drive

Monday, Nov. 22, will mark the opening of the annual Christmas Seal Sale by the Seminole County Tuberculosis and Health Association, according to J. Marion Harman Sr., Seal Sale chairman, and Mrs. Lorraine Graham, association executive secretary.

On that day, hundreds of letters will go into the mail with Christmas seals enclosed for purchase by people of this county. At its beginning, this letter asks, "What does Christmas mean to you? It tells of family life at Christmas time but also tells how we can help our neighbors and our fellow workers... perhaps even our families... through the purchase of the seals."

"These small seals do a big job," the letter says, and urges, "Buy Christmas Seals, use them to fight tuberculosis!"

Today, members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce were helping in the effort by inserting the letters and seals into envelopes for mailing.

Previously, aid was given the association by the Sanford Woman's Club and the Sanford Fire Department, whose members fold of seals for mailing.

Sale of Christmas Seals had a small beginning.

In 1947, a few doctors in Wilkesville, Del., ran out of money while trying to cure eight babies who were sick with tuberculosis.

Emily Bissell, a cousin of one of the doctors, had read of Einar Holmboe, a Danish postal clerk who three years earlier had originated the idea of selling a Christmas stamp to help some sick children.

If Denmark could open its heart to help, she thought, would not America with its proved record of faith and generosity help those eight patients?

Money Raised

America could and did. Instead of the $300 needed, the woman raised $3,000.

And so it has gone ever since. From the people who gave to this crusade in 1947 has emerged the organized, united fight against tuberculosis today, joined by millions of people who buy Christmas Seals bearing the standard of the double-barred cross.

Before her death in 1944, the founder looked back upon her years of service in many fields and said about the result of the Christmas Seal crusade, "I see thousands who had no hope and who have it now."

MUST KNOW WRAPPING

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Evelyn Fisher, executive director of the National Secretaries Assn., says today's secretary must know among other things, how to wrap the boss' Christmas gifts.

She told a meeting of the Philadelphia chapter of the association yesterday that it's a simple thing to do, once you've had a little practice. Just remember to have a supply of wrapping material on hand when the boss comes around.

PLEAS INNOCENT

LOS ANGELES (AP)—George Hornel II, meat-packing heir, pleaded innocent yesterday in a charge of possessing marijuana. Superior Judge Harold W. Schweitzer scheduled his trial for Jan. 4.

LT. J. R. GROVER

Killed In Europe

LT. J. R. Grover was killed in an aircraft crash in the Mediterranean sea Tuesday, according to a telegram to Lt. Grover's widow, Dora.

He was attached to Composite Squadron VC-5 at the Naval Auxiliary Air Station here.

No official notification of the crash has been received at the air station, it was said there today.

Grover is also survived by three children: Lonnie, 8, Linda, 7, and Jane Ellen, 14 months.

JAYCEES HELP CAMPAIGN—Two groups of members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce raced at their luncheon meeting today to see which could insert Christmas Seals and letters into envelopes the fastest for mailing Nov. 22 for the opening of the annual fund campaign in Seminole County Tuberculosis and Health Association. Chairman of the campaign is J. Marion Harman Sr. (foreground, far left), while the president of the association is Robert E. Karns (standing at Harman's left). Mrs. Lorraine Graham (foreground, far right) is the executive secretary of the association. (Staff Photo)

Angry Words Voiced In Censure Debate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate censure debate roared along in a "rush of angry words" today with Sen. Charles McNary shouting that Sen. McCarthy "thinks he's the only one who is honest... who would die for his country."

"I don't like it and I don't intend to have it," Chavez cried. Chavez said he had in mind particularly McCarthy's accusation that the senator had stolen an automobile in Alabama.

What brought Chavez bounding to his feet was an objection by McCarthy when Sen. Lehman (D-Ill.) sought to put into the Congressional Record a recent broadcast by CBS commentator Eric Sevareid praising the career of John Edgar Hoover.

Confessed Thief Being Held Here For County Court

An agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation yesterday questioned Jim Emms, 19, confessed thief after it was learned the youth had stolen an automobile in Alabama, according to Chief Deputy Sheriff O. G. Owens here.

The youth tentatively is to be taken before the county court here Monday on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without a proper driver's license. Owens said.

