W. Haynes Sees Sister For First Time In 50 Years
"You'd think a guy would visit his little sister often than once in fifty years, but this guy just didn't," which I regret." So said Walter Haynes Sr. who has just returned from a short trip around the circuit in the northern states. First he visited Dr. Walter Haynes Jr. and his wife Dr. Ruth Haynes and new baby daughter in Columbus, O. Incidentally he says that the doctors Haynes, who are well known in Sanford, are doing nicely in Columbus and will be in Sanford for a short visit late this month. His next stop was in Galesburg, Ill. where he visited his grandfather's old home, one of the first houses built in Central Illinois. This old house is a landmark and is still standing and in good condition. The house is of brick and the bricks were made by the grandfather. The house was also built by him in the then wilderness. Next stop was at Wichita, Kan. where he visited his brother whom he had not seen for 32 years. While there his younger sister Dorothy Gould flew in from Hollywood, Calif. This sister he had not seen for exactly 50 years and needless to say they had a wonderful reunion. They even visited the old home place near Wichita where they were all children together. Haynes stated that he visited the Wichita Eagle offices where he worked 40 years ago, before he left for Sanford to go into business with the late Bob Holly in the operation of The Sanford Herald. Of all the over 400 employees now working on that paper not a single person was found who was with the paper when he left, except the publisher. Also he noted that practically every business house in the city were those established since he was there. "Yes, I had a most wonderful vacation and trip" said he "but after all I was glad to be back in Sanford where I can see a few familiar faces." Haynes stated that his only regret was that his wife was unable to make the trip with him.

Kiwanis Club Student Exchange Program Important To Sanford

The arrival of a 16-year-old German girl in Sanford as an exchange student sparks a new program for this area and for Florida.

Coming here sponsored by the Sanford Kiwanis Club gives boys and girls at Seminole High School, and throughout the area, an opportunity to learn how other boys and girls live and learn.

This is a real move toward establishing peace between nations and continuing a happy and promising future for both the United States of America and the country from which the exchange student comes.

Brigitte Geisler, sparkling with warmth and friendliness, displays well her knowledge of English and the faithful studying of our language. Her eagerness to study and learn among American students was demonstrated when she registered for the 1958-59 session at Seminole High School.

"I am so happy to be here," she tells everyone, "and anxious to begin my studies."

The Sanford Kiwanis Club has done a remarkable job in sponsoring the exchange student, one that should be continued as an annual program. For it is through just such programs that we learn to know our distant neighbors so well. And through them is carried back a true story of the American Way of Life—as distorted as it passes through many hands and machines to finally reach a way to other countries.

Miss Geisler was just one of 600 exchange students to reach the United States last week-end and one of just two to come to the State of Florida.

Sanford, Seminole County, and Florida will receive many thousands of words of publicity through those students as they send back to their homeland the day-by-day experiences to families waiting to hear from them.

And America's peace program will receive a shot-in-the-arm as our friends across the sea learn just exactly how we live.

Hundreds of folks in Sanford and Seminole County will get to know Brigitte Geisler as a lovely, sensible, loyal, and deserving girl and through her will come the story, too, of desires and ambitions, the hopes and prayers of those people whom she represents.

The Sanford Kiwanis Club should be commended for the program it has adopted—the Boys and Girls Committee of that club commended for choosing the exchange student program—and Dr. John Wilson and his family for having Miss Geisler stay with them during her visit to America.

This program of exchanging students should be one of permanent support by local citizens and civic groups.

Of course, important now, is a hearty welcome to Miss Brigitte Geisler on her arrival in Sanford.

Look Up On Aviation Day, 1958

It seems almost unbelievable, in this age of jets, that less than two decades ago the president of the United States felt it necessary to remind the public of the importance of aviation. Yet that is what happened. In 1939 Franklin D. Roosevelt proclaimed August 19 National Aviation Day.

Today the greatest attention getter in the jet under full power. But jets were hardly dreamed of in 1939—so has aviation mushroomed in that short time. In our day we scarcely need a reminder of aviation's importance, yet it is well to think of its importance in our daily lives.

Aviation came into its own with the Second World War. During that fearful period, aircraft and the industry that gives them birth grew to be a major factor in the nation's military and economic life. Transatlantic flights became commonplace, many thousands of men and a vast tonnage of goods were transported by air. Planes were used, too, to deliver such destruction as man had not known before. Since the war, both military and civilian aviation have made tremendous strides.

Aviation's brief, skyrocketing development is a thing to ponder on Aviation Day, 1958. And we should devote thought, also, to the future. There is little doubt that aviation will occupy a more and more important role in the affairs—in peaceful affairs primarily, let us hope—of the American people.

Sanford and Seminole County—even Central Florida as a whole—are particularly touched with the importance of aviation, militarily and economically. With jet bases around us we learn to know the jet power and jet plane a little closer—its importance as a friend for protection.

With so many of those whose lives are devoted to aviation—in the jet age, of course—living among us as citizens of our community and as friendly neighbors, we have learned of the economic importance of aviation.

So, it behooves us to pay special attention to Aviation Day as it arrives this month.

A pharmacists' group reports that the old professional drug store is making a comeback. We hope there'll still be a place where a fellow can indulge in a banana split and then buy reducing pills at the next counter to counteract its effects.

