Mrs. Tumin estimated the 1 cent increase in sales taxes will cost her about $100 a year.

City Manager W. E. "Pete" Knowles, called on by Moore to answer Mrs. Tumin's complaints, said the Legislature passed the sales tax increase to cover a $780 million shortfall in state revenues and the boost in taxes passed only because 12 cent is to be shared by the

Firefighters, Police Picket At Casselberry

By JANE CASSELBERRY Herald Staff Writer

Off-duty Casselberry police, frustrated with contract talks that have dragged on for 11 months, took their fight to the streets Monday night, picketing Casselberry's new City Hall.

Inside in the council chambers, which seats less than 100, it was standing room only for the public hearing on the 1982-83 tax rate and budget as residents spoke out on a raise for police and the postponed paramedic program. The council was berated for building the new City Hall at 95 Lake Triplet Drive, not giving the police the B percent salary increase given other city employees and for dumping the proposed paramedic program approved in a referenduni last year.

The policemen presented council members with 1,000 letters of support from city residents,

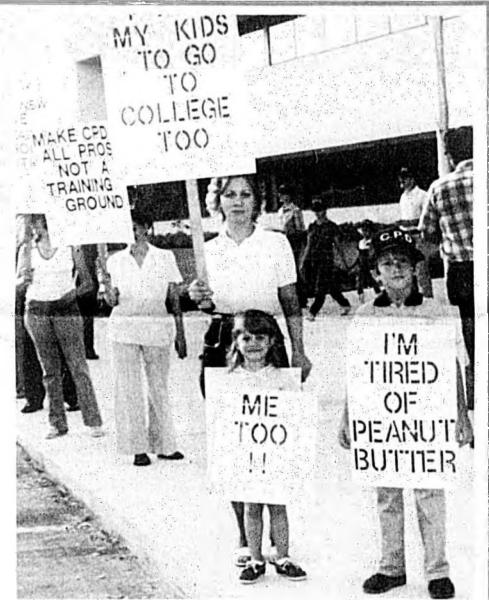

Frank Stone of 530 Grandview Way East, representing the Fire Department, presented petitions bearing 1,089 signatures asking that funds allocated in the budget for other items be used instead for funding a paramedic program.

Items Stone said could wait included road materials and supplies for street capping, $45,000; a new street sweeper, $55,000; a traffic light for Timberlane Trail and State Road 434, $20,000; and paving and drainage for Plumosa Drive, $30,000, for a total of

The council had favored financing the paramedic program with a special $1 per $1,000 assessed property valuation, but voted it down in July. A $2.08 per $1,000 tax rate, which included the one mill assessment to fund a city paramedic program, had been proposed. However, the county tax appraiser's office said the rate had to be cut to 1.12 per $1,000 due to a mistake in the city's assumption that money collected in taxes for the paramedic program is exempt from the Legislature's required 40 percent property tax rollback tied to the one-cent hike in the state sales

Also Monday, the council gave tentative approval to the $1.12 per $1,000 tax rate following a public hearing by a 3-1 vote. See POLICE, Page 2A

Ambulance Service Rate May Go Up

Both firms submitted proposals to county commissioners Monday for the county contract, which will expire Sept. 28. Those proposals could delay a decision on awarding the subsidized contract.

Aero Products, a Longwood firm operated by Scott Barnes, a former Herndon employee, submitted a detailed proposal for service and asked for a $257,340 subsidy to cover projected losses the first year. The request equals more than 25 percent of the company's projected

And Kaiser said to allow a subsidized firm and an unsubsidized firm to compete would be harmful to the county.

Herndon received criticism from several commissioners and County Administrator Roger Neiswender concerning the company's performance.

Commissioner Sandra Glenn also asked why the Herndon proposal did not address the county's request to take over dispatching and communication responsibilities for the emergency vehicles.

Chewning asked commissioners to approve the contract and negotiate the county takeover of communications at a later date.

"We've heard this proposal only twice before, in a letter and here," he said. "In a fewweeks we'd like to sit down here and talk about it, assuming we're the successful bidder. We'd like to talk on a professional level. We've not had that opportunity."

He said the commissioners had told Herndon last year they were eager to take over the communication duties.

"It's been proposed for at least two years," Kaiser said.

Neiswender chastised the Herndon officials for the bad debts. The company claims about 30 percent of all customers don't pay their Neiswender disagreed. "A lot of cases of bad debt are purely poor management practices. I don't think the taxpayers want to pay for anything but the best management practices."

The companies will meet with commissioners again Sept. 28 at 2 p.m.

Consultant Says Double Tax Talks Too Friendly

Last week's talks between officials of Seminole County's seven cities and County Administrator Roger Neiswender were a bit too cooperative in the view of a consultant on the issue that has plagued the county for more than two decades.

David L. Greene, senior associate with Kelton & Associates of DeLand, which recently completed a study on double taxation, told city officials in a letter that he is concerned about a concession given the county by the cities.

"We are somewhat concerned," he said, "about discussions regarding the placing 'on hold' of the country's response to the cities' resolutions. The intent behind the cities forwarding resolutions to the county was to bring the issue of double taxation to the forefront during review of the fiscal year 1982-83 budget. It was hoped the county would address the issueduring the budgetary process."

Administrative personnel of the cities last week agreed to stop the clock on the county responding to the resolutions charging the County Commission with double taxation as long as talks with Neiswender progressed.

Neiswender asked for the delay, noting the county had only 12 days to respond to an Altamonte Springs resolution. Each of the cities sent a resolution to the county, charging double taxation in a number of county functions that the cities and Kelton says provides no "real and substantial benefits to the

The committee is to hold its second meeting at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at Sanford City Manager W. E. "Pete" Knowles' conference room at City Hall, 300 N. Park Ave.

Neiswender asked last week that Greene show in writing how he defined the term "real and substantial" prior to this Wednesday's meeting.

Florida judges, who have heard double taxation suits against counties, have said the cities to prevail must show that county services paid for with tax money do not provide real and substantial benefits to city dwellers. In Greene's letter, he said the accepted and understood meaning of real and substantial is that "the service must provide some actual benefit. Benefit may be direct or indirect by cannot be merely illusory and inconsequential, or in-

Greene said he and his firm are concerned about a county proposal for its department heads and division heads to make presentations regarding respective departments to the

"In our opinion, this will serve no real purpose other than to consume valuable time. At present, the city staffs, the county administrator and his assistant, as well as Kelton & Associates have a clear idea of the types and levels of services the county is providing for its incorporated as well as countywide residents," Greene said.

