Malpractice Session Begins Today

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The long-delayed debate on the medical malpractice issue began today at 9 a.m., when the Senate Commerce committee took up six different bills and will attempt to hammer them into a single acceptable package.

"I'm optimistic we can pass some reasonable reforms," said Toni Jennings, R-Orlando, committee chairwoman and Senate majority leader. Like most legislators, Jennings said the main problem would be damage caps to limit high malpractice settlements and setting lower legal standards for care in emergency rooms and trauma centers.

The malpractice special session, scheduled to run from today through Thursday, will formally convene at 1 p.m. The House Insurance Committee will begin wrestling with its own version of the legislation shortly after the House recesses.

House Speaker Jim Mills said Monday he was cautiously optimistic about the session, noting legislators have pared the controversial items down to three.

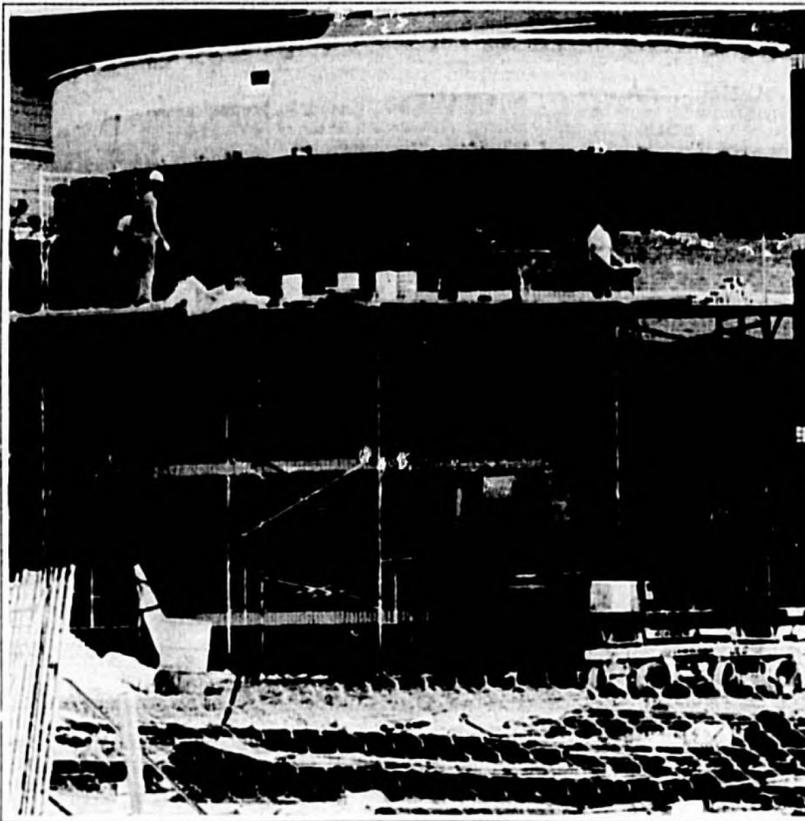

"The bill has been on the table a couple of months. The issue has been on the table for six months," Mills said. "Probably 90 percent of the substance of the bill could be agreed to, and then there are those three issues."

Gov. Bob Martinez, meanwhile, abandoned his hopes of passing the bill, named for sponsor Rep. Sam Bell, D-Ormond Beach, by consensus. But Martinez said he still expects a bill to pass by the time the session ends on Friday.

"There's good hope there will be a majority vote on a bill," Martinez said. "I believe we can get a majority vote out of both houses."

Like Jennings, Mills said lowering the legal standard for care to bring doctors back into emergency rooms and trauma

Construction workers, high on scaffolding Monday, piece together an adult education facility, a $6 million extension of Seminole Community College's main campus in Sanford. The center, to open for teaching July 1, is to house such SCC programs as adult high school courses and Leisure Time programs.

Grand Jury Continues Probe

The Seminole County Grand Jury investigating the circumstances surrounding the 1985 Seminole County purchase of 2,867 acres at Yankee Lake for $7.5 million heard testimony from five witnesses in Sanford Monday.

Appearing before the grand jury were:

- Bill Kirchhoff, Seminole County Commissioner, who also testified during the grand jury's last meeting in January.
- Bob Sturm, Seminole County Commissioner, made his first appearance before the grand jury.

- Theresa Coker, Sturm's former aide.
- Russ Pardee, an investigator from State Attorney Ed Austin's office in Jacksonville.
- Stewart Hudson, a special agent for the Florida Department of Law Enforcement. Martinez

Russo: Cruz Should Hire Attorney

'Palm Bay Gunman Had Money'

By Richard Whittaker
Herald Staff Writer

The Public Defender for Brevard and Seminole counties said he will fight any efforts to make his office defend the man accused of killing six people and injuring 10 others in an April 1987 shooting spree at Palm Bay because the man gave all his money to his wife, who left the country.

James Russo, public defender for the 18th Judicial Circuit, also said his office is investigating the financial resources of the Orlando man charged with the first degree murder of his attorney on Jan. 12 to determine if he's eligible for public defense.

Russo told the Sanford Herald that a private attorney for William Bryan Cruz is planning to file a motion to have the accused murderer declared indigent. That would mean the public defender's office would have to assume the case, according to Russo.

Cruz, who is charged with six counts of murder, 10 counts of attempted murder and three counts of kidnapping, has transferred several hundred thousand dollars to his wife, according to Russo. Cruz's wife, Melba B. Cruz, has since left the U.S. for Turkey, her native country.

Mrs. Cruz is known to be suffering from Parkinson's Disease. Remarks made by Cruz indicated his wife's illness may have been one of the causes of the spree, according to police reports of the incident.

He (Cruz) transferred those funds to his wife knowing full well she was going to leave the country," Russo said. He said he would argue against his office having to defend a man who's had that much money, even if it's not under his name anymore.

"I'm not saying we're (the Public Defender's Office) not going to get involved with the case, but we're going to try to avoid it by showing how much in assets he transferred from his accounts," Russo said.

Cruz is accused of killing two rookie Palm Bay police officers, as well as four other people, during a rampage that began in the small community 85 miles southeast of Sanford at about 6:30 p.m. on April 23.

The shooting began after Cruz was reportedly angered by noises several teens were making near his home.

Cruz allegedly began the spree by shooting a 16-year-old boy, who wasn't one of the youths causing the noise, in the hip. He then drove to a Publix Supermarket at the Kmart Plaza where he reportedly opened fire on shoppers in the area.

From the Kmart Plaza Cruz then allegedly ran across the street and entered a Winn-Dixie Supermarket where he fired at shoppers. He then took three hostages as police surrounded the area.

The bloody episode came to an abrupt end at 2:08 the next morning when SWAT team members stormed the store. Cruz was taken into custody without any injury to himself.

Seven Floridians Get Chance At Million Bucks

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A paint store owner who found his ticket and is against the lottery and an engineer who was "numb" are among seven people who won at least $10,000 and a chance at $1 million in the Florida Lottery.

Gov. Bob Martinez reached into an 8-by-6 steel-reinforced drum Monday filled with about 460,000 pink and green lottery tickets and selected seven winners. The tickets were certified by the accounting firm of Sharpston, Brunson and Co. of Miami.

Lottery Department officials identified the winners as Brice Annicia of Homestead, Jeffery F. Mora of Orlando, Thomas W. Sawyer of St. Petersburg, Paul A. Harrison of St. Augustine, Stephanie J. Nixon of North Miami Beach, James E. Smithson of Miami and Robert L. Braymiller of Ruskin.

"I still don't believe in gambling," said Sawyer, 47, a paint store owner.

"At least I'll have some financial security," said Mora, a 35-year-old engineer for the Orange County Public Utilities and father of one.

Tickets chosen by Martinez will be included in a $1 million drawing Feb. 13 in Clearwater. Two of the ticketholders will win $10,000, two will get $15,000, one will get $25,000 and one $50,000.

Martinez pulled nine tickets from the giant drum, but two were discarded after Assistant Lottery Secretary David Kausch concluded they were invalid. One lacked the three matching "entry" designations. The second did not have the purchaser's signature and address on the back as required by law.

There will be a second series of drawings with another $1 million prize later this month as part of "Millionaire," the first game launched by the lottery department.

The governor took off his suit coat and rolled up his shirt sleeves, to show he had nothing up his sleeve, before leaning into the drum to pull out the tickets.

The barrel contained 2 tons of "entry" tickets returned to the Department of the Lottery since ticket sales began Jan. 12.

The heavily guarded drum clearly reflected the world-record start achieved by the Florida Lottery — it needed a 5 horsepower engine to make it revolve.

Lottery officials are not sure how many tickets have been sold to date, although they do know they set a first-week record for any state lottery of $93 million.

While seven people are assured of at least a $10,000 return on their $1 investment, "the real winners are the school children of Florida," said Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul. About $150 million will be raised for education from the lottery during the first six months of this year.

Sawyer, the married father of four, said he found the winning ticket near the street in front of his store.

"I have a religious belief against (the lottery)," he said. "And... most of the people who play the lottery are the people who can least afford to."

He said he will use the money to pay off debts. "I'm not unhappy about it," he said. "When you look at it in the bank account you look at it

Lottery Finalists

Following are the seven Floridians whose names will be entered in a $1 million Florida Lottery drawing Feb. 13 in Clearwater, as part of "Millionaire," the first game launched by lottery officials. The finalists, announced Monday, are guaranteed prizes ranging from $10,000 to the big million. They are:

- Jeffery F. Mora, 35, of Orlando, engineer with Orange County Public Utilities.
 - Brice Annicia of Homestead.
 - Thomas W. Sawyer, 47, of St. Petersburg, paint store owner.
 - Paul A. Harrison of St. Augustine.
 - Stephanie J. Nixon of North Miami Beach.
 - James E. Smithson of Miami.
 - Robert L. Braymiller of Ruskin.
- Prizes up for grabs among the seven are:
 —$10,000 (2). —$15,000 (2).
 —$25,000 (1). —$50,000 (1).
 —$1,000,000 (1).

Henry Sanford's Letter Donated To Museum Possibly Last Letter To Daughters Written By City's Founder

Nancy Simmons
Herald Staff Writer

A letter written by Henry Shelton Sanford, the city's founder, and presented Sunday to the Henry Shelton Sanford Memorial Library and Museum by his granddaughter, is an important addition for the museum, according to Alicia Clarke, curator at the museum.

The letter was given to Clarke by Gertrude Sanford Legendre while Clarke was giving her a tour of the museum.