People Must Realize War World Suicide Declares Philosopher

By KINGSBURY SMITH

United Press International
MINNAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI)—Failure of Russia and the West to agree on a summit meeting coupled with the Havana threat to survival of the human race makes it imperative today to educate mankind to renounce war as world suicide.

The belief was expressed by Lord Bertrand Russell, world-famed philosopher, in an exclusive interview in his hillside Welsh home overlooking the Irish sea.

"The people of the world must be made to realize," he said, "that a nuclear world war will mean an end to the human race. That must be drummed into their heads."

"The optimists say that if a major war breaks out in the near future, a few people may survive in Patagonia. Perhaps, but the long-range radioactive effects of a nuclear conflict would probably make the world uninhabitable for even the few who might survive in Patagonia. It is virtually certain that with the way new weapons are being developed, war within a few years from now would mean the end of mankind."

Dangerously Misleading
The British nobleman, who was sentenced to six months' imprisonment in World War I for his pacifist views, said it was dangerously misleading for Soviet and western leaders to give people the impression their respective sides would survive an atomic war.

"The Russian and Chinese leaders talk about the communist system surviving a nuclear war, and I noted that Mr. Dulles recently said the West would probably win a 'hot' war, though it seems to be losing the cold one. Both sides are misleading the people with such talk."

Lord Russell warned it would be a grave mistake to think that any major war among the great powers could be confined to conventional weapons, even if the production and use of nuclear ones had been previously prohibited and stopped by international agreement.

"It should be made clear to the people," he added, "that no matter what international agreements might be signed to abolish nuclear weapons, a major war among the great powers would develop into a nuclear conflict. The moment one side was threatened with defeat, it would start producing nuclear weapons in the hope of saving itself."

Must Renounce War
"That is one of the reasons why mankind must renounce war just as the atom individual in a civilized state has renounced private murder."

The noted "free-thinker," who has been a controversial figure for more than half a century, said he doubted that the present Soviet leadership would deliberately precipitate a nuclear conflict with the West, but he recognized the danger that either side might blunder into a world war by miscalculation.

"While the balance of military power remains what it is, and there are no new political circumstances, I doubt that the Soviet Union will inaugurate a nuclear war with the West," he said.

"I am not, however, sure that there are no circumstances in which the United States would not do so. If the Soviet Union precipitated an ordinary, or conventional, war somewhere and American forces became involved, they might resort to the use of nuclear weapons if they were in danger of being defeated."

Organize Against War
Asked what the common people could do to persuade the big powers to conclude and implement an effective international agreement to outlaw and control nuclear weapons, Lord Russell replied:

"I receive many letters from people in all parts of the world asking me what they, as individuals, can do to help prevent war. I have a stock answer for British correspondents. I tell them to write their M.P.'s (members of Parliament) and to organize against war with their friends and neighbors. Of course, these things cannot be done by the people behind the Iron Curtain. What they can do, God alone knows."

"However, the effect of public opinion should not be underestimated. Public opinion in this country led the British government to make important concessions at the congress of Vienna in order to secure an agreement to abolish the slave trade."

The writer recalled that Lord Russell had once been quoted as saying he would prefer American capitalism to Russian communism, but that if it was a choice between communism and nuclear war, he would submit to the former. I asked if everybody felt that way and the West was not prepared to fight, if necessary, how did he think it would be possible to prevent communist domination of the world.

Submission Is Better
"I never said, nor meant to imply, that communism should be the only choice," he replied. "I would say to the Communists that they should submit to capitalism if that was the only alternative to nuclear war. What I meant was that if, which God forbid, a situation should develop in which there remained no choice but submission or nuclear war, then I would say to either side: submission is better because there would still be human beings left to resume, at some time in the future, human progress."

The spy, witty humanist, who looks and acts at least 30 years younger than his 66 years, doesn't like to be considered an extremist.

"I am not a fanatic," he said. "I am simply a person who rather likes the human race and would be sorry to see it die out."

A constant opponent of communism in both theory and practice since his visit to Russia in 1920, Lord Russell was asked by this correspondent what he would say to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev about the communist system if he met him.

"If I personally were to meet Khrushchev and he were to say to me that he was efficient communism would triumph in the world one day, I would reply that I did not know whether that was going to be so or not, but that I did know there are aspects of the present communist system which are certainly not conducive to human progress. I would cite the lack of freedom for the individual to think for himself; the lack of freedom of expression; that it is so necessary to the advancement of art and philosophy. I would say that what the world needs today is mental liberty, and freedom from fear of war."

H-Bomb Raid Would Kill 160 Million

By JAMES BAAR

United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—A House subcommittee released a hitherto secret study estimating that most of us—nearly 160 million persons—would be killed in an H-bomb raid now on 100 American cities.

This startling figure was contained in a study of probable effects of a nuclear attack prepared by the Rand Corporation, a research concern that does top-secret research for the Air Force. The House military operations subcommittee, in releasing the study, said it was made by the Rand Corporation on its own not with government money.

The subcommittee, which long has urged a $5-billion-dollar nuclear shelter program, renewed its appeal with release of the study. It said failure of the administration and Congress to adopt the program has put the nation in "mortal danger."

Rep. Chet Holifield (D-Calif.), subcommittee chairman, told United Press International that blind economy by the Eisenhower administration was blocking the shelter program.