"We believe we have a clear understanding of what those services activities are," Greene said. "It is our judgment that this will merely consume valuable time that could be betterspent in addressing the issues of double taxation and making meanful progress toward successful resolution of those issues."

Greene said it is important that discussions continue and that the county prepare a response to the resolutions, "It is particularly important in view of the fact that during the 1982-83 fiscal year, the county will receive $2.3 million in additional unincorporated revenue as a result of the additional one cent state sales tax," he said. - DONNA ESTES

Sanford Stops Holiday Garbage Pickups

"If I worked for anyone and had to get up at 7 on Christmas morning to go to work, I'd tell you where to put your garbage."

With this statement by Mayor Lee P. Moore to the Sanford City Commission Monday night, the board reversed itself and voted to stop city garbage collection on holidays.

The vote was 3-1 with Commissioner David Farr voting "no." Commissioner Eddie Keith, who is ill, was absent.

The city's Public Works Department recommended several weeks ago and City Manager W. E. "Pete" Knowles concurred to halt garbage collection on holidays to save some $6,000 in overtime costs annually. With Knowles away on vacation, the commissioners stated their concerns about city residents being inconvenienced if the service were stopped and action was tabled.

Monday night, however, as the issue was discussed again. Moore made his statement, without saying what his vote would However, Commissioner Milton Smith said his major concern is that the public be informed of how holiday garbage would then be handled.

Knowles said on the two regular collection days after a holiday the refuse department would pick up the regular garbage and the holiday garbage.

He said a survey of other nearby cities showed three with holiday pickup, three without and three with partial pickup. Knowles said the practice in Sanford has been to pay double time for eight hours on a holiday and the refuse workers were permitted to go home early if they completed their work early.

Knowles said feelings on the issue are evenly divided among refuse department employees with half wanting to work the holiday to earn the extra money and the other half wanting to spend holidays with their families.

Moore said in years past when the city did not pick up garbage and trash on holidays he got trate telephone calls from city residents. He said stopping holiday pickup will only mean that the man of the house doesn't have to get up early to put his garbage curbside. - DONNA ESTES.

Twelve States And D.C. Hold Primaries Today

United Press International

The nuclear freeze issue gets its first statewide voter test in Wisconsin today - one of 12 states holding primaries that include tight races involving senators from Vermont and Nevada and the governor of Massachusetts.

The District of Columbia also holds its primary and voters will decide whether to make jail sentences mandatory for some drug-related crimes and all crimes in which a gun is used.

This is the biggest primary day of the year and most incumbents either are unopposed or with only token

In Wisconsin, a resolution favoring a negotiated nuclear arms freeze with the Soviet Union is expected to be approved.

Donovan Cleared...Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan denounced a now completed investigation of him and then, as employees broke into cheers, jabbed his fist triumphantly into the air.

The emotional scene occurred Monday at the Labor Department after Special U.S. Prosecutor Leon Silverman issued a second report on his investigation, concluding there was "insufficient credible evidence" to prosecute Donovan.

Silverman reached the same conclusion in his initial report that was released last June. Both-times the inquiry focused on alleged ties between Donovan, a former New Jersey contractor, and organized crime.

In addition to deciding not to prosecute, Silverman said Monday he found no link between Donovan and a recent gangland-style murder and said that one of Donovan's accusers had admitted fabricating

All U.S. Whites A Bit Black

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) - The average U.S. white has 5 percent African genes, making all American Caucasians black under Louisiana law, an anthropologist testified in a court challenge of the racial classification rule.

The law — which regards a person as black if he has at least 1-32nd "Negro blood" - would apply to everyone because the average American white has 1-20th black genes, Munro Edmonson, a professor at Tulane University, said Monday.

The anthropologist's testimony came during the first day of a state court hearing on a suit by a group of light-skinned Louisiana family members whose birth certificates list them as black. Attorneys for the family hope to prove the law is unconstitutional and change the birth certificates.

Retail Sales Dip In August

Consumers Ignore Tax Cut, Spend Less

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Consumers bought lose again iii 33 percent plummet in auto sales. But even without the August, defying forecasts of a spending surge from President Reagan's tax cut and raising new questions about projections of recovery this year.

Most economists had expected the July tax cut to support increased spending, instead of the 0.9 percent drop in retail sales from previous month levels announced by the Commerce Department Monday.

The figures were not adjusted for price increases during the month, suggesting the drop in volume was even larger. Consumer spending for July increased 1.2 percent in revised

The Commerce Department said compared with year-ago levels, total sales of retail stores in August, after adjustment for routine seasonal buying trends, rose just 0.4 percent to $88.3

The month's spending performance was dragged down by a downturn in autos, the overall sales figures would have only stayed about even with July, with a 0.09 percent increase. Durable goods sales, including autos, machinery and heavy appliances, were down 3.5 percent.

The weak sales figures raised new doubts a recovery was

"I just heard about it and I'm still in shock," said economist Sandra Shaber, of Chase Econometrics, a leading analysis

"Apparently consumers were not nearly as optimistic as Wall Street and saved their extra income. That is just very, very bad news.

"Until spending picks up its hard to see what basis there is for any economic recovery," she said.

Another forecaster, economist Michael Evans of McMahan, Brafman, Morgan and Co., went further.

'We're in trouble. The economy is going to be way down in the third quarter. It's going to put that fourth quarter upturn in

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, in a statement issued by his office, attempted to remain upbeat about the figures, saying, "In the past sharp gains in disposable income were generally followed by rising consumer outlays but often with a lag of several months."

So, Baldrige concluded, "This year seems to be following the normal pattern with the July tax cut not yet evident in individual's spending."

Baldrige, who earlier had declared the recovery would be clearly evident in June, remained optimistic. "Consumer spending should begin to accelerate in the inunediate future as households adjust their spending to the July surge in disposable incomes.'

Light Co. president John Hudiburg makes his doesn't get a $281 million rate increase, as much as it wanted, so it's back before the months. PSC for more.

The commission on Monday began nine days of hearings on the utility's latest rate hike petition. It approved a $44.2 million interim increase for the company this summer. The second rate hike is essential if FP&L is unreasonably high interest rates, and difficulty in borrowing money necessary to provide electricity to a rapidly growing state, Hudiburg claimed. FP&L residential customers would pay an extra 12 percent, or $7.65 a month, if the entire increase request were approved by the commission. They already are paying part of this on a temporary basis because of the interim bike.

