New Election Ordered For District 1

By Donna Estes Herald Staff Writer

Circuit Judge Kenneth Leffler today ordered a new election for the District 1 seat on the Sanford City Commission be held Dec. 18, the date of the runoff election for mayor.

Contenders for the seat are John Mercer and A.A. "Mac" McClanahan. Mercer beat McClanahan by 12 votes the first time around Dec. 4, but McClanahan challenged the outcome after he discovered some voters cast their ballots in the wrong district. It was the first election by district in

McClanahan and Mercer are the only candidates eligible to compete in the new election.

With Leffler agreeing beforehand to call a new election if agreement could be reached among the lawyers, atforneys representing both candidates, Sanford and Supervisor of Elections Sandy Goard hammered out an acceptable order at the conclusion of a 21/2 hour negotiating session this morning.

The court ordered Mrs. Goard to take "all reasonable care" to make sure the voter lists by district in the Dec. 18 city election are correct. To meet that end, Mrs. Goard was instructed to send notices to all the voters of District 1 some 2.254 — that they reside in District 1, are eligible to vote in the District 1 contest and that their polling place is the Sanford Civic Center.

Through an error in Mrs. Goard's office some 45 persons were improperly listed as eligible to vote in District 1 when they resided elsewhere or were listed in other districts when they should have been included in the District I list of voters.

McClanahan, represented by his son, A.A. "Mick" McClanahan, challenged the Dec. 4 election after he examined the voter rolls, found the errors, which Mrs. Goard acknowledged.

City Attorney William Colbert, whose only position on behalf of the city was for the election to be error free, "stood silent" while McClanahan and Mercer's election. Colbert, however, drafted the order "to make sure the list of eligible voters is right" for the Dec. 18 election. "We don't want to see anymore errors," he said.

Mrs. Goard subpoenaed to stay ready to testify if her testimony were needed, was told to remain at hand even when the decision was made not to take Minter said the attorneys wanted to be sure Mrs. Goard personally heard and understood the court order.

Mrs. Goard, scheduled to loave on a week-long vacation today, immediately ordered her staff to prepare the notices called for and to order envelope labels

District 1 voters.

She also told her staff to have City Clerk Henry Tamm and Colbert check the notices before mailing.

Mack N. Cleveland Jr. and Jack Bridges, representing Mercer, said their client agreed to a new election because it was obvious errors were made in the voter rolls for the Dec. 4 election which saw Mercer best McClanahan by only

The order announced, in open court by Colbert, said there were "errora sufficient to cast doubt on the election.

Fire Chief May Be Named Tonight

Assistant Fire Chief Thomas Hickson may be appointed fire chief by the Sanford City Commission at its 7 p.m. meeting

Hickson would succeed Fire Chief W.C. "Syd" Galley, slated to retire at the end of January, Gailey has been a member of the city's fire department for the past 33 years and as fire chief for the past four years. It all depends on whether the city commission wants to advertise for a new fire chief outside the department. So far, only in-house applications have been accepted. If the commission decides in house advertising was sufficlent, they may consider the city's civil service board report that says three persons from within the fire department have applied for the post. But of these only Assistant Fire Chief Thomas Hickson meets the "requirement for promotion from the next lower classifications or rank." Hickson, 35, an 11-year fire department veteran has served 21/2 years in his current position. He has a BA in Education from the University of Central Florida and an AA in Fire Services Administration from Seminole Community College. Hickson is also certified as an emergency medical technician.

He and his wife Betty have two children and reside at 2520 Mellonville Ave.

The other two applicants are: Fire Lt. James Poovey and Firefighter Thurman Picklesimer.

According to a civil service board ruling in 1980, the state law which authorizes civil service in Sanford requires that board to recommend the person who holds the next lower classification or rank for appointment by the city commission. That person is Hickson. Gailey, then assistant fire chief, was named fire chief when Chief George Manning Harriett retired from the office in 1980.

Salary range for fire chief in Sanford is $27,872.95 to $39,991.61. Galley's salary is $37,567.89 and Hickson's is 28,363.15. -Donna Estes

AAA Backs Mandatory Safety Belt Use Laws

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The tions in highway deaths and American Automobile Association has endorsed state laws requiring mandatory use of safety belts over proposed federal regulations to install airbags in new automobiles.

Association spokesman W. Allan Wilbur said the group believes compulsory seat belt use laws could save 5,000 lives annually.

"The life savings would be Immediate," Wilbur said, "But It would take years to install airbags in new cars and it would take even longer to have the devices in all cars."

Life In The Silver Regiment

Quest For Pefection Pays Off For Band

By Rick Brunson Herald Staff Writer

The Lake Howell High School Silver Regiment walked away from the Tangerine Bowl in Orlando Saturday with six more shiny trophies to put in their growing collection.

The band competed with eight others from four states in the Great Southern Contest of Champions. The Silver Regiment took first place in field show and parade competition for their class and won awards for best drum major, best rifles, flags and auxiliary. Yule Trees Stolen From Jaycees Shed Grinch-fever came early to Sanford when someone stole 28 Christmas trees early Saturday from the Sanford Jaycees, according to a Sanford police report.

Sometime between 1 a.m. and 8:09 a.m., a person or persons unknown, using an unknown tupe of tool, pried open the Jaycees' storage garage at 427 S. French Ave. and removed the trees.

The firs were valued at $560.

The thief or thieves removed the trees then toted them to a waiting vehicle, the report shows. The Jaycess sell the trees during from the beginning of December to Dec. 22 to raise money for their civic projects. Club president Ron Ryan said the theft was a minor one since the organization plans to sell around 300 trees. He said they have increased the security at their storage site and will continue to offer the fast-selling trees as long as they have them in stock. He said they may be sold out by Dec. 19 or 20.

