Unwise Restriction

New York City has a bad law, passed because the city fathers thought it would be popular Now an effort is on foot to repeal the Lyons Law, forbidding the appointment to a city position of anyone who has not lived for three years in New York City.

Behind this navrow restriction lies a sentiment often expressed when an outalder receives an Important job, "Why didn't they choose a local man? There must be plenty of qualified people who live here without going outside."

While this may be true of stenographers or clerks, it simply is not necessarily the case with positions requiring technical training. The Health Department is short 185 public health nurses, who cannot be secured unless the Lyons Law is waived. It should be repealed and offices filled with those best qualified, no matter where they live. The taxpayers deserve this break.

Other communities having or contemplating a like restriction, should drop the idea if it is not on the statute books, or get rid of it if it is.

Dangerous Man

An unexplained mystery is the fact that Benedict Arnold is recalled with loathing, but a miscreant, almost as deep-dved. is remembered only as a shady character who managed to get into high office and nearly attain the presidency. This was Aaron Burr, whose career has been re-studied in Thomas P. Abernethy's new book, "The Burr Conspiracy.

After failing in his attempt to seize the presidency from Jefferson and finding himself ostracized for killing Alexander Hamilton in a duel, Burr conceived the idea

It would serve as a starting point to try to communize the real of Latin America. And, in case of war with Russia, the Communists would have airfields in Guatemain 800 miles from the Panama Canal.

The problem which the United States has faced in Guatemala in wanting to win the allegiance of its people is the same it faces in most Latin - American countring and among impoverished people everywhere

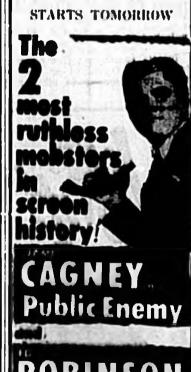

Where there are poverty and unger, the Communists have will ing cars for their propagands and their promises to give the coor ; better share in society in the form of land, more food, and better health and living conditions. Among people with nothing, promises are better than nothing, in matter how phony those promises turn out to be.

Unless the United States can of fer a program, or induces the regimes it supports to offer a program, in which the poor can see benefit for themselves, it faces the prospects of the Communists mak: ing progress in all the impover-

Teenagers Need Sleep More Than Younger Children

DOROTHY V. WIIIPPLE, M.D.

Mrs. Mayberry worked hard all Mrs. Mayberry worked hard all week taking care of her house and four children. Now that Jane was a big girl she felt that four hours of work on Saturday morning was not an unreasonable request. She told Jane exactly what she wanted her to do: clean the refrigerator. Irub the kitchen floor and finish up the ironing.

But when Saturday morning take of body tone lotion helps maintain haby-soft skin all over. It is refreshing and stimulating, putting you in a delightful feminine mood. By PETE OSBORNE

This Legion team of Sanford Post 53 is pretty good. And they take their baseball seriously. All of them are young—you can't be more than slightly over 17 and play in the Legion program—and several show real baseball potential. Most of them haven't, as the big leaguers would say, "come out" yet, still a bit awkward and unsettled. But this kid, Jim Haw kins, pitcher on the Red Jires coached team, has got it. Runs like a garelle, pitches like a pro, and when you lalk about batting, you're talking about Jim Hawkins—Over in Winter Park yesterday, the Parkers made a mistake. They By PETE OSBORNE the Parkers made a mistake. They pitched to him. Result: a pair of doubles and a single that about amputated the shortstop's leg. Winter Park won anyway, but it's State University product to go the a good guess it was only because

One of the doubles, his first one.
Was a 340 toot drive against the left field wall. The Parkers had amartened up, though, and were playing him deep enough that the second two-base blast, which would have rolled to the center-field wall was stomed by the keen.

Probably the biggest asset Haw kins possesses, aside from the fact that he looks like a ball player—enough like one that he scares the coposition. You can't say that Hawkins makes the Legion club for they're all talented and hustlers. But you can say this without for rebuke: the guy's an asset on anybody's team. Hawkins is only 17 and will be a junior at Seminole High come September. He's a pretty fair football full back, baving scored 24 points last season. Only a sophomore last season, he was confined to 'Bafring baskethall, but won five or six games while losing only a pair during the baseball slate.

This summer, though, it's a good bet that he'll hit his pitching stride. Coupled with his batting abilities, he makes a good show.

So, all of this concludes on the usual note: Tonight's an excellent opportunity to see him and the Legion club in action. Their enthusiasm is stimulating and they play good baseball. Game time against Vero Beach is $530 p.m.

Herrin's experience is being repeated in many American towns and cities where the idea sprang up locally in the face of dying industries—both the kind which have been dring for decades, like coal, and emergency industries which were due to close down when World War II ended.

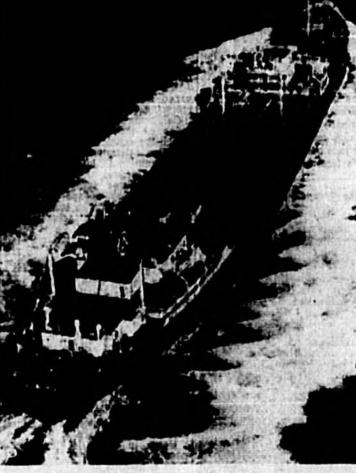

None of these cities has turned to Washington for help. They have attracted new industries by offering low-rent factory buildings, extending public utilities—even building an airport—to make it easier for the industries for operate. As aless were so numerous that na in the center of New York state, Utica has a similar story.
