Whole Military Responsible In Beirut Bombing: Report

By Robert Shepard

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The entire military chain of command, from the local Marine commander to the highest levels of the Pentagon, must share responsibility for inadequately guarding against the Beirut bombing that killed 240 men, a congressional report concludes.

The report by the Armed Services Investigations subcommittee also called to account "the higher policy-making authority" that ordered the Marines in the multinational peacekeeping force into a position "where protection was inevitably inadequate."

Rep. Larry Hopkins, R-Ky., ranking Republican on the subcommittee, said there was "plenty of blame to go around... It goes all the way up."

No individuals were named in the summary of findings and conclusions released by the panel after a closed meeting in which it voted 9-3 to adopt the report.

The panel said there were "inadequate security measures taken to protect the Marine unit from the full spectrum of threats" as they were deployed at the Beirut airport as part of the multinational peace-keeping force.

But the subcommittee was unanimous "on very few" issues and there may be one or more minority reports filed, said one member.

The report said the commander of the Marine Amphibious Unit "made serious errors in judgment in failing to provide better protection for his troops within the command authority available to him."

The unit was commanded by Col. Timothy Geraghty at the time of the Oct. 23 suicide bomb attack on the Marines.

Navy Capt. Morgan France, commander of the amphibious task group, also "shares responsibility for the 'inadequate security posture,' the subcommittee concluded.

The investigations subcommittee also said "higher elements" in the chain of command "failed to exercise sufficient oversight of the" Marine unit stationed at Beirut.

"The change in security... since the bombing is indicative of what that higher command influence might have done before the bombing," the panel said in its summary of findings.

Without specifically citing the White House, the panel said it "must also call to account the policy-making authority that adopted and continued a policy that placed military units in a deployment where protection was inevitably inadequate."

The report also said the Marines had a lack of adequate intelligence information about the threat they faced.

The subcommittee earlier heard testimony from about 40 witnesses, including top military and administration officials, about the bombing, but found much of the initial information "inaccurate, erroneous and misleading."

"This first explanation provided the Congress and the American people thus presented a misleading picture of what actually took place on Oct. 23," the report said.

Hunger Strike By Inmates Protests Meal

There was a short-lived hunger strike at the Seminole County jail Monday night when 70 of 250 inmates refused to eat a meal of chipped beef on toast.

"Last night in the maximum security area, all of the bad boys decided they didn't like good old styled military S.O.S.," said jail administrator Jim Shoultz.

On a set signal, they refused to eat, said Shoultz.

"It didn't cause me no great concern because I don't have to make them eat," Shoultz said.

According to Shoultz, the supposedly offending meal was four ounces of chipped beef served on two homemade biscuits accompanied by a vegetable, drink and peach pie. It is served once every six weeks as is every meal at the jail, he said.

At 8 p.m., about 3½ hours after the meal was refused, Shoultz said he went back to the jail to talk to the inmates. At that time, they asked for something to eat.

"I told them breakfast would be served at 6 a.m.," Shoultz said.

Shoultz said it was the first time anyone has tried a hunger strike at the correctional facility and was probably caused by the stress of the coming holidays.

"It's Christmas. The guys are a little homesick and uptight," he said.

As a yuletide treat, the inmates will be receiving a Christmas dinner of 10-ounce strip sirloin steak, a baked potato, vegetable, rolls, and pie and ice cream, Shoultz said.

Economy New Housing Starts, Personal Income Up

By Denis G. Gullao

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New housing construction gained 6.4 percent in November, with housing starts in the first 11 months of the year already more than 50 percent ahead of 1982, the Commerce Department said today.

Meanwhile, boosted by higher employment and pay, U.S. personal income climbed 0.7 percent in November, the 10th increase in the past 11 months, the Commerce Department said.

The benchmark annual rate of housing starts was 1.756 million in November after seasonal adjustment.

Both September and October saw declines in housing starts as the boom leveled off from its peak for the year reached in August.

But despite the retrenchment the year turned out to be better than leading industry analysts hoped back in January. The department said builders actually started 1.595 million houses in the first 11 months of the year, 50.2 percent ahead of the 1.062 million units begun in 1982.

Building permits, which gained 8.2 percent in October despite that month's decline in starts, posted another 1.2 percent increase in November.

November's starts were stronger for multifamily apartment buildings, which climbed 7.9 percent, while single family house starts climbed 5.5 percent.

Mobile home shipments for October were down 3.6 percent to an annual rate of 291,000. November's mobile home shipments will be reported next month.

The housing recovery got under way in the middle of last year when mortgage interest rates began to drop. It took several more months for the rest of the economy to follow housing's example.

Economists agree the general recession ended one year ago.

"It's a good year and it's going to end up a little higher than our last forecast," said Michael Sumichrast, chief economist of the National Association of Home Builders.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater termed the November rise "a very good increase" that "shows people are investing and borrowing money and that interest rates are not prohibiting housing growth."

A December survey of builders by the association shows expectations remain high for holding the current level of production despite continuing high mortgage interest rates and the end of subsidized government housing construction.

Even Western states, which lagged the housing recovery in the rest of the country, have now shown strength, Sumichrast said.

Personal income, before income taxes, reached a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $2,832 trillion, the department said.

Private wages and salaries were up at a $2.9 billion annual rate in November and government pay was up $1.3 billion.

Factory payrolls were up $2.6 billion, about the same as in October.

The fact that the month had higher employment and payroll increases contributed to the gains.

A retroactive increase in Social Security payments raised government benefits for the month.

Farm income was also up. Disposable income — after income taxes were subtracted — was up 0.7 percent in November, less than October's 1.1 percent increase.

Overall personal income was up a revised 1.1 percent in October and 0.9 percent in September.

School's Freer Here, S. African Students Say

Four members of a group of South African students that toured Lake Mary High School found no similarities between the American school and public school at home. "School here is more like the university. The students are kind of free. Our school is strict and the discipline is hard," said Andri

Maree, 17, who is the equivalent of a senior high school student in her homeland.

"It's totally different in all ways. The teachers are rigid at home. The pupils here are friendly and classes are more informal," said Dirk Cilliers, 17, also a 12th grader at the Monument School in Johannesburg, South Africa.

Bennie Jonkers, 14, and an eighth grader at home, said rules are strictly followed at his school. The male students wear uniforms, blazers and ties to school and their hair must be a rather short length in comparison with American students. "The girls must wear their hair tied back in a bun," he said.

Marilize Saunders, 17, also commented on her Lake Mary contemporaries' friendliness.

Asked why Lake Mary High School was chosen for their tour, one of the three teachers who chaperoned the students on the 20-day visit to the U.S., Woltemade Hartman, said the tour's agent in New York first selected Oakridge High School in Orlando, but someone changed the tour school later, he assumed "for political reasons."

The group refused to be caught up in the international furor caused by their country's apartheid policies by declining to answer political questions.

A group of four students asked their opinions about the policy and whether they think it is fair that blacks, who are the majority in the nation aren't allowed representation in their parliament, turned to Miss Maree as their unofficial spokesman.

"We do not wish to comment," she said. "The issue is so complex that we could discuss it for days and your readers still wouldn't understand. It would take your entire paper to print the explanation and they wouldn't understand."

Hartman was not as reticent, but did not answer the questions directly.

He said the new constitution of the Union of South Africa, coming up in January, calls for inclusion of Asians and "coloreds" — persons of mixed race — to have representation in the law-making branch of governments.

He admitted that blacks are still excluded, "but they are to have their own homelands. The government is trying to establish those homelands," he said.

"There are 17 different languages spoken by 15 different major tribes. They all have different cultures. You can see the difficulty of getting them together in one school," he said.

He said some social barriers have been removed for blacks. "They can go to the same cinema and same restaurants as we do and they can go to university with us," he said.

Turning to another subject, Hartman commented on television programming in his homeland where the most popular program is Dallas, followed closely by WKRP, Quincy, and The Carol Burnett Show.

"Yes, our movies are censored. We don't have pornography," he said.

He also told of an incident soon after the group reached the United States where the girls saw a Playgirl magazine.

"The pupils were absolutely hysterical at that magazine," Hartman said. "They laughed, but I was rather embarrassed. We don't have anything like that at home."

Shannon Porter of Altamonte Springs, a sophomore at Lake Mary High School, who spent much of the day with the foreign students, said his female classmates liked the South African students' accents. "The South Africans found our language rather bland," he said.

Hartman said the language was "Afrikaans — a combination of German, French, and Dutch." For most in the country, English is a second language and all white students in the schools must take both Afrikaans and English every year.

Black students on the other hand must take their own language and can choose between English and Afrikaans as their second language.

The visit to Lake Mary High School was hosted jointly by the school's "Interact Club" and the school.

It cost the students about $4,500 each to make the trip.

Grenada: Tale Of Two Invasions

U.S. troops leaving Grenada, two months after the invasion of the island, leave behind people wearing T-shirts that say, "America, Thank You for Liberating Grenada."

Meanwhile, the news from Afghanistan still is grim. Four years after the Soviet invasion, there are reliable reports that Soviet soldiers bayoneted and slit the throats of children during house-to-house fighting in October in a village north of Kabul.

That any serious person could ever have compared these two invasions is incredible. And yet it was done on the opinion pages of both The New York Times and The Washington Post. In the heat of anger after the American troops landed on Grenada Oct. 25, Tass, the official Soviet news agency, didn't do it, for some reason. Nor did Cuban President Fidel Castro.

But there were those in this country who complained that our invasion of Grenada weakened our moral position in condemning the invasion of Afghanistan. And the United Nations denounced our action, just as, in December 1979, it had denounced the Soviet action.

But there was a difference. Shortly after the execution of Prime Minister Maurice Bishop, Grenada's Governor General Sir Paul Scoon smuggled a message out of the island, calling for help. Soviet troops invaded Afghanistan 10 days before Afghan President Hafizullah Amin was taken out and shot. And the Russians claimed they went into Afghanistan at the invitation of Amin's government.

We went into Grenada at the request of the island's closest neighbors, Barbados and other Eastern Caribbean island nations. The Soviets went into Afghanistan under the pretext of protecting Afghanistan from its other neighbors, China and Pakistan.

Most of the resistance to our invasion came from Cubans on the island. The Revolutionary Council did not command the loyalty of many Grenadians. About 60 were killed resisting the invasion, mostly Cubans. There are no foreign soldiers in Afghanistan except Soviet troops. Afghans have been organized to kill Afghans. Four million Afghans fled the country and became refugees in Pakistan and Iran. There are no reliable casualty figures from Afghanistan, but the death toll is estimated at more than 200,000 Afghans and upward of 5,000 Soviets. And the killing goes on.

