

Valentine Vaudeville Seems Waste Of Talent

By FRED DANZIG
NEW YORK (UPI) — What happened to vaudeville? Why, you remember: After radio and motion pictures came along, they invented television and put all of vaudeville into one program called the Ed Sullivan show.

But Tuesday night, a so-called 60 minute "Valentine to Vaudeville" was offered on NBC-TV's Startime. Called "George Burns in 'The Bigtime,'" the hour starred Burns without Allen, Jack Benny, Eddie Cantor and George Jessel. It sounded like a good idea for a show, but unfortunately, for the opportunity for some high-flying fun and displays of showmanship was wasted. Except for Burns' jaunty cigar-flicking and singing a medley that included "Red Rose Rag" and "Where Did You Get That Girl?", his intervention during a number by the Kingston Trio, and some electronic tricks that helped Burns introduce his guests at the start of the show, it was an uninspired, drab, undramatic event that ranged from tolerably good to chaotic.

I had expected these four lads to come out and sock across some rousing s'arp material — perhaps after throwing away the script — to show the youngsters just what show business and "playing the Palace" was all about in the vaudeville era.

Instead, the jokes were recited without a context in time. As a result, they bombed as old jokes are wont to do, even on TV in 1960.

As for the younger talent on the show, the Kingston Trio did well with their two numbers, which is about all they should do on any one show. Bobby Darin, a young man who is aging rapidly, was on hand to demonstrate some more of his uncanny finger-snapping techniques. This boy can snap fingers on both hands while singing. The snapping sometimes drowns out the voice, and that's okay, too.

Chuck Connors and Johnny Crawford, on ABC-TV's Rifleman, had to survive a 60-mile hike through a desert with no water, no horse, a dust storm, and Connors' broken leg. It was an effective story of a man and boy against nature; no frontier salists gunning for the marshals; no bone-filled killers dueling in the sun; no corpses cluttering the saloon.

UPI's Jack V. Fox (tells of the most frustrated man in America: This fellow won a fortune on an honest TV quiz show and invested the money in cranberries.

The Channel Swim: A series of weekly experimental dramatic shows is being launched by CBS-TV on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 24. The series will present teleplays by established writers as well as new writers, directors and performers who take part in the network's new workshop program, which starts in New York on Nov. 29. Albert McCleery, last with NBC's Matinee Theater, will supervise the TV series and the workshop projects.

Hugh O'Brian, ABC-TV's Wyatt Earp, is set to star in "The Eighth Circle," a mystery to be seen on the Desilu Playhouse early in 1960. Eva Marie Saint is expected to play the title role in "Aimee," an NBC-TV Startime production based on the life of evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson. Executive producer Hubbell Robinson plans to tape the show in Hollywood or presentation next February or March.

Medical Examiners Board Established

A county board of medical examiners was created today by the county commissioners to investigate all sudden and violent deaths in Seminole County.

The commission agreed to establish the special board on the urging of Circuit Judge Volie Williams.

Judge Williams cited a recent case where Annie Ruth Shaw had been accused of murdering her husband and said he was forced to dismiss the case because the state had not determined how the man died.

"There was no doctor in attendance at the time of death," Judge Williams said, "the only witness the state had was an undertaker."

Williams stressed that the county had a "moral obligation" to set up the board. He cited a 1955 Florida law which said the county had the authority to establish a medical examiner board and set the fees that the board would charge.

Four physicians would be needed to sit as the medical examiners board and at least one to be on call at all hours.

Commissioner Attorney Mack Cleveland Jr. was authorized to prepare a resolution establishing the board. The physicians who would serve would investigate all violent deaths and make their reports to the state medical examiner.

Judge Williams last week dismissed a second degree murder charge against the Shaw woman because of lack of evidence. He quoted State Attorney Tom Waddell Jr. as reporting after the case that the man "might have died from biceps for all we knew."

The graph shows that 45.45 per cent of the tax dollar goes toward school finance; 18.18 to road and bridges; 1.10 to health; 3.73 to welfare; 13.13, general fund; 6.36, fire and fire insurance; 1.91 hospital and 8.91 to capital outlay.

In other business today, the board adopted the insurance program for the fiscal year at a cost of $14,412.

Desired a request to vacate certain platted streets in W. First St. and Parkman Ave. and a portion of the board is assured that the property would be used for an industrial site.

Appointed commissioner Vernon Dunn to make a survey on how the commission can cut telephone expenses during the fiscal year.

UN Presses Fight For Hungarians

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI)—The nations of the world rallied today for a major diplomatic assault on Russia's Hungarian policies in hopes of preventing a new bloodbath of Hungarian patriots who rose against their Red masters in 1956.

The General Assembly meets Wednesday to approve the recommendations of its steering committee that the 1956 Hungarian freedom revolt and its brutal suppression by Russia be put on the agenda of the 12-member world organization.

In previous sessions, the assembly had called upon Hungary and Russia to get Soviet troops out of the country and permit free elections for a new government. The resolutions have been ignored by both Moscow and Budapest.

Se Leslie Munro of New Zealand, special UN representative on the Hungarian question, reported briefly last week that Russian troops are still in Hungary, and "the framework of repression remains unchanged."

Munro said there are reports that trials and executions of Hungarian freedom fighters continued in spite of Communist assurances that they had been stopped. He warned of the "imminent possibility of further executions."