In the letter Sanford congratulates his daughters for winning some awards in school, then writes on general family news.

Clarke said the letter is important because it was written to Sanford's daughters while they were in a convent school in Paris. Also it was written from Belair citrus groves only one month before Sanford died. He must have been very ill at the time, Clarke explained, because while the letter is from him, his wife wrote it for him.

It was written April 29, 1891. Sanford died May 21, a little less than a month later, in Healing Springs, Va. He was 68 at the time.

He addresses himself to "My Dear Children," and begins by saying, "I am so pleased at your winning the three ribbons that I am moved to send you a few words of loving congratulation. I have no doubt that you have worthily earned the distinction and my pride as an American is roused by your holding so high our flag."

"The little Americans are not such barbarians after all!" Sanford continues. "Continue on in the same path and win more laurels and secure the satisfaction of having done your whole duty."

Clarke explained at that time, Europeans looked down on American education, considering it to be inferior to theirs. The girls may have had some problems trying to shake that image while they were attending the Convent de Roule, she said. It may also be that Sanford's wife had those same attitudes because, although she was an American, she was raised in Europe.

Sanford tells the girls he is not feeling well and that he would be leaving for a "more bracing Northern air," possibly on May 23.

However, Clarke points out that he and his wife must have thought it imperative to change climates more quickly than planned.

Sanford also noted in the letter that "We overlook Belair where the last of the crop is being gathered and packed. Some 4,000 boxes in all, and all are very busy. Will send you some photographs of it."

Clarke said this paragraph is what excited her because she is certain that the photographs he mentions in the letter are the ones on display in the museum. They were taken in 1891.

Clarke is expecting to hear more from Legendre in the future. The Sanford heir told her that she has family correspondence from Sanford's wife Gertrude's relatives, the DuPois. Legendre may donate some of the letters to the museum, also.

POLICE

IN BRIEF

Man's Father Fails To Quell Fight, Husband Jailed In Spouse Abuse

Monica Barnes, 25, of 280 Jasmin Road, Casselberry, told Casselberry police she fled her home with her two children at about 5:30 p.m. Sunday, when her husband allegedly brandished a knife and became violent during an argument.

Barnes went to her father-in-law's home and returned to her home, bringing her father-in-law along. After her father-in-law talked to her husband and then left her home, Barnes' husband allegedly again became violent. Barnes told police her husband pinned her down and stabbed at her neck with a knife. She was cut on the neck, but managed to break free and escape to a nearby store, where she called police.

Albert Hugh Barnes, 28, of the above address, was arrested at his home at 5:58 p.m. Sunday. He has been charged with aggravated battery, criminal mischief and improper exhibition of weapons. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Spouse Abuse Charged To Three

In separate cases, lawmen reported arresting three men in Seminole County in Sunday incidents that led to charges of spouse abuse-battery.

In the first case, at 6:46 p.m. Seminole County sheriff's deputies reported arresting James Vincent Malroe, 33, of Orlando, at the home of his mother-in-law at 2033 Nottingham Lane.

Malroe's wife Maria accused him of attacking her Saturday night at their Orlando home. She fled to Seminole County and said he followed her to her mother's house, forced entry and attacked again. He was being held in lieu of $500 bond.

In the second case, Franklin Delano Valle, 53, of 516 Bristol Drive, Altamonte Springs, was arrested by Altamonte Springs police at 7:15 p.m. at his home after he allegedly choked, slapped and hit his wife so hard she dropped her 2-year-old son to the floor. He was being held in lieu of $500 bond.

In the final case, at 9:15 p.m., Nicky Ralph Starling, 27, of 118 Forset Lake Drive, Altamonte Springs, was arrested by sheriff's deputies at his home after he allegedly threw a partially full can of beer at his wife. Deputies reported Cathy Starling, 26, suffered a cut on the forehead in the attack. Starling has been released on $500 bond to appear in court Feb. 2.

Police See Knife, Arrest Man

Sanford police who let a suspicious man go after questioning him on Third Street at Palmetto Avenue, Sanford, at about 1:15 p.m. Saturday, stopped the man a second time as he was walking away.

Police said they saw him apparently trying to hide a knife in a second pair of pants he was wearing.

Charles Edward Hayes, 31, of 1018 W. 11th St., Sanford, was arrested on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. He was being held in lieu of $500 bond.

Discarding Cocaine Spotted

Sanford police in foot pursuit of a man reported seeing him drop a glass container of cocaine in front of 41 Lake Monroe Terrace, Sanford, at about 9:15 a.m. Saturday.

The man was caught, the cocaine recovered, and additional cocaine and drug paraphernalia was reportedly found in the man's possession. Jeffery Bernard Campbell, 25, of 1011 Dunbar Ave., Sanford, has been charged with possession of cocaine and resisting without violence. He was also arrested on battery-related warrants and was being held without bond.

Two Arrested In Highway Harassments

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

A second roadway dispute in Seminole County in the last three days, at about 4 p.m. Monday on State Road 434, Longwood, has brought the arrest of two men.

The men involved in a similar, but unrelated incident on State Road 434 at Interstate 4 on Saturday, may also both face criminal charges. One of the men involved in the incident, who was stabbed, has been released from an Orlando hospital.

In the latest incident, a Longwood police report said Thomas Martin Lanna, 29, of Orlando, was driving east on State Road 434, when a car driven by Brian Edward Skiles, 24, of Orlando, approached from behind and pulled up on the left side of Lanna's vehicle. Skiles allegedly began yelling threats and threw an oil bottle from his car in through the open driver's window of Lanna's car.

Lanna threw the bottle back at Skiles and Skiles pulled behind Lanna's car. When traffic stopped at a light Skiles allegedly got out of his car and began kicking and hitting the doors and hood of Lanna's car, causing $1,000 damage. As Lanna tried to flee, police said, he backed the rear of his car into the front of Skiles' car and then drove to Ace Hardware, State Road 434, to call for police.

Skiles also stopped there and allegedly continued to batter Lanna's vehicle while Lanna was waiting for police.

When Longwood police arrived on the scene they arrested both men on a charge of throwing a missile into an occupied vehicle. Skiles was also charged with criminal mischief, with damage more than $1,000. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond and Lanna has been released on $5,000 bond to appear in court Feb. 22.

In the Saturday incident, which occurred at about 4:30 p.m. at the intersection of State Road 434 and Interstate 4, Longwood, Seminole County sheriff's deputies reported that three vehicles became involved in a game of traffic "cat and mouse," after Louis Jerry Cotton, 20, of Winter Park, pulled onto Interstate 4 in Orlando, in front of the truck of Mike Muroski, 26, of Orlando.

That began traffic play, which also involved a third vehicle driven by a friend of Muroski's, Debbie Brooks, of Orlando, the sheriff's report said. When the vehicles stopped at the intersection, Cotton allegedly got out of his car and confronted the other drivers. He allegedly twice slashed a pattern on the hood of Muroski's truck, with the knife he used lodging in the truck's hood the second time it was used.

Muroski allegedly got out of his vehicle and broke the windshield of Cotton's car and hit Cotton in the hand with a board. Cotton drove away and Muroski's truck pursued him and cut him off. Cotton allegedly got out and grabbed the knife out of the hood of Muroski's truck and stabbed him in the side as Muroski allegedly swung at him with a board.

Muroski was transported to Orlando Regional Medical Center, where he was hospitalized for a couple of days before release.

Seminole County sheriff's investigator Willie Chandler said today he is prepared to file criminal charges against each of the two men involved. The men, Chandler said, must each request that charges be filed against the other.

Woman Punched By Watch-Stealing Robber

A 70-year-old Sanford woman was awakened in the early morning hours Sunday, then punched in the stomach by her assailant, who demanded her watch, according to Sanford City Police.

And in another incident, a Sanford man came home while two burglars were still in his apartment.

Johnnie Mae Kelly, 126 Castle Brewer Court, told police that an unidentified man woke her up at 2 a.m. Sunday, then punched her in the stomach and demanded that she give him the Timex watch she was wearing. He also took the gold necklace Kelly was wearing at the time.

The burglar then fled the apartment. Police said he had apparently entered the apartment through an unlocked back door.

Kelly said she could not identify the man.

Her watch is estimated to be worth $50 and the necklace, $200.

Robert A. Davis, 29, 1505 W. 25th St., Apt. 403B, told police that he was returning home at 8:45 p.m. Saturday when he saw two males, probably juveniles, in his kitchen.

He told police that he ran around to the back of his apartment and met the two as they were coming out the door.

He chased them across the courtyard and up and down some steps, he said, then out onto Geneva Drive.

At that point one of the males pointed a handgun at Davis and told him to stop. The two then ran south on Clermont Ave., Davis told police.

A woman's purse was emptied out on the living room floor, but nothing was reported missing, police said.

The juvenile who pointed the gun at Davis is described as about 16 years of age, about five-foot-five inches tall, weighing 145 pounds, and wearing a blue jean jacket. He had blonde hair, Davis said.

The second juvenile is described as being about the same age, but about six-foot-one, 135 pounds, with blonde hair. He was wearing blue jeans and a blue jean jacket, Davis said.

A gold ring with a diamond-set, valued at $500, is one of three items missing from the residence of a Sanford woman's home, after it was burglarized Saturday, police said.

Tools valued at $700 are missing from a 1970 Oldsmobile belonging to Michael C. Powell, 22, 2416 Maple Ave. The vehicle apparently was broken into sometime between 3 p.m. Friday and 2 p.m. Sunday, the owner told police.

Five-Day Forecast

Fog Shrouds Shadow Seekers

By Fred H. Cooper
Herald Staff Writer

Happy Groundhog Day! Now, all of us know that Seminole County does not have an official groundhog by any name but to effectively predict spring, one is absolutely necessary. Therefore, we secured the services of the next best thing to a weather-predicting rodent. We contacted an "official" meteorologist of the National Weather Service of the U.S. of A. Then at the appointed hour and at the appropriate place, the Seminole surrogate sought his shadow. Voila! There was none.

"Of course there's no shadow, there's too much fog," exclaimed the fearless forecaster. But the prescient shadow-seeking technique employed so long up in yankeeland to predict the onset of spring has succeeded once again.

Let's declare today as the first day of spring - although yesterday wasn't bad. High yesterday was 82 degrees in the southern portion of the county and 78 in Sanford. Lows in the area ranged from 58 in places such as Altamonte, Lake Mary and Oviedo to 43 in Sanford - the coldest reading in the state overnight. The city has replaced Longwood as a muckland.