"We spend 60 billion dollars a year for defense and it gives us no final defense," he said. "We gamble everything on the idea that our retaliatory power will prevent an atomic war. But what if it doesn't? The nation has virtually no civil defense at all."

The Rand Corp. study did not specify the degree of preparedness in individual cities nor name the 100 cities. But expert witnesses before the subcommittee, backed by Holifield, said there was virtually no preparedness in any American cities.

Agriculture Dept. Estimates Cotton Crop Up 6 Pct.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Agriculture Department estimates the 1958 cotton crop at 11,593,000 bales, up 6 per cent from last year's harvest.

The first cotton production estimate of the year compares with 10,900,000 bales last year and the 10-year average output of 14,130,000 bales.

Although this year's estimate is below last year's output, there is no danger of a cotton shortage in the United States. There is a carryover of about 2,100,000 bales. The carryover plus estimated 1958 production will meet consumption demands, both foreign and domestic, and leave a large surplus.

The department estimated cotton yields will average 400 pounds of lint per acre on the 11,593,000 acres expected to be harvested. Last year's yields averaged 395 pounds an acre. The 10-year average yield was 315 pounds.

The 11,593,000 acres estimated for harvest were based on the acre in cultivation July 1 minus the 10-year average abandonment for natural causes. The average this year is the smallest in more than 10 years.

Following is the estimated cotton production, in bales, for major producing states, compared with 1957 harvests:

State	1958	1957
Alabama	210,000	221,000
Arkansas	200,000	204,000
California	300,000	300,000
Georgia	300,000	300,000
Illinois	400,000	415,000
Indiana	400,000	390,000
Mississippi	1,040,000	1,081,000
Missouri	285,000	270,000
Nebraska	1,040,000	1,011,000
Oklahoma	375,000	340,000
Texas	4,150,000	3,682,000
Virginia	300,000	300,000
Washington	600,000	700,000
West Virginia	1,010,000	1,037,000
Other states	20,000	20,000

Virginia, Florida, Illinois, Kentucky and Nevada.

Included in today's estimated production was an 81,400 bale crop produced 20,000 bales of American-Egyptian cotton. This cotton is grown in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

Water Heats, Cools New Apartments

CHICAGO (UPI) — A new apartment building in Skokie, a northwest suburb of Chicago, is real cool or real warm and it's all done with water. An unusual method of heating and cooling entirely by water has been installed in the apartments. In winter, hot water is piped into units concealed in a ceiling above the closets. There fans blow the heat through wall openings down into the rooms.

For air conditioning, chilled water is piped in the units and the cooled air blown into the rooms. The flow of air is from the top to the bottom rather than bottom to top, resulting in "evenly controlled heat and coolness," said builder Sidney J. Sparberg.

Kitchen Chemistry

ITHACA, N. Y. (UPI) — A full course meal on the family dinner table may have as many as 500 chemical additives in it to build its quality or nutritive value, says a food expert.

Prof. D. B. Hand, head of the Department of Food Science and Technology at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva, says federal regulations make sure that these additives are in the best interests of consumers.

Hand told a meeting of the State Nutrition Institute at Cornell University that some chemical additives may be used until they can be shown harmful, but "the more advanced food companies have gone to great lengths to establish harmlessness before use."

The professor said an expanded research program is needed to develop safer and simpler testing methods.

Hand told a meeting of the State Nutrition Institute at Cornell University that some chemical additives may be used until they can be shown harmful, but "the more advanced food companies have gone to great lengths to establish harmlessness before use."

"Phosphate antioxidants can inhibit the process during a limited period at refrigerator temperature. However, a more powerful antioxidant will, no doubt, be needed to inhibit the reaction in products stored at higher temperatures or for longer periods of time."

"The USDA Meat Inspection Branch has approved the use of phosphate additives in cured meat products only. However, the evidence presented suggests other possible applications. Phosphate salts could be added easily to meat or refrigerated meats reheated after storage. Phosphate salts may be obtained in drug stores (under the name of sodium pyrophosphate, sodium tripolyphosphate or Graham's) or in hexametaphosphate and should be used in the amount of one teaspoon per pound of meat."

"Application of the phosphates to outside portions of large oven roasts or broiled or fried cuts will protect against undesirable surface odors and flavors. Whole carcasses could be protected at the time of slaughtering by vascular perfusion using solutions of the antioxidant. In addition to preserving fresh odors and flavors, phosphates decrease juice losses, contributing to a more desirable texture."

Miss Tims plans to continue investigating this heat induced reaction here next year as a post-doctoral research fellow.

Local Couple, Many Friends Enjoy 50th Anniversary Party

Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Nichols received over one hundred guests on Thursday, August 7. The occasion was the Nichols' Golden Wedding Anniversary.

Arrangements of golden chrysanthemums, marigolds, day lilies, and bamboo sprays decorated the Nichols' home located on W. 1st St. Adding to the floral decoration was a display of the 123 cards from friends "from California to Maine" who wished the couple congratulations and good wishes.

The refreshment table was overlaid with an Irish linen banquet cloth which was given to the Nichols as a wedding gift fifty years ago. Guests' appointments held delicious anniversary cake, punch, and delish fruit cake slices.

