

THE RADIO TOWER

By J. LAVERNE HURT
Public Agent

William Spler, former critic of "The Radio Tower" has just accomplished the most extraordinary feat in the history of radio. With his wife and two technical experts, he invaded Europe Sept. 1 with a portable studio weighing five tons packed in 44 trunks and boxes. He set it up in Berlin, Vienna, Milan, Paris and points between and made electrical transmissions, by a process similar to the record form of sinking talkies, of the music of nine nations. He came back, eight weeks to the day after he had sailed, with 90 plates of music enough to fill three solid hours on the air. None of the music has ever been heard on the air in America.

In New York he enlisted John Philip Sousa for the finale and got Deems Taylor to contribute the announcements. The program will be broadcast on Thanksgiving Day in a two-hour program, sponsored by General Baking Co. It will go out independently over 41 radio stations between 5 and 7 P. M. local time.

The last two district auditions in the third annual National Radio Audition will be heard from Chicago to-morrow night and Saturday, Nov. 15 and 16, and from Nashville, Tenn., on Monday and Tuesday of next week. The other three district auditions in this contest were held in Dallas, Tex., San Francisco and New York, all since the 15th inst. The winners in these District competitions, one young man and one young woman, will meet in New York, Dec. 15th, when they will compete for national honors. Each of the District winners, who becomes a National finalist, will have a share in the $25,000 cash awards and one of the ten scholarships provided by the Atwater Kent Foundation in this audition.

WJAX is making elaborate preparations to celebrate its fourth birthday next Thanksgiving Day. With the new 500 kilocycle frequency WJAX is anticipating little difficulty in getting out to distant points and they hope after midnight when the entire Eastern section of the country gets ready to say goodnight to be able to reach out to distant points in the West. They are preparing a special program of 24 hours on the air without a break.

Dolores Casinell, soprano is to sing in a program of Spanish and Latin-American music, El Tango Romantico, on WJZ and stations, Thursday evening, November 21st. Dolores is also a star in movie-land.

Astrid Fjelle, soprano, will make her debut as a soloist on the "Stars of Melody" program from WEAF and stations, Friday evening, Nov. 22nd.

Songs of fantasy and negro spirituals will be on Quaker program over WJZ and coast to coast stations Friday, Nov. 22.

Walter Danrosch, in arranging the program for his symphony orchestra over WEAF and coast hookup Saturday evening, Nov. 23, has selected the overture to Mignon to introduce the concert. Floyd Gibbons, war correspondent and writer, is giving a series of verbal dispatches, under the general topic of Adventures in Science, in this Saturday night program of Danrosch's. He may also be heard on Monday night in a series of Mexican talks.

WLW has a fascinating offering on its program for Sunday night next at 10:30. The tale is from the life of the noble Italian scoundrel, Cesare Borgia, poisoner of all who stood in his way. This medieval drama is packed with intrigue, jealousy and murder, mingling in terrible catastrophe.

NBC has an interesting program "New Business World" over its stations on Saturday nights at 7 o'clock. Among the prominent men appearing before microphones on these occasions are Merle Thorpe, editor Nations' Business, William Butterworth, president U. S. Chamber Commerce, Robert P. Lamont, Secretary of Commerce, Jas. J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, Justice Rosenwald, Kent Cooper, C. Bruce Barton and Cary Gray.

Development of a system whereby watches and clocks would be automatically kept in correct time by means of radio is being sought by the Elgin Watch Co. The aim of the company is the commercial production of timepieces so devised that they will essentially be radio receiving sets capable of picking up time signals and adjusting themselves to the precise time. It is extremely desirable that this work be carried on because foreign nations are also making experiments along this line. It looks like a banner season for those fans who thrill to reception of distant stations. Before the end of the winter upwards of 20 stations will be broadcasting programs on cleared channels with a wallop of 50,000 watts. On clear cold nights signals from these powerful remote stations will come in on sensitive receivers with the clarity of local transmitters. These

STAGE PLAYERS OBTAIN PLACES IN TALKIE PICTURES

Army Of Actors From Broadway Win Success In New Films

By Frederic A. Chase
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 21.—The army of New York stage players that a year ago stormed the battlements of Hollywood, seeking film fame and high salaries, apparently has won the fort.

Practically all have found places in the talking picture world, and they have received the necessary nod of approval from the film fans. They haven't displaced the old silent film players, however, and many newcomers not from the stage have also secured footholds. But the stage players have adapted themselves to the new requirements with amazing ease and have "clicked" with their new audiences in a manner totally unexpected in many quarters.

So firmly have they become entrenched, that of more than a hundred players now under contract by Fox films, one of the largest importers of stage talent, over half are recruits from the lake.

And not only players, but stage directors, writers and others have earned places in the filmworld.

Among the ex-New Yorkers who have made pictures for Fox are Will Rogers, George Jessel, Lenore Ulric, J. Harold Murray, Norma Terris, Mary Duncan, Paul Muni, Paul Page, Fifi Dorsay, Dorothy Burgess, and Helen Chandler.