FP&L sought a record $476 million last year and wound up with only about half of what it wanted. The company has filed a new rate case to try to get the rest of the $476 million plus what it claims are new costs for billion investments.

Hudiburg, predictably, presented a bleak financial picture in his testimony before commissioners, despite the fact that the utility is earning substantial profits. PSC staff and Public Counsel Jack Shreve to avoid a reduction in its credit rating, have rejected many of FP&L's claims in testimony filed with the commission in recent days. They won't complete their work until after the current hearings, but both staff members and Shreve's office are likely to recommend that much of FP&L's $281 million request be turned down. FP&L's profit level is lower than that authorized by the PSC during approval of the rate increase last year, Hudiburg said. Its rate of return on common equity, one of the factors that determine dollar profit, will be only 1.7 percent this year without a rate hike, and that is much lower than for comparable multi-

It's Difficult Finding Sponsors For Refugees

MIAMI (UPI) - Volunteer relief agencies say the reason that all the Haitians who have been detained in refugee camps around the country haven't been released is difficulties in finding sponsors.

But spokesman also said Monday the last 457 Haitians still in camps in six states and Puerto Rico will be freed by the end of the month.

U.S. District Judge Eugene P. Spellman ordered nearly 1,800 detained refugees freed last June, and the process has been continuing since July.

Canaveral Cruise Boom

PORT CANAVERAL (UPI) - Design work has begun for a nine-year, $36 million expansion project at Port Canaveral to accommodate what businessmen hope will be a cruise ship boom in the next decade.

Two passenger terminals and additional piers, which will cost $2.4 million are expected to be completed by next summer. The dredging, scheduled to begin next year and be finished by 1985, would open up a 41-footdeep basin with space for 11 cruise ships.

But a study by a Winter Park consulting firm, concludes that despite the expansion, tourists may come to the port faster than officials can build accommodations for more cruise ships.

Scandinavian World Cruises is the only cruise line now operating out of Port Canaveral, But two other firms plan to join the market soon with three and fourday trips to the Bahamas.

Babysitter To Face Jury

PERRY (UPI) - State Attorney Jerry Blair of Live Oak will begin presenting evidence to a Taylor County grand jury Wednesday in connection with the death of 3-month-old Jennifer Daniels.

The infant died while being cared for by babysitter Christine Falling, who is being held without bond in Calhoun County jail in Blountstown, charged with two counts of first degree murder of infants she was caring

The 19-year-old babysitter has pleaded innocent to charges of killing Caissidy Marie "Muffin" Johnson, 2, and Travis DeWayne Coleman, 2 months. Her trial in Blountstown is scheduled for the week of Nov. 8.

Miss Falling also was babysitting two youngsters in Lakeland last year when they died. Their deaths have been attributed to myocarditis, an inflamation of the

No charges have been filed in those deaths but Polk County State Attorney Quillian Yancey said his investigation remains open.

Grandmother Charged, Freed

Midway Tot Critical After Shooting

By TENLYARBOROUGH Herald Staff Writer

A two-year-old Midway boy, shot in the head Saturday, remains in critical condition at Florida Hospital-Orlando today while his grandmother is free from the Seminole County jail following her arrest in connection with the shooting.

Geneva Nelson, 49, of Annibell Chambers Apt. 5, Water Street, in the Midway section east of Sanford, is charged with aggravated assault and battery, and discharging a firearm inpublic in connection with the shooting of Harmon Oliver, 2, of Annibell Chambers Apt. 7, Midway, at about 7 p.m., Saturday, sheriff's denuties said.

The shooting occurred during an argument between Ms. Nelson and her live-in boyfriend, James Allison, 67, according to sheriff's spokesman John Spolski.

Spolski said the couple had been arguing at their home when the woman went to her daughter's apartment to get a gun. She met Allison in the street and when she fired the weapon, a bullet fragment struck her grandson in the head, Spolski said. Allison was not injured in the incident, deputies said

Witnesses disarmed the woman and flagged down a passing motorist who transported the injured child, son of Regina Oliver, 22, to the Central Florida Regional Hospital, Spolski said. Young Oliver was later taken to Florida Hospital-Orlando for treatment, he added.

SANFORD HOME ROBBED

About $2,125 worth of property was stolen from a Sanford man's home between 12:30 a.m. and 4:21 p.m. Sept. 4. James A. Mason, 31, of 3525 S. Sipes Ave., told deputies the culprits broke into his home through a living room window and stole eight rifles and shotguns, a citizens band radio and a diamond ring.

BULGE IN SOCK BRINGS ARREST

Anthony Collier, of 218 North St., Altamonte Springs, was arrested by Seminole County sheriff's deputies after they spotted a large bulge in his sock during a routine traffic check. Police reports said Collier was stopped along North Street and two bags of a "green leafy substance" believed to be marijuana were found in his sock.

Tax Deadline

Wednesday

Nearly one million Floridians may be facing an important tax filing deadline Wednesday, according to Anthony V. Langone, acting IRS district director for Florida.

For many Florida taxpayers, this is the due date for the third quarterly installment of their estimated tax payment for 1982. Unfortunately, many of these taxpayers may miss this deadline and this can be a very expensive oversight," Langone said.

Earlier this year, the penalty for tax underpayment was increased to 20 percent per year of the amount due. "Unlike interest payments made to IRS, this penalty is not deductible," Langone

Estimated tax payments are required by individuals who have income that is not subject to withholding, or income from which not enough tax is being withheld. Persons who have income from self-employment, alimony, pensions, annuitles, interest, dividends, rent and capital gains are frequently liable for estimated tax payments.

"Also, wage earners who do not have at least 80 percent of their taxes pre-paid through withholding may be required to make estimated tax payments," Langone sald.

In general, an estimated tax declaration is required if a person's estimated tax is $200 or more and anticipated 1982 gross income includes more than $500 in income not subject to withholding.

Some elderly taxpayers who are liable for estimated tax payments have another option available, according to Langone. They may elect to file and IRS Form W-4P, "Annuitant's Request for Federal Income Tax Withholding," with the issuer of the pension.

"Nearly one out of every four Floridians may need to estimated tax declarations, and it is extremely important they understand their requirements," Langone stressed. To help laxpayers, the IRS offers a free Publication 505, "Tax Withholding and Estimated Tax," and this may be obtained by calling the IRS tollfree tax forms number 1-800-241-3860.

Sanctions And Unity With Allies

Those who support President Reagan's sanctions against the Soviet natural gas pipeline have principle on their side.

