

FEDERAL BUILDING LOCATION INSPECTED BY HOLLOWAY

THE SITE FOR NEW POST OFFICE WILL SOON BE KNOWN

WILL CHANGE VALUES

SEVERAL CHOICE LOCATIONS HAVE BEEN PUT UP BY THE OWNERS FOR INSPECTION

Sanford will have a federal building... The site for the new post office will soon be known... Several choice locations have been put up by the owners for inspection...

Hon. Frank Clark is chairman of the public buildings committee and Frank Clark is the friend of Sanford and has been and if there is such a thing as late in erecting public buildings or if it is possible to push the matter of the building in Sanford in any way our former congressman can be depended upon to help this city.

Mr. Holloway was here Wednesday, going carefully over the ground and inspecting the many sites offered and there were several, in fact Mr. Holloway had a collection to pick over and he should be able to get one suitable from the many.

Real estate took an upward flight in recent instances when it was known that the government wanted a site but many of them dropped down a peg or two before Mr. Holloway finished his inspection, for he made it plain that Uncle Sam was no spendthrift in the matter of buying sites for public buildings and that the money was supposed to go into a building and not into a site. However, in this day and age in Sanford it is rather difficult to pick up a large lot in the heart of Sanford for a mere song and it may be necessary for the citizens to come forward later and help the poor government by a donation.

Now that the site will soon be selected the city is on the qui vive with expectation for the removal of the postoffice means interchange in the location of some of the business houses.

Following are the sites inspected:

- Hand Bros. and W. F. Hand, S. W. Cor. Magnolia and Second, 165x117. W. H. Peters, N. W. Cor. Magnolia and Second streets, 117x122. C. H. Loffer, inside lot fronting Sanford ave. foot of First St., also fronts on Tucker St., 165x115 ft. D. I. Thrasher and others, N. W. Cor. Palmetto Ave. and First St., 158x120. W. J. Thigpen, S. E. Cor. Palmetto Ave. and Commercial Sts., 115x122.5. Howard Parkland Land Co., S. W. Cor. Park and Fifth St., 117x118. A. M. Tyler Agt., N. E. Cor. Palmetto and Third St., 117x148. F. W. Mahoney Agt., Cor. Lak. ave. and Second St., 117x126. F. W. Mahoney Agt., Cor. Elm Ave. and Fifth St., 120x250. F. W. Mahoney Agt., Cor. Elm and Sixth St., 160x120. F. W. Mahoney Agt., Entire Block bounded by Fifth, Sixth, Elm and Laurel Ave. (irregular).

Mashed His Hand John Warren, an employe of the Crown-Columbia Paper Co. suffered a bad accident yesterday morning when he caught his hand between the printing plates and the cylinder of the press. The hand was badly injured but the member received aid at once from Dr. Robinson and it is hoped that he will recover and save his whole hand. Printing presses are had animals to monkey with as all printers know, and the accident to John will happen to all of them unless they are very careful.

Martin Injured in Runaway G. F. Martin, of the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co., had an accident on Wednesday that might have resulted very seriously. While making deliveries with his wagon filled with bottles his horse became frightened and dashed down the street throwing Mr. Martin out and putting his face badly. He does not know whether the bottles that were broken all his face or whether it was contact with the brick pavement but it required the services of Dr. W. J. Smith and looked at the time as though he was seriously injured but at the present is resting easy and expects to resume his duties soon.

Dance Tonight The boys give their return dance to-night at the Sanford House and it promises to be one of the features of the social season. They are giving it complimentary to the Social Department of the Woman's Club, as a return for their favor of a New Year's dance.

ODD FELLOWS BANQUET

The Independent Order of Odd Fellows gave their annual banquet Monday night in the lodge room, which was very prettily decorated for the occasion in purple and green. R. L. Peck, in his usual gratifying manner, addressed the address of welcome, while D. L. Thrasher responded with a few well chosen remarks. J. J. Dickinson then delivered a most interesting address on "Odd Fellowship." At the conclusion of the program, the assembled guests, numbering about 150 were invited to partake of a sumptuous banquet of three courses prepared under the efficient supervision of Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Blackwelder. Mrs. Gordon Rowe was assisted in serving by a bevy of attractive young ladies, including Miss Genevieve, Miss Sadie Williams, Miss Florence Frank, Miss Ruth Stewart and Miss Ruby Batts. A spirit of cordiality prevailed which made the occasion one long to be remembered.

OVEIDO'S BUSINESS PORTION WAS WIPED OUT BY FIRE

FLAMES GAIN HEADWAY IN THE EARLY MORNING HOURS

SEVEN STORES DESTROYED

HEROIC EFFORTS SAVED POST OFFICE AND RESIDENCE OF POSTMASTER AND MANY OTHER BUILDINGS

Wednesday morning at two o'clock the entire business section of the city of Oveido, which is in the southeastern portion of Seminole county was swept away by fire with a single exception in a couple of hours, causing a loss of buildings that will exceed $5,000 and a merchandise loss that will amount to close to $30,000, with an insurance of possibly 20 per cent of the entire amount.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. B. G. Smith in B. F. Wheeler's frame building, which was occupied by D. D. Daniels as a drug store, from where it spread rapidly to H. P. McCall's two story frame building which is occupied by Mr. McCall as a general merchandise store. From thence the fire spread to W. H. Howard's two story frame store building which he occupies as a general store. From here it crossed the street to the Wilson building, a two story frame structure occupied by the Lewis Hardware Company and W. M. Joseph's meat market. The flames crossed there was through this building and ignited a large warehouse adjacent to it which was filled with the stock of the hardware company. From here it again crossed the street and ignited the general store room of L. B. Jones, who is also treasurer of Seminole county. After destroying this building it spread to a small room occupied as a barber shop and owned by Mr. Jones. Here the fire encountered the brick walls of the Lawton Merchants Company and was stayed because of the fact that there was nothing left in its wake of an inflammable nature. The Lawton establishment was the only merchandise concern left unharmed.

Mr. L. B. Jones succeeded in saving a portion of his stock which he placed in a small building near the postoffice and began supplying the wants of the inhabitants. Mr. Jones came into Sanford Wednesday morning to lay in a stock of goods and stated that within a very short time he will begin the erection of a handsome brick business building which were badly damaged by the ravages of the flames he also makes plans to resume business at once. Mr. Jones stated that he was of the belief that the business section would be rapidly rehabilitated and that Oveido would be a better and stronger Oveido within six months than it ever was. This is the true spirit and is the tone that wins in the building of communities.

Capt. B. G. Smith, who is the conductor on the A. C. L. Ry. between this city and Oveido and who has more property interests than any other man in Oveido stated today that although he had lost heavily in the fire that his faith was so strong in the future of Oveido that he stood ready to invest his last dollar in brick buildings in that bustling little city and that all the property destroyed and ruined by him and that all the property which he could control would be built up at once and built of brick, as he positively did not favor any more frame store buildings in Oveido. It was only by heroic efforts that the residence of Mr. Smith and the post office were saved. Capt. Smith has been postmaster of Oveido for several years, is vice president of the Bank of Oveido and is identified with all the interests of the city, and his declaration to build brick backed up by his neighbors means that a new Oveido will arise Phoenix like from the ashes and be a larger and better Oveido than the old one.

The Herald extends sympathy to those who have suffered such a heavy loss, but hopes that the fire will prove a blessing in disguise in destroying a frame business block and cause the erection of fine brick buildings.