Bardot's Hubby Can't Take Those Barracks Jokes

PARIS (UPI)—Army officials said today that erudite barracks jokes about his wife Brigitte Bardot made actor Jacques Charrier so nervous in the service he was forced to undergo psychiatric care.

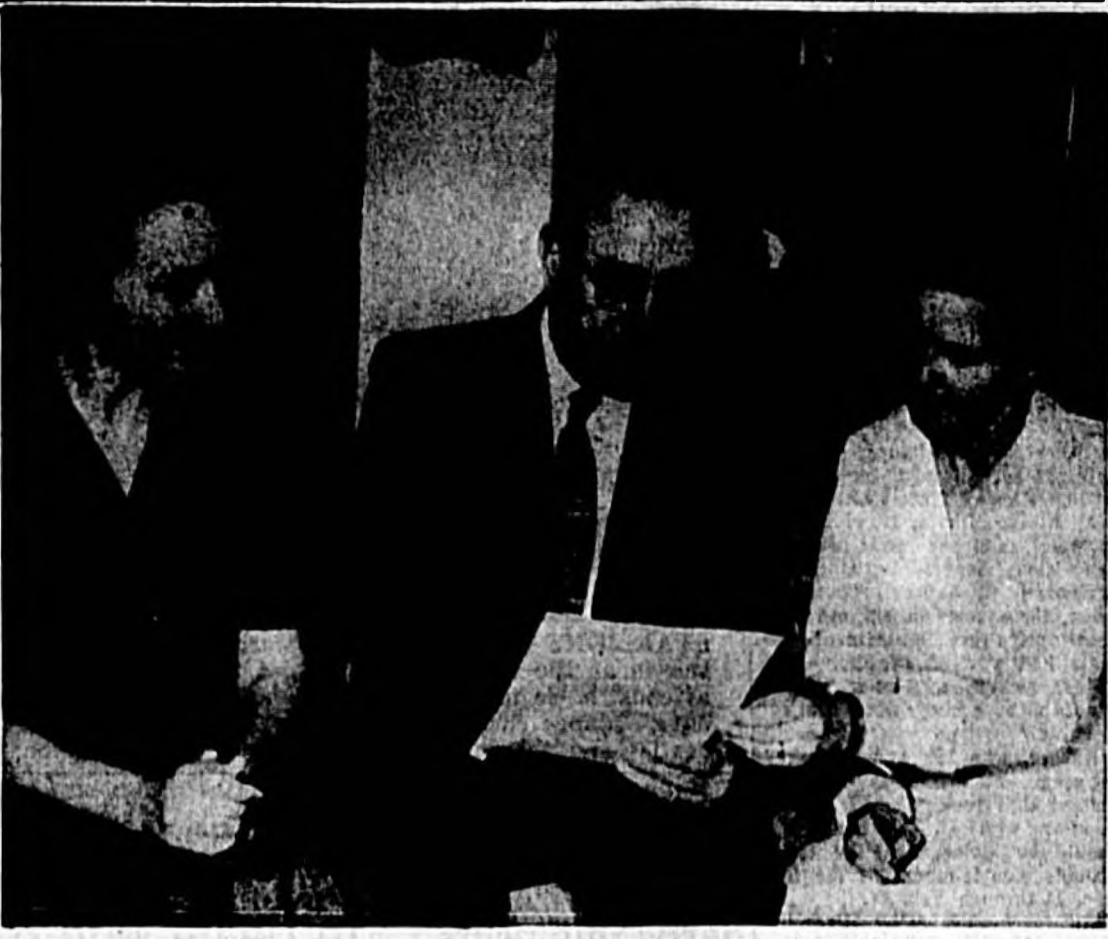

The officials said strafee Charrier, 22, just couldn't bear the leers of his fellow soldiers. It started the very day he went off to the army—and found his barracks festooned with photographs of his shapely wife, in the nude.

Charrier went straight to the hospital with a "case of nerves" and for the past two weeks has been on leave with Brigitte or in hospital, being stuffed with tranquilizers.

FSU Considering Ole Miss Coach

TALLAHASSEE (UPI)—It was learned today that Florida State University may offer Mississippi's Johnny Vaught the head football coaching job here.

Florida State University officials are in Tallahassee today to discuss the possibility of hiring Vaught, who coached at Ole Miss for 10 years.

Simplified City-County Registration Proposed By Sanford Commissioners

The City Commission last night told City Attorney William Hutchison to draw up Sanford ordinance amendments to permit combined city and county registration and voting.

After a discussion with county registration supervisor Camilla Bruce, Mayor A. L. Wilson said that the commission seems to be in favor of the combination and told Hutchison to have the amendments ready to put before the 1961 state legislature. Wilson asked Mrs. Bruce to find the cost of the combination.

Elections on the same day and at the same place for city and county would cut the number of voting machines necessary for local elections and the number of clerks needed to operate them, Mrs. Bruce said.

The city could have a first and second primary in May when the county has its primary election and then have the regular election in November, the supervisor pointed out. This would eliminate need for a city runoff election such as last year's.

Loch Arbor Water Control Approved

The County Commission has started action to prevent future flooding in the Loch Arbor area.

The board approved County Engineer Bob Davis' recommendation that a drainage easement be secured from Lake DeForest to Smith Canal, which would stop the waters in the Crystal Lake chain from rising over six inches.