Permitting the use of American technology for a pipeline that will boost the Soviet economy and, indirectly, subsidize Moscow's arms building makes no sense. To do so at a time when Soviet forces remain in Afghanistan and the Kremlin continues to push for repression in Poland would be morally reprehensible as well.

But sanctions advocates, including the president himself, must also acknowledge that enforcing these restrictions has angered this country's European allies and helped to drive a new wedge into the Atlantic alliance.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, no friend of appeasement, is nonetheless defying the sanctions. So is the government of French President Francois Mitterrand, Indeed, Britain, France, West Germany, and Italy are now collaborating on ways to persuade the Reagan administration to reverse the ban on sales of natural gas pipeline equipment to the Soviet Union.

Thatcher echoes the views of most of European NATO when she argues that contracts made with the Soviets before Mr. Reagan imposed his sanctions last June must be honored. Nor is she alone in suggesting that Washington would have had more support from its allies if only they had been told from the start that the Reagan administration was serious about punishing any European companies that sold American pipeline technology to the Soviets.

There is something to be said for each of these arguments, even if neither adds up to an acceptable rationale for aiding the construction of a pipeline that can only erode Western security.

Yes, the sanctity of contracts in international trade should be upheld, barring unique circumstances. And, yes, the Reagan administration should have been telling the European allies a following week recorded its heaviest volume year ago that the United States would oppose unequivocally any Western collaboration in the pipeline project.

More to the point, the administration should have been saying specifically that it would not permit the sale of any U.S. technology, including that manufactured by European companies under license, for the pipeline or its construction.

Even so, the Europeans are hardly blameless. President Reagan lobbied hard at the Versailles economic summit last June for a unified Western stand on limiting the flow of credit and technology. to the Soviet bloe: And the summit's final communique, formally endorsed by each of the Western allies plus Japan, pledged a tightening of credit and technology transfers to the Soviets.

But President Reagan had barely arrived back in Washington before the French foreign minister was proclaiming that the language of the communique was meaningless and that France, for one, would continue to extend as much credit as it wanted to the Soviets.

Resolving the differences between the United States and its allies on the pipeline sanctions will now be difficult, if not impossible. Mr. Reagan is committed to sanctions, and their enforcement, in one form or another. The Europeans remain more or less defiant.

Both sides are, however, willing to talk. And talk. And talk they should. Even diluted sanctions might be effective if they are supported by all of the industrial democracies.

As for the future, the imbroglio over pipeline sanctions underscores the need for the clearest possible signals from Washington before disagreements within the alliance deteriorate into disruption. When that happens, only the Sovets

BERRY'S WORLD

ROUND Sanford's Optimist Club begins its eighth year of honoring high school athletes Wednesday when it fetes two players from Seminole High School and two players from Lake Mary High.

"We're going to honor an offensive player and a defensive player this year," said club spokesman Dale Coppock - The coaches reallyhad a tough time deciding on just one player last year, so we decided to honor (wo.'

The Optimists meet at noon at Lakefront

Coppock is an energetic fellow who puts a lot of time into Seminole and Lake Mary sporting events along with president John Blair and members Bob Howe, Ernie Butler, Jeff Monson, Tom Whigham, Dave Costner and Clay Simmons. Whigham is set to succeed Blair as president at the Sept. 30 installation meeting. University of Central Florida athletic director Bill Peterson will be the guest speaker.

After Lake Mary's disappointing 23-0 setback Friday, the Rams and coach Roger Beathard will need a dose of optimism. Defensively, Don Meyer had a bangup night with II tackles. Jeff Hopkins and Greg Shatto had eight each.

Offensively, there wasn't much to look at. Shatto was the leading ground gainer with five yards in five carries. That's hardly an award winning performance, though. Beathard can probably find someone in the line who did some

For Seminole, Rendell Manley, Mike Futrell and Doug Sanders were standouts offensively. Tim Lawrence made the play of the game down, stripped the runner of the ball and recovered the fumble.

Manley, a junior, raced for 123 yards in 12 carries. One burst went 65 yards for a TD. Futrell, also a junior, hit 13 of 27 passes for 127 yards. Sanders, a senior guard, paved the way on the offensive line.

The Noles played Titusville Astronaut, almost a card-carrying member of the State 3A Playoffs, very tough before falling, 16-10.

Friday's Five Star Conference battle between Seminole and Lake Howell should be a good one. Howell, which turned back Bishop Moore, 20-9, is a big, strong offensive club that will match up well against the Tribe's speed.

Lake Mary, meanwhile, travels to Bartow in defensively when he cut off a potential touchsearch of its first win.

Market And The Economy

An interesting feature of the recent thunder in the stock market is the hearty dose of profits it has administered to Wall Street brokerage houses. For the benefit of hermits among us, the Dow Jones Industrial Average soared 124 points in August, setting daily records for volume and gains.

As a result, Peter Cohen, vice chairman of Shearson-American Express was quoted as saying that "We're going to have extraordinary profits in the third quarter."

Brokerage houses usually make big money when New York Stock Exchange volume exceeds 50 million shares in a trading day. In the final ten days of August, volume averaged 92 million shares per day.

Countless columns like this one have already been ground out speculating on the reason for the sudden frantic up and has, of course, that the Federal Reserve has finally relaxed its grip on the nation's money supply, reducing the discount rate - the rate it charges banks - four times in less than two months. The lower rate simply means that it costs banks less to borrow, enabling them to "create" more money by lending to business at commensurately lower rates. The Fed's published money supply target is 2½ to 5½ percent growth. Currently, money growth exceeds that range. As a result, rates have declined, and lending, momentarily, is easier. The prime rate, which stood at 1612 percent in late June, is now 1312 percent.

The reduction in the discount rate August 13, therefore, set off a tremor that on Tuesday August 17 became a euphoric roar. The Dow gained more than 33 points that day, The index rose 81.24 points that week, and the

All this by itself is happy news. Unfortunately, some liberal pundits couldn't resist attributing the old-fashioned hustle to make a buck on stocks and bonds to President Reagan's $98.3 billion, three-year tax hike, approved by Congress August 19. This kind of thinking revolves around the odd notion that investors enjoy higher taxes, and thus buy stocks of companies that next year will be

The White House itself was reluctant to see any connection between the tax bill and the stock boom - correctly so, for there is none. The politicos know that the bulls could turn bearish overnight; as well they might, given the prospects for the economy.