Today - well it'll be much like tomorrow will be. Temperatures in the 80s during the day and overnight lows down in the 50s.

Want to see something incredible? Wander outside just before 7 a.m., look to the west, and watch the moon set. It's really beautiful.

A look around Florida reveals a strange assortment of temperatures yesterday. Highest in the state, and in the nation for that matter, was at Naples with an 84 degree reading. Sarasota and Fort Myers were close in there with 83s. Miami? Just 76, the same as Tallahassee.

If you travel to Wolf Point, Montana, and shake hands with the local citizens, you can congratulate them on being a part of life in a town with the lowest low temperature reading in the nation last night - minus 32 degrees.

Our own experience with Groundhog Day is not quite as elaborate as the ones up north. And of all of those, one is foremost.

Up in Punxsutawney, Pennsylvania Punxsutawney Phil, the weather-forecasting groundhog, today failed to see his shadow for only the ninth time in the past 101 years - a harbinger of an early spring.

The rain-drenched crowd of about 1,000 people cheered wildly when "the Great Prognosticator" emerged from his electrically heated, man-made burrow atop Gobblers' Knob and whispered his prediction in "groundhogese" to James Means, president of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club.

"Phil came out of his official home at 7:32 a.m. to start his second century with an accurate prediction. He has failed to see his shadow," said Means, the sole Punxsutawney of 8,000 in this blue-collar, western Pennsylvania town who is well-versed in Phil's native tongue.

Legend has it that if a groundhog sees his shadow he will be scared back into his burrow for six more weeks of winter.

In New York, Chuck, the Staten Island Zoo groundhog, took a stroll outside his winter quarters today in balmy, 57-degree temperatures and agreed with Pennsylvania's Punxsutawney Phil - an early spring.

Local Report

The high temperature reading in Sanford Monday was 78 degrees and the overnight low was 43 as reported by the University of Florida Agricultural Research and Education Center, Celery Avenue. There was no recorded rainfall.

Two Armed American Indians End Siege At Newspaper Office

LUMBERTON, N.C. (UPI) — Two heavily armed American Indians who seized a newspaper office and took 17 hostages ended a 10-hour siege when the governor's top aide promised to investigate their complaints of racial injustice and police corruption.

Eddie Hatcher and Timothy Jacobs tossed their shotguns out the door of The Robesonian newspaper building about 8 p.m. Monday and surrendered to federal agents rather than Robeson County authorities.

The two Tuscarora Indians, who had chained the building's doors shut and rigged them with hand grenades, had released eight hostages throughout the day and the nine remaining captives, including editor Bob Horne, walked out of the newspaper's office after the gunmen, all unarmed.

"It was real scary at first, but they never mistreated us," Horne said. "They had weapons, but they never pointed them at anyone. My main concern was that someone stupid would storm the place, and if they did that, you never know what's going to happen then."

Officials Back Contra Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With Nicaraguan negotiators appealing personally for congressional support by describing initial peace talks with the Contras, the administration hoped to sway lawmakers the other way by presenting final arguments today for a $36.3 million package of rebel aid.

Secretary of State George Shultz had a date with the House Foreign Affairs Committee this morning even as President Reagan called members of Congress to the White House to discuss the contested aid request. The president arranged a speech to the nation this evening on the eve of a showdown House vote.

Congressional Democrats predict a stinging defeat for Reagan Wednesday on the centerpiece of his Central America policy — arming the Contra rebels who have fought Nicaragua's Marxist Sandinista regime.

West Bank Schools Shut In Effort To Stop Protests

JERUSALEM (UPI) — The army shut schools in the West Bank for one day today in an attempt to end a new wave of anti-Israel protests that left two more Palestinians dead, possibly killed by Israeli civilians.

Driving rains helped curb demonstrations throughout most of the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip today. Thousands of Gazans went to their jobs in Israel aboard Israeli buses after Gaza bus drivers refused to take them because of fears of attacks by Palestinian protesters. The Palestinians want workers to stay off the job in an effort to disrupt the Israeli economy as part of the protests.

The Gaza Strip was quiet, although a curfew continued for a second day at the U.N.-run Bureij refugee camp where soldiers and residents clashed Monday.

In the West Bank, rock-throwing Palestinians blocked roads in several towns and camps. In separate incidents, three Israelis were injured by flying glass after rocks smashed their windows of their cars, authorities said.

Authorities Warn Union Leaders

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Authorities summoned Solidarity leaders from around the nation to warn them of possible "legal consequences" over the outlawed trade union's opposition to government-imposed price increases that has caused grumbling in some factories, a union spokesman said.

Solidarity spokesman Janusz Onyszkiewicz said Monday he was summoned to appear at the prosecutor's office today for a "warning talk."

He said Warsaw branch leader Zbigniew Bujak also was called in by authorities and was warned Solidarity would face "legal consequences" if they advocated opposition to the price hikes.

COMING EVENTS

Parents Of Mentally Ill Children Organize Group

A program to help parents of mentally ill children and adolescents form their own support group is scheduled Wednesday, Feb. 3, at the Senior Center, 99 E. Marks St., Orlando. Registration will begin at 6:30 p.m., according to Ann Purcell, president of the Alliance for the Mentally Ill of Greater Orlando (AMIGO), sponsor of the event. The program will start at 7 p.m.

Jim Berko of Community Mental Health Services of Seminole County will be among the speakers. For further information, call 647-4846.

Saleswomen To Meet

"Steps to Personal Achievement" will be the topic when Dr. Charles Fitzgerald speaks at the monthly dinner meeting of the Orlando Chapter of the National Association for Professional Saleswomen 6-9 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 9 at the Ramada Inn, 151 N. Douglas Ave., Altamonte Springs. A sales sill session will be presented by Sue McCahan. Reservations due by Feb. 5. Call 345-0545 for more information.

UDC Chapter Meets

Annie Coleman Chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy will meet on Wednesday, Feb. 3 at 2 p.m. at the home of Mrs. J.E. Kezsel, 1601 Summerland Ave., Winter Park. Allan Todd will speak on "Seals of the Confederacy." For information call 846-8937 after 6 p.m.

Oncology Patients Coping

Humana Hospital-Lucerne in conjunction with the American Cancer Society will offer the "I Can Cope" program, a support group for oncology patients, their families and friends. Free programs are offered on Thursdays from 7-9 p.m. on the physical and psychological ramifications of living with cancer. Anyone wishing to attend may contact Anita Schiddel, RN, oncology coordinator, at 237-6111.

Iowa Caucuses Have Candidates Hustling

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois claims a big boost for his presidential bid from the endorsement of Iowa's major newspaper, and former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt is trying to catch up to front-running Democratic rivals through new harsh attacks.

With one week left before Iowa's presidential caucuses, the stalled Simon campaign hopes the coveted Des Moines Register endorsement will put undecided voters into the senator's camp in what is shaping up as a tight three-way Democratic race.

"It gives some momentum to our campaign," said Simon, who quoted from the newspaper's praise in a speech to Black Hawk County Democrats in Waterloo Sunday.

Rep. David Nagle, former state party chairman, said the endorsement should help Simon.

"Paul needed a boost. I thought he had been slipping," he said.

The Register endorsed Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas in the Republican race. Dole leads Vice President George Bush in the Iowa polls.

Babbitt made no secret that he would have liked the endorsement. But Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri, whose campaign has surged in recent weeks, said, "Iowans are extremely independent people. They do not take a cue from anyone."

The newspaper called Gephardt "the most disappointing of the field."

Babbitt has adopted a new strategy for ripping Gephardt, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis and Simon, who he has been trailing in the polls.

He singled out Simon Saturday for supporting the "gutless" Gramm-Rudman tax cuts, charged Sunday that Dukakis has "duck and run from every major issue" and planned to go after Gephardt at a college appearance today.

"This is a candidate a day," Babbitt said. But he said he will hold his fire against the candidates he leads: civil rights leader Jesse Jackson, former Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado and Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee.

Babbitt told the Waterloo Democratic fund-raiser the Dukakis plan to close the deficit by collecting more taxes "reminds me of Dracula when you're holding up garlic to scare off the deficit vampire."

"Come on, Mike. You've got to drive a stake right through its heart," he yelled.

The Dukakis campaign responded that Iowans will make their choice "based on the record and not the rhetoric," and

Simon spokesman Terry Michael said, "You have to wonder whether he's getting a little desperate."

A new poll of 12 Southern states holding their primaries "Super Tuesday" March 8 showed Jackson with 22 percent, Hart with 22 percent and Gore with 13 percent. On the Republican side, the Atlanta Journal-Constitution poll showed Bush way out in front with 52 percent followed by Dole with 17 percent and Pat Robertson with 7 percent.

Bush and Dole campaigned in Iowa Saturday and had no campaign appearances Sunday. They were scheduled to be in New Hampshire today with plans to return here later in the week. Dole is leading Bush in the Iowa polls but Bush is ahead in New Hampshire, which holds its primary Feb. 16.

London Subway System Is Under Scrutiny

Panel Will Probe Reasons For November's Deadly Fire

LONDON (UPI) — London's subway system, the world's first and reputedly the most extensive, comes under official scrutiny today for alleged safety and management failings that daily risk the lives of millions of passengers.

Over the next three months, a government-ordered panel will publicly probe the cause of a devastating fire at King's Cross station in central London that killed 31 people Nov. 18, 1987.

King's Cross is the busiest on the system with up to 250,000 passengers a day transferring between its six lines and the main London-Scotland rail terminus that sits above it.

It was the worst peacetime disaster to hit the system that was inaugurated in 1863 and grew to a sprawling 850 miles of track with 245 stations. The rail network, much of it above ground, reaches out into the remote suburbs of Greater London.

The panel also was to examine a series of charges brought by commuter groups, safety bodies and labor unions that claim management's obsession with cost-cutting has eroded safety margins and comfort in overcrowded trains and stations.

The groups have said heaps of rubbish left for days in uncollected piles in stations, staff lay-offs to cut the payroll and dangerous materials such as paint and cleaning fluids stored without precaution near public areas in many stations have made the system less safe as well as uncomfortable.

Experts told a preliminary hearing last Monday that the King's Cross fire was probably started by a lighted match that fell or was dropped deliberately on to an old wooden-treaded escalator in the Piccadilly line section. Smoking is banned throughout the system.