Designers give hemlines plenty of "bunions" this fall. In evening gowns, the hemlines swing high in front to show plucky leg, sweep into a train at back for a dramatic and regal look. Some daytime dresses, loose from shoulder to knee, end with the fabric gathered to a belt, with buckle, at the hemline. Flounces abound, and designer Luis Estevez shows the pleated flounce, which is more conservative than the gathered. Adele Simpson uses a "flounce with a bounce"—one gathered at the hem like the harem skirt—on a group of cocktail dresses gently fitted through the waist like the princess silhouette.

Make up the sirup and have it cold before preparing the peaches. To make, dissolve 3 cups of sugar in 4 cups of water. This gives about 3 1/2 cups of sirup. To help preserve peach color and flavor while in the freezer, add crystalline ascorbic acid (vitamin C) to the cold sirup, using 1/4 teaspoon (1,000 milligrams) to each 4 cups of sirup. Ascorbic acid is sold at drug stores and some freezer-locker plants.

Allow 1 to 1 1/2 pounds of peaches for each pint container to be filled. After washing the fruit, cut in half, remove pits and skins by hand. If you dip peaches in hot and then cold water to loosen skins for fast peeling, it may soften the outer flesh so that slices will have ragged edges after thawing.

Measure 2 1/2 cup of sirup into each container. Then slice peaches directly into the container. To hold the slices down under the sirup, put crumpled parchment or locker paper on top. Leave enough space at the top for the fruit to expand during freezing. 3-inch headspace in pints, 1-inch in quarts.

Wipe all sealing edges clean for tight seal. Fasten lid on tight. Label with name of fruit and date when placed in freezer. Then freeze and store at zero F. or colder.

They cite "survival" as the biggest problem of the times, and next on the list is "how to be individual in a machine age."

When asked what they want to be five years from now, many went like this: "Still alive, raising a family of happy people."

The girl graduates, according to Mrs. Kaplan's report in the Sanford Alumnae Magazine, are warm about politics. As one graduate put it:

"I don't think our two national parties differ radically enough to give us something to shout about."

What To Expect If Your Daughter Goes To College

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you want your daughter to be a "brilliant individualist," send her to college.

And if you send her, you may expect her to come out looking for a "job" rather than a lifetime career. You may also expect her to figure on marrying earlier than college grads of a generation ago.

She may even return to the family fold unable to tolerate "dull" persons the way she used to.

At least—so go the "generalities" about what college does to a woman, as seen by a writer who surveyed the attitudes of the new crop of girl graduates from Barnard College, New York.

The girls, said author Anne B. Kaplan, also "don't give a xxx about their generation."

DARLINGTON, S. C.—You can still get good seats for the Labor Day Southern 500-mile stock car race at Darlington Raceway.

But you had better hurry to see you plan to take the all-night marauding and watch the race from that point.

That's the advice of Bob Coker, the Raceway's president and general manager. "Our ticket sales have been running the fastest ARROWHEAD SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI)—One week from last night Roy Harris—the challenger with feet hands but invulnerable head—will try to wrest the world heavyweight championship from boxer-wrester Floyd Patterson.

Newsletters to the unbeaten challenger's swanky training camp here in the San Bernardino foothills remark about Roy's hand speed and "statuesque head"—the stationary head that does no side slips nor bobs to avoid an opponent's punches. Brawny, dark-haired Roy rivets his glittering eyes in such concentration on a spartan's face that Roy appears to hypnotize himself into getting an immobile cranium.

Unless his good legs take the body—and head—out of the mazes during workouts in the auditorium here at the Arrowhead Springs Hotel. Despite his hitting speed, his blocking is mediocre.

Gas Never Wavers

Whether the head flaw will be offset by benefits in split-second counter-punching against Patterson, as a result of his concentration, may be a major question at Los Angeles' Wrigley Field. Veteran observers at this camp, about five miles east of Los Angeles, claim they never saw greater eye-concentration in a fighter. Once he squares off, Roy's gaze into an opponent's face never wavers. Even when he is hit, he does not blink.

Nearly always at long range, he spares and waits tensely for a counter-punching target. He has the speedy left jab and left hooks to take advantage of the openings. Also right uppercuts.

And, during the week end, his display of sneaker rights—rights that flash out without any "telegraphed warning"—indicated the challenger from Cut and Shoot, Tex., may depend more on his lightly regarded right than his boasted left.

Not Explosive

It was the right that hit sparman Monroe Hatchell and Howie Turner repeatedly during Sunday's four rounds of sparring.

Former champion Jimmy McLarnin, welterweight, and Lew Jenkins, lightweight, expressed surprise at his fast right. However, each added it didn't seem very explosive.

Harris, seeking his 23rd straight victory and 10th knockout, never mentioned the sneaker rights during a chat with reporters at his $100-a-day chateau-cottage—the same handsome "movie set" layout formerly leased seasonally by actress Rita Hayworth.

Whatever Happened To HARRY FLIPPIN?

United Press International

In the summer before he entered at the University of Virginia in 1926, Harry Flippin first achieved athletic prominence by winning the national AAU's now discontinued Pentathlon event. At Virginia in 1928, he captained the Cavalier track team and won the special high hurdles at the Penn Relays.

Whatever happened to Harry Flippin? He is engaged in medical research today as professor of medicine at the University of Pennsylvania.

