President Will Attend Funeral For Longworth

Throughout the day they had been intermittently in communication with each other by telephone from Albany.

The funeral will be held at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D. C., on Monday, April 20, at 11 o'clock a. m.

Mr. Longworth was born in Ohio, distinguished service on the powerful ways and means committee, and one term as major floor leader.

He was the Republican candidate for speaker of the next House in which this party now holds a majority of only one.

Perhaps this is the last time it will address you from this column. It is only an allusion to the evidence who is going to determine which of the two major parties will govern the next Congress.

JUDGE UP ATTACK ON OFFICIALS

Case Involves Constitutional Authority Of Federal Election Act

PITTSBURGH, Apr. 15.—(AP)—Judge R. M. Green, in United States district court here yesterday, upheld an attack on the constitutionality of a part of the Federal election law.

The decision was rendered in a suit against the government for a writ of habeas corpus filed by voters of the John W. Dorman estate of Washington, Pa.

The legal question raised was whether the government had the right to file a citizen to support of the election law.

Republican leaders conceded that with the aid of Longworth's leadership, the possibility of administration reform was a real possibility.

The district court judge ruled that the government was not entitled to file a citizen to support of the election law.

Mr. Green said that the government's attempt to file a citizen to support of the election law was unconstitutional.

Although building construction in the South did not start this year, figures which are being compiled during the past few weeks indicate that the year as a whole will compare favorably with other years. Figures for the first three months of the year show that only $43,000,000 worth of contracts were awarded in February, during March the volume of new construction reached the encouraging total of $63,000,000. Figures for the quarter show $179,000,000 worth of building and engineering projects already under way and more than $270,000,000 worth of proposed construction.

Although the aggregate value of construction awards in the South up to the first of April is slightly below 1930 figures for the corresponding period, when the much lower prices for materials and reduced building costs are considered, says the Manufacturers Record, "the actual volume of new construction is ahead of the record last year. Of equal significance is the more general nature of the projects announced by the Manufacturers Record in the past few weeks, since the 1930 gas and oil pipe line extensions, representing an investment of some $200,000,000 accounted for a large proportion of the South's construction total that year.

Construction Contracts Awarded First Three Months

1931	$179,000,000
1930	182,242,000
1929	122,596,000
1928	177,515,000
1927	185,821,000

"Public work, such as highway developments, inland waterway improvements, etc., continues on a large scale. With a strengthening of residential and industrial building, signs of which are in evidence in the South in recent weeks, activity in the construction industry promises to be on a higher scale than in former years.

"Advantages now offered to the prospective builder in reduced material costs and greater service are a strong factor in helping to bring about revival."

Colleges And Divorce

In an age which sees divorce courts crowded to capacity, one is apt to wonder who these married couples are who are so busy getting divorces, and to which class of society they belong. The opinion is more or less prevalent that the majority of divorces occur among the "idle rich", or what might otherwise be known as the "upper crust".

But this is an erroneous conclusion, according to Miss Rita S. Halle, who has recently conducted a nation-wide survey and writes interestingly of it in the current issue of Good Housekeeping. The college campus, it seems, is the best place to begin an enduring romance. The general divorce rate, it is pointed out, is one divorce to every six marriages. But among college marriages, this rate is reduced to one divorce to every seventy-five marriages.

The reasons for the success of the so-called college marriages are given by Miss Halle as the fact that such couples are apt to marry later in life. Many divorces occur among couples who have married before their twenties, or in their early twenties. Ordinarily the campus romance does not reach its proper conclusion until after graduation, which gives both sexes every opportunity to consider each other seriously from every angle.

"The usual co-educational courtship is carried on over a period of years," the Good Housekeeping writer points out, "and at a time when boys and girls are keen in observation and tremendously critical—which is important when choosing a life partner. During that time they have opportunity to see each other under all conditions, in the classroom and on the athletic field, in the fraternity house and the social hall, under conditions of stress as well as under happier conditions. A girl is given the opportunity to know that the socially attractive boy may be only that, while others that do not shine socially have the real qualities that make for stability in marriage and in life. The young man, too, has had time to see beneath the surface prettiness that has caught his eye."

So there we have another reason for college education. Go to college, in other words, and learn how to pick a wife. Go to college, we might add, and stay out of the divorce courts.

THE LIQUIDATOR'S REPORT
ORLANDO REPORTER-STAFF

The people of Orange county should take time to study the report of the finances of the State Bank as published by Liquidator W. H. Tunncliffe. Not only depositors, but every business interest in Orange county will be affected by the success of the liquidator.

This report shows that all insured deposits—those that had to be first paid off because insured under the requirements of the law of state, and loans made to the bank for which securities of the bank were pledged, are paid and those securities turned back to the bank. All cash that now comes in, over and above the cost of administering the business, will be for the benefit of depositors.

der a community service thereby. The liquidator would, no doubt, take great pride in securing a dividend as a refreshing piece of mid-summer business.

Heretofore, have been the efforts of a lot of good people in meeting their indebtedness and maintaining their credit. Such people though they have made personal sacrifices to do it, will be able to appreciate most the new prosperity that is an apt to come as that sunshine follows the rain.

Both individuals and institutions are getting their feet planted on more secure ground than has been the case in five years. Co-operation, confidence and calmness are mighty factors in the building of business and general prosperity.

That the liquidator has been diligent in the collection of debts due the bank, all will admit who have occupied the unpleasant position of debtor. That he has been hounded at times, in the estimation of some, may be due to the fact that circumstances necessitated it. Future diligence on the part of the liquidator and on the part of those owing the bank will enable the payment of a dividend in the near future. Certainly this is a thing to be desired.