Roger Henderson, counsel for the investigation, said it appeared the match set fire to a mixture of grease and dust on the escalator and exploded into an overhead fireball known as a "flame-over," which melted metal and the bodies and clothing of people on the escalator and in the ticket hall overhead.

British newspapers reported that confused staff failed to turn on the water sprinkler that might have doused the fire before it got out of hand and said many survivors had to find their own way through a maze of smoke-filled tunnels because there was not enough staff to help them.

Train drivers, rather than stopping to rescue survivors, were ordered to speed through the station, pushing a wall of air ahead and probably feeding the flames, the reports said.

In addition, staff members said the only fire drill they had was a 30-minute session with fire extinguishers during their induction training.

The system, which carries some 770 million passengers a year — an average of 2.1 million a day — has been run by an independent board since 1985. The London Regional Transport was appointed by the government when it abolished the elected body that formerly ran London's public services.

Government opponents claim LRT is part of a grand design to make the subway profitable at any cost — it requires a $148 million government subsidy each year.

Weinberger Will Receive Knighthood

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth II approved a knighthood Monday for former U.S. Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger, the Foreign Office announced.

Weinberger is to be made an honorary Knight Grand Cross for his outstanding and invaluable contribution to defense cooperation between Britain and the United States, Foreign Office officials said.

"Mr. Weinberger has been a staunch friend to Britain and will be remembered most of all for his unfailing support and assistance during the 1982 Falklands War," a Foreign Office source said.

Britain defeated Argentina in the war over the sovereignty of the Falkland Islands, which are off the coast of Argentina in the south Atlantic but which are claimed by the British.

The announcement said Weinberger, 70, who stepped down as defense secretary in November, will visit Britain Feb. 22-23 to receive his award from the queen.

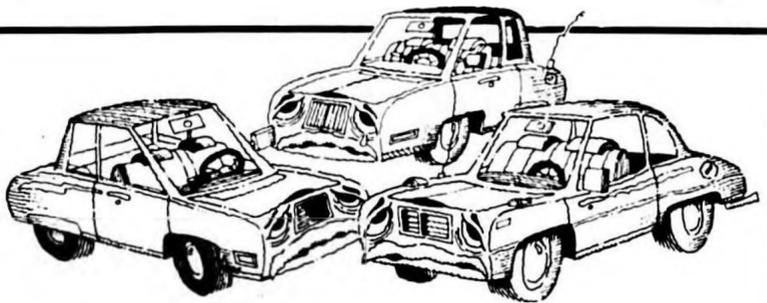

The award was recommended by Foreign Secretary Geoffrey Howe and it is also well known that Weinberger has had a cordial working relationship with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

The announcement said, "Today the queen is being graciously pleased to approve the recommendation by the secretary of state for foreign and commonwealth affairs that the honorable Caspar W. Weinberger be appointed an honorary Knight Grand Cross in the civil division of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire."

The award is abbreviated "GBE."

This particular type of knighthood does not call for Weinberger to be addressed as "Sir Caspar," but he can use the initials GBE after his name, if he chooses.

An official described the award as "special, but not infrequent."

Students Aren't Learning History

Horror stories abound about American students' ignorance of their country's past. For example, a significant number of high school students in Richmond, Va., do not know where the capital of the Confederacy was or where Robert E. Lee and Ulysses S. Grant fought their Civil War battles.

A recent National Endowment for the Humanities study discovered that 70 percent of high school students tested did not know the significance of the Magna Carta or the Reformation. Only 20 percent could identify James Joyce, Geoffrey Chaucer or Feodor Dostoyevsky. And many believed Karl Marx's dictum "From each according to his abilities, to each according to his needs" is to be found in the U.S. Constitution.

You get the picture. History is not taught in America's public schools. Instead, social studies is. Children in the first through third grade learn about their schools, families and communities; they do not study the past. Many Americans are scratching their heads and wondering why. The reason is to be found in debates about elementary education that took place more than 50 years ago.

Before the 1930s, most elementary school students studied that past by reading stories about the heroes and heroines of legend and history, from Moses and Aristotle to Plato, Peter the Great, Florence Nightingale, Abraham Lincoln, Teddy Roosevelt—the list is infinite, and infinitely appealing. The stories of these people's lives are not only full of romance and adventure, they prepared students for more serious studies of history and literature in their later years.

Progressive educators, led by philosopher John Dewey, attacked these traditional methods of teaching history, arguing that youngsters should study subjects more "relevant" to their lives. The progressives admitted that students were "happy and joyful" when reading about Romans or Knights of the Round Table, but they believed it was more important to have them study "expanding environments." The rest, as they say, is history.

The important thing about studying myths and heroes at an early age is that students acquire a cultural literacy that is almost completely lost to those who are exposed only to social studies. Thanks to the effect of the NEH study and the efforts of leaders like Education Secretary William Bennett, the pendulum is beginning to swing the other way.

If the trend toward teaching history continues to grow, statements like "The Gettysburg Address was the name of a romance novel" will be material for stand-up comics, not high school test answers.

Cocaine Is Out

A new survey has shown an encouraging drop in cocaine abuse among high school students.

Since 1980, when consumption of other drugs such as marijuana was in gradual decline after years of growth, cocaine has increasingly been the drug of choice among high schoolers. That pattern seems to have reversed. A recent survey of 17,000 seniors found that only 10.3 percent of them, down from 12.7 percent in 1986, admitted using cocaine at least once during the preceding year, a 20 percent decline.

Also encouraging was the news that the proportion of students describing themselves as "current users" dropped from 6.2 percent in 1986 to 4.3 percent last year. And indications of marijuana use continued to decline: Only 3.3 percent of high school seniors said they used marijuana daily, the lowest level in the history of the survey. In 1978, the marijuana figure peaked at 11 percent.

The survey has been conducted by the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research each year since 1975. Because of its safeguards ensuring confidentiality, it is considered an accurate reflection of high school drug use.

The class of 1987 was, apparently, the cleanest in years, and if the pattern continues, this year's seniors should be even less dependent on illicit chemicals. Any drug abuse is too much, but the casualty toll apparently is gradually going down. Winning slowly is better than not winning at all.

Ronald Reagan's Frivolous Utopianism

There has always been a Utopian streak in Ronald Reagan, which indeed appealed to something deep in the American temperament—the "city upon a hill," the "last best hope of freedom," and so forth. America was "standing tall," and it was "morning again" in America. Wonderful stuff.

But the suspicion is growing that the Reagan administration has cut its links with reality.

The Intermediate Nuclear Force treaty is nothing much in itself, eliminating some 100 percent of the nuclear warheads arrayed. But the atmospherics surrounding the Gorbachev visit were astounding.

Just what, specifically, gave this American president the privilege of unilaterally cancelling the Brezhnev Doctrine, which merely codified 70 years of Soviet policy, to the effect that what territory is within the Soviet camp is inviolable, and will be preserved by tanks if necessary, and what territory is outside the Soviet camp is up for grabs.

Yet specifically that is what this president airily did, putting unwanted words in Gorbachev's mouth. The Soviets themselves have not disavowed the Brezhnev Doctrine in Cuba or Nicaragua, and they crushed the Solidarity movement in Poland.

Remember Solidarity? It was the only genuinely revolutionary workers' movement since 1917. It was not directed against a capitalist state, but against a communist bureaucracy. The Soviets, of course, crushed it.

And what is the stance of the Reagan administration regarding the present troubles in Gaza? There, the usual unruly young are throwing bricks and fire-bombs at Israeli soldiers. The soldiers shoot back. The Reagan administration does not veto a U.N. resolution condemning Israelis.

More utopianism. Are the Israelis supposed to put up with an insurrectionary P.L.O. state within rocket shot of its population centers?

Forty years ago, in 1947, the United Nations voted to partition the British mandate of Palestine into Palestinian and Israeli states. If the Arab world had accepted that, there would today be two ongoing states, Israel and Palestine, and, very likely, and internationalized Old City of Jerusalem. Three of the world's great religions have overlapping claims to the Old City, and it is hard to believe the claims can be worked out.

Instead, the Arab states went to war with the new Jewish state, seized Gaza and the West Bank, hit the Israeli population centers with mortar fire—until 1967, when an Israeli tank blitzkrieg threw Jordan out of the West Bank and Egypt out of Gaza.

It is possible that a man like Anwar Sadat could rise above this situation, and set the terms of permanent peace with the reality of the state of Israel. But there are not Sadats in the Middle East at the present time, and indeed things are moving in the direction of the Ayatollah and Moslem fundamentalism. Sadat was murdered by fundamentalists.

So the Reagan administration does not veto a U.N. resolution condemning Israel riot control. Publicly, Secretary Schultz advises the Israelis to use rubber bullets, not real ones.

Why should any of the contending forces take the Reagan administration seriously?

DICK WEST

Media, Message, Politics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Man and boy, I've been hearing U.S. presidents deliver States of the Union messages to Congress since the dear, dead days of the Kennedy administration.

One thing I've noticed is that the Union is almost always in great shape and this is almost always due to policies, whether adopted or not, the president who is delivering the message had the wisdom to espouse.

I was pleased that Ronald Reagan did not exactly break the mold in his "final" State of the Union message.

The healthy condition of the Union he attributed to policies he had the wisdom to espouse as many as seven years ago.

I also was listening when Vice President George Bush had his celebrated confrontation with television anchorman Dan Rather on CBS. I wasn't going to mention this except to say I'd rather have been somewhere else. But if you insist.

I'll just assert that stepping on another person's lines isn't necessarily a sign of political courage. I've stepped on many a line in my time, virtually every time I've been on stage, and I remain one of America's outstanding examples of winwood.

I'm proud to say I have never been elected anything, even the proverbial dogcatcher. I never ran for public office either, but that is another story.

That is more than I can say about some ex-actors.

I was particularly interested in the reaction to the confrontation of a person who is not exactly a newsaholic nor much on televised politics. This person, who watches CBS news when she watches anything, said, "I always knew you had it in for Dan Rather."

Let me make this perfectly clear: Rather has both a bigger salary and audience than I do. If I "walked out" in the middle of writing a column, I would never be missed. At least, I hope not.

The main reason I switch news programs is not Ratherphobia but rather commercialphobia. I am likely to stay with the network that isn't running an ad at the time.

Not that I have anything against advertisements, particularly in newspapers. It's just that I think the networks tend to overdo it.

Toxic Waste? What Toxic Waste?

By Jack Anderson
And Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON — Does the Department of Interior's Bureau of Land Management have a Love Canal in its inventory of garbage dumps on public land? Agency officials apparently don't know and don't want to know.