COURT IS STILL GRINDING

Baxter Takes Up The Time Of The Court All This Week

The circuit court is grinding again, having been clogged somewhat by the Baxter case taking up the attention of the court for the first four days of the week and only going to the jury yesterday about 3 o'clock. This was one of the hardest fought cases that has come up for trial this term and was watched with much interest, the court room being crowded each day of the trial. There is probably no case of cattle rustling since the early days of the west and especially in the south that can equal this one, wherein there were twelve different counts in the indictment of the grand jury charging Arnold Baxter with cattle stealing. The case has been a most interesting one since the time that Sheriff Gordon of Orange county took the trail of Baxter and began unearthing hides that were said to have been stolen from the different cattlemen residing in Orange county. County division had not been expected at that time and the preliminary hearing came up in Orange county afterward being transferred to this county and coming up at this first term of court.

It appears from the witnesses that Baxter had been killing cows and selling more meat than he was supposed to have either owned or purchased and selling it so cheaply to the butchers as to arouse suspicion and the steal was first brought to notice by finding a handful of hides hidden in the ground near Winter Park or Lake Howell. From that time on a peek was woven about Baxter or seemed to be found hides were unearthed at various points and the brands of the various cattlemen found upon the hides. One of the hides was of "Four Guinea", a pet of the Humphreys family and the recital of her tragic death on the witness stand brought tears to the eyes of the hard hearted spectators. The attorneys for the defense made their strongest stand upon the fact that enemies of Baxter had buried the hides in an effort to throw the blame upon the defendant and attempted to prove the same by the testimony of one lady and several other witnesses. The case was finally every step of the way by leading attorneys of this section, the defendant being represented by the well known firm of Davis & Giles of Orlando and the State by State Attorney Landis and Geo. DeCates. All of these well known legal lights made strong speeches that were listened to with great attention by the large crowd present and several dollars of bets by the lawyers brought forth laughter that had to be suppressed by the sheriff.

The case created more interest than all the murder cases being attended by gentlemen of various counties adjacent to Seminole who felt that the crime if fastened upon the defendant should be punished by the law for the law had evidently been violated most flagrantly.

The case went to the jury yesterday afternoon and up to the time of going to press they had not agreed upon a verdict. LATER The jury brought in a verdict of guilty last night about 6:30 and Baxter's attorneys immediately gave notice of an appeal and this case that has already cost the county so much may be dragged out interminably in the higher courts of the land.

In the case of State vs. W. E. Lipford, aggravated assault the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty.

Today will be taken up with the case of State vs. Kiah Webb, murder.

At 11 a. m. he will speak upon the church as set forth in the first 14 verses of the epistle. The orchestra will furnish music for this service. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

SANFORD TO KISSIMMEE TRACTION LINE AGAIN OPENED

BIRMINGHAM CAPITALISTS WILL TAKE UP THE MATTER SOON

SOMETHING DOING NOW

J. H. WOODWARD OPENS UP THE MATTER WITH ORLANDO CAPITALISTS WITH PROMISE OF FINANCES

A conference of importance to Orlando and the immediate section was held in the private car of Mr. J. H. Woodward, capitalist and father-in-law of Representative Oscar Underwood of Alabama yesterday evening. Parties to the conference were prominent business men of Orlando and Mr. Woodward, son of the elder Woodward, representing his father and other capitalists who are interested in the project of building an interurban railway between Kissimmee and Sanford with Orlando as the chief point and including a number of smaller places along the line.

Mr. Woodward, who has a winter home a short distance north of Orlando, has been considering the matter for some time, but has not until recently given active thought to it, and the purpose of the conference Sunday was to enlist the cooperation of the Orlando business interests. The conference, it is understood, assumed more the nature of a preliminary interchange of views rather than the mapping out of plans and demands for stock subscriptions.

Shortly after the gathering the young Mr. Woodward left for Birmingham, with the promise to send a representative of "his people" to Orlando and the other places interested to look into the matter. The young man came to Orlando primarily to accompany his parents to their winter home, and the railroad matter was incidental.

It is likely that those who were part to the conference will exerting in a quiet way what may be expected from Orlando in the way of petal stock subscriptions and material encouragement to the enterprise.

While the plans are yet somewhat fabulous, so far as the general public is concerned, it is probable that the proposed line will be for electric or gasoline motor propulsion. The project is one which has been agitated for some time but without reaching any definite shape. The fact that the proposition has attracted capital of such standing as the Woodward and their associates, seems to give color to the hope that the line will be in course of construction before a great while.—Orlando Sentinel.

WORK HAS STARTED ON BRICK ROAD

What is another link in the chain of improvements in the new county of Seminole began yesterday when the brick for the roads in the special road district that embraces about nine miles radiating from this city were started at the Steamport place on the Sanford Monroe road going south toward Daytona. The brick are being laid at this point nine feet wide and to any one looking at this fine thoroughfare the width seems ample enough. Commissioners Woodruff and Hogan, bond trustees, Elder, Robinson, Rosetter and Messrs. Dingee, Spencer, Holly, Hand, Quamer and several others were on the job when the first bricks were being laid and all expressed themselves favorably on the work. There is a large force of men at work now and the engineer representing the firm of Jaudun & Co., Mr. Colby is on the job and also the contractor who have this portion of the road to build.

This road will make history in this section of the state, being the first brick to be laid in this part of Florida on country roads and when completed will make an unbroken stretch of good road to the Daytona Beach on the Atlantic Ocean. The party also inspected the work that is being done at the new ferry at Monroe, where a large fill has been made and a new trestle is almost completed that will be beyond the high water even in flood times.

Chairman Woodruff and the Board of Commissioners and the bond trustees deserve great credit in pushing this work in the face of so many difficulties and the rapid progress being made is a source of congratulation for all concerned. The brick will be pushed rapidly on all roads now and especially where the people are satisfied with the width decided upon by the commissioners. There is nothing that will enhance property values quite so much as the brick roads and the special road district takes precedent in this part of the south.

While other sections have been talking about good roads Sanford and Seminole county have gone ahead and started work on the brick roads and this section will soon be the best paved in the state.

Talk on Temperance

Sunday was a red letter day with the Methodists of this city. At the morning hour for services, Dr. C. W. Crook of Jacksonville, who is a member of the Florida Conference (and also superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Florida addressed a large congregation in the interest of the great cause which he ably represents. His address was a forceful one and carried with it convincing arguments in favor of the work which he represents in this state. At the conclusion of the service an offering was taken up for the Anti-Saloon League work in Florida, particularly in Pinellas county where the fight is on between the wet and dry forces.

A pleasing feature of the service was a solo beautifully rendered by Miss Kinard, accompanied by Prof. Landrum on the organ. They have been charming the music lovers of this city recently with their rare music.

At the evening hour, Dr. S. D. Gordon of New York, who is a noted lecturer and author of "Quiet Hour" books preached a wonderful sermon that made a profound impression upon the large number of interested people that were present.

Sanford people are particularly fortunate in being able to have these noted speakers present at intervals, as they are attending the Bible Conference across the lake at Enterprise. A number of people have been attending these conferences from this city.

Lyceum Attraction January 28

The greatest musical attraction of this season will appear at the Imperial Theatre next Wednesday night, January 28th at 8:15 o'clock. The season tickets will be good at this attraction. Single tickets may be bought from Maxwell's on the day of the attraction. Fifty cents will be the charge for seats.

The Boston Musical Club, a decided innovation, unlike anything in the Lyceum field. Eight people, all soloists, selected for their individual ability, yet with a view to perfect ensemble. The company present a program in three parts—concert, operetta and oratorio. The last few years have created a demand for an organization combining with operetta and concert selections the songs of the old time minstrels. With this in mind we have the Boston Musical Club. They present ensemble, chorus, quartette, and solo numbers perfected under the supervision of an experienced coach. Their carefully selected program contains many pleasing novelties which add great variety. In this company the bureau feels you will find a combination admirably suited to your needs.

See the pictures in the show windows. Do not forget the date. Wednesday night, Jan. 28th, 8:15. It is planned for the entertainment in no way to interrupt prayer services. The late hour of beginning is on this account.

