Sorry, no bungee jumping

SANFORD — It was 8:30 a.m. today. Sleepy-eyed, but spry and feisty, participants in the Golden Age Games were casually milling about from the headquarters at the Sanford Civic Center throughout downtown Sanford.

Down the people-lined street, a huge crane (not the bird, but mechanical), complete with ropes and other lifting gear, hovered over Bram Towers. Crowds of anxious spectators gathered on the ground below with their eyes cast skyward wondering what the Golden Agers were up to next.

A perplexed spectator phoned the Herald to inquire if bungee jumping is included in today's Golden Age Games schedule.

Bungee jumping? Hmm. Not that we know anything about.

A quick call to Bram Towers revealed that no such dramatic and exciting action as bungee jumping is planned at the towers. "But we are getting a new roof, after 22 years," the spokesman laughed.

Brown elected circuit judge

DECATUR, ALA. — Sherrill W. Brown, daughter of Carrie and San Greene of Sanford, was elected circuit judge for Morgan County in Tuesday's election.

A Decatur, Ala. lawyer, Brown moved to Sanford at age 12 and is a 1972 graduate of Seminole High School. She got her start in Sanford working for the law firm, Cleveland, Mize and Berry.

Counterfeiter sought

The Seminole County sheriff's office has turned over to U.S. Secret Service agents in Orlando nine counterfeit twenty dollar bills that were used for payment at the 7-Eleven store, 3350 N. Highway 17-92 in Longwood, last Monday.

According to the sheriff's office, an unidentified woman passed the phony bills to the store's clerk when she purchased an American Express money order at the store at about 1:30 that afternoon.

The woman was photographed by the store's security camera while she was making the transaction.

She is described as a black woman, 45 years old, about 5'6" and 230 pounds. She is said to have brown eyes and short black hair.

Softball league forming

LONGWOOD — The Winter Polar Softball League of the City of Longwood park and recreation department will be starting Jan. 9, 1995. Games will be played Monday through Friday nights. There will be Mens C and coed teams. Registration will be Nov. 22 at Candyland Park. Any team interested in joining the league should call Sandy Lomax, 260-3447 or Lincoln 331-6974. Prices per team range from $220 coed to $290 mens teams for 10 weeks, one night a week played at Candyland Park.

County flies GOP colors

Morris victorious over Perry; Adams edges out Dem Furlong

By J. MARK DARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County's county commission returned to its Republican colors of five years ago with the defeat of Democrat incumbent Larry Furlong and the election of Randall Morris Tuesday.

Seminole County joined the nationwide Republican route of Democrats, voting solidly for Republican candidates across the election board. The only exceptions were the predominately Democratic congressional District 3 and Florida Senate District 14, where Democratic Party incumbents were returned.

With 100 percent of the county's 133 precincts reporting, Winfield Adams edged past incumbent Furlong by a 52.4-to-47.6 majority. Adams received 43,323 votes to Furlong's 39,432. Furlong was the first Democrat elected to the county commission in more than two decades.

In the battle of the mayors, Lake Mary's Morris walked ahead of Adrienne Perry of Longwood in early returns and stayed there, finishing with a

Sweeping changes: Voters OK four county amendments

By J. MARK DARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County liked the first proposed changes to the six-year-old County Home Rule Charter and voted enthusiastically Tuesday to approve the four amendments on Tuesday's ballot.

The changes are sweeping. School board members will now be elected by the party primary process. An economic impact analysis must be prepared before any legislation is considered which would affect the pocket-books of taxpayers. Commissioners can now ask clerks and any other staffers questions without the threat of violating the charter non-interference clause.

And perhaps the most significant change of all, the county's county manager form of government was altered by transferring the

'He-coon' back for four more years

By BRENT KALLESTAD
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — When the sun rose today, the "he-coon" was back for four more years.

But only after the nastiest fight of a long political life. "We could have lost this race, and we were perhaps on our way to losing it when a lot of you said we're not going to let this happen," Gov. Lawton Chiles said after nudging Republican challenger Jeb Bush in the closest governor's race in Florida history.

As Chiles' supporters chanted, "Four more years," the governor donned a coon-skin cap for his victory speech at a Tampa hotel.

"What time is it? It's just before dawn," Chiles said, referring to his self-styled title of "he-coon." Chiles had warned Bush last week that there's an old Southern expression that the "he-coon" — the smartest and toughest racoon of the pack — walks just before the light of dawn when all the dogs sleeping have are tired.

Bush carried 40 of the state's 67 counties, including Seminole and Orange, and was strong in all areas of the state except for South Florida, where Chiles effectively won the race with a 123,000-vote advantage in Broward County.

Chiles had 51 percent, or 2,089,072 votes, to Bush's 49 percent, or 1,998,537 votes, with 90 percent of the precincts counted.

"This is a very special night for me," said the 64-year-old Chiles, who has never been defeated in a statewide race. "This is sort of the last time I'll have a chance to do this."

Moments after taking a congratulatory call from Bush, the governor talked by telephone with President Clinton even though he had avoided Clinton during his campaign.

Bush's father, former President George Bush, predicted his second son would remain involved.

"Jeb will continue to be a leader, as he always has been, in his community and his state," said the elder Bush.

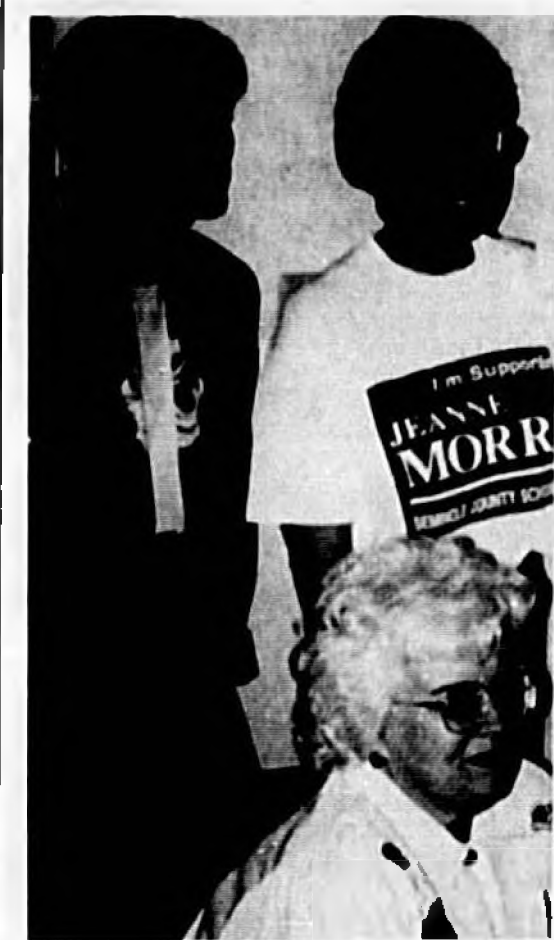

Bush, who made his first bid for elective office, received more votes than Republican winner Bob Martinez in 1986.

"I am saddened by the fact that

Incumbent keeps school board seat

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The anticipated anti-incumbency vote did not reach to the Seminole County school board race on Tuesday.

After a see-saw start that had challenger Ted Barker and one-term board member Jeane Morris trading leads through the early hours of the returns, Morris pulled ahead and never looked back.

When all the ballots were counted well into the wee-hours of the morning, Morris had nearly 12,500 votes more than her opponent.

"I'm delighted," she said when the final results were in. "I think this says a lot about the leadership team. I think it shows Supt. (Paul) Hagerty has done a good job."

Morris said under Hagerty's leadership the school board has made a number of key changes that were "validated" by the outcome of the election.

When all was said and done, Morris had garnered 44,745 votes and Barker had gotten 32,267.

Barker, who describes himself as an "eternal optimist" said he was pleased to have received 41.9 percent of the vote.

Local man may face other charges in infant's death

By VICKI DeSORMIER

DEBARY — An 18-year-old Lake Mary man jailed for injuring a 7-month-old infant may face stiffer charges now that the baby has died, authorities said.

Jamie Swinehart, the boyfriend of the 7-month-old infant's mother, was being held in the Volusia County Jail under suicide watch on a half million dollar bond on one count of felony aggravated child abuse.

It is believed that he is not the father of the child, officials said.

Swinehart lives at 178 W. Lakeview Ave., Lake Mary.

The infant, Jose Anthony Trinidad, died of injuries at 2:12 p.m. Monday at Arnold Palmer Hospital for Children & Women in Orlando, said Sgt. Gordon Meyer, a spokesman for the Volusia County Sheriff's Office.

"The state attorney will present (the case) to a grand jury and they will determine whether or not to indict (Swinehart) and under what charges," Cheryl Downs, also a spokesman for the Volusia sheriff's office, said.

Lake Mary eyed for movie studio site

By NICK PFEIFAUER

LAKE MARY — Movie studio officials are concerned a premature announcement last week of a major movie studio being considered in the Lake Mary area may hinder efforts to obtain needed property at fair market value prices.

Preliminary site locating and initial planning was supposed to take place before any planned major announcement was made. "We planned a big press conference to make the announcement in about three weeks," said Craig Soldingier.

Soldingier, presently the president of Florida Motion Picture and Television Association, is executive vice president of marketing and development for the developer, Sun Studios.

Michael Garfield is also a Sun

Studio official.

Lake Mary City Manager John Litton says Garfield and Soldingier have been checking into property availability in and near Lake Mary.

"As we understand it," said Lake Mary City Planner Matt West, "This isn't going to be any tourist attraction, rather it is to be a fully working studio. ... what they say would be the biggest studio of its kind on the east coast, with at least eight sound stages."

Soldingier said there will also be two major hotels associated with the studio. "One would be a very large public-type hotel, complete with a trade show and exhibition center, and an enclosed amphitheater capable of seating possibly 7,500 people."

"The other one," he continued, "will be a private hotel, for use only

GOP gains one seat in House race

TALLAHASSEE — "Big Daddy" Don Garlits, one of the winningest drag ravers of all time, spun his wheels on the political track.

The blunt-talking Ocala Republican had nothing to say, leaving his planned victory party late Tuesday after it quickly became clear he would lose to incumbent Democratic Rep. Karen Thurman of Dunellon.

The GOP was counting on Garlits, 62, of Ocala, to unseat Thurman, 43, and on former naval intelligence officer Mark Sharpe, 34, of Tampa, to retire 32-year incumbent Rep. Sam Gibbons, 74, one of the most powerful Democrats in Congress. But both came up short.

Republicans, however, did pick up one vacant Democratic seat and probably another in Florida without losing any. If Dr. Dave Weldon's lead holds up in District 15, where 36 percent of the vote remained uncounted late Tuesday, the Republicans will increase their congressional advantage in Florida to 15-8.

A look at races involving other Democratic incumbents:
 —Rep. Pete Peterson, 59, of Marianna, defeated Republican Carole Griffin, 56, a Tallahassee political consultant and lobbyist for anti-abortion and other conservative causes, in District 2.
 —Rep. Corinne Brown, 47, of Jacksonville, defeated Republican Marc Little, 43, a public relations man and conservative radio commentator from Jacksonville, in District 3.

The three Republican incumbents' races shaped up this way:
 —Rep. John Mica, 51, of Winter Park, defeated Democrat Edward J. Goddard, 65, a Longwood stockbroker, in District 7.
 —Rep. Charles T. Canady, 40, of Lakeland, defeated Polk County Commissioner Robert Connors, 42, a Lake Wales Democrat, in District 12.
 —Rep. Clay Shaw, 55, of Fort Lauderdale, was re-elected in District 22 over Palm Beach Town Council President Hermine Wiener, 60, a recent Democratic convert and president of an international security company, in District 22.

Mack defeats Rodham to win re-election

MIAMI — When it came to Republicans capitalizing on voter discontent with President Clinton, U.S. Sen. Connie Mack said he had it easy — his opponent was the first lady's brother, Hugh Rodham.

Mack became the first Republican to win re-election to the Senate from Florida this century by solidly trouncing Rodham. His win Tuesday took a little sting out of the GOP's defeat in the gubernatorial election.

Mack's victory, forecast by polls throughout the campaign, was a far cry from 1988 when Mack squeaked into office by less than 1 percent of the vote against Buddy MacKay — who went on to become lieutenant governor.

Republicans gain majority, state Senate

TALLAHASSEE — Republicans took control of the Florida Senate for the first time this century.