Vehicle Stolen

The stolen vehicle is the one Emms was driving Tuesday night when he was taken into custody south of Sanford on Highway 17 near Highway M. R. McCallum, 14, said he had been stolen in Breton, Ala., Owens related, and the owner came here yesterday and picked it up.

Questioning here was conducted by Agent J. R. Hayes of the FBI stationed in Orlando. He told Owens the government may not prosecute the youth if he is sentenced on theft counts by county court.

Despite the fact that Emms' name was in Sanford yesterday in connection with being able to take Emms back to DeLand, where he admitted to driving the car, a search and seizure money from a locker room at the high school.

Warrants are also out for the youth in Polk and Lake counties.

President Peron Calls Church Heads 'Enemies Of State'

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—President Juan D. Peron said today that Argentine Roman Catholic bishops are "enemies of the government" and warned he would take action against clergy members indulging in "illicit activities."

He also charged that the Catholic Action movement was attempting to undermine his Peronista party.

He emphasized, however, that he did not blame the church for what he termed a political situation and said there was no problem of state against church in predominantly Catholic Argentina.

The president spoke at a closed-door meeting of government officials, Peron to leaders and chiefs of labor, economic and professional confederations. The speech was broadcast later by the national radio.

LETTERS FROM THE SEASONS

MIAMI (AP)—Lt. John R. Fox, pilot of a Skyraider fighter bomber from the Marine Corps Air Station at Miami, ran into a flight of wild ducks over the Everglades yesterday and counted his score at 17.

Cox said he encountered the ducks at 1,500 feet about 10 miles south of the Tamiami Trail. "I was flying into the sun and they got almost as fast as I saw them," Cox reported. One got a hole in the plane's metal wing.

Flocks of two other Skyraiders on the same training mission said they saw 47 ducks fall.

Driver Hits Car To Avoid Cyclist

Deputy Sheriff M. H. McCallum today told of how a motorist ran into a second vehicle yesterday in a road hitting a boy riding a bicycle.

According to the deputy, Oswald E. Adams, 413 W. First St., swerved while car riding driven by Mrs. Sally P. Newsum, Cameron Ave. on S. Bearhill Ave. about a half mile south of Geneva Ave. a road hitting Herbert Stuedoff who lives nearby.

"Apparently no one was injured," No arrest was made.

VOTES CAST FOR NOBODY

RODMAN, N. Y. (AP)—Some 600 votes were cast for nobody, counting for nothing, a record of the Nov. 2 vote here shows.

Harry LeCross, custodian of the machine for this poll in New York county, explained that the machine did not have enough blank bars to block off all the black spaces election day.

Elderly Man Struck By Car; Condition Said To Be 'Fair'

Good Citizenship Is Subject Today At Education Meet

At Education Meet

The main purpose of the public schools is to help develop to the maximum the human capabilities within our democracy and to give leadership to the liberty-loving people of the world, stated a member of the committee in charge of arrangements for the meeting.

Make Contributions

Sanford and Seminole County schools are daily contributing toward the development of these democratic ideals, contained in the program. They urge their day-to-day contribution for various activities.

The Taming of Carney Wilde

by BART SPICER

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR
I GUESS Russell learned it from the movie. He went expertly over Boltinck, patting lightly at first, stripping every pocket, toasting whatever he found to the desk. Two salt handkerchiefs, wallet, keys, pocket comb and coins from the trousers, gold cigar case, pen and pencil, handkerchief, cigar lighter, reading glasses and a fat pad of travel checks from the jacket. He let Boltinck turn them and sit up in the chair.

"I don't wear guns," Boltinck said. "Don't you think I got any sense?"

"No," Russell said hotly.

I shook my head and he caught the signal. His mouth clamped shut as if physical pressure were needed to keep him silent.

I fished with one finger through Boltinck's things, found the wallet, and skidded it toward me.

"You don't want to look at that, Wilde," Boltinck said in a quick note of desperation. "Just later, will you? Get a hot tip. A connection I know got close to Stewart's girl . . ."

My reaction was slight. Just a twitch of the hand, but Boltinck caught it.

"Ahah," he said. "That hits, eh?"

"Okay, I'll buy it," I said. "What have you got?"

"You don't finger me to the cops, that right?" he insisted.

"Deal," I said. I didn't look at Russell.

"She's meeting Stewart in New Orleans," Boltinck said. "Heading for Brazil. No extradition from Brazil."