Hospitalized In Tehran Hostages Freed From '6 Solid Days Of Terror'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) - Hostages rescued from six days of "sheer hell" on a hijacked Kuwaiti airliner rested in Tehran today after Iranian troops stormed the plane in a blaze of gunfire, ending a nightmare of threats, beatings and cold-blooded murder. It was not immediately clear where all seven released hostages, including Americans John Costa and Charles Kaper, were taken following the surprise assault by disguised frantan agents Sunday on the crippled Kuwait Airways jetliner.

The Iranians, who arrested the four Arabic-speaking hijackers, said they would put the air pirates on trial.

"It was sheer hell," said British pilot John Henry Clark. "It was six solid days of terror.' Clark gave no details about the background of the two Americans, but said they were tied down in the front section of the aircraft and separated from the rest of the passengers before the raid that saved them Sunday night.

British Flight Engineer Neil Beeston said the passengers thought they were going to die when the hijackers planted explosives on the plane Sunday.

"It was all wired up ready to blow," he said. "They did tell us they were going to blow the aircraft up and we were the last to be rescued.

"No, I did not think anybody expected to live - even after the release we were still expecting to be shot coming down the steps," he said. "I think everybody had resigned themselves to the fact that they were going to die."

Sunday, the gunmen beat a Kuwaiti hostage and read what they called a "last will and testament" before threatening to blow up the aircraft with everyone aboard because Kuwatt refused to release 17 Moslem extremists imprisoned for bombing the U.S. and French embassies in Kuwait last December.

The plane was reported unable to fly because the gunmen had shot out a Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said two Kuwaitis "who the hijackers had claimed to have murdered" were rescued by Iranian security men posing as two cleaners and a doctor.

"When they arrived in disguise they grabbed one of the hijackers and pushed him down the stairs" while three other security men outside lobbed smoke bombs as troops fired their guns to distract the air pirates, IRNA said.

Costa, Kaper and the plane's British pilot. John Henry Clark, were tied down in seats in the plane's front section when their rescuers arrived.

IRNA said.

"For me, the Iranian forces were like angels who had descended from the sky," said Kuwaiti ambassador-at-large Khalifa Hussein Muslim, one of at least three Kuwaitis freed in the operation.

Beginning what International Aviation authorities said was the worst case ever of cold-blooded hijack executions, the hijackers Tuesday shot and killed American Charles A. Hegna of Sterling, Va., and threw his body on the tarmac.

Thursday, American William Stanford was taken onto the aircraft steps and forced to plead for his life through a bull-horn. After he was taken back inside, gunfire was heard and Stanton's bleeding body was taken from the plane.

Both victims worked for the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Authorities Press Search For Fugitive Linked To Cult

GREENBANK, Wash. (UPI) - Authorities today searched for three "extremely dangerous" men charged with an armored car heist carried out with the founder of a white supremacist cult who died in an explosion and shootout with the FBI.

Two other men charged in the robbery - former body guards to the leader of another white supremacist group -

Robert Mathews, 31, the fugitive founder of the White American Bastion, was killed by an FBI SWAT team Saturday night when the Whidbey Island house in which he had been barricaded for two days went up in a fireball.

The explosion, preceded by a seven-minute-long barrage of gunfire, was touched off by illumination flares dropped by a law enforcement helicopter. Mathews apparently survived the fusilade because moments after it was lifted he began returning fire.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A government study of the possible links between pornography and youth violence will be scaled down in scope and have its $798,000 budget cut in half as a result criticism that said it was a waste of

House and Senate subcommittees investigated the contract for the study, awarded without a competitive bid to Dr. Judith Reisman, an author of scholarly articles and a former songwriter for the Captain Kangaroo children's television show.

Her study was to be sweeping in nature, examining the possible effects of material in Playboy., Penthouse and Hustler magazines on violent sexual and non-sexual behavior by juveniles and violence directed against juveniles.

Under the scaled-down plan she will be limited to examining how children are exhibited in the magazines.

The project created such a stir it contributed to the resignation of the dean of American University's school of education, which oversaw the research.

School's Out

Marathon Session Fails To Bring Settlement

CHICAGO (UPI) - Students in the nation's third largest school system face the prospect of another week without classes as negotiators prepare for more talks.

A marathon 29-hour session between the Chicago Teachers Union and the school board failed to end the 6-day-old walkout by School Board President George Munoz said he was "disappointed" when the union team ended the session Sunday evening.

"It would have been productive to continue," Munoz said. Board spokesman Robert Saigh described negotiations Sunday as an "ongoing exchange of information.' The strike that has idled 431,000 students, entered its sixth day today. Another bargaining session was scheduled for today at 10 a.m.

CTU President Jacqueline Vaughn said both sides have exchanged proposals on salary and salary-related matters, but said the talks were proceeding slowly.

Sources close to contract talks said negotiators have offered to provide teachers with a salary increase of .5 percent to take effect in January and a one-time 1 percent bonus.

Until now, the board has declined to offer a raise, proposing a bonus that would carry into next year's budget.

Although Vaughn declined to elaborate on proposals made during weekend negotia-tions, she said, "We are making every effort to reach a settlement. Progress is slow, but it is progress.'

Vaughn said before doors of the 596 public schools can open for business. negotiations had to take "a giant step."

The board, which earlier restored $18.9 million in slashed medical benefits, wants to cut four to six days from the school year and reduce salaries accordingly, saving an estimated $16 million. Teachers are asking for a 10 percent pay hike and a full school

The board had been cautiously optimistic that as much as $35 million from a state tax amnesty program could be used to help end the strike. But only part of the $127.5 million raised by the program will be allocated to Chicago schools.

Seventeen other unions representing 12,000 other board employees went on strike when the teachers did.

Falwell, Flynt Claim Victory, Vow To Appeal

ROANOKE, Va. (UPI) - The Rev. Jerry Falwell and sex magazine publisher Larry Flynt ended their first face-to-face confrontation vowing a libel battle will continue in court appeals.