The Commerce Department's composite index of leading economic indicators for July rose 1.3 percent, the fourth consecutive increase. However, other economic numbers remain sickly. In the final week of August, the Business Week index showed that auto production plunged 23 percent, steelmaking declined 4 percent, and electric power output fell 6 percent. The Labor Department reported that seasonally-adjusted figures for initial unemployment claims for the week ending August 21 increased to 621,000 from 608,000, the second week over 600,000 and the highest since May, The Congressional Budget Office has now projected federal deficits of $155 billion for 1983, and $152 billion for 1984 and 1985, about $40 billion above the Reagan administration's forecasts. Government borrowing to cover such a torrent of red ink will push interest rates skyward again.

JEFFREY HART

An Eye-Opening Open

Langrily paid a scalper 40 bucks for a ticket to the U.S. Open Tennis Championships in New York's Flushing Meadow, and at the endof the day felt like thanking him. I had just seen one of the greatest tennis matches of my life ... and this was even before the finals.

The U.S. Open, in the Louis Armstrong Tennis Complex, is a profane enough event compared with its predecessor at Forest Hills, and it represents a new stage in the evolution of tennis.

I had grown up on the grass courts at Forest Hills, and had loved the place and its annual National Championships. The ghosts of tennis greatness still haunt the place: Don Budge, Jack Kramer, Pancho Gonzales, John Newcombe, Rod Laver, Pancho Segura, Tony Trabert. Today the grass courts are still there, and in the evening you can sit on the porch and watch the setting sun make rainbows in the sprinklers as they water the

The Stadium at Forest Hills itself represented a new stage in the evolution of the game. It was built to accommodate the large crowds that wanted to watch Big Bill Tilden during the 1920s. Before Tilden, the national tennis championships had been held in modest places like the Germantown (Pa.) Cricket Club before small crowds in wooden stands.

But Tilden, perhaps the greatest player of all time, packed them in at the new concrete Stadium in Forest Hills, much as Babe Ruth was doing at the new Yankee Stadium in the Bronx.

But, once again, something entirely new is happening in tennis and its representation is the National Tennis Center in Flushing Meadow.

Suitably enough, Flushing Meadow was not only the site of two World's Fairs, most importantly the "World of Tomorrow" Fair of 1939-40, but of F. Scott Fitzgerald's Valley of Ashes in "The Great Gatsby." At the end of "Gatsby," the moon of imagination and creativity rises over the dusty land-fill, suggesting the agonizing contrasts of that great American novel, and the potentialities of the dismal site.

Today, you get off the elevated railroad and you walk down the old World's Fair boardwalk to the new tennis stadium and to one of the four biggest tennis tournaments in the world: Paris, Wimbledon, the Open, and the Australian Championships.

The Open may now be the most important. Money, big money, has transformed the game of tennis, and it is attracting great athletes like bees to honey. Martina Navratilova, with the season still incomplete and despite being upset in the quarterfinals, has already earned over a million dollars. People like Bjorn Borg, John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors are milti-million dollar conglomerates.

The atmosphere for the customers at the Louis Armstrong stadium partakes of the boom-town ambience. Not only did I pay $40 for my scalper's ticket, but I paid $8.95 for a hamburger, though it's called something else, and $4.00 for a gin and tonic.

The big money is transforming the game. You have read often enough about Connors, McEnroe, Lendl, Gerulaitis — rich men in the neighborhood of age 30 who have dominated tennis for the last several years. But there are about 15 relatively obscure players in their early 20s, some of them just out of college, who are poised to take the game over and thrust the older generation aside in an astonishing blaze of talent.

One of them, for example, is young Tim Mayotte, just out of Stanford, who came very close to dumping Ivan Lendl, the gloomy talented Czech, in the second round. Mayotte is a tall and powerful player with movie-star good looks. Before a packed grandstand, he put on one of the greatest serve-and-volley exhibitions I have ever seen. Ivan Lendl is Borg plus a good serve. Mayotte had him on the ropes, down two sets to one, and into a tie-breaker for the fourth.

Lendl prefers to hit from the base line, but he was running to the net to keep Mayotte from getting there first. In desperation, Lendl was standing back by the fence to receive Mayotte's serve.

Lendl barely survived the fourth set tiebreaker and finally prevailed in a fifth set, but in the unseeded and unheralded Mayotte, out of Springfield, Mass., and Stanford University, the future is there for you to see though, not necessarily in Mayotte per-

There is more money in tennis today than in any sport played without boxing gloves, and the quality at Flushing Meadow tells the

WILLIAM A. RUSHER

Who Are The Real Culprits?

NEW YORK (NEA) - It would be nice it those draft-age males who haven't registered yet got the message of the government's recent prosecutions of resisters and decided to obey the law, but it's probably too much to hope that all of them will. Luckily, compliance in general has been reasonably high, so we know one thing we badly needed to know: America's young men aren't likely, as a general proposition, to bug out on their country in a crisis.

There remains, however, a hard core of resisters who missed the late 1960s and early 1970s and are trying to fan that old blaze back to life here in the 1980s. It is important to nip their little project in the bud — by prison sentences, if necessary.

Listening to Benjamin Sasway, the second resister convicted, on television the other night, it became painfully clear what the controversy is all about. Sasway insists on reserving to himself the right to decide which U.S. policies he will support and (as a corollary to that right) which U.S. military ventures he will participate in. He was plainly doubtful that he would favor any of the currently imaginable ones, and accordingly he declined to register his name for ready reference if Congress ever decides to revive the draft.

Now, everybody in this country is entitled to his or her opinion of its policies, but it is quite another thing to say that once Congress has defined these by law, we can each pick and choose which of them we will consent to support with our taxes (or our military service, if that is what is required). No nation could possibly allow its citizens that sort of latitude; it would be a prescription for pure

Does young Sasway realize this? I got the impression that, if he does, he doesn't much care. He seemed to consider himself only very loosely related to this country anyway rather like a "transient" passenger in the lounge of an international airport. He is, in fact, a perfect example of the sort of intellectual that Toynbee predicted would join the internal proletariat of Western civilization in trying to overthro it - he is "in the society but not of it."

How did he get that way? (For of course a teen-ager is very largely, for better or worse, somebody else's handiwork; he hasn't rubbed up against life long or hard enough yet to develop his own dents and dimples.) There was an older man being interviewed on TV. too, whom I took to be Sasway's father. This gent was terribly broken up over the very idea that all 12 of the jurors could bring themselves to regard Benjamin as "a criminal."

Though the man probably regards himself as the precise reverse of class-conscious, his comment reeked of class superiority: "Criminals," you see are people who break the law for venal motives. High-minded types like Benjamin, who break it for reasons of principle, aren't really "criminals" at all. On the contrary, they deserve respect as people willing to suffer for their convictions. (Though it is unclear just what they are prepared to suffer, aside from TV interviews; apparently it doesn't include jail.)

