Cops: similarities in Sanford business break-ins

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford Police believe the soaring number of business burglaries along the south end of U.S. Highway 17-92 may be the work of someone imitating a pattern established in a rash of prior burglaries.

The major area is south of the 2400 block of French Avenue, through the 3800 block of S.

“Once we arrested Smith, the burglaries stopped in that area, but now they are going again.”

—Police Cmdr. Dennis Whitmire

Orlando Drive.

Over a dozen break-ins have been reported to police in the same general area during the past four weeks.

“Most of these burglaries are similar in that they seem to involve a roof job,” said Police Commander Dennis Whitmire. He explained, “A roof job is when the point of entry is made through the roof of a business, which often has air conditioning ducts which can be broken open, or other openings.”

Whitmire said the burglaries may be the work of a copycat burglar.

School board may sue state

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — County school officials will vote Tuesday night on a resolution that would support a statewide lawsuit to force the state Legislature to provide more money for public education.

The lawsuit, being brought by a coalition of school boards around the state, calls for the state Legislature to provide “adequate funding” for education in all 67 of Florida's school districts. Seminole County currently ranks among the lowest in the state for state funding.

District and state school board officials say that until changes are made in the way the state

Residents recycle a little less in July

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Recycling in Seminole County slipped a bit in July, according to a monthly report released by the county Recycling and Solid Waste Division last week.

A total of 7.7 million lbs. of recyclable materials were collected by the county and seven cities during July. That's about a half million pounds less than the 8.2 million lbs. collected during June, according to county reports. The July figure is greater than the 7.1 million lbs. collected in July last year. Curbside yard waste pickup dropped from 3.2 million to 2.6 million lbs.

The county is required to track all garbage in an effort to gauge its progress towards a 30 percent disposal reduction by the end of 1994.

The rate of curbside recycling in the unincorporated areas dropped slightly from nearly 1.3 million lbs. to less than 1.2 million lbs. Unincorporated yard waste collections edged up to 606,480 lbs. from 595,700 lbs.

In the cities, Sanford recycling dropped from 149,180 lbs. to 137,420 lbs. The city's yard waste

Area seniors talk about Clinton plan for elderly care

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Some area senior citizens are taking a wait and see attitude on White House proposals to provide the elderly with new drug and long-term care benefits while others claim the elderly on fixed incomes might have to decide whether to buy food or their medications under the plan.

Under the White House plan, Medicare savings will be achieved not by scrapping existing benefits but by ratcheting down health care inflation across the board. The long term care benefits for both the elderly and younger Americans with disabilities would cost $80 billion and the drug benefits $72 billion

Tropical Storm Floyd forms in Atlantic

MIAMI — The sixth tropical storm of the season has formed in the Atlantic Ocean, but forecasters don't expect it to hit the United States.

"The only land it's going to be close to is Bermuda," said Max Mayfield, hurricane specialist with the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables.

Tropical Storm Floyd began as a strong tropical wave on Aug. 28 off the coast of Africa, but it failed to develop until Tuesday.

"It got its act together and developed quickly," Mayfield said.

Floyd, with winds near 50 mph, may turn north and then northeast Wednesday, Mayfield said. Some strengthening was expected.

At 5 a.m. EDT, the center of Floyd was near latitude 30.5 north, longitude 69.8 west, or about 315 miles west southwest of Bermuda. The storm was moving north-northwest near 20 mph.

Patrolman shoots teen, wounds another

MIAMI — A Florida Highway Patrolman shot and killed a 15-year-old boy and wounded another teen after a brief car chase and shootout northwest Dade County, police said.

The incident began when the trooper learned that a car he and an Opa-locka police officer were following was stolen.

The driver, according to police, then began firing at trooper, who jumped out of the car and yelled at the teens to stop.

Witnesses said the trooper then began running after the vehicle firing his handgun.

The car the teen-agers were driving then crashed into a utility pole and veered off into a nearby business, said witness Tamika Brown.

Chiles examines bases for civilian use

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles will visit four cities targeted for military base cuts to get local input on converting the facilities to civilian uses.

"The reason for this visit is simple, these closures will cost the local and state economies the loss of some $700 million and approximately 18,000 jobs," Chiles said at a Tuesday news conference.

Chiles will visit Cecil Field in Jacksonville on Sept. 21, Pensacola Naval Air Station on Sept. 27, MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa on Sept. 30 and Orlando Naval Training Center on Oct. 1.

DEA-FBI merger could reduce duplication, end cop turf wars

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — President Clinton's proposed merger of the FBI and the Drug Enforcement Administration could eliminate duplication and law enforcement turf wars, Attorney General Janet Reno said Tuesday.

"The duplication in terms of intelligence, automation, training — it seems to me we can just do it a lot better while preserving the mission of both agencies undiminished," Reno said in a conference call with Florida journalists.

But Reno said such a merger would probably cost anywhere from $50 million to $100 million in the short term, although it eventually could save up to $60 million a year.

"All the reports I've had are that a merger would initially cost money. There may be some long-term savings," she said.

Even though Clinton and Vice President Gore announced the merger as part of a plan to "reinvent government" by making bureaucracy work better, Reno said Congress would have to approve making DEA and FBI a single agency.

"I have all those proposals under consideration to determine how we best consolidate programs that are duplicative. We may or may not merge," Reno said. "That's a judgment we make about what's best to immediately end the turf battles, to end the fragmentation."

Reno said she planned to talk to field agents and supervisors of both agencies to discuss the best way to structure a new department, but she cautioned against using labels to describe what they do.

"What's that function for? If you don't get a straight answer, you try to look at ways to eliminate that function," she said. "I think too much has been made of labels of cowboys versus accountants."

Dwindling conch population could rebound in Keys

By Associated Press

LONG KEY — Scientists seeking to rebuild the Keys' dwindling queen conch population have released 500 of the prized and protected mollusks into the wild.

Now they must determine how the laboratory-bred and raised conchs fare against water pollution and natural predators in the waters around the Keys.

About 10,000 laboratory-raised queen conchs may be released under the program next spring, according to biologist Bob Glazer. He is directing the 6-year-old conch project based at the former Sea World shark institute on Long Key.

The program came into being in response to decades of overfishing and growing pollution of Keys waters, which are blamed for decreasing the local population to just 110,000 adults.

That drastic reduction in the waters of Monroe County — which proudly touts itself as the Conch Republic — brought a 1985 ban on conch collecting.

That ban was largely the work of Keys native and former state Rep. Joe Allen, who also helped get money for Glazer's studies.

In the Keys, the conch's pink-lipped shell graces the Monroe County seal and its succulent meat was once a staple at hundreds of local restaurants. But the once-ubiquitous water snails are now a rarity.

By comparison, Puerto Rico — which is considered heavily overfished — has 10 times as many queen conchs. The Bahamas' Grand Bank has 40 times the population density as the Keys.

And in Cuba, Glazer says, his research shows the queen conch is so plentiful, that the island's harvest of chewy conch meat just for fish-trap bait is more than is gathered in the rest of the entire Caribbean.

Big-volume water consumers get closer regulation

By Associated Press

PIERSON — Concerned about potential shortages, water managers are planning greater control over farmers and other consumers who use large amounts of ground water at once.

The St. Johns Water Management District wants to prevent a repetition of a problem caused during the Christmas Eve freeze of 1989, when fern growers pumped big volumes of water to create protective sheets of ice for their plants.

At least 79 Pierson-area residents were left short.

The district is worried that a proliferation of large-diameter wells can upset the delicate balance it is trying to establish. It will consider an emergency rule that will broaden current regulations in Central Florida's fern-growing region.

Rules now require wells with shafts of 6 inches or larger to have a permit. The emergency rule will require permits for wells with casings of 3.5 inches or greater.

Some fern growers have now drilled wells whose shafts are sized slightly below the permit threshold but produce the same volume of water, said Jeff Elledge, the district's director of resource management.

"Once people discover a new way to skin a cat, you better lock up your cats before they all get skinned," Elledge said Monday.

The emergency rule will apply the tough-use standards to smaller diameter wells. The rules cover a critical supply area of northwest Volusia County and southwest Putnam County.

Volusia fern grower Greg James said the rules were fair, especially since growers with 6-inch wells have had to build ponds to use during freezes.

Developers may tie up prime oceanside wildlife habitats

By Associated Press

SEBASTIAN — Conservationists and government officials are racing developers to acquire beachfront property — one side to keep the land intact, the other to commercialize it.

At stake are future generations of sea turtles, gopher tortoises, scrub jays and other threatened wildlife.

Those seeking to complete the acquisition of four large parcels comprising the Archie Carr National Wildlife Refuge are worried about a lack of money, the rebounding real estate market and the impact of a beach resort to be built by the Walt Disney Co.

"We really need to buy now if we want it. If we don't buy it now, it will be developed," says Duane DeFreese, project coordinator of Brevard County's environmental land-buying program.

The refuge on the barrier island in southern Brevard and northern Indian River counties is named for a prominent University of Florida teacher-researcher.

The relatively undeveloped region is some of the world's most important habitat for threatened loggerheads and endangered green sea turtles, which lay a combined 12,000 nests a year.

About 242 acres of beachfront, mostly in dense turtle nesting areas, have been acquired so far as protection for wildlife. Money is needed to buy another 500 acres.

The latest development project amid the sandy scrub along State Road A1A will include a luxury shopping center, complete with supermarket, bank and video store — all the modern urban amenities.

At least 70 acres have been lost within the target area since the refuge was established in 1990. Development proposals for more than 200 acres have been submitted so far this year.

Of the nearly $61 million spent or committed thus far, only $5.5 million has come from the federal government.