With U.S. forces leaving Grenada, only 300 military policemen are left behind to keep order until elections can be held and the islanders can form their own government. In Afghanistan, the Soviets have an army of 100,000 engaged in a protracted guerrilla war. The Afghan resistance movement controls most of the country, which is littered with the wreckage of Soviet tanks and helicopters. There is no end in sight, but many observers expect the end will be the incorporation of Afghanistan into the Soviet Union or into the Warsaw Pact as a Soviet satellite. No one expects the Red Army to be withdrawn from Afghanistan.

Are these invasions comparable? Is our moral position eroded, as our combat troops come home for Christmas? Ask the Grenadians, and the Afghans.

A New Loser

The optimism and high hopes expressed not too long ago by the U.S. Postal Service in regard to electronic mail have failed to materialize.

Instead of being a highly profitable operation, the agency has expended $40 million thus far on the money-losing service.

It's not as easy as postal bigwigs made it out to be. The system is losing money hand over fist. From one-half to three-quarters of the volume generated monthly comes from a single firm in suburban Detroit.

The Postal Service is giving the firm a good deal. Indeed, the price charged the No. 1 customer is 26 cents per page transmitted. The problem stems from the fact that it costs the Postal Service $1.50 per page — which adds up to $1.24 loss per page. At that pace, it's not surprising that postal authorities can't seem to make ends meet.

The new program, known as E-Com, was launched in January 1982. But the high-speed telecommunications system never got off the ground. The Postal Service initially had projected E-Com would handle 50 million letters for fiscal 1983. However, it ended the fiscal year with a mere 15.3 million electronic letters.

Americans should not complain. Instead, they should be thankful that not many firms are breaking down the agency's door with tons of electronic mail business. If the '83 projection had been reached, the total loss easily could have exceeded more than $100 million.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Is there anything wrong son? You're up at the crack of noon."

By Susan Loden

Capt. Jay Leman of the Seminole County sheriff's department informed the Evening Herald that we missed covering an important hearing and sentencing in a Casselberry court Wednesday morning.

Leman gave this account of the proceedings: A young woman called "Jody," also known as Rachel Puritman, was hauled into court by her conscience, a guardian mother, Kathy Kanavel, to face charges that she did not have the Christmas spirit.

A jury of "Jody's" peers, 24 third-graders from Casselberry Elementary School, heard testimony that she had taken and eaten candy and cookies without paying for them, that she was taking everything for granted and had abused toys and musical instruments. One of those abused drums was Leman's 8-year-old daughter Tina.

"Jody" was found guilty as charged and when Judge Joshua Castleman sentenced her to, "Go out and find the Christmas spirit," the little girl said, "But Judge, how do I find the Christmas spirit?"

The judge responded: "I don't know. I just pass the sentence. Next case!"

The trial was conducted by the classes of James Guy and Carolyn Catledge. The program continued with a dramatization, which featured a computerized Santa Claus, presented by the other two third grade classes, which are taught by Kim Scharden and Vivian Moro.

The computerized Santa, Stan

Goykhman, was informed by his computer that he would be too slow and sluggish if he ate a traditional turkey dinner before making his rounds. He was offered a substitute menu of a granola bar and a yogurt shake. He was also ordered to dump the reindeer for a helicopter and to trade in his white-fur trimmed, red suit for tennis shoes and a running suit, so he could make his rounds more quickly in this computer age.

Mrs. Claus, Amy Edge, and the elves, who had been fired, rejoiced along with Santa when the computer broke down and Santa had to return to his old fashioned ways to deliver all of the computer games the children ordered for Christmas.

ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Language Of The Leftists

The inner violence of the radical movement is reflected in the violence of the language employed by leftist commentators. This occurred to me when I read an outlandish, angry article on Britain published in The Progressive, an old-line voice of radicalism in the United States.

Milton Mayer, an editor of the magazine, is the author of the article entitled "This England." Mr. Mayer recently returned from England. He definitely did not enjoy his trip or like the English.

Most visitors to "the scepter'd isle" like England and the English, but not Mr. Mayer. But, then, Mr. Mayer isn't enthusiastic about his own country. He describes the United States as "the biggest warmaker of them all." As for the President of the United States, he characterizes him as a "warfare President." Could it be because the United States has about 50 military advisers in El Salvador, which is the target of communist guerrillas?

In England, says Mr. Mayer, "warfare" is the salvation of the rich. That's an odd notion, of course, because the more affluent Britons carry the heaviest burden of taxation for defense as well as welfare.

Mr. Mayer says "there's something dense about the English," because they favored Mrs. Thatcher's party in the last election. He finds that "Like Reagan, she projects a kind of capitalist cannibalism."

Mr. Mayer regarded the Falklands war as an outrage. He says, however, that "the junta it saved was Britain's."

In Mr. Mayer's view, Britons don't have the right radical stuff. "There is nothing revolutionary stirring among the English," he complains. He discusses the Laborites, who favor unilateral nuclear disarmament, as "the not-very-far-left wing of the party."

In Mr. Mayer's book, the British were bad yesterday as well as today. He asserts that "the brutal Falkland venture aroused the brutal recklessness that underlies, and has always underlain, the genteel reserve mistakenly taken for the British character." In the old colonial days, he says, the British were "savages in uniform."

Mr. Mayer holds that the only genuine sign of life on the island is "the dogged Campaign For Nuclear Disarmament," but he admits that "it is getting historically nowhere, achieving neither mass support nor mass interest."

Actually, Mr. Mayer's angry embittered language isn't an exception. It's the rule for American radicals. They are furious that the American people — and the British as well — don't respond on cue to radical proclamations. They are angry, for example, because people in the civilized Western world don't blame the United States as much or more than the Soviets for the shooting down of KAL 007. That's their outlook.

The venomous language of the Left reflects political paranoia, a raging hostility towards the democracies which favor the institutions of private property and personal liberty.

JACK ANDERSON

Pentagon Chiefs Balk At Accord

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's new Lebanon strategy seems to have been misplaced somewhere in the Pentagon's thousands of look-alike cubbyholes. He wants to tighten U.S. ties to Israel and confront Syria with an Israeli-American military threat. This is the best way to get a settlement out of the Syrians, he now believes.

So on Oct. 29, Reagan signed a secret National Security Decision Directive calling for closer strategic coordination with Israel. This was followed, according to confidential documents, by a call for "combined planning," "joint exercises" and "pre-positioning of U.S. military equipment in Israel."

But a presidential directive can get misled in the Pentagon's catacombs — if it propounds a policy that the generals don't like. Few generals, of course, would risk openly defying the commander in chief's explicit order. So instead, the unwanted directive is merely cast adrift in the Pentagon's labyrinth of dead ends.

This is what's happening to the president's strategy for dealing with the Lebanese crisis. The military chiefs "are simply not willing to implement the White House decision," a high administration official told my associate Lucette Lagnado.

The White House and State Department, on the other hand, are trying to implement the new strategy. They had hoped, for example, to complete three specific accords with Israel during Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's recent Washington visit: 1. to establish U.S.-Israeli medical cooperation; 2. to approve joint military exercises; and 3. to coordinate strategy in Lebanon.

But the seasoned officers at the Pentagon have learned that any presidential directive they oppose might fade away if only they study it long enough. So a week before Shamir arrived, they protested that the proposed accords couldn't be put into operation without careful study.

They succeeded in setting aside the accords and creating a joint U.S.-Israeli committee to study them. This amorphous committee, designated the Joint Political-Military Group, has managed at least to set up an agenda. According to a confidential document:

"The JPMG will meet in January. It is expected that at least medical cooperation may be finalized at this meeting. The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. (John W.) Vessey, will visit Israel in January." This modest schedule, of course, is subject to further obstruction.

The irony is that the Pentagon chiefs oppose military pressure while across the Potomac, the civilian leaders favor a show of strength. The White House has simply despaired of a diplomatic solution in Lebanon. It has been tried with one shuttle diplomat after another, but they have all come up empty-handed. Working through moderate Arab nations, such as Saudi Arabia, has been equally fruitless. The new strategy is to scare the Syrians out of Lebanon with a show of Israeli-American strength.

This has led to a bitter backstage debate. I have been privy to the secret exchanges, including some of the briefing papers that have been circulating in the backrooms.

The strategists in the Pentagon argue that the spectacle of the Americans and Israelis in military lockstep will frighten the moderate Arab nations and jeopardize U.S. relations with them. This could block U.S. access to some strategic Middle East bases that the Joint Chiefs hope to get.

Counters one briefing paper: "The moderate Arabs are anti-Israel. But they fear Arab radicalism more. The Arabs ally themselves to those who can protest

VIEWPOINT

The Code Words For Violence

By Baker Smith

(Editor's Note: Baker Smith is a staff writer for the USBC Writer's Group. His column is published in a variety of newspapers throughout the United States.)

"Peaceful picketing" rolls off the lips of union officials like a tongue twister, requiring repeated practice in front of the mirror. One wonders why the additional descriptor "peaceful" is added to picketing. Isn't peacefulness on the picket line the normal accepted standard? Isn't peacefulness lawful and violence unlawful?

If the Greyhound Bus strike proves anything, it proves that "peaceful picketing" does not begin to describe the union violence encountered on a picket line or strike. The front pages of the nation's press carried the ugly pictures of the mass violence, assaults, and law breaking by the Greyhound strikers.

But union activists had prepared the public for the violence that lay ahead. Using more code words, union officials disclaimed any knowledge of violence, but let the public and union members know that property destruction and personal assault were inevitable. The Houston Post quoted one union official as being opposed to violence, but saying, "I think we are going to be in for a long strike and there could be more violence." The Nashville Banner credits an anonymous union leader with intent to bring the company "to its knees."

Translated, if the union bosses don't get exactly what they want, violence will occur against non-striking employees and the company.

The company's final offer to drivers in this case is 17.8 percent above the industry average, according to their full page advertisements. Greyhound makes no secret that this offer is a cut, albeit necessary to maintain competitiveness and market share. The company has been generous, not provocative. Even if the company were stingy, is violence justified?

The theory of the American labor strike is that employees may band together to withhold labor in order to put economic pressure on the employer. Even though the theory does not call for violent strikes, the labor laws of the country provide loopholes for violence.

A just-released study on union violence by the prestigious Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania exposes several myths of union violence. After analyzing a recent six year period of American union violence which caused 49 deaths and millions of dollars in property damage, the report concluded that union violence is a "pervasive, widespread, and continuing problem." Further, labor violence is not caused by "frustration or defensive reaction" but is intended "to engender fear and to use that emotion to augment the economic pressures on the employer." The study also showed that the targets of union violence were not so much companies as "third parties." "non-striking and non-union individuals who wished to continue working, as is alleged to be their right."

them. A strong, pro-Israel U.S. is more attractive than a weak anti-Israel U.S. ... Lebanon and Jordan want the U.S. to protect them from Syria."

The Pentagon strategists, noting the speed with which the Soviet Union rearmend Syria after the shellacking it took from Israel in Lebanon last year, doubt that U.S.-Israeli military posturing will impress either the Syrians or the Soviets. But the White House strategists believe that military power is the only argument that they do understand.