BLM is custodian of more than 300 million acres of public land, mostly in the West. The agency leases some of its land to businesses and local governments for use as dump sites and mines.

A congressional subcommittee has found that the BLM doesn't plan to check its dumps for hazardous waste, hasn't asked for any money to clean them up and is more concerned with protecting itself from lawsuits than protecting the public from poisons.

The Environment, Energy and Natural Resources Subcommittee, chaired by Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., tried to unearth BLM's landfill problems. The investigation was prompted by a 1986 New Mexico incident in which 15 people sought medical care after their well water was poisoned by chemicals

CHUCK STONE

We Hear You, Iowa

Even as a small child, I was intrigued by Iowa. It's the only state shaped like a part of the human anatomy.

Check it out, Iowa is a representative head. Notice that protuberance on the eastern end of the state. Doesn't it resemble a pugged version of Barbara Streisand's nose? And isn't the top of the state an exact copy of a Carl Lewis flat-top?

Iowans couldn't care less. Going into the Iowa caucuses on Monday, the only physiognomies Iowans care about belong to 13 presidential candidates.

While Iowans are being swamped by media types and Hollywood hype, the other 49 states have been reduced to anonymity. They can only wait for Godot to tell them which two presidential faces Iowans will anoint.

It's incredible. The entire process of picking a president begins with about 1 percent of one state's total population—which, in turn, represents only 4 percent of the nation's total population—deciding who is likely to lead us into the promised land for the next four years.

But sometimes percentages mislead. This doggedly middle America state is still tuned smack dab into America's political frequency.

In the last seven presidential elections, Iowa voted for the winner six times, suffering a momentary lapse in 1960 by choosing Nixon over Kennedy.

In the 14 Democratic and Republican caucuses that preceded those elections, Iowa voters picked the final Democratic or Republican candidate 11 times! The other three times, the final candidates came in second in the caucuses. So Iowans are prophets with honor in their own land.

But in 1988, television commercials, show-and-tell television debates, polls that poll the polls and National Enquirer-like reporting have polluted reason. Iowans aren't immune.

Television debates (that's an oxymoron) cloud the sunshine of rational ideas. It gets worse. Fourteen national television debates already are scheduled for the remaining primaries. And that doesn't even include unscheduled network specials or those ubiquitous oppressive League of Women Voters forensic hustles.

After Feb. 8, Iowans can sigh: "Free at last."

But Iowa remains our crossroads and our paradox. It is many things — a stonier Grant Woods painting the 29th largest state in population, only 1.4 percent black but with blacker college football and basketball teams. And it has, as columnist Mary McGrory recently wrote, some of the friendliest and nicest people anywhere.

Can nice people be fair? They can if they distinguish between Jesse Jackson, who has campaigned with evangelical fervor, and Albert Gore, who, in effect, has told Iowans to kiss off.

That test will be an American test. To paraphrase that television commercial, when Iowa speaks, America listens. We hear you, Iowa.

Kidney Disease Finding

By Rob Stein
UPI Science Writer

BOSTON (UPI) — British and American scientists believe they might have determined why only some victims of juvenile-onset diabetes develop kidney disease.

Two new studies published recently in The New England Journal of Medicine produced evidence that juvenile-onset diabetes patients who develop kidney disease have an inherited susceptibility to high blood pressure.

"Previously, scientists have wondered why only some people with diabetes develop kidney disease," said Dr. James Warram of the Joslin Diabetes Center in Boston, who co-authored one of the studies.

"Chronically high blood sugar resulting from poorly controlled diabetes does not always result in the development of kidney disease. What this research suggests is that this second factor—an inherited susceptibility to hypertension and the peculiarity of kidney function it signals—is exaggerated by chronic high blood sugars and contributes to kidney injury and failure," he said.

The finding could lead to a way to prevent juvenile-onset diabetes patients from developing kidney disease, he said.

There are about 13,000 new cases of juvenile-onset diabetes diagnosed in people under age 20 each year in the United States. Also known as Type 1 or insulin-dependent diabetes, the disease is caused by a failure to produce enough insulin, causing the amount of sugar in the blood to rise dangerously high. Only one of three patients with Type 1 diabetes develops kidney disease.

One study, conducted by researchers at the Joslin Diabetes Center, Brigham and Women's Hospital and the National Institutes of Health, compared 33 Type 1 patients with kidney disease to 56 Type 1 patients without kidney disease.

The researchers found that having a parent with high blood pressure tripled the risk of kidney disease, and those with kidney disease scored significantly higher on a marker for inherited hypertension known as lithium-sodium countertransport velocity.

We asked the BLM for a copy of its reply to the report, issued in late November, and a rundown of its subsequent efforts to identify and clean up the sites. The reply is still in the works, a BLM official told us.

Earlier correspondence from the agency's director, Robert Burford, to the subcommittee shows that BLM doesn't want the responsibility of cleaning up the sites and is more interested in protecting the BLM than anything else. He wrote that the BLM would have to manage all the dumps on a daily basis to protect itself from lawsuits. That job should belong to the cities and businesses that lease the dumps, Burford said.

The financial burden of cleaning up the sites is tremendous. EPA told the subcommittee that landfill cleanup costs could be as high as $71 million for each contaminated dump.

While the squabbling continues, a chemical time bomb may be ticking in the western landscape. The report concludes that the failure by the BLM to act "reflects an inexcusable indifference to (the) potential dangers."

Greis, Villanova Rule Georgetown, 64-58

United Press International

In an era not long ago, Georgetown used a dominant defensive center to rule the Big East. Monday night, Villanova used the same formula to dump the 13th-ranked Hoyas.

Tom Greis, Villanova's 7-foot-2 sophomore, scored 21 points, blocked 9 shots and grabbed 5 rebounds to lead the Wildcats to a 64-58 Big East triumph over Georgetown, which won the conference tournament three times and made three trips to the NCAA title game with Patrick Ewing earlier this decade.

"I was very pleased with Tom Greis' effort," Villanova Coach Rollie Massimino said. "He makes the big plays and goes after it. He gets better each time out on the court."

Massimino has been critical of his center's defense this year, but Greis said it was simply a matter of seasoning.

"I've been concentrating on it in practice and it's something that's improved with experience," he said. "When you play against competition like we have in the Big East, you have to learn something about defense."

The smaller Hoyas could not contain Greis, who avoided falling into the foul trouble that has plagued him this season.

"The big boy was hurting us inside," Georgetown Coach John Thompson said. "We had to make too many adjustments."

Mark Plansky had 14 points for Villanova, 15-6 overall and 7-3 in the Big East, while Kenny Wilson and Gary Massey had 10 each.

Mark Tillmon led Georgetown, 14-5 and 4-4, with 24 points and Charlie Smith had 15.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 5 Duke bounced Clemson 101-83 and Wichita State downed No. 16 Bradley.

At Durham, N.C., Phil Henderson scored 18 points to help Duke improve to 14-2 overall and 4-1 in the Atlantic Coast Conference. The Blue Devils, who hit 10 of 11 3-point attempts, have beaten Clemson seven straight times. The Tigers, in their most lopsided conference loss of the year, dropped to 11-7 and 1-5. They have lost 38 of their 41 games at Duke.

At Wichita, Kan., Wayne Praylow scored 24 points and Sasha Radunovich and Lew Hill added 21 apiece as Wichita State took over first place in the Missouri Valley Conference. Steve Grayer added 14 points for the Shockers, who improved to 12-7 overall and 5-2 in the league. Hersey Hawkins, the nation's leading scorer, notched 37 points for Bradley, which had a six-game winning streak stopped and fell to 13-3 and 4-2.

In other games, it was: Fordham 83, Marquette 63; Massachusetts 60, St. Bonaventure 56; Miami 79, Marist 76 in overtime; Furman 90, Davidson 80; Louisville 107, Virginia Tech 99; Marshall 103, Western Carolina 74; Virginia 77, Jacksonville 52; Austin Peay 78, Youngstown State 68; Cincinnati 81, Northern Illinois 60; New Mexico 60, Colorado State 51; and Southern Cal 67 Washington 65.

BYE MOVES TO 2

NEW YORK (UPI) — Brigham Young earned its highest ranking ever in the United Press International weekly college basketball ratings, moving into second Monday behind No. 1 Arizona.

The Cougars, unranked in the preseason, had reached as high as No. 3 in December of 1965 before losing to LaSalle. That BYU team went on to win the 1966 National Invitation Tournament.

The balance of power in college basketball shifted west with Arizona, BYU and Nevada-Las Vegas holding down the top three spots. The Wildcats were ranked 10th in the preseason and UNLV No. 20.

Arizona, 20-1, coming off victories over Arizona State and Illinois, earned 31 first-place ballots and 540 points as 36 of the 42 coaches voted. BYU, 15-0 and the only undefeated major college team, made the biggest move of the week, jumping five spots from No. 7. The Cougars received four first-place votes and 435 points. Nevada-Las Vegas, with the remaining No. 1 ballot, earned 427 points.

Lady 'Noles Pound Phillips

Seminole High and Lyman's Lady Greyhounds tuned up for tonight's District 3 Tournament showdown by routing their opponents in Monday's opening-round play.

At Seminole High, Melissa Shuckman scored three goals and Jennifer Bengé added two in the Lady Tribe's 6-0 massacre of Orlando Dr. Phillips.

At Lyman High, Randi Huddleston scored three goals in a span of three minutes as the Lady Greyhounds crushed Leesburg 8-1.

Lyman will host Seminole High in second round action tonight at 7. In other second round games tonight, Lake Mary hosts Winter Park; Lake Brantley hosts DeLand and Lake Howell hosts Orlando Bishop Moore. All games are scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

"I was very pleased with the way we played tonight, but Lyman will be a different story," Seminole coach Suzy Reno said. "They have an outstanding team and we have to be at our best. We also have to get mentally prepared."

In Monday's game, Seminole, which improved to 12-13-1, took a lead it would never relinquish 11 minutes into the first half when Cindy Bengé drilled in a direct shot from 30 yards out.

Shuckman then scored her first goal two minutes later off an assist from Shannon Sundvall. Four minutes later, Jennifer Bengé scored on a breakaway for a 3-0 lead and Bengé scored again with 15 minutes left in the half to make it 4-0.

In the second half, Shuckman scored an unassisted goal, then completed her hat trick on an assist from Jennifer Bengé.