The 21-19 majority for the GOP had hinged on the outcome of a close race in the Space Coast.

In that race, Republican challenger Charles Bronson of Satellite Beach upset Democratic Sen. Patricia Grogan of Merritt Island.

Republicans broke the 20-20 partisan stalemate that has stymied the chamber since 1992. It marks the first time since Reconstruction that Republicans have controlled a legislative chamber in Florida.

Fourteen Senate seats were contested. Republicans and Democrats targeted about half of those races as the key to gaining a majority in the upper chamber.

In Orlando, Democratic Sen. Buddy Dyer defeated Republican Nancy Patterson.

Sen. Charles Williams, D-Tallahassee, beat Republican challenger George Onetti of Ocala.

One incumbent was unseated in the primary but it didn't affect the 20-20 gridlock. Sen. Gary Siegel, R-Longwood, was defeated in the primary by Republican John Ostalkiewicz, a diamond importer in Windermere.

Couch winner in Dist. 33 House race

SANFORD — State Rep. Marvin Couch, a Republican, was re-elected by a wide margin Tuesday over Democratic newcomer Louise Ray in the Dist. 33 House of Representatives race. In the southern portion of the county, Republican Bob Brooks defeated Democrat Susan L. Pickman for the state House District 35 seat. District 33 includes portions of Seminole, Orange and Volusia Counties. With 100 percent of the precincts reporting, Couch received 19,660 votes to Ray's 11,982, a 62.1-to-37.9 margin. Brooks received 13,426 votes to Pickman's 11,605, a 53.6-to-46.4 win. The results, reported this morning by the state Division of Elections, were unofficial.

Casinos fail

All other constitutional amendments pass

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Floridians said no to casinos and fishing nets and yes to measures that link state taxes to personal income and make it easier to limit taxes in the future through citizen initiative.

Voters also said state lawmakers could push the start of their two-month session back from February to March.

Of the five proposed constitutional amendments on Tuesday's ballot, the only one that failed was backed by more money than has ever been raised in Florida history for any candidate or issue.

The Proposition for Limited Casinos raised $16.7 million in an effort to get Florida voters to open the state up to 47 casinos in hotels, parimutuels and riverboats.

"We spent a lot of money, but I think we did what we had to do," Patrick Roberts, chairman of the campaign, said today.

Roberts predicted a more sweeping casino measure would surface in two or four years.

"I think they were overgreedy," Miami Beach Mayor Seymour Gelber said. "The public saw through the fact that they were trying to rip off the state literally."

Gelber said it was amazing to think that casino proponents spent more money than Gov. Lawton Chiles and defeated Republican challenger Jeb Bush, who together spent nearly $14 million in the gubernatorial race.

Casino opponents, organized in a group known as No Casinos, raised about $1.6 million.

It was the third time in 16 years that Floridians said they didn't want casinos in the state.

Floridians overwhelmingly voted for an amendment that would ban most fishing nets from state waters.

The proposal outlaws fishing nets that catch fish in their mesh from all Florida waters. It also bans the use of any kind of net bigger than 500 square feet in inshore and nearshore waters.

"We're mighty happy," said Karl Wickstrom, publisher of the Florida Sportsman magazine and chairman of the Save Our Sealife Committee, which sponsored the amendment.

Wickstrom called the results an overwhelming mandate from the people.

"This is a turning point in marine management history," he said.

Jerry Sansom, executive director of Organized Fishermen of Florida, indicated the commercial fishing industry would explore legal challenges.

He compared the passage of the amendment, which his group says threatens their livelihoods, to the 1923 destruction of a black settlement. A white mob leveled Rosewood in a weeklong rampage after a white woman accused a black man of rape.

"This is the greatest injustice committed against a group of Floridians since the Rosewood massacre," Sansom said. "Somebody yells rape and suddenly thousands of innocent people's lives are

Carrico defeats Miller for Longwood seat

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

LONGWOOD — Two new city commissioners were sworn into office this morning on the Longwood City Commission.

Jim Carrico defeated incumbent mayor Steve Miller in the race for district 3 commissioner. Bill Winston was unopposed for election to the district 5 seat vacated by commissioner Paul Lovestrund. The two new commissioners scheduled a 10 a.m. swearing in ceremony for their three-year terms. The commission term was extended from two years to three years under a charter change approved by the voters earlier.

At a party in his Hidden Oaks home Tuesday night, Carrico was confident of victory, even though all the votes had not been counted. Surrounded by family and a group of friends and supporters, the commissioner-elect thanked his 40 volunteers and a group of advisers.

Miller seemed confident but yet reflective as election returns filtered into his election night party at the Night Moves Teen Dance center in Longwood where his supporters gathered for the results.

"I look at this the same way as I look at losing any election," Miller said. "If I lose, I lose. If I win, I win. If I lose, it just tells me the people of Longwood don't like what I

Stephenson elected in circuit judge's race

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — In an election described as a "nail biter" by the loser, Longwood attorney Gene Stephenson was elected as circuit court judge for Seminole County edging out Carmine Bravo in a race which was too close to call at 4 a.m.

Warren W.C. Burk was elected over Bruce Jacobus to serve as circuit court judge in Brevard County.

The two counties comprise the Eighteenth Judicial Circuit. Stephenson received 106,080 to Bravo's 94,255.

Although Bravo garnered more votes than Stephenson in Seminole County, 37,377 to 36,106, Stephenson received 69,974 votes in Brevard County to Bravo's 56,878.

Even this morning, Stephenson was reluctant to claim victory because he did not have final vote totals from Brevard County, although the trend looked favorable.

"I am indeed humbled by the confidence and trust the voters of Seminole and Brevard counties have placed in me," Stephenson said. "Let me thank friends, new and old, for the help they unselfishly gave to me. The biggest thank you of all goes to my family. My wife, Grace, and my daughters Kim, Kristi, Kati and Kelli and my "mom and dad," Russ and Isabell Hulbert, they are Grace's parents."

"I don't want to be corny but what you've seen is an example of how much family really means and how rewarding being together and working together is," Stephenson said. "The victory is sweet but feeling even closer as a family is sweeter. I just feel so good and we all worked so hard."

"We finally packed it in somewhere around 4 o'clock," Bravo said, after about two hours sleep this morning. "One thing I realize in life is that

POLICE BRIEFS

Cop car hit

Florida Highway Patrol troopers arrested John D. Mansker, 30, of 545 Lakeshore Circle, Lake Mary, following a vehicle accident with a Sanford police car early Tuesday. The incident reportedly occurred on Lake Mary Boulevard, west of Hidden Lake Drive. The arrest report said Mansker's 1993 Nissan pickup was being pursued by the Sanford police car when it made a U-turn and drove head on into the police car. When the FHP arrived, the Sanford police officer had apprehended Mansker and had him in the back of the police vehicle. The FHP charged him with driving under the influence of alcohol. The arrest report indicated there was only minor damage to the police vehicle and the officer did not receive serious injuries.

Artists at work

Sheriff's deputies investigated a reported graffiti painting incident Monday, on the rear wall of the Lake Mary Village Shopping Center, 3801 W. Lake Mary Blvd. When deputies arrived, they reported finding two men in the process of painting fictional characters and numerous letters and symbols on the building. According to the incident report, the two men expressed pride in their work, and told them while the owner may not like it, they felt they should do the painting.

Deputies said the owner of the building could not immediately be located, so the case has been placed on hold, and no arrests were made, although 10 cans of various color spray paint and other items were taken and placed into evidence.

Uniformed man nabbed

Sanford police arrested Anthony Collier, 30, of 105 Sterling Court, Sanford, on Monday. The incident reportedly occurred as the result of a burglary at a residence in the 600 block of Palmetto Avenue earlier in the day. Witnesses in the house reported seeing a man, dressed in a school board uniform, burglarizing the home. An estimated $235 in money was said to be missing. Following an investigation, police located Collier at Idyllwild Elementary School, and arrested him on charges of burglary to an occupied dwelling and petit theft.

Lost and recovered vehicles

- A burgundy 1989 Nissan, with words on the side "Now What?" was reported stolen Monday in the 600 block of W. 25th Street, at Geneva Gardens.
- A 1991 Cadillac, reported stolen in Altamonte Springs, was recovered by Sanford police Monday in a ditch in the 1200 block of 19th Court.
- A 1986 Dodge van was reported stolen Monday in the 100 block of Anderson Circle. The vehicle was later reported as having been found in Altamonte Springs.
- A white and red 1985 Ford pickup was reported stolen early Tuesday in the 800 block of Locust Avenue in Sanford.

Lost truck

Sanford police are trying to determine what happened to a semi tractor trailer. A Sanford man told police he had hired a man to drive the vehicle to Lacross, Wis. He said the truck was last spotted Nov. 5, when an estimated $20,000 in produce was loaded and ready to be returned. Since that time, he had not heard about the truck. Police report it has now been found, abandoned, at a truck stop in Earle, Ark. No word was immediately available regarding the contents of the truck.

Traffic stops

- Andrade Angel, 31, 2613 Palmetto Avenue, Sanford, was arrested by sheriff's deputies Monday as the result of a traffic stop in the 3500 block of Celery Avenue. Angel was charged with driving with a suspended/revoked license, and possession of an open container in a motor vehicle.
- James T. Otey, 20, of Deltona, was stopped by Sanford police Monday in the 1200 block of W. Seminole Boulevard. He was charged with driving with a suspended/revoked license.

Warrants

- Jerome Cliff McGinnis, 22, 201 Holly Avenue, Sanford, was arrested Monday by deputies at his residence. He was wanted for failing to appear on a charge of driving with a suspended/revoked license.
- Kelly Joe Porter, 37, 1009 E. Second Street, Sanford, was arrested by Casselberry police Monday at the Casselberry Florida Parole Commission office. He was wanted for interfering with custody of a child.

Let kids decide how much to eat

By BRENDA C. COLEMAN
AP Medical Writer

CHICAGO — Parents who want normal-weight children shouldn't try to control how much they eat — left alone, most youngsters instinctively know how much is good for them.

"You have to have a little bit of faith in your child's ability to know when they're hungry and when they're not," said Susan L. Johnson, the lead author of a new study of 77 preschoolers aged 3 to 5.

Stringently tracking the child's eating can lead to problems. Children with the most body fat had mothers who were the most "controlling" about diet, the study found. The children were also the least likely to eat appropriate amounts of calories spontaneously.

"The more control the mother reported using over her child's eating the less self-regulation the child displayed," authors of the study say in the November issue of Pediatrics.

Parents should just "relax a little," said Johnson, a nutritionist and postdoctoral fellow in pediatrics at the University of Colorado Center Health Sciences Center.

"While they still remain responsible for providing healthy choices for their kids in terms of food selection, kids are capable of figuring out how much to eat," she said.

The study was done at a preschool at the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana, where Johnson and co-author Leann L. Birch formerly worked. Birch now is a professor of human development and family studies at Penn State University.

Children were given different calorie combinations and observed, and parents were questioned about behaviors around food at home.

Some mothers let children eat only at mealtimes, instead of when they were hungry, or encouraged children to eat all the food given to them. Such mothers seemed to get concerned if children seemed to be eating too little or too much.

However, children whose mothers allowed them to be highly spontaneous about food showed a natural instinct for regulating their own calories, the researchers said.

It has been estimated that one of every four U.S. children is obese, and the prevalence of the problem has increased as much as 54 percent in the last two decades, according to previous research.

While the study suggested that mothers were the main regulators of children's diets, fathers also played a role, researchers said. And the weight and eating habits of the parents were relevant.

"An obese or chronically dieting parent may be especially concerned about his or her children's eating habits, and see the child as at risk for obesity," the researchers said.

Jo Ann T. Hattner, a spokeswoman for the American Dietetic Association, said the study is important.

"These internal cues, when interrupted, may well lead to overeating in later childhood which could contribute to child being overweight," said Hattner, a pediatric nutritionist at Stanford University Medical Center.

and mothers where the mothers have been very controlling and the child is obese," she said, "and trying to convince the mother to let go of that control is very difficult."

Checkers competition, not for faint at heart

By VICKI DORRMEIER
 Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Lizette Lancaster did not want to enter the intense world of the Golden Age Games checkers competition at the Sanford Senior Center on Monday morning.