With U.S. and Soviet power arrayed on opposite sides of the Lebanon dispute, warn the Pentagon brass, there is danger of a confrontation between the superpowers. Responds a briefing paper: "Working together to restore the balance in the region actually reduces the risk by reducing the incentives to aggression."

The military chiefs also argue that the United States and Israel have different goals: the Americans are anti-Soviet, the Israelis anti-Syrian. "A false distinction," claims the briefing paper. "The Soviet challenge usually takes the form of aggression by local radical allies backed by Soviet arms and advisers."

FLORIDA

IN BRIEF

Foster Parents Object To No-Spanking Rule

TAMPA (UPI) — A state rule that foster parents cannot punish children by spanking them has prompted a protest by a number of people who threaten to get out of the program unless the rule is rescinded.

The no-spanking rule was ordered this summer by David Pingree, secretary of the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, which has control over the program. Pingree issued the directive after several cases of child abuse were revealed in foster homes.

But James and Ginger Warner, who have taken in 67 foster children in the past decade, said all foster families should not suffer because of the faults of a few, and they are spearheading a petition drive to alert Gov. Bob Graham to the problem.

In addition to the petition to the governor, the Warners are seeking signatures on a second petition to let the state know the foster parents are ready to quit helping in the program for abandoned or court-controlled children unless a compromise is reached.

1984 Is Your Fault

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A Florida State University English professor says many of George Orwell's predictions in his book 1984 have come true but don't blame the government.

Instead, Professor Jerome Stern said Monday, blame people.

Stern said the chief difference between Orwell's book and 1984 is that people are voluntarily creating a "Big Brother" society rather than totalitarian governments forcing it upon them.

He said that while in the book, the government continually rewrote history, people today have forgotten it by themselves.

Other Orwell predictions that have happened include computerized music and artificial food, Stern said.

Fur Love Or Dominance?

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Husbands who give their wives expensive fur coats at Christmas may be asserting dominance over them rather than expressing love, says a University of Florida psychology professor.

"Gift-giving is nonverbal communication between persons," Dr. Robert Ziller said. "In giving a gift, a person is telling something about who they are and how they perceive the other person."

First-Time Offenders Get Glimpse Of Prison

ORLANDO (UPI) — Judges and other law enforcement officials are hoping a little sample of prison will leave a bitter taste in the mouths of first-time criminal offenders.

Under a new program in Orlando, some first-time offenders are sent to prison — just for a visit — to get a glimpse of life behind bars.

The aim of the program — called Operation Turnaround — is to discourage the offenders from violating probation or repeating the crimes.

The program was started last April by Max Jones, chaplain at the Orange County Jail's 33rd Street Annex.

Jones was a chaplain with the Department of Corrections for 20 years and saw that "prison is a hell on this Earth."

Orange County Circuit Judge James Byrd, one of the first judges in Orlando to support the program, said he was tired of the 30 probation violations judges in the area were handling each week.

About 400 male probationers have taken a trip to the Union Correctional Institution in Raiford since the program started. Jones said only one has violated his probation after visiting the prison.

"I've been stoned since April," said Joe Taylor 21, who is on five years probation for carrying a concealed gun. "When I think of prison, I think of murder. Everybody has a bad attitude up here. I hope it scares everybody."

The probationers are searched and warned about the consequences of an escape attempt. They are slapped in a cage — a double steel box where the inmates who cause the most problems are housed — to get a taste of a convict's life.

Several inmates tell the men of the evils of prison.

They relate stories of young men raped within days of entering prison and of a prisoner whose neck was broken as he clutched a box of chocolates to his chest.

"I'm not coming back here," said Sam Wilson, 32, after a recent Operation Turnaround visit. Wilson is on probation for grand theft.

"When I was in that cage and that officer was talking about the food falling on the floor, oh man."

Greyhound Workers OK Pact

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Greyhound workers voted by a 3-1 margin to accept a 7.8 percent wage cut and return to work Wednesday, ending a sometimes violent 47-day strike against the nation's largest intercity bus line.

Greyhound welcomed back holiday travelers today with a coupon offering one-third off the normal price of a bus ticket for trips between Jan. 10 and April 1.

Full service, including 2,000 daily trips to 18 states, will resume at 12:01 a.m. Wednesday at Greyhound terminals across the country, said John W. Teets, Greyhound Corp.'s chairman and chief executive officer.

Harry Rosenblum, president of the Amalgamated Transit Union Council of Local Presidents, said 10,351 votes cast by union members were tabulated Monday and 7,404 had voted in favor of the new contract — a 7.4 percent margin.

The union's bargaining council had reluctantly recommended the three-year contract to more than 12,700 Greyhound workers. It includes a 7.8 percent pay cut, requests workers contribute 4 percent of salaries to the pension fund, and make larger contributions for health-care benefits, Teets said.

Greyhound guaranteed job security to 1,300 workers the firm hired during the strike, but said returning employees would have greater seniority.

Leslie White, spokeswoman for Greyhound, said some of the newly hired workers could be furloughed in January when business slows down.

However, she said many strikers are expected to take early retirement to keep their pensions at higher levels. Pensions are based on a worker's average salary for the last five years.

"We are very pleased that our employees represented by the ATU have joined us as we go out to regain our niche as the low-cost provider of ground transportation," Teets said following the announcement of the ratification.

"Greyhound Lines management will now focus its time and attention on bringing Greyhound back to prestige and competitive vigor it once enjoyed."

Fewer Birds Have Flown South

MIAMI (UPI) — Baffled birdwatchers are looking for the myrtle warbler and dozens of other bird species that have failed to make their annual pilgrimage to south Florida in time for Christmas.

Only 101 bird species were spied during the annual Dade County Christmas bird count sponsored this week by the Tropical Audubon Society.

The total is the lowest in the 15-year history of the Dade County bird count. Last year's count was 123 species, said Bruce Neville, an Audubon board member. The worst previous year was 1971 when 115 species were observed.

"Maybe the weather up North hasn't forced them down," Neville said.

The county's 37 official Audubon bird counters spotted only one Baltimore Oriole and just a few goldfinches. They saw no bald eagles, although one is known to live in the Coral Gables area of Miami.

This was the first time the small, yellow-rumped myrtle warbler was off the list.

But the warblers were all over the place in Long Island, said Margaret Rubega, editor of the National Audubon Society's Christmas bird count report.

The weather has been warm in other parts of the North Atlantic flyway as well, and bird food is still plentiful, she said.

Veteran birder Orin Bass, biologist for Everglades National Park, agreed the weather may be responsible for the dearth of birds in Florida this winter.

Or, the birds may have simply bypassed Florida and headed farther south to the Caribbean and South America, he said.

Students Fail Civic Affairs

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A Florida State University professor says he questioned reports of a California exam showing students to be grossly ignorant of current events, so he tried the same thing with his own students.

B.J. Allen, an associate professor of social studies at FSU, said he was unsettled by the results. And he is the author of papers warning of the dangers he thinks are inherent in the erosion of civics studies in schools.

The results of the quiz — which Allen gave to 23 juniors and seniors in his fall semester human relations course — showed that more than half can't name Florida's senators, don't know what NATO is and don't know what nations fought in World War II.

Other results:

- More than half couldn't name the American presidents since 1940.
- About 40 percent couldn't name three rights guaranteed by the Bill of Rights.
- Nearly half were unable to define anti-Semitism.
- More than 25 percent didn't know where Grenada was, even after the U.S. invasion.

Allen said various studies have indicated that American young people are less knowledgeable about social studies than their counterparts in other industrialized nations.

He said a 1979 government survey showed 40 percent of the high school seniors in the United States thought Israel was an Arab country. Another survey showed that among youngsters 10-14, Americans were near the bottom in comprehension of other cultures.

Allen said part of the problem was that civics knowledge had declined as more students went into vocational education.

Little League Must Pay Tax

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — Little League Baseball officials say a new law requiring the organization to pay sales tax will cost the program $40,000 and sap the enthusiasm of volunteers who will be forced to keep detailed records.

The federal government has granted Little League a tax exemption since 1954 because it is considered a non-profit, educational organization.

But Little League groups in Florida are taxable under a revision passed by the Legislature last spring. Bill Mayo of the Florida State Revenue Department said he and the state consider the organization to be recreational and not educational, and therefore subject to taxation.

Little League baseball officials throughout the state are in a dither over the new requirement.

Floyd Hull, president of the Federal Little League in Fort Lauderdale, estimated Monday the organization would have to pay $40,000 a year in taxes.

"That money lost on sales taxes has to be made up somewhere, whether it's in not buying equipment or an attempt to raise more money. It has to come from somewhere," Hull said.

The rule also will force coaches and other volunteers to keep detailed records of all donations collected.

"It's awful what they have done," said Arnold White of St. Petersburg, Florida Southern Region director of Little League Baseball Inc.

White said Florida ranks third in the nation behind California and New York in the number of Little Leagues. He said 90,000 boys and girls from the ages of 6 to 18 participate in Florida each year.

White and Hull said they both have written letters to legislators to try to restore the exemption on the 5 percent sales tax.

Lyman basketball coach Tom Lawrence has just one question concerning this year's Oviedo Outlook Christmas Tournament. "How is anybody going to beat Seminole?"

It may be hard. Coach Chris Marlette's 10th-ranked Fighting Seminoles have won four straight games after an opening-season setback to Lake Mary. They have beaten highly regarded Mainland and convincingly took care of Lyman and Oviedo.

Standout forward Willie Mitchell is second in the county in scoring with 18 points per game. He leads the county in rebounding with 10.8 per game. All this, and Mitchell still hasn't played up to par...yet. He is shooting just 39 percent after shooting over 50 percent as a junior.

Mitchell has a fine complement in guard Bruce Franklin, who leads the county with 3.6 steals per outing and assists with 8.8 per game. Center Jimmy Gilchrist is third in rebound with a 7.4 average. James Rouse (9.2) and Kenny Gordon (9.6) complete the potent starting five.

While Oviedo coach Dale Phillips is impressed with Seminole — his only loss is to Sanford — he said he feels he may have a surprise for Marlette with a new addition to this year's field, Stuart South Fork.

"The school is only about three years old," said Phillips about the 6-0 Martin County entry. "But their coach told me, 'they're loaded.' They aren't very big (tallest starter 6-3), but they have some fine physical specimens."

"It's hard to tell who they have played, they're a 3A school, so you don't know how good they are. I'd say they and Seminole were the favorite with maybe the edge to South Fork."

The Oviedo Outlook tourney is beginning its 10th year tonight when 4-1 Oviedo and 2-3 Lake Mary tipoff at 7 p.m. Seminole, 4-1, and Mount Dora, 3-3, play in the 8:30 p.m. game.

The Lions will be hurting, though, since Mike Schwab injured a ligament during practice and has missed the last two games. Phillips said Monday that his 6-4 center might not be available until January. Schwab is averaging 16.7 points and 8.7 rebounds a game.

