Plan ahead for food

WINTER SPRINGS — On Nov. 20, the Winter Springs Civic Association will be holding their annual holiday parade.

According to President Bob Pizzurro, "In the spirit of giving and the season, this year we are sponsoring a food drive for a local community food bank. You bring a can of food or a cash donation to the reviewing stand on the day of the parade, fill out an entry slip, and you are entered to win a gift certificate for two to a fine local restaurant."

Pizzurro recommends planning now for the participation next month. "Enjoy the parade and get a warm glow knowing that you are helping someone less fortunate," he said.

The reviewing stand and beginning of the parade will be on Sheoah Blvd. at the Civic Association center.

Teachers' groups: Public deceived by voucher plan

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Teachers' organizations across the state, including the Seminole Education Association, said the public is being deceived by those who would provide educational vouchers for parents who want to send their children to private schools. Governor candidate Jeb Bush and Commissioner of Education candidate Frank Brogan have advocated providing public funds to pay for private school education as a part of their campaigns.

"We need a governor and an education commissioner who will help us solve the tough problems we are already experiencing in public education, not add to them," said Gay Parker, president of the Seminole Education Association.

Parker and the heads of other central Florida school employee groups held a press conference Wednesday to express their displeasure with the proposal.

SANFORD — Two Longwood attorneys, one who specializes in mediation and the other a trial attorney and former municipal court judge, are seeking election to a local seat on the circuit court.

Carmine Bravo and Gene Stephenson are vying for election as judge in the Eighteenth Judicial Circuit Court (group 12) in Seminole County on November 8.

An attorney for 34 years almost

Lake Mary OKs plan to target business growth

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary is diving head-on into a plan to lure new business and industry into the city by establishing a Target Industry Development District.

Officials, though, are undecided whether incentives should be offered to new industry.

The Target Industry project has several goals. According to discussions, it is to provide employment centers, increase the local standards of living, reduce unemployment, and shift the local property tax base from residential to these target businesses.

Getting the districts established has a two-pronged approach. The city must target businesses themselves, those with high property tax potential, low pollution potential, and attract high-paying jobs.

The second aim will be to attract support users for these businesses, such as restaurants and retail stores.

City Planner Matt West has opined that such support businesses might include day-care facilities, dry cleaners, beauty salons, gymnasium/health clubs, retail computer sales, printing/photographic shops, and others.

Mayor Lowry Rockett also suggested that rather than fast food establishments, the concentration should be on sit-down restaurants.

The matter of incentives was brought up during Thursday night's commission meeting. The plan, as presented, suggested the possibility of the city paying impact fees from excess revenues in order to lure potential industry. Also suggested was the possibility of paying additional related costs which may include waiver of building permits, zoning and inspection fees.

Commissioner Gary Brender objected. "We are looking at luring companies into Lake Mary which would probably have more money than the city would have, and yet we want to offer them

Hurricane Florence continues slow spin

CORAL GABLES — Hurricane Florence continued Saturday as a slow turn in the Atlantic, but forecasters now say Bermuda most likely won't be affected.

The second hurricane of the 1994 Atlantic hurricane season formed at about 10 p.m. EST Friday, when its maximum sustained winds strengthened to 75 mph, just over the 74 mph threshold.

Forecasters thought it might head for Bermuda, but models overnight showed that scenario had diminished.

Education

Capitol, the 17-floor Department of Education is a frequent lightning rod for critics of government bureaucracy.

Chiles and Bush, of course, differ on more than the size and function of the agency when it comes to how best to educate the 2.1 million students in Florida's public schools.

Public schools take almost $9.2 billion out of the state's $38.7 billion budget. Both the Democratic incumbent and his Republican challenger say the key to improvement is giving parents more power over their children's education.

They just disagree on how to achieve that goal.

Shortly after being elected governor, Chiles pushed a school reform program through a resistant Legislature. Known as Blueprint 2000 or accountability, the 1991 law lifted dozens of state mandates and directed that each school write its own plan for improvement with the help of parents, teachers and employees.

"We have turned the public school system back to parents and teachers so they can fix it," the governor said during Tuesday's debate. "If you think it's failed, you should go see some of our schools. They're doing a heck of a lot better."

Bush does think the public school system has failed. And he doesn't think Blueprint 2000 has helped.

"If we stand pat with our education system, we're insuring that the next generation will not be able to get jobs," he said during the debate.

He advocates giving parents tax dollars in the form of vouchers for their children to whatever school they prefer, public or private. He also proposes giving private groups tax dollars to start charter schools.

"I am confident that our experience with limited charter schools and parental choice linked to a school's failure to meet performance standards will prove that trusting parents and introducing competition into education will work," Bush wrote in a position paper.

Florida's teacher unions and school administrators back Chiles passionately, blasting Bush's proposals as radical and extreme. But the governor concedes that a lot more has to be done to improve schools.

"We still have much to do before it is totally successful," Chiles wrote in response to an Associated Press issues questionnaire. "However, we are on the right track and moving in the right direction."

In his response to the questionnaire, Bush said the 1991 accountability reform has "only marginally increased the true autonomy of local schools."

He criticized the reform for not establishing standards or sanctions for schools that fail to meet those standards. He said the voices of parents are being drowned out by the input of professionals.

"Blueprint 2000 may be headed the way of merit pay and career ladder — classroom reality that fails to meet expectations," Bush said.

With each of the state's 2,700 schools operating under its own plan, it's difficult for the state to track what's actually happening in classrooms.

State auditors, after visiting 22 schools in five districts, reported last month that teachers believe the plans had improved their schools but pointed to a lack of money to do things that would make a real difference — like buying enough textbooks for every student or hiring more counselors.

None of the 22 plans reviewed by state auditors defined "adequate progress" for student performance, graduation rates, school safety and other areas identified in state goals, the auditors reported.

Bush's ultimate goal is "full school choice" for every student. But he would limit vouchers in the beginning to the children in public schools that aren't working, and he said he would not allow private schools to charge those students extra tuition.

Chiles, however, warned that the plan would take $1 billion from public schools. That would be like taking 10 teachers from every school or putting six more students in every class, he said during the debate.

Bush defended his voucher plan, insisting he would begin with a limited program targeted at the worst schools.

"My plan, sir, makes it quite clear we would start with the failed public schools and prove that if you give people power and trust parents to make decisions they will do the right thing," he said.

Bush also calls for abolishing the Department of Education except for about 50 employees to oversee federal grants. The rest of the department would be shifted to the districts or other state agencies.

In his state of the state address to lawmakers early this year, Chiles called for slashing the Department of Education in half.

After the legislative session, the department shrank from 2,139 workers to 1,225 workers. Most of the reduction stemmed from eliminating the department's oversight of a residential school for deaf and blind students that operates under an independent board.

The Way We Were: Downtown Sanford

By GRACE M. STINECIPHER
Herald Correspondent

The histories on the DeForest and Rand Buildings concludes the series of articles on the buildings in the 100 E. First St. block, although I know I will have one on some reminiscences of some of the former tenants of the buildings.

If you have further information on any of these buildings and their former occupants, please contact me. These articles should have spurred some memories of yours, so call me and we'll share.

The DeForest Building

The DeForest Building, located at 104 E. First St., was constructed circa 1889. This was owned H.L. DeForest a second downtown building as he had previously built the DeForest Block, now known as Touchton's Drug Store.

Henry DeForest was a distant cousin of General Henry Shelton Sanford and came here as the first agent for the soon to become city of Sanford. He was the person who laid out the city and also the one who selected and persuaded the first 23 Swedish families to become some of the first settlers.

Before building the two buildings that still remain, DeForest had built a dock and the first general store. He also owned the DeForest Land Office. He remained a resident of Sanford until his death Dec. 24, 1901, at age 51. His granddaughter, Gail Harris, lives in Winter Park and continues to be very interested in our city.

There were originally two stores in the DeForest Building which now houses only one business, A Second Image. The 1890 Sanborn map shows the tenants to be hardware and stationery stores. In 1895, it housed a clothing store and one which sold books, music, soda, etc. From approximately 1905 through 1913, the west side contained a grocery store. The eastern store was vacant until a grocery store moved in by 1912.

Mrs. Antonia Simon, widow of Edward, owned a variety store on the west side in 1917. Her daughter, Isabella, was a saleslady there and the residence listed for both was 301 W. Eighth St. Many of you will remember Miss Isabella Simon as an eccentric old lady who lived alone for many years at this same residence just south of Sanford Grammar School. Mrs. Grace E. Williams had the shop next door where she sold millinery, art books, pictorial patterns, laces and brasseries. It was known as The Ladies Store. She lived with her husband Ed at 519 Magnolia Ave.

Readers speak: Making the world a better place

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Correspondent

Amid a world of chaos, violent crime, drugs and people out of control, can earthlings truly affect the world they live in. Is peace on earth, good will toward men a myth or a reality?

The question, what can or would you do to make the world a better place, was posed to area residents. Some of the responses were as follows:

Eva Mae White said, "I wish I knew what I can do. I'd like to stop drugs. I wish I could build a recreation center for kids so they'd have some place to go. Being nice is really what makes the world better."

Paula McCloud said, "Treat people the way you want to be treated sums it all up."

"The first thing that comes to my mind," said Greg Rios, "is to get rid of all of the golf courses and build homes for the homeless. Get rid of crack cocaine and I'd like to see it mandatory for people to take human behavior classes."

Christine Hayes agreed, "Get rid of crack cocaine. If there was a way to help people make more money and get better jobs," that would make the world a better place.

Larry Cooper said, "I believe people should go for world peace. I think people ought to get back to believing in God. We should take better care of our planet and be conscious of resources."

Valerie Alarcon listed her objectives, "No more drugs, no more guns, more recycling and help for old people."

Her husband, Luis, said, "One important thing is to be responsible. Be friendly."

Zile admits beating step-daughter; says wife shares blame

By The Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH — The man facing first-degree murder charges for the death of his stepdaughter says he did abuse the girl and helped cover up her death but adds that his wife is hardly innocent.

Walter John Zile told The Miami Herald in an interview published Saturday that his wife left out some details in her account of 7-year-old Christina Holt's death — including the fact that she had hit the girl two hours before she died.

"I can tell you that not all the bruises the medical examiners will find on her body were from me," he said. "She smacked Christina in the face a couple of times herself earlier that night."

On Saturday, Pauline Zile, 24, was teary eyed and shaken in front of a judge in Palm Beach County for her first appearance. Mrs. Zile, who was arrested Friday, was denied bail.

In the 75-minute interview, her husband denied his wife's claims that she was locked in his rooming house.

"It's a pack of lies," Zile said about his wife. "Don't get me wrong. I've always loved her. I still do, even with what she's doing to me now. But don't let anyone tell you about this poor innocent victim."

Christina's body was unearched Oct. 27 after her mother told police the girl had been beaten to death and buried by her husband.

Mrs. Zile had made hysterical pleas on television after reporting her daughter missing. Her 32-year-old husband was arrested two weeks ago and is being held without bond. Both are charged with first-degree murder and aggravated child abuse.

The Ziles' story mirrors that of Susan Smith, 23, of Union, S.C., whose tearful pleas for her sons' return inspired a nationwide vigil. Smith was jailed without bond on charges she killed the two toddlers.

In the Florida case, Mrs. Zile blamed the girl's death on her husband during a news conference earlier this week.

At a news conference last week, Mrs. Zile's attorney, Ellis Rubin, said the husband beat the child to death while the mother slept and then coerced her with threats of the electric chair if she went for help.

The attorney also said the husband used money that was supposed to go for epilepsy medicine and for food to feed his marijuana habit. Rubin said Zile beat his wife once several years ago and said Zile attempted to kill his wife to keep her quiet.

"What a crock. None of it's true," Zile said.

He gave this account of the Sept. 15 killing and the events leading up to it.

Christina came to them in June, having always lived with Mrs. Zile's ex-husband's family in Maryland, he said.

"I don't know what happened to her up north, but she was a very troubled child," Zile said. "We caught her once in the closet with my 3-year-old. She had his pants down and was leaning over him."

He said he began beating Christina about 10 days before her death because she was constantly going to the bathroom on the floor and involving his two young sons in sexually oriented games.

The day of her death, he said he told Mrs. Zile he didn't want to be the only one to discipline Christina when she misbehaved.

"That's when Pauline went back into the bedroom and smacked her a couple of times," he said. "When Pauline came out, I asked her what she did, and she said, 'I smacked her.'"