"Where are they meeting?" I asked.

Boltinck shook his head. "That's the gimmick," he said. "It's not a place. That's as much as I know. Stewart and his girl have a plan, some kind of a trick. All I know is it isn't a place."

I picked up my .38 from under the papers and tapped the gun on the desk top. "That all?" I asked.

"I swear, Wilde," Boltinck said earnestly. "That's every bit . . ."

"And you came all the way here chasing Stewart, with just a hint like that?"

"It can be worked," Boltinck said positively. "I've got the connections. I would have found them. And this is something the cops don't have. That's why I took the chance. I can't work with cops on my back."

"No now you've told me I'm supposed to let you walk out of here so you can get to the place Stewart and his girl are going to meet. You knock them off and grab the loot. Is that the idea?"

"No, no. You can come with me. I'll take a plane right back to Chicago now. This morning. Listen, Wilde, I leveled with you. You gotta be square. I can't meet those FBI guys right now. I can get off with a mob of passengers. Then I duck. I swear. All I want is out. Now you . . ."

A hard knocking on the office door silenced him. Boltinck turned, wild-eyed.

"Bit still," I said. I got up and went toward the door.

The sternwheel reversed as I reached for the key. The Dixie Dandy slowed gradually and began inching forward into its mooring. I pulled the door open, hanging on as the boat turned suddenly.

"No trouble," Grodnik said placidly. He came inside. "It's a no-jack. They got a tip. Nothing much, but something to work on, maybe. The boat and a meet in New Orleans. But they don't know where, so the woman says. How does that check?"

I nodded. "That's what I got, too. Anything else?"

"No. I think they're scared of something. No weapons, no identification. And that woman is off her nut, she's so scared. How do you figure that?"

"FBI rap on their necks," I said. "I made a deal with Boltinck. Okay?"

"Nothing to me," Grodnik said. "Is that what you want?"

"Boltinck let out his breath in a deep sigh.

"I made a deal, Boltinck. No cops. No fingers. You get out the boat and head north. I'll hang a label on you in the morning, so you better be long gone. You understand?"

"Sure, sure, Wilde. You bet."

"Yes," I said distastefully. "We made a deal." I smiled grimly at him. "But I didn't make a deal for him. He has something he wants to discuss with you. Something about a deck of razor blades, I think."

I pushed Grodnik out of the door and followed him, closing it quickly, but not so quickly that I couldn't hear that first high thin squeal from Boltinck as Russell moved in on them.

I took Grodnik out on the stretch of deck in front of the pinnac's office. From there we could look down at the rolling crowd of passengers crowding around the gangplank, eager for the starting gun, ready for March time. The Dixie Dandy edged smoothly along the dock and the plank was run out.

"They're working it cleverly," I complained. "I don't see any . . ."

"That movie newsworld up there," Grodnik said, pointing at a nimble unit with a camera mounted on top of a light truck. It was parked just at one end of a long shed that looked like a produce market. I couldn't spot anyone who looked too much like a policeman. But for a normal mid-morning crowd of gawkers, this one included too many young men about 30 or so, most of them dressed like men who had jobs in the junior executive category.

I glanced over at the camera crew again, and that reminded me I leaned way over the railing and got a crack in my neck turning to look up at the bridge. Ellen was there, behind a big black camera mounted on her lasted tripod.

As I watched, she rammed home a new plate, pulled out the guard and made a slight adjustment to the lens. I whistled shrilly and she waved. She was wearing her plain suit, and the dark blue and green squares were shimmering and glossy in the sun. Her smile was warm and welcoming.

Grodnik grunted sourly: "Didn't take you long to find another girl."

Ellen went on with her work and I turned to Grodnik. "I got a letter from Jane, captain," I said softly. I pulled it out of my pocket, remembering then that I hadn't even read it. I glanced at it quickly and it said just what I knew Jane would say. Pleasant, calm and soothing phrases about how independent I was, how much Penn Maxwell needed her, how happy she was in her new life and what a great luck she wished me in my future. I read it out to Grodnik. "She's happy, captain. Mrs. Penn Maxwell is happy."

He scowled. "I went on quickly before he could say anything. "Jane and I didn't make it work because neither of us cared enough. That's the only honest reason. Now she's so over with Maxwell and everything is fine for her. I think I've scored, too. And I'd like you to wish me luck."