Seminole took 32 shots on goal compared to five for Dr. Phillips. Tribe goalkeeper Kim Walsh made five saves in recording the shutout while Christine Ballesterro had 12 saves for Dr.

LYMAN RIPS LEEBURG

Leesburg decided at the last minute to enter the District 3 Tournament and it only took five minutes for the Lady Yellow Jackets to exit the tourney.

Lyman's Huddleston scored three goals in the first five minutes of the game and the Lady Greyhounds never looked back. Lyman ran its record to 12-9-1 for the season.

After one minute and three seconds of scoreless soccer, Huddleston got loose on a breakaway and put in the game's first goal. Less than two minutes later, the senior stand-out got another breakaway and finished it off for a 2-0 lead. After another 1:47 ticked off the clock, Huddleston took off on another breakaway and of course knew what to do with it in the end as the Lady Greyhounds took a 3-0 lead.

Still with less than 10 minutes gone in the game, Bonni Steeves scored on an assist from Rebecca Brock for a 4-0 lead. Tracy Sher added two more goals late in the half while Tricia Brown scored for Leesburg to make the halftime score 6-1 in Lyman's favor.

Gibbs One Of Coaching Elite

SUPER BOWL

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Less than a day after the Washington Redskins won their second Super Bowl championship in his seven years as coach, Joe Gibbs dismissed attempts to place him among the NFL's all-time coaching elite.

"People say this is false humility, but this is how I feel," Gibbs said Monday after Washington crushed the Denver Broncos 42-10 in Super Bowl XXII Sunday. "I think the coaches who all the other coaches want to be like have been around a lot longer than I have. I've been coaching around for a long time are the ones who should be mentioned."

Gibbs has the best winning percentage of active coaches and his Redskins have the most victories (91) and the best winning rate (66.9 percent) in the 1980s.

One major publication used a mathematical formula that declared Gibbs the best coach in NFL history and former Raiders Coach John Madden rated Gibbs the finest active coach.

The Super Bowl itself did not do as well in the ratings as Gibbs.

Stretch Run Begins

United Press International

February marks the beginning of the stretch run in college basketball, and even the better teams are making changes in an effort to improve.

Kentucky made its move on the last day of January with two freshmen taking on greater roles. Lefton Ellis moved into the starting lineup and Eric Manual was the first Wildcat off the bench.

The changes appeared to help in Kentucky's 78-69 victory over Notre Dame. Ellis had 14 points, 6 rebounds and 5 steals. Manual had 8 points and 4 assists.

"I thought it was a positive thing," Kentucky Coach Eddie Sutton said of the changes. "At halftime, I told our team I liked the way they played. I liked their enthusiasm. I thought we had better chemistry than maybe we had had."

Sutton wanted to get more playing time for Ellis but the 6-11 freshman was held back by injury and illness. He missed four games for those reasons and another for a disciplinary reason.

"We had been debating when to insert him," said Sutton. "I thought he was ready. He had two great practices."

be enshrined.

Ham joins 1987 inductee Joe Greene as the first stars from Pittsburgh's Super Bowl seasons to be honored while Page and teammate Fran Tarkenton are the only players who spent a majority of their careers with Minnesota to make the Hall.

Biletnikoff, a native of Erie, Pa., who turns 45 on Feb. 23, played 14 seasons with Oakland (1965-78) after attending Florida State. He caught 589 passes for 8,974 yards and 76 touchdowns. The four-time Pro Bowler was the MVP of Super Bowl XI.

Ditka, 48, of Carnegie, Pa., played for Chicago (1961-66), Philadelphia (1967-68) and Dallas (1969-72) and was the first tight end to total a significant number of receptions. The University of Pittsburgh product shared 427 passes for 5,812 yards and 43 touchdowns. The five-time Pro Bowler caught a TD pass in the Cowboys' Super Bowl VI triumph.

Ham had 32 interceptions in 12 seasons with Pittsburgh (1971-82).

CANTON, Ohio (UPI) — Wide receiver Fred Biletnikoff, tight end Mike Ditka, linebacker Jack Ham and defensive tackle Alan Page compose the 1988 class of enshrinees into the Pro Football Hall of Fame. It was announced today.

The quartet will boost the number enshrined in the Hall to 144. Balloting was conducted by a 30-member Selection Committee, made up of representatives from the 28 NFL cities, an at-large member and an officer of the Pro Football Writers Association. The committee is required to elect a minimum of four candidates.

Finalists Bob Griese, Lou Rymkus and Art Shell failed to garner the necessary votes for enshrinement, but automatically become candidates for the 1989 class.

The 1988 induction ceremonies are slated for July 30 on the front steps of the Hall, prior to an exhibition game between Cincinnati and the Los Angeles Rams that begins the NFL preseason.

Ditka, now the head coach of the Chicago Bears, will be the first pass-catching tight end to

Stock Prices Open Lower

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened lower today in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 13.59 Monday, was down 3.15 to 1941.48 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 533-335 among the 1,288 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 11,058,000 shares.

Before the market opened, the government said its main gauge of future economic activity — the index of leading indicators — fell 0.2 percent in December for the third straight monthly decline.

The downturn followed revised declines of 1.2 percent in November, which reflected the plunge in stock prices, and 0.1 percent in October.

Stock prices closed mixed Monday as late profit taking robbed the market of an opportunity to extend gains won in the previous two sessions.

Dollar Mostly Lower As Traders Await Auction

By United Press International

The dollar was mostly lower in light trading on major world money markets today as currency traders stepped to the sidelines and awaited results from the planned U.S. Treasury's $27 billion auction.

In early New York trading, the dollar was mixed against key foreign currencies in light trading.

Currency traders in New York said continued enthusiasm about the Treasury's refunding auction was supporting the dollar.

The Treasury will begin the first part of its $27 billion quarterly auction refunding later today with the sale of $9.25 billion 3-year notes.

The refunding will continue Wednesday with the sale of $9 billion 10-year notes and Thursday with the sale of $8.75 billion 29 1/4-year bonds.

Traders said the currency market still is cautious about taking large positions before the Feb. 12 release of the U.S. trade statistics for December.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar fell slightly against the Japanese yen, closing at 128.90 yen, down 0.10 from Monday's finish of 129.00 yen.

Leading Economic Indicators Fall

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The composite index of leading indicators, which foreshadows economic growth, fell 0.2 percent in December for the third straight monthly decline, the Commerce Department said Tuesday.

The downturn in December followed revised declines of 1.2 percent in November, which reflected the plunge in stock prices, and 0.1 percent in October. Originally, the department's Bureau of Economic Analysis reported a 1.7 percent decline in November and a 0.2 percent increase October.

Since World War II there have been 12 instances in which the composite index has declined three consecutive months. Eight of those instances have been followed by recession.

In this most recent case, however, two of the monthly declines, in October and December, have been small and are subject to revision as economic data reach government analysts.

Five of the nine seasonally adjusted indicators available in December contributed to the decline.

Sales Tax Ties For No. 1 In Nation

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Florida now has one of the highest sales taxes in the country, but, as Gov. Bob Martinez emphasizes, it is one of the few heavily-populated states without a personal income tax.

Florida's state sales tax rose to 6 percent Monday. The increase from 5 percent was adopted in December as a substitute for Florida's abortive tax on professional and consumer services, which drew widespread opposition from business and consumer groups.

It was the second substantial sales tax increase in five years as Florida continues to struggle to provide essential services for its rapidly growing population.

Five other states — Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Pennsylvania and New Hampshire — levy a 6 percent sales tax. Only Washington state, at 6.5 percent, and Connecticut, at 7.5 percent, have higher sales taxes.

Seven small counties in north and central Florida have adopted 1 percent local sales taxes, boosting sales taxes paid within their borders to 7 percent.

State officials say the tax raises the burden on an average family of four by $187 per year, nearly $75 more than the same family would have paid under the services tax. Groceries, medicine and medical care and a few other "necessities" remain exempt.

Martinez, a Republican whose popularity plunged when he pushed the services tax through the Legislature, said he did not expect voter backlash from the higher sales tax. Polls show taxpayers prefer a higher sales tax than a tax on services.

When asked about Florida having one of the highest sales taxes in the country, he replied, "at least we don't have a personal income tax."

The increase ends, however, Florida's reputation as a low-tax state, according to Florida Tax-Watch, a business-funded research group that monitors tax and budget policy.

Until the mid-1980s, Florida consistently ranked in the mid-40s among the 50 states in terms of tax levels, a fact that did much to lure new residents to Florida. In 1986, Florida's ranking jumped to 36, and that was before last year's enactment of the services tax.

"The days of being a low tax state are probably over," said Kurt Wenner, a senior analyst with TaxWatch.

The services tax would have raised more than $1.2 billion toward an estimated $5.3 billion.

Maynard's Condition Upgraded

The condition of the Orlando man who attempted to kill himself by shoving a ballpoint pen into his heart while a prisoner at the Seminole County jail has been upgraded from critical to good today.

Ger Edward Maynard, 72, was removed from the Coronary Intensive Care Unit of Florida Hospital/Orlando Monday, and transferred to a regular room, according to hospital spokeswoman Maureen Kersmarkie. She said Maynard has been given a 24-hour guard while he's at the hospital.

Maynard, who's been charged with the shooting death of Orlando attorney Murray Lee Gay Jr., was being held without bond in a isolation cell at the Seminole County jail when the suicide attempt occurred early Saturday morning.

Doctors at FHA said Maynard somehow managed to stick the pen about 3.5 inches into his heart. It's believed Maynard couldn't have forced the pen into his heart by hand, but somehow held the instrument up to his chest and then ran into a wall or fell on the floor in order to force the pen into the organ.

Heart surgeon Meredith Scott, who performed the two hours of surgery needed to remove the pen, said Maynard missed killing himself by a half-centimeter. She said that's how far the pen came from hitting vital arteries and valves in the heart.

Kersmarkie said the reason for the dramatic improvement in Maynard's condition is that anytime a patient is in the Coronary ICU, they're automatically listed in critical condition. "When he (Maynard) was transferred out of the ICU we upgraded his condition immediately," she said.

If Maynard's condition continues to improve at its present rate, Kersmarkie said he should be able to leave the hospital in about 10 days. "I know he'll have to be pretty strong before he's allowed to go back to jail," she said.

Maynard was scheduled to be arraigned Monday but the court date has been postponed indefinitely.

"differently. I'm a realist. When I've got it I got it."

Sawyer, who said he voted against the lottery in November 1986 when it won overwhelming approval, said he would cast his ballot the same way and will never buy a lottery ticket.