Later Christina told the couple she had been sexually abused in Maryland, Zile said. Police said Friday that Mrs. Zile told them of the incident and they are checking out the allegations in Maryland.

- ✓ A Respected Conservative Leader
- ✓ A Champion of Law Enforcement
- ✓ Supports Limited Government/Low Taxes
- ✓ A Record of Innovation & Integrity

This year, more than any other, most political campaigns have been reduced to engaging in personal attacks, mudslinging and outright distortions of truth. Apparently, some politicians find no value in comparing their political records, position on the issues and accomplishments within the community.

I am proud that our campaign has not sunk to such depths. I have not found it necessary to attack our opponent. In fact, I find such tactics to be distasteful.

I have thoroughly discussed the issues and our community's concerns. I have asked of the voters to look at our very different philosophies and proven accomplishments.

This campaign is about who will be the most effective new District 2 County Commissioner. Numerous community leaders, business and community organizations have examined the backgrounds of myself and my opponent. Virtually all have endorsed my candidacy. Some are found below. But, your endorsement is the most important.

I ask for your vote on Tuesday, November 8th.

They Examined the Record:

Sheriff Don Eslinger

“ As a Mayor, Randy Morris was steady in his support of those men and women in uniform who put their lives on the line to protect the community.

I look forward to working with our next County Commissioner Randy Morris to make our streets, schools and neighborhoods safer for all. ”

State Representative Bob Starks

“ The most important qualities a public official can have are honesty, good character, a willingness to listen and a genuine desire to serve.

Randy Morris has those qualities. He will be an outstanding County Commissioner. ”

The Orlando Sentinel - Endorsement

“ One candidate in the race for District 2 county commissioner wears effectiveness like tailored clothing: Republican Randy Morris.

... Mr. Morris faces Adrienne Perry, the victor in the Democratic runoff. ... Their records in office tell the stories. He was effective; she essentially was not.

Mr. Morris is both thinker and salesman, and brims with initiative and diligence.

...Seminole needs commissioners with vision and proven abilities.

Mr. Morris' record proves he has those qualities...

The complexities of a large urban county require the experience of those who have been tested and found to be effective. The Sentinel endorses Randy Morris for the District 2 County Commission seat. ”

October 9, 1994

The Sanford Herald - Endorsement

“ ...but one (candidate) edges to the front in terms of accomplishments and the ability to bring together a consensus, Randy Morris. The mark of a political leader is the ability to accomplish change, change hopefully, which represents improvement. Here, the two former mayors follow markedly different paths. The Sanford Herald believes these paths demonstrate Morris will be the more effective of the two.

In Lake Mary, Morris mustered both commission and community support for streamlining business approvals to attract new jobs to the area. He held the drive for landscaping and strict development plans along Lake Mary Boulevard designed to increase property values...

Morris successfully led campaigns to reduce calling rates to Orlando and he gathered together reluctant property owners to donate their prime Interstate 4 property to build an interchange at 46A, an all but dead project. ”

Mark Platts is a transplant from Pennsylvania. Bess Simons was born in Virginia but grew up in North Carolina. They met in Orlando, while working in the same department for that city's government. Platt studied for his master's degree in urban and regional planning at the University of Florida and is currently working for Orange County as the manager of the Neighborhood Partnership Program, which involves neighborhood planning. Simons has a background in landscape architecture and is the new Sanford Main Street program manager, coming from the City of Orlando, where she worked in urban revitalization.

Both have a lot of knowledge and love of old homes and old neighborhoods. They were not in the market for a home at the time they first saw the house on Magnolia. Platts had been living in this area, actually on a boat in the marina, for a while. They had been house-sitting for friends on the fateful weekend they first saw the "For Sale" sign in the yard.

"We drove by this house and fell in love with it," said Simons. "We looked in the windows and saw the sunroom, the front porch and the fireplace," said Platts, who knew they had to have the house.

According to the research Platts has done on the home, it was built in 1923. He feels it was built on speculation and did not actually sell until 1927, because both dates show up on the deed. H. Truluck was the original owner of the house and the family lived in it continuously until the late 1980s.

In researching the history of the house, Platts got a lot of his information from Peter Schaal's book, "Sanford and the World War II Years, 1936-1945." Mr. Truluck was the owner of Security Lumber and also built the home immediately north of the Platts on Magnolia. One of his daughters, Cecelia, was the

The Simons-Platts home at 1119 Magnolia Ave., as shown in a drawing by Lynn Sonnenberg.

Sanford Herald society editor in late 1945. His son, McKay, was a star on the Seminole High School football team in the early 1940s and went on to become the athletic director for the school. In all, a family of five lived in the small house on the corner of Magnolia and 12th Street.

The daughters sold the house, after Mrs. Truluck died, to David Sumner who repaired some plaster work and termite damage and rented it out for two years.

The couple bought the home 2 1/2 years ago and a month after they moved in, they held their wedding reception in their new home.

The architectural style of the home is that of a Craftsman bungalow, with wide overhanging eaves and a porch on front and large rooms and high ceilings inside.

Most of the interior is plaster painted white with refinished hardwood floors.

In the period since they bought the home, they have spent most of their time acquiring furniture and antiques. They have furnished the living room and dining room with period pieces they have picked up at antique stores and auctions in the area. There is a fireplace bordered by built-in shelves, typical of the Craftsman style. There is an Arts and Crafts era telephone table and a slag glass china cabinet in the dining room. Platts felt the house was in "perfect condition" when they bought it, so very little has been done to the interior until just prior to their commitment to participate in the home tour.

"This house is kind of neat, because it allows us to do each of our styles," Platts said, "with the Arts and Crafts pieces that we put in the living room area, we put the 50s stuff in here (the kitchen) and the bedrooms are kind of going towards the 30s-40s Art Deco."

The kitchen will definitely have a "retro-50s" look when completed, right down to the fully functioning Frigidaire stove/oven combination that was bought from the estate of the original owner. They have ordered a new Frigidaire refrigerator, whose lines, or actually, curves, follow those of the circa 1950s stove. There are even plans to install a chrome strip along the edge of the laminated counter top to further enhance the 50s look. And of course, there is the chrome handles on the drawers and cabinet fronts, the chrome mixer and the chrome canister set. The kitchen is painted a deep green, the only room in the house not white.

Behind the kitchen is a room that was converted from a porch to a breakfast room. Their laundry facilities were moved from the garage into this room but Platts is currently working on renovating the garage and moving the washer and dryer back. Platts says the centerpiece of the room will soon be a kidney-shaped dinette table, complete with chrome trim around the edge.

Off this breakfast room is the original sleeping porch, which is being used as an office. The two other bedrooms are small, with even smaller closets. Platts said the master bedroom is distinguished as the more formal room because of the picture rail around the top of the walls. The couple said they will continue their hunt for period pieces, in light wood, to furnish the room and to add much needed storage space without overwhelming the room.

Simons sheepishly admits that she much prefers working in the yard to working in the house. Platts and Simons both said the highlight of the exterior is the white picket fence, designed by Simons. "I don't think anyone really noticed the house before," she said. Simons has installed a native plant garden and has plans for a southern garden, a tropical garden and a perennial garden all on their compact corner lot. Platts' dream is to install a small pool next to their future patio and "roll off the hammock into the pool."

The couple have set a deadline of completing improvements prior to the tour. They will also be doing some holiday decorating after entertaining family for Thanksgiving.

Platts wants to contact the surviving members of the Truluck family to see if he can get pictures of how the house looked when the family of five lived in it. He said he is also very interested in knowing how they "moved" through the house, what was their "pattern of living."

The Sanford Historic Trust's Holiday Tour of Homes will be held Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 3 and 4, from noon until 5 p.m. Tickets are available through any trust member, at the Sanford Chamber of Commerce, the Welcome Center or the Main Street office, or by calling Mary Larsen at 321-0144. because we believed Sanford has so much potential toward continuing improvement, especially in the redevelopment areas."

As with the Main Street organization, Simons said she sees Sanford itself having the main ingredients needed for improvements, including organization, design, promotion, and economic restructuring.

During her six years with the city of Orlando, Simons was credited with helping revitalize a portion of the west side of Orlando, in a project called Parramore Heritage Renovation. It consisted of both business and residential areas. "It was a poorly kept neighborhood," she said, "and now it's so much improved and looking better than it has in many years."

She has also been directly involved in the Princeton/Smith Corridor Urban Design, 1991 Growth Management Plan Urban Design Element and Land Development Code, all for the city of Orlando.

Prior to moving to Orlando, she was a planner with Barrett, Daffin & Carlan, Inc., of Tallahassee, and worked for several companies in the field of landscape design.

Locally, she has served on Sanford's Historic Preservation Board, and is a member of the Sanford Historic Trust.

Simons was born in Virginia, but raised and educated in North Carolina. She holds a bachelor's degree in forestry, and a master's degree in landscape architecture, which she believes will be extremely beneficial in her work with the SMS program.

Simons maintains her office at the Sanford Main Street headquarters at 101 W. First Street in the heart of downtown Sanford. "Although the address is on First Street," she said, "the actual entrance is just around the corner with the door opening on Park Avenue."

Simons sees a great future for the city and its people, and is looking forward to working on the city which has become her permanent home.

Net ban: Vote No

There is much to admire about the "Ban the Nets" campaign. It would go a long way to curbing the needless slaughter of Florida's coastal sea-life for the sake of harvesting a few species for our dinner plates. We agree with that goal, but we believe Amendment 3 is unnecessary. The death of sea turtles has declined significantly in recent years with regulation. Seasonal harvest limits, area restrictions have shown promise in protecting dolphin and other sealife while allowing harvests of food fish. Additional legislation can refine the process. Increased enforcement of those laws can assure they are upheld by the industry. Such protections are best left to laws, not constitutional amendments.

Vote "No" on Amendment 3 Tuesday, then call or write your legislators Wednesday and urge them to increase protection for the state's valuable aquatic resources.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. All letters must be signed, include the address of the writer and a daytime telephone number. Letters should be on a single subject and be as brief as possible. The letters are subject to editing.

Voters drowning in political mud

Throughout America voters are drowning in mud that seems to have become the hallmark of campaigning. One of the challenges to voters making an informed decision is the consistency of negative advertisements and pronouncements. The objective of today's campaigns is evidently to obfuscate the real issues and confuse the voters, what is the psychological impact at the conscious and unconscious levels of often repeated negatives? Is it comparable to a leaking faucet that overtime will undermine our political process? If all candidates are demagogues, then why vote for anyone? What are the redeeming characteristics of demagogues?

Whatever happened to analyzing pertinent issues, projecting future needs and gentlemanly debates? America's values relative to the political process have changed. Instead of providing information that acquaints the electorate with the candidates, campaigning has been reduced to meaningless rhetoric. Candidates are not our only concern. Seminole County voters will be making decisions about state constitutional amendments and Seminole County Home Rule Charter Amendments.

A review of the state constitutional amendments are: Amendment 1 - addresses changing the day the state legislature will begin its annual 60 day regular session. Amendment 2 - limitation on state revenue collection. Limits collections to the prior years allowed revenue plus adjustment for growth. Amendment 3 - limits marine net fishing by prohibiting the use of gill and other entangling nets in all Florida waters. Amendment 4 - would expand the people's rights to initiate constitutional changes limiting the power of government to raise revenue by allowing amendments to cover multiple subjects. Amendment 8 - would authorize a limited number of gaming casinos in Broward, Dade, Duval, Escambia, Hillsborough, Lee, Orange, Palm Beach and Pinellas Counties with two in Miami.

SEMINOLE OPINION

Seminole County Home Rule Charter Amendments are: No. 1 - school board election - shall the Seminole County Home Rule Charter be amended to provide partisan election of school board members and require a candidate's party affiliation to be shown on the ballot; No. 2 - would require the Board of County Commissioners to perform an economic impact statement as a pre-requisite to taking any legislative action that might have an economic cost. No. 3 - non interference clause, deals with the right of individual commissioners to make inquiry of the county administrative staff in the performance of the commissioners responsibility to the citizens of Seminole County. No. 4 - would create the office of county attorney which would report and be responsible directly to the Board of County Commissioners replacing the present legal department that reports to and is responsible to the county manager, the state and Home Rule Charter Amendments require a yes or no vote and are vitally important.