Four film players hobnobbing between scenes on a Hollywood movie set the other day, found they all had in common the scene of their first performances. Drury Lane Theatre, in London, saw the historic debuts of the quartette, composed of Beryl Mercer, Daisy Belmore, Tempe Pigott, and Frank Terry, as children in Christmas season pantomime plays.

William Bakewell, romantic juvenile, who graduated from a local military school, will get a chance again to get into army clothes and do his stuff as a rookie. He is regarded as one of the most military appearing of the younger actors.

Al Rogell, who is directing "Mamba" for Colortat Synchronome, has become so attached to one of the zebras in the large animal cast that he takes it home with him every night. To striped beast, according to Rogell, as he comes almost human and makes it self at home in the Rogell garage. The director has learned that the zebra is an almost-stupid animal. Others in the cast include gorillas, alligators, elephants and chattering monkeys. The peculiar noise made by these animals will be registered in the audifilm.

PROGRESS IN INDUSTRY

Electric switches have been installed outside his show windows by a Berlin merchant so that pedestrians can illuminate them at night. A London underground railway uses clocks that automatically register movements of trains and call attention to any interruption in the service. A Rhode Island baking powder company has found that building blocks can be made from its calcium waste without affecting its production of phosphoric acid. Italian sandrymen have discovered that waste liquids from tomato canneries are useful in removing stains from linen. Chinese cultivate a species of nettle that yields a fibre resembling silk from which clothing is made. English chemists have developed a silicon paint that clings to iron when heated to red heat and then plunged into a freezing mixture.

KEY WEST—Cafe opened for business at corner of Duval and Charles streets.

50,000 watt stations will be operating in all sections of the country, among those who now have them or will construct same, are WGY Schenectady, KDKA, Pittsburgh, WEAF, New York, WENR, Chicago, WLW, Cincinnati, WTIC, Hartford, WBAP, Fort Worth, WOAI, San Antonio, WEA, Dallas, WTAM, Cleveland, WLS, Chicago, KMOK, St. Louis, KXK, Los Angeles, KGO, Oakland, WBAC, New York, and KTW, Chicago.

Radio has made its first admission of limitations. It cannot yet will not qualify as a matrimonial agency, the bachelor who wants WLW for assistance in finding a help mate received the following answer "WLW has been very successful in getting returns from almost every type of product known. However we question our ability to secure prospective wives. It is with regret we admit our inability to be of assistance in this instance."

ALL FACTIONS IN TARIFF WAR BREATH EASIER

Way Cleared To Fight About Settlement Of Bitter Quarrel

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(INS)—All factions engaged in the congressional fight over tariff revision today breathed a sigh of relief with adjournment set for Friday night and the way cleared for a renewal of efforts to bring about a peaceful settlement of the bitter Senate quarrel over the Hawley-Smoot bill.

Congressional leaders again turned their eyes toward the White House in the hope that President Hoover may intervene in the tariff dispute before the bill is finally passed by the Senate.

Their hopes were based largely upon the prospect that Mr. Hoover may canvas the tariff situation in his annual message to be delivered with the opening of the regular session Dec. 2. Thus far the President has declined to interfere in the dispute over rates.

The end of the special session will see the Democratic-insurgent Republican coalition's power intact and its leaders predicting they will continue to dominate tariff legislation.

The assurance of Sen. Borah (R) of Idaho, a coalition leader, that no effort will be made to break down the protective tariff system was viewed by "Hoover Republicans" as an opportunity for further negotiations on the bill in the next two weeks.

"There has been no threat made and no intention manifested to attack the protective system," said Borah. "There has been no purpose expressed, directly or by implication, that the vast interests now over-protected are to be destroyed."

"The coalition has been manifesting its purpose not to tear down the protective system but to distribute the protection to all classes of the country."

The plain intention of the special session to further confuse the business situation which President Hoover is trying to remedy was pointed to by coalition spokesmen that a "same" tariff bill will be written.

Having declined to consider resolutions to investigate the New York Stock Exchange crash or the Federal Reserve Board, an agriculture sub-committee postponed investigation of the cotton price depression until the regular session.

Having completed the flax manufacturers schedule, the Senate was expected to make an effort to complete the cotton textile schedule in the two days remaining. More leisurely action was forecast after the Senate last night abrogated its night session rule.

Over 600 Obtain Licenses So Far To Pursue Game

(Continued From Page 1) Judge Sharon also made it known for the benefit of those who have been unaware of the chance, that the fishing licenses, which were formerly sold for $1.50 have been raised to the amount of $3.25 following the enactment of a law which came into effect on June 10. Under the new provisions, the fishermen may take fish from Florida waters for the entire year, while under the old law two months of each year were closed as a breeding season.

SENATE TURNS BROADSIDE ON ITS ATTACKERS

(Continued From Page One) ized the Republican insurgents as "renegades" and "traitors." Harrison declared the editorial was "filled with filth" and argued the Senate "held the confidence of the people." The Mississippi senator said Babson was participating in the "scheme to discredit the Senate."