But Falwell, founder of the Moral Majority, and Flynt, the self-proclaimed "King of Sleaze," each claimed victory after a week-long sometimes bitter, sometimes colorful trial.

Witnesses and lawyers contributed to a circus atmosphere in the federal court, and U.S. District Judge James Turk frequently lectured spectators unable to resist laughter and jeers.

Falwell had sued for $45 million in libel damages, claiming Flynt's magazine, Hustler. twice published a fake liquor ad that quoted the television evangelist as saying he lost his virginity to his late mother in an outhouse and always gets drunk before he preaches.

A federal jury ruled late Saturday night that the ad was not libelous because no one could take it seriously. The jurors still awarded Falwell $100,000 as compensation for emotional distress. They also ordered Flynt and the magazine to pay $50,000 each as punishment for "The Jury made it clear that Larry Flynt and the other sleaze merchants of America can no longer maliciously attack public figures and get away with it."

Falwell said. Flynt claimed the jury's rejection of the libel charge upheld his First Amendment right to poke fun at hypocrisy in sex. politics and religion.

"I consider it a victory in many ways," Flynt said. "He was asking for $45 million, and we feel there's enough error in the case that it will be set aside on appeal." Arch-enemies for a decade, the Lynchburg preacher and the Hollywood pornographer had never met face to face until the trial. Both said Saturday night they plan to take the case to the U.S. Supreme Court. Falwell showed up every day of the trial wearing red, white and blue with a Jesus First lapel pin, flanked by his wife and three children.

Flynt avoided the courtroom for three days, being seen only on a videotape made while he was handcuffed to a bed in a psychiatric prison, picking his nose and spewing obscenities.

that keeps him alive. "I don't even know it's there, I'm so used to it," the world's second permanent artificial heart recipient said Sunday. "It doesn't bother my sleep. It doesn't bother me at all.'

Schroeder, 52, speaking from his bed at Humana Hospital Audubon, appeared strong and alert and said the Jarvik-7 heart has added another 10 years to his life.

"I feel like I have 10 more years, I really do," said Schroeder, a former munitions inspector from Jasper, Ind. "I don't see no reason why this thing won't last 10 years."

Accompanied by several family members and chief surgeon William DeVries, Schroeder met with reporters for 30 minutes.

Schroeder said he is grateful for all the attention and support he has received from people around the world but he doesn't consider

"I'm not here for praise or glory," the father of six said. "I'm just here to get well.

'All I wanted to do was, No. 1, get myself healthy. No 2, I wanted to be able to help other people. And if I can be successful in any of those, I feel like my mission is accomplished."

Schroeder commented about an earlier statement he made during an interview with DeVries. when he said attitude was very important in the success of the Nov. 25 implant.

'if you want it done, you're going to get it done," he said. "You just have to set your mind to it ... and I did. I went as far as I could go."

but not until he becomes more familiar with his new heart and the two machines - a 323-pound Utahdrive and an 11.4-pound portable Hetmes drive - that power it.

He said he fully expects to be fishing, watching ball games and hunting for walnuts when he returns to his southwestern Indiana home. He also hopes to attend his son's wedding in March.

Doctors gave Schroeder another day off Sunday, letting him rest for a second day after a week of tests and scheduled exercises. Schroeder spent time with his family and friends and walked around his room briefly, said hospital spokesman Bob Irvine.

Mob Is Ripping Off Florida Gasoline Tax

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) - Mob-operated, fly-by-night gasoline wholesalers stole up to $200 million in gasoline tax revenues from federal, state and county governments in Florida, then dropped from sight before they could be caught.

The ripoff, which investigators believe was under the direction of New York's Colombo Mafia family, was made possible by a tax collection system that depends on wholesalers' honesty and is not geared to prompt handling of paperwork, the Ft. Lauderdale News/Sun-Sentinel said

The amount lost at various government levels was estimated at $40 million to $200 million in "the largest tax ripoff scheme ever uncovered in Florida," the newspaper said. It said the wholesalers pocketed tax money they collected from retailers and got out of business before county, state and federal agencies checked their

Similar tax schemes have been reported in New York. Connecticut, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Troopers Leave For More Money

MIAMI (UPI) - The Florida Highway Patrol, which ranks 47th in the nation in starting pay, consistently loses trained officers to better paying metropolitan police

In one example, a three-year veteran of the patrol who earned $19,218 a year left for a job on the Metro-Dade Police Department where he will start at $24,055.

Patrol officials say they will continue losing men - and the training the state invests in them - to better-paying agencies until they can offer better salaries and benefits.

Starting pay for the Florida Highway Patrol is $13,968 a year. Only three states, Kentucky, Louislana and Arkansas, pay less and several large Florida departments pay considerably more. Starting pay on the Broward County Sheriff's Department is $17,781 and Orlando police start at $16,120.

But freshman Eric Kock says it's worth it, adding that the hard work is softened by Martin's caring attitude.

"He loves everybody, even if he yells," Kock said. Martin's caring, which has been an example for the band. makes it the success it is, members say. According to them, the Silver Regiment is the band that love built. "It's not just a band, it's a family," said 18-year-old trumpet player Carlos Boisselle. "That's what makes us so good - everyone is so

The order also authorized Mercer and McClanahan to accept campaign contributions from noon today until 5 p.m. election day.

As part of the settlement. McClanahan agreed this decision is final on this particular protest.

A major problem with coming to agreement, said Assistant County Attorney Guy Minter, was the fact that McClanahan's attorneys used a series of three chapters of state law to get an immediate court hearing. And in one of those sections, reasons given for a new election are fraud. In this case, fraud was not considered or hinted at. The order says the new election is called because of "inadvertent error or mistake."

The problems was that through error or mistake in Mrs. Goard's office some 45 voters that should have been eligible to vote Dec. 4 in district I were listed in other districts or improperly listed as eligible to cast ballots in District 1.