There appears to be a sea of negatives engulfing our political process. It is hoped that the pendulum will swing to more relevant political engagements in the future. Another concern is the vast amount of money expended on political campaigns. How can we rationalize the massive outlay of funds for campaigns in view of all of the human needs existing in this country?

Perhaps we need to focus on the Constitution of the United States of America and rededicate ourselves to more responsible actions as candidates and citizens. "We the people of the United States in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution of the United States of America."

Make a difference

The latest rash of letters to this newspaper concerning the city of Sanford amazes me. I know that a newspaper is a forum for anyone to voice their concerns, but usually it is the least effective means of getting anything done. This is the first ever letter I've felt compelled to write ... only because I know "Letterwriters to the Editors" club members will be reading this.

If a person is unhappy with their community, its codes, its leaders or their decisions, the easiest thing to do is to pick up the phone and call an elected official or volunteer board member and intelligently discuss the concern at hand. This means get the facts pro and con on both sides of the issue, so that you can effectively lobby your point of view. These people are our representatives and if approached intelligently, will listen. Then attend a city commission meeting or a city board meeting. It's unbelievable how few people show up to hear what is being decided about their community. I guarantee that if city commission chambers are packed, our leaders will take note of the issues. Unfortunately, after the vote, the letters to the editor and complaints start. A little late, isn't it?

Better still, get involved by working within the system. Volunteer for a board, support your favorite candidate by working on his or her campaign, or run for office yourself. Yes, this takes time. Yes, this takes commitment. And no, it doesn't pay much if anything. The only reward is the satisfaction that you're doing something for your community, and that you now have the right to voice your opinion, change things you don't like, and make a difference.

I see a lot of positive changes in Sanford. The downtown area is revitalized through the efforts of countless volunteers and the support of our commission. The historic district is becoming a neighborhood in every true sense of the word ... where we have our problems, but also a great number of volunteers who effect change. If you're unhappy with your neighborhood, stop complaining in the newspaper and instead do something that can make a difference.

Solution to problem

There are "pockets of poverty" in Sanford. (Sanford Herald, Wed. Nov. 7.) One of the best ways out of poverty is education. The best way to combat the problems of poverty is subject to debate. To use an excuse of poverty and lack of business intervention for lack of an education would be unwise. Let me use myself again as an example.

I was reared in a "pocket of poverty" during the 1930s. My parents had little use for education as former sharecroppers from Georgia. There were no volunteers to aid teachers in my school. I had a pencil and paper; the teachers had a blackboard, some chalk, and a ruler to use on unruly children. My report cards were signed, but not discussed. If there was a PTA, I never knew about it. I graduated in the top one-third of my high school class in 1948 and "cum laude" from Florida Technological University in 1974. How did I do that? Because I had teachers who wanted to teach, and I wanted to learn. It is as simple as that.

Giving children or parents in "pockets of poverty" excuses for a lack of education is counterproductive. Giving some examples of children and parents who made their way out of poverty might be a better solution to the problem.

Rangeline Road

In reference to the article on Rangeline Road in Longwood, in Tuesday's (Oct. 25) Herald, I feel as a resident of Seminole County and Lake Mary, I have as much right to use that road as the people of Longwood do. In my opinion, if it is made miserable for us to use, let's do the same to them on Lake Emma when our new mall opens and they want to drive through Lake Mary.

Art Short
Lake Mary

P.S. I feel the people of Longwood have a very juvenile attitude as might be said of my letter.

Any address

Under Police Briefs dated Oct. 21, 1994 published in the Sanford Herald, I read an article "Man in Van." It was the very first article and it caught my eye. I very seldom read police briefs. It stated that this certain man lived at a certain address - well, the address was my rental property and this man had lived there approximately five or six years ago. I didn't like the idea that this past tenant could still use my rental address and cause harm to the tenant who is living there now. Four neighbors let me know about it. I had to tell them what happened, that my present tenant is not in trouble with the law. He's a church (going) man.

I have called Longwood Police, Sanford Police, Sheriff's Department and talked to several different officers. They all told me he can use any address he wants, we can't stop that. The only one that helped at all was a sheriff lady who said she would tell the man in van to refrain from using my rental address. I was told that I could use any address I wanted. I could choose your address if I wanted to! This is not fair. If this was any of you, what would you do?

We have no rights. It pays to be a criminal. The Sanford Herald receives its information for police briefs directly from the police, so they couldn't put in a correction unless the police changed it. That, I couldn't get done. And that's why I wrote this letter.

Governor's race

You don't have to be a political scientist to know the relative standings in any political race. Just see who is running the most and toughest negative commercials and you will find out who is trailing. The governor's race in Florida is a good example. Gov. Chiles has recently unleashed a series of ads questioning the moral standards of Jeb Bush. The negative ads are focused on Bush's involvement in an S&L deal that went sour some years ago. This action by Gov. Chiles is the first time in his long political history beginning in 1958 that he has based his re-election hopes on negative ads. The reason is simple. The Chiles campaign has tried everything else and was falling further behind Jeb Bush. He is like the veteran prize fighter, who for 13 of the 15 rounds has been outpointed by his young opponent. He needs a knockout blow to win. Anyone who knows Lawton Chiles understands he doesn't enjoy this tactic, but he is also a tough competitor who has finally decided that the political climate has changed for the worse and he has to change with it in order to win.

Seminole County issues

Charter amendments

I want voters to just say "No" to all of the proposed Seminole County Charter amendments. Consider what has been put forth — there is one amendment that would require economic impact statements, but the requirement could be overridden by the commission which will be the final authority on the matter. That is clutter in the charter. Commissioners can require an impact statement on legislative matters now without this amendment. Misused, the impact statement can be used to slow or prevent protection of environment.

Two other proposals are intended to weaken the power of the county manager by taking control of county attorney appointment and by expanding the commissioners' right of inquiry respectively. Distinct separation of powers was intended when the charter was first approved and it is still the best form of government. Let the manager do his job, or fire him — don't change the charter.

Finally, not satisfied with regulating county government the Charter Review Commission has proposed changing our clean non-partisan school board elections to elections that will be run by and for political parties. That, too, is a bad idea. What a shame the Charter Review Commission couldn't come up with some worthwhile amendments.

Randy Morris - No

It is rather amusing to many of the citizens of Lake Mary to read all the accolades heaped upon our former mayor. Nowhere do I see mentioned any of the negative activities that he fostered. As just one example, after the concrete power poles on Lake Mary Boulevard Phase One were up, he insisted that the power lines be buried at a cost of $1,300,000 tax dollars. These additional costs will be reflected in our tax statements for many years. A group of citizens opposed any future activity of this magnitude without the opportunity to approve or disapprove by ballot and petitioned that this issue be placed on the ballot (the petition was supported by the required number of registered voters). The city (of which he was the mayor) had a suit placed against a number of this group. They now had to have legal help to defend themselves against their city. The amendment was subsequently placed on the ballot of the next election and approved by a wide margin by the citizens opposed to such high-handed actions. Alas, the vote came too late to save those many dollars that were needlessly spent.

Where we could have had street lights mounted on those concrete poles as a visual deterrent to crime and to give us more safety on the boulevard, now we have no such protection. Many of our areas need road improvements and sewers, the money could have been spent more wisely there.

I feel certain that this letter will not be printed by the Orlando paper that is supporting Mr. Morris; however, I'm hopeful that the voters of Lake Mary will have their say in the upcoming election.

E.A. "Carl" Carlson

Randy Morris - Yes

I have to admit that I was a little surprised and disappointed when I read that Lake Mary city commissioner Sheila Sawyer was backing Mrs. Perry for county commissioner against former Lake Mary mayor, Randy Morris. At a recent gathering at Lake Mary City Hall, several of us including Mrs. Sawyer were discussing the coming election for county commissioner. Mrs. Sawyer stated her concerns regarding Mrs. Perry. We got the impression that Mrs. Sawyer did not intend to vote for Mrs. Perry, let alone campaign for her. I actually went away thinking that Mrs. Sawyer was putting her personal feud with Mr. Morris aside and was thinking of her city having representation in the county commission. I gave her too much credit. Was she just saying what she thought we wanted to hear or does she really feel that way about Mrs. Perry, but will back anyone against Mr. Morris? It is a sad commentary, either way.

As far as her comment that she is having to deal with things left by Mr. Morris, there is an issue the city commission is having to deal with for which Mrs. Sawyer is responsible. Several years ago she led the fight to make it impossible for the city to go into any indebtedness that couldn't be paid off within the fiscal year without having a referendum vote on it. For that reason the city is now trying to find a way to pay for paving and drainage in areas that have long had problems. The fact that they cannot go into debt to do this is making it impossible to do the job.

Without Mr. Morris (and Paul Tremel and Tom Mahoney, former commissioners), we would not now have the beautiful boulevard we have, Lake Mary Boulevard has become an example of what can be done in other cities and the city has been commended by many who are trying to use it as an example in their own areas.

It is also a sad commentary that Mr. Perry felt it necessary to bring Mr. Morris' personal situation into the political arena. Both Mr. and Mrs. Morris are fine, responsible people who are trying to work out personal problems in their marriage. They should be allowed to do that in private. It has no bearing on whether or not Mr. Morris would make a good commissioner. It is really going too far.

Mr. Morris worked very hard for Lake Mary and accomplished many good things, and this was always with a positive attitude. I feel that he would carry that same dedication and work effort into being a good county commissioner.

Randy Morris - Yes

As readers of this paper are aware, I have criticized Randy Morris when I felt he was not correct. I will also come to his support when he is correct.

We need a leader in the commission with the experience that Mr. Morris can bring. The county is in a position to attract quality growth. We can't do this without strong and devoted leaders. Mr. Morris has clearly demonstrated his leadership when he was mayor of Lake Mary. I would ask the voters to look at the broad experience Mr. Morris can bring as a commissioner.

We need a strong leader capable of accepting criticism. Please review his past record and give him support in the polls.

Casino gambling in Florida

Methodists' affirmation

In June the Annual Conference of the Florida United Methodist Churches reaffirmed our Social Principles which state:

"Gambling is a menace to society, deadly to the best interests of moral, social, economic and spiritual life, and destructive of good government."

Our church teaches us that personal lifestyles and community standards should make unnecessary and undesirable, resorting to commercial gambling, including public lotteries as a recreation, as an escape, or as a means of producing funds for support of charities or government. Gambling subverts the dignity of work, our historic economic process and the moral basis on which our society can thrive.

There are always those who claim that morality and a calling to a higher responsibility have no place in government or business. For them there are ample facts to make a thinking person wonder what the high priced advertising is not telling. According to state of Florida records, 41 million tourists came to Florida in 1993. That is the most ever in any single year. Where is that struggling tourism industry? If violence has frightened off tourists in 1994 how is gambling going to change that perception in a family oriented market? Florida Trend magazine points out that in the face of the declining novelty of gambling in Las Vegas reflected in less per capita spending, the Las Vegas industry has realized that mere gambling is no longer enough to attract tourists. "Las Vegas is trying to reinvent itself as Orlando."

As for all of those tax revenues and jobs promised by the dreamers of big bucks we have only to recall the inflated promises of the lottery. In truth, state spending, including lottery funds, per student at Seminole High School has decreased steadily.

Dr. John Kindt of the University of Illinois calls gambling "economic cannibalism." He cites statistics showing that for every job created by the gaming industry 2.75 jobs are lost from the rest of the economy and each new compulsive gambler costs society (you and me) $52,000 each year.

It scares me to think that so many people in Florida will make this critical choice about their quality of life and children's future, based on advertising funded in large part by out-of-state gambling giants. Grass roots efforts never have as much money to invest in multimillion dollar media campaigns as the industry giants who see us as virgin territory. Florida Trend reports that Frederick/Schneiders Inc. of Washington D.C. conducted studies as early as last February in which it tried different pro-casino messages to judge their persuasive effectiveness. One of the most compelling arguments was the "everybody else is doing it" ploy. This is the same argument my kids gave me when they wanted to do something they knew was wrong. The truth is, not everybody is doing it. According to states' records the most popular states — Florida, Hawaii, New York and California do not allow casino gambling. Hawaii remains one of the few states that allows no gambling in any form.

We cannot allow this threat to our home to go unchallenged.

Think about it

Nov. 8th, you will be asked to cast your vote either for or against "Limited Casinos" here in the great state of Florida. Before you punch your voting card, ask yourself what will be the advantage or disadvantage to me (meaning yourself). Until the 8th, we will be bombarded with all kinds of ads for and against. It depends on who has the most money, who will have the biggest ads.