ARRIVE FOR DAVIS CUP PLAY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Enrique Mora, Eduardo Soriano and Ernesto Rios, the Argentine tennis players who will oppose the United States in the North American Zone Davis Cup final, arrived in New York Sunday by plane. The Cup series will be played at Rye, N. Y., Aug. 15-17.

Player Of The Day

United Press International

—SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)—Dick Tomasek, 27-year-old pitcher with the Kansas City Athletics, turned out Sunday to be a "perfect" relief pitcher — he came in after the Cleveland Indians filled the bases with nobody out and struck out three batters to end the inning.

It was the ninth inning of the second game of a doubleheader and the Indians had tied the score and filled the bases on a double, two singles and a hit batsman.

Tomasek took over at this point and struck out Larry Doby, Rocky Colavito and Dick Brown. The Athletics won the game in the 10th when Roger Maris hit a two-run homer.

Tomasek, a native of Avon Lake, Ohio, stands 6-4 this season. He had a 4-1 record in the regular season with the Indians — who wish today they had not traded him away.

Surprised Lady...

A housewife-motorist recently paid her first visit to a Phillips 66 Station, and reported as follows...

"All I expected from my Phillips 66 Dealer was ten gallons of gasoline and maybe the windshield wiped. But the first thing I knew they had cleaned the windows all around..."

"Was I surprised when the attendant suggested he check the tires, including the spare? Then the battery and radiator. I figured he must have me mixed up with someone important. Wife of the mayor, maybe?"

"You could have knocked me over with a feather when he started hushing out inside the car. 'You do this for everybody!' I said. That's what he said... everybody!"

"About the gasoline... I got that, too. And that Phillips 66 Plus-Fuel makes my car run swell!"

NUCLEAR NEWS—Nuclear energy for cancer therapy is demonstrated by a patient-model in the medical facility room of the nuclear research reactor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Mass. The reactor is positioned on a hydraulically elevated operating table directly under the neutron beam opening to the reactor core through which irradiation is directed to cancerous tissues. The patient is alone in the room, with all controls for operating the neutron beam chamber remotely located. The reactor will be used by M.I.T. for research purposes, training of nuclear engineers and for medical treatment and research. This is a good picture. The reactor will not be used for medical therapy for some time. At left, M.I.T. scientists are shown as they lowered a sample into the nuclear research reactor now in operation.

World Travelers Say Japanese Waitresses Best

By Robert Herreshamp
United Press International
TOKYO (UPI)—There may be beautiful waitresses in other countries of the world, but none of them can compare with the beauty, grace and charm of a Japanese girl.

This is the consensus of world travelers journeying through Tokyo and it bears out Prof. Mahoto Sasaki's theory that women in countries with a high degree of social security are less charming and interesting than women in other countries.

"Social security is the greatest enemy of good service in the world," Gene Thomas, mass communications media adviser for the International Cooperation Administration (ICA) in Saigon, Viet Nam, declared.

"Japan has the finest waitresses in the world, with the possible exception of Viet Nam," Thomas said.

Sweden takes exception. While Stockholm waitresses took exception to Professor Sasaki's theory, tourists who have visited both Europe and Asia were unanimous in their opinion that Asia provides the best waitresses and waiters in the world—Sweden, France and England included.

United States waitresses ranked at the bottom of the list of the nine nations interviewed.

"The gross behavior of American waiters and waitresses is not conducive to pleasant dining," Thomas said.

Thomas singled out the worst place to dine in the world: Washington, D. C.

"In Washington," Thomas said, "a waiter or a waitress condescends to serve you, and they are extremely rude."

Hikaru Watanabe, public relations director of Mainichi newspapers in Tokyo, said "there just aren't enough waitresses in France and Italy to make a good comparison with Japanese girls. In all the leading European restaurants and hotels, men do the serving."

Of the persons interviewed, all were unanimous that they would rather be served by a pretty and pleasant waitress than a man in a waiter's uniform.

History Of Civil Service Is Revealed During 75th Anniversary

1863 marks the 75th anniversary of the signing of the Civil Service Act on Jan. 16, 1863.

The purpose of this year long observance will be to help bring home to the American people the continuing need for their interest and participation in maintaining and extending a sound Civil Service system.

Many early figures contributed to the forging of the civil-service system. George Washington, the Father of America, himself, was an instrument in the forging of the civil-service system when he set the tone for public life for four years hence by establishing the principle that civil servants should be qualified for the jobs they hold.

As the business of government became more complex and more employees were hired, there began to grow up a pressure for considering Federal jobs as rewards for political service. Succeeding presidents struggled with the problem of staffing executive offices with qualified people and at the same time satisfying the claims of those who had worked for the party.

In 1823, Senator William L. Marcy gave a name—"the spoils system"—to these practices and "in the victor, be the spoils" became the slogan. The spoils system reached such proportions that in 1841, when William Henry Harrison took office as President, 30,000 to 40,000 office holders swarmed into Washington, D. C. to claim the 28,700 jobs that made up the Federal executive service of that day.

By 1853, it had become the custom to stop all regular activities for a month after a change of administration to allow the President and heads of departments to devote time to settling the multitudinous and conflicting claims of the spoilsmen.

At the time President Lincoln took office in one of the greatest emergencies this country has ever known, the spoils current was running strong. But a counter-current had begun to make itself felt.