Marcos Sends Team To Prey On Critics

WASHINGTON - Three years ago, I broke

"Your manuscript is trashy, tawdry, sleazy and idiotic - in short, it's DYNAMITE!"

the chilling story that foreign dictators are sending their secret police to the United States to intimidate and silence critics. Some have been silenced permanently. U.S. authorities not only are aware of these terrorist activities but, for diplomatic reasons, have failed to stop the tyrants from extending their repression to some of America's ethnic communities.

One of the worst offenders is the Philippines' congenial dictator, Ferdinand Marcos. who will be wined and dined at the White House later this week. The cause of humanity would be better served if President Reagan, instead of raising his glass to toast Marcos, would raise some questions instead.

The ugly questions can be found in secret intelligence reports which are available to the president. One top-secret report charges that for the past decade the Filipino leader has sent "action teams" to the United States "for the purpose of infiltrating, monitoring and possibly counteracting the threat of anti-Marcos groups." The report warns of "the possibility of violence."

In fact, violence has already struck the Filipino immigrants who work in Alaska's canneries. Most of them belong to Local 37 of the Alaska Cannery Workers Union. Their leaders have been staunchly proMarcos, with close ties to the Filipino consulate in Seattle.

But two anti-Marcos reformers, Gene Viernes and Silme Domingo, challenged the leadership and won top positions in their union in late 1980. The following April, Viernes visited the Philippines for the first time in his life and spoke out against Marcos.

Then, late in the afternoon of June 1, 1981, the two 29-year-old reformers were at work in the local's Seattle office when two gunmen came looking for them. Viernes died instantly in the volley of bullets.

Amazingly, Domingo, with four .45-caliber slugs in his body, chased the two assailants into the street, pointed them out to a bystander and managed to give their names to a medic before passing out. He died the next day.

The two assassins were later convicted. The prosecution argued that the two hitmen were members of a gang involved in high-stakes gambling in Alaska, whose activities were threatened by the union reformers. The gang leader, Tony Dictado, was convicted of ordering the murders.

But a "committee for justice," led by Seattle attorney Mike Withey, was not satisfied with the gambling motive. It suspected that the double murder may have been ordered by authorities in Manila, for these reasons:

- The convicted gangleader took the witness stand. He swore he did not order the murders, which, he insisted had nothing to do with gambling. He knew the truth but could not reveal it, he testified, "because my children would be killed in the Philippines."

- The head of Local 37, Tony Baruso, owned the murder weapon and was honored by the Philippine government five months after the killings. He clammed up at the trials under the protection of the Fifth Amendment. He pleaded the Fifth 109 times during the gunmen's trial, another 31 times during gangleader Dictado's trial. During the second trial, the defense attorney accused him of ordering the murders.

- The slain reformers were in contact with dissidents in the Philippines, including two labor leaders who were arrested last month by Marcos and accused of subversion. Inspired by their contacts with their colleagues in the Philippines, Viernes and Domingo spearheaded a resolution at a Hawaii convention of longshoremen which authorized the sending of an investigative team to Manila.

- The FBI and U.S. naval intelligence have a close working relationship with Filipino intelligence officers. These agencies have full knowledge of Marcoc' intimidation tactics in this country. Yet they have shown no apparent interest in the murder case.

My associate Dale Van Atta questioned the Philippines Embassy about the murders. A spokesman said President Marcos had ordered an investigation, which was conducted by the labor attache in the San Francisco consulate.

The Philippines government's view is that the murders were strictly a local matter "involving union rivalries." Suggestions of any connection to the Marcos regime were drummed up by "critics on the West Coast just to embarrass the Philippines government," the spokesman said. "We are amazed that the Philippines government should be dragged into this."

Meanwhile, despite the three convictions, the Viernes-Domingo murder case is still

Corner Cooks Mobilite, 15-0

The Sanford Mens Softball League opened its season Monday night at Pinehurst Field with Cook's Corner, Sessions and Cardinal all coming away with victories.

Cook's Corner banged out 16 hits and played errorless ball in a 15-0 rout of

Men's Softball

Mobilite, David Braswell ripped four hits and scored four times while the Raines brothers, Ned, Sam and Levi, combined for five hits and five runs.

After taking a 1-0 lead in the first. Cook's Corner broke on top for five runs in the second and added another five run output in the seventh.

While Cook's amassed a total of 16 hits, Mobilite managed only three and never got a baserunner passed first base.

In other action, Wayne Debruder's tworun single in the first inning proved to be the winning hit as Sessions outlasted Express, 5-1.

Russell Holloman and Brian Hanrahan led off the first for Sessions by ripping consecutive singles and, one out later, Robbie Hanrahan walked to load the bases for Debruder who unloaded his clutch single to knock in Holloman and B. Hanrahan.

Express cut the lead to 2-1 in the third when Granville Eubanks singled and came around to score on James McClure's two-out triple.

Sessions came up with five straight hits in the sixth and came away with two runs to take a 4-1 lead. Kenny Myers singled and eventually scored on Dave Kent's single. Kent came around to score on an error.

Sessions had 10 hits for the night while Express managed just three. B. Hanrahan, Debruder and Steve Schribner each had a pair of hits for Sessions.

A three-run first inning, aided by two key errors, was all Cardinal needed to get by The Barn, 5-0.

Kip Grant, John Westbrook and Bryce Baka rapped consecutive singles and all scored in the first inning. Cardinal added a run in the third when Randy Brown clubbed a solo home run.

Lyman Netters Return 7 Players

By SAM COOK Herald Sports Editor

The shift in power appears to be headed from the north end of the county to the south end this year as Five Star Conference volleyball action opens tonight at Lyman High School.

Coach Karren Newman's netters, bolstered by seven returning lettermen, are considered the favorite to dominate county and Five Star competition.

"Lyman will be the team to beat," pronounced new Seminole coach Beth Corso who is taking over for Donalyn Knight who switched to swimming this

The Lady Greyhounds will get a chance to flex their muscles tonight at 6 when they host Lake Brantley and Seminole in a tri-match.

Last year, Newman's juniordominated squad lost to powerful Seminole in the district finals. The Tribe, however, lost all six starters from last year including the incomparable Tony Hardy along with Jackie Link, Citaly Pendarvis and Dee Hogan.

"We'd like Tuesday to be a replay of last year except with a different outcome," said Newman, whose netters posted a good 12-7 record last year.

