WASHINGTON, May 30.—(AP)—The White House announced today that the new defense program, of more than one billion dollars, will be used to speed up the needs of the army and navy which are regarded as critical in the light of the latest developments in Europe's war.

The announcement came within an hour of the time the President's new national defense act (H. R. 1500) was introduced in the House.

The appointment of a successor to Hale as a member from the first district has not been announced. Perkins represents the fifth district.

Hale's term as member and chairman of the department ended yesterday when Governor Cone accepted, effective immediately, the undated resignation which Hale, at Tampa, said he "voluntarily signed" at the time he was appointed in January, 1937.

Perkins was elevated to the $10,000 a year chairmanship at a special department meeting held yesterday afternoon when Governor Cone accepted, effective immediately, the undated resignation which Hale, at Tampa, said he "voluntarily signed" at the time he was appointed in January, 1937.

With only 23 of Florida's 1129 precincts yet to be heard from, United States Senator Charles C. Andrews had piled up 306,662 votes in his race for reelection to his Senate seat while his opponent, Jerry Carter, was gathering 121,545 votes.

Red Cross Gets Several Large Contributions

Of War Refugees
Is Now $904.70

LARGE contributions during the past two days have brought the total of the funds collected by the local Red Cross chapter to within $100 of the $1,000 goal set by the national organization.

Directors of the organization, including approximately 4000 industrial plants, promised to contribute $100,000 to the fund.

All that is short on Saturday night is the amount of the chapter's contribution to the fund.

Progress is being made in the fight to secure federal recognition of the Red Cross chapter in the United States. The chapter is now working on these matters.

Sharon said that many other contributions had been received from the public.

WORLD VERSE FOR TODAY

BE SURE YOUR CAUSE IS RIGHT: In him will I trust: he is my shield, and the horn of my salvation, my high tower, and my refuge from violence.—2 Sam. 22:3.

Alone the only issue in the coming presidential race is who the president will be.

Even if he wins, Hitler won't be looking for any more fighting. It's a long time—years—before the war begins, except for the few days of his.

On the night before election we received the prediction in this column that, even if Hitler won the election, he would not carry Florida by 70,000 votes. This morning, with 15 precincts still unreported, Holland was leading by 67,000. We must wait this only to show that when these predictions are made, the Literary Digest will have to take them.

Two likely prospects for future political movement in Florida are Governor and Senator. Governor and Senator are those who are most likely to be elected.

Florida's political future is in the hands of the people. The people will elect the governor and the senator.

A Nazi Victory

As the United States celebrates Memorial Day with the graves of its war dead in Flanders undisturbed, save for the bursts of bombs and shells, for the first time since the Armistice, thoughts of many Americans will naturally run back to those early days of the first World War, when the Allies, like today, were fighting with their backs to the wall and the perfectly synchronized and murderous German war machine got within a few miles of Paris.

Then as now the flower of the British army had been wiped out in Flanders, the Belgians, though never surrendering, had been practically eliminated as a factor in the war, and the French had seen many of their best armies cut to pieces. Those were dark days in France and England immediately preceding the first Battle of the Marne.

Because the gallant French and British rallied then, raised more armies, and fought on, ultimately to win the war, we can take heart now that no matter how desperate is their present plight, some miracle may even yet save them. If they can lose this battle and yet win the war, if they can lose every battle and still win in the end, as others have sometimes done before them, that will be what really counts in the long run.

But the gravity of the situation in Europe is such that Americans should be giving serious thought to what our attitude should be in the event of a German victory and a Nazi-dictated peace treaty. It can no longer be assumed that an Allied triumph is inevitable, or that Hitlerism can ultimately be crushed by the French and British alone. What are we going to do if it is not crushed?

In the fighting that is to come much of the British navy will be destroyed. What is left of it will probably be surrounded in the Channel. Hitler is not the kind to allow his officers either to scuttle it on or to withdraw to Canada, or Australia, whence to continue to fight. He will order the British to surrender in or face the complete destruction of British cities and civilians by air bombers.

Hitler may then allow England, France, Canada some semblance of independence, but their enemies will be broken up, divided among dictator nations. It is inconceivable that Hitler would make a treaty with England or France which did not provide him with suitable air and naval bases in the Western Hemisphere. We would not not allow that! What could we do about it, "short of war?"

Hitler would then be dictator not alone of Germany but of a completely subjugated Europe, a Europe devastated by war and torn by racial prejudices, religious intolerance and the starvation and discontent of destitute peoples. He would need food with which to feed them, and the raw materials and other supplies with which to clothe and house them. He could get them all in the United States. He could make his people prosperous and contented on American wealth. But how to get it?

The terms of the deal would be Hitler's, or else. If we did not accept, he would not have to send an army to America. The broad Atlantic would not save us. He would not have to conquer our country. All he would have to do would be to send a few thousand bombers over and devastate our cities. After he had wrecked New York, Boston, Washington, perhaps we would listen to reason.

No, Hitler would not have to send an army across the Atlantic. Hitler would not have to invade America. We would have to invade Europe. It is Hitler that the broad Atlantic would protect. It is we who would have to send the army to Europe, to land on a hostile shore, protected by hostile fleets, and whip Hitler in Europe, in order to eliminate his menace value.