"They take it too seriously," she said of the pair of players who had gathered to play. "I grew up playing checkers on the back porch with my grandfather. We used bottle tops and a piece of painted wood. I don't think we ever paid attention to who won or lost. We just played."

Lancaster has been coming to the Golden Age Games from Ocala every year for the last three. She has yet to sit down at the checkerboard.

"No way," she says with a laugh. "I'm here to have fun."

While Lancaster and her friend Mary Keene lounged at a table under a sprawling tree on the north lawn of the Senior Center sipping a Snapple pink lemonade, competition clattered seriously inside.

"This is not a child's game," said one elderly man without looking up from the black and red world at his fingertips. "It requires concentration and patience."

Five-time winner returns to noble game

By RENEE ROTH
 Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Cribbage is a pastime that provides social opportunities to display true sportsmanship and respect for others, without rancor, animosity, or overwhelming self-interest during competition.

The card game of cribbage was invented about 1635 by Sir John Suckling, a British poet and knight. It has survived, with no major changes, as one of the most popular games in the English-speaking world.

However, as the game developed across the United States, local variations crept in. There was no standardization of playing rules in the tournaments that were beginning to appear all over the nation.

In August, 1979, The American Cribbage Congress, Inc. (ACC) was founded as a non-profit corporation to promote the noble game of cribbage, to pioneer and develop many programs for the benefit of its members, and to promulgate fraternal friendships among cribbage players everywhere.

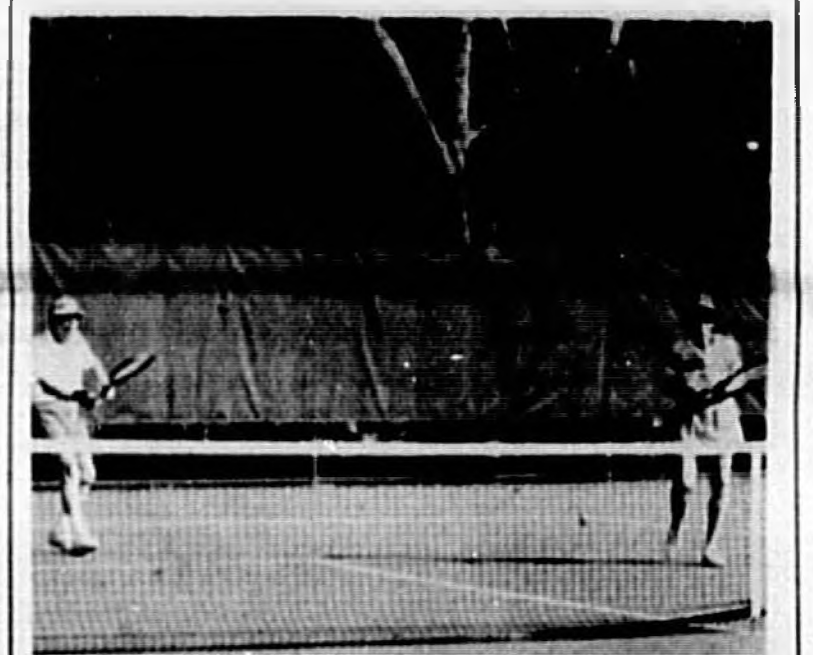

Ted Depzyl is a five-time medal winner in cribbage, with the Golden Age Games. He has won two gold medals in 1992 and 1993, one silver in 1991 and two bronze. "I'm not just sure when I won the bronze," said Beulah Smith (left) and Ted Depzyl will vie for cribbage title. Depzyl, this year his opponent year, but Ted is pretty darn good," said Smith. Between the going to try and win the gold this two of them they have more than 30 years of experience playing and truly enjoying the game of cribbage.

Tennis competition begins

Tuesday dawned bright and beautiful, a perfect day for the tennis semi-finals of the Golden Age Games. One hundred thirty-seven participants signed up for the tennis matches as singles, doubles and mixed doubles. Participants ranged in age from 55 to 80 and came from as far away as Tallahassee, Lady Lake and Dunellon. The tennis finals will be held Wednesday. Winners of the finals will go the state Golden Age Games in Bradenton, Dec. 2nd. Some of the seniors are especially active during the games, with tennis matches in the morning and golf matches in the afternoon. The games began Monday with 40 tennis matches. Thirty semi-finals will be played Tuesday. The games are broken into age divisions of 5 year intervals. Richard (left) and Louise McGuinness are two of the oldest entrants in the doubles competition.

There will be a next time

Only a very few people can say today that every one of the candidates they voted for, and all the referenda they supported, came out as victors in yesterday's election.

No matter who lost or what was not approved, there are many people who are disappointed in yesterday's balloting outcome.

No doubt radio talk shows for the next few days will have a barrage of people expressing their dismay and espousing that our government, state, cities, are now going to go right down the drain.

Some radio talk shows do that all year round, so this will be nothing new.

It does show, however, that people simply can't accept any form of rejection of what they personally thought was the best.

It's time to do a turn-around. It won't be easy, but citizens must accept what happened yesterday as the will of the majority. We will be living with these decisions for a considerable length of time.

One thing should be kept in mind however. If the person you thought was the best candidate didn't win, or your favorite referendum didn't pass, there will be a next time.

Florida is blessed with a great many people who would make outstanding leaders. Many however, wouldn't touch politics with a ten-foot-pole. We must start examining why this feeling persists. Why are those who possibly would be the best continue to stay in the background.

The time to begin planning and working for the next election shouldn't be the beginning of political qualifying time. Political and governmental action and concern must be a continuing year-round project for everyone.

Attend government meetings. Study what is going on. Pay attention to who is doing good and not so good.

Let's face facts. The beginning of the 1995 political season started as of 7 p.m. yesterday, when the polls closed and decisions had been made.

LETTER

Veterans Day

Shall we abolish Veteran's Day?

Veterans Day was established to recognize and honor those who served and sacrificed to uphold the honor, integrity and freedom of the American nation. They paid the price for America's freedoms and opportunities. Without them, the American nation would have disintegrated as a great sovereign nation. Without them the world would be controlled by totalitarian dictatorships, and America lapsed into mediocrity.

They believed in America! They believed she should continue to champion human rights and justice for all peoples. Even when they might disagree with a particular policy, they upheld the idealism which at times led the nation into difficult decisions in international politics. Veterans, too, believed America should maintain military strength great enough to deter any totalitarian "messiahs" erupting into the world scene, and retain the capability of quickly stifling simultaneous world crises as they occur. They believed in the government's responsibility to carry out the Constitution's directive, "... to provide for the common defense" assuring peace and freedom.

Today, veterans' experience and opinions are largely being ignored, by-passed, or disparaged. "Downsizing" has been too fast and too much. Military capability has been decimated. Millions of military and defense workers have been thrust into the unemployed lines. Retraining programs have quickly run out of funds. By drastic cutting of funds for programmed military needs, the nation has been placed at risk, its future imperiled. Some would make America into a wimpering docile emaculated "tied-down" giant, soon losing respect and confidence from both "friends and foes" in international politics. Veterans Day, to them, has no great significance or meaning!

However, there is hope! In recent months at various national conventions, I have heard Congressmen, top-ranking military and other national leaders, voice their opinions. They cited serious weaknesses in our capabilities, exposed flagrant dangers in our future, and pointed to the lesson from history: "Every time the nation becomes 'weak,' another major world crisis occurs." Certainly we don't want another "Pearl Harbor," especially now with the possibility of nuclear devastation.

We need to place the interests and future of America above partisan politics, misguided and misplaced budgeting, and "Pollyannish" diplomacy. It's better to be a roaring lion than a wimpering mouse! Only a strong America will remain a free America. Only a free America will continue to give us the full measure of human rights, liberties and democracy. May Veterans Day rekindle our courage and re-ignite our faith and hope in America's future.

Poor get poorer during Clinton years

RR-LINING-G.

No answer. I'm trying to reach Sylvia Nasar of The New York Times. She's probably best known for her lengthy articles "documenting" the growing gap between rich and poor during the gilded decade of the 1980s, with Republicans in the White House.

I was curious to find out why she hasn't written anything yet about the even wider gap between rich and poor during the first two years of the Clinton presidency.

Same thing with Marian Wright Edelman, president of the Children's Defense Fund. She declared it "disgraceful" that so many children were poor during the final years of the Bush presidency.

But I haven't heard similar exclamations from her since the Census Bureau released figures earlier this month showing that there are more poor children with Clinton in the White House than there ever were under Reagan or Bush.

Indeed, it is hard to imagine that a Republican president could have gotten away with the miserable poverty and income numbers that Clinton has posted during his first two years in the White House. Especially if the figures were released a mere month before midterm elections.

Some 15.1 percent of the U.S. population lived in poverty last year, the highest rate in more than a decade. The ranks of poor Americans swelled to 39.3 million, the largest number since John F. Kennedy was in the White House.

Meanwhile, the rich are getting richer under Clinton, and the middle class are losing ground. According to the latest Census figures, the share of the American income pie that goes to the highest-earning 5 percent of families increased last year from 18.6 percent to 20 percent.

At the same time, the share that went to middle-income families declined from 16.5 percent to 15.9 percent, and the share to the lowest income families from 3.8 percent to 3.6 percent.

In historical terms, this is the biggest income disparity — the liberals called it "inequality" when Republicans were in the White House — of the post-World War II era.

If this is presented in terms of "fairness" — as often was the case before a Democrat sat in the Oval Office — the first two years of the Clinton presidency have been more unfair to both the poor and middle class than any of the Reagan-Bush years.

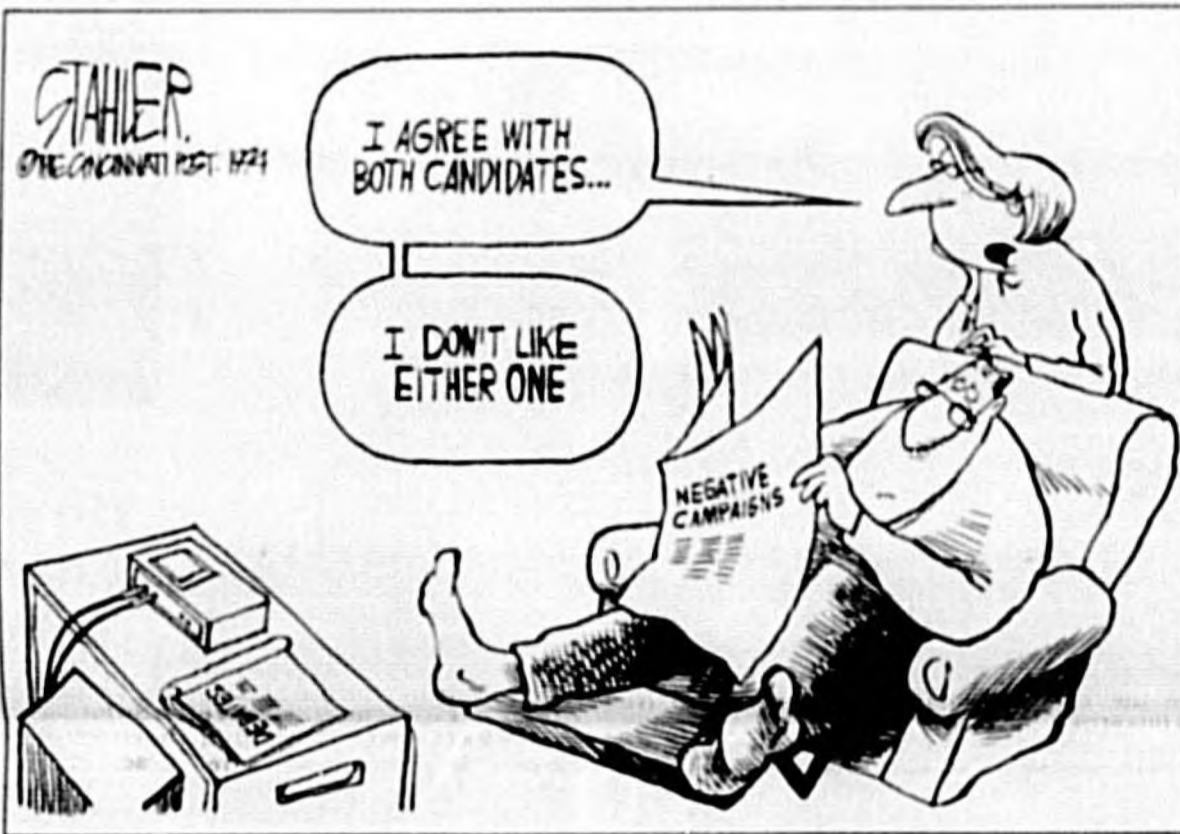

The American people have to be wondering what kind of economic expansion they are witnessing under Clinton, when the number of poor folks grew (rather than shrank) by 1.3 million last year, when average family incomes fell (rather than rose) by 2 percent.