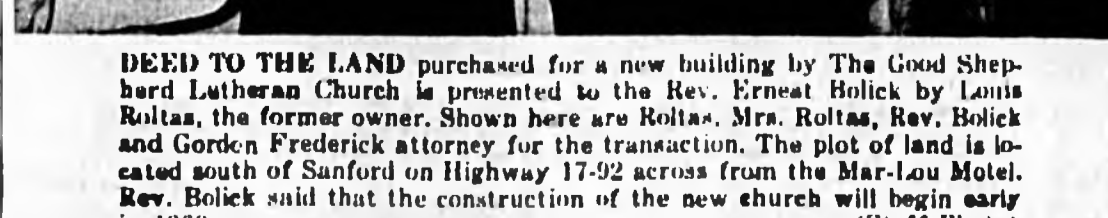

Davis made the recommendation after the engineering firm of Leffler and Bush completed their survey of the Loch Arbor area.

The easement will allow for large discharge pipes to be built in the area to hold flood waters.

City Finishes Year In Black

Sanford has ended its fiscal year in the black, with $7,116.28 left over from the operating budget, and $31,099.40 in surplus in the utility budget.

The report finished last week showed $685,925.95 was spent to run the city in 1958-59 and $218,872.90 was paid off on Sanford debts.

Plane Hits Houses, At Least Six Killed

CHICAGO (UPI)—A four-engine bright plane, apparently on fire and trying to make an emergency landing at fogbound Midway Airport, crashed and exploded amidst houses and an apartment house before dawn today.

At least six persons were known dead and officials feared the toll might mount as high as 15. Nine persons were listed as missing and nine more were injured, three seriously.

The only positively identified victim took off at 3:30 a. m. for Los Angeles. A TWA spokesman said there was an unconfirmed report that there was a fire warning in the plane's cockpit at that moment.

Helwig radioed almost immediately after takeoff that he was swinging back for an emergency landing through the rain and fog.

His plane came down three blocks away from the airport on Chicago's southwest side with an impact that sounded like a blockbuster bomb.

Police said the plane first hit the peak of one home, crashed through a lamp post, and then roared into two bungalow-type houses. Its tail smashed the corner of a two-story, eight-apartment house building.

Fire engulfed the area. Two homes were practically burned to the ground within an hour and a third was all but demolished, police said. Residents of the homes were believed to have been trapped in their beds.

Civil defense officials said the pilot was thrown 100 feet from the plane, still strapped to his seat. The two other crew members, 1st Officer D. W. Walters and Flight Engineer A. L. Auge, were believed to have survived.

It was the first major plane crash in four years at Midway, where a plane lands or takes off every minute. The airport is located close to new, bungalow-style, housing developments. At the time of the crash, visibility was so dense that low-flying planes overhead could not be seen.

City Delay Asked On Drain Levy

County Commission Chairman John Krider last night told the Sanford city commission that the $298,381 low bid on the Sanford Ave. widening project won't cover the entire cost of the widening. He said there will be $50,000 in engineering and right of way costs to pay, and asked that the city not drop their resolution to let water be drained through a ditch south of 25th St.

City Manager Warren Knowles wrote Krider Friday saying that since the $298,381 bid was under the $333,000 budgeted for the widening project, city officials felt that the county might be able to pipe Sanford Ave. drainage through the swampland south of 25th St.

The city commissioners agreed at their last meeting to let the drainage run through a ditch there for a period up to three years.

Krider pointed out that the engineering and right-of-way costs will actually bring the Sanford Ave. project cost to $348,381.

He said he thinks future county commissions would honor the ditch agreement which provides for the county ultimately piping this drainage if the state doesn't do it.

"I think we would be in good faith to carry out our agreement of the other day," said Earl Higginbotham.

A person entitled to vote in both city and county elections would be issued two signature slips. The voting machine operator would set the machine so that the voter could pull levers on both ballots, Mrs. Bruce explained.

Many parts of Sanford's charter would now prevent the registration combine, Hutchison said.

A city ordinance says the city clerk must act as registrar for city elections. The system under which city books are open for registration wouldn't conform to the county method, he said. Special legislation is needed to change these provisions, he pointed out.

Commissioners Joe Baker and Higginbotham said they were interested in an ultimate combination even if it couldn't be done now.

State Grapefruit To Help Garner Reach Age Of 100

LAKELAND (UPI)—Florida Citrus Mutual decided it would try to help former Vice President John Nance Garner live to 100.

Garner celebrated his 91st birthday Sunday and attributed his longevity to the fact that he ate grapefruit each day.

So, Citrus Mutual General Manager Robert W. Rutledge announced the big growers cooperative would supply Garner with a year's supply of grapefruit through monthly shipments to his home in Uvalde, Tex.

Rutledge also said he hoped the big Texas grapefruit industry would not be offended.

Daytona Police Arrest Two Who Bilked Tourists

DAYTONA BEACH (UPI)—Police held two Pennsylvania men today accused of blackmailing tourists by posing as moral officers.

Police Chief Oscar Folsom said the pair would flash phony detective badges and arrest tourists on false morals and indecency charges. He said they would demand $1,000 bond but settle for whatever the victim had on him.

The suspects were Stephen Wilson, 40, and Donald Lee Pasley, 29, both of Tampa, Pa.

They were arrested Monday after one of the alleged victims told police he paid them $100 to keep them from arresting him.