THE WORLD'S first "Disaster Car," given to Portland, Oregon, by a local merchant, enables that city to cope at a moment's notice with almost any sort of calamity. The big red-and-white bus, capable of a speed of 60 m. p. h., is equipped with everything from a complete emergency hospital, with two operating tables and oxygen apparatus, to an outboard motorboat, a portable generating plant and flood-lighting system, a two-way radio, a movie camera, floodlights and skis for mountain rescue, and a field kitchen. The car's six-man crew is equipped not only to give emergency treatment for all sorts of accidents, but to cut through heavy metal or wood, sever high-voltage power lines or hoist girder or other heavy objects from victims' bodies.—William F. Gray, Jr., in Hospital Management.

"Now, before we go any further, shall we agree there's no use in hiding ourselves?" said the salesman confidentially to the stout matron at the corset counter.—Sherwood.

"I was only speaking figuratively, Mr. Osmond," said the girl in the reader to the man up the tree.—Keweenaw.

"Perhaps we shouldn't listen," said one dowager to another as they passed a coroner's office. "I believe he's trying to influence our vote."—Helen E. Robinson.

AN EMBROIDERED marriage, matrimony who drive in to Hollywood's service station at Hollywood, California, found the wedding car, which had been left outside the station, had been stolen and the car stolen and the car stolen.

STEADY ADVANCE

MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP)—News reporting in a highly technical field, it can be said, is not without its own kind of glamour. One does not learn to distinguish the false from the true by such a process as looking at the newspaper's headlines, profiting by years and generations of experience, must be regarded as the highest authorities in the business of disseminating factual information. In self-respecting newspapers, press that can be proved is always qualified.

I mention this because, while at this point in going through industry, news before here, in reports and in newspaper, it is not proved is always qualified.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STREIBER

WASHINGTON, May 20.—(AP)—The Washington Post drivers, with a gift for gab that should be the most effective congressional speech, talked themselves into a position of prominence.

So prominent are they in politics that the press of the capital has the power that is accorded to those who drive the Post. Only the fact of the Post's prominence, however, is what they are known as "the Posters," another name.

Washington loves to back the Posters with its own. They are a strange kind and yet as much a part of the Washington scene as the Lincoln Memorial. They come from all over the Post and they are known as the "Posters," another name.

To understand the Posters, one must first understand the Post. The Post is a strange kind and yet as much a part of the Washington scene as the Lincoln Memorial. They come from all over the Post and they are known as the "Posters," another name.

So, if you are coming to Washington, don't go home and tell your friends you have seen the Posters. You have seen the Posters. You have seen the Posters. You have seen the Posters.

American Graves Lie Not Far From Scene Of Battle

BY TOM WOLF

Not 25 miles from the ancient French city of Sedan, where now the long-awaited "great battle of the west" has begun, lies the largest American World War cemetery—Arlington National Cemetery.

The very graves which mark the graves of 14,200 Americans buried on this peaceful hillside—only a fraction of the nearly 200,000 American casualties of the Sedan action—may soon give and shelter under the bombardment of the great battle for whose silence these dead boys fought and died.

Bernard M. Baruch, who headed the U. S. War Industries Board during the World War, may be called upon to organize industrial mobilization for future defense needs. The cracker, who is pictured arriving at the White House for a recent conference on the subject with President Roosevelt.

In the time of Joan of Arc, in 1470, the French surrounded the French at Sedan. There the French surrendered to the French, Napoleon III was captured, the second French empire was overthrown.

In the first World War the Germans once again took Sedan. Through it ran the Metz-Longwy-Sedan-Metz railway. Over its tracks were carried the "all-important" German communications with the Rhine. Could this army, vital to the French, be severed? The answer was "no." The German resistance would be cut, the French would be cut.

It was on the shoulders of the American First Army that the allied high command put the burden of the capture of Sedan in these final months of 1918.

The doughboys started from a base 20 miles wide between the Argonne Forest and the Meuse river. Sedan was the apex of a triangle 12 miles every. Between the two divisions of the First Army, I, III, and V Corps (which started the campaign) and their objectives lay ground which General Pershing termed "ideal for fighting."

The great push started with dawn. Artillery barrages at 1:30 a.m. and 3:30 a.m. During the next 48 hours and nights more than 1,000,000 men faced the action of a great battle. During the next 48 hours and nights over 200,000 Americans became casualties of all kinds—some killed outright, some wounded, some captured.

In the end, the French and the American First Army pushed the German army back to the Meuse river. The German army was broken. The German army was broken.

scribes from all over the Reich to hurl into the widening breach against the heretofore untamed doughboys.

Nov. 6, 1918, on orders from General Pershing himself, the "Case for Sedan" began.

"The honor of entering Sedan should fall to the First American Army," read an official order.

It did not. The French, eager to wipe the spot off their national honor that the fall of Sedan in 1870 had blotted there, entered the shell-shattered city first. But not until after the war was over.

In an official history of the great drive prepared by the American Battle Monuments Commission, of which General Pershing was chairman, it is written: "When the American Army, despite increasing enemy reinforcements and a well-organized, impregnable defense system, had driven forward to a position dominating the German railroad communications in the vicinity of Sedan, the termination of the war in 1918 was secured."

The first World War ended in the doughboys' push for Sedan. The second World War came to its beginning in great haste where they left off.