I can remember the "sell job" when the lottery was put on the ballot — boy, oh boy. Pie in the sky for Florida and the school system. I won't say we were lied to, just that the movers and shakers neglected to mention the school budget would be cut in half.

My dear old grandpa used to tell me, "There is no such thing as a free lunch and you lie to me once, shame on you. You lie to me twice, shame on me.

Limiting net fishing

When you are in the voting booth ready to pull that lever, give lots of thought to what you are doing.

Show up

I certainly hope that all of the '60 percent' of the voters that claim to be opposed to casinos will show up to vote on Nov. 8. Further, I strongly hope that that 60 percent will bring a friend and/or will urge anyone that will listen to also vote against this bill.

Florida and Orlando do not need casinos. We have all of the qualities already in place that other states and cities strive toward.

Please remember, if you don't take a stand and vote against casinos, apathy will let them in.

Statistics

When we vote Tuesday, the "Limited" Casino issue will be on the ballot. Here are some facts that occurred when casino gambling became legal in other sections of our country.

Crime in Florida is bad enough as it is. Since casino gambling came to Atlantic City, N.J., crime has risen over 230 percent. The number of officers in the police department has increased an amazing 300 percent. In 1991, New Jersey officials ejected from or denied entry into casinos over 200,000 juveniles. In Florida, by law, a juvenile becomes an adult at age 18. It is estimated that there are 1 million 7 hundred thousand juvenile compulsive gamblers in this country, added to between 10 and 12 million adult compulsive gamblers.

When casino gambling came to Gulfport, Miss., comparing the first six months of 1993 to the same period this year, overall crime increased 100 percent; armed robberies increased 218 percent; vehicle theft 166 percent; assaults 66 percent; rapes 300 percent; and burglaries 200 percent.

In Hancock County, Miss. where casino gambling arrived in 1992, comparing the reported crimes for the first six months of 1993 with the same period in 1994; stolen vehicles increased 177 percent; assaults 185 percent; fights 191 percent; burglaries 99 percent; vandalism, 190 percent; thefts 219 percent; child molestation 333 percent; and suicides 900 percent.

Casino gambling was legalized in a small Colorado town in 1991. Drunken driving increased from four per year to one per week. The police department grew from three officers to 14 officers.

Fun or food?

Casino gambling came to Deadwood, S.D. — population 2000 — in 1989. In the year prior, the police department handled 1,259 cases. Two years later the number increased 162 percent to 3,295. Serious crimes including thefts, assaults, and drunken driving have increased 93 percent since 1989. Many casinos give away free whiskey to gamblers.

Fun or food?

Having read most of the sports writers' columns in the state's newspapers, I had hoped that sports writers would start to cover viewpoints other than their own personal views regarding the proposed net ban.

No such luck. As usual, the opinions expressed are those of the Florida Conservation Association (FCA), the primary commercial fishing basher.

Recently, a sports writer from my area, published what he called "The 10 Greatest Myths About Amendment Three," in a recent column. I could easily use well-known facts and dismantle and ridicule each of the little "propaganda-filled" items in his column, however, I am not allowed free access to the paper as he is.

Since I have limited access and space to reply to the constant attacks on my livelihood, let me address a limited part of the effect a net ban will have on me and my family.

My job. What if someone put an amendment on the ballot to do away with newspapers because it kills too many trees to make the paper? That's ridiculous, but so is asking the average voter who knows nothing about fish to manage the fisheries through constitutional amendment.

What do I say to my 15-year-old daughter when she looks up after reading about the attacks on my job, and with tears welling up in her eyes, asks me if she is still going to be able to go to college? How do I calm the rage in my 17-year-old son, a commercial fisherman like his father, grandfather, great grandfather and great-great grandfather when he reads allegations about us in the paper he knows are not true, yet he has no equal chance to combat the lies and propaganda? And my wife of 19 years who thought we had a stable life, with the exception of a few hurricanes and storms, who can't understand why a handful of sports fishermen should be allowed to mislead the voters of Florida into possibly doing away with the life she has known.

If outdoors writers are successful in having nets banned, it is not fish we are dealing with but men's lives. Any biologist in the state will tell you this net ban will not help the fish. It is a simple

Voters hoodwinked

It is with despair that we watch voters of the state of Florida being hoodwinked by a special interest group of sports fishermen.

If passed, the consequences of Amendment 3 are so far reaching that everyone living or visiting in the state will be affected. Fresh Florida seafood will be a thing of the past.

We have lived in many countries where seafood is harvested and sent to the United States for sale. We have seen firsthand the deplorable conditions of the boats and processing plants in Central America, South America, Africa and islands of the Indian Ocean. The FDA is not on sight to regulate or inspect the catch of the day.

The suggestion that Amendment 3 is the definitive "conservation solution" is absurd. The ban of net fishing in state waters serves only the privileged few who can afford the luxury of sport fishing. At present there are 200+ regulations and constant monitoring by state agencies overseeing the net fisheries of Florida.

These fishermen are not plundering the waters with wild disregard for the future. They more than anyone realize that conservation is essential for their own continued livelihood and future.

The state of Florida is in serious financial trouble. Why shut down a viable industry employing thousands of people and at the same time reduce the quality of our lives with a shortage of fresh seafood?

We are fourth generation Floridians who have raised a fifth generation and hope to see a sixth generation take their place in a land that is of the people, not made over by big business and a privileged few.

Preserve heritage

Is it coincidence that the net ban and casinos are on the ballot at the same time? Does it seem strange that they both use the same misleading style of language, depending on the word "limited" to fool voters?

Where do casinos normally locate? Strangely enough, right on the same type of waterfront property that would be vacated by the bankrupt fishing industry!

Isn't it ironic that one amendment would "limit" casinos into existence, on the same type of property?

There may not be any connection, but it sure seems strange that both issues appear, at the same time, in the same manner. In opposing casinos, Attorney General Butterworth said, and I quote, "If this were to get on the ballot, what it means is that a few people are able to buy their way onto the Constitution."

Does that not apply to the net ban? Is our Constitution really for sale to the highest bidder?

Vote No on Amendment 3 to preserve Florida's rich heritage, and our fresh Florida seafood.

Preserve resources

In my 20 years of legislative experience, I have witnessed repeated efforts by our state regulatory bodies to regulate Florida's marine fisheries based on scientific data.

In order to help protect the resource today and in the future, I would strongly encourage you and your friends to cast a Yes vote for Amendment 3 to limit marine netfishing in our inshore waters. By casting a Yes vote for Amendment 3, you will be doing your part to help preserve Florida

Stroke still a mystery to many people - including doctors

By The Associated Press

ORLANDO — It's not surprising that 80 percent of Americans don't know what a stroke is, but what is unacceptable is many physicians still don't know how to diagnose a stroke or treat the problem adequately.

That's according to Dr. Mark Alberts, who has formed the Stroke Belt Consortium — an alliance of doctors, government agencies and health organizations that is meeting for the first time in Orlando this weekend.

Alberts points to a case in North Carolina of a 58-year-old man complained of weakness in his right hand, the emergency room doctor said he probably slept on it.

The second time, two days later, he was told he had a pinched back nerve and was sent home with muscle relaxers.

When his hand became paralyzed, the emergency room doctors scheduled him for surgery for a pinched nerve in his wrist. But at home later that day, he collapsed from a massive stroke and died four days later.

"Had the physicians who took care of him in the emergency room been properly educated, this patient would be alive today," said Alberts, who treated the patient at Duke University Medical Center in North Carolina.

This situation is especially bad in the Stroke Belt, the 11 Southeast states where the incidence of stroke is much higher than in the rest of the country. The consortium hopes to launch a massive educational campaign about strokes.

The death rate due to stroke is more than 32.5 per 100,000 in 11 Southeast states compared to a United States average of 27.7.

Part of the reason is that stroke occurs at a higher rate among African-Americans and in low-income, rural areas where access to high quality health care may be limited. The Southern diet doesn't help.

Problems also occurs at the hospitals.

When someone has a heart attack in a hospital, Alberts said, "All hell breaks loose." But when someone has a stroke in a hospital, it's often several hours before a neurologist sees the patient, according to a study Alberts did recently.

In some cases, neurologists said they were busy or didn't think the patient had a stroke.

"Can you imagine someone having a heart attack in the hospital and the doctor waiting two hours to see the patient because he said he was busy?" Andrews said. "I mean c'mon. It would be gross medical malpractice."

A lot of doctors still think a stroke can't be treated, Andrews said.

A stroke happens when the blood supply to part of the brain is cut off, often because a blood vessel is blocked or bursts. The brain cells begin dying because of the lack of oxygen.

Bethune-Cookman triumphs

DAYTONA BEACH — Vaughnsha Thompson returned a punt 40 yards to set up a 5-yard scoring run by Demetrius Cobbs to give Bethune-Cookman a 31-24 win over Knoxville.

The Bulldogs (11-7) capped an 80-yard drive with a 24-yard scoring pass from Andre Williams to Joe Barr with 28 seconds to play. Morrie Nobles recovered the onside kick for Bethune-Cookman.

Three of four touchdowns for BC (4-6) were set up turnovers and Thompson's punt return, and only one touchdown was on a possession of longer than two plays.

AROUND THE STATE

Back-ups star for Florida

GAINESVILLE — Coach Steve Spurrier sent a wake-up call to his offense on Saturday by benching leading receiver Jack Jackson and three other starters and giving third-string quarterback Eric Kresser a chance to star in Florida's 55-17 homecoming victory over Southern Mississippi.

Jackson, a junior who has 10 touchdowns this season, watched from the sideline in a baseball cap as freshman Reidel Anthony scored on an 87-yard pass play and caught three passes for 149 yards in the first half.

Danny Wuerffel made his second start since replacing one-time Heisman hopeful Terry Dean at quarterback, but Kresser stole the show before a crowd of 85,448 at Florida Field.

The sophomore, whose arm strength makes him more of a threat than Wuerffel to throw deep, tossed the long scoring pass to Anthony on his first snap. He finished 14-of-21 for 309 yards and three TDs.

Florida, taking a break from the Southeastern Conference, improved to 7-1. Southern Mississippi, losing to a ranked opponent for the fourth time this season, is 5-5.

AROUND THE NATION

Kanell leads FSU

ATLANTA — Danny Kanell hit Melvin Wright with two short scoring passes and Warren Dimes scored on a 63-yard run as No. 8 Florida State retained its perfect record in Atlantic Coast Conference competition, downing Georgia Tech 41-10 Saturday.

The Seminoles (7-1, 7-0 ACC) clinched at least a share of a third conference championship in their three years of membership, stretching their league record to 23-0 — longest winning string in ACC history.

Tech (1-7, 0-6) lost its seventh straight.

Second half rally saves Miami

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — James Stewart ran for two scores and Frank Costa threw a 12-yard touchdown pass to Yattil Green as fifth-ranked Miami dominated the second half to beat No. 10 Syracuse 27-6 Saturday and take sole possession of first place in the Big East.

Syracuse (6-2, 4-1 Big East) led 6-0 at halftime on two field goals by Olindo Mare, holding Miami scoreless in the first half for the first time this season. But the Hurricanes (7-1, 4-0) scored on all four of their possessions in the second half, controlling the ball for 18 of 30 minutes.

Gooden out for 1995

NEW YORK — Dwight Gooden, once one of the most feared pitchers in baseball, was banned for the entire 1995 season by the ruling executive council after failing two drug tests while serving a drug suspension.

Gooden, 29, was suspended for violating the terms of his aftercare program and was in the Betty Ford Center from July 22 to Aug. 14.

Parcells out of hospital

FOXBORO, Mass. — New England Patriots coach Bill Parcells was released from a hospital when tests showed he was in good health after experiencing lightheadedness.

Parcells, 53, who has a bad heart problem, returned to Foxboro Stadium after spending the night at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Team owner Bob Kraft said Parcells would coach Sunday against Cleveland.

Jarrett to drive for Yates

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Dale Jarrett, the 1993 Daytona 500 champion, will drive the Ford Thunderbird of Robert Yates Racing in the 1995 Winston Cup series as Ernie Irvan continues to recover from a near fatal crash last August.

Yates announced that Jarrett, 37, will leave Joe Gibbs Racing at the end of the year and take over the Texaco-Havoline car beginning with next February's Daytona 500.