World Pact Urged
TALLAHASSEE (UPI)—Former British Prime Minister Clement Attlee Monday night advocated a world government to replace what he called the present "anarchic world." Attlee, speaking at a Florida State University lecture series, said the world government would be an alternative to a world which could cause the destruction of mankind.

Post Office Annex To Handle Parcels
Sanford will have a Second St. post office branch open for mailing of Christmas packages Dec. 7. Postmaster Joel Field said today.

All mail carriers will be dispatched from the annex after the Christmas season, Field said. The 2,952-square foot annex will be used for a post office workroom starting 1960.

Plane Stolen At Orlando Crashes, Killing Pilot

ORLANDO (UPI)—Searchers found a stolen airplane today which crashed shortly after take-off killing the pilot and critically injuring his companion.

The single engine plane was found crumpled in a grove of trees in a swamp just northwest of the Orlando city limits.

The passenger, identified only as Nathan Hunt of Marathon, Ind., was lying near the airplane. The pilot, unidentified, was dead, strapped in his seat. The pilot wore a U. S. Army uniform and carried a Marine Corps identification card which bore the name "Langh." The rest of the card was obliterated by blood.

The airplane was stolen early Monday morning from a hangar at the Orlando Airport. It took off in a heavy fog with visibility only one-sixteenth of a mile. Orlando tower personnel tried to halt the airplane by flashing a red light and blinking the runway lights. A few minutes after take-off, the tower reported, the pilot called for help and said he was out of control. The plane had a radio but did not carry instruments for flying in such weather.

The airplane missed a television tower by about 10 yards. It crashed near a housing development but residents thought the noise was made by switch engines in a nearby yard.

A Sanford Naval Air Station helicopter found the crash this morning. The U. S. Border Patrol was investigating the incident.

The airplane, owned by Orlando Aviation Service, was said to be a total loss.

Art Show Entry List Reported Near 150

Final details of the Civic Center Art Show were settled last night as members of the Sanford Art Association attended their regular Workshop Meeting at the Craft Hut in Fort Mellon Park.

In addition to the art show planning, they participated in a critique of works submitted by members and an instructional period.

The art show committee chairman, Mrs. J. O. Gregory, said that nearly 150 separate entries have been submitted for showing. The exhibit will begin at 8 p. m. Sunday afternoon and will end at 8 p. m.

In addition to the display of members' works, there will be demonstrations by various artists and refreshments will be served.

First Aid Course Session Tonight

The Sanford Fire Dept. will demonstrate its resuscitator at the Seminole County Red Cross first aid course meeting tonight at the First Baptist Church of Sanford.

The artificial respiration and first aid demonstration will start at 7:45 p. m. in the church's Park Ave. educational building. Ernest DeFollet of DeBarry is the instructor for the course, which is held each Tuesday and is open to members of the Seminole Memorial Hospital Women's Auxiliary, the county medical society and other interested persons.

The five-week course covers administration of first aid in auto accidents, poisoning, burns, fractures, wounds, shock and latest techniques in artificial respiration, bandages and methods of transporting victims. Emphasis is placed on preventive measures as well as actual treatment. Nineteen persons are enrolled in the study group.

Raging Washington Flood Takes Heavy Acreage Toll

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—Raging western Washington rivers inundated thousands of acres of Washington dairy and truck farming land today in the region's worst flood in 27 years.

The flood already had forced an estimated 1,100 persons from their homes and crippled cross-state rail and highway traffic.

Weary floodfighters agreed there would be little improvement in the situation until weather conditions took a turn for the better.

"I have no idea how long this will go on," said W. M. Beach, deputy Seattle-King County civil defense director. "I hope it stops raining, that we get some clear weather and that it is crisp and cold. Warm chinook winds have melted the snowpack in the mountains which have added their runoff to the heavy rains we have had. It all adds up to no star."

The Weather Bureau's forecast was not encouraging. Mild temperatures with occasional light rain or drizzle in the lowlands and continued warm temperatures with occasional rain in the mountains were forecast.

High tides complicated the situation by preventing the rivers from draining normally into Puget Sound.

Gov. Albert D. Rosellini Monday declared Snohomish County, hardest hit by the floods, a disaster area. Rosellini and state civil defense director Charles Rella personally inspected flood areas from a helicopter.

No casualties were reported but property damage was severe.

Helicopters, Army and Coast Guard amphibious craft and civilian boats worked all day Monday rescuing marooned persons, and the surface craft continued working through the night after helicopters had to stop their rescue efforts because of darkness.

William Hazen Is Dead At 57

William A. Hazen, 57, of Route 1, Sanford, died Saturday morning at Seminole Memorial Hospital.

He was a native of Lake Butler, and a resident of Sanford for the past 40 years.

Jehovah Delegates Return From Meet

Delegates from the local congregation have returned home from the Circuit No. 5 semi-annual assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses held in St. Augustine and attended by 1,104 persons.

Rush Stafford, presiding minister of the Lake Monroe congregation, was in charge of the equipment department, one of the more than 20 departments set up for the smooth operation of the assembly. Stafford reported that the witnesses held a circuit assembly twice a year in addition to an international, national or district assembly. He stated that they have cafeteria equipment, public address equipment, and other equipment for the departments.

Stafford reported that in the principal lecture of the assembly, "When Will God's Will Be Done On Earth?", J. W. Filson, district supervisor, showed how world conditions are a fulfillment of Bible prophecy and said, "Multitudes in the present generation will live to see God's will done on earth in fulfillment of Jesus' prophetic announcement. 'This generation will not pass away till all these things be fulfilled.'" (Matt. 24:34).

