TODAY

The First Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church will sponsor its 7th Annual Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Parade and Rally in The Park on Monday. The parade will begin at 10 a.m. from the Crooms Academy, located at 2200 W. 13th Street, and end with a celebration in Fort Mellon Park. This year's grand marshal will be Sanford's own, Barbara Kirby. Also, this year several activities have been planned in the park such as guest speakers, music, vendors, food, fun and much more.

Any person or business wanting to participate in this year's celebration should call Rev. Dr. H.D. Rucker or Sheryl Jones at (407)322-5489 for an application and more information. (There is no entry fee for the parade.)

Greek company coming

SANFORD — A long-term lease has been arranged for a 35,000 square foot manufacturing plant, at the Sanford Airport Industrial Park. The deal was negotiated by Stirling International Realty of Heathrow.

Stirling co-owner Roger Soderstrom said the tenant, Knitted Net Fabrics, Inc., is headquartered in Athens, Greece. The company specializes in the manufacturing of knitted materials for use in the agriculture industry. Soderstrom said the company will employ an estimated 25 people and expects to be fully operational by March.

The building, owned by Seminole County businessman Kevin Spolaki, is located at 2772 Depot Street. The value of the lease was not disclosed.

CALNO officials

SANFORD — Changes in positions were voted on Wednesday evening at the regular meeting of the Council of Local Governments in Seminole County (CALNO). The meeting was held at Sanford City Hall.

Winter Springs City Commissioner Cindy Gennell was named as new chairman for CALNO, with Lake Mary City Commissioner Gary Brender named as vice chairman. Larry Strickler was welcomed to the CALNO organization. He replaces Barbara Kuhn as the representative from the Seminole County School Board.

Sanford City Commissioner Whitey Eckstein is Sanford's representative.

CALNO meets on a monthly basis, rotating among various government offices represented by its membership.

ECFRPC meeting

The East Central Florida Regional Planning Council (ECFRPC) will meet this Wednesday beginning at 10 a.m. in the council offices, 1011 Wymore Road in Winter Park. Among items on the agenda are recognitions of outgoing council members Paul Foster from Ocoee, and Sandy Crawford from Brevard County. Foster will be replaced by Ocoee Mayor S. Scott Vandergrift. Crawford will be replaced by Brevard County Commissioner Randy O'Brien.

Other items include the fee system for hazardous materials program and reports on the Florida High Speed Transportation System and Jaymont Substantial Deviation Development Order.

Rival phone systems: School board must decide

By VICKI DeSOMMER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County school board will decide in two weeks what they will do regarding the purchase of a new telephone communications system for their Educational Support Center. In the meantime, rival companies are still jockeying for position.

While the telephone system that served the Seminole County public schools for years at the old facility was fine for current needs, the exponential growth in the district and rapidly changing needs require a new system capable of expansion.

In the summer of 1995, the school district put out a request for proposal (RFP) for telecommunications companies to design a system that could serve the district's needs now and 10 years into the future.

An independent consultant rated each proposal on a 1,000-point scale divided into seven categories, including administration, maintenance support, equipment, training and cost.

In the final analysis, the race came down to two companies: NEC and Siemens-Rolm. The difference in the ratings between the two on the 1,000 point scale was less than one point.

Broken down into categories, the Siemens plan scored higher in four of the categories while NEC scored best only in the category of cost.

Alexander Sikorsky is credited with designing and building the first practical helicopter in 1939. The versatile, airborne contraption has come a long way since then, right into our very lives in Central Florida.

Easily distinguishable by a different sound than that produced by jet or rotary engine aircraft, helicopter flights over our heads are becoming more and more frequent and more and more beneficial.

DiLisio linked to 'Crazy Joe,' Outlaws

By MIKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

SANFORD — Anthony DiLisio's former girlfriend testified Saturday he told her in 1975 that Joseph Spaziano had shown him two bodies, that he feared for his life and that he was leaving town.

DiLisio's 1976 testimony convicted the Outlaws motorcycle gang member known as "Crazy Joe" Spaziano of the stabbing death of an 18-year-old Orlando hospital clerk. DiLisio has since recanted, however, claiming he lied on the witness stand 20 years ago.