OVIDEO — Lisa Liljenquist and Stephanie Noiseux, the calm and the storm of the Oviedo High School volleyball team, have led the Lions into the Class 6A state semifinals.

Paced by Noiseux and Liljenquist, Oviedo outlasted the Middleburg Broncos 15-5, 12-15, 15-7 to win the 6A Section I championship and earn a berth in the semifinals next Friday at New Port Richey-River Ridge High School.

Liljenquist, the primary setter and floor general in the Oviedo attack, held the Lions together regardless of the score while Noiseux, Oviedo's No. 1 hitter, went head-to-head with Middleburg hammer Jenny Manz and played her to a draw.

"I can't believe we played so well right from the start," said Oviedo coach Anita Carlson, who was coaching in her first sectional championship match. "We had a little problem with serve receive in the second game, but we didn't fall apart. We stayed right there with them."

"Stephanie and Lisa were just outstanding. That No. 12 (Manz) is the best hitter we've seen this season, but I think we're a better all-around team. It takes more than one person to make a team and we're a good team."

The duel between Noiseux and Manz brought the crowd to its feet repeatedly as the two took turns firing bullets at each other and blocking each other's attacks.

"She's real good, the best I've seen," said Noiseux. "We had a video of one of their matches, so I knew what to expect. One thing I did find out is that she doesn't like to be blocked, which is what I was hoping for."

While only three of Noiseux's solo blocks went for sideouts, her constant presence in Manz's face disrupted the Middleburg attack considerably. And what Noiseux didn't get a hand to, Liljenquist, Leah Harkiewicz, Michelle Cutter, Shant, Munnis, and Holly Dunsworth did a fine job of digging off the floor.

As a result, Manz finished with just 11 kills, a considerable accomplishment considering the fury with which she hits the ball.

While the Broncos' emotions rose and fell with Manz, Liljenquist kept the Lions moving along. Ahead or behind in the score, Oviedo displayed impressively even emotions, neither getting too excited or anxious. The only hiccup was a 10-point service run by Middleburg's Heather Braz in the second game.

The Lions' emotional toughness really showed in the third game. After breezing through the first game and losing the second, the Lions found themselves down 6-2 in the third game and on the short end of five-point Middleburg service run.

Liljenquist set Noiseux, who found the floor with an off-speed hit to end the run and get the serve back for the Lions.

"Stephanie's our No. 1 hitter," said Liljenquist. "I can depend on her. I know she'll come through in a tough spot if I can get her the ball."

Oviedo started working its way back and trailed 7-5 when Liljenquist stepped to the

Patriots back in playoffs

DELTONA — You know you are dominating the game when a Homecoming crowd is silent with 10 minutes to go in the contest.

Despite leading just 21-0 with almost a whole quarter to play, the Lake Brantley Patriots had completely disheartened a Deltona Homecoming crowd as the Patriots cruised to a spot in the playoffs by that same 21-0 score at Deltona High School Friday night.

The victory gives Lake Brantley (8-1 overall, 6-1 in Class 6A-District 4) the runner-up spot in the district and a berth into the state playoffs. The Patriots will conclude the regular season next Friday, hosting Lyman in the Homecoming game at Tom Story Field at 7:30 p.m. Deltona (1-8, 1-7) finishes its season by hosting Baker County next Friday.

"I told the kids I was real proud of them," said Lake

Brantley head coach Fred Almon. "We didn't think we would be that good this year, but the kids just keep surprising you."

The Deltona fans got a glimpse of what was to come early in the game as the Wolves fumbled on the opening series of the game and two plays later, after a 43-yard Dee Brown to Brian Whitman pass, Brown ran the ball in from eight yards out to give the Patriots the lead for good.

Lake Brantley scored a touchdown in each of the first three quarters, with Jamie Cuzmar scoring on a seven-yard run in the second quarter and Heathie Ruenour dived in from the five in the third quarter. John Berardi was perfect on all three extra point tries.

The score remained close because of turnovers, the Patriots getting five interceptions to go along with the fumble recovery, and the Wolves intercepting a pass and recovering three fumbles.

LEESBURG — In a season that's had a mind-bending number of ups and downs, the two things that the Seminole High School football team has been able to count on, week in and week out, are tailback Robert Ruffin and the defensive unit.

Both turned in another in a sequence of sterling performances Friday night, Ruffin rushing for a game-high 104 yards on 12 carries while the defense tossed a shutout as Seminole whipped the host Leesburg Yellow Jackets in a 5A-District 6 contest.

The game, which has decided the district champion in past years, was largely meaningless this year since Seminole (5-4 overall, 1-2 in the district) and Leesburg (which ends its season 1-9, 0-3) had already been eliminated from state playoff competition.

Greyhounds super in win over Hawks

LONGWOOD — Doing almost everything right, the Lyman Greyhounds pummeled the visiting Spruce Creek Hawks 34-7 in a 6A-District 4 football contest Friday night at the Carlton D. Renley Athletic Complex.

After a scoreless first quarter, Lyman went ahead when Tommy Dixon connected with Freddie Young on a 22-yard pass into the back of the end zone. Toby Morris' extra point gave the Greyhounds a 7-0 lead with 7:00 left in the first half.

Dixon finished the night completing seven of 20 passes for 187 yards, including touchdown passes of 20 and 80 yards to Morris.

"Our passing game had been struggling the last couple of games, but Tommy really came out and did what he had to do tonight to get it going again," Lyman coach Larry Baker said. "I'm not really concerned with the exact passing stats"

Lake Mary's Recolon Jumps (black uniform) rushed for 130 yards and one touchdown, but it was not enough as William Jennings (making hit) and Oviedo outscored the Rams 23-21 at Don T. Reynolds Stadium Friday night.

Spruce Creek's Bob Harris (No. 44, white) took this kind of punishment from the Lyman defense a lot Friday night as he carried the ball 25 times for 90 yards as the Greyhounds mashed the Hawks, 34-7.

The victory clinches the 6A-District 4 championship for the Bucs (8-1 overall, 7-1 in the district). With the district title comes a home game in the first round of the Class 6A state playoffs on Friday, Nov. 18.

Lake Howell, which needed a win to stay mathematically alive in the hunt for a playoff berth, falls to 4-5 overall and 3-4 in the district.

"They have a few more skill people than we do," said Lake Howell coach Mike Biscaglia. "All we can do is try to regroup and get ready for game at Oviedo next week."

Our kicking game broke down. Twice we fumbled punts that led to touchdowns, they block a punt and turn it into a touchdown, and they returned a punt for a touchdown. And we didn't block or tackle well. Of course, a lot of our missed tackles were because they made us miss. They have a lot of good athletes."

Every mistake the Silver Hawks made, it seemed like Tolver was there to exploit it immediately, as he rushed for one touchdown, passed for three, and returned a punt 71 yards for a score.

Lake Howell struck first, taking the opening kickoff and marching 75 yards on nine plays. Nathan McCoy covered the final 33 yards off a fake punt, taking the short snap and weaving through the Mainland control of the game early, scoring on runs of 2 and 39 yards in the first quarter.

Ruffin also threw touchdown passes of 25 and 27 yards to freshman wide receiver Eric Smith and Cubit Malone added a touchdown run of 11 yards, but the additional points were largely superfluous thanks to the effort of the defense.

Seminole had its way with the Leesburg offense, which did not penetrate the Tribe 30-yard line all night. In the first half, Leesburg ran just 17 offensive plays (six runs, 11 passes).

For the game, the Yellow Jackets netted just six yards rushing and added 45 yards through the air. Kahlii Tucker accounted for most of those yards, rushing eight times for 24 yards and catching a pair of passes for 25 more yards.

Branch finished with 65 yards rushing on nine carries and completed four of 11 passes for 87 yards. Smith had three catches for a total of 67 yards.

The Seminoles will wrap up

Oviedo (5-4 overall, 4-3 in the district, and 2-2 in the SAC). The Lions will wrap up the regular season with their homecoming game next Friday against Lake Howell.

Recolon Jump had another outstanding game for Lake Mary, rushing for 130 yards and a touchdown. The loss breaks a three-game win streak for Lake Mary (4-5 overall, 4-4 in the district, and 1-3 in the conference). The Rams will be Seminole's homecoming opponent next Friday in Sanford.

"I'm just very disappointed that we lost our last home game," said a teary-eyed Jump. "This has been a good season. After being out all last year with a knee injury, I'm having my best season. But, this is so disappointing."

Oviedo took an early 10-0 lead midway through the first half as Mike Giummo scored a 28-yard run and Kellan Eslich boomed a 39-yard field goal one minute into the second quarter.

After being held without a first down in the first quarter, Lake Mary dominated the second quarter. After Andres Acevedo scored on a 1-yard plunge, Tyson Hinshaw gave the Rams a 14-10 lead with a 16-yard touchdown pass to Travis Crawford. Oviedo managed only one first down in the quarter.

Lake Mary lost two fumbles in the third quarter, and Oviedo capitalized on the second one, King giving the Lions a 17-14 lead with an 18-yard touchdown run.

The Rams reclaimed the lead, 21-17, on Jump's 10-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter. But the Lions answered on the ensuing drive. Buchanan completing three passes for 64 yards to set up King's game-winning 2-yard plunge.

between the chamber parking lot and the Sanford Museum. Breezes blew across the lawn from Lake Monroe, carrying with them the varied aromas of all the food being prepared for the festival-goers.

Most of the booths displayed holiday items, giving shoppers a good chance to get started on Christmas shopping. One unique booth, painted a purplish-blue proclaimed "recycling at it's best." The "Tin Lantern" sells tin cans, from common food items, cut, shaped and painted to resemble lanterns with a wrought iron look.

Students from Crooms School of Choice manned one booth, selling the products they produce in their "Business Ownership" class. Teacher Pam Butler said this was the first experience for the students outside of the classroom. Delene Thompson and Jennifer Mutter were two of the students who worked Saturday.

Seminole Work Opportunity Program also had a booth set up at CraftFest, selling the products produced by handicapped workers in the woodshop. Andy Nichols, woodshop supervisor, said they are just starting to work the craft shows, selling their furniture. They had two booths at Pioneer Days 'N Ways and "we will always do Sanford," he said referring to the chamber craft show.

Pauler Stevens of Lake Mary, had a booth displaying her "heritage dolls."

According to her literature, Stevens said her family roots are traced back to lacemakers.

"A young bride always received a lace trimmed handkerchief. The mother or grandmother, after the wedding, fashioned a doll upon which the bride washed and dreamed about her first born." After the baby was born the doll was disassemble and made into the christening bonnet.

On the stage, various groups performed throughout the day. "The Sanford Middle School Jazz Band was great," said Jami Meeks, of the Sanford Historic Trust, Inc. Meeks was selling raffle tickets for the Victorian dollhouse built by members of the Trust. The dollhouse will be on display at CraftFest and at the Cultural Arts Center, headquarters for the Holiday Tour of Homes, Dec. 3 and 4. The drawing for the house will be at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 4. Chances are one ticket for $1, six tickets for $5 and 13 tickets for $10.

Holiday CraftFest continues today, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Along with the crafts, food and entertainment, a car show is planned. The annual Golden Age Games will also kick-off, with opening ceremonies at the Civic Center, adjacent to Fort Mellon Park, at 1 p.m.

these incentives. I think this isn't right."

"I agree," said Commissioner Sheila Sawyer. "With the pressure from our residents for paving and drainage programs, it wouldn't be fair to them to do this."

Mayor Lowry Rockett took a different approach. "We are at the mercy of trying to compete with other cities and the county in trying to lure industry," he said. "We shouldn't go to the extent other governments are going (offering incentives) but to totally say that we aren't going to do anything to perhaps short sighted."

The commissioners commented that whenever a fee is waived for a new industry, they would have to take money from the city's finances, and put it into the income status, which would be the city paying the city, and wouldn't be profitable.

Commissioner David Meador suggested, "Rather than taking this approach, I suggest we meet with these industries when they start looking at Lake Mary, and tell them we will do whatever we can to expedite permitting and approval as soon as possible, even if it occasionally means a special meeting."

He added, "This alone, when you consider the cost of time, would save them plenty of money and be a true incentive."

City Manager John Litton and the staff were instructed to continue looking into the incentive policy plans and bring the matter back to the commission for continuing discussion at a later date.

The Target Industry Development concept was originated at the Seminole County level. Lake Mary is looking at it with a magnifying glass. The city is using some of the county's original wording and planning, but focusing strictly on the area within the city limits.