ACCIDENT TO GUY RANDALL

Popular Young Railroad Man Had His Leg Broke on Engine

Word was received here Wednesday that Guy Randall, a brakeman on the A. C. L. had been killed by the engine turning over on him near Brimson's Siding, but later developments showed that he had been badly injured but was expected to live and he was hurried to the A. C. L. physician here, where it was found that his leg had been broken in two places and he was badly bruised about the body. He was taken to Waycross yesterday to the general hospital of the company.

The accident was peculiar in that Guy happened to be just where he could not escape injury. The Oveido train was doing some switching near the siding and Guy was riding on the pilot of the engine preparatory to jumping off to throw the switches when in some manner the engine left the rails half turning over and pinned his leg between the pilot and the ties. The remarkable part of the accident is that Guy ever escaped with his life and his many friends are congratulating him upon his narrow escape from a horrible death. None of the other members of the train crew were injured.

ENTERPRISE

Miss Caroline Palmer died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Louise Wilson last Saturday morning. She had been a sufferer from heart trouble for many years and two months ago was advised by her physician north to come south. While her death was expected it came as a shock to her parents, relatives and friends.

Miss Palmer was born on a farm in Fulton county, Ill., on Feb. 8, 1875, and received her early education in the college of Omega, Ill., and later graduated from the University of Minnesota. She was of an unusually high intellect and excelled in literature. She embraced the Christian faith at a tender age and her life was devoted to the uplift of others. She was of a bright, sunny disposition and to know her was to love her. Her many kind acts and deeds will live as a sacred memory to those who knew her best.

To comply with her last wish a missionary will be perpetually supported in India as a monument to her memory.

Miss Palmer leaves to mourn her loss a father and another, two brothers, E. Hy Palmer of Orlando; Russell Palmer of New York City and two sisters, Mrs. Wilcox of Chicago and Mrs. Louise Wilson of Enterprise, all of whom were present at the time of her death. A short service was held at the home of Mrs. Wilson Monday morning at 8.30, the sermon being preached by Rev. S. D. Gordon of New York city, who paid a beautiful tribute to her memory. Prayer was offered by Bishop John H. Vincent. A quartette furnished music. The remains were taken to Chicago for burial. And though God took thee: Though we call thee dead: Before His face thou standest; and dost find That Heaven is Life and Love. Thy soul and mind Are drinking deeper from the well of Truth Than e'er did any saint on earth enshrine.

American Extravagance

We have not studied cost or economy as we should, either as organizers of industry, as statesmen, or as individuals. —President Woodrow Wilson.

As a nation we have departed far from the old-fashioned ideas of economy for which the American people formerly were noted, and there seems to be a growing tendency among our people to try to regulate the income by the expense instead of the expense by the income. It is quite possible, as one of our great railroad empire builders has said, that it is the cost of high living that is bothering us at present, quite as much as the high cost of living.

Another prominent financier is authority for the statement that we are living in an age of financial delirium, and that lavish expenditure has now grown to be a national trait. "The whole American public is wild with spending," says James J. Hill. "Extravagance is our national curse," says John D. Rockefeller.

Extravagance causes financial ills in the nation, but its effects on individual citizens is of primary importance, because no nation can be more prosperous than its people.

In the early history of our country, the precepts and proverbs of "Poor Richard" were widely read and constantly quoted. More than that, they were acted upon very generally, with the result that a positive and beneficial influence was exerted on the character and habits of the people at large. Wayne Whipple, author of a short life of Franklin says: "It is said that the greatest achievement of Benjamin Franklin was the originating of Poor Richard's thrifty sayings. These entered into the life of the people and have borne fruit undeniable in American prosperity and progress. The maxims have become household words in 150 languages and dialects, to be used daily on the lips of myriads millions down the centuries." Truly it would be impossible to estimate the vast aggregate of thrift from the widespread promulgation of these ideas. As a national asset, this spirit was invaluable and its total loss would work irreparable injury.

Pecan Culture Means Ready Money for Farmers

Every farmer should have at least a few pecan trees. While coming into maturity, the trees will not interfere with other crops. They will begin to bear in five to seven years from planting and if properly grown will produce 25 to 30 pounds a tree by the tenth year. The big pecan orchards may or may not prove profitable—much depends upon the management. There always will be a good market for pecan nuts, however, and the farmer who grows the trees along with other crops will find them a fine investment—a dependable source of ready money year in and year out.

Griffings' 1914 Tree Book

This work shows how pecans may be made profitable—gives instructions as to planting, care and culture. It shows the original Big Z pecan tree and describes this grand new variety. Griffings have introduced several splendid pecans but in many respects Big Z is the best yet. Every farmer should plant it.

Other nuts that farmers should grow more generally have special attention in this book. It covers fully all the fruits that are adapted to the South, also shrubs, trees and plants for decorative purposes. The book is a complete planting guide—write today for a copy. Nurseries at ten convenient Gulf Coast points. Address Griffing Brothers 313Q Forsyth St., Jacksonville, Fla.

Saved Girl's Life

"I want to tell you what wonderful benefit I have received from the use of Thedford's Black-Draught," writes Mrs. Sylvania Woods, of Clifton Mills, Ky. "It certainly has no equal for la grippe, bad colds, liver and stomach troubles. I firmly believe Black-Draught saved my little girl's life. When she had the measles, they went in on her, but one good dose of Thedford's Black-Draught made them break out, and she has had no more trouble. I shall never be without in my home." For constipation, indigestion, headache, dizziness, malaria, chills and fever, biliousness, and all similar ailments, Thedford's Black-Draught has proved itself a safe, reliable, gentle and valuable remedy. If you suffer from any of these complaints, try Black-Draught. It is a medicine of known merit. Seventy-five years of splendid success proves its value. Good for young and old. For sale everywhere. Price 25 cents.

Way to Rest.
Lying flat on the floor is a good way to rest and relax, but a much better way is to lie on the floor with legs up to the knees, resting on a chair. This changes the entire circulation and is the very quickest way to rest. Rest the eyes and make them bright, while lying down have them bandaged with a soft black-silk handkerchief.

Value of Proper Spelling.
Good spelling and intelligent punctuation are the accomplishments that keep many gray-haired women drawing good salaries as stenographers in downtown offices. The manager of a typewriter office from which are sent hundreds of stenographers makes no secret of the fact that good spellers are scarce.—New York Sun.

Science and the Milkman.
Housekeepers, "What makes you so late with the milk these mornings?" Milkman—"Well, you see, mum, the pure-food law doesn't allow us more than 25,000,000 bacteria to the gallon, an' you wouldn't believe how long it takes to count the little devils."—Lippincott's.

Monogamy Proved Best.
Through the animal world careful investigation shows that the nearer the animals have approached the ideal form of marriage the higher they have reached in the scale of development and the better and more enduring is their offspring.

Stick to Your Own Opinion.
Isn't it a fact that the man who agrees with everybody is almost as unpopular as the one who agrees with nobody? We must have minds of our own and the good sense to keep them to ourselves at the proper time.

Fever Statistics.
People are most liable to fever between the ages of fifteen and twenty; 209 out of every 1,000 cases occur at that age. There are only 10 per 1,000 under five and 2 per 1,000 over fifty-five.

Their Handicap in Life.
Have you ever noticed that some follow the rules of prejudice so close that it looks as if they were under contract with progress not to compete with it?

Her Needs.
He—"She has everything she needs to make her happy." She—"But it's the things she does not need that a woman needs to make her happy."—Rochester Times.

Names and Faces.
She—"It seems strange that you did not remember my face and yet you remember my name." He (awkwardly)—"Well, you know, you have an attractive sort of name."

Truth.
It is a mark of carelessness about truth that intentional lying that there is no such falsehood in the world.—Dr. Samuel Johnson.