Stafford said the local congregation would return to its normal schedule of meetings.

Here's One Game That's Paying Off

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Management of the Sands Hotel wondered today when a costly winning streak by gamblers playing the newly introduced card game of baccarat would let up.

Hopeful bettors were still lined up two and three deep Monday night waiting to get a crack at the fast-moving game played by 12 players each making minimum bets of $20 up to $1,500.

The hotel introduced the blackjack like game at midnight Sunday and attracted a flock of all night gamblers who had taken the house for $251,000 by 3 a. m.

4-H Delegates Balk At Pressure To Omit Craze

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two top 4-H Club members balked today at government "pressure" to omit rock 'n' roll from their entertainment at the World Agriculture Fair in New Delhi, India, next month.

But other youngsters on the eight-member troupe said the Indians probably wouldn't dig that crazy beat, anyhow.

"They wouldn't even understand the term. They'd think we were talking about a stone and a piece of bread," said Patricia Ann Bottomley, 19, of Winnebago, Minn.

"And after all, it's just a passing fad."

There was a chance that the fair visitors would see some swing 'n' away if not rock 'n' roll. Kay Emiko Mihata, 19, of Kailua, Hawaii, said she was going to take along her hula grass skirt.

Kenneth C. Kehrer, 20, of Orange, Conn., said in an interview that Agriculture Department officials had advised the youths to "steer away" from rock 'n' roll tunes because they were "objectionable."