Returning are Amy Babcock (hitter), Lynn Lugering (setter-hitter), Carol Rogers (setter-hitter), Pam Stambaugh (hitter), Rhonda Tempesta (defense), Wynne Wycoff (hitter) and Sybee Helms (defense). Helms isn't eligible yet because of some tardy paper work.

Last year's junior varsity most valuable player, Jamie McNamee, is a strong hitter, according to Newman. Amy Cordek and Debbie Gilvin add

"We have a quick aggressive defense and a much more balanced hitting attack than last year," points out Newman. "Wealso have stronger hitting than last

Moving to Lake Howell, coach Jo Luciano lost all-conference performer Jane Yearick from last year's squad. She returns 5-8 Christy Scott, Cathy Saunders, Beth Asunders, Eileen Thiebauth, Kathy Barma and Dawn Crawford, a three-year veteran.

In addition Chiquita Miller, a transfer from Georgia, will become eligible soon. "Chiquita is a basketball player and she's never played volleybalt, but her height should help," said Luciano about the 5-10 Miller.

TRIBE TALK - Seminole last a tough 15-9, 5-15, 15-13 decision to Oviedo Monday night in a nonconference match at Oviedo.

The Lions coasted in the first game while Seminole did the same in the second. In the rubber match, Arlene Jones served eight straight points to give the Tribe a 13-10 edge, but Oviedo stormed back to win the game.

"We just couldn't get off of 13," sighed coach Beth Cornso. "I guess it was unlucky for us."

Oviedo snapped the 13-13 tie when Fayetta Robinson served four in a row to pull the Lions ahead, 14-13. Kim Boston then hit the winner after Seminole failed to score on its serve.

"That's the first time we've ever beaten Seminole," said coach Anita Carlson, "We've come close a few times. Now we finally did it."

Southern Air:

For Quality And Service

Thank you, Mr. Singer. We here at Southern Air of Sanford appreciate your letter.

Friends: Southern Air of Sanford strives for the standards described in Mr. Singer's letter. In order to reach these high standards we hire only the best people and sell quality equipment,

It is only common sense that our price is not always the lowest. We see ads advertising prices below our costs. They sound good, but remember, it is always true "You get what you pay for."

Southern Air of Sanford has been in business since 1961. Some of our competitors have been in business less than one year.

The next time you need your heating or cooling system repaired or replaced and are empted to shop for the lowest price, we urge you to stop and think what really is the best deal for you. We also service commercial accounts, air conditioning, as well as refrigeration.

Remember that a call to a company in Orlando means paying a trip charge for the drive to Sanford. Also, a call to Southern Air of Sanford will mean a timely, efficient and courteous response to your problem.

For his part, Phil, 14-4, said, "he's pitching well. They're out of the race and it doesn't matter to me."

He said he telephoned his brother before the game and Joe told him, "I'm coming to get you."

"You'd better," Phil replied. "That's the only way I know you.

"And he did."

Blue, Royals Maul Mariners, 8-0 fly scored Cal Ripken with the go-ahead

United Press International Fortunately for Vida Blue, he doesn't have to pitch against the Kansas City Royals, who really have been punishing the baseballs recently

The Royals collected 17 hits Monday night - giving them 50 in their last three games - to defeat the Seattle Mariners, 8-0, but it was Blue's masterful pitching that took over center stage.

He did not allow a hit for 5 2-3 innings and settled for his third career one-hitter in winning his fourth game in a row. Bobby Brown's line drive single to right with two out in the sixth was the only hit Blue, now 13-9, allowed.

"This is September," said Blue, who was acquired from San Francisco last spring for four players. "This is a good time to be pitching well. It's not how you start, it's how you finish."

"If Vida continues to pitch that way," added Seattle Manager Rene Lachemann, "he's going to be a big, big Indians 3-4, Red Sox 1-3 factor for the Royals this month. We've haven't gotten as much as a sniff off

Marti Anne Severs Bride Of Richard Primeaux II

Marti Anne Severs and Richard Mark Primeaux II were married Aug. 14, at 6/30 p.m., at Callaway Gardens Chapel, Pine Mountain, Ga. The Rev. John Bacher performed the candlelight ceremony

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William E. Severs, 220 Nob Hill Circle, Longwood. The bridgeroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Primeaux, Ball, La.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a formal organza over taffeta gown fashioned with capsleeves and a modified Queen Anne neckline. A ruffled flounce bordered the skirt that extended into a flowing chapel train. A chantilly lace cap embellished with seed pearls secured her fingertip veil of illusion trimmed in Chantilly lace. She carried a keepsake cascade of white silk rosebuds, violets, Queen Anne's lace, ivy and fern.

Marilyn Hulett attended her sister as matron of honor. She wore a lavender voile gown and carried white silk violets with Queen Anne's Jace and Magnolia Buds.

Bridesmaids were Linda Primeaux, sister of the bridegroom, and Debra Loveridge, friend of the bride, Longwood. Their gowns and flowers were identical to the were Charles Phillips and Richard Phillips, uncles of the bride. Groomsmen were Kenneth Sellers and Victor Hulett. Meagan Nielsen, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon

Junior Miss is among the country's most respected youth activities. It seeks to honor and reward girls all parents would be proud to call their own. Junior Miss is not a beauty contest in the usual sense of word; it is not a popularity contest, or a talent show. Junior Misses are the representative girls, all around individuals with intelligence, character, poise, concern and hope for the future.

The local program will be held at Lake Mary High School on Oct. 2, at 8 p.m. This program is sponsored by the Altamonte South Seminole Jayceettes.

Westmoreland Sues CBS News

William Westmoreland, onetime U.S. commander in Vietman, filed a $120 million libel suit Monday against CBS Inc. over a TV documentary he said falsely depicted him as part of a conspiracy to falsify enemy troop

The 68-year-old, white-haired general who for more than four years supervised the U.S. effort in Vietnam, told reporters he decided upon suing "with the very greatest reluctance and conscious of the long and bitter legal battle I am about to engage in."

Westmoreland said he would donate any awards from the suit to charity.

Despite nine months of protests to CBS over what he termed a "vicious, false and contemptible" documentary, he said, the network had refused to apologize or retract the conclusions of the program and legal action was his final recourse.

Even if the legal proceedings took five years or more, he said, he would stick with it.

Speaking in measured tones but with emotion, Westmoreland said, "I am an old soldier who loves his country and have had enough of war. It was my fate to serve for over four years as senior American commander in the most unpopular war this country ever fought. I have been reviled, burned in effigy, spat upon."