Mrs. Goard said as far as she can determine, this is the first re-run of an election in Seminole County. And Cleveland said no case could could be "found on point" of a situation quite like

Opportune Fire May Have Averted A U.S.-Cuba Confrontation At Sea

By Richard C. Gross

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A coincidental and "opportune" fire belching billowing smoke from the deck of a disabled ship saved the United States and Cuba from a possible military confrontation Nov. 30.

The fire started in a trash barrel on the aft deck of a disabled U.S. Navy-chartered oceanographic survey boat that drifted helplessly into Cuban-declared territorial

The flames and smoke ended the reluctance of a Coast Guard cutter to come to the rescue, and averted the need for intervention by the nuclear aircraft carrier USS Nimitz, which was hurrying to the

The mysterious fire crupted aboard the 105-foot Seaward Explorer as the vessel. with five American crewmen, was being towed toward Cuba by a 70-foot Cuban gunboat armed with a machine gun, its barrel unsheathed. The master of the boat eventually heaved the towline overboard.

The Nimitz had been dispatched to the area on a verbal order approved by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger to intervene in what officials in Washington viewed with increasing alarm as a potential hostage

The White House was not involved in any decision-making concerning use of the Nimitz, but officials said President Reagan was informed of the carrier's sudden deployment.

It had become apparent the cutter would not move in unless Cuba gave its permission - never granted - for the Coast Guard boat to enter its territorial waters.

The Nimitz received its order to move out 35 minutes before the fire started and, in its rush to depart St. Thomas, Charlotte Amalie in the U.S. Virgin Islands, left about 1,000 of its 5,200 crewmen stranded ashore.

But all its warplanes were aboard. Interviews with White House, State Department, Pentagon, Navy and Coast Guard officials, naval analysts and the master of the Seaward Explorer based in Miami, Peter Skipp, said the incident off the northeastern Cuban coast might have escalated into a military confrontation with Cuba if not for the fire.

Navy officials and Skipp adamantly denied speculation the Seaward Explorer, owned by Seaward Services of Miami, was on a secret mission while mapping the ocean floor off Haiti's coast. The Navy said the boat was contracted by Tetra Tech of Pasadena, Calif., a subsidiary of the Honeywell Corp. of Minneapolis.

Use of the Nimitz, which linked up with the guided missile cruiser USS Arkansas for the 650-mile westward run to Cuba, was described by a naval expert as an "overreaction" by the United States but defended by a senior Pentagon official as "a perfectly natural resolution" to a potential crisis.

Despite the possible misuse of U.S. scapower, Navy officials said the Nimitz was ordered into action to avoid a repetition of the Soviet seizure two months ago of the Frieda K., a supply vessel with five Alaskans aboard that strayed into Soviet waters in the Bering Sea. The ship was released a week*

Worse, one official said, the Seaward Explorer incident carried with it the potential for another Mayaguez - the U.S. container ship carrying 40 crewmen captured by Cambodia in May 1975. The seizure forced the United States to land Marines to rescue the ship and its crew in a bloody battle on Tang Island.

Debate over whether the 90,000-ton Nimitz with its 90-plus aircraft was used like a cannon to swat a fly was placed by Navy officials into the context of the times, when carriers are deployed routinely as a show of military might around the world to deter action against U.S. interests.

AIDS Threat To General Public?

Warning: New AIDS cases are up 74 percent nationally over the same period last year.

Caution: AIDS can be sexually transmitted between men and women. Women who have sex with bisexual men or with men who use intravenous drugs are at risk of contracting AIDS disease. Men who have sex with women carriers, including prostitutes, also may be at

The degree of risk of contracting AIDS disease through heterosexual contact is far less than the risk of contracting the disease through homosexual contact, IV drug use or blood transfusion. Here are statistics from the U.S. Center of Disease Control:

Of the 6,921 adults who have contracted AIDS disease in America, by far the greatest number are homosexuals. Only 53 got It through heterosexual contact. Of those, 49 were women, who got it from male carriers. Only four men so far have contracted AIDS sexually from women — less than a tenth of a percentage point of all AIDS cases in this country.

But the long incubation period of AIDS (up to four years) may be concealing the extent of the spread of the disease out of high-risk groups into the general population. The ways to contract AIDS are:

- 1. Homosexual sex with a carrier of the disease.
- 2. Drug injections with infected needles.
- 3. Transfusions of infected blood.

4. Heterosexual sex with a carrier of the disease.

So far, the disease largely has been confined. to the high-risk groups - homosexuals, drug addicts, hemophiliacs and Haitians, But blood transfusions and heterosexual contact with a carrier are the two vehicles by which AIDS spreads outside the high-risk groups into the general population.

A test for AIDS in blood is not far off. This could eliminate much of the risk of the disease spreading through blood banks. And that would eliminate hemophiliacs, who require frequent transfusions, from the high-risk group The main risk of spreading the disease into the general population then would be through heterosexual contact.

in Africa, where AIDS originated. heterosexual contact appears to be the predominant mode of spreading AIDS, according to the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta. The African data indicate the heterosexual transmission of the disease is primarily from male drug users but also from women prostitutes.

"The importance of female to male transmission in the spread of AIDS in the United States and the role, if any, of female prostitutes in this transmission has not be a established," the center said. "However, the number of these women presently affected is likely to be small." Further studies are being made.

Concern, not alarm, is in order.

BERRY'S WORLD

But it's better to use caution and prophylactics today than to become a statistic tomorrow. The epidemic of AIDS among those in high-risk groups is tragic. Everything possible must be done to find ways to detect and treat the disease and to prevent its spread into the general population.

Budget Cuts Face White House Foes

"Remember the reaction we got in 1981 when major beneficiaries we told Congress that we were going to have to cut a little from some programs?" the high-level White House official asked. "Well, what do you think they'll say when we tell them they're going to have to get rid of entire programs?"