Lincoln expressed his dissatisfaction of the spoils system to Carl Schurz of Missouri, who in 1871 introduced into the Senate a bill to improve the civil service and made one of the first great speeches in behalf of reform. Also during Lincoln's administration, Representative Thomas Allen of Rhode Island began the first of a series of studies on the civilian services of other countries including Great Britain, China, France, and Prussia.

Convinced of the need for competitive examinations and non-political appointments, he repeatedly introduced bills to carry out his convictions. Although his bills were defeated, his studies furnished valuable information for reform advocates for the next 15 years.

After President Lincoln's second election, advocates of rotation of office were pushing for a complete turnover of Federal employees in all offices. Lincoln refused. In his own way, John Wilkes Booth contributed to the Civil Service Act, for the tragic death of Lincoln at Booth's hands renewed the patronage struggle.

draw in the Eighties when civil-service reform again was called for by the people. For the next decade there continued to be speeches, pleas, and denunciations on the subject of civil-service reform, but no funds for obtaining it until the tragic incident in a Washington railroad station that resulted in the death of President Garfield.

George E. Pendleton of Ohio had, in 1860, introduced in the Senate a bill based on Rhode Island Jencks' studies. Pendleton conferred with Dorman B. Eaton, member of Grant's Civil Service Commission, and substituted for his bill one drawn up by Eaton, assisted by George William Curtis and other members of the National Civil Service Reform League.

President Arthur had succeeded to the presidency upon the assassination of Garfield by Charles Guiteau, who was inflamed by a patronage dispute. Enraged by Guiteau's act, the American people had urged their representatives to take some action. When no action was forthcoming, the voters took advantage of the fall elections to show unmistakably to the nation their attitude. Arthur urged Congress in his first message to deal with the matter straightaway. The new Congress gave its attention to the issue from the first day of the session until the bill was passed.

On Jan. 16, 1883, President Chester A. Arthur signed into law the Civil Service Act to provide for competitive examinations to fill Government jobs. Advocates of the bill had based their appeal on the efficiency, economy, and democracy of the merit system. They backed their statements with facts and figures on those parts of the service where open competitive examinations had been tried. A Civil Service Commission consisting of three persons was to be appointed to see that the law was carried out, and no more than two of these three committee members were to belong to the same political party. Political affiliation was not to be a bar to appointments to Federal jobs and examinations were to be practical in character. Those selected would have to serve a probationary period.

When Theodore Roosevelt took office in 1898, he found a small, struggling organization that had been in existence only six years and had only a handful of employees on its rolls. Roosevelt found the merit system confronted by the indifference or the disapproval of many members of Congress, a lack of understanding on the part of many other citizens, and the bitter opposition of a portion of the press.

Roosevelt undertook his duties with characteristic enthusiasm and thoroughness. He read, wrote, and spoke literally volumes in favor of the merit system. Newspaper men, Members of Congress, applicants, and Federal officials visited him frequently in conjunction with the Civil Service Merit system. In later after-letters he upheld the merit system and explained patiently and firmly how it should work and why. In letters he wrote as Commissioner, he discussed such still familiar topics as the fairness of selection from among the top people, the effects of the apportionment of appointments from the various states, the prerogatives of veterans, the desirability of not discriminating against persons who were handicapped, the impropriety of claiming civil-service jobs by reason of party membership. Roosevelt conducted numerous investigations of Federal establishments in various parts of the country. He considered wholesale dismissal of employees to be a danger sign as they indicate "that political considerations were among the controlling forces in

When pharmacists compound your prescriptions, you place your health, even your very life in our professional care.

First we carefully read the prescription and then select the exact ingredients specified by the physician. All drugs must be potent fresh and of the purest possible grade. Next, after checking the dosage and ingredients again for accuracy, we compound them, record the prescription by number and date, and place in a container labeled with directions for use. ## Altamonte Town Council Tackles Full Agenda

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS—A full agenda of members of the Town Council here Monday night. The first item of business brought to the attention of the council was a request that tentative permission be granted to Siemens and Langford, builders, to open Wayne Ave. for drainage purposes for the subdivision to be known as "Millcrest."

Several property owners were on hand to hear the request and to assure Siemens that they would agree to any feasible plan which would not bring more water into their properties.

After considerable discussion by the council it was agreed that permission would be granted Siemens and Langford on a strictly tentative basis. A plan prepared by engineers must be submitted to the Town Council for study. No positive permission for any work would be granted without the full approval of the town council and the property owners concerned.

Leslie Bryan asked the council to take definite steps toward a decision regarding a feasibility report for a town gas and water works. Counselor Joe Davis was asked to obtain complete information as to the extent of federal aid the town could expect on such a project.

The town building inspector, a Mr. West, presented an objection to a variance in building regulations granted the Hillcrest subdivision, which he believed was not allowable under the new law. A clarification and interpretation of the setback requirements as stated in the recently adopted zoning laws was discussed and the council members did not choose to alter the ordinance as written.

Resolution No. 190 was read in full by Attorney Joe Davis and approved by the council. This resolution reads: "A resolution for the improvement and reworking of existing limestone and application of a mineral seal surface to the driveway and driveway apron of 90 feet Highland Drive, 100 feet Lake Drive, 100 feet Adams Ave. and Longwood St. from its intersection at Altamonte Blvd. to 18 feet and providing for the amendment of a portion of the coat thereof against the abutting property owners."