Just contrast that with the Reagan expansion of the 1980s. During that seven year period, from 1983 to 1989, the poverty rate declined from 15.2 percent to 12.8 percent, with the ranks of the poor shrinking by almost 4 million. Over the same stretch, middle-class family incomes rose a robust 13 percent, after adjusting for inflation.

Now that's a real economic expansion. But you never would have known it from Nasar, Edelman and their ilk. Rather than giving Reagan his due, or cutting Bush some slack, they attacked the Republicans by casting the 1980s as the "Decade of Greed."

It is hard to imagine that a Republican president could have gotten away with the miserable poverty and income numbers.

SARAH OVERSTREET

Voters have had it with loose spending

It is election eve and I am sitting at my computer terminal in the editorial department putting in the last letters-to-the-editor before Missouri voters go to the polls.

Just over my shoulder is a stack of letters as high as my nose which will never see the light of day, although we've been printing letters on the same subject for months. They are the repository of a passion I've never seen in my 15 years of reporting, all on "Hancock II," a tax limitation amendment which is one of several around the country seeking voter approval this election.

It is a complicated amendment in its construction so complex that legal minds all over the state and country disagree on exactly what it says and what it would do. Yet many of the writers of the letters looking over my shoulder say they can do what these legal minds cannot, which is to understand it perfectly. It will, they say, put back into the hands of voters the power to control how much of their money is taken for taxes and what is done with that money.

Others say they can't understand it completely, but they know enough about it to believe it will at least wreak havoc with programs approved in some cases by voters and in others by legislators. They have written letters warning of the dire consequences of the curtailment of this program or that program, many of them spurred on by the possibility of their own jobs being axed.

Therein the fight became personal, and therein we had a chance to view a major philosophical agreement which will be driving tax reform for some time.

Many writers in favor of Hancock II were incensed that the other side dare tell THEM they didn't have the right to vote on tax measures. The tone of many on the other side was how dare THEY think of cutting programs that have done such good things for so many.

The argument went as far back as the founding fathers: One side believed our forebears meant for us to have absolute control of how much we are taxed and how that money is spent, as a relief from the tyranny imposed on us by the English monarchy. The other believes the founders meant for us to elect representatives to vote on tax measures in our stead. To do otherwise is to so bog the wheels of government that we'll be forever mired in the minutiae of getting voter approval that we'll never get anything done.

The philosophical argument stretches to the stewardship of tax money since the inception of the Great Society, and we add another side to the mix at this point. That side believes we have gone about doing good with all that tax money collected, so why is everyone so worked up?

The first side is disgusted at what it believes is an "entitlement-oriented" culture which has bred dependency almost into our DNA. Yet another side believes we need some sort of brakes on taxes and spending, but would like to see an understandable measure which won't cut vital services before we have a chance for more gradual and studied reform.

The basic underpinning of much of this emotion is the belief that our legislators don't hold themselves to the same standard to which we must hold ourselves personally. If we have to balance our private budgets, why doesn't the country? Programs costing a lot may be beneficial, but just how valuable are they when weighed against the national debt?

The argument went as far back as the founding fathers.

ELLEN GOODMAN

Building bridges in private talk

WASHINGTON — I'm halfway to Deborah Tannen's office at Georgetown University when I realize that I'm late. My mind starts racing playfully down the pathways that Tannen has marked out in her linguistic map-making.

When I get there, should I say I'm sorry? Would "sorry" mark me by gender as surely as my extra X chromosome? Would my sorrow merely be a female ritual expression of regret? Or a real, live, gender-free apology?

By the time I get to her doorway, I untie my tongue of its burden by telling her my thought-process. As she graciously joins in laughter, it occurs to me that my response to this woman isn't unique.

Indeed, Deborah Tannen may be single-handedly responsible for making millions of American men and women self-conscious about their speech. Talking with her is like cooking for a restaurant critic. You assume that she isn't just eating, she's analyzing the ingredients. Awarding stars.

In 1990, this professor of linguistics set out to describe the communications gap between men and women to a country frustrated by "he said, she said" arguments. "You Just Don't Understand" topped the best-seller list because it promised that we actually could understand.

Her evenhanded approach tried to calm the hostilities. What goes awry between men and women in private life, she suggested, "may be due to misunderstandings, not bad intentions."

Now she has brought that perspective to the workplace. Her new book, "Talking 9 To 5, is about "private talking in a public context."

Tannen is careful to say that there aren't inherent or immutable gender differences. Nor is there a single pattern for all men or all women. She would rather speak of "conversational styles" or of cultures than of genders.

Nevertheless, as office anthropologist, she hears men saying "I" and women saying "we." Men focusing on status "who's up" and women focusing on connection. Men comfortable with confrontation and women preferring consensus.

"There really does seem to be a difference in male and female strategies," she says sitting in her own modest office. "Women are always balancing what they want with what the other persons wants. They are trying to save face for the other person. Men are saying, 'I go for what I want and I trust you to go for what you want.'"

At work, he says what he thinks and expects her to do the same. She includes his feelings in what she says and expects him to do the same. These expectations are often disappointed.

It's not that one style is better than the other. Tannen quickly insists, though any woman who's constantly interrupted when speaking may find it hard to be as non-judgmental. Yet the stories in this book suggest that when women look out for everybody and men look out for themselves, there are real repercussions.

The "female style" keeps the business running smoothly. The "male style" gets you ahead. One makes for a happier ship. The other gets to be captain.

Tannen has followed us from our homes into our workplaces. But this year we are as frustrated with the public dialogue. Reading her book about private talk, I cannot help wondering about how we talk in the public arena. In the media. In politics.

Maybe we don't need a n a n - terologist to describe the current language of public discourse. It's polarized, angry, accusatory, confrontational. Not a discussion but an argument.

It's not a coincidence that there's no female Rush Limbaugh. Or that fewer women call into the talk radio shows that have set the political agenda. This "conversational style," to use the term loosely, turns many off, especially women. As Tannen worries, "It's another way that women are disenfranchised."

As for politics? In 1992, there was much talk of the female difference. But in 1994, the entire public style has become what Tannen would describe as the male style.

In this year of the attack ad, every campaign has become a confrontation. Men and women who want to succeed in politics now talk "who's up/who's down." A televised debate is no place to save face for the other guy.

But governing, like business, may work best with people who can accommodate, take the other point of view into account, think of "us," not just "me." The real stylistic clash may be between the successful candidate and the effective legislator.

With some help from this linguist with a good ear and a facile style, we're building bridges across the gender gap of private talk. But our public talk has deteriorated into a yelling match.

And yes, we ought to be sorry about that.

Talking with her is like cooking for a restaurant critic.

Many interested parties were at the County Services building Tuesday night to check election results. Paul Lovstrand (from left) outgoing Longwood city commissioner, Cliff Jordan, on the committee to elect Carmine Bravo, and Sheila Sawyer, Lake Mary city commissioner follow various races.

...have to say. That's it, what can I tell you?" After spending the day greeting voters at the polling place, Miller was tired and complained of a sore throat after the last minute campaigning. Miller had served one two-year term as city commissioner.

Commissioner-elect Carrico greeted voters at two precincts leading to his win. Calling the voter turnout fantastic, Carrico thanked his wife, Mary and daughter, Andrea for their support during the nine-week campaign.

In the 10 Longwood precincts, Carrico received 1,807 votes to Miller's 1,413.

"I would also like to thank the citizens of Longwood for electing me to office. This campaign gave me a chance to meet hundreds of people with differing opinions, attitudes and concerns for Longwood," he said in his victory statement. "From the elderly gentleman who took the American flag down the day President [John] Kennedy was assassinated and hasn't voted since to the sweet Italian lady who offered me soda and pasta one hot day while walking door to door, and I will never forget the woman who I rescued from a lizard which jumped in her house while we were talking at her door."

Winston attended Carrico's party.

Carrico also thanked Bob Pitts, who asked the candidate to run. In addition Carrico credited his backers, Lynette Dennis, Nelda Pryor and Lovstrand for schooling him on the issues and offering campaign strategy.

"Without this winning team it would have been a very tough battle," Carrico said. "Now I look forward to the next three years. They will be an exciting and rewarding period for Longwood. I intend to work together with the other commissioners, the city department heads, the administrator and the county while listening to the citizens to make our city a better place to live."

The election outcome was not the only challenge Tuesday. A last minute challenge to commissioner Iris Benson serving on the city canvassing board resulted in an alternate being selected. Lovstrand and Benson had been selected weeks ago as the commissioners on the canvassing board.

However, Lovstrand was removed from the board Monday night at the commission meeting after commissioner Annamaria Vacca noted his active participation in Carrico's campaign. Vacca replaced Lovstrand on the board.

Benson had signed campaign material for Miller and withdrew from the canvassing board after being told that was considered "campaigning" for a candidate. A deputy city clerk was appointed to the canvassing board to help review absentee ballots in the supervisor of elections office.

whatever turn you take, you've got to negotiate that turn. If you don't, you crash. That's truly why I believe, in my heart of hearts, regardless of the outcome, that I was the better person for the job because these things I'm so accustomed to, but it just wasn't the timing. I'll go forward and do what I do, and get ready for the next shot."

Bravo added, "I'm going to be at work today, no doubt about that." The Longwood attorney's practice is focused on civil and domestic mediation.

Stephenson, 59, will replace retiring Judge C. Vernon Mize in January.

Seminole County voters were the deciding factor in the group 20 judge contest. The two candidates were less than 300 votes apart in Brevard County with Burk getting 65,270 to Jacobus 65,554. However, in Seminole County, Burk received 42,147 in Seminole County while Jacobus received 26,839.

by the people who will be working at the studio or have some other reason for being with us for a short period of time."

West said the group is looking into at least three separate locations. "The two we know about at this time," he said, "is the Primavera area, to the northeast of Interstate-4 and Lake Mary Boulevard, and the Heathrow International Business Center land west of the interstate."

"They have indicated wherever they build," West explained, "that they don't want to build piecemeal. They would do everything at once including building the studios and hotels."

"We have been very ecstatic over the cooperation we have been getting from people so far," Soldingier said, "especially the city of Lake Mary, Lake Mary/Heathrow Chamber of Commerce, and Seminole County."

Soldingier said the development is expected to bring what he called "prime growth" into the area. "These people will have a relatively wealthy life style," he said. "They will be wanting the best, and we believe the Lake Mary area has what we want to offer to them."

"Our business (the movie industry) is selling goods and glamor," he said, "so you can see the importance of doing this right."

No studio tours are being planned other than VIP tours for people involved directly with the movie making industry. "This will be a working business just like any other business," Soldingier commented.

West and Litton indicated that previous contacts with Sun Studio officials indicated they have the financial backing with which to create what could possibly be a $220 million dollar studio complex.

Soldingier has spent most of his life in the Central Florida area, including graduating from Edgewater High School in Orlando.

He added that the Lake Mary area location, considering the nearness to the Seminole Towne Center Mall, Monroe Harbour Marina and Central Florida Regional Airport, will be added incentives to have the studio operation located in this area.

"We aren't a tourist attraction," he stressed. "This will be a completely working studio, but the largest of its kind in the east coast."

"Once we obtain the land," he continued, "we will undertake what is called fast track construction, that is, we will be building 24-hours a day to get it done with as soon as possible. Such construction often has a great deal of noise involved, and we certainly don't want to be an inconvenience to anyone for a great length of time."

West commented that the movie folks will probably be wanting some type of city assistance regarding possible waivers of some fees and other benefits. He added however that the city has already started discussing these matters in relationship to other prospective new businesses and he expected the guidelines to be in existence by the time the studio deal nears.

Soldingier observed that possibly as many as 200 acres of land may be needed for the overall complex.

"When we believe the time is right," he said, "we will be making our public announcement on the development and the location. But, in the meantime, I can't discuss specifically where we are looking to locate."

destroyed, simply a hightech media lynching.