That was the way this presidential assistant characterized the lengthy list of deficit-cutting proposals that budget director David Stockman has submitted to President Reagan. They are Boeing to General Motors - seven of which are sweeping and tough, and they cut deep

But before any of them reach the rocky terrain of Capitol Hill, they must first clear the most difficult hurdle of all: the "special interests" within the administration that have blocked many of Stockman's budget-cutting proposals before.

Take Urban Development Action Grants, a $440-million-a-year discretionary slush fund that began in the Carter administration, which spread the money around in key communities during the 1980 presidential campaign. Reagan's people used the program as well during the 1984 campaign, though not as ambitiously.

UDAG grants are supposed to create new jobs. but they do nothing of the kind. They simply take money from one part of the economy and shift it to another. Big. ritzy hotel chains and other corporations have been among UDAG's

Stockman would like to eliminate UDAG, but presidential assistant Edwin Meese, along with the real-estate industry, is a big supporter of this program and has nixed efforts to zero it out of the president's budget.

Export-Import Bank subsidies? Nearly half of the Ex-Im Bank's $3.1 billion in loans in 1982 benefited just 10 major corporations - from on the Fortune 500 list.

But try getting any Ex-Im cuts past Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige and U.S. trade representative William Brock. Stockman said that the last time he pressed for cuts in this program, during a Cabinet council meeting. both Baldrige and Brock "fought, argued and pounded the table." refusing to yield in their opposition to touching this sacrosanct altar of corporate America.

In 1982, Stockman wanted to seek a gradual phaseout of revenue sharing - a $4.5 billion a year, no-strings attached giveaway to every local government in the country. But the cuts were blocked by then-presidential assistant Rich Williamson, who complained that they would hurt his efforts to get Reagan's federalism program approved by the nation's governors.

Similarly, an effort to reduce Maritime Administration subsidies — and save between $200 million and $300 million a year — also was blocked by Meese and White House domestic policy chief Jack Svahn in response to opposition from the maritime unions.

All of this strongly suggests that the problem of cutting government spending does not necessarily rest with Congress alone. Getting budget-cutting proposals through the booby traps in the White House budget process is also a formidable task, as Stockman well knows.

Nevertheless, if Reagan is able to overcome many of the objections from his own circle of advisers, he has a unique opportunity next year to obtain some historic reductions in federal spending.

Many of his chief advisers have long maintained — and Reagan is known to believe this as well - that the president's biggest mistake was not seeking larger budget cuts in his first year in office. That was when Reagan had the full weight of his 1980 election victory behind him and was able to steamroller Democratic opposition in Congress to secure most of the budget and tax cuts he sought. According to his closest advisers. Reagan feels that he wasted much of his 1980 mandate by not squeezing more than he did from Congress. "He's not going to make that mistake again next year," says a presidential assistant. "He believes that he's been given a mandate for change, and he's going to make the most of it in the first six months of 1985.

ROBERT WALTERS

Burdening The States

DES MOINES, Iowa (NEA) - "It's simply unthinkable," insists the outspoken Gov. Richard Thornburgh of Pennsylvania. "We're very concerned," says the more reticent Gov. Terry E. Branstad of lowa.

They're both Republicans and they're both talking about the same issue — the effort by a Republican administration in Washington to salvage its deficit-riddled budget by imposing heavy new financial burdens upon the states.

When the Republican Governors Association held its annual meeting here recently, the GOP state executives were justifiably hostile to the tempted by President Reagan and his financial advisers.

Govs. James R. Thompson of lilinois and Robert D. Orr of Indiana, both Republicans, have registered their protest in a letter sent to Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan. Thornburgh wrote a separate letter to Regan decrying what he characterizes as a "simply unthinkable" scheme.

The object of their complaints is a Reagan administration assumption that state and local governments will be generating cumulative annual surpluses of $65 billion to $85 billion by the end of this decade.

The federal government already is relying upon those projections to justify drastic reductions in tax benefits that currently accrue to the

Throughout Reagan's tenure in the White House, the federal government repeatedly has sought to reduce its expenditures by shifting financial responsibilities to the states.

While to fiscal condition of the states improved somewhat during the past year, virtually every state was forced to increase taxes and reduce services during the 1981-82 ecunomic recession.

If the economy deteriorates again during Reagan's second term, the states almost certainly will face a similar financial crisis. Thus, the governors have good cause to insist that the president look elsewhere to rescue his budget.

JEFFREY HART

What We Want

George Will thinks that the present federal-spending arrangements are just about what the voters want. 'In two elections Reagan has not sought a mandate for anything more than marginal adjustments of the welfare state. Could it be he knows something (Rep. Newt) Gingrich does not know - that the voters have got approximately what they want?...Today's government was built by both parties, in comformity with their professional readings of the desires of the middle C. 153.

George Will is hardly alone, Irving Kristol and others have written to much the same effect. The federal programs we have are just about what we want.

But even as George Will was submitting those thoughts to us in his Newsweek column, Secretary of the Treasury Donald Regan was submitting to the president a plan which would bring about serious changes in the federal tax system and sharp cuts in federal programs. the cuts to include farm subsidies. veterans' programs, Medicare, and many other federal programs, some of which would be eliminated entirely. The cuts would amount to some $100 billion a year. George Will's thesis that the voters have about what they want is about to be put to the test.

My own view is that Will's assessment is self-evidently fallacious. The voters do not want what they have because they do not know what they have.

The list would be endless, but do the voters really want a program of federal subsidies that piles up thousands of tons of cheese in warehouses, evidently forever? I regard Senator Jesse Helms with great affection, but do the voters really want to be, year after year. subsidizing the tobacco crop in Helms' state of North Carolina? 1 regard Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas as an attractive and humorous fellow. but does that mean we should be subsidizing farmers in his home state, Kansas?