"You serious?"

"Never more serious," I said. "I know how it took to you. The old rebound. My girl ran off with another guy so I take up with the first willing take I can find. That's what it looks like, but it isn't."

Grodnik raised a big scuffed hand on my good shoulder. After a quiet moment, he forced a weak sort of smile and barked at me gently. "Sure, kid," he said. "All the luck. You know how I was thinking. You and Jane. I liked thinking that."

"Me, too," I said. "That things don't work out that neatly. Well, let's get down and meet your colleagues. I guess we'll have work to do."

We had plenty of work to do. There was a total of $35,000 in rewards out for Stewart by now, and every loose cop in the neighborhood went scouring around the Dixie Dandy, irritating passengers, poking into the dark cargo hold, even compelling Russell to open every crate so they could make sure Stewart wasn't huddled up in one of them with a jug of water and $200,000 in cold cash, sweating in the stifling heat and strong sunless smells of the cargo hold. I got tired of it after a while and went to look for Ellen. Old Greiner was at the gangplank. He told me Ellen had gone ashore with Doc Riggs and would be back for dinner after an afternoon's work with her camera. Greiner also told me a few other things, mostly his considered opinion of policemen in general. He politely excluded me and I politely kept quiet. We parted on pleasant terms and I hailed Grodnik up out of the cargo hold and took him in to lunch.

Kissing Room Is Proposed

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia's aviation director, Louis R. Inwood, proposed that a "kissing room" be included in the budget for International Airport after hearing reports from Mexico that such a facility had been a success.

In budget hearings yesterday, Councilman Victor H. Blanc said a room set aside for couples who "expect to need privacy for their farewells was a fine thing, but—can the budget take it?"

After Inwood admitted he couldn't see any hope of obtaining revenue from the room, the idea was turned down.

Guardsmen Still Search For Sisters

BECKLEY, W. Va. (AP) — National Guardsmen continued for the third day their search for two girls whose plane disappeared 10 days ago. No trace of them has been found.

The foot-by-foot search for Irene and her sister Mary, 6, who severed an area one by five miles in the remote, hazy section of mountainous Raleigh County, continued today.

The girls were last seen when they were dismissed from classes at a school Nov. 1.

Some National Guard units, however, were called out today to assist in the search. They are now searching for the girls by hundreds of volunteers

A grim race was on as both drivers pushed their gas pedals to the floor.

At this time, Charlie became a child at the wheel, just like the others.

And because he lost control of himself, he also lost control of his car.

Everything went black. Poor Charlie. He wondered what he'd done or died?

50,000 Naturalized In Mass Ceremonies Celebrating First Veterans Day Observance

NEW YORK (AP)—Call it imagination, but the Statue of Liberty today has her chin raised a proud inch and her torch held even higher as she listens to the oath of allegiance fervently voiced by 50,000 new citizens of the United States.

It's our first Veterans Day—formerly Armistice Day—and our first holding of mass naturalization ceremonies from coast to coast of the "48" and across the Pacific to Hawaii and Guam.

These 50,000 are men and women from many countries. Most are Displaced Persons.

They include a Catholic priest who narrowly escaped execution by the Nazis, a habit who fled from invading Russian and German armies, a Russian seized by the Nazis and thrown into a concentration camp in Poland.

Imagine how "Miss Liberty" must look to them, with what weight they recall the phrase graven on her statue: "Give them your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free."

Some 10,000 new citizens take the oath in New York City alone. Their swearing-in occurs in typically American surroundings—baseball's Ebbets Field in Brooklyn and the Polo Grounds in Upper Manhattan.

Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell speaks at both places.

Is it only the eager, the ambitious, the young who want U. S. citizenship?

Take the case of Aron Blatny. He was born in Odessa, Russia, 15 years ago. The first 10 years of his life he resided in his native land. Then came the Russian revolution.

The mass naturalization ceremonies, originated by the Immigration Service to dramatize the importance of citizenship, cuts batches of red tape to clear up the huge backlog of persons who have been waiting to be naturalized.

Among other cities holding mass citizenship programs are Baltimore, Buffalo, N. Y.; Boston, Philadelphia, Newark, Paterson and Hackensack in New Jersey; Miami, Detroit, Chicago, Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, El Paso, San Antonio, Portland, Maine, and Honolulu.