POLICE NEWS

Four escape law on foot

A chase involving officers from three jurisdictions took place Monday. The four men reportedly involved in the incident managed to escape. A deputy sheriff driving on Longwood-Lake Mary Road reported two vehicles passed him, with the second flashing its lights. The driver of the second vehicle told the deputy he was pursuing four men in a maroon car, whom he suspected may have been involved in some type of robbery. The deputy gave chase with his lights and siren, but the vehicle escaped, and went into the Lake Mary city limits, where Lake Mary police gave chase. The car then went into Sanford, and Sanford police chased it at speeds reportedly in excess of 80 miles per hour.

The vehicle stopped at 7th Street and Jessamine, where the men fled on foot and could not be located.

The maroon vehicle they were driving was reportedly stolen earlier from the AutoTrain parking lot at 800 Persimmon Avenue. Deputies said a baseball cap and package of cigarettes were found in the vehicle.

An investigation is underway regarding the case.

Two arrested in Lake Mary

Lake Mary police arrested two men Sunday. A patrolman said he first saw the two walking through a pasture near Middle Street. Police said the men were located a short time later in a parking lot near the Oaks Shopping Center, and one, identified as Scott Eugene Franck, 23, of Orlando, was apprehended. He was charged with trespassing on cultivated land and resisting arrest without violence. Police later located the second man who reportedly ran back into the wooded area. He was identified as Edward L. Peterson, 23, also of Orlando who was also charged with trespassing on cultivated land. A subsequent search of the men and their vehicle uncovered what later proved to be cannabis. Both Franck and Peterson were then charged with possession of cannabis, under 20 grams, and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Traffic stop arrest

Virgil Levon Davis, 32, 126 Academy Avenue, Sanford, was arrested by sheriff's deputies following a traffic stop at 8th Street and Mulberry Avenue. Davis was charged with driving with a suspended/revoked license, and possession of what later was proven to be cocaine.

Fresh produce added to school lunches

By ROBERT GREENE
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON — The Agriculture Department today said it will double the amount of fresh fruits and vegetables made available for school lunches as part of a campaign to improve meal programs.

"I think it's appalling that we only have 8.8 million pounds of fresh vegetables and fruits, and it's of such a limited diversity," said Ellen Haas, assistant secretary of Agriculture for food and consumer services.

Fresh fruits and vegetables account for slightly more than 2 percent of the $700 million worth of commodities distributed by the Agriculture Department for use in school lunches.

The variety has been limited to apples, grapefruits, oranges, tomatoes and baking potatoes. New offerings could include carrots, zucchini, celery and string beans, Haas said.

The department also announced it would hold four hearings from October through December on improving school lunches. Parents, pediatricians, farmers, food service workers and others will testify, Haas said.

Haas acknowledged that physical and budgetary problems such as lack of storage capacity will hinder the ability of school districts to accept fresh produce.

She said those are the kinds of issues to be covered in the field hearings. But she said the overriding concern was the impact of nutrition on children's health.

"I think that our own data is very troubling to us," said Haas, a consumer advocate and critic of the school lunch program before her appointment as assistant secretary this year.

The 1990 dietary guidelines issued by the Agriculture Department and the Department of Health and Human Services say anyone 2 years and older should limit their fat intake to 30 percent of calories.

But surveys by the department say five out of six school children had fat intake above that level; 35 percent of elementary school children ate no fruit on the day they were surveyed; 25 percent of all school-age children ate no vegetables.

A USDA survey of 20 school programs, though not nationally representative, indicated that 38 percent of calories in school meals came from fat.

The department also said it was experimenting with a reduced-fat cheddar cheese this year. It also is testing a new mozzarella cheese with 9 percent fat and is developing a low-fat turkey sausage.

Public Voice, the consumer group founded by Haas, today issued a report also calling on the Agriculture Department to not only use more fresh fruits and vegetables, but also cut the pesticide levels in them.

The National Food Processors Association, responding to that report, said there is little or no difference in the nutritional value of fresh and canned or frozen produce.

Learn joys of volunteerism

Seeing people sit home day after day, with the actors on TV soap operas as their only companions, is sad. Lives of people who spent years in the work world, often become stagnant with retirement.

Yet there is much to be done. Becoming involved in the Central Florida Zoological Park is an excellent example.

The zoo is offering two types of programs: Docent Training, and Volunteer Service. Both are in need of helpers to become involved in the many activities.

The Docent Training is an eight week long course which trains individuals in leading guided tours of the zoo in conjunction with the educational department. Docents also conduct outreach programs taking animals into the community for educational presentations.

This is an exciting program for adult involvement. It's an opportunity to help everyone from children to nursing home residents by putting them in contact with various zoo animals.

Some persons however, may have problems which would prevent them from leading tours or taking animals on visitations. These people should investigate the volunteer program. Help is needed in secretarial work, computer work, telephone answering, and gardening.

Just because a person has retired should not mean he or she is no longer needed. Contact the zoo and find out about the volunteer or docent programs. Be aware of other opportunities to help such as church work, Meals on Wheels, Habitat for Humanity, and others.

There is no need for people to become couch potatoes. There are many things to be done and help is always needed and appreciated. The rewards may not be financial, but the knowledge of being useful can renew a person's zest for life and feeling of accomplishment.

Captive neighborhood

I have read the silly naive letters from students of David McMillan who have only heard what David makes up for them. The Sanford Herald did a terrific and very detailed article in the Aug. 22 edition. It is too bad these people do not understand the issue here and the patience of the residents whose only ingress and egress is this narrow, unpaved easement on the property across from McMillan. There will be 6 buses at a time blocking the easement. There will be huge semi trucks with provisions for the animals parked on the easement because, while he paved his driveway, he will not allow them to enter his property.

My daughter-in-law is an operating room nurse and has been prevented from going to an emergency call because she could not get past one of these delivery trucks parked on the easement.

This did not start on June 22, as stated in these letters. Rather this situation has been going on since 1990 when the McMillans got a two-year variance which ran into three years, and now another three months. These trainers being foreigners to the area don't know or care how one man has held a neighborhood captive to his greed.

What can one learn about wild animals in their natural habitat from this trainer with animals in tight steel cages? This is not his purpose. His purpose is to train people to control helpless wild animals.

Commissioner speaks

You recently printed a letter from a Connie Klymko of Brandon on the Tiger's Eye Productions' request to extend their temporary special exception to continue operating their school in a residential neighborhood. The writer said I congratulated Mr. McMillan for his school and stated that "this location was a perfect place for his wildlife preservation school and endangered animal compound."

Attributing these remarks to me shows to what lengths Mr. McMillan and his followers will go to spread disinformation on the county's decision. First, I was not even on the county commission when his original special exception was granted. Second, I have never met Mr. McMillan and did not know where his school was until he applied for the extension. Third, I was out of town when he came back to the county for his special exception extension.

For the record, I support the position of the International Green Cross wildlife preservation group and the board of county commissioners that Mr. McMillan should move his school business to a different location. In fact, Mr. McMillan was fully aware that he would have to move when he got the special exception in the first place, and promised to do so. He should keep his promise.

CIA head takes tough stance

WASHINGTON — When CIA Director James Woolsey rushed from Moscow to the former Soviet republic of Georgia to accompany the body of CIA agent Fred Woodruff back to Washington, he was widely applauded for an unusual show of support for an agent slain in the field. However, according to sources in the intelligence community, Woolsey was also showing solidarity with Woodruff's secret mission and sending a not-so-subtle message to Russia's intelligence heads.

Woodruff was listed on U.S. Embassy rolls in Georgia as a low-level diplomat on temporary assignment. After he was killed, the CIA admitted he was its employee, and issued a cover story saying that he had been sent to Georgia to train the bodyguards of Georgian leader Eduard Shevardnadze, the former Soviet foreign minister.

In fact, a group of Americans are in Georgia for that purpose. However, they come from the Secret Service, which is the U.S. agency in charge of executive protection.

Woodruff, sources say, was one of the CIA's senior experts in the former Soviet republics. He was in Georgia establishing new intelligence networks, and cementing working relationships between the CIA and the intelligence apparatus of the newly established nations of the former Soviet Union.

Since the breakup of the former Soviet Union, and much to Moscow's consternation, the CIA has worked with a number of the former Soviet republics — with the tacit approval of their governments — setting up agent networks, and aiding these countries in establishing intelligence operations independent from Moscow.

What the CIA is doing, say the sources, is to get these new intelligence services accustomed to looking to the West for help and information-sharing, rather than to Moscow. This has not been difficult. Most of the former Soviet republics view Russia, and Moscow, as an enemy, not an ally.

So far, the CIA has been very successful in this effort, especially in the Balkans and in Georgia. This success is reportedly making Moscow very apprehensive. The Russian government of Boris Yeltsin has complained to Washington that the CIA is interfering within its "sphere of influence."

Moscow is also making its displeasure known directly to the countries involved.

Under an agreement between Moscow and the new Lithuanian government in Vilnius, all Russian troops were to have departed by now. But Moscow is holding several thousand back saying that some may remain indefinitely. This has happened in part to show Moscow's anger at the developing intelligence ties between a new Lithuanian intelligence service and the CIA.

The infamous KGB is no more. Under the Russian reorganization it has effectively been split into three parts. A new foreign-intelligence service has been established; the Russian military and internal police have taken over functions the KGB used to handle.

The CIA admitted he was its employee, and issued a cover story.

One of the advantages of learning less during the school year is that there's less to forget over the summer.

JACK ANDERSON

From Skid Row to heroic crusader

WASHINGTON — Robert Sundance took on the system and won.