George Will may be correct that the voters like things the way they are. My view is that they accept them passively because they don't know how to do anything about

We will soon see whether the president is serious in proposing to do anything about the hijacking of your pocket book.

WILLIAM RUSHER

Can The Colony Survive?

HONG KONG (NEA) - Will Hong Kong manage to survive, as an economic miracle that has astonished the world, under the new arrangement that Britain has negotiated with Red China? In 1997 the Crown Colony will be turned over to Peking, which has promised to leave its current way of life substantially intact for 50 years thereafter. "One country, two systems," is the way Deng Xiaoping, the top communist banana, optimistically puts it.

Certainly logic would suggest that Peking ought to try hard to live up to its agreement. In economic terms, Hong Kong is enormously valuable to China.

Upward of one-third of the mainland's precious foreign exchange earnings are derived from trade through this city. And politicountry, two systems" formula here is vital to whatever possibility there is that Taiwan, China's stoutly anti-communist island province, can someday be persuaded to acknowledge Peking's sovereignty on roughly similar terms.

Still, the 5.5 million residents of Hong Kong - most of them refugees from the communist mainland themselves - can be forgiven for harboring serious doubts about Peking's real intentions. In fact, as reported in this space recently, most Hong Kong residents who have the financial and legal means to move before 1997 have already taken preliminary steps in that direction.

In the last analysts, what happens to Hong Kong will depend on what happens in Peking. Deng Xiaoping will be long dead when 1997 arrives; who will succeed him as Red China's boss? Will the country continue on the course he has set for it, toward greater economic freedom?

But the hard-liners are still around, waiting for Deng to stumble or die, and if they return to power in some future convulsion there will be no further nonsense about "one country, two systems." Hong Kong will be inhaled like a gnat, sucked dry of its juices, and obliterated in all but name.

JACK ANDERSON

Cutting Waste A Deficit Cure

MURDER, RAPE, ARSON, TERRORISM, ETHIOPIA, CHILD ABUSE, WAR AND PRINCESS DI'S LATEST

WASHINGTON - At the end of President Reagan's second term if the federal government doesn't change its spending habits - the typical family's share of the $2.5 trillion national debt will be $40,000.

One way or another, this debt must be paid. Here are the bleak alternatives: (1) Each family could shell out more taxes; (2) the government could slash its services; or (3) the Treasury could devalue our money and pay off the debt in cheap dollars.

There is a fourth alternative, which the harried taxpayers might prefer. Its basis is this: There is so much waste in government pro-grams that if the misspending and mismanagement were eliminated, the budget could be balanced without cutting legitimate benefits or raising taxes.

The idea is not new; Ronald Reagan floated it back in 1976. What is new is the execution of the idea by a presidential commission of business efficiency experts, established by President Reagan and headed by industralist J. Peter

What began in the Gipper's old speeches as a few anecdotes from his index cards ended up a massive study by 160 top business executives, containing 2,478 proposals to cut waste - at a savings of $424 billion over three years.

At first, politicians clambered aboard Grace's bandwagon and gave lip-service support to his reforms. The Senate rushed through a resolution by a 93-to-1 vote en-dorsing many of his recommendations. In the small print, of course, the bill added cautiously, "These specific recommendations are not binding."

Just about everyone hailed Grace's proposals until President Reagan indicated he might actually be serious about them. He began issuing directives ordering the bureaucrats to implement the reforms that didn't need congressional approval. Now he has let it be known that he'll press Congress to adopt the rest of the proposals, give or take a few.

In a sudden change of tune, many politicians have started howling for Grace's scalp. The loudest hue and cry has come from the congressmen who misappropriate our tax money and the bureaucrats who misspend

You see. Congress caters to little groups of voters and contributors who have glommed onto extra benefits at the taxpayers' expense. The congressmen are opposed to waste, of course, as long as it is in someone else's preserve.

There are more than 12,000 post offices, for example, that serve 100 people or less. But even 100 people frighten a congressman when there's no one on the other side. So Congress won't let the inefficient post offices be consolidated.

Take Rep. Gene Taylor, R-Mo., for instance. He's a staunch conservative and an implacable foe of government waste. But let someone try to close one of the tiny post offices in his native Ozarks, and he'll raise a howl.

Of the 4,000 military installations in the United States, only about 300 are really needed. But congressmen have blocked the closing of any of them since 1976. Sen. Paul Trible, R-Va., is typical. He favors the Grace Commission's economies except for a proposal to close down Ft. Monroc, Va.

Even when there are no voters defending waste or no sectional pressure for preferential treatment. there are the bureaucrats. Behind almost every inefficiency, there is a covey of bureaucrats who gain from its continuance. Any waste that is eliminated will reduce their appropriations, so they will fight flercely for every last dollar. And they are adept at hornswoggling Congress.

Dave Mosure. Seminole's defensive coordinator for the past four years, was named head football coach at Seminole High School Sunday by Principal Wayne Epps. Mosure replaced Jerry Posey, who resigned Nov. 14 after 10 years.

Mosure, 36, was the top choice among a group of candidates which included Seminole offensive backfield coach Emory Blake, four Seminole County assistant coaches and one former Volusia County head coach.

Epps pinpointed two major reason for his selection. "First, Mosure has had head coaching experience," said Epps about the former South Miami head coach of four years. "Second, any kids that has played for him has had a tremendous amount of respect for him and would do anything he asked. Epps said he consulted some of the senior football players while researching the candidates. "It's always good to talk to the seniors," said Epps.

No Waste Of Wilder, Bucs Win

TAMPA (UPI) - As usual. James Wilder was the star for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, but this time his performance was not wasted.

With Wilder leading the way, the struggling Bucs snapped a three-game losing streak Sunday by whipping the lowly Atlanta Falcons, 23-6.