The resolution in full will be printed in The Sanford Herald and duly posted at three points in Altamonte Springs for a period of two weeks. Any objections to said resolution will be given a hearing upon request to the Town Council.

Authorization was given counsel to draw up and sign a contract with the Seminole Engineering Co., Sanford, for the proposed streets as mentioned under the resolution, to the amount not to exceed $10,700.

A motion was carried to purchase and install two air conditioners in the Town Hall.

U.S. Marine Battalion Evacuation Begins

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—A battalion of 1,100 U. S. Marines began pulling out of Lebanon today—the United States' answer to Russian charges the American troops were here for "aggression."

The Marines began their move by pulling their heavy equipment up to the beaches where they landed July 18 at the invitation of President Camille Chamoun who felt his government was threatened by outside forces.

The Marines on the beach estimated it would take two or three days before all 1,100 men and their equipment were placed aboard the waiting ships of the U. S. Sixth Fleet.

The withdrawal leaves approximately 9,000 airborne troops and 3,000 Marines in Lebanon. The men and officers of the 2nd Battalion of the 2nd U. S. Marine Division began moving out today a few hours before the U. S. General Assembly opened its crucial debate on the Middle East in New York.

The 2nd Battalion was the first to come ashore here in response to the urgent appeal of Chamoun for assistance in "maintaining the independence and integrity of Lebanon."

The partial—but significant—withdrawal was announced Tuesday by Adm. James (Lord Jim) Holloway, commander of American forces in Lebanon.

He said the evacuation was carried out in agreement with Chamoun and President-elect Maj. Gen. Fuad Chehab that "there has been material improvement in the internal and external security situation" in Lebanon.

A State Department spokesman in Washington said he knew of no plans for any immediate withdrawal of additional troops from Lebanon. He laid down the following conditions under which such withdrawals would be carried out: "Whenever requested by the Lebanese government."

"Whenever the United Nations has taken adequate measures to achieve the goals for which the U. S. forces were requested."

Plea For Equalization Made Before Board

Red MIG-17 Jets Intercept Two Nationalist Planes

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI)—The Chinese Nationalist Air Force announced that more than 10 Red Chinese MIG-17 jet fighters intercepted two Nationalist sabre jets off the Fukien coast today.

The Nationalist and communist planes engaged in a dog fight for seven minutes, the communique said, but no damage was reported done to either side.

Earlier, Defense Minister Yu Ta-Wei said that communist seizure of the Quemoy and Matsu outpost islands would involve the United States in the Red War of nerves against Nationalist China.

In an exclusive interview, Yu said that loss of the Quemoy and the Matsu would move the Nationalist defense line back to the line the United States has promised to protect.

The U. S. - educated defense minister said the Communists are already developing a pattern of pressure against the outpost islands just like the one they used to drive the Nationalists out of the Tachen Islands three years ago.

This time, Yu said, there is one difference—Nationalist China is determined to fight if necessary to hold on to its last outposts instead of pulling out as it did from the Tachens.

Dr. Mather said the board "The only thing you admit is that you don't know how to solve it and the people want a solution."

"I think Mrs. Walker is honest and trying to do a good job but she's too much involved in personal and party politics to be able to do a good job of it," he said.

"It's going to be catastrophic if we don't do something about it," Dr. Mather told the Equalization Board.

The Equalization Board met this morning at 10 o'clock in an attempt to reach a solution to the complaints made before them at previous meetings.

Yesterday, the board met with Carlisle Auley, Administrative Assistant and Field Supervisor for the State Comptroller, Ray E. Green. Auley completed a survey of property in Seminole County.

Monday and then investigated methods and procedures used in the Tax Assessor's office.

Reports made by Auley will go to State Comptroller Ray E. Green with a copy being forwarded to Governor LeRoy Collins.

Members of the board agreed at the beginning of the session, which continued after lunch today, to take each complaint, one by one, and make whatever adjustments are necessary.

During the discussions about property, valuations and the comparison of homes, Mrs. Mary Earle Walker told Chairman John Krider "I think you should start thinking a little bit."

Krider charged back "And you should start thinking—as a matter of fact we should all start thinking for we all can't be wrong."

"You should start thinking instead of talking," replied Mrs. Walker.

Commissioner Lawrence Crawford complained to Mrs. Walker that he felt that he had been done an injustice in the coming of his property in Altamonte. (Continued on Page 7)

Ike Urges Creation Of Standby U. N. Military Force

Improvement in the Living Standards of the People in These Arab Nations.

"Steps to avoid a new arms race spiral in the area."

As a means of preventing outside sources from stirring up strife from within, the President proposed U. N. monitoring of radio broadcasts "directed across national frontiers in the troubled Near East area."

The President said carrying out of his peace plan could mean "in a few short years" that the Lebanon and Jordan crises would mark "the beginning of a great new era of Arab history."

Referring to Russia's ballistic blackmail, the President demanded: "Should it not be serious international misconduct to manufacture a general war scare in an effort to achieve local political aims?"

Such pressures will never be used successfully against the United States, he said. But he said he wanted to address the General Assembly for the second time because such pressures create "dangers which affect every one of us."