Sundance, whose given name was Rupert S. McLaughlin, died of bone cancer last month in Los Angeles. But his nearly lifelong disease was chronic alcoholism, which disproportionately plagues Native Americans. Although tall and intimidating, Sundance spent most of his life fighting for survival on Skid Row from Pocatello to Phoenix. His legacy is that he transformed how the American judicial system treats victims of alcoholism.

Sundance was jailed at least 250 times before he quit drinking in 1977. Sundance would no sooner be released from jail than the Los Angeles police would arrest him again for public drunkenness. Sometimes his freedom lasted only a few hours, or as long as it took to get drunk again. It was, as he would later describe it, like "doing a life sentence on the installment plan."

Sundance suspected that the L.A.P.D. was operating a form of slave labor. Putting drunks in prison allowed the police department to pad their arrest statistics. Since alcoholics seldom stop drinking without treatment, they would simply be re-arrested after serving sentences, and put back to work for the county.

That all changed with the "Sundance case." Although Sundance ultimately failed in his goal of having public drunkenness laws declared unconstitutional, his lonely battle against a system he believed was corrupt has led to dramatic changes in the way police, and society in general, view alcohol addiction.

In Los Angeles alone, police used to make more than 50,000 arrests per year for public drunkenness. After the Sundance case, Los Angeles police now arrest only about 3,000 people each year for public drunkenness.

"All I had to do was stay alive and I could change things," Sundance wrote in an unpublished autobiography he finished with his friend Marc Gaede shortly before his death. "Until recently, the only treatment for the disease was avoidance, prayer, punishment or incarceration. (The police) didn't need 'probable cause' whatsoever, and they didn't have to have anyone appear in court as complaining witnesses."

Sundance's journey from social miscreant to messiah began 66 years ago on the Standing Rock Sioux Reservation in South Dakota, where he was born into the Hunkpapa tribe of the Sioux Indians. His great-grandfather was a famous Sioux war chief, Mad Bear.

For the next 30 years, Sundance lived a life on the road that would make Jack Kerouac blush. In this world, passing out drunk meant getting "jack-rolled" for all your worldly possessions, transportation was a passing freight train and home was the closest bar in whatever town he happened to be. Over the years, he was stabbed, shot, beaten and survived more than 200 bouts with the "d.t.s." or delirium tremens, vivid hallucinations that occur during alcohol withdrawal. Long before the world had heard of Rodney King, Sundance learned first hand what police brutality meant.

Eighteen years later, the practical effect of his crusade can be felt in police stations across the country. Although the California Supreme Court eventually stopped short of declaring laws against public inebriation unconstitutional, the court declared that jailing someone for the disease of alcoholism was illegal. More than that, the publicity that arose from his case led hundreds of law enforcement officials to rethink their policies regarding arresting those who are drunk and homeless.

His legacy is that he transformed how the American judicial system treats victims of alcoholism.

JOSEPH SPEAR

Book not even worth trashing

The trashing of the author, 1993, appears to be winding down, and the appropriate question now would seem to be whether it was justifiable homicide.

I have no doubt the astute and perceptive readers of the Spear column know precisely what I'm talking about, but there may be some first-time readers out there, so I'd better explain:

Best-selling author Joe McGinnis, who broke into the big leagues more than two decades ago with "The Selling of the President, 1968," a withering dismemberment of Richard Nixon's media machine, came out this summer with what was expected to be another blockbuster. But "The Last Brother: The Rise and Fall of Teddy Kennedy" was greeted with an unrelenting fusillade of media criticism and, when last I checked, was plummeting toward the bottom of the best-seller charts with the dispatch of a torpedoed tanker.

The main complaint is that "The Last Brother" takes a non-traditional approach in its subject. Specifically, it employs made-up material. A pre-publication excerpt circulated in May carried this disclaimer: "Some thoughts and dialogue attributed to figures in this narrative were created by the author, based on ... research and his knowledge of the relevant people, places and events." There is a brief bibliography, but no footnotes and no index. An author's note declares "the story I have told here is one I believe to be true" and says the quotations used "represent in substance what I believe to have been spoken."

There's more: The book contains no previously unpublished facts about Kennedy. Indeed, several notable authors of Kennedy books, including William Manchester ("The Death of a President"), have accused McGinnis of plagiarism. McGinnis claims that published facts and quotations are in the public domain and, anyway, he credited his sources in his bibliography. McGinnis also says he interviewed "dozens" of people. None are identified. He did not talk to Kennedy himself.

So, how has McGinnis' "ruminations" been received?

Newsweek called it "the cheapest kind of novelistic landfill ... a stale farrago of scandal and pop psychology." Tim Warren, book editor of the Baltimore Sun, described it as "an incredibly boring piece of work" that assaults "the reader's brain with rapid insight" and pedestrian writing on the level of a high-school textbook." Jonathan Yardley of the Washington Post judged it "a genuinely, unrelievedly rotten book ... almy, meretricious and cynical ... by a wide margin, the worst book I have reviewed in nearly three decades." (Given the way Yardley dumped on a book I wrote in 1964, that is somewhat of a personal relief.)

So, does "The Last Brother" deserve the scorn being heaped upon it? Sad to say, because I am naturally inclined to side with an author who is being assailed by the leeches who review books for a living, it is — for a number of reasons:

• It is truly a pedestrian effort — sophomoric, boring and, at 626 pages, five times longer than the author's style can sustain. As a booklet, it might work; as a tome, it does not.

• It is the work of a lazy author. What it amounts to is a survey of available literature, for which Joe McGinnis was paid a reported million bucks. What did he do besides read books and clips and put manufactured thoughts in Kennedy's head? Oh, I forgot: He says he really did meet Kennedy once, in a chance encounter, and he did talk to "dozens" of people about the senator. I can claim the same thing, even "dozens" plus two, if you count my sisters.

• It is the latest and most egregious example of an abominable trend toward "trust me" journalism, which uses "recreated" fact and dialogue with meager sourcing, and it is way past time for a bloody debate about it. At minimum, we need to create a new category in the bookstores for this stuff. It's not "journalism," certainly, and it's not "biography." How about "sweepings"?

Specifically, it employs made-up material.

Wilson sways convictions

By JAMES MARTINEZ
Associated Press Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — Christopher Wilson's soft-spoken words against two white attackers who soaked him in gasoline and sent him screaming in flames were credited with swaying convictions in a troubled case that lacked even a shred of physical evidence. Wilson, a 32-year-old stock brokerage clerk from New York City who suffered burns over nearly 40 percent of his body, described Charles Rourke, 33, as "the mean one" who barked racial slurs and sloshed gasoline from a plastic jug during the New Year's Day abduction and attack near Tampa. Mark Kohut, 27, was "the one with bright eyes" who spoke little and took a passive role. Neither of the day laborers from Lakeland showed any emotion Tuesday when the jury of five whites and one black returned from a 10-day trial and 12 hours of deliberations with verdicts of guilty on charges of attempted murder, kidnapping and robbery.

School," he said. "The person to contact is officer Mike Taylor, at 322-8083."

Classes are already underway at Lakeview Middle School. They last for two hours Monday, Tuesday and Thursdays, and for three hours on Wednesdays.

"We have an open gym here as well," Stewart said. "We have basketball and volleyball, and we expect to add arts and crafts in the very near future."

For Lakeview, arrangements can be made by phoning Chris Collison, at 323-1610.

"In October," Stewart commented, "we will be starting our first basketball league at Milwee Middle School for sixth, seventh and eighth graders. But right now, we are really in need of volunteer coaches for this league."

He urged anyone interested in becoming a coach for the league, to contact him at the Sheriff's office, 330-6813.

Stewart said the aim is to secure approximately 200 youths to participate in the basketball league. "We have some coaches now," he said, "but we still need several more."

The program will divide the groups into a sixth grade league, and a combined seventh and eighth grade league. Stewart said he hopes enough girls will sign up to set up some girls leagues as well.

There is no charge for children getting involved in any of the PAL after school programs. Sign-ups require only a phone call, and an interest in becoming involved.

Stewart said he was extremely pleased to have the PAL program get off to such a good start with a $1,000 gold sponsor donation from a Central Florida businessman, Ward Griner. "It's tremendous when people like are willing to support the PAL after school programs," he said.

"We hope we can obtain more corporate sponsors for the overall program," Stewart said. "We have a bronze sponsorship for a gift of $250, a silver sponsorship for $500, gold for $1,000, and platinum for $1,500."

The Seminole County Police Athletic League is presently planning on a large scale golf tournament, scheduled for Oct. 25, at Alauqua Country Club, with prizes, special events and other activities.

Sign-ups are presently available by phoning Stewart at 330-6613 or Kathy McClelland at 774-0993.

over five years, according to one official, who spoke Tuesday on the condition of anonymity.

John Rother, legislative director for the American Association of Retired Persons said White House officials told him the drug benefit would be worth $32 to $35 a month to the average senior citizen. Their Medicare Part B premiums, now $36.60 a month would go up by about $8 to help pay for it.

The drug benefit will be part of the basic benefit package President Bill Clinton will seek to guarantee for all American citizens and legal residents. It will come with a $250 deductible and 20 percent co-insurance. The drug benefit will start in 1996, while the long-term care benefits will be phased in over five years with an emphasis on home- and community-based care instead of institutions.

The long-term care benefits would be worth $80 a month to the elderly and they would have to pay $20 a month for them.

"I'm not up on it (the Clinton plan) enough to comment on it intelligently," said Lake Mary resident Mary Wolfe. "I don't like to comment on something that I'm not up on completely. It will ruin some of the senior citizens. They just cannot stand to have their benefits cut any more. Some of these people out here are barely existing. That on top of all the taxes they are adding to them, people are having to leave Central Florida because they cannot live with what's going on here. I'm a member of the AARP and I know we're fighting it."