Also Tuesday, voters approved a measure that would link taxes and fees to personal income and one that makes it easier for citizen initiatives to add tax limits to the Florida Constitution.

"It's going to open the door to direct democracy with regard to citizen initiatives that limit the power of government to raise revenue," said David Biddulph, the New Smyrna Beach man who led the Tax Cap Committee that sponsored the proposal.

Biddulph said he would move ahead with other tax-limit proposals that didn't make the ballot because the state Supreme Court ruled their scope was too broad.

"We're on our way," he said.

employee at the Publix deli, are surprised at the charges.

According to Bobby Lundquist, assistant principal at Seminole High School, where Swinehart once attended classes, the young man is remembered as a "nice person" and was "never a discipline problem."

"They (former classmates who heard of the charges) are all amazed to hear something like this of him," he said. "They remember him as a nice guy."

The baby died about a half hour after Swinehart's court appearance on the initial charge, Meyer said.

The boy's mother, Angela Broomfield, 20, of Winter Park, also is under investigation, Meyer said. Deputies reported that she was asleep when they arrived at the home.

Trinidad was not responsive and had bruises on his face and heard at 4:30 a.m. Sunday when deputies found him on the kitchen floor of Swinehart's sister's house on Azalea Drive in DelBary where the three were house-sitting on Sunday.

Swinehart, in a newspaper interview, denied that he injured Jose.

"He was fussing like any other baby," said Swinehart. He said that while he was changing the baby's diaper, a deputy knocked on the door. Neighbors had called 911 after hearing the infant crying. "I let him (the deputy) come in, and when I went over to pick up the baby ... he was limp," Swinehart said.

EVAC personnel took Trinidad to Volusia Memorial Hospital for treatment, but he was soon airlifted to Arnold Palmer Hospital where he remained in critical condition until his death.

The Orange County medical examiner's office has conducted an autopsy, but a spokesman for that office said the results can not yet be made public.

Elections '94: Across the nation

Americans reinvent government; GOP in charge

By MIKE PRIMSILBER
Associated Press Writer

The American people have reinvented their government again, putting Republicans in charge of Congress for the first time since Eisenhower's day. To get much done now, President Clinton — inviolate on election night as the damage was wrought — must trim his agenda and adjust to a new conservative ascendancy.

Two years after Clinton took office, the Democrats were targeted for wholesale repudiation by an electorate that saw government as ineffective, intrusive and irrelevant to the everyday concerns of ordinary people.

Now, the combative Newt Gingrich, a doctrinaire conservative sure to be installed as speaker in January, and Bob Dole, the incoming Senate majority leader, will share power with Clinton.

Gingrich said he saw his new responsibilities "as a very serious and solemn obligation." But he still intends to enforce the strict tenets of his Reaganesque "Contract With America."

Dole saw the election as nothing less than "a vote of no confidence in the Clinton agenda."

Republicans also scored big in statehouses across the land. They won 11 governorships now in Democratic hands and easily maintained control in 12 other states. They also won Connecticut, which currently has an independent as governor. All told, the GOP captured a majority of the nation's gubernatorial mansions for the first time since 1970.

Catherine Rudder, executive director of the American Political Science Association and an expert on Congress, recalled that Ronald Reagan could get his program through a Congress which for six of his eight years was under Democratic control, but "Reagan was very popular and Clinton is not."

In an interview, she foresaw a rancorous session of Congress, frequent Clinton vetoes and a possible bidding war over a tax cut, despite its implications for the deficit.

"It is going to be harder to govern, not easier," said Sen. Bob Krieger, D-Neb., who survived despite his support of a ban on assault weapons.

In the Senate, Republicans won a 52-48 majority — a gain of eight seats. In one of the closest races, Democratic Sen. Dianne Feinstein withstood the $27 million challenge of political neophyte and millionaire Michael Huffington in California.

Republicans captured 52 previously Democratic House seats while Democrats picked up just four GOP-held seats. All were vacated seats — not a single Republican incumbent lost.

No longer in charge of the House, Rep. Tom Foley, D-Wash., also fought for survival. If defeated, he would be the first speaker of the House turned out of office since the Civil War.

Three-term Gov. Mario Cuomo, a liberal lion, fell in New York. Rep. Dan Rostenkowski in Illinois, under a 17-count federal corruption indictment, was done in by an opponent whose name was the subject of a trivia quiz on Chicago radio a few weeks ago.

House Judiciary Chairman Jack Brooks of Texas, at 21 terms the longest-serving lawmaker seeking re-election, was ejected by voters, some resentful that his committee had approved a ban on assault weapons. Texans also dismissed Gov. Ann Richards, beaten by George W. Bush, son of the former president. But another Bush son, Jeb, fell short of taking over the statehouse in Florida.

The GOP resurgence was fed by a deep-felt frustration. Leaving the polls Tuesday, voters said they feared for the future, not trusting the economic upturn to last, or to improve their lives.

Half the voters said they were no better off economically than when Clinton won, two years ago. A full third said it would be better if all incumbents were thrown out and replaced by new people, even though most incumbents won.

Legislatively, universal health care now seems doomed. White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta said Clinton would propose only "an incremental change" — not the sweeping overhaul he couldn't get through even when the Democrats were in charge.

Tuesday's election brings back the divided government that characterized the Reagan and Bush years and puts Jesse Helms in charge of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and Alfonse D'Amato chairing the Banking Committee, free to reopen the Whitewater investigation of the Clintons' finances in Arkansas.

"Tune in on Jan. 4 on C-Span and watch us keep our word," said Gingrich, leader of an energized army of Republicans in the House. He promised to temper the scorched earth brand of combat that characterized his past battles in the well of the House.

But some Republicans weren't waiting until January. Young Republicans piled out of cars at 2 a.m. today and snaked across Pennsylvania Avenue in front of the White House in a conga line. They floated red, white and blue balloons and chanted, "GOP, GOP, GOP" and "Ninety-six, ninety-six, ninety-six." Gingrich asserted that the Republicans intend to keep their "contract" that promises a tax credit of $500 per family, higher defense spending, a denial of additional payments for babies born to welfare mothers and constitutional amendments to require a balanced budget and impose term limits.

Against the Republican tide, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., easily survived; his son, Patrick, won a House seat from Rhode Island. And in the nation's most controversial contest, Sen. Charles Robb, D-Va., beat back an especially bitter challenge from Oliver North of Iran-Contra, a hero to the conservative Christian movement. North hinted that he would soon be back in the ring.

Washingtonians, meanwhile, gave Marion Barry a second chance and a fourth term as mayor. He was in his third term in 1990 when he was videotaped smoking crack cocaine. He was later convicted of a misdemeanor.

Clinton's painful decision: How to work with GOP Congress

By TOM RAUM
An AP News Analysis

WASHINGTON — For President Clinton, the midterm election results bring painful decisions. He can run against a "do nothing" GOP-dominated Congress for the next two years, as Harry Truman once did, or he can reach out and try to make bipartisan peace.

Either route carries political risk for the president, handed an enormous setback Tuesday by an electorate that preferred Republicans and delivered both houses of Congress to the GOP.

"The burden of government is now on them," said a subdued White House press secretary Dec Dec Myers around midnight as the magnitude of the Democratic defeat became clear.

It was a resounding vote of no confidence for the president and his party, altering the political landscape and the next two years of the Clinton presidency.

"First and foremost, it was a referendum on Bill Clinton — and he lost. It weakens him tremendously," University of Virginia political scientist Larry Sabato said.

The vote halts in its tracks Clinton's activist domestic agenda. And it makes his ability to deal with Congress, already difficult with both chambers in Democratic hands, extremely dubious.

"The only way that Clinton can govern is to move to the middle and work on areas of mutual agreement with the Republicans," said James Thurber, a political scientist at American University.

Clinton is sure to take the heat from other Democrats for the enormous loss of seats. He didn't command much respect among members of his party even before Tuesday's elections; he'll command even less now as surviving Democrats try to cut their losses and plot their own futures.

The GOP victories could spawn Democratic primary challenges to the president — now perceived as being even more vulnerable than before.

Truman, blocked at every turn by a Republican-controlled 80th Congress, essentially waged a two-year campaign from 1946-48 against what he dubbed a "do nothing Congress."

It worked for him. But such a tactic could backfire on Clinton, given the general sour mood of the electorate and his own lack of popularity.

"People are pretty much angry at everybody," said retiring Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell.

White House political strategists have discussed for weeks ways to steer Clinton through a GOP midterm landslide.

The strategy includes overtures toward bipartisanship, more foreign travel and a search for dramatic steps that can be taken without congressional approval.

Warriors knock off Heat

OAKLAND, Calif. — Latrell Sprewell scored 29 points as the Golden State Warriors won their third straight game, defeating the winless Miami Heat 121-114 Tuesday night. Oden had 31 points for the Heat and Kevin Willis, traded to Miami from the Atlanta Hawks on Monday, had 24 points and 12 rebounds. The Heat didn't even have time to see Willis' name on his jersey before the game. Rony Seikaly, traded to Golden State from Miami by Billy Owens last week, was in early foul trouble and had only nine points and six rebounds in his home debut for the Warriors.

Players, owners at it again

NEW YORK — With talks set to resume Thursday at an executive retreat in Rye Brook, N.Y., players and owners are squabbling again. This time, it was an advertisement in today's USA Today that set off the sparks. Owners claim "long-term financial viability" is threatened by "huge payrolls (that) also impair the league's competitive parity." The ad said management's proposal is needed to preserve teams in Pittsburgh, Milwaukee and Kansas City. Owners also say they're determined to reach an agreement on a new contract so that the 1995 baseball season can begin on schedule.

Abdul-Jabbar among nominees

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was among nine men and two women nominated for the Basketball Hall of Fame. Former Boston player Tom "Satch" Sanders was also nominated along with Arnie Risen, who played on championship teams with Rochester and Boston; Vern Mikkelsen, one of NBA's first power forwards with Minneapolis in the 1950s; and Krestimir Cosic, a former Yugoslavian star nominated by the International Committee. Gene Shue was nominated as coach along with John Kundla, who coached Minneapolis to six titles, and Alexandr Gomelsky, who led the Soviet Union to the 1988 Olympic title. Anne Donovan and Cheryl Miller were proposed by the Women's Committee and the late Earl Strom was nominated as a referee.

Michigan State cans Perles

EAST LANSING, Mich. — George Perles was fired as Michigan State's coach by a university president tired of losing. Peter McPherson, Michigan State's president, said Perles would coach the last two games of the season. The Spartans are 4-5 this season and 72-61-4 in 12 seasons under Perles. Perles, 59, embroiled in controversy after former player Roosevelt Wagner claimed some players received cash and had grades fixed, was asked to resign with three years left on his contract. He refused and it will cost the school about $1.3 million to buy out his contract.