"It was Babson, who bought large plots of land in Florida and prophesied over the radio that the great boom down there would last five years longer than it did," said Harrison. "He has made more mistakes than any other man who prophesied."

HELEN TWELVETREES

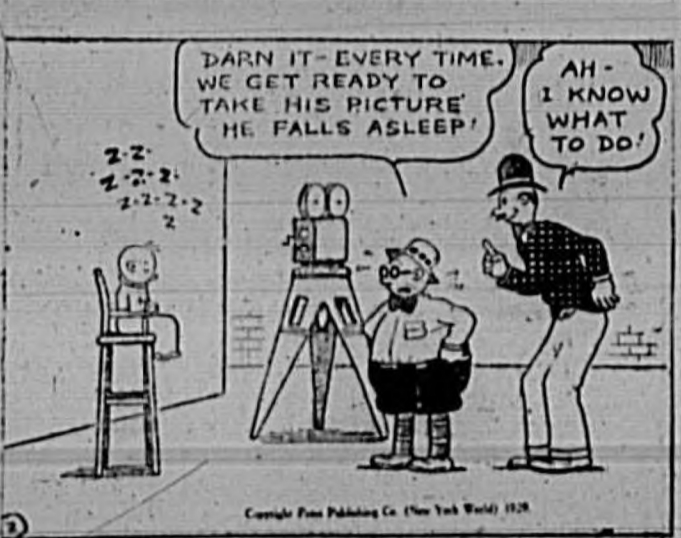

With a name like that, Helen Twelvetrees' father should have been a lumberman or a forester. We have heard family names like Oakes, Birch, Maple, Pine, Bush, Holly and others of arboreal significance, but now for the first time a name that was a whole forest. Miss Twelvetrees has the feminine lead in the new Pathé talker—"The Grand Parade."

French Fliers Come Home After Long Hop

LE BOURGET AIR FIELD, France, Nov. 21.—(INS)—Captain Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, two of France's greatest airmen, returned to Le Bourget at 11:40 A. M. today (6:40 A. M. Eastern Standard Time), following an epochal flight over Europe and Asia in which they set a new nonstop endurance record. Coste and Bellonte were greeted by a crowd of more than 1,000 when they arrived from Rome after last previous stop on their flight back from Asia in easy stages. The airmen set the new record in flying from Paris to Tientsin, Manchuria, a distance of approximately 5,500 miles.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—(INS)—As the train bearing the body of the late Secretary of War James Good arrived in Chicago today to be switched to a train en route to Cedar Rapids, Ia., it was learned that Mrs. Good was in a state bordering upon collapse. Her physician, Mayor George Beach, refused to allow Mrs. Good to leave her train compartment and announced that Mrs. Good was "very ill."

Close Example Of Snyder-Gray Case Unearthed

(Continued From Page One) "I loved him. Why? I don't know—Oh, I don't know. It's too late now to think about that but I gave him everything, my love and affection. No! I didn't think of Bill, working day and night for me. Dorr also sold insurance and we planned to get him to make Bill take out $20,000 insurance with me as beneficiary. All Bill could manage was $5,000 of it."

"Tuesday night Dorr came into my bedroom and didn't leave until early Wednesday morning, before Bill got up. You see, Bill slept in a separate room from me because he was up and home at all hours of the night and didn't want to disturb me."

"I thought Dorr had gone down stairs. Bill was in the bathroom shaving. Suddenly I heard a shot and knew then Dorr was planning to kill Bill this day. He never told me in advance, I resolved to help him. The flash of the gun blinded Bill and he called out to me. 'What was that?' I told him it was only an electric light bulb in the closet and begged him not to look in the closet because I knew then Dorr was in there."

"But Bill leaped for the door and Howard, I mean Dorr, fired again and the bullet hit Bill in the head. He screamed and ran for the stairs. Dorr ran after him with the gun in his hand. He fired twice and Bill fell down. Then the police came, I thought wildly and figured maybe we could get away with it. I told them Bill and I had quarreled and that I had shot my husband. I wanted to shield Howard because I loved him but Bill told everything and here I am."

Hoover Turns To Industrial Men For Assurances

(Continued From Page One) of Macy and Co.; there were steel representatives like Myron G. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee of the Steel Corporation, and George McLaughlin, of Jones and Laughlin of Pittsburgh; and many others whose names are by words in Wall Street and the industrial world.

The company which Mr. Hoover gathered about the big table in the cabinet room at the White House was by long odds the most distinguished, in a business way, that Washington has seen in many years. Most of them he knew personally, for as secretary of commerce he was wont to hold numerous conferences of like nature, seeking guidance and cooperation in the expansion of America's foreign trade.

He was dressed in a neat pin striped suit, and chatted in a friendly manner with the camera men. When they stowed up in their work, he chided them but said, "Take your time. It isn't hurting me," and later when a particularly heavy flash went off remarked, "I wasn't hurt; shoot again."

To the "talkies" he said: "Gentlemen of the newspaper profession: I want to thank you very kindly for the lovely reception you have given me tonight. After additional practice, I think these press receptions may be improved."