Whatever of editorial comment we have made from time to time regarding the banks in process of liquidation has been for the sole purpose of aiding the liquidator in his difficult and delicate task, and at the same time serving the depositors in some way, if possible, that would help lessen their misfortunes.

We can conceive of nothing that would be more reassuring to the people of Orange county than the payment of a dividend to bank depositors. It is a long way from the present to that day, but it is a goal that should be kept in mind.

New York City is suffering a water shortage. Perhaps the water authorities can persuade the city fathers to use less in their homes.

NEW YORK, April 10.—The city's triple-barrelled rifle against "swindlers and racketeers" seems to be growing more potent. If anything, Or anyhow, the police seems more low down.

Only a few days ago some runners sent a fair S O S from a point off the Jersey coast, where all available coast guard cutters are in the vicinity, and then proceeded to land so much cargo at night one points that the small party of eye whiskey, from Manhattan to Atlantic City, dropped $150 per case.

The mysterious "save, oh every signal was had enough, straining as it did at the finest traditions of the sea, which is never seen, an S O S unless you are sure that it is either that or swim home. Unable to discover any sinking ships, the crew of a score of more vessels returned to their homes, with a grudge, in conversation yesterday, later, over cups of eye which had mysteriously become cheaper, sea-faring men condemned the trick in words that will not be repeated here. They said that they were afraid they never again could answer a faint S O S with quite the same fresh eagerness.

Recent onerousness has not confined itself to the ocean, however. A gentleman was walking from Fifth avenue to his apartment in East 38th street when he was accosted near Park avenue by a young woman, genteel but shabby.

She begged his pardon, sir, but could he direct her to the Y. W. C. A.? He could. There is a branch home for girls at 138 East 38th street, familiar to all residents of the neighborhood. Did he know how much food and a night's lodging cost there? That startled him.

"Oh, about a dollar I imagine," he said.

The girl's chin began to tremble. "What's the matter?"

"I've only got thirty cents," she said.

The gentleman digested a larger and some chattering words. He turned into his home, which happened to be right there. A few minutes later, glancing out a window, he saw in the street a shabby, gaunt, feminine figure. The figure was in the act of receiving a coin. Add then another, and another. Our hero didn't call the police. But he said he felt just as he'd about it as the exact guardmen did about that S O S.

Of course the perennial, self-renewing and perpetual low down trick played on New Yorkers is the coat room racket. Everybody knows it—that the little blonde girl or the sad-eyed elderly woman doesn't get the money, but everybody keeps on paying a quarter for his hat just the same. Except maybe a few strong-minded old fellows from Finland, like Amarillo. I have seen professional New Yorkers blast at the simplicity of those visiting firms in bilkily laying down a nickel and offering to check the little lady under the chin at the same time.

The coat room "privilege" at the Hollywood restaurant on Broadway is said, on the authority of "Variety," to bring the restaurant $25,000 yearly. New York is the only city where bankers buy out the coat room privilege for about $15,000 annually each. The girls who do the work night or well be employed by Woolworth.

Apartment house inmates, like dogs just as other people do, but finding suitable ones is a problem. The miserable life led by apartment house dogs is too pitiful for many sensitive souls. Cats have a way of going out on the fire escape and vanishing forever. Fish seem to answer the problem. They are clean, do not take up much room, do not have to be fed on a leash at certain intervals, and never make noise that annoys the neighbors.

Japanese, according to a satisfaction of Manhattan cliff dwellers, are particularly good but the new style is the tropical fish. A few months ago it was usual to see a fisherman in a boat on the water, and about the same time it is to see a fisherman in a boat on the water. If you would be in the water, you could find a fisherman in a boat on the water.

If you would be in the water, you could find a fisherman in a boat on the water.

Japanese, according to a satisfaction of Manhattan cliff dwellers, are particularly good but the new style is the tropical fish. A few months ago it was usual to see a fisherman in a boat on the water, and about the same time it is to see a fisherman in a boat on the water. If you would be in the water, you could find a fisherman in a boat on the water.

THE WORLD'S AT YOUR DOOR

IMMORTALIZED in story and song, the old "corner store" has passed along with the free points on the turnover can, and the customer's access to the cracker-box. It was picturesque, but you never quite knew what you would find there. Half the time it was full of goods you didn't know what they wanted. The other half, it was empty. It was more of a risk than a store.

Today, when you enter your grocery store—or any store—you know what you want, how much you want of it, and the price you are going to pay. Advertising has rendered you this service. It brings you daily, through the columns of this newspaper, the merchandise opportunities of the whole world. In the quiet of your own home, you are enabled to select everything you want to buy.

The modern way to be certain of quality and value is to read the advertisements. Representing almost every kind of merchandise, the advertising columns of this newspaper bring you the best quality goods at the world's market prices!

Read the advertisements! They are daily messages of opportunity for you.

PARTY HINTS

"Letter Tag" is an amusing game. Pin squares of cardboard on which are printed letters of the alphabet on each player. Select the letters commonly used, and have more vowels than consonants. A player starts the game by calling his letter and trying to tag another player whose letter will not complete a word.

For example "S" might tag "T". The letter tags "A" if "A" tags "R" and completes the word STAR, he would have to drop out of the game or pay a forfeit.

The game can also be played by seating the guests in a circle and one person starting a word by calling out a letter. The next person must add a letter and so on around the circle, each player trying not to end the word. As he adds a letter, however he must have a word in mind that can be made by calling the letters.

If a player gets stuck, he can challenge the preceding player for the word he had in mind. If he is unable to give a word he loses his turn in the next game.

Tonorrow: Playing "Balloon" games.