Wilder, the workhorse of the Tampa attack, ran for 125 yards and a touchdown. He also surpassed the 2,000-yard total offense mark for the season, joining an elite group of NFL players. "We went out and played hard-nosed football and got the Job done," said Wilder, who now has 2,066 yards of total offense plateau in NFL history.

Meanwhile, the Tampa defense kept the Falcons at bay and limited Atlanta running back Gerald Riggs to 53 yards on 15 carries.

It was the ninth consecutive defeat for the Falcons, tying a club record set in their first year in the league. They fell to 3.12, while Tampa improved to 5-10.

"It was a case of what we've been dealing with the last eight or nine games," said Atlanta Coach Dan Henning. "They moved the ball well on offense, and we really had no thrust into their territory."

The game attracted a meager Tampa Stadium crowd of 33,808 - the smallest in the history of the Bucs.

Those on hand were treated to a little excitement, most of it generated by Wilder.

The heart of the Buc offense all 2.000-yard total offense mark in the second quarter on one of his typical runs. He slashed offtackle, swatted away a couple of would-be tacklers and dragged several others along before being wrestled down after a 12-yard gain.

The game was stopped, and Wilder was congratulated by his teammates as the crowd gave him a standing ovation.

"He's done a heck of a job for us," said Tampa Coach John McKay, who is retiring after the season finale next week against the New York Jets. "He's a wonderful person, and he has a great future."

Wilder brushed aside his accomplishments.

"I'm the type of guy who plays during the season," said Wilder, who has 1,441 yards rushing this season and 625 in pass receptions. "When the season's over, then I'll go back through the paperwork.

The Bucs dominated the Falcons from the start. Quarterback Steve. DeBerg led Tampa on two long drives early, the first resulted in a 30-yard field goal by Obed Ariri and the second on 2-yard touchdown run by DeBerg himself.

MIAMI TOPS COLTS

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) - The Indianapolis Colts, out of the NFL playoffs weeks ago, decided to get fired up for their final home game of their first season at the Hoosier Dome.

Even though it was the playoff-bound Miami Dolphins coming in, the Colts were inspired and it showed as they ran off to a miraculous 17-7 halftime lead Sunday afternoon.

But, the second half saw the return to form for both teams. Miami quarterback Dan Marino threw four touchdown passes. Indianapolis scored no points and the Dolphins came away with a 35-17 victory.

"We were playing against a great ball club, and we had to play great just to be competitive," Indianapolis linebacker Barry Krauss said.

The first half of this game will make up most of Indianapolis' season highlight film.

"The first half of the ball game we did a lot of things extremely well," Colts' coach Frank Kush said. "We ran the ball well, and we did some things well in the offensive line."

Randy McMillan and Frank Middleton combined for 110 yards rushing in the first half and McMillan scored one of two Colt touchdowns at the end of a tremendous nine minute, 95yard drive. The other was on a short pass from quarterback Mike Pagel to Ray Butler.

In the second half, though, the Indianapolis offense that camup with 18 first downs in the first half got only two. The rushing combination gained only 37 total yards.

Cold Spell Chills SCC

BRADENTON - Seminole Community College's cold spell early in the first half and Jeff Fulwood's hot shooting early in the second led to a 73-58 victory for Manatee's Lancers over the Raiders Saturday night at Manatee Junior College.

It was the ninth-straight victory for the Lancers, 9-1, and their second over SCC this season. The Raiders, 7-5, travel to Lake Wales Tuesday to take on the Webber College Junior Varsity. SCC goes to Cocoa Friday for the first round of the Brevard Tournament. The Raiders open the tourney against Indian River while host Brevard takes on powerful Miami Dade North.

Manatee took advantage of SCC's dry spell in the first half to build a 32-14 lead with six minutes left in the half. But the Raiders came storming back and outscored the Lancers, 12-2, the rest of the half to pull within eight, 34-26, at halftime.

We thought we had a chance after halftime," SCC assistant Dean Smith said. "But Fulwood came out hot in the second half. We kept it fairly close, but we couldn't cut it under eight the rest of the way."

Fulwood pumped in four straight baskets in the second half as Manatee increased its lead to 42-26. SCC stayed within striking distance but couldn't come back all the way.

Linny Grace led the Raiders with 15 points while Greg "Skywalker" Bates added 12 and Robb Brantley tossed in 10. Brent Baird scored seven points and pulled down seven boards.

Except for the dry spell in the first half and Fulwood's shooting spree in the second, the Raiders played step-for-step with the Lancers. Manatee shot 50 percent from the floor (29 of 58) while SCC shot 49 percent (23 of 47) and Manatee held a slim rebounding edge, 30-28. SCC

Dickerson needed 212 yards entering the game to break Simpson's mark. He picked up 106 yards in the first half and 41 more in the third quarter.

Dickerson scored on runs of 7 and 6 yards and the Rams' first TD came on a 57-yard pass from Kemp to Drew Hill. They added field goals of 35 and 19 yards from Mike Lansford. Houston's points came on a 4-yard TD run by Larry Moriarty and field goals of 21, 42 and 18 yards by Joe Cooper.

The Rams, 10-5, can seal an NFC wildcard spot with a win over NFC West champion San Francisco next Friday. If Los Angeles loses, the Rams can get bumped from the playoffs if Washington loses to St. Louis Sunday and Dallas wins against Miami Monday night.

The idle Los Angeles Raiders were the only team to clinch a playoff berth Sunday. The defending champions earned an AFC wildcard spot when Philadelphia knocked off New England 27-17. The Raiders play at Detroit Monday night.

In the NFC East: Washington is alone in first place after the Redskins edged Dallas 30-28 and St. Louis topped the New York Giants 31-21. Washington is 10-5, Dallas, New York and St. Louis are each 9-6. The winner of next week's Redskins-Cardinals game in Washington wins the division.