Prep Basketball

Despite Schwab's missing the past two games, Oviedo has won them both, utilizing some expert free-throw shooting. "We're just sputtering along," said Phillips. "I guess the referees feel sorry for us."

"But, seriously, our defense has been excellent. Our 1-3-1 trap has helped us win most of our games."

The main man on the trap has been senior Darrin Reichle. Reichle has picked off 13 errant passes in five games. After a slow start, the 6-4 center-forward has come on rebounding-wise, too, with 7.2 a game.

Probably the two biggest surprises for the Lions, however, have been guards Mike Wicks and Steve Cohen. Wicks, a transfer from Illinois, dropped in several crucial free throws in the win over Lake Brantley last Saturday. He is averaging 5.6 boards and 6.8 points a game.

Cohen has been the Lions' most consistent player. The 5-11 senior has hit the boards well with 6.6 rebounds and is averaging 11.4 points.

For the Lions to remain alive in their tournament, nevertheless, they will have to offset Lake Mary's speed. The Rams upset Seminole two weeks ago, but after struggling to whip Lake Howell were blown out by Spruce Creek and Seabreeze.

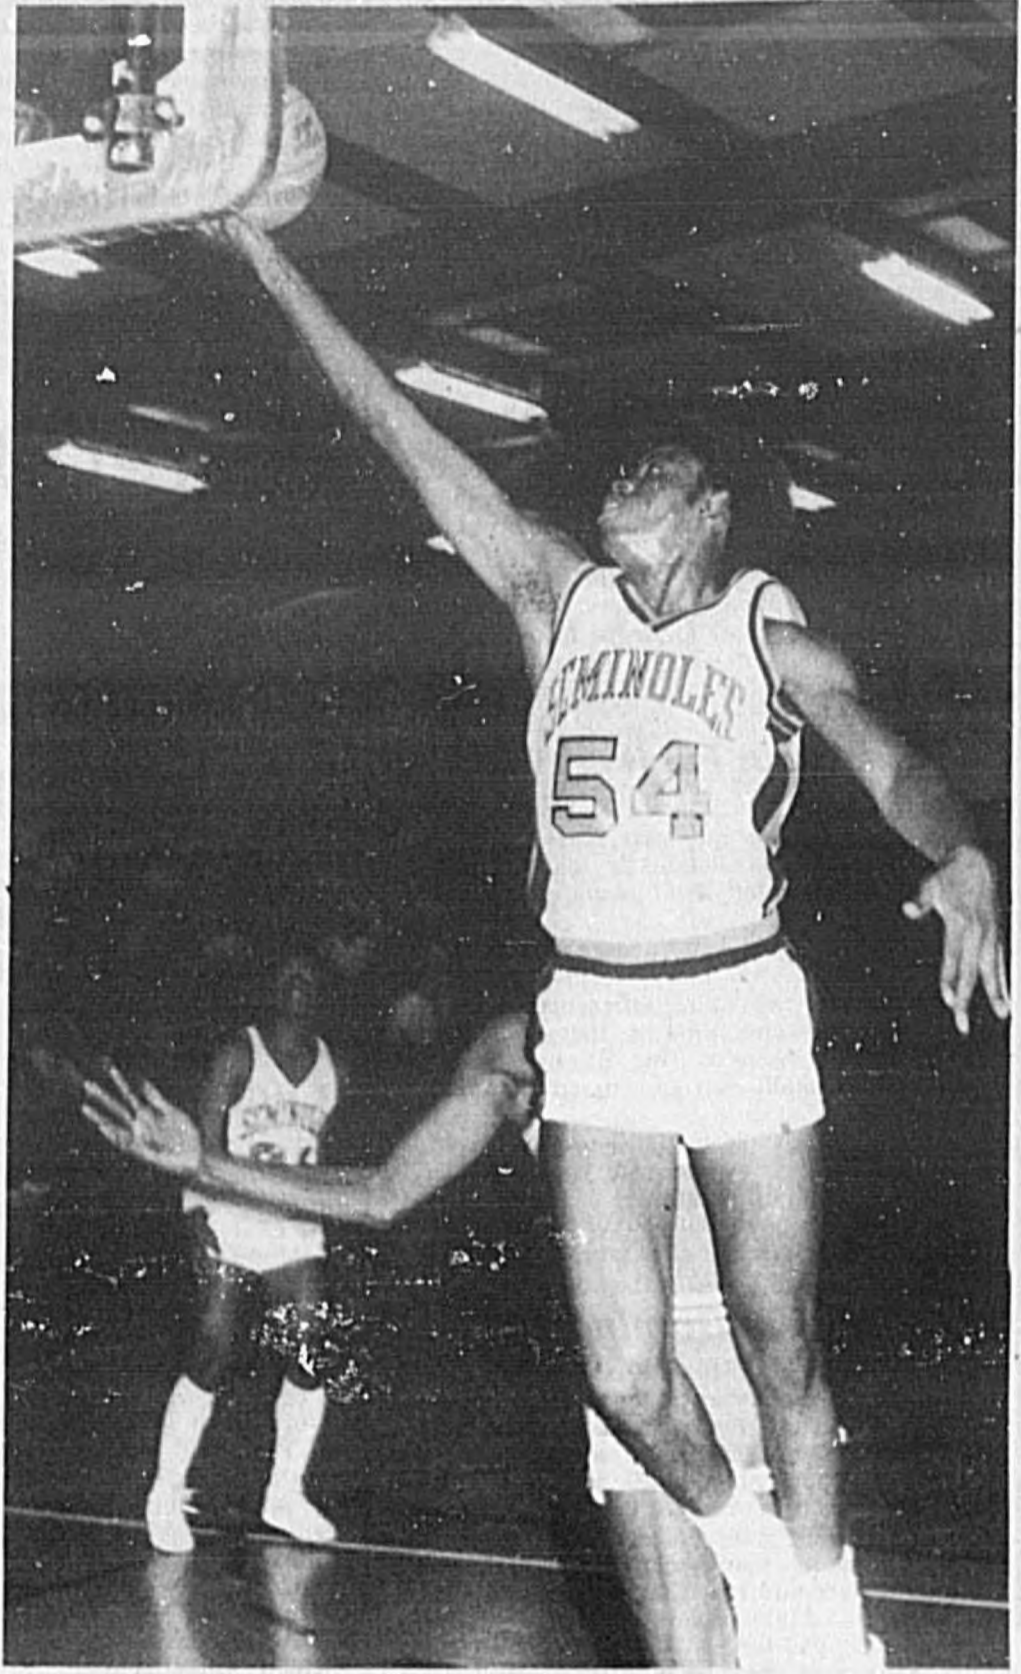

Senior point guard Fred Miller leads the Rams attack with 16.5 points per game while junior Darryl Merthie is averaging 10.8 and seven assists. Senior swingman Billy Dunn is averaging 11.2 points and has hit 13 of 14 free throws during the Rams first four games.

Merthie will not start tonight because he missed a practice when he had to work, but coach Willie Richardson said he will "play a lot."

While the Rams have excellent quickness, they don't have much height. Forward Donald Grayson is 6-1 while center Jeff Reynolds is 6-2. Reynolds is averaging 6.5 boards per game which Grayson is chipping in 5.8.

Richardson is looking for his Rams to show some of the desire that enabled them to beat Seminole. "We have no trouble getting up for Seminole," said Richardson. "I don't know what the problem is with these other teams. Maybe playing in this tournament will help."

This year, the girls join the boys with Oviedo, Lyman, Boone and Colonial comprising a four-team tournament. Oviedo and Boone play Wednesday at 5:30 p.m. while Lyman and Colonial meet Thursday at 5:30 p.m. The losers play Friday at 4 p.m. and the winners meet for the title at 7 p.m.

'Gimme' Field Goals Can't Save Maryland

If you want to know the difference between Maryland and Tennessee in Saturday's Citrus Bowl, just ask Jess Atkinson.

Atkinson kicked his way into the record book with five field goals as his Terps dropped a 30-23 decision to the Volunteers. One long boot — a 48-yarder — erased the old mark of 47 by Miami of Ohio's Fred Johnson in 1975.

Records, nevertheless, could only swab away half a mouthful of defeat.

"One-half of me wants to jump for joy," said Atkinson. "The other half of me is sad because I wanted touchdowns instead of field goals."

Maryland's problems began when Tennessee's all-anything noseguard Reggie White yanked on quarterback Boomer Esalson's shoulder. The 265-pound Lewis tugged hard enough to cause a separation of shoulder and arm, sending Boomer to the sidelines for the rest of the game.

"The Minister of Defense (White) hit me," said Esalson. "We fell and both landed on my shoulder. It hurt a lot right away, but then the pain wasn't so bad."

It was just the opposite for the Terps. The offensive pain peaked on four of the five drives when backup QB Frank Reich moved Maryland tantalizingly close to touchdowns, but settled for field goals instead.

"It's a difficult situation for a kicker," observed Atkinson. "He proves himself through field goals, especially the short ones. If you make the field goals, you win the game...most of the time."

Coach Bobby Ross wasn't happy with the "gimme field goals" either. "Too many field goals," he said. "We didn't take advantage of our opportunities."

Tennessee did. And, in the end, running back Johnnie Jones (154 yards, game MVP), was too much for the Terps to handle. The Vols had a superior offensive line and a tougher inside-the-20-yard-line defense, which made the difference.

The Atlantic Coast Conference has been puffing its chest out about its improved football accomplishments, but a good Southeastern Conference football team will beat a good ACC team out of 10 times.

One of those times came Saturday night...

United States Football League Memphis Showboat coach Pepper Rodgers was making the rounds in the Citrus Bowl press box Saturday. He was in town to check out 11 players — most notably Reggie White — on the Tennessee squad. No doubt he came away impressed...

Speaking of the USFL, Jay Shoop, coordinating director of the first-year champion Michigan Panthers, reportedly contacted Florida Baseball School operator Wes Rinker about the availability of his complex for spring training.

"He liked the setup, but he decided against it," said Rinker. "He was wondering about the housing."

Rinker said a move here would pump about $500,000 into the city's and county's pockets. Might to something to consider...

Lake Brantley football coach David Tullis — along with Lake Howell senior standouts Darin Slack and Bill Lang — had it their way last week at the Burger King All-County Football dinner.

Burger King, as usual, did a fine job of keeping all the football players from the county schools stuffed with whoppers. At last count, Lake Howell assistant coach Glenn Maiolini was leading the whopper eating contest with seven. He was just getting started, too.

This county, as every coach and school administrator knows, would really be hurting without the continued support of Burger King community relations coordinator Bob Santulli and all his employees. "We feel sports, as well as all school activities, is very important and we'll continue to support it," said Santulli last week.

Tullis, meanwhile, was voted coach of the year by the Burger King Selection Committee and the county coaches while Slack, a quarterback, and Lang, a safety, were the top choices on offense and defense.