Delores Laah, Lake Mary said she isn't too familiar with the proposed package which will affect seniors, having just returned from vacation. However, she questioned the $250 deductible. Laah is not yet retired but is president of AARP in Lake Mary.

"That is pretty high on a set income," Laah said referring to the proposed $250 deductible. "That would be like a month's supply of food. I'd think they'd have to decide whether they were going to get health care or food. I really would have to sit down and digest the proposal before commenting further."

Margaret Wesley, Lake Mary said she is hesitant about commenting on the plan until she has had an opportunity to study details of the proposal. The 84-year old librarian at the Lake Mary Senior Center said something must be done about the rising health care costs.

"Insurance and Medicare are paying less and less," she commented, "and the doctors and hospitals are charging more and more. It's a collision course."

Wesley said changes are needed in the Medicaid system as well to stem the rising costs. "Medicaid is truly wonderful for those who truly need it," she commented. "But so many people are riding it. People with means are giving their money to their children or putting their money into something where it doesn't count or spending it down, so they can get Medicaid. Everything the government has that concerns money is misused," she added. "If they would stop the misuse and get the ineligible people off and do something to bring the prices down, it would help."

"My doctor told me we're trying to run a Cadillac health system, when he said the old Ford ran real well and did the work," Wesley said. "Every hospital has to get all the new equipment, like the MRIs, when it comes out. It costs everybody."

Prescription drugs, glasses and dental care, and long-term care are not covered under her Medicare and co-insurance policies, Wesley said. Although the Canadian health care plan, is held up as a good example of universal health care for its citizens, Wesley said, it has problems too with long waits to see a doctor or to schedule surgeries.

No matter what health care reforms are set forth, Wesley said she does not know how the billions of dollars it will cost will be paid.

Lawsuit

finances and legislates education, the students will continue to suffer.

"The needs of Florida's students vary among school districts, but the overall magnitude of those needs, compounded by a lack of adequate funding, has created a crisis," a letter produced by the organizers of the suit states.

School board member Sandy Robinson said she believes the way in which education is financed in this state "needs to be revamped," but she's not so sure this is the way she wants to go.

"I'm thoroughly confused," she said. "I don't know if 'adequate' funding is 'equitable' funding. You can have 'adequate' funding without 'equitable' funding and what we need is 'equitable' funding."

Robinson said that she is willing to jump on the lawsuit bandwagon if the outcome will bring about the needed changes in the educational funding system, but she said she needs more answers first.

"I want to make sure we're on the right wagon," she said.

Recently, Hillsborough and Pasco counties have voted to support the suit. By voting to approve resolutions Tuesday night, the counties' two school boards agreed to help pay for a lawsuit that experts say might take three or more years to litigate.

Other school boards around the state are scheduled to vote on the matter soon.

If the Seminole school board agrees to participate in the lawsuit, they will also agree to pay roughly 25 cents per student for each year that the suit remains in litigation. It will cost the district $12.912 for the first year.

Hillsborough is committed to contribute about $38,000 annually to legal fees. Pasco would pay nearly $10,000 annually. School officials have estimated statewide legal fees will cost about $300,000 annually.

If several Florida school districts decide not to take part in the lawsuit, costs would increase for the participating districts. The Florida School Boards Association last week sent resolutions supporting the lawsuit to Florida's 67 school boards.

Since 1989, the highest courts in Massachusetts, Kentucky, Texas, Tennessee, Montana and

New Jersey have struck down those states' school-financing systems.

In May, the Florida Supreme Court rejected a lawsuit challenging the way the Legislature divides local property taxes to ensure equity among school districts. But justices wrote that education is "basic to a democracy," and one justice suggested school districts work for adequate funding of education.

The new lawsuit would focus on the allocation of more money for education in general, rather than trying to have the existing pie divided more fairly.

Burglaries

of one individual, similar to the large number of burglaries in the same general area, for which Kevin Lee Smith is accused.

Smith was arrested on Aug. 1. Since that time, over two dozen official charges have been filed against him connection to burglaries and other crimes in the S. French and Orlando Drive areas.

"Once we arrested Smith," Whitmire said, "the burglaries stopped in that area, but now they are going again, so it's probably a similar situation with one person or one group of persons hitting the same general area."

Commenting on one specific instance which occurred Monday, Whitmire said, "In that particular case, someone spent a great deal of time and effort to break into that business only to take $50 in quarters and $5 from the vending machine."

Since the beginning of the three day Labor Day holiday weekend, the following reports have been filed with Sanford police:

● A business was reportedly burglarized Sunday in the 1000 block of S. French Avenue in Sanford. Entry was made by breaking open a front glass door. Items reported missing included an amount of jewelry.

● A business was burglarized Monday in the 1600 block of S. French Avenue. $50 in quarters and $5 in coins were said to be missing. Vending machines were also said to be broken open and the coins taken.

● A business in the 2500 block of S. French Avenue was reportedly burglarized Monday. Police said an attempt to break open the safe was unsuccessful. Police reported a hammer and screwdriver had been taken from the business.

● A business was burglarized Sunday in the 2500 block of S. French Avenue Sunday. Entry was made by breaking open a glass panel. Nothing was immediately determined to be missing.

● $1,300 in machine tools were reportedly stolen Sunday from a business in the 2500 block of S. French Avenue. Deputies said the items were taken from an unsecured tool shed.

In the week preceding these reports, a number of additional business burglaries had been reported. They include:

● A business burglary, Sept. 1, with $370 reported missing from a store in the 2600 block of Orlando Drive.

● $542 in items taken from a business in the 3800 block of Orlando Drive.

● A deposit envelope containing $380 taken from a business in the 2400 block of French Avenue on Aug. 23.

● Four tires and rims removed from a vehicle parked in a fenced compound, in the 3700 block of S. Orlando Drive on Aug. 23.

During the week of Aug. 16, there were three business burglaries reported in the 3600 block of Orlando Drive.

Whitmire said police are working on a number of leads, and checking fingerprints found at the scenes of the burglaries.

GOP being transformed by Christian activists

Editor's note: Last of a three-part series

By JOHN KING
AP Political Writer

WEST CHESTER, Pa. — Jim Hanak was elected last year to the Chester County Republican Committee, one of those obscure party posts that often draw little interest but can carry a big voice in recruiting and endorsing candidates for local offices.

A soft-spoken man with passionate politics, he represents a growing force that is splitting the personality of local Republican politics across the United States.

Hanak is also state director for the American Family Ministries, a conservative, anti-abortion group. His dual roles represent an evolving nightmare to moderate Republicans: the quiet takeover of local GOP organizations by religious activists they view as obsessed with abortion and homosexuality and intolerant of those who don't share their views.

"These people are zealots," argues Ellen Harley, a state representative from suburban Philadelphia. "They want to impose their idea of God and their idea of values and push the social issues to the fore. That has never been what Republicans are about. A political party should not be about the business of trying to define God."

It's a festering feud that belies all the recent talk of Republican unity against President Clinton's tax increases. Unity over economic issues only masks the GOP's deep cultural divide.

"It is not going to go away," Republican National Committee member Elsie Hillman says of the split. "We just have to deal with it."

Because of their strength at local levels, religious conservatives now control or have significant influence over Republican parties in at least 18 states: Alaska, California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Minnesota, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Texas, Washington and Virginia.

Since 1988, when religious broadcaster Pat Robertson showed surprising strength in GOP presidential caucuses, Christian activists have realized the influence of low-level party posts, and the ease with which these positions can be won because of low interest.

"I could have been a Nazi or a communist and still have gotten elected," Hanak said last year after his election to the county GOP committee.

While the Republican National Committee and most state GOP committees remain in the hands of "party regulars," local strength gives Christian activists power to endorse candidates for school boards, county commissions and state legislatures.

Christian political leaders deny any attempt to control the GOP, notwithstanding Robertson's 1991 pledge to have "a working majority of the Republican Party in the hands of pro-family Christians by 1996."

Ralph Reed, executive director of the national Christian Coalition, explains, "We are involved in the party but we don't seek to become the party. A political party is not a church. Its job is not to promulgate a doctrine of faith and save souls. Its job is to field candidates and win elections."

Hurt Day remembers the day he discovered the inroads of the religious right.

He was standing by the door of his Iowa GOP district meeting in May 1992 when he noticed a most unusual thing: a crowd. As the room filled, most of the newcomers headed straight to Christian activist Cindy Lyons for instructions.

"It became apparent that there was a real stealth campaign to put some new people on the committee," Day said. He survived a challenge but two other moderates did not. When it came time to pick Iowa delegates for the national convention, Day realized his local experience was hardly unique.

"There were only four delegates to the national convention that weren't in some way controlled by the Christian Coalition," he said. In all, some 40 percent of the 2,000 Republican convention delegates were loyal or sympathetic to the religious right.

(Nationally, Christian right involvement in Democratic politics has been negligible. But here in Pennsylvania, where Gov. William Casey is among prominent anti-abortion Democrats, there is a potential for modest inroads. South Carolina and Virginia are other targets for gaining Democratic Party slots.)

Some longtime Republicans have begun organizing to dilute the influence of the religious activists. In South Carolina, for example, a former state chairman has established the Republican Leadership Council, named deliberately after the Democratic centrist group that Clinton once led.

"I sense the beginning of an awakening by moderates," says Pennsylvania's Rep. Harley.