Raiders fall in River

Pioneers deal SCC first loss

By TONY DeBORNIER
 Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — Abandoned by both its artillery and infantry, there was nothing left for the Seminole Community College men's basketball team to do but fall to the visiting Indian River Community College Pioneers, 99-89, Tuesday night at the SCC Health and Physical Education Center. Indian River (3-0) made over 53 percent (33 of 62) of its shots from the floor while the Raiders (2-1 after losing for the first time this season) connected on just 37 percent of their shots (33 for 89). 21.6 percent (8 for 37) on three-point attempts. The Pioneers, who took a 50-37 lead at halftime and stayed in control of the game by making 31 of 40 free throws, also outrebounded the Raiders 56-37. "They got every rebound, offensively and defensively," said SCC head coach Bernard Merthie. "And we shot horribly. I couldn't find anyone who could hit their shot consistently. I would have settled for someone who could make one of every three shots, but we didn't have anyone who could do that tonight." See Raiders, Page 2B

No matter what Andre Hall (No. 44) and his Seminole Community College teammates tried Tuesday night, there was nothing they could do with Indian River Community College swingman Andre Wiley (No. 0), who contributed 24 points, 18 rebounds, and seven assists to the Pioneers' 99-89 victory over the Raiders. Herald Photo by Mark Harris

Davis delivers for Heilig-Meyers

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — With one swing of the bat, Calvin Davis breathed new life into the City of Lake Mary Department of Parks & Recreation Thursday Men's Slowpitch Softball League at the Lake Mary Sports Complex. After Suncrest Title had pounded the Blackjacks 20-7 to take 1½-game lead over Heilig-Meyers in the opening game, Suncrest and Heilig-Meyers hooked up in a slugfest. H-M took the early lead, going up 7-2 after three innings, but Suncrest battled back to take a 10-8 lead into the bottom of the seventh inning. Tony Smith and Raymond Hartsfield led off the seventh for Heilig-Meyers with singles and Davis followed with a blast over the fence to claim the 11-10 victory. Suncrest is now 7-2 on the season, while Heilig-Meyers is 6-2 and the Blackjacks are 1-8. There were also good battles in the other leagues, but there was no change at the top. In the Tuesday night league, Monroe Harbour Marina remained unbeaten with a 15-3 trouncing of Thirsty Whale and second-place Joy's Orphans held off Bacon 8-6. Monroe Harbour is 7-0 and Joy's Orphans 5-2. Trailing the leaders are Bacon (2-5) and Thirsty Whale (0-7). On Friday night, Florida Manor received a forfeit from Bamboo Cafe to improve to 6-0, while Seimens/Stromberg-Carlson scored eight runs in the top of the fifth inning to move into second. See Softball, Page 2B

Balough opens 94-95 FASCAR season with 1st, 4th

By PAUL MARSEGLIA
 Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — New Smyrna Beach driver Gary "Hot Shoe" Balough pulled double duty last Friday, Nov. 4, at Orlando Speedworld, competing in the Late Model feature and, two races later, running in the Modified main event. In the Late Model race, Balough held off a hard-charging Wayne Anderson to notch his first win of the 1994-95 Florida Association of Stock Car Automobile Racing (FASCAR) season. Glen Hughes took the checkers in the Modified feature with the "Hard Charging Award" going to Balough, who started the race from the tail end of the 26-car field and finished fourth. Balough started the Late Model race from the 12th position and wove his way through traffic, using several caution periods to his advantage to eventually catch Anderson, the early race leader, and pass him for the lead on lap 16. "Everytime I got racing good, a caution would come out and I'd have to back off," said Balough, who finished the 1993-94 season with 52 feature wins. "The caution helped in some ways because it closed up the field. But it hurt my rhythm. Everytime I got in the groove, I would have to slow up and then get going again." Anderson, who is driving a new car this season, took the checkers less than two car lengths behind Balough. "It was a good race," said Anderson. "Gary raced me hard but clean." "We're still having a few problems in the motor department, so I was pleased with second. Every week out, we'll get a little bit better and we'll be in victory lane before too long." Rounding out the top five behind Balough and Anderson were, in order of finish, Jimmy Sills, Tuffy Hester, and Scott Bramlett. Hughes led every lap of the Modified feature as he outraced Butch Yoakum and Dave Savick, the evening's fast qualifier, to the winner's stripe. Balough was fourth ahead of John Lovelady. Jared Allison booted out of turn four to take the lead in the Mini Stock headliner. Once in command, Allison held off all challengers as he ran green flag to checkers to notch the victory. Allison's only competition was in the early stages of the race, when David Lecklitter

Sunniland Corp. clinches share of women's title

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Sunniland Corporation clinched its title for the Sanford Recreation Women's Fall Slowpitch Softball League title in convincing fashion Tuesday at Pinehurst Park. Sunniland scored 19 runs in the top of the second inning, ending the game by the mercy rule and getting a no-hitter in the process, as it hammered Oops! 20-0. Oops! did show some life in the second game, but Gress Towing & Recovery kept its title hopes alive with a 15-6 victory. Sunniland is now 7-1 on the season while Gress is 5-3 and Oops! is 0-8. Each team will play twice next Tuesday at Pinehurst to finish the season. Sunniland plays Gress at 6:30 p.m. and Oops! at 7:30 p.m., with Gress coming back to face Oops! at 8:30 p.m. Contributing for Sunniland were, with three hits — Renae Lanza (three runs, RBI), two hits — Dino Wilson (home run, two runs, five RBI), Lori Towns (triple, run, three RBI), Nanette Silvani and Connie Rosell (double, two runs, RBI), Debbie Cole (double, run, RBI), Michelle Berring (two runs, three RBI), one hit — Barb Cole (triple, run, RBI). Providing the offense for Oops! were, with three hits — Trish Ellingsworth (run, RBI), two hits — Debbie Cobb and Debbie Shuck (run), one hit — Christine Hope, Kathy Culver and Pam Weyh (run, RBI), Holly Londers and Dawn Tabor (RBI).

hounded the race leader for the No. 1 spot. The challenge was short-lived, however, as Lecklitter was tapped by R.J. Arnone and sent sailing into the infield. Lecklitter and Arnone were sent to the rear of the field for the restart, with Lecklitter working his way back through the pack to finish fifth behind Allison, Gene Van Alstine, Richard Newton, and Harland Sanford. Four-time FASCAR Mini-Stock champion Bobby Sears has jumped from the four-cylinder chargers to the Limited Late Model division. It didn't take Sears long to find his way to victory lane in the new division as he debuted his new ride and scored his first feature win all on the same night. Sears got the jump on Mike Todd at the green flag and went on to lead every circuit on his way to claiming the checkers. Todd was second, followed by Andy Saffotti, Jeff Moyer, and Robbie Yoakum. Other feature event winners were Barbara Pierce (Sportsman), Bill Gibbons (Bombers), Carl Peters (Run-Abouts), and Steve Gaudette (Mini-Bombers).

Sweet and festive gifts from your kitchen

SANFORD

DORIS DIETRICH

The spirit of the holidays is in the air as well as Christmas shoppers circulating lengthy lists around trying to make decisions.

What do you buy for that special person who has everything except, maybe, time? Even the most discriminating will appreciate delicious homemade confections from your kitchen.

This holiday gift bake is easy to prepare and fun to decorate. Pack the delicacies in colorful containers and add bright ribbons or other ornaments for a festive holiday gift.

The following recipes have been kitchen-tested by the Kraft kitchens.

MARSHMALLOW TRUFFLES

38 to 40 KRAFT JET-PUFFED Marshmallows
1 (12 oz.) pkg. semi-sweet chocolate chips
Chopped pecans
Multi-colored sprinkles
Arrange marshmallows on tray; freeze 15 minutes.

Microwave chips in microwavable bowl on HIGH 2 to 2 1/2 minutes or until smooth when stirred, stirring every minute.

Dip marshmallows into melted chocolate; turn until coated. Roll in pecans or sprinkles. Place on wax paper-lined tray. Refrigerate or keep in cool dry place.

Makes about 3 dozen.

CHOCOLATE PIZZA

1 (12 oz.) pkg. semi-sweet chocolate chips
2 pkgs. (6 squares each) white chocolate
2 cups miniature marshmallows
1 cup crisp rice cereal
1 cup peanuts
Melt chips and white chocolate in large saucepan on low heat. Stir in marshmallows, cereal and peanuts.

Pour onto greased 12-inch pizza pan. Decorate as desired. Refrigerate until firm. Store at room temperature. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Decorating Ideas: Red and

Holiday Cookies, Chocolate Pizzas and Marshmallow Truffles are just a few of the sweet gift treats you can make in the warmth of your own kitchen for this holiday season.

green maraschino cherries, red and green candy-coated milk chocolate candies or jelly beans, coconut, melted white chocolate or almond bark.

Variation: Substitute 14 oz. white almond bark for white chocolate.
Gift giving tip: For smaller pizzas, spoon chocolate mixture onto greased cookie sheet, forming 3 (7-inch) or 4 (6-inch) circles with back of wooden spoon. Continue as directed. Place on tray or cardboard circle; wrap in colored cellophane paper or plastic wrap and tie with colorful bow.

HOLIDAY COOKIES
1 (20 oz.) pkg. refrigerated sliceable sugar cookies
Colored sugar crystals
36 KRAFT HOLIDAY MALLOW'S Marshmallows
Heat oven to 350 degrees. Shape dough into 1-inch balls; roll in sugar. Place 2 inches apart on ungreased cookie sheets.

Bake 9 to 12 minutes or until lightly browned. Immediately press 1 marshmallow into each cookie. Remove from cookie sheets. Cool on wire racks. Makes 3 dozen.

Variation: Substitute any flavor refrigerated sliceable cookies for sugar cookies.

Yummy bars make a high energy snack

Bar type cookies have proven to be favorites for microwave baking because of the speed and ease of preparation. Recipes are simple enough for children to prepare. There is a wide variety of taste and textures and the bars can be cut for bite-size snacks or larger desserts.

These bars make a high energy snack for lunch boxes or after school.

LOTS OF PEANUT BUTTER BARS

1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1/2 Cup Margarine or butter
1 Tablespoon light corn syrup
2 Cups quick-cooking rolled oats
1/2 Cup pre-sifted all-purpose flour
1 Cup Creamy peanut butter
1 Cup vanilla-flavored chips
3/4 Cup semi-sweet chocolate chips

Combine brown sugar, margarine and corn syrup in 2-quart batter bowl.

Microwave (100%), uncovered, 1-1 1/2 minutes or until margarine is melted. Blend until smooth. Stir in oats and flour. Reserve 3/4 cup of mixture; press remainder evenly into bottom of lightly greased 8-inch square micro-safe baking dish.

Microwave (100%), uncovered, 3-3 1/2 minutes or until lightly toasted and puffed.

Cool. Meanwhile, return reserved mixture to 2-quart batter bowl. Microwave, uncovered, 1 1/2 - 2 minutes or until lightly toasted, stirring 2-3 times.

Combine peanut butter and 1/2 cup vanilla flavored chips in 2-cup glass measure. Microwave (100%), uncovered, 2-2 1/2 minutes until chips are softened, stirring once. Stir until smooth. Spread evenly over base. Crumble reserved crumb mixture and sprinkle over filling. Refrigerate until set, about 30 minutes. Combine remaining vanilla chips with chocolate chips in 2-cup glass measure.

Microwave (100%), uncovered, 1 1/2 - 2 minutes or until softened, stirring once. Blend until smooth. Spoon evenly over bars; spread to cover. Set in cool place until chocolate is set.

Cut into bars. About 36 bars. Granola bars have become more like candy bars. With this recipe you can make your own. Use a finer-type granola for best results. If using the chunky type, crush with a rolling pin.

MICROWAVE MAGIC

MIDGE MYCOFF

GRANOLA BARS

1/2 Cup packed brown sugar
1/2 Cup light corn syrup
1 Tablespoon margarine or butter
1 Tablespoon cornstarch
2 Tablespoons water
3 Cups granola cereal
1 Cup crisp rice cereal

Combine brown sugar, corn syrup and margarine in 4-cup glass measure.

Microwave (100%), uncovered, 2 1/4 - 2 1/2 minutes or until mixture boils hard, stirring once.

See Microwave, Page 4B

Meanwhile combine cornstarch and water until cornstarch is dissolved. Stir into hot syrup mixture.

Combine granola and rice cereal in large bowl. Add syrup mixture, stirring until well coated. Spoon into lightly greased 8-inch square baking dish. Press firmly into pan.

Microwave (100%) uncovered, 3 1/2 minutes or until mixture is heated through and slightly puffy.

Cool. *For Raisin Bars, stir in dash of cinnamon and 1/2 cup of raisins with cereals, or 1/2 cup miniature chocolate chips for Choc. Chip Bars.

Fruit bars are good for toting or enjoying at home.

APRICOT-OATMEAL BARS
1/2 Cup chopped dried apricots
1/2 Cup Water
1/2 Cup packed brown sugar

Man can't afford needed dental care

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading your column forever. It seems, and I must comment on a topic I've seen several times, bad teeth. You suggested that one reason people don't see a dentist is fear. This may be true, but there is also another reason — money. In my case, I have no dental insurance, and I can't afford dental care.

At my age (I am 28), my fillings are falling out. I needed four root canals (at $500 each), but I avoided them by waiting for the pain in my mouth to outweigh the pain in my wallet. I finally decided to have the teeth pulled (at about $100 each).

As you said, "A person's general health is threatened if his (or her) teeth are rotting." Therefore, I don't understand why dental needs are not covered by health insurance.

Until they are, I'll have to wait and pray that this great nation of ours will arrive at a plausible health reform that will provide dental care for everyone.

WAITING FOR DENTURES IN BOSTON

DEAR WAITING: Dental insurance may not be as expensive as you think. You may find it would have cost you less than the extractions.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

In the interest of your health, try to squeeze dental insurance into your budget, and make some phone calls to find a dentist who will allow you to pay on the installment plan.