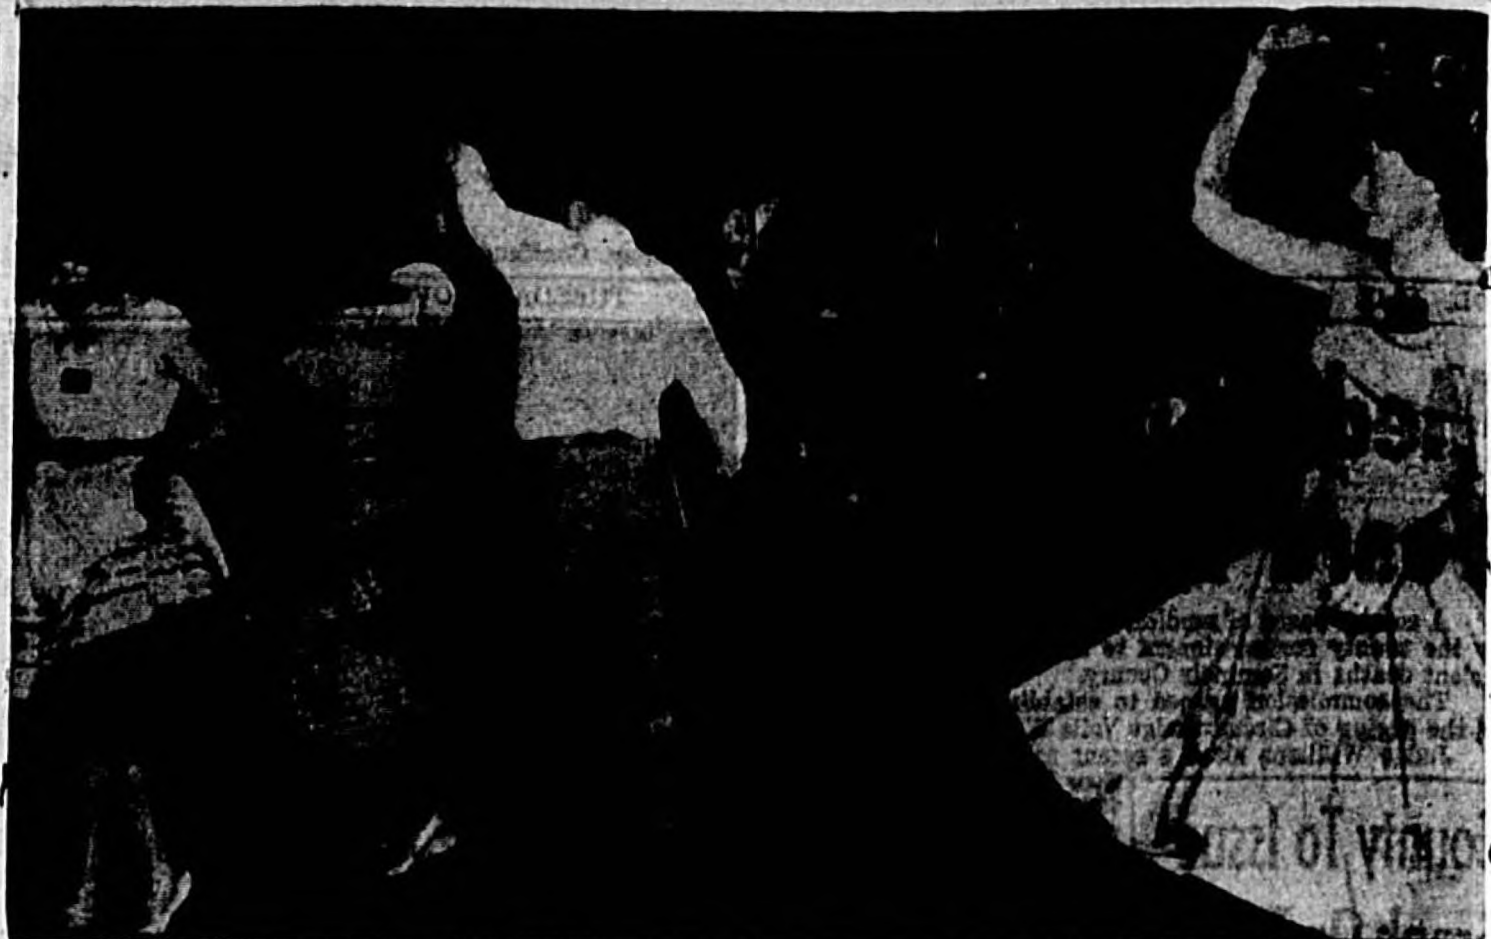

Kehrer, who has a disc jockey program at Williams College, agreed that rock 'n' roll, highly popular with U. S. teenagers, should be included in the farm group's entertainment at the fair Dec. 11 through Feb. 14.

He was backed up by attractive Nancy Ellen Nesbit, 20, of Hobart, N. Y. "If we are to represent rural young America," she said, rock 'n' roll should be included in the program.

Another member of the troupe, Ferdinand August Thar, 19, of Decatur, Mich., said he would explain rock 'n' roll to audiences the fair if they asked about it.

"I'll explain it's not the total scope of our music," he said.

Other members of the group are Stanley B. Stewart, 20, of Modesto, Calif., a guitarist, Rebecca June Passmore, 19, of Benton, Tenn., and Paul Maynard Hendrick of Jasper, Fla., to their musical numbers, the youths will demonstrate such farm skills as first aid, cooking, sewing, milking, soil conservation and stock handling. They leave for New Delhi Friday.

STARLIGHT PROMENADERS warming up for the season at the Civic Center included this group which attends the regular Wednesday night sessions here. The square dance club travels all over Florida to dancing parties and the next big one is the Central Florida

Square Dance at Orlando. The Promenaders also conduct a beginners' square dance class each Wednesday from 7 to 8:30 p. m. to which membership is open. Next class begins Dec. 2.

Government Moves To Seize Tainted Berry Shipments

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government has moved to seize three more shipments of contaminated cranberries, including one that the industry voluntarily agreed to withhold from groceries.

At the same time, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) announced it had tested and approved as safe another 4,226,000 pounds of cranberries since Friday.

This means that 13,192,000 pounds of berries have been approved as free of aminotriazole, a chemical weed killer that causes cancer in rats. Some 200,000 pounds have been seized as tainted.

Deranged Mother Beats Four Children To Death With Hammer In Georgia Town

ROSSVILLE, Ga. (UPI)—A young carpenter's wife was charged with murder today in the claw hammer murder of her four children.

"Yes, I've killed all four of them," the Rev. H. H. Long quoted Mrs. W. A. Thraikill as saying.

The bodies of the Thraikill's four children, Mildred, 3 months; Bobby, 17 months; Alfred, 4 years old and Wiley, age 6 were found Monday night with their heads bashed in.

Catoosa County Sheriff J. D. Stewart filed murder charges against Mrs. Thraikill, who was held in the Lafayette city jail. She was reported very calm.

Her husband, a carpenter, visited her Monday night but did not ask her about the children, police said.

Rossville police Sgt. Sam Hamlet said "she talked about being depressed and that she has to kill her children. I don't think she realized what she has done."

The 32-year-old mother stumbled into the home of the Rev. Long and told him she had just killed her children.

"You don't mean you've done that," Long asked her.

Long, pastor of the First God of Prophecy Church, asked his wife to step into another room and then called police. Mrs. Thraikill was shaking and her clothing was splashed with blood.

Long said Mrs. Thraikill was not a member of any church but his church had helped the Thraikill family with groceries from time to time.

Thraikill was not at home at the time of the slayings.

Thraikill said his wife had experienced emotional trouble about a year and a half ago but said she was treated and seemed to "snap right out" of it.

The Thraikill family lived in a small house next door to a country grocery. Rossville is 15 miles south of Chattanooga, Tenn., on the Tennessee-Georgia border.

Revolt Succeeds

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An angry band of government girls has done what many a GI only dreamed of—revolted successfully against "latrine duty."

The girls, secretaries, clerks and typists for the Military Air Transport Service (MATS) at National Airport here, were ordered to split into teams of twos and take turns cleaning up their ladies' room while the custodian was out sick.

The girls howled and refused to do the job, euphemistically called "extracurricular duties" in the order.

MATS, admittedly embarrassed by the incident, withdrew the directive. A spokesman said the order was issued by a low-level "eager beaver" who did not check with superiors.

Ministers Praise Navy Men's Act

The Seminole County Ministerial Assn. has written us a letter commending the unselfish action of seven men from the Sanford Naval Air Station who donated blood to a DeBary woman who was seriously ill. The letter said:

"We of the Seminole County Ministerial Association wish to acclaim and commend the heroic and self-sacrificing efforts of seven men from the Sanford Naval Station. We noted recently that these men sacrificed blood for an elderly lady of the DeBary community whom none of them knew.

"We feel that this is a noble example for all of us who live in the community, whether in service or civilian life, and we praise this, as we feel this a work worthy of all Christians. These men were listed as Leonard Zieller, Ernest E. Smith, Stanley Schrader, Marvin Lester, Harry D. King, Charles Stouff, and Jack Erickson.