Mora said late Monday he had yet to discuss his windfall with his 6-year-old child, Tiffany, but she has wanted a talking Mickey Mouse doll.

"She'll get her Mickey Mouse talking doll," said Mora, who is divorced.

He said he learned about the drawing after he walked in his apartment just after 8 p.m. after work and the health club, and was the object of "a media blitz."

"The phone was ringing off the wall," he said. "I'm a little numb by it all."

Mora said the winnings may bring him more security — "I'm very poor," he joked — but he is content with his current lifestyle.

"I just want things to be as they are."

The only people he had spoken with were his mother and brother. "And neither of them have brought up the fact that I owe them money from past debts."

The Public Defender's office was assigned to the case, but was relieved on July 22, according to Russo. He said a private attorney then took the case.

"We may be asked to take over the case again after his assets are reassessed," Russo said.

In a related situation in Seminole County, Russo said the assets of accused killer Roger E. Maynard are being looked into by his office. The Seminole County Public Defender's office was assigned to Maynard's case when he was charged with killing Orlando attorney Murray Lee Gay Jr. at a doctor's office in Longwood.

"Maynard's financial status is being investigated at this time," Russo said. He added that his office will take appropriate action if Maynard was found not eligible for a public defender.

"We may ask to be removed from the case if we find he can afford a lawyer," Russo said.

Maynard allegedly shot the lawyer at the conclusion of a conference in the office of Dr. Thomas Brodrick at 521 W. State Road 434.

The meeting was held to discuss Brodrick's opinion of medical evidence in a professional malpractice case Maynard wanted to bring against another doctor. Gay was the sixth lawyer to handle Maynard's suit.

Maynard attempted suicide Saturday, jabbing a pen into his chest. He is currently at Florida Hospital—Orlando in critical but stable condition.

A person with no dependents charged with a crime is eligible for a public defender if he makes less than $100 a week, according to Florida Statutes. A person charged with a crime, who has two dependents, can make $120 dollars a week and still be eligible for public defense, Russo said. $10 a week is allowed per dependent after the first two.

Under that formula an accused person, who has four dependents, could make $140 a week and still have a public defender.

"The statutes are not always followed to the letter in regard to the amount of money people that get a public defender can earn," Russo said. Even if the amount a person earns exceeds the statutes a person may get a public defender if paying for a lawyer would cause a "substantial hardship" to that person or their family, according to Russo.

centers would be one of the toughest issues. That idea has drawn sharp criticism from people who say it would give doctors license to perform sloppy medicine while not helping consumers at all.

"The doctors are saying, 'Give us this standard here (in trauma centers) so in a couple years we can apply it across the board,'" said Rep. Tom Gustafson, D-Fort Lauderdale, scheduled to become Speaker next year.

Mills is also concerned about encouraging doctors, hospitals and patients to settle differences through arbitration rather than the courts. The Bell bill would set non-economic damage award limits of $100,000 and $250,000 on litigants who refused to accept arbitration.

Some critics — notably the Academy of Florida Trial Lawyers — charge that plan would unconstitutionally limit access to the courts. Legislators who disagree have considered proposing a constitutional amendment that would give them the legal right to set caps, and even supporters of the arbitration system have fought over how high to set the caps.

Of less concern, Mills said, is a section that would provide lifelong care for babies born with severe brain damage when it was clearly not the fault of the obstetric team.

About 60 such babies are born each year, and caring for them would cost $45 million annually. Mills said there was general consensus the idea was a good one, but legislators might have to restrict the number of babies in the program to keep costs down.

Legislators seem to be in near accord over the rest of the bill, including sections to subsidize doctors who spend more than 15 percent insurance and to strengthen the state's ability to discipline doctors guilty of repeated malpractice.

Squalling Babies Unwelcome In Woman's Dining Presence

DEAR ABBY: "Roger's Mom" wrote of her experience in a restaurant with Roger, her 6-month-old colicky boy who became fussy and cried a lot. The waitress politely informed "Mom" that some customers were leaving because her baby was disturbing them.

Dear Abby

whereupon Mom and her husband canceled their dinner order and left with the crying baby. She asked if you thought the waitress could have approached the situation in a different way.

You rightfully replied, "How else could the situation be approached? I think the waitress acted appropriately."

Hooray for you, Abby. Last week, my husband and I hired a baby sitter so we could dine out on our 10th anniversary. Our children are 1, 5 and 8. Seated at the table next to us was a couple with a baby who appeared to be about 10 months old. The baby first whimpered, then cried, and finally screamed during most of the meal. The mother tried unsuccessfully to quiet the child—meanwhile the screaming continued. The place was filled, or we would have asked for another table. Needless to say, it ruined our evening.

How I wish the waitress would have approached those people and suggested that they take the crying child out until it settled down. Everyone around us was upset. One couple left without finishing their meal.

I think it is the height of insensitivity for parents to allow a child to carry on that way in a public dining room.

DISGUSTED IN DENVER

DEAR DISGUSTED: I am pleased to know that someone agreed with me. Read on for someone who did not.

DEAR ABBY: I am not quibbling about your reply to "Roger's Mom," whose party left a restaurant when the waitress told them the people were leaving because Roger's crying was disturbing them. However, it did make me think about the increasing intolerance our society seems to have for its youngest members.

I'll never forget when my son was 4 months old, and having no one to leave him with, I took him with me to a lecture given by poet and writer Maya Angelou. He began to fuss in the middle of her lecture—then the people around me started giving me dirty looks. I was getting up to walk out with him when Ms. Angelou noticed. She interrupted her talk to say, "Let the child speak. That noise is disturbing some of you is music to me—I'm sorry that more children aren't here today. Children are our future. Don't teach them they're not wanted. Don't teach them to be silent. Let the child speak!"

I sat down and people turned their attention back to Maya Angelou, who then told us that due to a traumatic experience she had had in her own childhood, she was unable to speak for several years.

Having spent much time in West Africa and South America, I have come to think that our society is the only one in which the "right" to undisturbed pleasure overrides the concern for its children—the future of our society. That's why I can't argue with your reply that the waitress's action was appropriate. But it's a sad and shameful situation.

CYNTHIA WARD, STANFORD, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: I went with a guy for two years. We broke up last October. Last week I found out that he got married. Even though we have not spoken since our breakup, I still care for him, and I want to wish him happiness.

Would it be proper to send him and his wife a wedding card? How about a gift? I want to appear as sincere as possible. I do not know his address, but I could send it to his parents' home and they could forward it to him.

Maybe I shouldn't do anything at all. However, I feel a bit guilty in knowing that he is married and not acknowledging the fact.

HIS EX-LOVE

DEAR EX: If I still "cared" for an "ex-love," I would not send him a card or gift unless he and his wife had sent me a wedding announcement, Christmas card or some kind of friendly greeting that bore their address.

'Miss Seminole High' Contest Slated Thursday

Gail Stewart, left, coordinator of the "Miss Seminole High School" contest, instructs the contestants on rules and dress code for the event to be held Thursday, at 7:30 p.m., in the school auditorium. The contest is open to the public and there will be a $2 charge at the door. Proceeds will go to Project Graduation and the prom committee.

Centennial Tour Of Homes Set

A rare glimpse of old Florida will be offered during the Centennial Tour of Homes in Lake Helen and Cassadaga Feb. 20.

Six historic homes, the city's two oldest churches and an old schoolhouse will be featured in the tour which is sponsored by The Friends of Hopkins Library as a benefit for the new library. The tour commemorates Lake Helen's 100th year.

Tickets are $10. Tour hours will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Light refreshments will be served at "Edgewood," a splendid example of Victorian architecture and a Lake Helen landmark that is the home of Lake Helen's mayor, John Smart, 214 S. Euclid Ave. Refreshments will offer a sampling of foods created from recipes in "New and Nearly Forgotten Recipes," published by The Friends.

"We are very fortunate that the owners of these wonderful old homes have generously opened their doors to us," Paul McKinney, tour chairman, pointed out. "Visiting these treasures makes it easy to recapture the feel of the early years of this area," she added.

Four of the homes and both of the churches, all either a century old or nearly so, are located on Euclid Avenue, a street lined with remarkable Victorian homes.

"In Cassadega, the elegant home of Lois and Ralph Boland promises to be a feast of gracious Southern living," McKinney said. She notes that two of the tour homes and the churches were designed by one architect, J.P. Mace who was destined to become Lake Helen's first mayor.

Tour headquarters will be at Hopkins Hall, circa 1897, also located on Euclid Avenue one block south of county road 4139. Tickets and tour information will be available at that location. In addition tickets will be available at each tour home on Feb. 20.

U.S. Lawyers Invade Japan

By Janice Fuhrman

TOKYO (UPI) — When Japan opened its doors to foreign lawyers last year, some commentators gleefully joked that unleashing American lawyers on the Japanese was ideal revenge for the trade deficit.

But far from punishing the Japanese, the arrival of about 30 American lawyers from the largest and most prestigious U.S. law firms, along with the convergence of foreign banks and financial managers on Tokyo, probably means more business for Japan.

Several American attorneys who have opened Tokyo offices since the government first granted entry to foreign lawyers in April said the increased access Japanese companies now have to the American market and to U.S. laws may result in more merchandise trade for Japan and more hefty investment in the United States.

On the other hand, lawyers may be able to help bring American companies to Japan by lifting the curtain on the enigma of the Japanese market.

"Lawyers may not be good for much, but we are interpreters and facilitators — and in that role we can be useful at explaining to Americans what doing business in Japan is like," said S. Linn Williams of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher, a Los Angeles law firm.

American lawyers in Tokyo, who count Japanese companies such as Sony, Fujitsu, Hitachi, Nissan and Toyota among their clients as well as smaller banks and trading companies, assist them in making extensive U.S. real estate investments.

Japanese investors have gobbled up prime beachfront hotels in Hawaii and large office buildings in downtown sections of New York and Los Angeles in the last few years.

Known for their conservatism, Japanese institutional investors favor real estate as their top investment vehicle in the United States. Other favored investments included government and corporate bonds, stocks and mortgage-backed securities.

According to a recent survey of 45 leading Japanese institutional investors conducted by Louis Harris and Associates for realty giant Cushman & Wakefield Inc., 58 percent said U.S. real estate was "very important" to their investment portfolios.

"Opportunities for real estate investment in Japan are limited, and property values there are among the world's largest," said Arthur Mirante, president and chief executive officer of Cushman & Wakefield.