Servant Girl Educator.
The truth is, we never think of education in connection with babyhood, the term being in our minds inextricably confused with schoolhouses and books. When we do honestly admit the plain fact that a child is being educated in every waking hour, by the condition in which he is placed and the persons who are with him, we shall be readier to see the need of a higher class of educators than servant girls.—Concerning Children.

Ghosts as Dreams.
The probability that we get snatches of sleep at odd moments when we suppose ourselves to have remained continuously awake is supported by the phenomena of dream. Mark Twain accounted for his own "disappearing visitor" by the belief that he had unconsciously had a very short nap; and many have explained visions of ghosts as due to dreams during such short naps.

Pretty Good Motto.
"I know a man," said a live-wire young minister, who attributed much of his worldly success to a rule he'd make for himself. He says how much time and how many opportunities went wrong, and how much money was wasted by indecisionists, as he called them. So he adopted for one of his mottos: "Guess, quick and stick to it."

Byron's Freak Manner of Living.
While Byron was in Havanna, Italy, he adopted strange habits. It was his custom to rise at two in the afternoon, breakfast and ride, and dine at six. Then he would sit and talk until five or six in the morning. Or, if no company were there, he would write a bit of "Don Juan." But his life was like that of Aubrey Beardsley—upside down—the day was the night.

Giving Them Warning.
At the annual picnic of a Manchester firm one of the packers was called upon after dinner to propose the toast to the firm. He was rather nervous, and began thus: "Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, I have very great pleasure in rising to propose the health of the firm, which will be very brief."—Manchester Guardian.

Keeping Tab on the Hen.
In the effort to secure an accurate record of the hen's egg achievements, an aluminum crayon-holder has been invented by which the chicken makes her mark as she leaves the nest. The crayon is mounted on the foot and the color of the crayon indicates the particular bird.

He Listened to All.
Fontenelle listened to everything and he offended no one by disputing anything. At the close of his life he was asked the secret of his success, and he replied that it was by observing two maxims: "Everybody may be right" and "Everything may be so."

He Got His.
"Sirrah!" thundered her father, "were you kissing my daughter when I came in just now?" "You bet!" chirped up the unabashed suitor, "and it's up to you to apologize for butting in!"

Main Thing.
Ted—"Cheer up, old man! Absence, you know, makes the heart grow fonder." Ned—"What's worrying me is that I'm not just sure that it's having the same effect on the 'girl.'"—Judge.

Pessimistic Reflection.
In our pessimistic moments we are prone to reflect that, no matter what time of year it is, the pie always seems to be made from last year's apples.—Milwaukee Journal.

Forebodes Trouble.
When a woman rattles the dishes more than usual while preparing supper it's a sure sign that her husband will hear something drop when he comes home.—Atlanta Journal.

Woman's Possession.
There is in every true woman's heart a spark of heavenly fire, which burns and blazes in the dark hours of adversity.—Washington Irving.

Two Extremes in Life.
The saddest thing in the world is to feel that we are alone; the best thing in the world is to feel that we are loved and needed.—A. C. Benson.

Forty Years a Public Charge.
Forty years in the workhouse is the record of a man living at New Ross, County Wexford, Ireland. The inmate is seventy years old.

Ring Denoted Physician.
Previous to the sixteenth century every physician in Europe wore a ring on his finger as an indication of his profession.

Brick roads starting, federal building soon, bulkhead starting, new tourist hotel soon, circuit court meeting, new court house soon well, we should worry

Speaking about the Tampa Tribune's remarks about Editor Benjamin of the Ocala Star using the scissors, Chris. Cedrington of the Deland News says that Benjamin received the article first in the News office, and what brings on more talk.

Good morning! Have you had a sight of the new government building site yet? If you have a site you had better lower your sights somewhat, for it is a darn sight better to get site at a smaller price and get it.

The Reporter-Star has an item in yesterday's paper that reads: "The lawlessness seems to be confined to Seminole county" and just below this item is another that is headed "Negro Woman Kills Assailant in Orange County," which indicates that the Reporter-Star editor is even a better president of the Ananias Club than the Herald editor.

Seminole county is holding her first session of circuit court, and the Sanford Herald celebrates the event by printing the pictures of Judge James W. Perkins and State Attorney Cary D. Landis. This is a historic event, for Sanford, and in after years the latest issue of The Herald will have become musty and yellow with age and some descendant of Thomas K. Bates or Forest Lake or Robert Holly or Sheriff Hand or Clerk Douglas will take the paper down to the Daily Sanford Times and show the editor the curio and ask him to publish something about it, and he will: then on the back page he will pick out Rob Holly's verse as an example of Elizabethan poetry, quite interesting and unique and print that too.—Llando Sentinel.

The Dade City Banner comes to us now twice-a-week full of good matter set on the typesetting machine and showing ingenuity in every line. Editor and makes the following announcement:

"The Banner, without previous announcement, with this issue makes its first appearance as a twice-a-week publication. We have had this intention for some time, for we sincerely believe that Dade City and Passey county deserve such a publication, and that they will support it. And we are frank to say that upon the support given this new venture, depends its continuance. A people can always have what it wants, whether that people be a nation, a state, a county or town. In all public affairs the people say by their votes whether or not they want a thing; but in such ventures as this one concerning which we write, the people show by the financial support they give the enterprise whether or not it meets their approval. We intend to give our readers and advertising patrons a good, lively paper, and thus to deserve their support and patronage, and we expect them to show their appreciation of our efforts by so giving us their approval."

"Anything that a man eats, drinks, chews or smokes he can buy," says Mayor Sperry, "and the commissioners will not be hard on the vendors, so we are a unit up the closed Sunday proposition."

From the mayor's conversation it is learned that the new city government will not continue to "sit upon the lid," but will allow it to be raised "just a little," to accommodate those in need of the little luxuries that they have always had an opportunity to buy in their northern homes.

"We have lost much," says the mayor, "on this closed Sunday proposition, which has been so rigidly adhered to, and if the lid rises just a little, there will only be a condition prevailing that there is recognized in other larger towns of the state."

It is hardly expected that cigar stands, ice cream parlors, etc., will make it a seven-day proposition, but it is believed that in the future all the essential luxuries can be had in Llando.

If prosecution is attempted, it is likely to come from higher up.

LIFTING THE LID Some time ago the beautiful little city of Orlando was closed so tight on Sunday that no one was allowed to think of making a loud noise and the Orlando Citizen in virtuous vein declared that Orlando would always have the lid on; no matter whether the tourists wanted a cigar or newspaper on Sunday or not and that the Herald was of color because it would not support the "Closed Sunday" on Sunday. The Herald has always contended that the old blue laws could be resurrected and enforced upon a man could be prohibited from leaving his wife on Sunday, but we are not willing in the days of Salem Witchcraft and are capable of putting a construction upon the law that will at least allow a man to buy a cigar or newspaper on Sunday for an hour or so during the opening of the mails. And it would seem that Mayor Sperry of Orlando thinks the people down there should have some privilege on Sunday if they are forced to live in Orlando and he has lifted the lid somewhat according to the following from the Reporter-Star: "The Sunday Blue Laws" which have so long winked at the side of gasoline and spark plugs, to the exclusion of everything else, may now take a slight turn in Orlando, and the tourist can find himself a place where he can buy a cigar, or even get a glass of soda water if he so desires.

WILSON ON THE TRUSTS President Wilson's address to Congress on the trust question is very likely to take rank as his most notable utterance. With the tariff and the currency questions adjusted to meet the view of himself and of his party, he has taken up the great subject of additional trust regulation—and his message is pitched on such high plane and manifests such desire to avoid undue hurry or hesitation that it has excited the commendation of leading members of opposing parties and will meet that of the business world generally.