The members of the ministerial association are right—this was a noble example for us all.

Florida Real Estate Deal May Oust Hoffa

MIAMI (UPI)—The Teamsters Union has more than 10 million dollars in sound, money-making investments in booming Florida.

But the union has $300,000 in Florida it would like to have back. And this $300,000 could lead to the ouster of tough Jimmy Hoffa as the union's president.

That $300,000 represents the one bad Teamster investment in Florida.

The good ones include: $4,200,000 in the Everglades Hotel in Miami.

$1,400,000 in the Miami National Bank.

Two million dollars in the Hamilton House apartment building under construction on Miami Beach.

$1,200,000 in the Castaways Motel on Miami Beach.

These investments represent about one seventh of the union's 75 million dollar pension fund. The real estate investments are in the form of interest-bearing mortgages and presumably the union has no say in the management of the properties. The money in the Miami National Bank was loaned to an individual, Lou Polier, who bought a majority of the bank's shares.

The $300,000 is in a non-interest-bearing account in the Florida National Bank of Orlando and the Teamsters are suing to get it back.

Martin F. O'Donoghue, chairman of the board of monitors appointed by a federal court to clean up the Teamsters, says he will try to have Hoffa removed for his part in the real estate deal which put the money there.

The disastrous real estate transaction began when Hoffa deposited $300,000 of funds belonging to Teamster Local 290 of Detroit in the Florida National Bank of Orlando. The money was security for a loan to Hoffa's friend, Henry Lower, president of a real estate development at Titusville, Fla., called Sun Valley, Inc.

Shortly after the security was put up, Lower gave Hoffa $25,000 as an "interest free loan," the monitors said. Lower later sold his interest in Sun Valley to another Hoffa crony, Benjamin Dranow. The Sun Valley company paid off about $100,000 of the loan and then went broke.

Sun Valley was a much-advertised project to provide Florida homes for thousands of retired union men. Water, roads, utilities and other conveniences for Sun Valley buyers were described in mailed advertising. The scheme was exposed as not complying with Florida real estate laws. Not even water was ever provided. Only two homes in the 2,500-acre ghost town were ever completed and occupied. Today weeds grow in its only paved street.

It was also disclosed that Lower bought the land in Sun Valley for $62 an acre, sold it for $2,523 an acre, and never put the profit back in the development.

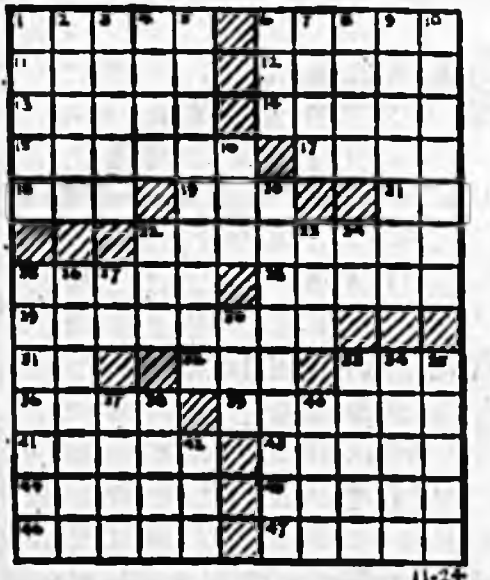

When the monitors accused Hoffa of mishandling the Detroit Local's money, and demanded the remainder be removed to an interest-bearing investment, the Teamsters tried to withdraw the money.

The bank refused to give it up, saying it was still collateral for the outstanding loan to Sun Valley.

The Teamsters have brought suit to have the money returned and that's where the matter stands now.

SOUTH POLE — In the belly of the 75-ton Globemaster, Airman First Class Ron Euscher of Little Compton, R. I., pats his big hand on the cargo parachute. "Four hundred and seventy-seven dollars," he said, "for one trip."

That's what the "chute cost." In a couple minutes it would be letting down a 55-gallon drum of diesel fuel onto the drop zone just off the Pole. To try to salvage the

Letters To The Editor

We wish to express our great appreciation for the news coverage, and picture of some of our children packing clothing for the children overseas, as well as your own very good editorial concerning the aims of our recent observance of World Community Day, November 6th.

Thanks to your help, and the generosity of Sanford Church Women, we were able to send 42 pounds of good clothing for babies and children, as well as $34.88 toward Christian service in new areas overseas.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ethel Merman's daughter, 17-year-old Ethel Six, has decided to start a stage career next summer by working in stock companies. She is now a freshman at Colorado College. If all goes well during the summer, she might decide to try immediately for a role on Broadway next season. Daughter, by the way, is interested in the dramatic stage, not the musical.

Large Scale

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Walt Disney is planning a large-scale two-part television production to dramatize the first exploration of the Colorado River by Major John Wesley Powell in 1845. John Beal and Brian Keith will co-star.

Soviet Composers Know The Score

BY FRANK ELSAESSER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dmitri Kabalevsky, it is true, lost his balance and pretty nearly fell to the floor, but otherwise it was plain the six touring Russian composers weren't about to make any slips.

They were winding up a month's tour of the United States with a press conference at the Statler-Hilton Hotel. Looking back, I'm not sure why they called it. At the time I wondered mostly why they called it for 10 a.m. and then strolled in at about 10:00.

In fairness, they probably had been tipped off by some local squealer that this was the American custom.

There was an exchange of smiles and greetings with the 18 or so newsmen.