Fifty-seven percent of the Japanese decision makers said they expect to increase their U.S. real estate holdings within the next year.

Most Japanese institutional investors are primarily interested in office buildings, with land zoned for commercial development and hotels also ranking among popular acquisitions.

More than two-thirds of those surveyed said they purchased land in Los Angeles, New York, Washington, Chicago, and San Francisco, however, are close rivals for Japanese investment.

American lawyers also represent Japanese companies in mergers and acquisitions of American companies, joint ventures, and advise Japanese companies on how to avoid violations of U.S. trade laws.

The law firms say they are not concerned with making big profits from their Japan offices at this point. In many cases Tokyo is part of a greater "Pacific Rim" practice including offices in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Hong Kong and New York.

Since land, labor and consumer goods are extremely expensive in Tokyo, it can cost an American firm some $2 million to establish even a two-person law office.

"Tokyo is one of the world's three major financial centers," said Geoffrey Matsunaga, in Tokyo to set up an office for Sidley & Austin, a major Chicago law firm.

"Any law firm with an international financial practice that wants to be taken seriously feels it has to be in Tokyo, even if it takes a long time to make any money out here.

"Most of the firms here are ones with international financial practices, so they are looking for their business from financial concerns, rather than export companies," he said. "They're looking to make financial transactions the mainstay of their practices here."

Tokyo has the most heavily capitalized stock market in the world in dollar terms. The Osaka Stock Exchange ranks third behind New York.

The Japanese client is a different animal from those in the United States, many American lawyers contend.

"Japan is a society that values personal services tremendously," said Greyson Bryan, a former Harvard University law professor with the Los Angeles law firm of O'Melveny & Myers. "They place a high premium on relationships and the personal services aspects of lawyering."

Bryan said he finds potential Japanese clients "very studious and very demanding. They like to test you, and they ask incredibly detailed questions," he said.

Bryan, who spends most of his time counseling Japanese exporters on trade, said Japanese businessmen study a problem more thoroughly than their American counterparts.

In Bryan's decade of experience serving Japanese clients in the trade field from the United States, he has seen their concern over potential violations of U.S. trade laws rise considerably.

"Even in the last two years, the level of concern has grown dramatically — in direct proportion I would say to the level of concern of American government officials and industries about Japanese imports," he said.

Bryan speaks fluent Japanese, but most of his colleagues speak only enough Japanese to order in restaurants and instruct taxi drivers. Few use the language in their work.

"The first thing the Japanese clients are looking for is legal talent, and the language comes second," said Carl Anduri, Jr., a lawyer with the San Francisco firm of Morrison & Foerster.

"Japan has done very well in developing a group of business executives who are very good English speakers," he said.

Fantasy Football, Will It Score?

By Marilyn Jones

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Super Bowl is over and although most fans have benched their thoughts of the National Football League, two college students already are preparing their second national magazine for fantasy football enthusiasts.

Bruce Taylor said he never cared about the Seattle Seahawks or any other NFL football team until he played fantasy football — a statistical game using NFL players.

That was two years ago, and now Taylor, 23, a University of Washington journalism student, is co-producer of fantasy Football, the first magazine to offer NFL player statistics and advice on who's who for the upcoming fantasy football season.

Ian Allan, 23, is the second half to the magazine's success because his life savings of $8,000 went into producing the 1987 issue that emerged from the sidelines less than a year ago.

For those who are new to fantasy football, an introduction on the magazine's inside cover assists the reader in getting started.

Both Taylor and Allan agree the focus of fantasy football is not who the best NFL teams or players are, but which NFL players score the most points — that's how it differs from real-life football.

The game involves organizing four to sixteen teams — eight or twelve is the ideal — under the control of game players who take the titles of "coach" or "owner," Allan said.

Then, each week the game players are responsible for submitting to a "league commissioner" their seven-man lineup including one quarterback, two running backs, two receivers, and a kicker. The "commissioner's" job is to settle disputes and keep track of rosters.

In June 1987, 20,000 copies of the magazine were printed, and approximately 18,000 copies — with a price of $2.95 each — were accepted nationwide by approximately 25 distributors. Now the two entrepreneurs are back to prepare a 1988 edition, despite their failure to break even with their first edition. Both of them blame the NFL strike for hurting magazine sales.

"The goal for the second edition is that everything be twice as good. We were rushed last year, but still the writing was good and the layout was not bad," Allan said.

In the second edition, they plan to bring in more money by allocating space for advertisers, another change from the first edition.

Taylor and Allan discovered fantasy football at the same time when they were journalism intern-reporters at the state capitol in Olympia. Six months later, they had organized a fantasy football league at the university's student newspaper and by the end of the season, they were contemplating a magazine.

"Our experience in journalism enabled us to ask the right questions to the right people, except most people told us the magazine was a bad idea. But we didn't listen," Taylor said.

"I told Ian someone could make a lot of money with this sort of magazine. I will figure we could live well on two magazines," Taylor said recently, referring to his dream of producing another magazine for fantasy baseball.

Their work began in February 1987 when they sent letters to each NFL team, requesting player statistics and pictures. The y e c h o s e quarterback Dan Marino of the Miami Dolphins for the magazine's cover.

As past editor of the university's student newspaper, Taylor said his knowledge of layout and printing helped them produce the magazine.

Most of the writing was done by Allan, the current sports editor of the university's newspaper, while Taylor handled most of the editing, layout, and publishing details.

Ask Orthopedic Surgeon About Artificial Knee

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have to have a knee replaced. The doctor wants to put in an aluminum knee, which he says will last three to five years. Are there stainless-steel or plastic knees that might last longer?

DEAR READER: This is a technical question best asked of your orthopedic surgeon. Although prostheses are made of other substances, aluminum may be the best in your case, because it is light and strong.

of the bladder. Treatment would have to be directed to the cause, rather than to the ulcer itself.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 77 and in good health. For more than 40 years, I've had a sore in my right nostril that doesn't heal. It forms a scab that plugs up the nostrils. When I remove it, the bleeding starts all over again. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER: Have it removed surgically. The bleeding area is unlikely to be a skin

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am a man, 70, with a history of atherosclerosis and emphysema. I have taken or am now taking Loggessor, Calan, Dyazide, Theodor, Proventil Inhaler and Aldoril. I've also received a one-week treatment of Deltasone. I have a steadily worsening condition of gynecomastia: enlarged and painful breasts. I have nothing against bosoms per se; I just don't want one for myself.

DEAR READER: Of the medicines you are taking, Calan and Aldoril are the most likely to cause breast swelling (gynecomastia). Ordinarily, the slight tenderness and enlargement are not a problem, but if your breasts really bother you, ask your doctor to consider changing your medicines. Adequate substitutes for Calan and Aldoril are available.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What are ulcers of the bladder and what's the cure?

DEAR READER: Ulcers are sores. They result when the covering of a tissue is abraded, irritated or infected.

For example, a decubitus ulcer is a skin sore that forms on debilitated patients who are bedridden. Peptic ulcer is a sore in the lining of the upper intestinal tract. Various cancers can ulcerate when they outgrow their blood supply.

I am not sure what you mean by ulcers of the bladder. Since the bladder is lined by skin-like cells, irritation of one kind or another could produce areas that become denuded and ulcerate. Infection, mechanical pressure (such as produced by catheters) and growths could cause ulcers

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

When the heart combination in today's deal stands alone, the right play is easy: Lead up to the queen and hope that the king is in the West hand. But as always, the complete deal must be considered. Here North invited slam and South declined. Since West knows there are few high cards available to the defense, he would quickly grab the king of hearts. Let's see how this thinking helped South play the heart suit.

Declarer won the first trick with his eight of clubs. Next came a low heart. When West followed low, the seven was played from dummy, forcing East's 10-spot. East returned the nine of diamonds, ducked to the queen in dummy. Now came the crucial play — the queen of hearts from the North hand. If East covered, South would take the ace as the jack fell from West. If East failed to cover, declarer would play low and the jack would still fall. The A-9 of hearts would then be over the K-6, and declarer would be able to take another successful finesse to pick up the suit.

How could declarer play this way? The reasoning was sound. If West held the heart king, he would likely take it. Because West had led from length in clubs, there was a good chance he would be short in hearts, perhaps starting out with either J-x or 10-x. If West held either of these combinations, then leading to dummy and ducking and then later leading dummy's queen would limit the defenders to only one trick. The play is based on the assumption that West would take the heart king, if he held it, on the first play of the suit.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
FEBRUARY 3, 1988

You will have some exciting opportunities in the year ahead that will take you into areas you've never explored. Each one will give you a new window on life.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Partnership arrangements you enter into today should be lasting and bountiful, especially if there is an Aries or Sagittarius involved. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Matchmaker set can help you understand what it might take to restore the relationship. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be especially attentive today to people whose fields of endeavor are similar to yours. They could bring new opportunities for you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) a

Don't ignore your social obligations today, even if they are a bit demanding and you have to attend more than one event. Each gathering could be fortuitous.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If conditions lend themselves to closing an important matter today, jump on it. Lady Luck will be waiting for you at the finish line.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Encouraging news will be coming your way at this time from two different sources. It looks like you might hear some bits and pieces today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your possibilities for personal achievement look very promising today. Focus on objectives that are meaningful to you where your career and reputation are concerned.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today you could be the person who ends up on the winning side of the ledger in situations that have both elements of chance and competition.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be patient because significant breaks that aren't completely visible yet will be coming your way. Matters will eventually evolve in ways that meet your expectations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You are better equipped at this time to handle major ventures than you are to deal with smaller ones. Shelve unimportant little things until later.

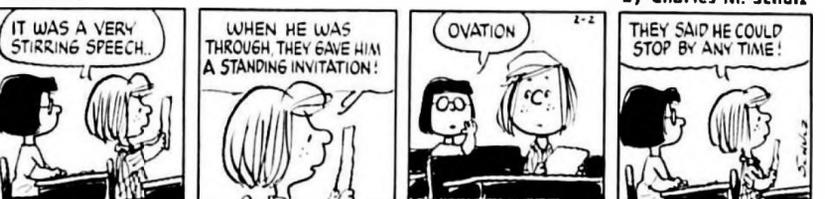

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You should be very lucky today in any dealings you have pertaining to your finances or career. Think positive, and conduct your affairs with victory in mind.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Situations that you personally direct today should work out fortunately for you as well as for other parties involved. Your luck has a broad reach now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) People in general are likely to treat you in a more generous fashion than usual today. Reap your harvest while the getting is good.