Slack and Lang have been offered full-ride scholarships by Pittsburgh. Georgia Tech is also interested in Slack while Florida State continued to check out Lang, who is also a superb baseball player.

All three were impressed with the awards ceremony at the Eastmonte Recreation Center in Altamonte Springs.

Tullis thanked his players and coaching staff for their good season (8-3) while Slack gave credit to coach Mike Biscaglia for giving him a shot at quarterback after a less-than-adequate junior year.

Lang, though, had the best line. "I'd like to thank Burger King, my coaches...and, uh...anybody else who gave me this thing," he said.

49ers Bombard Dallas, Win NFC West

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — It was a study in the rising and falling tides of sports.

In one locker room stood San Francisco 49ers coach Bill Walsh, smiling and talking of the future.

Across the way, Dallas coach Tom Landry was hesitant, searching for answers to why his team has collapsed in its last two games and faces an uphill battle next week against the Los Angeles Rams in the NFC wild card showdown.

The 49ers had just defeated the Cowboys, 42-17, in the regular-season finale Monday night. The victory gave San Francisco its second NFC West title in the last three years and the home field advantage for the first round of the NFC playoffs.

In that contest, the 49ers will either play the Cowboys again or the Detroit Lions. San Francisco's opponent will be decided next Monday in the wild card shootout in Dallas. If the Rams win, the Lions will travel to Candlestick. If Dallas wins they get the honor of returning to San Francisco either Dec. 31 or Jan. 1.

Those thoughts were far from Walsh's mind as he pondered Monday's game. "Our defense was super," he said. "Our offense didn't do everything we wanted but the defense more than made up for it."

Pro Football

For Landry, the thoughts dancing through his head had to revolve around why his team has fallen to the Washington Redskins, 31-10, and the 49ers by such large margins on the past two weeks.

"We haven't moved the ball well offensively," the veteran Cowboy coach said of his team's output the last two weeks. "You don't go into the playoffs with a lot of momentum when you lose games like these."

Cowboy running back Tony Dorsett — held to only 34 yards on 17 carries by Washington and 32 yards on 15 carries by the 49ers — said its time for Dallas to sit down and take account of itself.

While the victory was a satisfying one for the 49ers — the third straight including the 1981 NFC Championship game over the Cowboys — it proved to be very costly.

Dwight Clark, who has been among the league's top receivers the past two years, was injured away from the play and suffered torn ligaments in his right knee. The team said he would probably be lost for the playoffs.

Quarterback Joe Montana — who

Final NFL Standings

Joe Montana...shreds Cowboys

threw for four touchdowns in the contest — said the loss of Clark would be great but that he felt the team could adjust.

"That's a loss," he said of his good friend's injury. "But I think (Mike) Wilson will step in and do a heck of a job."

The key for San Francisco Monday night was a strong defense.

Defensive linemen Dwayne Board, Jeff Stover and Fred Dean mauled their Cowboy offensive line counterparts at the point of attack and linebackers Keena Turner and Willie Harper shut down Dorsett and his running mate Ron Springs with a blitzing, outside pressuring game.

Evansville Surprises No. 7 Boilermakers

Basketball at the University of Evansville will always be linked to that day in 1977 when 14 players and its coach were killed in a plane crash.

Dick Walters took over the program from Bob Watson, the coach who was among the 29 fatalities on the charter flight.

It has been a difficult road back at Evansville. So the impact of Monday night's victory was not lost on Walters — an 80-65 decision over Purdue, one of the kingpins of Indiana basketball and the No. 7 school in the country.

"This was the biggest win of my career," he said. "The big keys in the game were that we played hard for 40 minutes and we weren't intimidated."

Before a strong Evansville crowd of 11,165, Richie Johnson had 22 points and 13 rebounds to carry the Purple Aces. The game was tied 55-55 with 4:40 left before Harold Howard (16 points) hit a 3-point play to put the Aces ahead. Purdue sank a free throw but Evansville ran off the next eight points to lead 66-56 and move out of danger.

"We got what we deserved," said

College Basketball

Purdue coach Gene Keady. "Evansville had their biggest crowd of the year and the crowd was really into the game."

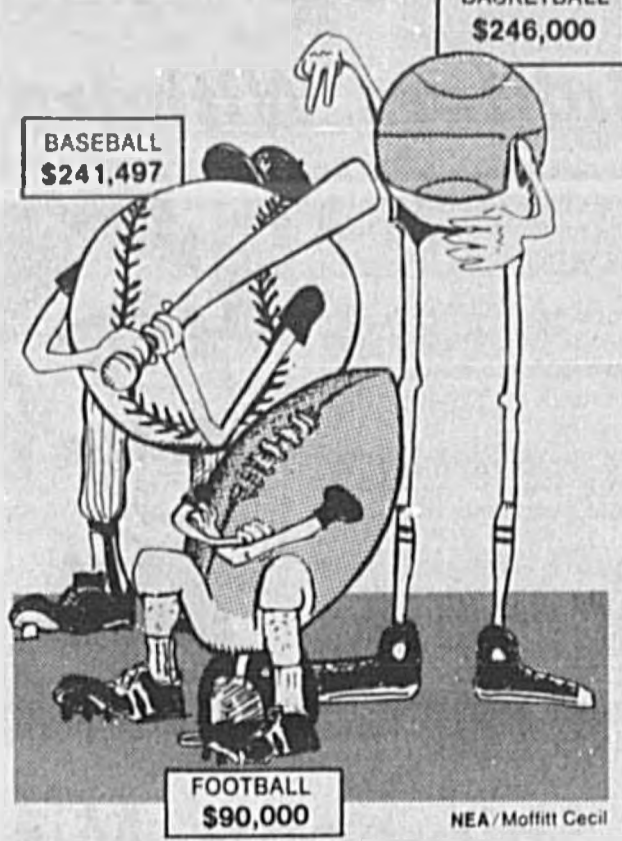

Jim Rowinski had 17 points and James Bullock 16 for Purdue, which was outscored 44-30. The Boilermakers are 7-1 entering Thursday's game at No. 4 DePaul. The Aces are 5-3.

"Lack of concentration and impatience were our problems," Keady said. "They just played better than us."

In other Top 20 games, No. 3 Houston battered Texas Lutheran 129-65; No. 9 UCLA defeated Howard 63-52; No. 13 Louisiana State edged Houston Baptist 60-59; No. 14 Oregon State lost to Fresno State 60-47; and No. 16 Texas-El Paso downed Louisiana Tech 82-70.

At Houston, freshman Rickie Winslow had 20 points, 10 rebounds and eight assists to power Houston to its eighth straight victory. The Cougars blocked five of the first six shots by Texas Lutheran and shot 68 percent from the floor.

Blue Will Serve 90 Days; Toronto Acquires Aikens

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (UPI) — Vida Blue will begin serving his 90-day prison sentence for cocaine possession as soon as there is room for him at a federal prison.

Blue was fined $5,000 and sentenced to spend 90 days of a one-year term in a prison with a "program for drug and alcohol dependency," U.S. Magistrate J. Milton Sullivan said Monday.

Sullivan stayed the execution of the sentence until Dec. 30, but said the 1971 Cy Young Award winner could report to prison at any time before that.

"Whenever they have room for him, he'll go," said Blue's attorney, Zyg Jarczyk. "If they call tomorrow and say there's a room, he'll go."

Blue will probably not, however, go to the same Fort Worth, Texas, facility where former teammates Willie Wilson and Jerry Martin currently are imprisoned.

TORONTO (UPI) — Willie Aikens made his debut with the Toronto Blue Jays from a Baltimore rehabilitation clinic for drug addicts. As an opening day performance, it was impressive.

Baseball

The Blue Jays, who have carved a reputation as one of baseball's more strait-laced clubs, acquired Aikens Monday from the Kansas City Royals for veteran designated hitter Jorge Orta.

Though Aikens has been anything but a public relations plus for baseball in recent months, the Jays asked him to speak over the telephone with five members of the Toronto press corps following the trade.

What Aikens gave back was anything but a soft-sell, forget-the-past excuses or "Gee I am going to hit tons of homers at Exhibition Stadium." As public repentance, it was hard-hitting.

"One thing drugs can do to you is change your whole attitude toward the team and everything else. There were times when I didn't care whether we won or lost," Aikens said.

"It got to the point where I became an addict. I won't say how much or what kinds, but I became addicted to drugs," Aikens said.

Green Bay Sends Starr Packing — Studley Walks Away From Oilers

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — For 26 years, Bart Starr's name was linked with the Green Bay Packers. But even such symbols rarely survive losing seasons.

After nine frustrating campaigns as the Packers' coach, Starr was fired Friday.

"If we had had a winning season, in terms of the playoffs, we would not be having this session today," Green Bay president Robert Parins said Monday in announcing Starr's dismissal.

"The decision was difficult not only because of what it means to Bart," Parins said, "but also because Bart is almost synonymous with the Green Bay Packers."

Starr became identified with the Packers as their quarterback when they won five NFL championships and the first two Super Bowls under coach Vince Lombardi.

But after taking over as coach from Dan Devine on Christmas Eve 1974, Starr had just one winning season and led Green Bay to post-season play only once — during last year's strike-shortened season.

The Packers could have made the playoffs this year with a win in their last game, but fell to the Chicago Bears 23-21 Sunday on a field goal in the final seconds.

Starr said he was "very disappointed" and shocked by his ouster but added that Green Bay, which finished 8-8, is "in a position now that it can go on and win, and I certainly hope it does."

"Our win-loss record here has not been commensurate with the growth we've enjoyed as an organization since we took over," said Starr, who will turn 50 next month. "This organization is far better than when we took over."

Starr said he would discuss his future plans at a later date.

Parins, who as chief of the executive committee and 45-member packer board of directors can hire and fire team officials, also dismissed the 10 members of Starr's coaching staff.

A search committee — whose members were not announced — was named by Parins to begin the hunt for a new coach.

Starr ranks third in longevity of the eight packer coaches, behind founder E.L. "Curly" Lambeau and Lombardi. He leaves the coaching position with a 52-76 record.

Starr credited fan sentiment with helping him become coach. The coaching job was a call "I felt had to be answered at the time because I felt it was what everyone wanted," Starr said.

But Parins said fan opinion also was a reason for Starr's dismissal.

"We have a fairly good feel of the public pulse, and to that extent I'd suppose you'd have to say it was a factor," he said.

Starr's final season was marred by a series of off-the-field incidents, including the suspension of linebacker Mickles, the revelation of running back Eddie Lee Ivory's cocaine problem and several clashes with reporters. Douglass, who still intended to file a grievance with the NFL Players Association over the suspension, said he never lost hope for Starr "as a man."

Pro Football

"There were some things that happened to me that I felt were unjust," he said, "but I lived with his decision because I respect him."

"I can't pass judgment," said Steve End Ezra Johnson. "I can't say where he went wrong, I can't even say if he was wrong."