DEAR ABBY: I was very moved by the letter from the Utah mother who lost her son, Adam, in an incident involving a toy.

On March 10, 1994, I became chairman of the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC). Our mission is to protect the public from unreasonable risk of injury from consumer products. This includes most of the products found in the home, especially children's products. Since March, I have worked to revitalize this small but important federal agency to address product hazards quickly and effectively. I work personally with my staff to make sure that every complaint is thoroughly investigated.

I have telephoned parents whose children have been killed by consumer products. We have wept together, then worked at finding solutions so that other children will not die tragically.

Abby, please tell your readers that if they have problems in the area of product safety, or want information about consumer products, the Consumer Product Safety Commission is here to help them. Our toll-free hotline is available 24 hours a day with both English and Spanish-speaking operators. Our number is 1-800-638-2772.

Thank you for getting the word out that a small government agency can make a difference in people's lives.

ANN BROWN, CHAIRMAN, U.S. CONSUMER PRODUCT SAFETY COMMISSION

DEAR MRS. BROWN: Thank you for your informative letter and for your commitment to this important task.

It has been brought to my attention that immediately after reading the letter from Adam's mother, you telephoned her.

The best of luck to you as chairman of this "small but important" federal agency. Protecting the American consumer is an awesome responsibility, and your dedication will surely result in fewer injuries and deaths caused by unsafe products.

DEAR ABBY: The numerous accounts of readers in an unzipped condition bring to mind my experience back in 1934 when I lived in New York.

I boarded a Madison Avenue bus and was soon joined by an attractive young woman wearing a fur stole trimmed with silver fox tails.

Something (a draft) alerted me that my zipper was down, so I very swiftly zipped it up.

At 50th Street, my seat partner stood up to get off the bus when she realized that one of her tails was caught in my zipper. It was really jammed — stuck!

I had to get off the bus with her several blocks beyond her intended destination. We attracted such a crowd that a policeman took us into a ladies dress shop, where the manager used scissors to cut off the offending tail!

MARSHMALLOW CHRISTMAS WREATHS

1/4 cup (1/2 stick) margarine
6 cups miniature marshmallows or 40 JET-PUFFED Marshmallows

1 tsp. green food coloring
6 cups corn flakes
Red cinnamon candies

• Microwave spread in large microwavable bowl on HIGH 45 seconds or until melted. Add marshmallows; toss to coat with spread.

• Microwave on HIGH 1 1/2 minutes or until smooth when stirred, stirring after 45 seconds. Stir in food coloring.

• Immediately add cereal; mix lightly until well coated. Cool 10 minutes.

• With greased hands, shape mixture into 12 (3-inch) wreaths; place on greased wax paper. Immediately decorate wreaths with candies. Makes 12 wreaths.

HOLIDAY POPCORN BALLS

1/4 cup margarine

6 cups miniature marshmallows or about 40 KRAFT JET-PUFFED Marshmallows

12 cups popped popcorn

• Microwave spread in large microwavable bowl on HIGH 45 seconds or until melted. Add marshmallows; toss to coat with spread.

• Microwave 1 1/2 minutes or until smooth when stirred, stirring after 45 seconds.

• Immediately pour over popcorn; mix lightly until well coated.

• With greased hands, shape mixture into 3-inch balls. Place on greased cookie sheet; let stand until firm. Makes about 8 balls.

TOP OF STOVE

• Melt spread in 3-quart saucepan on low heat. Add marshmallows; stir until marshmallows are melted and mixture is smooth.

• Pour over popcorn; mix lightly until well coated. Continue as directed.

• Variations: Add 1 cup red and green miniature jelly beans to popcorn mixture.

• Add 1 cup chopped red and green gumdrops to popcorn mixture.

• Add 1 cup red and green candy-coated milk chocolate candies to popcorn mixture.

Spyros Mazarakis, chef and owner of Spyrow Restaurant in North Andover, Maine, believes that when you rely on feta cheese for flavor, there's no need for a long list of ingredients. His recipe for Mediterranean Catch is rich with tastes of the Mediterranean, but prepared with an American flair.

This is a wonderful and flavorful recipe that's a cinch to make. The addition of feta cheese and a medley of sautéed vegetables moistens the fish as it bakes and adds brilliant color and interest.

MEDITERRANEAN CATCH

2 medium onions, sliced

1 each small green and red pepper, cut into thin strips

2 tablespoons olive oil

2 large tomatoes, cut into thin wedges

3 cloves garlic, minced

2 pounds firm-textured fish fillets (such as codfish, grouper or red snapper)

1 package (8 ounces) Feta Natural Cheese, crumbled

1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley

Heat oven to 375 degrees

Cook and stir onions and peppers in oil in large skillet on medium-high heat 5 minutes or until tender-crisp. Add tomatoes and garlic; mix lightly.

Arrange fish in single layer in 13x9-inch baking dish. Spoon vegetable mixture over fish; sprinkle with cheese.

Bake 25 minutes or until fish flakes easily with fork. Sprinkle with parsley.

Season to taste with salt and pepper. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Four simple, yet bold ingredients infuse ordinary chicken breasts with a fresh, delicious character. This recipe is a great weeknight crowd pleaser because of its simplicity and great taste. Fantastic!

FANTASTIC FETA CHICKEN

6 boneless skinless chicken breast halves (about 2 pounds)

2 tablespoons lemon juice, divided

2 teaspoons chopped fresh oregano

1/4 teaspoon fresh ground black pepper

1 package (4 ounces) Crumbled Feta Natural Cheese

• Heat oven to 350 degrees F.

• Place chicken in 13x9-inch baking dish. Drizzle with 1 tablespoon of the lemon juice.

Sprinkle with 1 1/2 teaspoons of the oregano and pepper. Top with cheese. Drizzle with remaining 1 tablespoon lemon juice and 1/2 teaspoon oregano.

• Bake 45 minutes or until cooked through. Makes 6 servings.

Variation: Omit fresh oregano. Sprinkle chicken with 1/2 teaspoon dried oregano leaves, crushed, before topping with cheese.

minutes or until apricots are softened, stirring once. Let stand 5 minutes. Blend in brown sugar. Beat in eggs and oil. Add oats, flour, cinnamon, soda, salt, and cloves; stir just until moistened. Spread in ungreased 10 x 6-inch micro-safe baking dish. Microwave (100%) 4 1/2 minutes or until no longer doughy. Cool and cut into squares. If desired, sprinkle with powdered sugar.

About 16 bars.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT, IN AND FOR SEMINOLE COUNTY, FLORIDA

FLORIDA POWER CORPORATION, a Florida corporation, Petitioner, vs. DONALD D. BURK and RUTHIE B. BURK, GLENN R. SNYDER, et al.

SUMMONS TO SHOW CAUSE AND NOTICE OF HEARING

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, and to all persons and parties claiming or having any right, title, interest, estate, mortgage or other claim to or in these certain parcels of land described in the Petition heretofore filed, and the following persons, together with all unknown persons claiming by, through or under unknown persons who are dead or are not known to be dead or alive, to wit:

- Florida Power Corporation as Petitioner and Assignee for American Fluorine Leasing Bank
Florida Leasing Bank
1100 Sally Biberow, Assistant General Counsel
198 Collins Square, 19E 2200, Box 98, Atlanta, GA 30301

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that a Declaration of Taking has been filed in the above styled cause by the Petitioner, Florida Power Corporation, for condemnation of supplemental permanent easements, said property being located in Seminole County, Florida, and more particularly described in the Petition filed herein for the purpose of transmitting and reconstructing its existing electrical transmission facilities to construct a new 230V transmission line in Seminole and Volusia Counties, a portion of which will be constructed to include double circuit 230V transmission. This new 230V transmission line will be constructed from Petitioner's Deady Substation in Volusia County to Petitioner's Winter Springs Substation in Seminole County, a distance of approximately 10 miles. The Florida State Commission has determined that the line will enhance the reliability and integrity of the Petitioner's electric system and improve the availability of low cost electric energy with the State of Florida. The transmission line is necessary to provide transmission capacity for a new generation added at the Deady Generation Site. With the addition of the Combustion Turbines in 1992, the 230V transmission system from Deady is fully utilized. This transmission line is also the first leg of a 230V loop around the eastern side of the Deady Division.

These new transmission circuits will allow Petitioner to provide transmission capacity to existing and new substations to serve this rapidly growing area. The double circuit transmission line is further necessary for the purpose of operating an integrated electric power system to purchase the Petitioner's obligations of public service and to render public service to its customers as required by Chapter 36, Florida Statutes, and the Service Rules and Regulations prescribed by the Florida Public Service Commission, said property being located in Seminole County, Florida, and more particularly described as follows:

PARCEL 1115560201 - PERMANENT FACILITIES EASEMENT LOCATION OF FLORIDA POWER CORPORATION'S 100 FOOT WIDE TRANSMISSION LINE RIGHT OF WAY THROUGH THE EAST 1/2 OF THE SOUTH 1/2 OF THE SOUTH 1/2 OF THE EAST 1/2 OF SECTION 30, TOWNSHIP 30 SOUTH, RANGE 30 EAST, SEMINOLE COUNTY, FLORIDA AND BEING MORE PARTICULARLY DESCRIBED AS FOLLOWS:

ABOVE DESCRIBED PARCEL CONTAINING 3.10 ACRES, MORE OR LESS.

The Respondent in this action may request a hearing of the time and place designated and to be heard. Any Respondent failing to file a request for hearing shall waive any right to object to the order of Taking.

YOU AND EACH OF YOU are hereby commanded on or before December 9th, 1994, to file in the office of the Clerk of Circuit Court in Seminole County, Florida, your written defenses to the Petition heretofore filed in this cause, and to serve a copy of such written defenses upon Bruce Crawford, Owen Crawford & Owen, 137 Central Avenue, S.W. Petersburg, FL 33701, and J. Bradford Hines, Corporate Counsel, Florida Power Corporation, P.O. Box 14842, 51 Petersburg, FL 32712, attorneys for Petitioner, and therein show what right, title or interest you or any of you have or claim in and to the several tracts of land described in the Petition, and to show cause why the same should not be taken for the uses and purposes set forth in said Petition.

WITNESS my hand and the seal of this Court on the 15th day of October, 1994.

"I think it's excellent," he said. "Shoot, it was a great experience for me. I learned a lot."

After spending nearly four decades as a teacher and administrator in the Seminole County schools, Barker said he is not going away.

"I'll be there somewhere making sure that whatever happens that the kids are the number one priority in the schools," he promised.

Morris and Barker were diametrically opposed on the issue of year round schools. Barker had vowed to abolish the modified calendar which he said was not "family friendly."

Morris has supported the calendar from the beginning, saying it is an educationally sound practice.

Barker also opposes the appointed superintendent, which Morris has endorsed since her election.

Despite their differences, both winner and loser had high praise for the other after the votes were counted.

"It was a good, clean campaign," said Morris. "I was glad to see it so issue-oriented."

Barker said it was "a very respectable campaign with no mud-slinging."

Morris was the only school board member who was challenged for her seat this year. Barbara Kuhn and Sandy Robinson each maintained their seats without challenges.

66.9 to 33.1 win. Morris received 55,624 votes to Perry's 27,463.

In all, 64.4 percent of Seminole County's 140,268 voters participated Tuesday, including 6,298 who voted by absentee ballot. Elections supervisor Sandra Goard said there were no difficulties in balloting or counting.

Furlong had little to say last night after an early 50-50 heat to trailing by 1,500 votes.

When asked if he thought the apparent loss was due to the tremendous Republican turnout, the normally verbose Furlong said only "Yes, definitely."

This morning, Furlong said he would call Adams to congratulate him, then start looking for a job.

Furlong's mail-order magnetic sign business, MagnetCards, all but evaporated during the four years he served on the commission.

Adams accredited his win to hard work and not looking back. "It was a dogfight," said Adams. "I scratched and clawed the whole way. He's a heck of a campaigner."

Adams said much of his success could be attributed to his door-to-door campaign. More than 3,400 homes were visited by volunteers, he said. The campaign's efforts targeted active GOP and Democratic voters, areas where Furlong soundly defeated Republican Sandra Glenn four years ago and areas where Adams fell behind primary opponent Andrea Denton earlier this year.