The Lebanon and Jordan crises "clearly demonstrated" the urgent need for setting up a standby U. N. military force, the President said.

Mideast nations should be able to get "prompt and effective action" by the United Nations when endangered by "armed pressure"

"United Nations concern for Lebanon."

"United Nations measures to preserve peace in Jordan."

"An end to the fomenting from without of civil strife."

"A regional economic development plan to assist and accelerate"

Becky Is Heading For Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands

MIAMI (UPI)—Tropical storm Becky, showing little increase in size or intensity, today aimed its 65-mile-an-hour winds toward the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico, some 275 miles away.

Forecasters said if Becky maintains its present course and speed, it would strike a landing blow at the outer Leeward Islands during the day. The center of the storm was expected to pass some 100 to 125 miles to the south of the islands.

The San Juan weather bureau issued a gale warning for the Leeward Islands for winds up to 50 miles an hour in gusts. A tropical storm force was expected for Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

At 5 p. m. the weather bureau estimated Becky was centered near latitude 18.4 north, longitude 87.5 west or 85 miles east-northeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico.

The widespread disturbance was moving west-northwest at about 20 miles per hour. It was expected to continue moving at the same speed and direction for the next 12 hours.

The weather bureau said it was unable to get any new information on the storm during the early morning hours, but Air Force and Navy hurricane hunter planes expected to fly into the storm about mid-morning.

Highest winds were estimated at 55 miles per hour in gusts in the northern semi-circle with gale force winds extending outward 175 miles to the north and 50 miles to the south of the center.

Forecasters said Becky probably would increase "slightly" in size and intensity during the next 12 hours and might reach full hurricane force of 75 miles an hour winds today.

Wrong Turn Results In Boys Death

Editor's Note: Jim Blockenbender, UPI division representative for Michigan, in an experienced reporter who covered the West Frankfort, Ill., mine disaster in 1961 that took 118 lives. He was driving from Detroit to Lansing Tuesday when the fatal traffic accident described in the following dispatch happened.

By Jim Blockenbender

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—Rural trailer, parked near the right shoulder of the road, with 100 feet of scorched tire marks on the highway behind it and its massive barred about barely detoured.

Has That Spelled Death
"Oh, Jesus, Jesus," cried the father as he held the rag to his son's face. A short, stout man stepped forward and said, "Let me do that, you get up a minute, there's an ambulance coming."

"I can't, I can't," the father cried. The traffic backed up on the busy four-lane highway. People asked if a doctor was coming.

"There's a doctor over there, and another one just a little farther," snobbed the father as he pointed down Okemos road, which would have carried him and his son home.

A state policeman came, thought he felt a pulse. An ambulance came. Finally, and took the father and son—who had a blue hue that spelled death—to Sparrow hospital in Lansing.

You thought of the wrong turn you had made and might make if you let your mind drift. If you were in a hurry, if you thought you could make it. And you thought of the father who turned in front of the truck and knelt on the highway with his son.

34 Editors Predict Holland Victor

By United Press International
Thirty four Florida newspaper editors predict Sen. Spencer R. Holland will defeat Claude D. Pepper for the Democratic senatorial nomination Sept. 9, a newspaper poll reported Wednesday.

The Miami Herald sent a questionnaire on the hot political race to the editors of all Florida dailies and a few representative weeklies throughout the state.

The 34 responses unanimously named Holland as the probable winner, the newspaper said.

Twenty four of the editors said they have or will endorse Holland editorially. Two newspapers reported they will back Pepper.

Mysterious Assailant Beats Two Widowed Sisters With Iron Pipe

GRiffin, Ga. (UPI)—A mysterious assailant savagely beat two elderly, widowed sisters with an iron pipe during the night but spared two small visiting children, authorities reported today.

The victims, both clinging to life today, were Mrs. J. M. Smith, mother of Advertising Manager Russell Smith of the Griffin Daily News, and her sister, Mrs. Jimmie Lee Ives. Both women are in their 60s.

Smith, who discovered the bodies at the suburban home this morning, found his small children, Rusty and Lou Ann, unharmed but too frightened to give a coherent account of what happened.

Sheriff Joe J. Burson said the assailant beat the women with an iron pipe that bore an "elbow joint" at its end, yanked out telephone connections and fled in Mrs. Ives' car.

The children were found lying in bed with their badly hurt great-aunt, authorities reported.

Burson said he could not immediately find any motive for the attack.

The car's tracks in mud indicated the attack occurred after a heavy rain in the area at about 10 p. m. Tuesday, the sheriff said.

The women were rushed to the Spalding County Hospital in critical condition. Mrs. Smith was responding to treatment but Mrs. Ives was reported failing to respond.

The Georgia highway patrol issued a statewide alert for Mrs. Ives' car, a gray 1958 Plymouth, bearing the license 21-2016.

Smith told investigators he took his children to his mother's home in the Sunnyside community just north of Griffin for one of their frequent overnight visits.

He returned to the home early this morning bringing extra clothes for his children, broke into a window when he was unable to arouse anyone and noticed the women nearly dead from blows.

Both women were bloody, as was their bedclothing and other effects, from beatings almost from head to foot, according to early statements of investigators.

Mrs. Smith was found lying in her bed in one bedroom and Mrs. Ives in another, with the children,