"To me, he was a man of his word, a man I have a great deal of respect for. He was the kind of guy I liked playing for, I liked working for."

Starr's best season was in 1978 when the team was 8-7-1. Plagued by injuries, the Packers fell to 5-11 in 1979 and 5-10-1 in 1980.

At the close of the 1980 season, Starr was stripped of his duties as general manager by the club's board of directors.

Starr joined the Packers in 1956 as a 17th round draft choice out of the University of Alabama. He is one of only four Green Bay players to have his number retired and was elected to the Football Hall of Fame in 1977.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Chuck Studley, the latest in a long line of Houston Oilers head coaches, chose to take a walk rather than get the run-around.

Interim head coach Studley resigned Monday and took himself out of the running for the permanent job in 1984, perhaps prematurely. He was an Oilers employee less than a year, first as defensive coordinator.

The Miami Dolphins immediately expressed an interest in him as a possible replacement for outgoing assistant head coach Bill Arnsparger.

Studley said in announcing his resignation that he was not interested in being one of general manager Ladd Herzog's candidates for the Oilers job, that he thought he deserved better.

He said Herzog indicated no decision was necessary now because he did not want to ruin anyone's holiday.

"That motive is fair, but it is not what I wanted to hear. My holiday season will be better knowing what my status is," he said.

Studley made the unexpected announcement despite the knowledge he was eliminating his slight chance of remaining a National Football League head coach.

"I think my career as a head coach has been a very short one," he said. "He said he did not enjoy his 10-game stint as the interim replacement for resigned head coach Ed Bills."

"I used to have a lot of fun with the other assistant coaches. Now, they treat me like a leper. I want to get back to the fun," he said.

Meanwhile, the Oilers released all but two Oilers assistant coaches, Bill Walsh and Kenny Houston, to talk to other clubs about employment.

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Walt Michaels, turned loose by the New York Jets only two weeks after leading them to the brink of the Super Bowl, is expected to be named today as coach of the New Jersey Generals of the U.S. Football League.

The Generals have called an 11:30 a.m. EST press conference amid every indication the 53-year-old Michaels will fill the coaching void. Chuck Fairbanks was fired after the Generals, despite the presence of running back Herschel Walker, went 6-12 in the league's initial campaign.

The addition of Michaels, who gradually won over Jets fans with his unassuming but solid style, appears to be at least the second choice of owner Donald Trump, who talked with Miami coach Don Shula.

Nevertheless, the hiring of Michaels could prove to be a coup for the aggressive team owner. New Jersey and the Jets now have the same home — Giants Stadium — and the Jets tumbled to a 7-9 record after Michaels' forced departure.

A four-time Pro Bowl linebacker with Cleveland, Michaels orchestrated the defense that helped the Jets win Super Bowl III.

Connors Ready For Break After Destroying Lendl

NORTH MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Jimmy Connors says he's ready for a vacation after winning the first place prize of $90,000 in the Nastase-Hamptons Invitational tennis tournament for the second straight year.

Second-seed Connors defeated top-seed Ivan Lendl 6-3, 7-6 (10-8), 6-1 Monday, the first time the two have played each other since the U.S. Open final, which Connors also won.

"I've got myself back in shape for 1984 now. This tournament was good for getting me in shape. I played some pretty good players and did a good job," said Connors. "I'm ready for my vacation now. My family and I are going to Colorado for two weeks and this is a good way to end the year."

Culverhouse Bemoans '83

TAMPA (UPI) — The 1983 NFL season was one of regret and disappointment to Tampa Bay Buccaneers owner Hugh Culverhouse, but he boldly predicted Monday that barring injuries next year, the Bucs will win the NFC's Central Division.

"I wish owners could gamble," Culverhouse said at a news conference. "Just with the players we have now healthy, and with the same coaching staff, I would bet we would win the Central Division next year."

Culverhouse said he thought before the season began the Bucs had the players to win this year, but they were beset with injuries and finished a dismal 2-14 and last in their division.

"This season was one of a lot of regrets and a lot of disappointments," he said. "And one I don't think anyone could have forecast."

In a wide-ranging news conference, Culverhouse talked about the competition with the rival USFL, his unsuccessful efforts to sign quarterback Doug Williams, his faith in Coach John McKay and his view of the past season.

Culverhouse said the USFL has every right to try to sign NFL players and said the Bucs intend to look at some USFL players with an eye toward signing them.

Gators Dismiss Palmer

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Nabe Palmer, a 5-foot-11 junior guard from Ocala Vanguard High School, has been dismissed from the University of Florida basketball team because of academic reasons, Coach Norm Sloan announced Monday.

Palmer, who started all 31 games for Florida last season, averaged four points and one rebound per game this year.

Meanwhile, Florida forward Vernon Delaney suffered a broken nose during a practice session Saturday. Delaney was cleared to play by doctors on Monday, but is not expected to start in Tuesday's game against Biscayne College.

Yogi Content To Coach, Sons Push For Manager

"Hey, Yogi, did you ever see such a beautiful day! C'mon, Let's go."

It was one of his buddies, one of the members of Yogi Berra's regular foursome, calling the Yankees' new manager early Sunday morning at his home in Montclair, N.J., trying to get him out on the golf course.

He didn't have to try too hard. "OK, OK," Yogi responded, "but I gotta get back in time to watch the football game."

That's part of Yogi's appeal. He doesn't change. In this crazy mixed-up world of variables, he's one of those rare constants. Whether he coaches the Yankees or manages them, or whether somebody even comes up with the idea of making him commissioner, he stays the same.

Managing the Yankees won't be any novelty for Berra. He did it once before in 1964 when he led them to a pennant and then was fired after they lost the World Series that year to the Cardinals. He also guided the Mets to a pennant in 1973, only to be beaten in that World Series too, by the A's.

Yogi could've managed the Yankees again before this. George Steinbrenner said as much Friday at the announcement Berra was taking over for Billy Martin.

"But whenever I talked to him about it before, he always said 'no,'" Steinbrenner revealed. "Whenever I talked to Carmen, I mean," the Yankee owner quickly amended, getting a big laugh from the newsman present.

Steinbrenner gave the impression that Carmen Berra, Yogi's wife of 34 years, calls all the shots in the family. Unquestionably, she does influence Yogi because she's exceptionally bright and perceptive and her husband, above all others, is intelligent enough to realize that, but she certainly doesn't dictate what he should do. She wasn't too crazy for him to manage anymore.

"Yogi was perfectly content to remain a coach with the Yankees and I felt the same way about it," Carmen Berra says. "He makes up his own mind about things. I don't make it up for him. Then there was another thing, Yogi absolutely loves Billy. I adore him, too. He's one of us. Yogi and I both know how much he wanted the job this time around. But when Yogi found out there was going to be a change, no matter what, and George asked him whether he'd be interested in the job, he thought about it and said yes."

The Berras' three sons, Larry, Tim and Dale, helped Yogi decide to take another crack at managing. Larry, 34, is a vice president for United Floors, an organization that does commercial flooring. Tim, who played one year with the Baltimore Colts, is 32 and works at his father's racquetball club in Fairfield, N.J., and Dale, 27, plays shortstop for the Pit-sburgh Pirates.

Milton Richman UPI Sports Editor

"When the subject of Yogi managing again first came up, the boys said to him 'why not?'" says their mother. "They said to me, 'Well, mom, why don't you want dad to manage anymore?' They felt their father had done practically everything in baseball — he was Most Valuable Player three times, played in 15 All-Star Games and 14 World Series, managed two different teams to pennants and was in the Hall of Fame — but he never had a team that won a world championship.

"They boys felt it would be nice for Yogi to have an opportunity to do that, and after they pointed it out, I agreed with them. To tell you the truth, though, originally I wasn't anxious for him to manage again. What for? He was happy with what he was doing and I was happy for him."

Nobody knows Yogi Berra better than his wife does.

Some of those who don't know him at all regard him as some sort of legendary object of amusement who has made a career of originating laughable malapropisms, but Carmen Berra has an entirely different picture of her husband.

"He's extremely intelligent, refreshing to be around and a very strong person," she says.

There was the time he was coming back home from the playoffs with the Newark Bears in September of 1946. Berra was listening to a portable radio on the train and heard that he, Bobby Brown, Vic Raschi and Frank Colman had been brought up by the parent Yankees.

He reported to Yankee Stadium the next day and Johnny Neum, the manager, said to him: "You're ready, aren't you?" "Sure," Berra told him.

He then ripped pitcher Bob Savage for a homer and a single to help the Yanks beat the A's, after which he played in another half dozen games before the season ended and finished up hitting .364.

The ability to adjust to any given situation is considered one of the best barometers of gauging anyone's intelligence.

Yogi adjusts perfectly to EVERY situation.

And some people still think he's slow upstairs. That only shows how swift they are.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Officer Accused In Death Of Two Americans Jailed

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — The Salvadoran government arrested an army captain linked to the killings of two American land reform advisers in an apparent answer to U.S. demands for a crackdown on rightist death squads.

Capt. Eduardo Ernesto Avila was named nearly one year ago as the man who ordered the Jan. 4, 1981 slayings of AFL-CIO land reform advisers Michael Hammer and David Pearlman, but dropped from sight until his arrest Monday.

During his recent trip to El Salvador, Vice President George Bush said rightist death squads must be brought under control or the administration will consider cutting off aid to the war-ravaged Central American nation.

Avila is under military detention and has not been turned over to civilian officials and charged, sources close to the case said.

Terrorists Arrested

KARLSRUHE, West Germany (UPI) — Police smashed a suspected terrorist cell and arrested four men believed to be plotting a bombing campaign against American and NATO bases, authorities said.

Three of the suspects were seized by detectives Friday in a raid on a private house in Ruesselsheim, near Frankfurt, a spokesman for Karlsruhe prosecutor Kurt Rebmann said Monday. The home was filled with bomb-making equipment. A fourth man, who escaped the raid, was arrested during the weekend near Ruesselsheim.

The spokesman said two members of the cell were thought to be members of the Red Army Faction, part of the notorious Baader-Meinhof terrorist group.

Written evidence found in the house showed the four suspects planned to mount a bombing campaign against NATO and American military bases, arms depots and barracks.

Nakasone Won't Quit

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, his authority in the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party undermined by embarrassing election returns, resisted calls to resign today and moved to rebuild his political power base.

At a grim post-election Cabinet meeting, Nakasone decided to call for an emergency session of the Diet, or parliament, next Monday during which the body will nominate a prime minister under Japan's parliamentary form of government.

Officials said Nakasone's rivals blamed the defeat on his poor handling of the political ethics issue, stemming from former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka's refusal to resign from parliament after his Oct. 12 conviction in the Lockheed bribery scandal. Tanaka was handily re-elected to parliament in Sunday's election.

PLO Evacuation

4,000 Fighters Withdraw From Lebanon...Again

TRIPOLI, Lebanon (UPI) — Greek ships escorted by French warships today evacuated Yasser Arafat and his Palestinian guerrillas from Lebanon for the second time in 15 months. Israeli gunboats patrolled off the coast, their guns silent.