"It's a problem we moderates brought upon ourselves," says Sue Mullins, a former legislator in Iowa now active among Republicans who oppose the religious right. "We got lazy and they got active and they are very dedicated to keeping their power. Getting that same degree of dedication from moderates is going to be difficult."

Indeed, the Christian groups are putting together some impressive numbers.

In South Carolina and Florida, state Christian Coalition chapters are building 100,000-name voter files; in Pennsylvania, the goal is for at least that many.

There are some examples of cooperation that could signal a more pragmatic relationship between the moderate and religious GOP factions.

In Pennsylvania and a few other states, for example, the Christian Coalition has supported several GOP candidates who favor abortion rights.

"Sometimes you've got to choose the lesser of two evils," said Pennsylvania Christian Coalition director Rick Schenk.

In Kansas, Christian conservative forces control much of the party at the county and precinct level but decided at the last minute not to challenge the moderate state GOP leaders, pledging instead to work with them.

In California, moderate Gov. Pete Wilson is trying to at least reach détente with the religious right. He faces an uphill reelection fight next year and can hardly afford intraparty wars.

"Despite their differences with him, I am hopeful these good people will realize the importance of having a Republican governor," said Tirso del Junco, the state GOP chairman.

The influence of religious conservatives in Republican politics will be on display this week, when a number of potential GOP presidential candidates attend Robertson's annual conference in Washington.

Over lunch recently, Robertson lieutenant Reed gave his early handicapping of the GOP field and a powerful reason why candidates should not ignore the Christian right.

As always, Reed said, the kickoff Iowa caucuses could juggle the field — "and our people will control those caucuses."

Teams needed in Longwood

LONGWOOD — The Longwood Recreation Department has openings in their Fall Softball League for Men's Class C and Women's teams.

Leagues are set to start the week of September 13 and run one night a week for 10 weeks.

Fees are $290 for Men's Class C and $200 for the Women's League.

Interested teams should call Sandy Lomax at 260-3443 or 260-3447, Monday through Friday.

AROUND THE NATION

Ex-mate halts Marlins

SAN DIEGO — Trevor Hoffman pitched 2 1-3 scoreless innings of relief against his former teammates, and Brad Ausmus doubled in the go-ahead run in the sixth as San Diego clipped the Florida Marlins 6-4.

With the game tied 4-4, Derek Bell led off the sixth with the second of his three singles to greet reliever Luis Aquino (6-8). Ricky Gutierrez singled one out later before Ausmus lined his double off the left-center field fence.

Bell scored but Gutierrez was thrown out at home on a relay from shortstop Walt Weiss.

Cardinal has huge night

CINCINNATI — Mark Whiten became the 12th player to hit four homers in a game as he matched the record of 12 RBI in a game in perhaps the greatest one-game offensive display in baseball history as St. Louis beat Cincinnati 15-2 in the second game of a doubleheader.

Whiten misplayed Reggie Sanders' liner into a two-run, ninth-inning triple that gave the Reds a 14-13 victory over St. Louis in the first game.

In the first inning, he hit a grand slam, then, after fouling out in his next at-bat, he added three-run homers in the sixth and seventh.

His two-run homer off Rob Dibble in the ninth inning tied former Cardinal Jim Bottomley's major league RBI record set in 1924.

In the first game, the teams used 15 pitchers to set a major league record, with St. Louis using eight. The previous record of 14 had been achieved five times. The Reds pounded out 19 hits and the Cardinals had 17, with Gregg Jefferies getting four singles.

Braves close in again

LOS ANGELES — Steve Avery allowed six hits over eight innings and scored the only run after doubling in the eighth to win his fifth straight decision as Atlanta defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 1-0 to pull within 2½ games of first-place San Francisco in the NL West.

Avery (16-4) doubled over the head of center fielder Brett Butler with one out against Pedro Astacio (11-8). Avery took third when catcher Mike Piazza fielded Otis Nixon's check swing tapper up the third-base line and threw low to first for an error. Jeff Blauser lined the next pitch to center to drive in Avery.

Meanwhile at San Francisco, Don Slaught's two-run homer in the eighth inning propelled Pittsburgh past the Giants 4-3.

After the Giants came back from a 2-0 deficit to lead 3-2 in the sixth, reliever Mike Jackson (6-6) issued a two-out walk to Dave Clark and allowed Slaught's 10th home run.

Tribe netters open season by sweeping DeLand

From Staff Reports

DeLAND — Receiving contributions from just about everyone on the roster, the Seminole High School girls volleyball team opened its 1993 season with a 16-14, 16-14 win over the DeLand Bulldogs Tuesday night.

DeLand won the junior varsity match, 15-13, 15-11.

"We played well," said Seminole coach Beth Corso. "We were ready to play for our first game of the season. We got a lot of help from a lot of people to win this match."

While Corso expected the starters to contribute, two players came off the bench and played major roles in the win over DeLand.

Aubrey Nelson, a freshman brought up to the varsity team just eight days ago, collected a kill, one block, two good spikes, and two dinks for kills while Vilaphone Ratanavong came in and played inspired back row defense for the Tribe.

"Aubrey did a real fine job on the front row," Corso said. "Vi filled in for us on the back row and gave us some real nice play on serve receive and on defense. She did a nice job."

Kelly Richards led the Seminole attack with nine good spikes and two kills. Tanya Schlegel added two kills, four good spikes, a block, and a dink. Catherine Foye contributed one kill, seven good spikes, two blocks, two and dinks. Jill Jasewic was 4-for-9 in hitting with three blocks.

Yuleyma Oterio gathered five assists and served nine points, including four aces. Jasewic had 10 service points. Schlegel served seven points.

Michele Johnson anchored the Tribe defense with her solid backrow play.

"We were playing good defense," said Corso.

"It was a real good team effort, especially for the first game. The girls were ready to play. You could tell that the girls have been working hard for four weeks."

Seminole returns to action this evening, traveling to Leesburg for a 4A-District 6 match with the Yellowjackets. The junior varsity match is scheduled to start at 6 p.m. with the varsity to follow at 7 p.m.

OCS RAMS WIN TWO

MAITLAND — All nightmares should come out so well.

Despite a relatively uneven performance, the Orangetown Christian School Rams won both ends of a girls volleyball doubleheader Tuesday night, defeating First Academy 15-12, 15-7 and Warner Christian 15-0, 4-15, 16-14.

Sanford leagues rained out

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — It may have started with a splash instead of a bang, but the Sanford Recreation Department Fall Slowpitch Softball League season is underway.

The cloudy and rainy conditions that moved into the area in the late afternoon and continued throughout the evening put a damper on the festivities, with a heavy thunderstorm that hit around 6:30 p.m. forcing cancellation of the opening night schedule for the women's league at Pinehurst Park.

Things went a little better at Chase Park in the men's league as the thundershowers seemed to avoid the field for the most part. A steady rain made things a little damp, but the condition of the playing field was about as good as it could get.

But not much got done at Chase either, as the first game ended in a forfeit victory for Discount Propane (the new sponsor for Spring champion ABB Power Distribution) as Florida Manor was unable to field the required nine players by game time.

The only real game action of the night came in the second game, where the two teams that finished second after losing in playoffs in their respective Tuesday night league last spring, Monroe Harbour Marina and the Orphans, took the field for a head-to-head matchup.

Monroe Harbour had things going its way, scoring seven runs in the second inning to erase a 2-2 tie.

— game suspended by rain with one out in the bottom of the fourth inning.

Thanks to early evening thunderstorms, there wasn't much softball played in Sanford Tuesday. The women's league at Pinehurst never got started and only 3½ innings of a men's league game was played at Chase Park.

Sears leads from green to checkers

ORLANDO — Osteen's Bobby Sears backed up his fastest qualifying time earlier in the evening with a wire-to-wire win in the 20-lap Mini-Stock Division feature event Friday night at Orlando SpeedWorld.

Sears, driving the Skips Shoes and Boots Ford Pinto, easily led every circuit to take his eighth consecutive victory and his 20th of the season.

"Everything was just perfect tonight," said Sears, a three-time Florida Association of Stock Car Auto Racing Mini-Stock champion. "I can't remember when the car ran as good as it did tonight. The handling was outstanding, it ran anywhere on the track that I put it."

Robbie Yoakam ran an uncontested second ahead of Richard Newton, Gene Merritts, and Dink Sullivan.

FASCAR Late Model points leader Wayne Anderson won his 15th Late Model feature of the year with Jim Crowe edging Bobby Blake in a duel for second. Don Fenn and Eddie Perry rounded out the top five.

Jimbo Bjorkland took his first ever Limited Late Model Division win, holding off a hard charging Michael Williams. Third through fifth, respectively, were Ron McCreary, Gary Schlichter and Timmy Todd.

Sportsman Division honors went to Paul Golgan, his eighth feature win of the year. In tow were Bill Loomis, Rick Johns, Jerry Smith and Jimmy Johns.

Bob Filliger won a slam-bang battle over Wally Semrow to take his first Bomber feature victory. Glen Cordell, Phil Flippo and Brian Schlimmer trailed.

Another first time winner was Jerry Orn, as he checked first in the Run-Around Division.

Kenny Campbell won the Mini-Bomber main event.

Courier, Becker join deposed U.S. Open seeds

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — In the beginning, the top half of the men's draw of the U.S. Open read like a Who's Who of tennis. Now it looks like a Who Was.

Jim Courier, the world's No. 1 player and the top seed, is gone.

So, too, is Boris Becker, the 1989 winner and this year's fourth seed.

No. 5 Sergi Bruguera, No. 10 Richard Krajicek, No. 11 Goran Ivanisevic and No. 13 Ivan Lendl. Gone, gone, gone and gone.