The President evinces his desire to "square" business methods with both public opinion and the law and in an atmosphere of cooperation and accommodation. This has a reassuring sound to all concerned. There is no intention to rudely disturb business or to cause panicky conditions, due to aggravated uncertainty. The Republican leader of the senate, Mr. Gallinger, says there is nothing in the message to "disturb business men or that needs radical demonstration." And he virtually makes the promise that the Republicans will aid the Democrats in carrying out the recommendations, if they are met halfway.

That "private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable" needs no argument to impress its truth. The party would give expression to "the best judgment of America," to "the business honor and conscience of the land." The prohibition of interlocking directorates in the greater corporations the conferring of power upon the Interstate Commerce Commission to superintend the financial operations of railroads, the more explicit definition of "restraints of trade," the creation of a commission with intricate authority, penalties and punishments for individual guilt of unlawful business practices, the prohibition of holding copyrights, and giving individuals the right to bring suit for redress on facts proven in government suits—these are the main suggestions of the President for immediate legislation, and they have all been previously advanced and discussed. By the enactment of laws to this end, the President believes we will "write the additional articles of our constitution of peace, the peace that is honor and freedom and prosperity."

The President appears to have won the confidence of the country by his fair and open manner of dealing with this and similar great questions. Least of all does the desire to bring about industrial upheaval or agitation. He wishes peace in all things. If congress will meet the President in the spirit he approaches it and will go about, harmoniously and conservatively, the enactment of the reforms he has suggested, there need be no fear of hurtful effects upon business. Let the "atmosphere of cooperation and accommodation" prevail and all will be well.—Tampa Tribune

PROTECTING THE BIRDS

The Song Bird of This State Can Not Be Sold

The keeper of a Tampa bird store was recently arrested for selling and exposing for sale mocking birds and red birds (cardinals), which is against the law in every state in the south.

The evidence was procured by an officer of the Florida Audubon Society who entered the store and bought a red bird, and then went to the Judge of the county court and swore out a warrant for the man's arrest for selling the bird.

An incident similar to this occurred last fall when a bird dealer in Ybor City was arrested for the same offense and upon evidence obtained in exactly the same way. In this case the offender was found guilty and fined in the criminal court.

The Audubon Society is determined to stamp out this traffic in song birds which still persists to a certain extent throughout the state, and which is causing some of our song birds, particularly the cardinal, to become very scarce. A representative of the Florida Audubon Society further states that the cardinals, mocking birds, and other native song birds are one of the most important assets of our state on account of the interest and pleasure they afford us by their sweet wild music. It would be hard to estimate the actual value of these birds upon this basis, but considering also their economic value, it would be safe to say that each one of these birds, if allowed its life and liberty, is worth $200.00 to our state, but is worth comparatively nothing dead or in a cage. When a tourist buys one of these birds the local bird dealer gets $4.00 or $5.00 from the transaction but how much does the state lose? Moreover, this loss is even greater than is apparent because for every wild bird that is sold in captivity, at least six are killed in the trap or die from confinement or from rough handling incident to their capture.

The Florida Audubon Society wishes to emphasize that it is not only inhuman to hold in captivity these wild freedom-loving creatures, but it is folly to do so; for if unmolested, they would be free to breed and multiply and would then come to our door yards to sing their melodies—melodies far more sweet than the longing notes of the caged wild bird, calling hopelessly for its mate.

Tourists are cautioned not to patronize this illegal trade, and other bird dealers throughout the state are hereby warned not to buy, sell, expose or offer for sale native wild birds of this state if they wish to escape the vigilance of the Audubon Society.

The keeping of canaries is not criticised, inasmuch as they are a domesticated bird, born in captivity.

PENSACOLA NEWS IN BAD

Involuntary Petition of Bankruptcy Filed Against Them

Pensacola, Fla., Jan. 23.—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed against the News Publishing Company, publishers of the Pensacola Evening News, late last night by L. W. Nelson, on behalf of a number of out of town creditors, and the insolvency of the company was admitted.

A receiver will be appointed by Hon. W. B. Sheppard, United States judge, probably with power to continue operations of the paper, pending sale of the property.

While no schedule of assets and liabilities is available, it is understood that the total debts of the News aggregate $25,000 to $30,000, with reasonably good assets of approximately $12,000 to $14,000, excepting creditors secured by mortgage.

Several years ago the News was purchased by W. B. Crawford, backed financially by T. A. Jennings, from I. B. Hilson, who was then in possession. Subsequently Mr. Crawford stepped out. A little later H. A. Felkel, H. H. Miller, O. M. Johnson and S. A. Sanborn, held all the stock, but the general understanding was that T. A. Jennings was the backer of the News through all its vicissitudes.

During October last the purchase of the property by C. B. Hanson was announced, and later on it was stated that Albert Hanson was also interested to a certain extent. Following the removal of C. B. Hanson to Jacksonville, where the Hansons established the Jacksonville News, the Pensacola News has been in charge of Ben. H. Thomas as manager for C. B. Hanson. It is asserted here that C. B. Hanson never invested a cent in the News, although it is said, secured a loan of $7,000 from the First National Bank, which it is said went into the property. C. B. Hanson has not been in Pensacola since the middle of December, and the general belief exists that he practically abandoned the property.

CELERY MOVING NOW

Car Lots From Sanford's Famous Fields Going to Northern Markets

The product that makes nerve and gives the growers a case of "nerves" some seasons is going forward from Sanford's famous fields, this week and going in car lots. The big movement will soon be on in earnest and the growers are looking forward to good prices this season despite the fact there is quite a bit of the stuff in Florida. Celery never looked better than this season and the weather has been all that could be desired for the growing and making of choice celery. From the time that the plants were set in the fields up to the present time when much of it is ready to ship the weather has been fine for the growing celery and the dealer this season will be assured of prime stuff, as the growers have determined to pack nothing but prime celery. Some of the celery this season has been so good that it will run 1000 crates to the acre and two and one half dozen to the crate is a common occurrence.

There will be some fifty cars go forward this week and it should bring from $1.25 to $1.50 per crate here at the station which is something better than it usually brings at this time of the year and a price that will satisfy the growers if they can get it during the season.

The growers in the Sanford section have about 500 acres in celery this season and will realize a handsome profit from the crop if the proper distribution can be effected and the cooler weather prevails during the latter end of the season.

Cheaper Brick Paving

Brick paving is coming down some according to the following from the St. Petersburg Times: "At the figure at which the contract for the paving of nearly fifty blocks in the city was let to the Georgia Engineering company yesterday morning by the board of city commissioners, it is roughly estimated that there will be a saving of about $11,000 to the property owners who pay the whole cost. The contract calls for paving per square yard $1.49; for curbing per lineal foot 33 1/2 cents and for grading per square yard 25 cents. Several of the previous contracts with the company have been $1.64 per square yard for paving, about 44 cents for curbing and the grading at about the same price as the contract was made for yesterday."

JIM AND THE ROBBERS

By GEORGE ELMER COBB.

When Blinky Rogers, loafer, claim jumper and mountain pirate, rode into Prospect on a stolen horse and out of it on a rail, fancifully adorned with tar and feathers, the town considered that they had seen the last of him.

Jim Tousey shared the hope. It was his horse that had been stolen down at Golden Gulch. He had trailed his desperado, finding him in the midst of festive revelry. His story, soon told, led to a brief session of the vigilance committee and the prompt expulsion of Blinky. The judge, old Cyrus Penypacker, invited Jim as a law-abiding stranger, up to the house.

There Jim met his fate in the shape of "winsome, wondrously lovely Elsie Penypacker." He lingered. Golden Gulch had no further attraction for him, and he went to work at Prospect.