During previous discussion, several potential or existing target industry districts were pointed out as already being within the scope of the overall plan.

They included areas such as the Heathrow International Business Center (that portion within the city), the General mail Facility, Siemens-Stromberg Carlson, and Strang Communications area.

According to West, other things being looked into include "trying to relax the restrictions in the Target District in order to accommodate the timing of these businesses, cluster residential concentrations, but prohibit residential within the district itself, and minimize the number of non-conformities."

The Lake Mary City Commission held a special early work session to discuss the Target Industry District plans prior to the Oct. 20th commission meeting, and again during this week's meeting.

In addition to the commissioners and staff, others working on this include or have included the Business Advisory Board, and Land Development Code Task Force. The task force has been meeting bi-weekly to go through the codes of the city, focusing attention on how they might be used or changed to meet the use of this far-ranging city project.

equivalent to county court cases in those days," Stephenson explained. "I was appealed and reversed only one time throughout that 12 year period of time, which would give you some indication that, at least, I was attentive and applied the law to the cases, and was knowledgeable in that respect."

For the past nine years, Bravo has developed a mediation practice working with both parties to resolve issues in legal cases. As a mediator, Bravo had developed "people skills" including listening and discerning along with knowledge of the subject matter which he feels would make him a good judge. Although judges do not mediate or arbitrate, Bravo said the right questions could be asked at case conferences to move the cases toward resolution.

If elected, Stephenson will request assignment to the criminal bench. Bravo will ask for a family court division post. Initially, the newly elected judge will serve six months on the juvenile bench.

Stephenson said he will be available anytime for the issuance of search warrants, even if he is not the judge on duty.

"I understand search warrants," the candidate said. "I've done a lot of criminal work. I don't want to be negative, but I'm not sure my opponent would recognize a search warrant from the sports page."

"I think that by and large what I'm bringing to the bench, so to speak, would be a much broader experience," Stephenson said, "and an experience that understands the court system, understands the criminal law aspect of it."

Stephenson did not rule out the possibility of remaining on the juvenile bench after the initial six-month assignment. On the criminal bench, Stephenson said he would work to carefully enumerate reasons for upward departures in sentencing, which should reduce the number of sentences reversed on appeal.

"By realizing and pointing out that the purpose of the sentencing guidelines is punishment and not rehabilitation, that's the cardinal principal, and enumerating these things in writing, I think would help," he added. "I think the word needs to get out, that if judges are tough, you are eventually going to see the number of cases on the docket lessen."

Bravo advocates reviewing cases shortly after they are filed to examine the issues, goals and needs of the parties then try to define how to accomplish the goals and resolve the issues.

"The judge doesn't need to sit there and be a receptacle and make notes," Bravo said. "He can ask questions." If the germane details are identified most issues might be resolved before trial.

Although he plans to request a family court assignment, he said his extensive training dealing with people would also help him on the juvenile or criminal bench.

"The majority of my major earning professional life has been dealing with people," Bravo explained. "People who will try to make you think they are something different from what they really are. When a judge is faced with a criminal, it's going to be easy to pick out the bad guys who've got a long record, a rap sheet, by a response from the victim and descriptions from police. The difference with me is, there's going to be the one who's a little more subtle and cunning, dressed up, painted up. And my experience in dealing with people, I believe, I'll be able to tell the difference between who is a good person who may have made a mistake and who is a bad person who is on the con."

As a judge, Stephenson said he would encourage victims' statements to the court. He added he will not accept plea bargains in criminal cases as judge, if he thinks they are too lenient.

Both judicial candidates said it has been difficult trying to campaign in the two county area. Brevard County voters outnumber Seminole County voters by about 2-to-1. Although both men have practiced law in Seminole County for years and may be known by local voters, Brevard County voters know little about them. "It is impossible for voters in Brevard County to get to know candidates from here in two or three months," Stephenson noted.

Stephenson advocates a system that every judicial candidate is screened so who ever is in the group of candidates is qualified to be a judge, then voters could elect a candidate. When vacancies on the bench occur before a judge's regular term expires, a judicial nominating committee screens candidates and the governor appoints one of three candidates for the post. Judge candidates who seek election in the non-partisan races do not undergo a judicial screening process.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Initially the judge elected November 8 to fill the seat being vacated by retiring Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. will be assigned to the juvenile bench. Judge Leonard Wood, who has been assigned to the juvenile court for six years, is moving to the criminal bench where 1600 new presiding judges are assigned for election this year. In July, the new judge will have his choice of assignments in the various circuit court divisions when annual assignments are made. Circuit civil, circuit criminal, family law and juvenile court are all options to choose.

Voucher

children to private schools will destroy the public school system in the state by taking taxpayer money from pressing needs in the public schools.

According to information provided by the Florida Teaching Professionals-National Education Association (FTP-NEA) and the Florida Education Association United (FEA United), Seminole County stands to lose $18.7 million if the vouchers were instituted.

"We have a system that is collapsing under the growth of 70,000 students each year, many outdated buildings and educational materials and they want to take money out of our schools," Parker said. "It makes no sense."

The employee organizations said the proposal would take money away from the public schools and give it to the parents of children already enrolled in private schools.

According to the data compiled by FTP-NEA and FEA United, the state system of schools would lose nearly three quarters of a billion dollars.

They said that neither Bush nor Brogan has hinted how they would come up with the money to pay for the shortfall it would cause in the schools or how they would pay for the increased numbers of students who would want to attend private schools when the class sizes increase and personnel numbers drop in the face of budget cuts.

Both Bush and Brogan have built their campaigns on promises of no tax increases.

Stinecipher

In 1922, the only occupant of this building was a jeweler. In 1929, there was a men's store and F.W. Woolworth.

The next city directory I has access to was 1952, so I do not know when JC Penneys moved into this building or what other business occupied it after 1929. This building was the location of the Penneys department store until it was moved to Sanford Plaza in the 1960s.

The only other owner of the building after DeForest that I could find was Dr. Vincent Roberts in 1976.

The Road Building

The first building located on this site was destroyed by the 1847 fire; it housed a printing company. The present building was constructed in 1887 shortly after the Sept. 22 fire that destroyed all the downtown buildings except the present Touchton building.

This building, at 108 E. First St., was named after its owner, Frederic H. Rand, who was general manager and attorney for the Florida Land and Colonization Company. Also, Rand, along with E.W. Hench, of Longwood, and Dr. C.C. Haskell, of Maitland, chartered the South Florida Railroad in the early 1880s. This was later merged with the Henry Plant system, and Rand became the general freight agent and ticket agent. The old Rand Yard located west of Sanford is being considered as a possible site for the new Auto Train terminal.

The original arrangement of this building was two stores downstairs and offices on the second floor. The 1895 Sanborn map shows that a furniture, moulding and carpet store was at street level while a lodge occupied the upstairs. The lodge remained there at least through 1906. In 1912, the upstairs tenant was the Telephone Exchange. R.H. Bronson was the manager who lived across the street. On April 20, 1959, the entire second floor was leased to Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph which remained there until at least 1958.

Meanwhile, downstairs was a grocery store and a grain and feed store in 1908. A furniture store was there in 1917, and a grocery store in 1917. The grocer was Louis P. McCuller whose residence was on Holly Avenue.

Sometime before 1908, Sanford's first newspaper, the Sanford Journal, was located on the second floor. I'm sure you realize that the Sanford Herald was founded in 1908.

In 1952, Ivey's Shoe Store and the Hollywood Shop were the occupants. John Ivey was the owner of the shoe store; he later moved down the street and Don Knight bought him out in 1969. The Hollywood Shop was there until at least 1959. Mrs. Rose Levy was the manager of this ladies apparel shop and the owner was Frank Shames. Dot Morrison remembers working there in the 1940s along with Martha Page. The present occupants of this building are Betty Anne's Hairstyling and Cafe Jake's.

The original owner of the building was Frederic Rand. In 1923, R.A. Newman and W.C. Hill owned it. More recent owners were Vincent and Sheila Roberts and A.K. and Sophia Shoemaker who sold it in 1986 to the present owner, Gerald Goss.

'Puttin' on the Glitz' coming

Garden club flaunts fashions, Nancy honored

For those who need a little motivation to get in the holiday mood, then "Puttin' on the Glitz" may just be the magical nudge. This colorful show and luncheon will be held at the Sanford Woman's Club on Wednesday, Nov. 16, beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Annually, the Woman's Club of Sanford Inc. stages this "Fashions for Education" event to provide a scholarship for a deserving woman to return to the classroom of her choice.

Under the chairmanship of the club's Education Department, chaired by Pat Foster, the club has been providing this scholarship for 11 years. Winners have gone on to earning degrees in their chosen fields. Many are single moms who were motivated and inspired by the woman's club scholarship.

A glittering holiday atmosphere will be reflected in the quaint clubhouse as local models give patrons a preview of holiday fashions and casual attire. Pat Foster said she is excited over the array of lovely fashions being supplied from Gayfers. There will also be a variety of door prizes.

Pretty models puttin' on the Ritz will be: Tina Lee, Lisa Clontz, Dottie Anthony, Gail Smith, Fran Mitchell, Linda Keeling, Donna Frank, Peggy Teten, Shannan Stewart, Debbie Jarvis, Robin Vonas, Joanne Lucas Bourg, Lesley Daniels and Roberta Zittower.

Handsome gentleman models joining the distaff side will be

Blue ribbon winners in arts, crafts fest

At the November meeting of the Sanford Woman's Club, the clubhouse was ablaze with color at the club's annual Arts and Crafts Festival. Pat Brooks, chairman of the Arts Department, said she was very pleased with the exhibit. Blue ribbon winners of this festival will advance to district competition in February and blue ribbon winners of that contest will vie in state competition in the spring.

Church honors founder-pastor; 5-year-old wins choir contest

Grace Apostolic Temple Church, its founder and pastor, celebrated its ninth anniversary, Nov. 7-20. The church is located on Southwest Road and 18th Street. The two weeks of celebration are open to the community.

Pastor Maurice Bennett was born in Charleston, S.C. and he later moved to Sanford. He received the baptism of the holy spirit in April 1975, and became a member of Marantha New Life Center under the leadership of Bishop James Griffen. In later years the calling to the ministry was accepted by Bennett and he became assistant pastor of Marantha and was appointed as minister of the Outreach ministry, devotional leader, and active in other church activities.

The Lord laid on Pastor Bennett's heart the need to organize a new church. He, along with some faithful followers, founded the Grace Apostolic Temple Church, Sanford, Nov. 6, 1985, saw the first service held. He has for nine years served the congregation as pastor and they declared the truth that God is still working miracles in Pastor Bennett's life. The members

Canvas stitchery relaxing after hours for busy banker

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Being a working mother has never stopped Barbara Brown. She has devoted 46 years to the banking business as an employee for SunBank in Sanford. Yet, her husband Thomas, of 40 years and children, Allen and Cheryl, have never doubted where mom's priorities are. She now has five grandchildren who are the apple of her eye.

Even though many hours of her day are occupied with banking, she still finds time for other activities. The family has been members of the Grace United Methodist Church in Lake Mary for 32 years. Brown is the treasurer of the Pinecrest Crime Watch and has held that title for three years. She has been active in boy scouting for some time as a den leader and assistant cub master. She said, "Six years this last time I've been involved."

Brown enjoys relaxing with her plastic canvas. Although she began working with needlepoint her switch to the canvas began some 10 years ago. "I took a class because I wanted to do needlepoint," she said. "For there I more or less taught myself the canvas."

Starting small is the advice Brown gives to beginners. "I started with doing small things, then graduated to doing more detailed things," she said. "A basic tissue box cover, bookmarks, picture frames and book covers are a good start. Learn the basic stitches." She continued to speak about the names of the various stitches. "There is a tent stitch, the slanting goblin, the continental and the upright goblin. I find that most people have a hard time with French knots. There's also the straight stitch, back stitch and overcast. That's when you finish the edges."

It's not unusual to see a sampling of Brown's work on her desk at SunBank. They add a beautiful accent to the workplace. Her eye for detail accentuates the lovely variety of stitches and colors. "I make roses out of the plastic canvas," she said. "I added some to the tissue box covers. I make bird house tissue box covers and put little birds on them. I make pencilholders for teachers with an apple and a little worm coming out of the apple. It's always a big hit with them. I also make a tissue box cover that looks like a Christmas present."