Arafat was aboard the second of four ferries that steamed into the Mediterranean from the northern Lebanese port where he and his 4,000 guerrilla loyalists were besieged for more than a month by Syrian-backed rebels, state-run Beirut radio reported.

A fifth Greek ship was taking on more guerrillas and was expected to join the convoy later for voyages to Tunisia and North Yemen. Arafat's ultimate destination was not immediately known.

The radio said the first of the five Greek ships flying the United Nations flag carried 580 of the 4,000 guerrillas, who had been battling rebels opposed to Arafat's rule of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

In Jerusalem, a senior Israeli official said Israel could provide no guarantee of safe passage for Arafat and his beleaguered force. There have been several bombardments of Arafat's positions by Israeli gunboats in the past week, but none today. French warships that accompanied the Greek ferries into Tripoli, 42 miles north of Beirut, supervised the evacuation from positions close to the coast, Beirut radio said.

Yasser Arafat

Before the Greek ships arrived, French jets made reconnaissance flights over the area.

Lebanese security officials said the boarding operation went smoothly, although the Syrian-backed PLO rebel fired at least three rocket-propelled grenades near the Greek ships before the evacuation began. There were no reports of casualties or damage in the attack.

With much of Tripoli cordoned off by government troops and police, Lebanese army trucks carried the Arafat loyalists to the port.

The rebels chased Arafat and his loyalists into Tripoli last month. Facing a prolonged siege, Arafat agreed Nov. 25 to a cease-fire that would allow him and his guerrillas to leave northern Lebanon.

The evacuation marked the second forced exodus of PLO guerrillas from Lebanon in 15 months. The first, from Beirut, was at the hands of the Israeli invaders in Sept. 1982.

Sensitive Shipments Misdirected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department reports that a chemical compound made in the United States and used in flak jackets was mistakenly enroute to the Syrian army before it was seized along with other highly sensitive cargo.

The disclosure Monday of the misdirected chemical Kevlar 29 was just one of a series of shipping bloopers that prompted cries from Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger for tighter export controls.

Weinberger said a computer nearly shipped to the Soviet Union could have caused "substantial damage" to U.S. security.

About half of the $1.35 million Digital Equipment computer was displayed behind Weinberger as he talked to reporters at a news conference.

It was part of a shipment seized by authorities Nov. 9 as it was being shipped from South Africa to the Soviet Union through West Germany. About half of the total shipment still was missing, the officials said. Only seven containers have been found, three of which were returned to the United States. Another four were in Sweden, where they were shipped from South Africa to West Germany enroute to the Soviet Union.

"This is not your ordinary personal computer on which you play some games," Weinberger said. "This could cause very substantial damage to the national security of the United States ... and to the whole free world."

Pentagon officials said foreign manufacturers make hardware similar to the VAX 11-782 computer put on display, but only the Digital gear has become the standard for defense suppliers because it is able to run highly sophisticated programs developed for the U.S. military and NATO countries.

"What it could do is save the Soviet Union ... hundreds of millions of dollars in manufacturing costs and worse than that, give them a very much more reliable and rapid method of designing weapons that could be used against the United States, NATO and the free world," Weinberger said.

Late last week, West German police arrested three people in connection with the plot to smuggle American-made computers to the Soviet Union.

"We want to prevent this from happening again," Weinberger said.

Are America's Bridges Falling Down?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Tens of thousands of crumbling, outdated bridges" are endangering the lives of American motorists nationwide, a consumer group that sued the government charges.

The Center for Auto Safety asked the U.S. District Court in Washington Monday to order the Reagan administration to enforce inspection requirements and to withhold highway funds from states that do not comply.

"To put it bluntly, the federal and state governments' violation of federal bridge laws and regulations threaten the safety of most Americans and wastes millions of dollars" in highway funds said Katherine Hall, a center attorney.

Named as defendants were Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole and Ray Barnhart, head of the Federal Highway Administration.

A Department of Transportation spokesman had no immediate comment on the suit, saying he had not yet seen it, but said the agency has made bridge safety "a top priority."

The spokesman also noted that most of the nickel-a-gallon federal gasoline tax increase, which went into effect April 1, has gone for road and bridge repairs.

A spokesman for the highway agency also said the legal papers had not been studied and had no comment on the suit.

Ms. Hall, however, charged that little has been done since issuance of a 1981 study by the General Accounting Office that said, "The United States has more than 500,000 bridges and slightly over 200,000 are deficient."

Europeans Want Bigger Return On Space Venture

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — The first European to fly aboard a space shuttle says NASA has not given the European Space Agency a fair return on its nearly $1 billion Spacelab research module.

Ulf Merbold, a West German physicist and one of the first two non-NASA astronauts to fly on an American space flight, said the latest shuttle flight proved Spacelab's worth for research in orbit.

But Merbold said Monday the 10 European nations that spent nearly $1 billion to develop Spacelab, a 23-foot-long cylinder carried in the shuttle's cargo bay, may not get their money's worth.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration and ESA previously signed a joint agreement in which ESA promised to design and build Spacelab and give it to NASA free of charge. In return, NASA promised to fly dozens of European experiments aboard Spacelab during its initial flight at no cost and to buy a second Spacelab module in the future.

"The return to Europe should be a little better than it was for this particular flight," Merbold said. "Spacelab is built for 50 missions and NASA's return to Europe is just one-half of one mission and I think that eliminates the cooperation for the future because the politicians will not be able to sell Europe's part in the future because that is not fairly balanced," Merbold said.

Merbold's comments came during a news conference featuring the crew of the ninth shuttle mission.

Commander John Young, pilot Brewster Shaw and crew members Robert Parker, Owen Garriott and Byron Lichtenberg praised Spacelab and the data from more than 72 scientific experiments performed during the 10-day flight.

Young, who said he is giving up flying in space after six trips in orbit, said the mission was successful despite double computer failures and a fire in Columbia's tail section after its safe Dec. 8 landing at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Gina Hattaway

Gina Hattaway, an Oviedo High School freshman, has been selected as a state finalist in the Miss Florida American Co-Ed Pageant to be held April 20, 21 & 22 at the Hyatt Regency, Tampa.

Contestants will be judged on poise, personality, stage appearance, personal interview and achievements. The Florida winner will be crowned Miss Florida American Co-Ed for 1984. She will receive her crown, banner, trophy, cash award and an all expense paid Dream Vacation to Hawaii, where she will compete for the National Title of Miss American Co-Ed.

Gina will be performing in the talent competition with her pointe number, "Texas," choreographed by Miriam Wright. For 10 years Gina has been dancing at School of Dance Arts, helping as a teacher assistant for two of those years, and has performed with the Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole for the past four years. Gina is a senior company member with the Ballet Guild this season. Her other hobbies include collecting shells, spending time at the beach, and working with small children. Her first love is dancing. Several professional goals are still being settled by Gina, but she knows she wants to work with children. A number of local patrons have contributed as sponsors for Gina in this pageant.

Daughter Looks For Way To Get Mom To Draw Will

DEAR ABBY: Please put a few words in your column about the importance of having a will. My father died without leaving one because Mother didn't want to scare him by letting him know that he was sick enough to die.

Of course, Dad wanted Mother to have everything, but after he died, Mother had to go through a lot of fancy footwork to settle his affairs. Having gone through all of this, wouldn't you think she would have her own will drawn up? Well, she hasn't, and she is getting on in years.

My sister, who is married to an attorney, called me "greedy and crass" for reminding Mother to have her will drawn up. Mother has asked her attorney son-in-law repeatedly to please get together with her to do it but he keeps telling her there is no hurry and he's too busy right now. (My sister told me that she and her husband don't have wills either. Can you believe this?)

I am not concerned about my own inheritance, but my mother has a lot in assets, and I don't want to see it lost in taxes. What should I do?

CONCERNED DAUGHTER

DEAR CONCERNED: Tell your mother to give her attorney son-in-law the following message: "If you can't get together with me within the next two weeks, I intend to find an attorney who will." And if he doesn't — she should.

DEAR ABBY: This year I thank God my husband has a steady paycheck coming in and our family will spend the holidays with many loved ones. Our table will be filled with plenty to eat and our children will open many gifts.

I am not unappreciative, just a bit guilt-ridden because I know many families will go hungry and no Santa will visit their kids. Feeling as I do, I called our parish priest and asked him to find a family we could help during the holidays. He said he knew of a family in desperate need and any help we could provide would be an answer to their prayers.

So my husband and I and our two children are shopping for "our family." Now instead of hearing, "I want," we hear. "Let's get this for them."

Abby, if every fortunate family were to help a family or person in need, it would be a better holiday season for everyone.

G.K.S.

DEAR G.K.S.: Thank you for a great idea.

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "Jerry and Me" could have been written by me 30 years ago. I was also 15 and madly in love with a 20-year-old man. My parents did everything they could to keep us apart, so I got pregnant on purpose so they would have to let us get married.

I was still 15 when our first child was born, and 17 when we had our second. Six weeks later my husband was sent to Italy with the U.S. Air Force and I was left behind to care for our two babies. Six months later my husband was badly brain damaged in a car accident, and 10 months after that he was killed in another car accident.

At 19 I was a widow with two children, no education and no job skills. I'll spare you the details of those awful years of struggling to survive and make a life for the three of us. Suffice it to say that I became an old lady before I became a woman. Worst of all, I broke my mother's heart. (She died at 55.)

I would like to tell that 15-year-old girl who can't wait to get married: You have a lifetime to be an adult. Once your childhood is gone you can never get it back. The horrors I endured before I turned 21 nearly ruined my life. Listen to Abby. If you are in love, it will last. At 45 I am only beginning to get my life together. I sincerely hope you will not make the same mistake I made. Sign this

ROLEX TRIUMPHS IN CHRONOMETER TIME AND OYSTER SPACE

The Rolex Oyster case is carved from a single block of 18k gold, platinum or stainless steel in 162 steps to form a seal-tight, virtually indestructible vault.

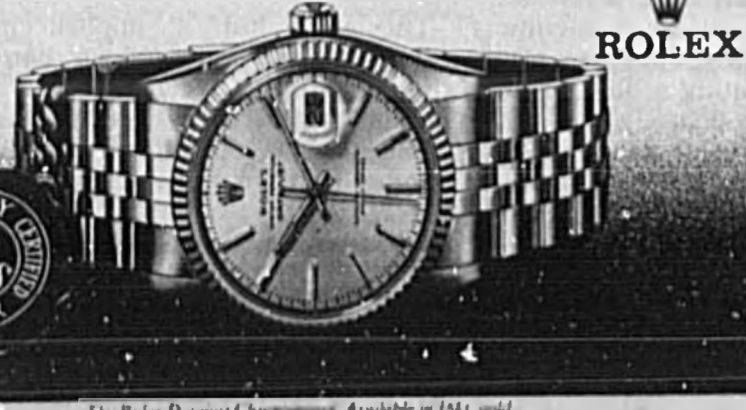

The patented Triplock winding crown screws down on the Oyster case like a submarine hatch to form a hermetic, pressure-proof seal against dust and moisture, with double protection.