Still in the title chase today in the year's final Grand Slam tournament are giant-killers Cedric Pioline of France and Magnus Larsson of Sweden, Wally Masur of Australia and eighth-seeded Andrei Medvedev of Ukraine.

Oh, what a Tuesday it was.

Courier, a former resident of Sanford, was the first to depart, driven out by the scintillating stroke production of Pioline, the tournament's 15th seed, 7-5, 6-7 (4-7), 6-4, 6-4.

"I was just more consistent and I played very good on the important points, the key points," said Pioline, emulating the effort in 1927 of Rene Lacoste, one of the famed Four Musketeers, who beat No. 1 Bill Tilden in the 1927 U.S. Open final.

After Steffi Graf, the women's top seed, escaped Gabriela Sabatini 6-2, 5-7, 6-1 in a lengthy battle, Becker followed Courier to the sideline, falling to Larsson 6-2, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5.

Those were the headline-grabbers. But Masur made news when he came back from a 5-0 fifth-set deficit to outlast Jamie Morgan 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5 and Medvedev eliminated Krajicek 6-4, 3-6, 6-1, 7-6 (7-4).

With all the upsets, the top two men's seeds left in the tournament — No. 2 Pete Sampras and No. 7 Michael Chang — face each other tonight in a quarterfinal matchup.

Graf and No. 11 Manuela Maleeva-Fragniere will face each other in a women's semifinal. The latter advanced by stopping the remarkable run of unseeded Kimiko Date of Japan 7-5, 7-5.

Courier's loss was historic. The Australian Open winner, who reached the final of the French Open and Wimbledon, will lose his No. 1 ranking if Sampras reaches the final.

Against Courier, Pioline played an attacking baseline game with just enough forays to the net to keep Courier honest.

"I kept the pressure on him," the Frenchman said. "He made some mistakes that maybe he is not making every day, but I think it is because of the pressure."

Courier committed 42 unforced errors in the 3-hour, 33-minute match, 15 fewer than Pioline. Pioline had 66 winners, 39 more than Courier.

"It is the best he played against me, but he is a very talented player," Courier said. "More than capable of beating us top guys."

Chapman hangs on for Sportsman win

By PAUL MARSEGLIA
Special to the Herald

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — Daytona Beach driver Art Chapman held off a pack of challengers to win the 25-lap Action Performance sponsored Sportsman feature Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway.

"I'm sure pleased to win this one," said Chapman, a former Florida Association of Stock Car Automobile Racing (FASCAR) Bomber division champion. "We had a real strong field of cars out there tonight. Just about any car was capable of winning this race."

Chapman took the victory by less than two car lengths ahead of Paul Colgan, who won the division's feature event on Friday night at Orlando Speedworld.

"Late in the race, the tires started to go away on me, but I think Paul (Colgan) was losing his tires also," said Chapman, who has been racing for three years. "Paul kept the pressure in me and I had my hands full. It was a race to the wire."

Dale Howard finished third ahead of Barbara Pierce and Pat McLain.

This was really an outstanding race, said Colgan, an 18-year racing veteran. "All the cars were well prepared, the drivers all drove clean with no cheap shots, so I'm pleased to finish second."

Editor's note: Saturday's and Monday's results from Volusia County Speedway will appear in Thursday's Sanford Herald.

Howard, the current FASCAR Limited Late Model points leader, set the evening's fastest qualifying time and, by an inversion of the field, started the race from the eighth position.

"Our car was running real good and it was fast," said Howard, a resident of DeLand. "If I could have started closer to the front, I might have been the winner."

Art and Paul were running real good. I ran them down, but ran out of race before I could get to the front."

Four-time FASCAR Late Model champion David Russell scored an easy victory in the 25-lap Late Model main event for his seventh win of the 1993 season.

With a high groove move on race leader Wayne Anderson, Russell charged from his sixth place starting spot into the lead on lap six. Russell pulled away and crossed the finish line a half a straightaway ahead of Anderson.

Rounding out the top five finishers were in order, Joe Middleton, Russ Whitaker, and Granny Tatroe.

Wally Senrow broke from the back of the 15-car field to take top honors in the Bomber feature. After starting the race from the 13th position, Senrow picked his way through traffic and pulled around early leader Gary Frosh on lap seven to claim the point.

Once on the point, Senrow outduelled Frosh and Mike Trocki for his 22nd win of the season. Completing the top five were John Mitchell and Bob Richardson.

Conrad Grenier continued his winning ways, picking up victory No. 12 in the Mini Stock main event. Grenier was chased to the checkers by Ted Vulpus, Bobby Sears, Kevin D'Amico, and Fireball Maguire.

Jacob Warren held off Jimbo Bjorkland to pick up win No. 24 in Limited Late Model action. Chasing the lead duo to victory lane were Michael Williams, David Gould, and Claudi Colignon.

After a three-month absence, Mike Fitch picked up where he left off by dominating action in the Modified division. Fitch, who scored his 11th win of the year, led Kenny Heikle, Danny Kemitz, Danny Bancroft, and Joe Middleton to the flag stand.

Streak moves Martin up points standings

Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH — Mark Martin, the hottest driver in motorsports, picked up more ground in the $3 million NASCAR Winston Cup point standings with his fourth straight victory.

The Batesville, Ark., native won Sunday's Mountain Dew Southern 500 at the 1.366-mile Darlington (S.C.) Raceway. After a season filled with "bad luck," Martin now hasn't lost a race since finishing third in the July 25 DieHard 500 at Talladega, Ala.

He has moved into third place, trailing second-place Rusty Wallace, 3,075 to 3,072. Three points is less than the difference between two finishing positions in a race.

Dale Earnhardt, striving for his sixth national title, continued to lead the standings.

Earnhardt has 3,379 points and a 304-point lead over Wallace. His five NASCAR Winston Cup championships second only to the legendary Richard Petty. Earnhardt would clinch the crown by finishing sixth or better in the last eight races of the season.

"Maybe we got all the bad luck out of our system in the first half of the year. It sure seems good right now," said Martin, who has finished out of the top six only once in the past nine races.

Dale Jarrett is fourth in the standings with 2,987 points, followed by Morgan Shepherd, 2,938; Kyle Petty, 2,732; Ken Schrader, 2,724; Ernie Ivan, 2,692; Geoff Bodine, 2,670, and rookie leader Jeff Gordon, 2,628.

Earnhardt leads all drivers with winnings of $1,345,865.

Orangewood Christian coach Diane Primm. We played so well last week and then we come out here 15 missed serves tonight.

It was a rough night. But it was nice that we were down 14-13 in the third game against Warber Christian and Allison Hershey served an ace or two. Hopefully we can be confident that we can come back and win a third game after losing the second game.

Against First Academy (2-1), Hershey recorded seven kills to lead the OCS Rams, who missed nine serves in the the match. Amy Vanderstreek contributed four blocks while Andrea Hart had three blocks.

In the win over Warner Christian (3-1), Melanie Hogan served 15 consecutive points for the Rams in the first game. Vanderstreek collected 11 kills in the match. Hershey, Andrea Hart, Mugsy Milton and Hogan each had two kills.

But while holding a commanding 13-2 lead with one out in the bottom of the fourth inning, one lining away from making it a complete game, a heavy thunderstorm moved over east Sanford, flooding the field and putting a halt to the night's play.

The rain also washed out several outstanding performances for Monroe Harbour which had collected 18 hits including a double, two triples and two home runs in only four turns at bat.

Contributing to the Monroe Harbour attack were Aaron Johns (home run over the center field fence, two singles, three runs, three RBI), Mike Edwards (triple, two singles, three runs), Dale Peters (double, two singles, two runs, two RBI) and Pete Harrison (inside the park home run, single, two runs, five RBI).

Also contributing were Greg Hardy (two singles, run), Earl Williams (two singles, RBI), Ned Raines (triple, run), Robert Stevens (single, run, RBI) and Arthur Barnes (single).

Doing the damage for the Orphans were Dave Coss (double, run, RBI), Alan Truskuskas (single, run), Duke Derratto (single, RBI) and Todd Pagel and T.J. Fles (one single each).

Next week's action in the Women's League at Pinchurst Park will have Lake Monroe (in playing a double header, against Inverness at 6:30 p.m. and Hungry Howies/Crazy Wings at 7:30 p.m.). The final game of the night will be a rematch of last Spring's championship playoff with champion Myers Tree Service taking on Hopkins Meat Packing at 8:30 p.m.

In the men's league at Chase Park which has added Ken Rummel Chevrolet as a seventh team, Gager Pest Control faces Discount Propane at 6:30 p.m., the Orphans battle Ken Rummel Chevrolet at 7:30 p.m., and Whicheel & Howard squares off with Monroe Harbour at 8:30 p.m. Florida Manor will have the week off.

Cook of the Week

Longtime resident keeps busy with children and community

COOK OF THE WEEK

RENEE KEITH

"I stay pretty much on the go," says Cook of the Week Sultana Beverly. "It can get pretty hectic at times having three children under the age of seven." But, like most young moms, she keeps everything running smoothly.

Beverly moved from North Carolina with her family when she was just 7 years old. She's the second in line of four siblings and knows well what it's like to grow up in a large family. "We were all pretty close in age but we were a real close family," she said. "We still are."

Beverly's life has pretty much been centered around Sanford as she has lived in the city for the past 22 years. She's been a long standing member of Central Baptist Church, and is a graduate of Seminole High School. She is an active member of New Directions Cancer Society, as well as the Humane Society of Seminole County. In fact, the Beverlys are currently the foster parents of "the most adorable little puppy," says Beverly. "The kids have just fallen in love with it."