Eisenhower Dedicates Museum In Veterans Day Ceremonies

ABILENE, Kan., (AP)—President Eisenhower is back in his boyhood home town—where he once worked as a creamery hand—to dedicate the $225,000 Eisenhower Memorial Museum at Veterans Day ceremonies today.

The President arrived here from Washington last night and got in a nostalgic 75-minute tour of his family's old homestead—still kept as his mother left it when she died in 1946—and the adjacent museum housing many of his World War II mementos and other keepsakes.

He visited the two buildings after being greeted warmly by old neighbors and newcomers alike on his arrival.

At the edge of the community—population 7,000—there was a big sign saying, "Welcome home, Mr. President." In front of the Sun flower hotel, presidential headquarters for this stay, a brass band played.

The homecoming meant a family reunion.

He was accompanied from Washington by Mrs. Eisenhower and his youngest brother, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, president of Pennsylvania State University.

On the way, the President's private plane, the Columbine, stopped briefly at Kansas City, Kan., to take aboard his grandchildren—David, Barbara Anne, 5, and Susan, 2—and their parents, Maj.

Bare Bosom Actress In Hospital

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—British actress Simone Silva, who posed bare to the waist for photographers in the French Riviera, is hospitalized by what her doctor calls epidemic vomiting.

She told reporters yesterday she has had 14 vomits in six days and hasn't eaten in a week.

She said worry over her film contract brought on the illness.

She said producer Al Petker, who arranged for her to come to the country, hasn't been paying her $23 weekly salary. Petker countered that he has spent $34,000 on her career to date and said he suspended her for failing to lose weight.

The 26-year-old actress said she is ready to call it quits and return home to England.

This year marked the first celebration of National Rose Week. Official dedications of the observance were issued by the governors of twenty states.

After today's dedication ceremonies, Eisenhower planned to fly to Toledo for a round of Lake Erie duck hunting tomorrow and Saturday morning as the guest of Secretary of the Treasury Humphreys.

500 Negro Kids Hold Gang Fight In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Some 500 Negro boys and girls rioted last night in what police described as the biggest outbreak in five years in West Philadelphia.

Police broke up what they said was a fighting, screaming mob after seven gun shots were fired, and arrested 16 boys. Most of the rioting took place in the Third, Fifth and Sixth streets.

At Millard Meats of the Juvenile Bureau said the fight was between two gangs known as the "Wolves" and the "Bullocks."

Seven boys were arrested, seriously injured and the shots apparently were fired into the air.

Meats said members of the two gangs had been feuding over girls for a month and a few minor skirmishes had been reported.

Many Sworn In

This first Veterans Day was celebrated by the Immigration and Naturalization Service as an occasion for the mass swearing-in of 15,000 newly naturalized citizens, most of them displaced from their European homes by Nazi or Russian armies. Ceremonies were scheduled in a number of cities.

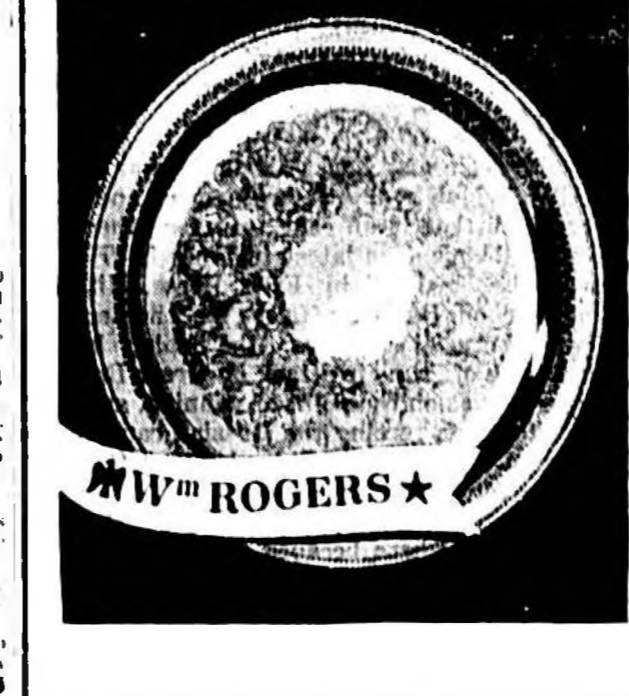

Armistice day began as an annual observance of the time at which hostilities ended in World War I 11 a. m. Nov. 11, 1918. With support of national veterans groups, the name was officially changed this year.