The self-winding, Rolex-patented rotor converts the slightest wrist motion into a tireless power reserve for its Rolex maintaining without need of batteries or electronic chips.

Only after 15 days of individual testing by the Swiss Institute for Chronometer Tests is the Rolex timepiece awarded its coveted "Red Seal" title Official Swiss Chronometer.

He has worked in the various phases of the automobile business since he was 16 years old and was a manufacturer's representative before coming back to Sanford to start his own business three years ago.

Darrell does the solar window film installation for homes and office windows. The window tint comes with five-year warranty on film and replacement.

The solar film if applied properly on the right windows will reduce home heating and air-conditioning bills 40 per cent for about one-third of the cost of tinted glass, Larry said.

Jim Lash Blue Book Cars has large selection of used cars

Jim Lash Blue Book Cars Sells Quality Used Cars

"Jim Lash Blue Book Cars has the largest selection and quantity of used cars of any independent used car deal in Seminole County," says General Manager Steve Lash.

"Come to our lot, we have more than 200 cars to choose from ranging in price from $199 to $15,000 each," he said. "You're welcome to look, browse, or buy without pressure in a friendly, courteous atmosphere. Most of our customers are repeats or referrals."

Among the cars on the lot, located at 4114 S. Orlando Drive (Highway 17-92 south of Lake Mary Boulevard), Sanford, include 1983 Supras and Cougars, and custom vans.

"We specialize in family cars in the mid-price range and also sell economy cars, sports cars, vans, and trucks," Steve said.

They have cars suitable for the young person buying their first car and have a good selection of cars under $1,000 for the cash transportation buyer.

Jim Lash has been in the car business in the Central Florida area for more than 30 years. "You can deal with us today with the assurance that if you have a problem you can come back and we'll be here to take care of it," said Steve. The cars are individually picked by Jim Lash and his associate buyer. Every car must pass rigid inspection by the service department. They are thoroughly checked from bumper to bumper to make sure all safety features, accessories, and every assembly are working properly. "That's why we can offer a 30-day, 60-day, or 90-day free service agreement," Steve said.

The cars also go through the detail department and are totally stripped, cleaned and reconditioned and expertly made front-line ready. Appearance packages such as stripes, mouldings and other fine features are put on. Wheels are replaced and usually new tires are put on.

Jim Lash Blue Book Cars is a member of the National Independent Automobile Dealers Association. It offers bank financing and agreements with local finance companies.

They carry an average of 10-25 consignment cars that can usually be bought for under book price. Tied in with the used car dealership is Blue Book Cars' service center staffed by a team of experienced mechanics and the Rent-A-Car.

The service center has diagnostic equipment utilizing the latest in electronic systems for wheel balancing, engine testing, alignments, electrical and other major car components.

Heart Attack Deaths New Enzyme Reduces Mortality Dramatically

BOSTON (UPI)— Heart attack deaths were reduced by nearly 70 percent by injecting a blood clot-dissolving enzyme directly into the heart soon after the attack, medical researchers report.

Dr. Garrett Dotson, chief of staff at Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, said this technique "shows great promise," but is not used here. He explained that the enzyme is mainly used in conjunction with coronary catheterization, which though not done at CFRH is being done at two Orlando area hospitals.

Although pacemakers are installed by surgeons at CFRH, he said by-pass surgery is not as yet performed, although the hospital is moving in that direction.

Heart attacks are usually caused by a clot forming in the artery feeds the heart muscle, thereby cutting off its blood supply and killing it.

In a report published in the New England Journal of Medicine, doctors at the University of Washington said by injecting the enzyme streptokinase directly into the clot it dissolved within half an hour.

The death rate in the 250 patients studied dropped 67 percent from the normal 11.2 percent to 3.7 percent — suggesting a potentially enormous decrease in the 550,000 deaths due to heart attack in the United States each year.

The researchers also said they are experimenting with a similar enzyme that they predicted will be even more effective — and with fewer side effects.

"If our findings reflect reality, this is a very substantial reduction of death due to heart attacks," said Dr. J. Ward Kennedy, head of the University of Washington Medical School's Division of Cardiology.

The new enzyme— called human tissue plasminogen activator, or t-PA — was created through genetic engineering. It is being tested on animals and may prove even more effective than streptokinase because it appears to specifically target heart blood clots.

Kennedy and others said the findings are not conclusive and more tests on both enzymes were needed.

"We'll have to wait and see whether their results are duplicated," said Dr. Robert C. Leimbach, a cardiologist at Massachusetts General Hospital. "I think their findings are basically correct, but I'm not sure the final results will be quite as spectacular."

The University of Washington team said when a heart attack victim was brought into the hospital, a long tube was inserted into an artery in the arm or neck and threaded into the blood vessel that feeds the heart muscle. The streptokinase was then injected through the tube directly to the clot.

Although the treatment reduced mortality rates dramatically, the study found it did not seem to lessen the amount of damage to heart muscles caused by the original blockage. Kennedy said he believes this is because the treatment takes an average of five hours to complete.

He and his team are now experimenting with injecting much higher doses of streptokinase into peripheral arteries, rather than directly into the heart. However, streptokinase may increase bleeding in other areas of the body for 12 to 24 hours, which can be dangerous, he said.

Doctors said they believe the t-PA enzyme would avoid such bleeding. They are also optimistic they can inject it into peripheral arteries in much lower doses than streptokinase, with the same life-saving results.

By using either drug in the peripheral arteries, doctors believe they will be able to administer the drug almost immediately, perhaps while riding in the ambulance, thus saving heart muscle that might otherwise be destroyed due to prolonged lack of oxygen-carrying blood.

Poll: Economic Upturn Only Temporary

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A majority of Americans are convinced an economic recovery is underway, but most of them believe the improvement is only temporary, the Los Angeles Times poll reported.

The nationwide survey, taken one year after the recession hit bottom and amid signs of robust economic growth in most sectors of the economy, also reveals the American public sees unemployment as the greatest threat to the recovery.

People responding to the survey, however, believe their greatest personal economic threat would be a surge in inflation, unemployment or higher interest rates.

As a sign of the public's continuing anxiety over the nation's record federal budget deficits, the poll also showed that almost one half of those answering believe that a balanced budget would bring about economic prosperity or be the most important factor in accomplishing it.

The poll surveyed 1,988 Americans 18 years of age and older. The people who answered made up a cross-section of the American voting-age public, the newspaper said.

Of those who answered the survey, 72 percent agreed that a recovery was underway, but more than half of those said they thought the improvement would be short lived.

The prevailing view of 42 percent of those surveyed in the poll is that the economy is in a period of temporary improvement that will not really solve the nation's long-term economic problems.

Only 30 percent answered that the economy is in a period of long-term growth that will lead to prosperity. At the other extreme, 24 percent said there is no real economic recovery taking place or that the economy may even be getting worse.

Seventy-two percent of the respondents also answered that they thought inflation was the same or worse.

The view that there was no recovery was strongest among blacks and poor people. Inflation was seen as the greatest personal threat by 26 percent of those responding, with unemployment following with 22 percent and interest rates feared most by 14 percent.

During the past 13 months, the poll has shown a steadily rising percentage of Americans who are convinced the economy is good and a corresponding decrease among those who consider it bad. The respondents' opinions about the economy reflected its performance during the same period.

Since last December when the nation's unemployment rate peaked at 10.8 percent, the economy has been rebounding.

Unemployment has fallen to 8.4 percent, dropping faster than any previous post-World War II recovery.

What Causes Those Small Spider Veins?

DEAR DR. LAMB - Would you please tell me what causes or aggravates spider veins on the legs? I'm 35 years old, 5 feet 5 inches tall and weigh 118 pounds. I have noticed several spider veins on my upper thighs this year. I am a teacher and I try to exercise 10 to 15 minutes every day.

I use weights. Is this a cause of the veins? DEAR READER - A lot of people have these and sometimes they mistakenly are called varicose veins. They are small veins that come to the surface of the skin, not large dilated veins of the typical varicosity.

I don't think the cause is actually known, but probably some of the same factors that cause prominent veins on the nose cause them elsewhere. Hot spicy foods, drinks or anything that dilates blood vessels may be a factor. Age and exposure to sun are factors.

While a lot of attention has been given to prominent veins over the nose and cheeks, very little attention has been given to those on the thighs and knees.

If they are superficial enough they can be treated the same way prominent veins are sometimes treated on the face. Dr. Jonathan Zizmor, Chief of Dermatology at St. Vincent's Hospital in New York City, suggests touching the unsightly capillary with an electric needle for a second or two. The surface cells are killed and the capillary destroyed.

When he does this on the face he refers to it as an electronic facial. Some dermatologists inject a salt solution into small veins on the legs but not larger ones.

Using weights will not cause these little veins. But you might be wise to take measures to avoid subsequent development of real varicose veins from standing. Walking, running and active exercise do not cause varicose veins or the small spider veins either.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 35 years old. A month ago I was diagnosed as having an overactive thyroid. My doctor told me I could do one of three things to alleviate my problem: I could take radioactive iodine and possibly develop thyroid cancer; I could have surgery and take a chance on having too much thyroid removed and have to take thyroid pills the rest of my life; or I could take pills for six months to a year unless side effects occurred.

I'm very concerned about this. Could you give me any advice? DEAR READER - Your doctor has summarized your options, but I would not be quite as pessimistic as your letter suggests. The chance of cancer from the large dose of radioactive iodine is quite small, less than what could occur with the small doses. While many patients treated this way eventually may require thyroid pills - this is not so bad. The same applies on that point to surgery.

If you take anti-thyroid pills they may control your symptoms. Reports indicate that from 10 percent to 50 percent of patients have a remission within six to 18 months after treatment is started.

All things being equal, I usually would advise trying the medicine route first. You can always elect one of the other choices if you need to.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1557, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

WIN AT BRIDGE

dukked once, but had to win the spade continuation. Then South rattled off the four good diamonds. West had to make three discards. The first two were the four of clubs and seven of hearts. Meanwhile, East had let two little hearts go. He realized that his jack of clubs needed all the protection he could give it. On the last diamond West had a problem, but finally solved it by chucking another club. He needed to keep his two spades to be able to beat declarer and had to hope that East would produce the necessary clubs. East did and South was down one. South had a cinch for his contract. At trick two he should have led a heart. If West takes his ace, he is left with no entry for his spades. If West ducks, South abandons hearts and takes the diamond finesse since he is now sure of nine tricks even if the finesse loses.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

South took his queen of spades and wasted no time attacking dummy's diamond suit by finessing his queen. East took his king and shot back a spade. South