In the AFC West: Denver's 16-13 victory over San Diego and Kansas City's stunning 34-7 upset of Seattle left the Broncos and Seahawks tied for first at 12-3. The Broncos and Seahawks meet next week at Seattle. The winner takes the division and the loser qualifies as a wildcard team.

In the AFC Central: Pittsburgh maintained its one-game lead over Cincinnati when the Steelers edged Cleveland 23-20 and the Bengals trimmed New Orelans 24-21. Pittsburgh is 8-7 and Cincinnati 7-8. The Steelers play the Raiders in Los Angeles and Cincinnati hosts Buffalo next week. If they finish in a tie, the Bengals win the division with a better division record. Eagles 27, Patriots 17

Rams Extend Streak To 24

Lake Mary's wrestling team ran its three-year consecutive victory string to 24 this past weekend with dual meet wins over Scabreeze, Edgewater and Colonial

"Our showing against Colonial really surprised me," said Lake Mary coach Frank Schwartz. Lyman whipped Colonial, 36-21, and Edgewater, 49-18, on Saturday after subduing Seabreeze, 51-24, on Friday. Lake Mary is 4-0 for the season and next goes into action Friday at the Lyman Christmas Tournament.

Enrique and Ivan Carbia, Todd Beauchamp, Matt Broberg and Craig Johnson each completed perfect weekends for the Rams with three victories. Senior Bill Caughell, making his debut Saturday, picked up two wins.

"Caughell was really tough against Colonial (Randy Hurte)." said Schwart. "Hurte was third in the Metro last year and Caughell tore him up."

Rekindled Romance May Burn Until Cooled Off

DEAR ABBY: We were childhood sweethearts for six years. Many efforts were made by our parents to split up the Lutheran minister's daughter and her Catholic boyfriend, but we fought against it. I was drafted in 1951. Absence did not make the heart grow fonder. In 1953 she married someone else. and so did I. We both left our hometown and lost track of each other.

Thirty-two years later we met at a class reunion. Both of us were unescorted. We took one look at each other and knew the flame of love was still burning. The problem: We both have been married (happily) for over 30 years and have families, but we can't deny these super strong feelings we have for each other. At first we thought it was only "curlosity" because we had never had sex during our sixyear courtship. But now that we have, It's serious, and Its threatening our respective mar-

We live a thousand miles apart and could see each other only once or twice a year. What has happened to us? And what are we going to do about It?

REKINDLED THE FLAME DEAR REKINDLED: What has happened to you has happened to many others. Fate presented the perfect opportunity for you to consummate an unfertilized romance and you vielded.

You say that you are both happily married with families, and ask, "What are we going to do about it?" If you could walk away from your families to start a new life together, you wouldn't be writing to me - you'd be planning to be together regardless of whom you hurt.

Although the flame of love has been rekindled, I'm betting that cool heads will prevail.

DEAR ABBY: We have a problem that I'm sure a lot of people have, but so far I haven't seen it in your column.

Last evening my husband and I went out for dinner. This is a rather small town and we are quite well-known. The two of us were seated at a table for four and had already ordered when a couple we knew came in and spoke to us. Should we have asked them to join us? We've done so in the past, and we always had to go through that embarrassing check-grabbing scene. One time a lady filled her handbag with crackers, French bread and packets of sugar.

Prices are so high these days. we don't always have enough money for four meals, and we don't carry credit cards unless we're traveling. What should we do if this happens again, as I'm

A LA CARTE IN ALAMEDA

DEAR A LA CARTE: If a couple whose company you think you'll enjoy comes in, ask them to join you. An invitation to sit with you doesn't necessarily imply that you will pick up their tab.

DEAR ABBY: I feel foolish asking a question like this because I'm 33 years old and I guess I should know the answer. but I don't.

I have a friend I like a lot, but I don't consider her a really close friend. She's expecting her first baby, and I have a feeling she's going to ask me to be the baby's godmother.

Here's my situation: I am already godmother to two children - my younger sister's and my favorite cousin's. My husband and I both work hard to make ends meet, and buying our two godehildren gifts for their birthdays, Christmas, Easter, etc. is just about all we can

So how can I turn her down without losing her friendship? She's rather pushy and might not take no for an answer.

TWO IS ENOUGH IN TEXAS

DEAR TWO: Tell her that you appreciate the honor and feel flattered, but you think the honor should go to someone closer - perhaps a relative.

And if she won't take no for an answer, haul out the heavy artillery and tell her you already have two godchildren and that's now 26. I've tried bran and bulk foods, salads, apples, cabbage and prune Juice. They all cause a lot of gas and make me feel worse.

DEAR READER - Many of the bulk agents do cause gas. They are bulk because they cannot be digested. Most of them are complex carbohydrates, as brancertainly is. Undigested bulk is food for bacteria to act on, which causes gas.

Bulk is not the same thing as a stool softener. The softeners are not laxatives, but serve solely to make the stool soft. The Senokot-S you have been taking contains a stool softener (docusate sodium) and a laxative (senna concentrate). The stimulating action of the latter increases colon contractions. which is what you want to stop.

Why don't you switch to a plain stool softener? Colace is just docusate sodium without any laxative. It should provide the softening effect you apparently need for now. At the same time, if you are not having bowel movements, you can use a tap-water enema every three days if needed. If you quit using chemical laxatives and follow a good program, in time you may be able to decrease or eliminate the stool softener as well.

Many people are confused about the differences between stool softeners, chemical laxatives and bulk-forming agents.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My husband has high blood pressure. He is under a doctor's care and takes Dyazide and Minipres to control his pressure. Since we moved to our present home, his blood pressure has risen and he has had to take a greater dosage of medicine to control it.

My question concerns the water softener we had installed here. If calcium, magnesium, iron and other minerals are replaced with sodium ions. wouldn't this added sodium be

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have harmful to someone with high blood pressure?