Let All America Pay Homage Today To Our Dead Of Three Conflicts

Thirty six years ago today at 11 a.m., World War I came to an end with the signing of an armistice between Germany and the Allies.

This bloody conflict was dubbed as the "war to end all wars."

This statement has proved to be empty. Since 1918, war has surged over Europe and Asia, affecting the whole world.

The United States took up arms and went to battle again on Dec. 7, 1941, the day of the infamous attack on Pearl Harbor by the Japanese. During World War II, our Armed Forces fought both against the Japs and against Germany, who started an attempt at world conquest in 1939. Both these conflicts came to an end in 1945.

A tense peace was maintained until 1950 when North Korea attacked its southern neighbor. By order of President Truman, the United States went to the aid of the South Koreans in what was termed a "police action."

The United States was joined by other countries in a United Nations force. However, this country bore the brunt of the load.

This war was one which was rather fruitless as no definite victory could be obtained. Finally a cease-fire in the hostilities came last year. The Red North Koreans, who had been aided by the Red Chinese, had been pushed back into their portion of the peninsula when the cease-fire became effective.

Thousands of Americans were killed in this bloody war in bleak Korea. Although we couldn't actually win the war, we did stop the advance of the Red terror in this sector.

Allowances Are Given For Children

BRUSSELS (U)—The poor man's Baedeker to Belgium: There is no law about it, but by custom the seventh child in every Belgian family is the godchild of the King.

However, a mother doesn't have to raise that large a family to start getting something from the government. She gets an allowance equivalent to $6.30 a month for her first child. The figure gradually rises until the payment reaches a peak of $13.90 monthly for her fifth child, and any thereafter.

There are also small birth and death allowances, and a nonworking mother also gets an allowance from the government to stay home and raise her kids. These family bonuses increase the birth rate in rural areas, but in industrial areas, however, the clear bracing air in rural zones is regarded by some authorities as even more important to the birth rate than government bonuses.

Belgium's 8,725,000 people have three different national tongues—Flemish, French and German. Some 3,000,315 in 1950 spoke French only, 5,473,291 Dutch only, 49,033 German only.

It was also discovered that 334,206 inhabitants couldn't speak any of the three languages. It turned out most of them had a reasonable excuse—they were still under 2 years of age.

Belgium produces no romantic films, does go in heavily for serious home-produced documentary movies. But cinema fans here like American stars, and currently Jane Russell is ahead of Marilyn Monroe by a wide margin.

Television is state controlled here, and separate networks are provided for the Flemish and French-speaking populations. Two hours of TV are scheduled for the kids each Thursday afternoon (children get an afternoon off every week), but so far Hopalong Cassidy hasn't invaded the frontier.

So far there are only an estimated 40,000 TV sets in the nation, and most of them are in cafes. Here as in America the thoughtful bartender in the forefront of any move that will help bring culture to his customers.

YOU WON'T BE SORRY

ABSINTHE MAKES THE HEART GROW FONDER

Too Late To Classify

By RUSSELL KAY

Where did I go on my vacation? I'm glad you asked me that question.

Well, let's see. I went so many places it is hard to remember. I told you about visiting New York in a recent column but from there we went to Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Madrid, Paris, Naples, Sorrento, Palermo, Moscow, Jerusalem, Mexico, Peru and China.

Believe it or not, we accomplished this in less than two days and by automobile. It happens we have some kin folks in Maine and after our stay in New York we went on to Boston and Portland.

The State of Maine, it appears, has gone all out in naming communities after countries and cities, so that it is possible for the visitor to return home and truthfully say that he has really been places.

Most of these communities are small, but they are all on the map and if a fellow wants to stick his tongue in his cheek, swell out his chest and give the neighbors a careful, he can qualify by taking a motor tour through a section of the Pine Tree State.

New England, particularly Maine and New Hampshire, are beautiful in the fall of the year when the leaves are turning and the frost is on the pumpkin. The weather is delightful while we were there, cool but not cold. Mother Nature has just about finished her task of painting the autumn leaves and the varied coloring was beautiful.