It was a bad time to try and carve out his fortune in that second-rate work. The mines had become skinned and nearly all the old workers had gone over to the new diggings at Amar. Jim would have gone, too, only for Elsie. His present mission was to drive the mine wagon with what bullion there was over to the branch seat at Dorseyville. His recovered horse was staunch and equal to the long, heavy run up hill and down dale. The wagon was a heavy one, its box top being made of sheet iron with two back doors and a tiny slot over the driver's seat.

"I've told you I love you," he said to Elsie one beautiful moonlit evening, "and there will never be another woman I shall tell the same thing to."

"I believe that, Jim," responded Elsie, "that is why I am so happy."

"Yes, but we can't live on moonshine," intimated Jim. "Things are going from bad to worse here at Prospect. I haven't a dollar ahead, and that doesn't look very booming for that wedding trip of ours."

Hands Up!

"Jim," observed Elsie, "it's heaven as it is to have you near me. I don't ask much—a little home of any kind, and you, and me working all day long just to make it comfortable and cheerful when you come home."

"You blessed girl," cried Jim, "you deserve a palace—and I'm going to try and get one for you!"

Jim did a lot of thinking all the way to his lonely shack over near the Hope Forever mine. He had heard of big strikes in the new diggings, and was resolved to change his base and try his luck. No bullion had been dug over to the mine for nearly a month. He started to take a look at the horse before he turned in for the night.

"Hello, what's up?" ejaculated Jim, as he discovered the stall empty and the wagon missing from its customary place. He ran out to look about the vicinity for some trace of it. Rounding a rock he came upon the rig all ready for travel. Two men stepped from the shadow of the vehicle.

"That will do—hands up!" ordered one of them, and it was Blinky Rogers who spoke.

His companion made a jump for Jim. He was so quick that he had the advantage. A rock or weapon in his hand laid Jim prostrate. His senses deserted him.

When he awoke, Jim was conscious that he was lying in the bottom of the wagon. He was tied head and foot and there was a gag in his mouth. The back door of the box was locked. He could hear the two men on the seat beyond the front barrier conversing.

"Think it the right idea to cart him along with us?" spoke one voice.

"You would leave him there to raise a posse and put after us, would you?" challenged Blinky Rogers. "We'll keep him close till the job is done. Grand idea of the rig. We can cart our stuff over the range, abandon mine and rig, and get fast and far before the mint people know what has struck them."

New Jim guessed out the riddle. The two desperados were bound for the branch mint at Dorseyville. It was a poorly built, poorly protected place, and they probably had the tools to break into the office, and the treasure room. They had utilized his pig to cart away their plunder. They had made him helpless. They might actually dispose of him when their task was completed.

It was four hours later when the vehicle came to a stop. Jim heard the men leave the wagon. Then there was a long lapse of silence.

When they returned the door of the vehicle was unlocked. Something was pushed in, something heavy in two large canvas sacks.

"It's a big haul, and of the easy kind," Jim heard Blinky Rogers chuckle.

"How is the fellow in there?"

"Dead to the world," retorted Rogers carelessly. "I reckon that blow you gave him was a settler. I'll look him up again, though, while we try the other vault in the mine."

"I've got to do something," breathed Jim desperately and for the first time made a strong effort to release his hands.

The endeavor was futile. He could not budge the stout wither at wrists and ankles. However, he managed to crowd upright, and then in his delight mouthed the gag to one side so he could use his lips.

Jim looked out through the little slot at the top of the front of the wagon box. The well trained horse stood patiently awaiting further orders. A brilliant idea came into Jim's mind.

"Rustler!" he spoke softly. "Rustler, old fellow!"

The horse pricked up his ears. He recognized his master's tones.

"Home, old fellow—home! Home!"

Rustler started up, made a direct turn, strode down the road. Jim's heart was in his mouth. He feared the burglars might notice the maneuver. Luckily they did not. One minute, five minutes—fifty yards, one-half a mile!

And now he gave the familiar direction to the splendidly trained animal.

"Go!"

The intelligent steed speeded up just as promptly as though his master was holding the reins. Every mile advanced Jim's heart beat higher and higher as he thought of the precious treasure beside him.

He laughed in glee at a memory of the discomfiture of the mint looters. He laughed louder, as nearing Prospect the horse instead of going straight home, made for the Penypacker house—not unused to carrying his master there "courting nights."

How Jim's voice rang out upon the still, poppling air as Rustler came to a halt directly under the window of the room of the girl he loved!

A sash went up, then another—the sweet alarmed bird tones of Elsie, the gruff, challenging voice of the judge mingled. Then, hurriedly dressed, both came down into the yard.

There was a rapid story to reveal when the doors of the wagon were forced open and Jim was rescued. The town was alarmed and a posse soon formed.

At noon that day word was brought to Prospect that the burglars were in jail at Golden Gulch, that the mint people had a $1,000 reward waiting for Jim and the tender of a good position.

"The little home is a reality at last," he said to the happiest bride expectant in Christendom.

When Pope Was Head, Alexander Pope, the deathless poet of England, had a large and intimate experience of the theater. In his time he was a welcome visitor behind the scenes and most of the contemporary dramatic authors and actors were proud to be on friendly terms with him. Mean and little and contemptible as he was in many of his personal relations (recall Lady Mary Wortley Montagu's estimate of his infinite littleness) he nevertheless had a broad streak. This, of course, from the viewpoint of the intellectual. He was in ready sympathy with the strugglers on the stage, and he wrote this apology for imperfections that are inseparable from plays, no less than from other works of finite, therefore imperfect beings:

"Whoever thinks a faultless piece to see, Thinks what never was, nor is, nor e'er shall be."

Given Cross of Legion, Mme. Cecile Chaminade, the composer and pianist, who is among those just given the Legion of Honor decoration, was born in Paris. She studied the pianoforte with Le Coupy and competition with Augustin Savard who counted among his pupils such distinguished musicians as Saint-Saens and Massenet. The great number of her published compositions testify to her love of hard work. She has not limited herself to songs and pianoforte pieces only, but has written duets for violin and piano, violoncello, and piano, trio for piano, violin and violoncello, and solos for the organ. Her compositions are marked by a freshness of ideas that compel all to acknowledge her as an original composer. Mme. Chaminade was married ten years ago to M. Carbonel of Marseilles, the leading music publisher in the south of France.

Sawmill in Japan. There is being erected by an American trading company for the Gomei Kaisha Fujita Gumi at Osaka a modern sawmill that is to be fitted throughout with the latest American machinery for sawing logs into various dimensions of lumber, also with the automatic devices for handling it from one set of saws and planes to the other as required. By the use of this modern machinery the daily output will be greatly increased and the labor cost lowered.

As the sawmill referred to will be the first to be erected in Japan on the modern American plan it is believed that it will be the forerunner of many more, or the modernization of the work is done by hand or where only a rip saw is used.

HEART TRUE AS GOLD

By GEORGE ELMER COBB.

That is the one mean act of my life," asserted Lewis Daniels in a self-deprecatory way.

"And I am glad I did it," he added a minute later, with a seat of impudence that strangely contrasted with his first declaration.

The cause of it all was an open letter he had picked up in the main office. The moment he opened it he knew it was from a sister to Miss Minna Durham, the head stenographer. A word, a phrase caught his eye and held his attention, for Lewis Daniels regarded Miss Durham very, very highly.

Then the remarks we have chronicled, a flashing look of determination in the eyes of the young man usually so calm and smiling, and he walked straight to the office of the manager, Robert Wilson.

Lewis had charge of a department and no one had ever excelled him in his position. He was a valuable man in his place and the manager fully appreciated the fact. They were quite close friends.

"Mr. Wilson," spoke Lewis outright, "I wanted to see if I couldn't get a vacation for Miss Durham, just as the others are having."

"Why, Daniels, you spoke to me about this once before."

"Yes, I know I did."