Having been married for 10 years, Beverly goes on to explain that her husband, Gary, and she met at church, however, they both did attend the same high school. "So, I guess you could call us high school sweethearts," she said. "We dated for five years and the rest is marital history." Gary and Sultana have three children. Craig, the oldest, is seven years old; Sandy is three years old, and Alex is two.

When it comes to cooking, Beverly admits that with little ones the menu goes one way and then of course your husband has tastes that most times differ from what the kids like. "As the kids have gotten older, mealtime seems to have come together a lot better," said Beverly.

One of her favorite recipes, as well as a family favorite, is Chicken-N-Rice Pocket Pitas. "My mom and I were just kind of going through some cookbooks looking for healthy yet appealing recipes when we came across this one," she said. "We made it and we loved it, in fact, everyone including the kids, love it. It's full of veggies and has no sugar."

Of course, Beverly would never think of bragging about herself, but her specialty is Key Lime Pie. She is just sure she makes the best there is to make.

"You can't eat it, however, I wish someone would have given me the recipe for playdough a long time ago," she said. "I'd always heard it could be made at home but I never could find a recipe."

Chicken dishes sure to please a family

There are many recipes that come to mind when I'm confronted with a whole chicken about 2 1/2-3 lbs. described as a broiler-fryer. Usually I rely on one of these old favorites which will serve 4-6 persons and can almost be a meal in itself with the addition of a salad, bread and perhaps dessert. These recipes are simple to prepare, do not require unique or unusual foods and can be prepared in 30-40 minutes. (Easy on the food budget too.) One is sure to please your family.

Cacciatore is an Italian chicken stew. Serve with spaghetti, a crusty Italian bread and a tossed green salad.

CHICKEN CACCIATORE

- 2 cups thinly sliced fresh mushrooms
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 can (15 oz.) tomato sauce
- 1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 cup red wine
- 1 1/2 tsp. dried oregano leaves
- 1 1/2 tsp. dried parsley flakes
- 1 tsp. sugar
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. pepper
- 1/4 tsp. dried thyme leaves
- 2 1/2-3 lbs. fryer chicken, cut up

MICROWAVE MAGIC

MIDGE MYCOFF

Combine mushrooms, onion, garlic in 3-5 quart casserole. Microwave on 100 percent power until tender, 4-6 minutes. Stir in remaining ingredients except chicken. Add chicken pieces, stirring to coat.

Microwave on 70 percent power until chicken next to bone is not pink, 24-29 minutes, rearranging after half the cooking time.

Brunswick Stew is a true southern meal and there are many, many recipes for this hearty dish. They vary just slightly because of family preference, region or availability of certain foods. Basically, the recipe calls for chicken, corn, lima beans or butter beans, okra and tomatoes and onions. Salt pork can be added.

BRUNSWICK STEW

- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen whole kernel corn
- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen lima beans
- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen okra
- 2 1/2-3 lbs. broiler-fryer chicken, cut up
- 2 cups hot water
- 1 medium onion, thinly sliced and separated into rings
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. pepper
- 1/4 tsp. garlic powder
- 1 bay leaf
- 2 med. tomatoes, each cut into 8 wedges
- 1/4 cup all-purpose flour
- Place unopened packages of corn, lima beans and okra in oven. Microwave on 100 percent power until thawed 6-8 minutes. Drain. If okra is not cut into 1/2-inch pieces, do so. Set aside.
- Combine chicken, water, onion, salt, pepper, garlic powder and bay leaf in 3-5 quart casserole; cover. Microwave on 100 percent power until chicken next to bone is not pink, 18-25 minutes. Remove bay leaf. Remove bones and skin from chicken; cut into 1-inch pieces.

Add chicken pieces, tomatoes, flour, corn, lima beans and okra to chicken broth mixture.

Microwave, uncovered, on 100 percent power until stew is slightly thickened 18-24 minutes, stirring after half the cooking time.

The Pennsylvania Dutch spirit of combining simple ingredients and presenting a delicious meal is nowhere better than in Chicken and Dumplings. This modern version is convenient and quick.

CHICKEN AND DUMPLINGS

- 2 1/2-3 lbs. broiler-fryer chicken, cut up
- 3 medium carrots, thinly sliced
- 2 cups hot water
- 6 peppercorns
- 2 bay leaves
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/4 cup water
- 6 Tbsp. all-purpose flour
- 1/4 tsp. dried sage
- 1 cup frozen peas, thawed
- 1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1 cup buttermilk baking mix
- 1 Tbsp. dried parsley flakes
- 1/2 cup milk
- Place chicken, carrots, 2 cups water, the peppercorns, bay leaves and salt in 3-5 quart casserole; cover. Microwave on 100 percent power until chicken is no longer pink, 18-25 minutes, stirring after half the cooking time. Remove bones and skin from chicken; cut into small pieces. Return chicken pieces to casserole. Remove bay leaves and peppercorns. Skim excess fat from chicken broth.

Blend 3/4 cup water, the flour and sage until smooth. Stir into chicken mixture. Cover. Microwave on 100 percent until slightly thickened, 15-18 minutes, stirring after half the cooking time. Stir in peas and mushrooms.

Stir baking mix, parsley flakes and milk with fork just until moistened. Drop dough in 6 spoonfuls onto hot chicken mixture. Cover. Microwave on 70 percent power until dumplings are set, 4-6 minutes. Serves 4-6.

Hoppin' John rediscovers Lowcountry

By BRUCE SMITH
Associated Press Writer

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Southern cooking conjures thoughts of fried chicken, fried pork and fried grits. But the original cooking of the South has more to do with oysters, rice, sun-dried tomatoes, wild duck and preserved grapevine leaves.

The antebellum cooking of the South Carolina coast, known as the Lowcountry, was the first true American cuisine, says John Martin Taylor.

It blended coastal staples of rice and seafood with cooking traditions from around the world at a time when Charleston was one of the wealthiest cities in America.

Lost in the aftermath of the Civil War, Lowcountry cooking is being rediscovered. In large part thanks to Taylor, who goes by the nickname Hoppin' John.

Hoppin' John is the mixture of rice and beans and ham hock traditionally served in Southern homes on New Year's Day. It's also the name of a culinary bookstore tucked away in a corner of Charleston's historic district that Taylor has operated since 1986.

Seven years in the research, the volume published last year by Bantam Books details the history and recipes of Lowcountry cooking.

What most folks think of as Southern cooking with its emphasis on fried foods dates to Reconstruction after the South had been devastated by war.

"After the Civil War, everyone ate poorly," Taylor explains. Southern cooking became homogenous because of that poverty and the advent of canned and processed foods.

But Lowcountry cooking developed before the war. And while other Old World cuisines were transplanted in whole to American cities, they were blended in Charleston amid local cooking traditions.

"It's got a Sephardic Jewish influence — okra and tomatoes is purely Mediterranean from the Sephardic Jews. There are French influences and British influences. All the traditional European herbs were grown here. There are classic Persian dishes," Taylor said.

"You not only have African and Caribbean influences, but you have about the same climate. So people here are growing okra, and they're growing beans and they're growing benne (sesame)," Taylor said.

Some of the recipes in Taylor's book are traditional. He has updated others for modern cooks, but uses only ingredients that were available in antebellum Charleston.

The recipes range from relatively simple preparation of grits and boiled peanuts to the more exotic preserved grapevine leaves which were used as a condiment.

With thousands of acres of marsh on the coast, seafood and shellfish are prominently featured. There are recipes for stuffed flounder, crabs steamed in beer, crawfish gumbo and Charleston breakfast shrimp. Taylor also tells you how to prepare alligator and turtle meat.

Other offerings are as varied as squirrel, sweet potatoes Caribbean style, peanut salad dressing and Taylor's own recipe for pasta with country ham and sun-dried tomatoes.

"I know no better food," he says in his first chapter.

Recipes from "Hoppin' John's Lowcountry Cooking," published by Bantam Books:

HOPPIN' JOHN
1 cup small dried beans such as cowpeas or black-eyes

Cook

1 cup light brown sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
3 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup pecan halves
Few grains salt
Cream butter and brown sugar. Add syrup, well beaten eggs, salt and vanilla. When well mixed, add pecans and turn into a 9-inch pastry-lined pie pan. Bake at 350° F. about one hour or until firm.

KEY LIME PIE
(Sultana Beverly's specialty)
4 eggs
1 can condensed milk
½ cup key lime juice

5 to 6 cups water
1 dried hot pepper (optional)
1 smoked ham hock
1 medium onion, chopped (about ¾ cup)
1 cup long-grain white rice
Wash and sort the peas. Place them in a saucepan, add the water, and discard any peas that float. Gently boil the peas with the pepper, ham hock and onion, uncovered, until tender but not mushy — about 1½ hours — or until 2 cups of liquid remain. Add the rice to the pot, cover, and simmer for about 30 minutes, never lifting the lid.

Remove from the heat and allow to steam, still covered, for another 10 minutes. Remove the cover, fluff with a fork, and serve immediately. Serves 8.

STUFFED FLOUNDER
4 ¼- to 1-pound flounder
1 medium onion, chopped (about ¾ cup)
1 celery rib, chopped (about 1-3 cup)
1-3 cup chopped red or green bell pepper
¼ pound (1 stick) unsalted butter, melted
1 pound crabmeat
2 cups white bread torn into small pieces
2 large eggs, lightly beaten
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 ¼-pound center slice boned country ham, about ¼-inch thick, finely diced
1 tablespoon amontillado sherry salt and freshly ground pepper to taste juice of one lemon

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Lay the fish bottom side (the white side) up on a cutting board and make an incision in each fish down to the backbone along the center of the fish, stopping just shy of the head and tail. Working at an oblique angle, slip the knife in between the flesh and backbone and run the knife down the ribs on both sides of the backbone.