While I love Florida and would not trade it for any other spot on earth, it is enjoyable to visit other sections now and then and drink in a bit of the scenic charm and beauty of rock bound coasts, mountain riding, countryside where roads lead through mighty forests and sparkling lakes smile at you from their hill rimmed beds or babbling streams sing to you as they make their hurried way to the sea.

Like Florida, Maine enjoys a brisk tourist business during the summer months and has much to offer the visitor. The season was pretty well over when we were there in mid-October. Most resorts were closed and like the bears that roam Maine woods, the natives were preparing to hole-in and hibernate for the winter.

I had my fill of Maine lobsters. They were delicious but no better than our stonecrabs or freshly caught Key West crawfish. Pumpkins were on display everywhere, not only at roadside stands but many farmhouses had them decorated in their front porches presenting a real Halloween atmosphere. Maple syrup was sold along the road as well as apple cider and seemed to appeal to tourists as much as do our oranges and grapefruit.

One thing that impressed me was the neat attractive appearance of buildings and homes. I don't believe I saw an unpainted house anywhere. White predominates and the farm homes throughout the rural areas certainly look inviting. The architecture is so different from ours that the contrast is striking.

I found a great deal of interest in Florida everywhere I went. I was surprised to find so many people who have visited the state at one time or another and who plan to return.

The barber who cut my hair, the clerk in the hotel, the garage attendant, all had questions to ask about our state. Some are planning to make their future home here when they retire while others are interested in chances for employment. Florida is a magic word wherever you go.

I thought I had left Cypress Gardens and Silver Springs behind, but when I went to see Cinema in New York I found that just about a third of this wonderful and amazing show was devoted to Cypress Gardens, with Dick Pope, Bob Eastman and many other old friends smiling at me from the screen.

Visiting friends dug up home movie films they had taken when visiting the state, showing scenes in Tampa, Miami, St. Augustine and other points. It made me downright homesick.

America by 1975 will increase its use of and demand for goods and products from 15 to 100 per cent, according to "The Outlook for Key Commodities" section of the recent report of the President's Material Policy Commission.

The National Association of Manufacturers cites this source in reporting that demand for new passenger cars will increase by 16 per cent and use of aircraft, plastics and insecticides by 100 per cent by 1975.

Other increases expected (in per cent) are:

Total construction, 30; residential construction, 16; private non-residential, 60; new appliances, 60; trucks in use, 150; new railroad equipment, 100; paints, 50; and printing and publishing, 75.

JAMES MARLOW

Parties Probably Won't Be Close

WASHINGTON (U)—The Democrats and Republicans may try to get along like brothers in the next two years — there's been mention of harmony — but it would be too tough on the voters if they acted like twins.

How could the voters decide between them in the 1956 elections if there was nothing but harmony? The two parties probably won't try to be closer than third cousins: for political reasons, with 1956 in mind, and because of some differences in viewpoint although to many voters the differences may seem neither profound nor sharp.

The voters have shown in the past two elections they're having trouble making a choice. In the 1952 elections the voters gave the Republicans control of Congress by a margin so thin that, if it was any thinner, the Democrats would have run the show. In 1954 they indicated Democratic control by an edge almost as fragile.

The overwhelming 1952 vote for President Eisenhower can be taken as a personal triumph for him. The amazingly narrow vote for Congress that year showed how the people felt about the two parties.

While it is possible the voters have been too nearsighted to recognize any great differences in the features and performance of the elephant and donkey, it may be that the differences were more apparent than real.

Once they're elected to Congress the Democrats and Republicans sometimes vote along strict party lines. More often than not at voting time on any given issue they break up into factions, with Democrats and Republicans making switches in benches.

Since both parties have men who consider themselves conservative and others who consider themselves liberal, it is natural at voting time for the think-alikes to vote alike.

But what occurs on the floors of House and Senate at voting time is not, of course, all that happens. The two parties can make a lot of political hay and headlines in the committee hearings, where most of Congress' work is threshed out.

And since the party which has a majority controls the committee, it is in the best position for haying, particularly in the field of investigations, by deciding what needs looking into and how.

A good example is the Senate's committee which keeps check on government operations and its investigations subcommittee. In the present Congress, with its Republican majority, Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) is chairman of both committees.