Although much of Brown's work has been that something special to give to friends and relatives she spoke proudly about her upcoming venture. "I've always made things as gifts," she said. "I decide I'd try to sell some. My first show is coming up this weekend at Ft. Mellon Park." Pinpointing a favorite of her creations, Brown said, "I really enjoy doing the roses and the birdhouses." She elaborated about the detail given to the roses. "There's so much more involved in making the petals on the roses," she said. "It's a lot of working in the flowers and leaves and then working them all in together."

Brown further spoke of the canvas work. "I use a basic pattern," she said. "I design mine as I go along. I may see something and think it may look good on the tissue box. I use just regular heavy four-ply crocheted thread. The pattern may call for blue and I may not want blue in it so I change colors and do my own thing."

"Doing whatever the mood strikes me," is another way Brown describes the other projects she does. She works on padded picture frames and baby quilts, grapevine wreaths and crochets. But, by far, she still loves the plastic canvas best. "Most of what I do is the plastic canvas. It's my favorite."

maker of Dow Bathroom Cleaner, sponsored such a contest asking parents to submit their favorite, most imaginative tub time entertainment tips and explain how bath time is a special bonding time between them and their children. The contest information and details were featured in the "Family Fun" magazine among others.

Crystal McConnell of Longwood, mother of three, a former teacher of the visually impaired, and currently a mother and craft person, creative beyond one's own imagination, entered the Dow Bathroom Cleaner Contest and won honorable mention for her bath time idea which incorporates fun and learning then allows for more sophisticated learning as the child grows and matures the idea submitted and created by Crystal in making your own bathtub stickers by taking solid colored placemats and cutting out different shapes easily recognized by the children such as a whale, a starfish, a seahorse, a diver etc.

These shapes will float in the bathtub and then will stick on the wall to create your child's own "wall habitat." As the child grows, the figures can be of anything your child might be interested in, such as barnyard animals, a favorite cartoon character and his friends, or letters for learning to read.

As a winner in the Dow Bathroom Cleaner contest, Mrs. McConnell received a year's supply of Dow bathroom cleaner, and each one of her three children received a white towel monogrammed with their first names, a check for $25 is also expected. This is the first contest that Crystal McConnell has ever entered.

The first place winner in the Dow contest won $10,000 for her idea of teaching geography lessons during bath time. Each night the children would refer to the atlas and decide on the cruise of their dreams and using finger paints would draw the map of the country on the tub walls and set sail during the bath.

The second place winner won $5,000 for her idea of Bathtub Science. Mom equips the bathtub with food coloring and scientific instruments such as an eyedropper, measuring cups and spoons. Avoid letting the food coloring come into contact with the grout, warns the mom.

The third place winner of $1,000 entered the contest with a creative cooking idea. Filling the plastic box next to the tub with "cooking utensils," the mom and children narrate their favorite cooking show using bubbles for the ingredients.

According to a survey by Dow Brands, 92 percent of American parents with children under the age of six, say that their children look forward to a trip to the bathtub. It is a special time for parents and children.

Chambers to merge

The Executive Board of the Longwood-Winter Springs Chamber of Commerce agreed to merge with the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce. The Longwood-Winter Springs Chamber of Commerce office will be open for the next two months and the organization will proceed with their scheduled Nov. 30 awards banquet and their holiday party to be held in the month of December. The Longwood-Winter Springs chapter has about 140 members that will be a great asset to the Greater Seminole County Chamber. According to Wanda Kelly, president of the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, "we're excited about the merger, and we're all looking forward to doing bigger and better things that will benefit all of Seminole County."

Dancing for MS

The Fred Astaire Dance Studios of Longwood and Winter Park have held three dance shows to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association throughout the 1994 year. "A Winter Wonderland," and "That's Dancin'," and "The Best of Broadway" included amateurs and professionals performing a variety of ballroom dances.

Fred Astaire's dedication to the Muscular Dystrophy Association allows MDA to continue to make breakthroughs on the research front and to provide top quality services such as clinic, summer camp and support groups, at no cost to the patients or their families.

Luncheon-debate

The League of Women Voters of Seminole County will sponsor a luncheon and debate at Alauqua Country Club on Nov. 17, at 11:30 a.m. Barbara Roth, debate coach at Lake Mary High School, will describe the school's program and two students from the debate team will declare opposing arguments on the topic of U.S. immigration policy. The cost of the luncheon is $8.50, please call 366-6516 for reservations.

Shower honors Nancy Terwilliger

Bride-elect Nancy Terwilliger is in the social limelight these days when she is being entertained at a series of lovely pre-nuptial parties. Nancy, the daughter of Linda and Jim Terwilliger, will become the bride of Roy Rivers on Dec. 3 at the First United Methodist Church.

The first party was a shower given by the "Carlton Aunts" at the beautifully furnished Dogwood Drive home of Mary and Bill Bridges with 40 guests attending. The table was decorated with an ornate bride and groom teddy bear couple complete with a bride's gown and tuxedo. A lace umbrella was suspended over the table of gifts while pots of colorful mums were placed at vantage points.

Each guest brought a favorite recipe to share with Nancy. Everyone seemed to enjoy the one on "Preserving a Husband."

Nancy opened the gifts seated on an exquisite red velvet and carved rosewood loveseat.

Hostesses were Nancy's great aunts: Mary Bridges, Ouida Tuttle, Darlene Carlton and Ruth Carlton. They served a luscious lemon dessert, homemade heart and rose nuts and toasted nuts.

Prizes were won by Phyllis Wallace and Margaret Wood.

The hostesses presented Nancy with a recipe card book and six Lismore champagne flutes in her registered Waterford crystal pattern.

Fashions bow out at garden club

The Garden Club of Sanford was the site of a fall fashion show on Thursday, Oct. 22. The club's annual card party was also held in conjunction with the parade of fashions.

About 100 guests were on hand as club members modeled colorful fashions provided by Resort Fashions of Florida, Melbourne. Models were: Pat Foster, Barbara Bradshaw, Betty Akers, club president, Jackie Partain, Rosa Rotundo and Ann Warner. After the luncheon, card games were enjoyed for the remainder of the afternoon. The event was catered by Jake's. Guests were served Chicken Tetrazzini, Fruit Mold, Deviled Eggs, rolls, beverages and cake for dessert.

The club will sponsor a Holiday Craft Sale and luncheon on Friday, Dec. 2, and Saturday, Dec. 3, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., both days. Sounds like an excellent time to get in some holiday shopping.

Gangster getup wins cruise

Dressing up as a bigtime gangster won Dominick Spignardo a cruise to the Bahamas.

Dominick heard over Radio 104.1 that a Halloween contest would be going on at Church Street Station in Orlando with a cruise as the prize for the person who best portrayed Vinnie Bonobatz.

So, Dominick went out and purchased a pin-stripe suit, a wide-brimmed black hat and a big cigar. He slicked his hair down and used "lots of padding" to enhance his 125-pound frame. Dominick's efforts paid off since he was judged first place winner.

Dominick, manager of Circle K on West First Street, said this is the first prize he has ever won and he is looking forward to the cruise with his wife, Carolyn, who dressed as a gangster girl in the contest. "I'll believe it when it happens," he laughed.

Italian Feast draws large crowd

There was a great turnout for the Lake Mary Woman's Club Italian Feast, Friday, Oct. 28, at the community center in Lake Mary. This is the seventh year the woman's club has hosted the feast. More than 300 tickets were sold for the feast which included pasta, garlic bread, salad and dessert.

Kathy Arena of Lake Mary won a beautiful gourmet basket of goodies that was raffled off during the feast. The Italian feast is one of the main fundraisers for the Lake Mary Woman's Club. They use opportunity well. Besides raffling off a gourmet basket, the club also sold the table decorations. The decorations were terrific looking Halloween ghosts that were made by members of the woman's club.

The profits from the fundraiser will go to several charities the club sponsors. These charities include the Hacienda Girls Ranch in Melbourne and a Seminole Community College scholarship fund for displaced homemakers.

Scouts celebrate

Three Lake Mary Girl Scout troops held a dual purpose party,

Wednesday, Oct. 26. It was a Halloween party and a birthday party. Juliette Low, the founder of Girl Scouts, was born on Halloween so most Girl Scouts try to remember her on that day.

In the spirit of Halloween everyone wore costumes. Most of the girls were dressed as a person of one type or another, but one girl did come as a picnic table.

Brownie Troop 1397 is the new sister troop of Junior Troop 148. The girls must do certain activities together as part of their bridging to the next level of Girl Scouts. Also at the party were girls from Cadette Troop 441. Troop 148 taught the girls from 1397 and 441 how to play cooperative chairs. They also told stories and ate quite a bit of junk food.

Couples announce with favor their parting of the ways

DEAR ABBY: Have you ever heard of couples issuing a divorce announcement? My wife and I are considering it.

DEAR SPLITTING: Yes, I certainly have. In April 1989, I published the following:

DEAR ABBY: After a sincere but futile effort to make her marriage work, our daughter Barbara, has filed for divorce.

Since her father and I officially announced her marriage by sending engraved announcements to friends and family, we think it fitting and proper to do the same for her upcoming divorce. We think it will set the record straight officially, and we hope that friends and relatives will not call to ask us if what they heard was true. Has this ever been done before?

BARBARA'S PARENTS DEAR PARENTS: Your idea is both clever and practical, but it has indeed been done before. Read on for a few authentic divorce announcements that were sent by readers (names have been changed).

Cow Caper set

The Lake Howell High School PTSA is sponsoring "The Great Cow Caper and Class Challenge" on Thursday, Nov. 10 on the school's football field (the team is playing an "away" game on Friday).

Prior to the Cow Caper, various school clubs will serve dinner from 6 to 7 p.m. and other clubs will sell snacks and offer games and other fun events.

Make the right choice when it comes to drugs

By LYNDSAY HOLLIDAY
Special to the Herald

LONGWOOD — A good average amount of kids, ages 10 years old and up, have at least tried, been offered or have had encounters with drugs.

Drugs are sometimes prescribed for:

- a.) colds
- b.) asthma
- c.) pains
- d.) cancer, etc.

All drugs prescribed to people for things ranging from the common cold to cancer can all be overused, or in other terms, cause an overdose.

There are all kinds of drugs as well as prices.

There are prescription drugs which a lot of people have easy access to.

There's marijuana where you can buy a joint (a marijuana cigarette) which you can buy for a little amount of money, up to bags ranging from five to 20 dollars.

There are several other types of illegal drugs available for purchase, including crack, cocaine, angel trumpets, and mushrooms. The list can go on. There is really no problem choosing.

People use drugs for several reasons.

They want them for an easy

Lyndsay Holliday

"high." They also want them because it releases stress as well as making them feel good.

Peer pressure plays a role for some kids who want to try drugs for the first time and for those who are already users.

Different people have different reasons doing drugs just like the people that choose to say "no" have their own reasons.

Drugs affect different people in different ways and the effects aren't always good.

So when the time comes for you to try ask yourself if drugs are going to be a part of you or are you staying away?

The choice is all yours, so let your mind be the one to decide.

Democratic processes is 'cool' to some kids

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Tiffany Lettler will be eligible to vote next year, but she says she doesn't think she will bother.

"After all," she said, "What the heck difference does it make. The same old people get elected every time."

"Cynical? Bitter?"

"No really, I'm just a realist," she noted. "I've listened to my mom talking about the situation with politics and the government since I was a little tiny kid and it hasn't changed. It'd be ridiculous for me to expect it to change just because I voted."

Jeremy Dennis, 15, can't wait to vote.

"One little vote can change the whole world," he said. "We can make a huge difference."

Dennis said he believes that if enough "just one votes" get together on an issue, all of a sudden, they are "one big voting block" and they can change things.

"I don't think I can change the world just by going out and voting, but we all need to get out and voice our opinion."

Kelly Ford, 17, said he has never given much thought to the election process.

"I really don't give a damn," he said. "Politics is just a crock anyway. Who cares who gets elected? They're all the same after a while."

Jasmyne Reynolds, 14, said no one in her family has ever even talked about voting and she doesn't know enough about politics to say she'd ever vote.

"I don't know," she said. "Maybe I'll vote. I don't know."

Sharon Sheehan said she can't wait to have the opportunity to vote.

"It'll be five years, but I can't wait," she said. "I think it's so cool that I can go out there and tell someone my opinion and have it matter. That is so cool."