"And we decided that we couldn't break the rule. The others have been here a year, which entitles them to the two weeks and full pay. Miss Durham came with us as late as October. Couldn't do it, Daniels. We mustn't break precedent in our system, you know."

Lewis looked worried. He passed his hand over his face thoughtfully. Then he said:

"How about my own vacation?"

"Take it when you like, only—last year you devoted most of it to nursing one of the hands, I hear. That isn't vacationing."

"And this time I do not need it," insisted Lewis. "Get here, be a good fellow."

"Now what are you after?"

"Read that letter."

The manager ran his eyes over the written page in his usual rapid, businesslike way. It was from Esther Durham to her sister Minna. It was a wholehearted story in a few words. It told of an invalid mother who had not seen her children for two years. It related how they had all arranged to spend their vacation at the dear old home, their united efforts all workers had saved. Could not Minna come. It would mean life and happiness to the dear old mother.

"We all have our troubles," growled Wilson.

"Let me give my vacation to Miss Durham," pleaded Lewis softly.

The manager regarded him fiercely. But it was all put on. Steel-hearted business man as he was, a touch of rare, genuine nature in the splendid fellow at his elbow affected him deeply, despite himself.

"Daniels," he burst out, "you're a fool!"

"In this case let me be one," urged Lewis.

"Take your way—lots of thanks you'll get in the end; that's my experience."

Lewis Daniels proceeded to the office. His first plan was to place the letter on Miss Durham's desk. He had barely done so when she approached it.

"You were waiting to see me, Mr. Daniels?" asked the girl, with her usual bright smile.

"Hem—why, yes, quite so," stammered Lewis guiltily. "You see, that is—about your vacation."

"Yes, you told me," responded Minna, a trace of sadness in her deep expressive eyes. "I am sorry, but then, you see, I can look forward to next year."

"Hem—special time you devoted, I believe, was the first two weeks in August?" continued Lewis. "It will be all right—two weeks, full pay, and your work this far, Miss Durham, excellent, most excellent."

She looked up into his face, her lips parted, as if unable to comprehend the full blessing of the words he spoke. Her eyes seemed reading his very soul.

"Oh, you can't mean it!" she breathed. "It can't be true!" and she as he silently nodded, too overcome to speak, the tears of joy rushed to her eyes, and one fell upon his hand, and she bent her face upon the desk and sobbed out for joy.

"You are a good, good man!" and when, in the quiet of his bachelor room that night, Lewis Daniels kissed the spot on his hand where that pearly tear had rested, he hoped he was, and he knew that the silent love he bore for Minna Durham could not fail to make him a better one.

Minna went away on her vacation with a happy heart. Two days later the manager was called to a distant city to attend a manufacturers' convention. He assigned Lewis to substitute for him during his absence.

Circumstance or fate, a strange event happened. Wilson had left memoranda as to what credits should be given. There was a firm sold freely, with orders not to restrict the account. A hint caught casually on the street forewarned Lewis. He collected what he could, shut off the credit and, the day Wilson came home the firm failed.

"So, you see, if I hadn't been here through giving Miss Durham my vacation, the firm would be 'out' about twelve thousand dollars," suggested Lewis.

Minna learned of this; she learned, too, of the noble sacrifice of Lewis soon after her return. The happiness he had brought into her life was not forgotten.

One day, several weeks later, the manager called Lewis into his private office.

"New contract," he observed in his usual terse way, tossing over a written sheet. "The house appreciates your services—fifty per cent. raise in salary."

"Thank you," said Lewis heartily. "I hope I deserve it."

"Deserve it?" repeated Wilson, and his lips twitched suspiciously. "Daniels, you're a man with a soul. You have done some fine, fine things I wish my hard, selfish business had made my heart as true gold as yours."

"Did you ever—that is, well, did you ever try love?" suggested Lewis, blushing red as a peony.

"Oh, that's the secret, is it?"

"I think so."

"That young lady, Miss Durham—I suppose you don't regret giving up the vacation you earned so hard to cater to a girlish whim?"

"If you know what happiness the whim, as you call it, led to, you would not be sorry for letting me have my own way," replied Lewis, his voice full of earnest emotion.

"That unexpected family reunion, from all I learn, was one of those bright spots of life that make people believe in good and heaven?"

"Hem!" coughed Wilson, and turned aside, a gleam of the heartsome sweeping his face. Then, the old, stern business man, he resumed: "By the way—this protégé of yours?"

"Meaning Miss Durham?"

"Exactly. I suppose you feel partial enough towards her to be asking a raise in salary, now that her year is up?"

Lewis Daniels placed a loving hand on the manager's shoulder.

"Wilson," he said, "if I did, you would grant it, I can see that, which is a credit to your just, helpful nature; but Miss Durham is going to leave the first of the month."

"Going to leave?" repeated the manager in some surprise.

"Yes, she has a new position, and I am going to ask for a few days' vacation, after all."

"Why, where are you going?" asked the bewildered Wilson.

"On our honeymoon."

Air Scouts Proved of Value.

Recent wars have served to show how valuable the air scouts may become in the carrying on of a campaign. Despite the fact that Bulgaria secured many worthless aeroplanes, as a result, it is said, of graft, those which could be operated gave valuable information. And at one time nearly all of the 23 aerps assembled at Mustapha Pasha were condemned as unserviceable and only three of them succeeded in flying. Moreover, under urgency to secure men in haste many scamp aviators were employed, some of them receiving $100 a day, and when their services were needed they declined to fly on one pretext or another. It is reported that five obsolete Bleriot's arrived at the Bulgarian headquarters without motors or gasoline tanks. Yet the planes that could fly did some valuable work.

Origin of Authors' Rights.

The recent jubilee meeting of the French Societe des Gens de Lettres, attended by President Poincaré, has led to an inquiry as to the origin of that most important thing for writers—authors' rights. The first trace of it goes back, it appears, to the year 1655, a playwright named Quinault had written a piece named "Les Givales." It was his first play, and he offered it to a strolling company of actors, who were not willing to risk more than 50 crowns on its purchase. Quinault then suggested that, instead of receiving a sum cash down, he should be given a ninth part of the receipts taken in during the run of the piece. This bargain was accepted, and it proved to be the beginning of what was at first known as "the author's share," and subsequently "the author's rights."—London Evening Standard.

Painfully Mixed.

A very fashionable young man stopped at a florist's one hot summer day to order a box of flowers sent to his lady love. At the same time he also purchased a design for the funeral of a friend. On the card for the box he wrote:

"Hoping this may help you to bear the heat."

The other card bore the one word, "Sympathy."

Very soon the girl telephoned: "Thank you so much for the flowers. But why did you write 'Sympathy' on the card?"

Tooke's Taste in Tombs.

Nelson provided his own coffin, but there have been men who carefully prepared their own tombs. Horne Tooke was one. A large block of black Irish marble, specially procured for the purpose, was its most striking feature, and it was to be placed in his garden at Wimbledon, where he desired to be buried. But all his preparations were vain, for after his death it was decided that the presence of a tomb would "deteriorate the value of his estate," and he was buried in Ealing churchyard.—London Chronicle.

And Minister Had to Smile.

In order to neutralize the seriousness of marriage a bridegroom left a nice, thickly wadded packet for the minister who officiated. "This," said the happy bridegroom, "is your fee, Doctor." The minister thanked him heartily and some time later on opening the "fee" found it to be a bundle of wrapping paper skillfully folded and bearing this message: "Well, old boy, I'm married now, so don't wish me any hard luck, even if you are set back a little. Yours in a rush."

Sugar.

Almost all the sugar in the world comes from two sources—the sugar cane and the sugar beet. There is also maple sugar, sugar made from the sap of date palms and from dried fruits. But the sugar we use in huge quantities, the loaf sugar, the granulated and the powdered, comes from the cane or the beet. Fifty years ago sugar was more or less of a luxury. Today it is a necessity.