Saute the onion, celery and bell pepper in a heavy saute pan in about half of the butter over medium-high heat until the onions begin to become transparent, about 5 minutes. Toss with the crabmeat, bread, eggs, parsley, ham, and sherry, seasoning to taste with salt and pepper. Remember that the country ham is salty and will impart its flavor to the crabmeat. Stuff the fish with the mixture, brush a glass baking pan with some of the remaining butter, and add the fish to the pan. Mix the rest of the butter with the lemon juice, pour over the fish, and bake for 30 to 45 minutes or until the fish flakes easily with a fork. Serves 4.

OKRA AND TOMATOES

8 thick slices hickory-smoked bacon
1 medium onion, chopped (about ¾ cup)
1 pound fresh okra, trimmed
5 vine-ripened tomatoes, peeled and quartered, or 1 1½-pound can whole peeled tomatoes, quartered, with their juice
1 fresh hot pepper or cayenne pepper to taste dry white wine or chicken stock chopped fresh herbs of your choice for garnish.

Cook the bacon in a cast-iron skillet over medium heat until it is uniformly crisp. Remove from the skillet and set aside to drain. Add the onion to the bacon grease and cook until the onion begins to become transparent, about 5 minutes. Add the okra and continue cooking until the okra begins to glisten with moisture. Add the tomatoes and pepper and lower the heat. Simmer, uncovered, until the okra and tomatoes are stewed evenly, stirring occasionally and adding wine or stock to the pan if necessary to keep the mixture soupy. Serve over white rice steamed in chicken stock and garnish with fresh herb of your choice and the reserved bacon, crumbled. Serves 8 to 8.

Familiar words of kindness

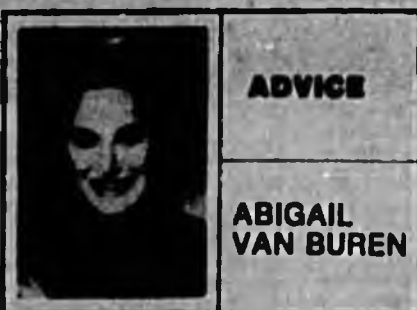

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago, you asked your readers if they could identify a quotation for you: "Kindness is the only service that will stand the storm of life and not wash out. It will wear well and be remembered long after the prism of politeness or the complexion of courtesy has faded away. When I am gone, I hope it can be said of me that I plucked a thistle and planted a flower wherever I thought a flower would grow."

I thought you might be interested in the following from "Lincoln the Unknown," by Dale Carnegie, 1937, p. 222:

"When I am gone," he moaned, "I hope it can be said of me that I plucked a thistle and planted a flower wherever I thought a flower would grow..."

There is an inscription in the book which reads: "My Dear Frances Singer — I hope you get half as much pleasure out of reading this book as I got out of writing it. As Abe Lincoln used to say, 'May you pluck a thistle and plant a flower wherever you feel a flower will grow'... Dale Carnegie."

In 1937, before I became Mrs. Joseph Schillinger, I was Frances Singer — Dale Carnegie's private secretary.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

MRS. JOSEPH SCHILLINGER, NEW YORK

DEAR MRS. SCHILLINGER: Thank you and also the many other readers who wrote to reaffirm that the oft-quoted, but rarely properly credited piece about kindness was one of Abraham Lincoln's.

DEAR ABBY: In response to Mr. Norman Savage's question regarding the placement of subjects for a formal wedding portrait in a photographer's studio, consider the height of the subjects involved. In most cases, the woman is shorter than the man; therefore, with the woman seated, the woman would appear even shorter. By seating the man, they will appear to be more equal in height.

Also, before women's lib, the woman was considered to be subservient to the man; ergo, the photos were posed keeping that supposition in mind.

GEROGE W. SHAW, VANCOUVER, B.C.

DEAR ABBY: The reason the bride stood in her wedding picture was to show every inch of her elegant, hand-sewn gown. She probably wore several petticoats under it, and many brides of that era wore elegant, large hats and even carried ruffled umbrellas.

The man sat because when you've seen one man's suit, you've seen them all! He held his hat in his hand to show off his full head of hair. The chair on which he sat was usually ornate and expensive looking.

These wedding portraits were designed so future generations would think of their grandparents and great-grandparents as well-to-do, stylish people who were very much in love.

NAOMI OF YAKIMA

DEAR READERS: If you have been treated by a psychiatrist for schizophrenia, please write and tell me about the success — or failure — of your treatment. Your name and that of your doctor will be held in strictest confidence. I plan to share your letters with the Group for Advancement of Psychiatry, a highly respected bond of psychiatrists, who are eager to know how psychiatrists are evaluated by their patients today.

Please send your letters to: Dear Abby, Gap Survey, P.O. Box 539, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

DEAR ABBY: I am getting married for the second time. As this will be my fiance's first marriage, he would like to celebrate our wedding with a dinner and a reception. My first marriage (which ended in divorce eight years later) took place 15 years ago.

Since I am close to my uncles and aunts on my father's side, I would like to invite them to our wedding. Would it be proper? They attended my first wedding, and I don't want them to think I am looking for another wedding gift. Your advice, please?

UNDECIDED IN CANADA

DEAR UNDECIDED: Since it is your fiance's first wedding, it's not fair to him and his family to request "No gifts." Issue the invitations and make no mention of gifts. However, you should tell those relatives to whom you feel close, "Please, do not send me another wedding gift. Just come and share our joy!"

Take a stand against spouse abuse

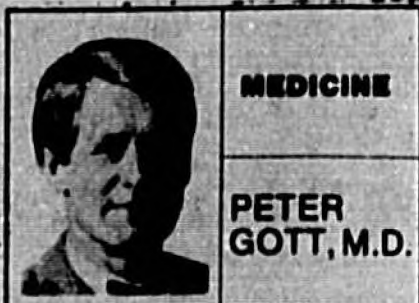

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've had a problem for all 46 years of my marriage. My husband is domineering, always right and cannot be found wrong. He will not listen to my views. I'm forbidden to work, must be home and used to be pregnant constantly and always I do as I am told. I've hated intercourse because it normally occurs when he returns from the tavern, drunk and stinky. He constantly puts me down and my only pleasure has come from my seven children, 16 grandchildren and one great-grandchild. I cannot speak with a counselor or minister, and you are my only hope in coming to grips with a horrible situation.

DEAR READER: This is, indeed, a horrible situation, as wife abuse always is. I do not have any ready-made answers. Nonetheless, it seems to me that you've got to get help. In order to do that, you'll have to speak out to someone: one of your children, a clergyman, a counselor, or some health professional. This is not a problem you can solve by yourself; in fact, you've been unable to solve it for 46 years.

In an abusive environment such as yours, there is always an attacker and a victim. I am suggesting that you don't have to be a victim anymore. There are trained professionals ready to help you, and numerous agencies willing to protect you. However, in order to get help, you'll have to shed your image of a helpless, intimidated, powerless woman. In short, you'll have to modify your role as a victim, an act that you may have great difficulty carrying out because of all the "baggage" you're burdened with from your long and unsatisfying marriage, as well as what may have been a troublesome childhood. The good news is that help is a telephone call away. Check your yellow pages for women's support groups, Al-Anon, wife-abuse protection groups, municipal agencies, or counselors in your community.

The bad news is that you are going to have to be courageous in taking a stand. And you'll have to accept the re-responsibilities of your "coming out." This may mean the dissolution of your marriage. But, from the sound of things, this mightn't be a bad consequence.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
The Epson Worldwide Pairs events were held on June 4 and 5. The announced winners of the second heat were Ni Xiao Ting and Ming Jian from China, with a score of 1816. However, Julius Fields and Calvin Morris played in a game in Rochdale Village, N.Y., that was run under the auspices of the American Bridge Association. It was reported that they scored 1778, but they actually had 1873.

played a club to dummy's queen. After winning with the club ace, Morris switched to his trump. West won with the ace and returned the diamond queen to dummy's king. Now South should have ruffed a low club with his last diamond. If West overruffs, South wins seven tricks: two spades, four diamonds and one club. Plus 300 would have given East-West just 34 matchpoints out of 100 and relegated them to second. But if West discards, eventually he scores the diamond four. The penalty of 500 would have been worth 52 points: enough to retain first place.

As Fields and Morris were not responsible for the error, by the time you read this they will, hopefully, have received the appropriate prizes. Fields and Morris did very well on this deal, but the declarer could have made life tougher for Fields, sitting West. North's bid of two no-trump showed a minor two-suiter. Fields led the spade queen. Declarer won with the ace and Actually, South called for the club king. West ruffed, cashed the diamond jack and exited with the spade jack. Now South could win only five tricks: two spades and three diamonds. Plus 800 gave East-West 93 points.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In a joint endeavor today bad feelings could result if you expect too much from your co-participant. The same will be true if he/she expects too much from you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Small domestic issues could be blown totally out of proportion today. Keep this in mind before you start finding faults with your mate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In your material affairs today you might come out better if you follow your own advice and counsel instead of adhering to the suggestions of others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll have to be a bit thick skinned today if you intend to take over a faltering situation and reorganize it. Even though you'll be right, you might be severely criticized.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The consequences of your acts could affect others adversely today, so be sure your intentions are pure and noble. If they aren't, problems are possible.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Even though you can get quite angry from time to time, you're not a person who holds prolonged grudges. Today forgiveness is likely to govern your behavior.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Small issues could cause you considerable frustration today and slow you up more than they should. Conversely, if you have to deal with something serious and important, you'll handle it well.