James Lefferfeld, 15, agreed that the democratic process is "cool."

He added, "Hey, I think it's pretty neat that something I have to say actually makes a difference to somebody. When you're a teenager nobody gives damn what you have to say about anything. When you can vote, what you have to say makes a difference. That's cool."

Real life is drug free

In celebration of Red Ribbon Week, the students at Hamilton Elementary School got a pep talk from the members of the Drug Free Team at Naval Training Center in Orlando. DPI Cindi Alfaro spoke to one group of kids about ways to say no to drugs and to live happy, drug free lives. The students were eager to have a strong defense against drugs that they could use as ammunition in the war against drugs. Red Ribbon Week has been expanded to a month long celebration in Seminole County. Each school has celebrated the event in its own special way.

All about cholesterol

'Good' and 'bad' explained, risk factors

By RENEE KEITH
Herald Correspondent

Learning about "good" and "bad" cholesterol will make a marked difference in how a person approaches their daily diet. For instance, shrimp is full of cholesterol, but the real danger lurks in the slyly packaged "cholesterol free" cookies. You see, shrimp contains very little of the fat that makes that cookie taste so good. And it is the "saturated fat" in food not the cholesterol that has the greatest effect on your cholesterol level.

No wonder people are confused.

Shelley Dowlen knows just how important it is to keep a watchful eye on her cholesterol level. "I've always watched my cholesterol and fat intake," said Dowlen. "In my family, my father had high cholesterol as well as my brother. It can be confusing in the beginning learning the in's and out's of cholesterol, but it's very important and well worth taking the time to learn."

WHAT IS CHOLESTEROL?

Cholesterol, a white, waxy fat found naturally in your body, is used to build cell walls and make certain hormones. Too much of it, though, can clog your arteries and eventually cut off the supply of blood to the heart, which is the reason high cholesterol is a leading risk factor for heart disease. Other risk factors include high blood pressure, smoking, a family history of premature heart disease, physical inactivity, diabetes and obesity.

PUTTING CHOLESTEROL TO THE TEST:

Who is at risk for high cholesterol, according to the National Cholesterol Education Program, everyone aged 20 and older. At the very least, men over the age of 35 should be tested regularly, and women over 35 with any risk factors, once every five years. The tests should be done by a physician, who can measure the "LDL" as well as the total cholesterol.

The test measures the total amount of cholesterol in your blood. The "HDL" or "good" cholesterol, which cleanses the arteries, plus the "LDL" or "bad" cholesterol, which builds up and clogs the arteries.

The following guidelines are recommended by the National Cholesterol Education Program for reading your test results:

• Risk factor is HIGH if the total cholesterol is above 239, the LDL is above 159 and the HDL is less than 35.

• Risk factor is BORDERLINE when total cholesterol is between 200-239 and the LDL is between 130-159.

• The DESIRABLE level of total cholesterol is below 200, the LDL is below 130 and the HDL is above 60.

PHYSICAL ACTIVITY:

Brisk walking, running, swimming, cycling, dancing, jumping rope, skating or aerobics three or four times a week may help to raise the level of beneficial HDL in your bloodstream.

DIET:

Following a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet can usually reduce your blood cholesterol by about 10 to 15 percent, thus lowering your risk of heart disease 20 to 30 percent. Individual results will vary, depending on genetic makeup and former eating habits. Reduce saturated fat intake: butter, whole milk, cheese, ice cream, red meat, palm oil, palm kernel oil, coconut oil, hydrogenated soybean and cottonseed oils; and cholesterol; eggs, meat, butter and whole milk.

Eat unsaturated fats, such as corn, sunflower seed and safflower oils, and monounsaturates such as olive and canola oils. Polyunsaturates lower both the LDL and HDL levels, where monounsaturates lower only the harmful LDL levels.

Plan ahead for a healthy, happy holiday season

Editor's note: This column is one in a rotating series written by local health and fitness professionals, to give different viewpoints on health care and healthy lifestyles.

By LINDA MALICZOWSKI
Special to the Herald

Linda Maliczowski

Do you ever wonder how certain people manage to glide through the holidays without any, seemingly ill effects - stress, weight gain, exhaustion, or depression? They have time to decorate, shop wrap, have fourteen people to dinner and still play tennis three times a week!

These people usually have several things in common: first and foremost, organization! You must decide what you want to do and then decide what you can realistically do. Trying to do more than you can feasibly accomplish is just asking for disaster.

Another component to successfully carrying out your holiday plans is balance. You must be able to balance your output: shopping work, parties, volunteer work; with your input, sensible diet, rest and relaxation. We all know that our daily routines will be altered somewhat, but by keeping as close as possible to the norm can make all the difference in the world.

If your daily regimen starts with a walk or a jog and you know that this just won't be possible, try improvising. After a large holiday dinner, you might suggest a stroll around the block for all of those interested. An alternative exercise option might be to catch a quick aerobics program on television a couple of mornings to give you that extra 20 or 30 minutes you desperately need.

Holidays are a time for feast and celebration. We need to be sure we don't overdo, especially on the feasting part. This doesn't mean you can't have that piece of pecan pie with whipped cream, just make it a small one. Be sure you are getting your share of fresh fruits and vegetables to balance it out. Balance is the key.

Here are some tips for a stress-free holiday:

• Try to stick as close as possible to your regular daily routine: exercise, pattern, sleep, etc.

• Eat as close to the same time every day and try not to vary your diet too much. Skipping meals will cause a blood sugar drop and could cause fatigue and increased mental stress.

• Take advantage of any time you find to relax or squeeze in an extra nap; you will give yourself an extra hedge against exhaustion.

• Most importantly, take time to be with your family and loved ones. Just have fun and share the holiday spirit, that's what it's all about!

There are no small victories in the fight against heart disease.

UF study uncovers enzyme for skin disorder, relationship to other autoimmune diseases

By CONNIE DAUGHTRY
Special to the Herald

GAINESVILLE — Discovery of an enzyme responsible for a common skin disease that leaves milky white patches on the body and its association with autoimmune (self-attacking) diseases may provide clues to effective treatment for the disfiguring malady, researchers report.

Persons with vitiligo, an autoimmune skin disorder, lose their skin color due to the loss of melanocytes, pigment-forming cells in the skin's outer layer.

Writing in the Oct. 15 issue of the British Journal of Dermatology, researchers at the University of Florida report that excessive levels of the naturally occurring enzyme tyrosinase trigger the body's attack on melanocytes.

Tyrosinase at normal levels is responsible for the production of melanin in melanocytes," says UF scientist Dr. Yao-Hua Song. "Each individual has an 'acceptable' level of tyrosinase but when there is an excess, due to an outside factor, an antibody in the body's immune system will destroy all of the tyrosinase which will stop production of melanin."

Song says there are a number of reasons why some individuals' levels of tyrosinase are high, including genetic predisposition and the individual's susceptibility to the sun's ultraviolet rays.

Tanning or darkening of the skin is the body's effort to protect the skin from the sun's ultraviolet rays. In normal individuals, exposure to the sun increases the production of melanin. In vitiligo sufferers, melanin production is nonexistent due to the immune system's destruction of tyrosinase.

Based on their one-year study of 26 patients, the researchers also noted that antibodies that react against the body's pigment-forming cells are present in the blood of vitiligo patients who also have other autoimmune diseases including hyperthyroidism, Addison's disease and insulin-dependent diabetes.

"Our final goal for the study is to find a way to restore normal pigmentation in patients with vitiligo by stopping the immune system's attack on melanocytes," says Song. "What we will eventually determine is whether treatment for patients with vitiligo and some other autoimmune disease should be different from the way we treat patients with vitiligo only."

Song and UF pathologist Dr. Noel Maclaren, who heads one of the nation's leading diabetes research teams, have produced a tyrosinase protein in bacteria which they plan to introduce in mice bred with a susceptibility to vitiligo.

"We're expecting that introduction of high levels of this protein into the immune system will enable the body to build a tolerance to overproduction of the enzyme, therefore allowing the regrowth of melanocytes," says Song. "Our final outcome would be to achieve repigmentation for humans."

Maclaren says studying this disease also could result in identifying patients with vitiligo who are likely to develop other autoimmune diseases.

The disorder occurs first on the hands, feet, elbows and neck. Facial lesions are common, especially around the eyes and mouth. Repigmentation occurs in a small percentage of vitiligo patients. In addition to overexposure to sunlight, stress also can trigger an increase in the loss of pigment-forming cells.

Although vitiligo has no known life-threatening effects, it can impair the psychological well-being of its sufferers. Entertainer Michael Jackson announced to the world that he has vitiligo in response to accusations of "chemical" lightening his skin.

"Many individuals who have vitiligo find that using make-up usually has disappointing results," says Song. "It's best that these individuals avoid the sun and stress until we can find a treatment."

For more information about participating in the UF study call the Diabetes Research Center at (904)392-7836.

Connie Daughtry may be contacted for more information at the University of Florida Health Science Center Communications Office at (904)397-3621.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

In Great Britain, this is Guy Fawkes Day, named for the person who masterminded the attempt to blow up the Houses of Parliament on this date in 1605, during the opening address by King James I. Unfortunately for Guy Fawkes, one of his gang was especially friendly with a Member of Parliament. This gang member sent his friend a letter, telling him not to attend the opening of parliament. The MP realized there could only be one reason for this strange request. The cellars were searched, the gunpowder kegs defused and the conspirators arrested.

Guy Fawkes didn't keep proper control of his gang. Today's deal, from a tournament in London, also features control of the most important suit: trumps.

When North raised South's pre-empt, East was worried that he was being talked out of a game or slam. Perhaps he should have doubled. Then West would have bid four no-trump to show his minor two-suiter. However, five clubs goes one down, whereas four spades can be beaten.

West led the heart two South, wondering if this was a singleton or from the king, decided that if East had a heart void, the contract was probably doomed. South called for dummy's heart ace. Then he continued with another heart: king, Jack, diamond two.

Despite his partner's discard, East switched to the diamond king. South won with dummy's ace and played a club, leaving the defenders with no resource.

"Ace and another trump is useless too," observed East. "Declarer just runs the heart suit."

"True," replied West. "But how about switching to the spade two? Then we maintain trump control and win one spade, one heart and two clubs."

New driving force for auto club

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

HEATHROW — The nation's leading auto club with headquarters in Heathrow has a new driving force.

Robert L. Darbelnet will move from Quebec, Canada to Heathrow as head of the American Automobile Association.

Darbelnet, who has been president and CEO of the Montreal Automobile Club and Quebec Automobile Club, was unanimously elected Tuesday, as the new head of the 36-million member AAA.

At a special meeting this past Tuesday, the AAA Board of Directors named Darbelnet to succeed Paul R. Verkuil as president and chief executive officer. Verkuil announced in April that he would not continue beyond his original three year term as president. That term would expire this December.

In announcing the selection, Chairman Lawrence B. Lindemer said, "Bob Darbelnet is a well known and respected auto club president who will guide the association as it moves forward to implement the plans and programs developed over the last three years."

Under Verkuil's leadership, a thorough evaluation of AAA's competitive environment was completed, a new strategic plan was developed, and AAA reached the 36-million member mark in a record seven months. Born in Portland, Maine with dual American and Canadian citizenship, Darbelnet is a graduate of Sainte-Foy College, and holds a law degree from Laval University. He and his wife, Mary Ann, have two children.

He has had his share of involvement in many aspects of auto club work. After graduation from college in 1972, he joined the Quebec Auto Club as an emergency road service driver. He has also served in various other capacities.

He is secretary of the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety and vice president of the International Tourism Commission, and a member of the Judiciary Committee of the Federation Internationale de l'Automobile (IAI), in Paris, France.

deal for Sound Quest Inc., a car stereo accessories unit based in Chicago. Recoton has moved a dozen Sound Quest jobs to Lake Mary and plans to move another 30 here next year, Borchardt said.

Recoton, which moved its headquarters to Lake Mary from Long Island, N.Y., last year, employs more than 700 at the local plant.

Meanwhile, efforts continue at the Lake Mary facility to provide room for expansion. This past Thursday, the Lake Mary City Commission considered a petition to voluntarily annex a five-acre parcel on Emma Oaks Trail, approximately 1,200 feet west of Lake Emma Road.

The property is to be developed as part of the Recoton headquarters. According to Lake Mary City Planner Matt West, it is to be developed in conjunction with a 27-acre parcel directly to the east, which is already in the city limits.
