new prisons and state employe pay raises rated high priority in the nearly $5-billion 1976-77 budget Gov. Reubin Askew planned to detail today. Increased by modest revenue gains after a year of stand-pat spending, the budget contemplates one major tax increase - Askew's hotly contested plan to impose a 7.5-percent levy on wholesale gasoline prices. as plan for a major increase in industrial and a ment spending, Askew said he is seeking the gasoline tax hike to stimulate employment. But powerful legislators have opposed the hike, which would raise $130-million based on current gasoline retail prices.

Power Company Uses Plenty

MIAMI (AP) - Florida Power & Light Co.'s new office building here uses more electricity each month than all 2,-000 homes in the city of West Miami, but the bill gets paid by the utility's customers. FP&L's customers also pick up the $35-million tab for construction of the new building and the $3 million paid for the site, says Florida public counsel Woodie Liles. The plush utility office building, which opened last summer and houses 1,700 employes, has been advertised as a model of energy efficiency, but it uses almost twice as many kilowatt hours monthly as a downtown high-rise building smaller in area.

Cabinet To Hear Dispute

TALLAHASSEE (AP) - A dispute over an $8,173 printing order was the first item today in Cabinet hearings which could cost six highly paid General Services Department officials their jobs. Other charges involving the alleged waste of more than $100,000 were also listed on the agenda for the scheduled

The CIA And FBI Will Survive

A common goal appears to be emerging as vestigating the past misconduct of the CIA, FBI and other intelligence activities.

For example, the House and Senate select committees on intelligence activities and the Justice Department, agree that the continuation of intelligence activities abroad and at home are essential to the security and safety of the people in

Also, there seems to be agreement that the guidelines regulating the activities of the intelligence agencies should be more specific and narrower in scope. Finally, all agree that both Congress and the administration should better evercise their oversight authority to be sure that agencies do not stray from their charters.

So far, so good. The problem occurs when the intelligence investigation get down to the specifics of how the goals should be met.

While there are some gray areas, the formula for resolving the tactical differences becomes more apparent if we remember that security and safety needs of Americans have more than one

Security of Americans will not be increased. for example, if we weaken the CIA, defense and state department intelligence activities to the degree that they cannot supply the President with the information necessary to make foreign policy and military deployment decisions.

By that criterion, the congressional proposals to publicize foreign intelligence activities require that the CIA get prior approval of Congress for covert activities, and that proscribe unnecessarily the numbers of CIA informants work against the needs of American citizens.

As we consider domestic intelligence activities by the FBI, we should remember that civil rights of Americans include the right to be safe at home, on the streets and in legitimate political

If the authority of the FBI is eroded to the extent that it cannot engage in the prevention of terrorist crime, as well as investigate criminal acts after they have been committed, citizens will be less secure in their persons and homes.

The recommendations of the House Intelligence Committee that would prevent agents from infiltration of terrorist groups, limit the use of informants, restrict record keeping of domestic intelligence groups, and require judicial warrants to approve certain investigatory techniques would we believe, work against the protection of civil rights more than they work for them.

We have faith that reason and balance will prevail when the dust settles. The House committee ended its investigation with a sputter rather than a roar. The Senate committee is tapering off rather than growing in stature. And the admonitions of Attorney General Edward Levi that the existing machinery of government is adequate to the task of policing the FBI is weighing heavily.

The reason for the lower profiles is evident. After sending out their strongest intelligence sonar beams to their constitutents, the congressmen and senators received a loud and clear echo back. Americans may want to spank, but they don't want to destroy, the FBI and CIA.

Choose the right lock. If your primary lock is the key-in-the-knob type, it is easily attacked. Replace it with a stronger lock, or install an additional lock. You can increase the security of your door by installing a good deadbolt lock. A deadbolt is a traight bar, usually rectangular, that is squared off at the end. You lock it by turning a key or knob. The deadbolt of a lock, or any slide bolt used to back up your primary lock, should be at least 5-8 inch revitalization of the cities.

Under the impetus of urban renewal, many cities acquired chunks of land in their downtown areas and immediately razed existing structures, and then were unable to find private investors willing to risk their capital in elaborate A redevelopment plans. As a result, vast tracts of potentially valuable land lie vacant in the heart of the cities and elsewhere, yielding no tax returns, unless it is from parking lots. SEOUL, South Korea (AP) - Former presidential candidate Kim Dae-jung, his wife, and opposition lawmaker Chyung Yilhyung were arrested today in a continuing roundup of Christian and opposition leaders that began a week ago.

A group of plainclothes men, meanwhile, visited the home of former President Yun Po-sun, 78, and interrogated him there. A secretary of the only living former Korean president told reporters that the investigators began questioning Yun at home after he refused their request to go with them.