Howard Mitchell, director of the National Symphony Orchestra, and an interpreter came in with the visitors, including Dmitri Shestakovich. There was a brief game of musical chairs as the group arranged itself behind a long table-covered table. In the good-natured confusion I think Kabalevsky took a seat where there wasn't one. Mitchell helped him recover, and invited our questions.

Somebody asked for a short report on the trip.

Tibbon Khromnikov, with smiling full face said he was glad to oblige. He said the Russians had visited eight big cities and many states from coast to coast and had been greatly enriched by their tour.

Through the interpreter he covered this thought, in a number of ways, in not more than 10 or 12 minutes.

"There is no doubt," he said, "but that our trip has broadened our idea of the American nature, the American people, and the American culture — and in particular the American musical culture. We have a knowledge now of the system of musical education in the United States. We had an opportunity of meeting the musical youth of America. Now we know about the American people and culture much more than we knew before."

He hadn't said specifically, I pointed out, whether his group's broadened view of America came as a change for the better or worse.

"Our attitude toward American culture is that it is an extremely high culture," Khromnikov said smiling firmly.

I had a feeling this fell short of an answer. Maybe Boris Yarslavsky had been made on the group by our "wealthy and clever planning" of libraries, universities, public buildings, and theaters. He said they were impressed too by our art forms other than music, like painting.

"I cannot say of course," he added, however, "that our taste is always the same."

Well, why not try it once more, I said to myself. So I noted there had been pleasant mention of classical music and symphonic orchestras, but I wondered if any of the visiting six had had time to catch Russia's musical fare—popular stuff like, say, rock 'n' roll — and if so, how did they like it?

One thing I learned out of this was that rock 'n' roll, when translated into Russian, comes out rock 'n' roll. Also that Kabalevsky for one didn't care for the snicker that went up at its mention from the more long-haired segment of the press.

"The question is somewhat strange," he said, "that even more strange is the fact that the newsmen present are smiling."

Mitchell leaped diplomatically into the breach to say he was sure the question had been misunderstood. He rephrased it. Even so, "I've heard good popular music and music I don't like for an answer."

Mitchell told the visitors he was happy they had been enriched by their tour. He said we had too. The press smiled, said thanks, and reached for its coats.

Adoption Of Hemingway Classic Turns Out Bad

BY FRED DANZIG

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ernest Hemingway's last TV representation before Thursday night was "For Whom The Bell Tolls," which suffered because too much story had to be left out.

"The Killers," first of four Hemingway stories as adapted by A. E. Hatcher productions to be seen on CBS-TV's Electra Playhouse suffered because too much story had to be thrown in. As a result, the 90-minute production was incredibly bad.

The reason I said this is that you can't play around with this particular Hemingway short story about a man who is not the master of his fate. It's a story that is charged with fatalistic dialogue and philosophy which sends the reader's imagination going off in all directions. The proper setting for the story is the imagination, not the TV stage.

Hochner's adaptation diluted Hemingway's tight little point with some shattering, something of a minor love story, and brushes against other forces that might have altered the fate of his hunted hero, Ole Anderson. After disposing of the original story in about 20 minutes—though, you can imagine Hochner's problem — about 70 minutes left over.

Of special interest in this production was the dramatic acting debut of Ingemar Johansson, the heavyweight champion of the world. Portraying Ole Anderson, Ingmar handled his lines with the proper feeling, but his movements were unnatural and indicated that director Tom Donovan had over-coached him.

Dane Clark and Robert Middleton acted as the killers. Dressed in black, they brandished a sawed-off shotgun and menacing George Raft-type dialogue whither they went. Ray Walston, as George, the owner of the diner, turned in the most convincing job of the night. Dean Stockwell as an eager-beaver Nick Adams was burdened with some shallow, neurotic dialogue.

The musical background for the production sounded as if it had been left over from a program that might have been called, "A cavalcade of quiz shows." It was too loud, too insensitive even for the broad action it had to accompany.

I'd say the only one who benefited from this show was Johansson. Having displayed considerable charm as a singer on a Dinah Shore show, he now seems to have some natural ability as an actor.

Duke Missed Chance Of Being Billy Rose

BY INEZ ROSS

The Duke of Norfolk is moving his lares and penates out of Arundel Castle, one of England's most historic and stately homes. Its upkeep is more than the dual purse can stand.

Ordinarily, such a real estate move from the Almsnath de Gola would scarcely touch me. But I feel that I know Norfolk fairly well, although he wouldn't recognize me from a hole in the wall. But there must be a handful of newsmen scattered all over the world who will always feel that the Duke, a nonpareil who, but the accident of birth, could have been a British Billy Rose.

By virtue of the fact that he was born the sixteenth Duke of Norfolk, he was also born England's premier duke and his country's hereditary earl marshal. As earl marshal, each of the dukes of Norfolk are stuck with the job of arranging the complicated public ceremonials connected with the marriage, coronation and death of a British sovereign.

It is the duke's responsibility to see that such ceremonies are performed not only with deference to tradition but also to accommodate such quirks of temperament as are permissible, on state occasions, in the royal family. You think you got headaches? The earl marshal must combine the talents of an anti-quarian, diplomat, psychologist, efficiency expert, Broadway producer and straw boss.

On three occasions as a reporter I have had cause to rejoice that the present duke, an austere, aloof—yes, haughty—man does combine these talents.

His first big job as earl marshal was the coronation of the late King