But starting in January, with the Democrats taking over, Sen. McClellan of Arkansas, senior Democrat on those committees, may handle those jobs. Then it would be McClellan, not McCarthy, who would direct what the committee is to investigate.

McCarthy spent the first two years of the Eisenhower administration mainly hunting for Red influences in government. McClellan hasn't specified yet what turn his interest will take on the matter of what is to be probed.

The Democrats will probably use their committees to dig around in other Eisenhower administration performances for the past two years.

The Democrats have a wide field to choose from in asking questions. They will probably want to pin the Republicans down on their claims that they've rooted more than 6,000 security risks out of the government.

Just how many of those risks were Communists or otherwise subversive? Vice President Nixon threw a lot of security risk figures around in the recent campaign. He seemed to irritate the Democrats more than any other Republican campaigner.

Then there is the initial "hard money" policy of the Treasury Department in which Democrats have been showing interest. And they may want to ask questions, particularly about the State Department's program for getting rid of security risks.

Painless Childbirth Has Certain Hazards

By NERMAN N. BUNDESIN, M.D.

"PAINLESS" childbirth can be harmful to both the mother and baby if the wrong technique is used.

Unfortunately, there are mothers who at times refuse to tolerate a little pain during birth. I know most of you mothers don't realize that you can stand pain-relieving drugs much better than your unborn baby.

No Ideal Drug While many drugs have been used to give labor relief, no drug has been found to be ideal for this purpose.

If given too early, some drugs may prolong labor. Others may make the mother-to-be non-cooperative and extremely restless. This may change what would have been a normal birth into an abnormal one.

Also, if a drug is given too close to the time of birth, the baby may be born sleepy and have difficulty breathing. Such a situation is especially dangerous for an infant born prematurely.

Another Problem Some drugs may also cause an increase in the amount of bleeding at the time of delivery.

I believe a mother should be willing to stand a little pain if she may be virtually assured that her baby will be born alive. And I think most mothers will agree with me.

QUESTION AND ANSWER Miss O. P.: Can nose and throat infections be cured?

Answer: Practically all nose and throat infections can be cleared up with proper treatment. An examination is needed to find the cause of the difficulty before proper treatment is carried out. The antibiotic drugs should be helpful.

Blankets made from synthetic fibers are nice to have around the house if someone in the family has an allergy to wool or cotton. And to get the most for your money when buying either natural or synthetic blankets, advise American Institute of Laundering, research and educational center of the laundry industry, check the blankets first by holding the nap to the light. If this spots show through, the blanket has best remain in the store. Another good check is to pull the "nap" or surface fibers of the blanket. The nap should be firm and should not pull out easily.

Baptists To Hear About Brazilians

The auxiliary of the W.M.U. of the First Baptist Church will meet at the church Saturday from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. to hear about Brazil.

"The Little Missionary", a story of a little girl in a country where they speak a different language, will be told to the Sunbeams by Mrs. John H. Lee.

The Junior G.A.'s will hear about "Adventuring in Brazil" which tells about the experiences of a Junior in a lumber mill town and a Baptist boarding school in Brazil. Mrs. R. F. Cooper will explain how he later returns to Brazil as a missionary.

"Flying Missionaries" is the title chosen for Intermediate G.A.'s and R.A.'s. The book tells how missionaries fly into the interior of Brazil to work and points out the contrast of interior Brazil to the coastal section which the world hears about. Joe Dethrow will present this topic.

Lunch is to be served at noon by a committee of the W.M.S. for young people.

Emily C. Goss, James A. Kirby Exchange Vows

The chapel of the First Presbyterian Church in Shreveport, La. was the setting for the marriage of Emily Caroline Goss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Goss of Shreveport, to James Alexander Kirby, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Burle Kirby of Sanford. Performing the beautiful ceremony on Oct. 29 was Dr. John J. Himmusen of Noel Memorial Methodist Church.

Four seven-branch candleabra holding burning tapers were placed at the base of the choir steps where large arrangements of red daisy bronze chrysanthemums ranged in tall colors from yellow to wine red.

Preceding the ceremony Norman Z. Fisher provided a program of nuptial music and while the mother of the bride and the groom's mother were being seated "Oh, Perfect Love" and "Rejoice, Ye Pure in Heart" were played on the chimes. While the couple remained kneeling at the conclusion of the ceremony the Lord's Prayer was sung by Hall M. Lyons.