Morris said his success was based not so much on party affiliation, but his record.

"I worked hard," said Morris. "We ran on our record, which was very conservative, yet innovative. We had a clearly defined race."

A disappointed Perry said she believed the GOP turnout played a role in her loss. Perry said events during the primary may have also led to the defeat. During the Democratic primary, Perry accused incumbent Democrat Carlton Henley of using her race as a factor. Henley denied the allegation.

Court mulls federal ban on gun possession near schools

By LAURIE ASBEO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Clinton administration is asking the Supreme Court to reinstate a federal ban on possession of guns within 1,000 feet of schools.

"This is not about just regulating guns," Solicitor General Drew S. Days III told the court on Tuesday. "Congress is concerned with this impact on the national economy" and properly enacted the law under its power to regulate interstate commerce, he said.

But the lawyer for a former Texas high school student convicted of taking a gun to school argued that Congress overstepped its authority when it enacted the 1990 Gun-Free School Zones Act. Congress did not properly outline a connection between gun possession and interstate commerce, said attorney John R. Carter.

More than 200,000 children carry firearms to school every day, according to Sen. Herb Kohl, D-Wis., the sponsor of the 1990 law.

Gun-related violence at school makes it difficult for schools to function, Days said, adding that Congress is concerned about the effect of diminished student achievement on the economy.

Justice Antonin Scalia noted the high court has broadly defined Congress' authority to regulate interstate commerce. But he and Justice Sandra Day O'Connor expressed doubts that possessing a gun near a school falls within that definition.

Days acknowledged that his argument would leave no real limit on Congress' authority to pass criminal laws involving individual conduct that affects interstate commerce.

"Is there any violent crime that doesn't affect interstate commerce under your rationale?" asked Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg.

Later, when Ginsburg again asked Days for an example of a law that would be outside Congress' authority to enact, Scalia interjected, "Don't give away anything here. They might want to do it."

Under questioning by Justice John Paul Stevens, Days said a federal law could preempt a local law that allowed students to take weapons to school.

The case involves the March 1992 arrest of Alfonso Lopez Jr., who was a senior at a San Antonio high school when he was arrested for bringing a .38-caliber handgun and five bullets to school. He said he was given the gun to deliver to someone else to use in what Lopez described as a "gang war."

Lopez was convicted under the law in federal court and was sentenced to six months in prison.

But a federal appeals court overturned his conviction, saying the law did not comply with the Constitution's commerce clause, which allows Congress to regulate interstate commerce. The law should have spelled out a connection between gun possession near schools and interstate commerce, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said.

In November 1993 Congress passed an amended version of the law that specifies a link with interstate commerce. But Carter contended the new version cannot be applied to Lopez's case.

office of the county attorney to county commissioners.

With 100 percent of the county's 133 precincts tabulated, the charter results were:

- Amendment 1 - School board elections: Yes, by a 61.6 to 38.4 margin.
- Amendment 2 - Economic impact statements: Yes, 72.8 to 27.2.
- Amendment 3 - Non-interference clause: 74.6 to 25.4.
- Amendment 4 - County attorney: 60.2 to 25.3.

LAKE MARY — The voters of Lake Mary let it be known they want the opportunity to change the city commission on two year terms rather than three in yesterday's election. The term lengthening referendum was the only one of three which did not win overwhelming approval by Lake Mary voters.

Previous discussions of the matter during City Commission meetings focused on both sides of the issue. The proponents of three year terms said they felt it would be less cumbersome than having to run for re-election every other year. It was also made known that with the five member board, elections would not be required every third year.

The vote was close however, with 1,351 opposing the change and 1,030 in favor of it.

Persons opposing the three year terms said the shorter period was better should they become dissatisfied with a commissioner's performance and wish to replace him or her.

City Commissioner George Durvea at one time had said, "I figure if a commissioner does a good job, there won't be any problem with re-election."

Two commission seats and the mayor's position were all up for election this year, and all three managed to remain at their positions without having any opposition.

The other two referendum approved the official swearing in time for newly elected commissioners to the first official meeting following the election. That passed with approximately 85 percent of the citizens approving (1,986 for, 361 against).

The referendum regarding property purchases was also approved with 64 percent of the vote (1,486 for, 825 against).

we didn't do it, but I am so appreciative of the hard work that you all have put in." Bush said.

Chiles could be faced with three Republicans in the Cabinet and a Republican Senate, Doug Jamerson, whom he appointed to a Cabinet post as education commissioner 10 months ago, was defeated by Republican Frank Brogan.

Bush 41, and Chiles fared well in their traditional constituencies, but neither found enough support to build a strong lead. Both were very strong in their own parties.

Chiles held an edge among voters over age 60, women and in South Florida in his re-election bid. He had a nine-to-one edge among black voters surveyed.

Bush was favored by a narrow majority of voters who backed Ross Perot in the 1992 presidential election, and he was supported by a three-to-one margin among Hispanics.

Chiles led among those who earned less than $30,000 annually. The governor was supported by six of 10 voters who described themselves as pro-environment. The candidates split among the one-in-10 voters who were victims of a crime.

The information was taken from 1,798 exit poll interviews Tuesday with voters outside precincts around the state. The poll was conducted by Voter News Service, a cooperative of the four television networks and The Associated Press.

In his long political career, Chiles never faced a campaign as efficient as the one that propelled Bush to victory in the Republican primary over six others without a runoff.

Trailing in the polls through much of September and October, Chiles ended the Bush campaign's momentum after he launched a series of attack ads in mid-October that contributed to the race's nasty finish.

Florida voters first became aware of Chiles in 1970 when as a little-known state legislator he walked across the Sunshine State to earn the nickname "Walkin' Lawton" in a successful bid for the U.S. Senate. Chiles was re-elected handily to two more terms to the Senate before calling it quits in 1989 after complaining he was "burned out" in Washington.

But after 15 months in private life, Chiles was persuaded by Buddy MacKay that he should enter the Democratic primary for governor in early 1990 after party frontrunner Bill Nelson's candidacy began to stumble. Chiles chose MacKay as his running mate, and they crushed the Nelson ticket for the nomination and then easily defeated incumbent Martinez in the general election.

After a lifetime in the legislative arm of government, Chiles admitted he made some mistakes in his first job in the executive branch. His first term successes as governor were balanced by unfinished business, namely his pledge to revamp Florida's tax structure to make it more equitable.

Bush entered the race with virtually no experience in government aside from 20 months he spent as commerce secretary in 1987 and 1988 in the Martinez administration.

The Miami developer campaigned with Tom Feeney, an Orlando state legislator portrayed by opponents as a far-right ideologue, on less government and tougher treatment of criminals.

The Pill: one of America's best kept medical secrets

By KATHRYN CRAWFORD
Associated Press Writer

SEATTLE — Women are scared of taking the birth control pill, even though it can safeguard them from deadly cancers and diseases, said a researcher who calls the pill's health benefits "one of the best kept secrets in America."

Reports on the pill's adverse effects have left women with "a lopsided perspective on pill safety," said Dr. David Grimes, vice chairman of the Department of Obstetrics/Gynecology and Reproductive Sciences at the University of California at San Francisco.

Women who take the pill for a decade or longer reduce their chances of getting ovarian cancer — the most deadly gynecologic cancer in the United States — by about 80 percent, Grimes said.

And the risks decrease the longer the pill is taken, with protection lasting at least 15 years after a woman goes off the pill, said Grimes, who spoke at the American Medical Association's Science Reporters Conference over the weekend.

About 11,000 women die of ovarian cancer each year in the United States, according to Dr. Charles Drescher, a physician at Swedish Hospital Medical Center in Seattle and an associate professor at the University of Washington.

Oral contraceptives also safeguard women against endometrial cancer, the most common gynecologic cancer in the United States, reducing the risk by as much as 50 percent, particularly for high-risk women, Grimes said.

This comes as no surprise to the medical community.

"None of that is particularly new — it's been demonstrated in previous reports," Drescher said.

But there is a lingering fear, based on 10- to 20-year-old research, that the pill will increase a woman's chance of developing breast cancer or blood clots, said Dr. Benjamin Greer, director of the gynecological oncology division at the University of Washington's School of Medicine.

More recent research has shown that is not the case. Research showing the pill to be beneficial to women's health is "entirely contrary to the view held by most American women," Grimes said. There is "gross misinformation and gross confusion about oral contraceptives."

The pill, which regulates the body's hormonal levels, also cuts in half the risk of pelvic inflammatory disease, or infection of the fallopian tubes, which affects about one million American women a year.

It reduces the danger of ectopic pregnancy by about 90 percent, Grimes added, and by reducing menstrual flow, it lowers the chance of developing iron deficiency anemia.

Still, for all its benefits, the pill is not a panacea for all of women's health problems.

"It's not a magic pill or anything," Drescher said. "You have to put it in the perspective of the individual patient."

Is overload of calcium dangerous?

DEAR DR. GOTT: A recent television program indicated that too much calcium in the diet can cause extreme lethargy. If that is so, just how much is too much?

DEAR READER: Yes, I do. Although your symptoms seem severe, they are consistent with early menopause.

DEAR READER: I believe that you misunderstood the thrust of the television show. A high concentration of calcium in the bloodstream (more than 11 milligrams per deciliter) will, depending on the level, lead to abdominal pain, lethargy, confusion, stupor, and coma.

Ask your gynecologist about the use of female hormones in pill form or patches to help you get through these difficult times. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Menopause." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New

There are many causes of this condition, including tumors and glandular abnormalities, most of which are diagnosed by blood tests and X-rays. Excess blood calcium is treated with intravenous fluids, during the acute phase when a dangerous metabolic imbalance exists.

In contrast, calcium in the diet does not cause symptoms because a healthy body will use what it needs and excrete the rest, thereby keeping the blood level below 11 mg/dl. Actually, dietary calcium is beneficial, especially for older people in whom it retards osteoporosis.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
Mark Twain, or Samuel Langhorne Clemens if you prefer, had the right idea when he wrote, "Tell the truth or trump but get the trick."

trump suit. If that were breaking 3-2, he would have no trouble. But what if East had started with four trumps? (If West had four, the contract was beyond resurrection.) The only chance would be a trump coup. And to reduce his trump length to the same as East's, South made the farsighted play of cashing dummy's heart ace and ruffing a heart in hand.

Sometimes, though, strange as it sounds, you might have too many trumps. If so, you must do something to reduce the number. Today's deal highlights one such play technique.

West led the club king. When his partner signaled with the 10, West continued with the club ace and a third club. East exited with the spade three, two, eight, king. How should South have continued?

After South had played a trump to dummy's ace, getting the bad news, he ruffed another heart in his hand. Then South cashed his three diamond tricks, ending in the dummy. Luckily East had to follow with all throughout.

South's three-spade rebid was invitational. North, with the two best trump honors, had an automatic raise to game.

With all the side suits safe, declarer's only concern was the South was left with the Q-10 of spades. When South called for a heart, East's apparent trump trick disappeared in a classic trump coup.

obligated to follow the crowd today. Don't waste money on something you don't enjoy just to be part of the herd.

Set your sights to reflect your current mind-set in the year ahead. Strive for new projects and new cohorts. These relationships could help you achieve what you desire.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Your goals will be within reach today, but only after you maneuver around a few obstacles in your path.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It might not be easy for you and your mate to tolerate each other's shortcomings today. Be careful! You may be walking on egg shells. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Avoid discussions today with individuals whose views diametrically oppose yours. An argument could ensue about politics or religion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your patience might be tested today on an endeavor you thought would be easy. The penalty for poor judgment may be stiff today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Make it a point today to respect the privacy of your friends and maintain a little distance. A serious mishap could result from touching a raw nerve.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is no reason to feel

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Today you may have unexpected difficulty in a close relationship. Diplomacy and tact will be required at all times.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Take good care of yourself today. Avoid things you know you shouldn't eat or drink. And if you're lifting something heavy, get a strong helper.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If someone you barely know promises you a big favor today, take it with a grain of salt. Be realistic in your expectations.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This might be one of those days when distractions keep you from finishing your work. Don't get impatient with people, though, when circumstances are to blame.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you are usually tactful with others and seldom say offensive things, today's comments, however, might not come out of your mouth sugarcoated.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you don't exercise self-discipline today, your extravagance will spiral out of hand. It won't be long before you feel too guilty to enjoy the fruits of such spree.