Able to Identify the Excelsior.

A Fort Scott woman was packing a cut glass bowl for shipment and sent her small son to the basement to get some excelsior. "What's excelsior?" asked the boy. "Oh, hurry," replied the mother. "It's that stuff that looks like hay." The boy's face brightened. "I know what it is, mother," he exclaimed, "it's that long sawdust."—Kansas City Star.

Company for George.

Hobbie, aged six, asked his mother: "You are not a liar, mamma, are you?" "No, son, I never told a lie." Hobbie hesitated, but he was so proud of his mother he said: "Mother, you won't be very lonesome when you go to heaven, 'cause you'll be with George Washington."

Pleasant News for Hubby.

Young Wife (to older and scabber husband): "Now, dear, just be as comfortable as you can, and don't worry about me. I'm not lonesome. There's half a dozen men up on deck who've been awfully nice to me. And such a joke! They think I'm a widow!"—Puck.

Words Have Become Corrupted.

Such names as Swearing and Gambling show how the original meaning has become corrupted. Swearing is from swear, which comes from the Anglo-Saxon word meaning "honorable." Gambling comes from gaming, which comes from a Norse word signifying "old descent."

Punished Perjury With Death.

The early Romans threw perjurers from the Tarpeian rock, a high cliff, falling from which was certain death, and at a later period any person who swore falsely was sentenced to have his tongue cut out, which also was equivalent to death.

Emerson's Advice.

There should be on every tower watchers set to observe and report of every new ray of light. In what quarter soever of heaven it should appear, and their report should be eagerly and reverently received.—Emerson.

Wary Listener.

"You can't answer my arguments," triumphantly exclaimed the man of aggressive tenacity. "No," replied the sarcastic person, "I haven't a chance. I can't stay awake long enough."

Social Good in All These.

There is a great deal of social good to be done in putting down gossip, in preventing misunderstandings, and in keeping friends with everybody.—Jowett.

United States Moved Slowly.

Polygamy was declared a felony in England in 1604, but it was not until 1868 that the congress made plurality marriages unlawful in the United States.

Explained.

"I don't understand Smith. He says things are awfully dull in his business and yet he has just bought a new automobile." "Well, you see, sharpening knives is his profession."

Slight Correction.

Fourthbell—"Your cook has been with you for a long time, has she not?" Brownstone—"We have been with her for five years."—Puck.

NEWS OF THE STATE

The Lake View hotel at Minneola is no more. A fire originating in the kitchen was fanned by favorably conspiring winds toward the main building, and in a few moments nothing remained but a smoldering heap of cinders and ashes. Help quickly arrived on the scene and had there been anyone else present who understood operating the waterworks engine and connecting up the hose, the building might have been saved, but Miss Elizabeth Stracker, the owner of the hotel, was so panic stricken that she could give no intelligent directions and consequently all efforts were devoted to saving the contents.

The revenue law passed by the last legislature, requiring saloons to pay double license by reason of the separate bars for white and colored patrons was declared invalid in a ruling handed down by Judge W. S. Bullock, late this afternoon. This is the first time that the validity of the act has been tested before the courts of this state. The tax collector of Marion county took the position that under the revenue law enacted in 1913 all saloons in Marion county were subject to a double license by reason of operating two different bars, one for white and one for colored. For a test case Maurice Strauss, a well known liquor dealer was arrested for failure to take out the two licenses and the case was heard this afternoon before Judge W. S. Bullock. The court in its opinion held the law to be invalid and ordered the prisoner discharged. It is understood that the county will take the case to the supreme court on a writ of error, but it is the consensus of opinion among the local bar that Judge Bullock's decision will be affirmed by the supreme court.

Great excitement prevailed at Lawtry Wednesday when it was found that the postoffice had been broken into during the night and the safe blown open. Both outer and inner doors were badly demolished, but the safety deposit vault inside the safe was undisturbed. In an interview with Deputy Postmaster Lowery it was learned that about $300 worth of stamps were taken out, but no money. The burglars entered by cutting the panel out of the front door. Five panes of glass were broken out of the office of Dr. Brown, which was next door, and footprints were discovered under each window. They next visited the general store of R. R. Thede, adjoining Dr. Brown's office, where they removed a panel out of this door and entered. The noise made in entering was heard by Mr. Thede, who fired several shots through the windows, which frightened the burglars away. Those who heard the reports of the explosion said it was between 1 and 2 o'clock. No alarm was given out until near daylight, when authorities in every direction were notified to be on the look out for suspicious looking characters. Sam Hurd, the negro who, according to a death warrant issued some time ago by Gov. Trammell, will be hanged in the Alachua county jail enclosure on Friday, January 30, was making splendid progress toward effecting his own getaway as well as that of others, when Jailer W. M. Torley made the discovery Wednesday morning. Mr. Torley is "always on the job" during the early hours of the morning, heard a noise as if a rivet or tap had fallen to the iron floor from quite a height. This roused the jailer's suspicion, and he was not long in learning that saws were working steadily in the cell occupied by Hurd. When daylight came Mr. Torley and Chief Deputy Bruton made an investigation and found six hacks saws, one file, one coal chisel and a large piece of wood in the cell. Seventeen rivets had been filed off, and the removal of eight more would have given Hurd and those in the cell with him access to the corridor. It is believed that he intended to assault the jailer when he entered the corridor and effect a general getaway. "Behold!" The conquering hero comes in the person of Sam Park, who will be at the Imperial Theatre Monday and Tuesday night, Jan. 26th and 27th heading a big all star company of fifteen people under the personal direction of that pioneer producer J. H. Brown, who has developed and placed before the American people a great number of our well known stars, and we feel safe in saying that this offering far surpasses all his former efforts. Sam Park and Little Miss Edna are no newcomers to the people of Sanford and their offerings have always been up to time in every particular, and as the old saying is they grow better with age. The company is presenting some of the latest successes released for stock productions and we can safely assure you that no plays ever seen south will be presented during the two nights and matinees here. On Monday night the company will present "The Spell of the Southland," a beautiful story of the new south, and the portrayals of the various characters are fully equal to those seen in any attraction that costs you from $1.00 to $1.50, and the vaudeville we can say without fear of contradiction is the best ever seen in this city. The prices for this attraction are very near the smallest thing about the show, 25, 35 and 50 cents and we have no doubt that you will all say that the famous Sam and Edna Park are the best entertainers you have ever seen. Sam Park has been coming here for years with the great C. W. Park Dramatic Co., and when we say Park to the amusement going public it is like saying we have the best, which we have. GENEVA MEETINGS Mrs. Spindley of Canton, Ohio, the guest of Mrs. Claude Ranierison. Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Coatsworth of Buffalo, N. Y., are visiting Geneva guests of the Geneva House. Fay Pain left last Monday for Paw Paw, Michigan, where he will remain for some time. P. E. Popperelle and family are settled for the winter in the Caldwell house on Lake Geneva. Elder Curlett is one of the busiest men in Geneva preparing for his new business venture. More later. There were the regular services at the Baptist church last Sunday, preaching by the pastor, Rev. W. Stone. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Burtley are entertaining as a welcome guest Mrs. P. Esteflow of May's Landing, New Jersey. The enormous fish that have recently been caught in Buck Lake are earning for that body of water a noted reputation. Last Thursday E. G. Debow of Jacksonville, Fla., with Howard Montgomery and Clark Leonard were fishing in that lake caught a trout weighing twelve pounds and two ounces and on Friday Mr. Coatsworth of Buffalo caught one that weighed eight pounds. Mr. and Mrs. Gall of Valois, N. Y., are visiting Mr. Lamoreaux, who has a winter home in Geneva. Stay On Your Feet Taking Calomel Means Staying at Home for the Day—Take Dodson's Liver Tonic and Save a Day's Work.