Although his wife and family had urged him not "to go to battle once again" against the "enormous wealth and power that makes CBS so formidable," Westmoreland said he had decided to "clear my name, my honor and the honor of the military,"

Westmoreland objected was titled "The 1977 and shown at prime time, 9:30 p.m. Jan. 23 over the CBS TV network

Advertisements, which will be part of the evidence, said the documentary "reveals the shocking decisions made at the highest level of military intelligence to suppress and alter critical information on the number and placement of enemy troops in Vietnam. A deliberate plot to fool the American public, the Congress and perhaps even the White House."

The advertisements also carried a drawing of men in uniform, seated around a conference table, with the word, "conspiracy."

damages and $40 million in personal damages.

here is not money, not vengeance," Westmoreland said. "If I am successful in this case, as I believe I will be, I will not retain any monetary award for my personal use, but instead will donate it to charity."

Specifically named in the suit are Van Gordon Sauter, president of CBS News; Michael (Mike) Wallace, "an investigative reporter" who served as narrator and interviewer for the documentary; George Crile, program producer; and Samuel A. Adams, "a paid consultant to CBS."

Westmoreland will be represented by the Capital Legal Foundation, a non-profit, tax-The 90-minute documentary to which exempt public interest law firm organized in

YOUR BIRTHDAY September 15, 1982

This coming year your most successful ventures are apt to be those in which partners are involved. It's possible you may have as many as three enterprises going on at one

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're likely to get what you go after today, but if your motives are selfish you could leave ill feelings in your wake. Let your finer qualities prevail. Predictions of what's in store for you in the seasons where to look for your luck and opportunities are in your portant today concerning your major objectives. Don't let your impulsiveness prompt you to move before you are ready.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try not to make too many changes today in projects suggestions others offer.

which are running smoothly Instead of bettering your position, you might slip backward.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your image could suffer today if you make promises, then try to alter the terms. Stand on your word once you make an agreement.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be sure to read carefully all the instructions if you are working with unfamiliar equipment or materials today. Haste invites mistakes.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) following your birthday and Be extremely tactful in oneto-one relationships today. If you get off on the wrong foot, you may find it too difficult to backtrack.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll perform well today, provided you're not subjected to too much supervision. When ideas are imposed upon you, there's a good chance you'll rebel.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's important to first set the proper example today if you hope to influence others. Be more demonstrative than verbal.

Heavy Sweating Has Many Causes

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have a problem which is very embarrassing. I'm a 16-yearold boy and I perspire constantly, regardless of the temperature. It doesn't matter if I am calm or neryous. I've used numerous different deodorants trying to eliminate this problem.

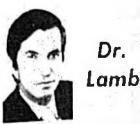

I work in a men's clothing store part-time and have to dress nicely. What do I do? 1 always perspire and have wet underarms. I get out of the shower, dress and usually am perspiring before I'm even finished dressing.

Is there some medical reason for this excessive perspiration? What do you suggest?

DEAR READER - To sweat is human but you can have too much of a good thing. Everyone has invisible sweating that works to cool your body by evaporative cooling. Sweating is an exaggeration of that mechanism and, of course, represents a much greater effort to cool the body, as occurs when heat builds up from exercise.

Medical problems can cause excessive perspiration. The sweating women have with the change of life is a good example. And a person with an overactive thyroid may sweat a great deal. The body metabolism is stepped up and the excess heat must be removed, so sweating is increased to accomplish that. During attacks of low blood glucose (hypoglycemia) a person may sweat profusely. So it would be a good idea to have your doctor look you over. If there is no medical reason and antiperspirants don't work for you, your doctor might be willing to give you some medicines that block the vagus nerve which helps slow sweating in some people. Probanthine is an example. You might use it in temporary situations. Inderal which neutralizes the adrenaline effects that induce sweating migh also help. Finally, in extreme cases cutting the nerves to the offending sweat glands, as needed.

under the arm, is sometimes done. And even a section of skin under the arms may be removed.

As explained in The Health Letter 18-2, Sweating, Antiperspirants and Deodorants, which I am sending you, antiperspirants have limited usefulness but help in some mild cases.

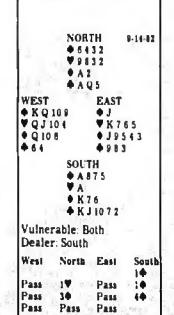

DEAR DR. LAMB - I need some information about Paget's disease. My husband had a routine medical check up and a blood test showed an elevated alkaline phosphatase. A body scan and X-ray revealed Paget's disease at the knee.

The doctor said not to worry about this and if he had trouble he'd see what needed to be done. My husband has had no trouble with the knee. but is wondering what could happen.

DEAR READER - Paget's disease of the bone involves a rapid destruction and repair of bone tissue. The characteristic lesions resulting from the activity can be seen on Xrays. And it will cause an elevated alkaline phosphatase, an enzyme involved in bone destruction and rebuilding.

The disease is often asymptomatic and may never cause a problem. Most doctors do not try any form of treatment as long as the patient has no symptoms. If symptoms occur they are usually related to weakening of the bone such as a fracture. In that case some patients are successfully treated with calcitonins (hormone). This will often relieve pain in the course of treatment. Diphosphonates are a new treatment also and help in some cases if any treatment is

WIN AT BRIDGE

Opening lead: ♥Q

By Oswald Jacoby

and Alan Soutag There is a classic way to play the trump combination in today's hand. You lead a low trump. When next in you play the ace of trumps to leave one high trump outstanding if the suit breaks 3-2 and you lose only two trump tricks

Classic methods are fine, but today's hand will col-lapse if you try this method. As declarer you win the heart lead with your singleton ace. You note that you have nine easy tricks at notrump, but no play for 10. You also note that you can get 10 tricks in spades and that there is no good reason to try for 11.

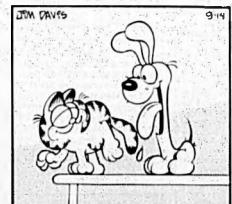

Hence, at trick two you lead your ace of spades and start on clubs. West gets to trump the third club and can do anything he wants to, but you are going to be able to get your 10 tricks.

He can play two rounds of trumps, force you with a heart or sing the Star Spangled Banner, but he won't get anything but his three trumps. Suppose you had tried for five. You lead a low spade. A heart comes back. You ruff. take your ace of spades and go after the clubs. West ruffs and plays his last trump to pull your last one. The defense has three tricks in and will also get one or two heart tricks.