In addition to the testimony by the girlfriend, Annette Darlene Jones, a former Outlaws leader who served 20 years in prison on a half dozen convictions said Spaziano told him in prison in 1975 that Spaziano had killed two women and was concerned about "a boy" who might testify against him.

"He told me he had taken the boy and shown bodies to him. . . He (Spaziano) was concerned what could be done about it," testified

Batters up for SHS alumni baseball game

By VICKI DeSOMMER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Alumni athletic events often bring to mind middle aged has-beens who were once the stars at school, but who now find it difficult to drag themselves across the field.

Such is not the case at Seminole High School. When your graduates include the likes of baseball star Tim Raines of the New York Yankees and football hero Jeff Blake of the Cincinnati Bengals, the alumni baseball game promises to be anything but a pathetic parade of aging athletes.

"Tim and Jeff are signed up and ready to play," said assistant principal Bobby Lundquist who is helping to organize the event which will take place later this week.

Activists alarmed by manatee death rate

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Although only one manatee was reportedly killed in Seminole County waters during this past year, activists say across the state the gentle sea cows are dying off at a high rate.

Volusia County, which borders on the northern and northeastern side of Lake Monroe and the St. Johns River across from Seminole County, listed 10 manatee deaths last year.

"Volusia County was the sixth highest number in the entire state last year," said Nancy Saduski of the Save The Manatee Club, headquartered in Matland.

Statewide, statistics released last week showed that 201 manatees died in 1995, the second highest number of deaths since the state began counting in 1974.

At least 42 deaths were attributed to boats, which gash the animals with their propellers or drown them in collisions. Another 53 deaths were unclassified, meaning the carcasses were too decomposed to determine the cause.

The Seminole County death was attributed to the loss of a dependent calf, rather than a boating mishap. Seven of the Volusia County deaths were also listed as the loss of a calf, with only one watercraft collision blamed for a manatee death.

Earlier statistics show only three manatee deaths attributed to waters in Seminole County since authorities began compiling figures in 1974. Two of the three took place in 1991. They

Suicide letter holds clues to deaths

BUENAVENTURA LAKES, Fla. — A lengthy suicide letter may hold the answers to what caused the deaths of a vacationing French Canadian couple and their teen-age son.

The father and son were discovered Friday night in their pajamas near a bathroom in the home while the woman died in a rental car in the garage, the Osceola County Sheriff's office said.

Authorities have given no cause of death, but hinted that it could have been a murder-suicide.

"There was no forced entry at the home where the people had been found," said Sheriff spokesman July Rivers. "We believe the cause of death and the origin of death originated inside the home."

Carbon monoxide poisoning could have contributed to the death of the woman, who was found leaning back in the driver's seat. A rolled up carpet was found pressed against the garage door while a bath mat was pressed against a door leading to the house from the garage.

Autopsy and toxicology results will not be available for at least two weeks, Rivers said.

The bodies, found by the rental home's property manager, had been dead for two or three days. There was no sign of any trauma, Rivers said.

The suicide note was written in French by the woman, identified as France Champagne, 33. A French-accented translator sat in a squad car at the scene Friday night and deciphered the double-spaced note, transcribing more than 20 pages onto a yellow legal pad.

Its contents will not be divulged until after the autopsy, Rivers said.

The father and teen-age son were identified Saturday as Jocelyn Vinette, 38, and Benoit Vinette. The three were vacationing from Laval, Quebec.

A maid had come to clean the house Friday afternoon, the day the family was due to leave, but found the front door chained closed, authorities said. She contacted the property manager.

Neighbors told police they had not seen the tourists for several days. The rental home is in a large subdivision between the city of Kissimmee and the Orlando International Airport. Rivers said the tourists commonly rent single-family homes in the area.

Records showed the family began renting the home Dec. 29 and were due to leave Friday.

Lab fights budget cutters, bugs

PANAMA CITY, Fla. — When movie makers needed giant mosquitoes to appear in "Jurassic Park" they turned to Florida A&M University's John A. Mulrennan Sr. Research Laboratory.

The mosquitoes with inch-long bodies may have looked like monsters on the big screen, but are harmless to people. As adults they feed on plant nectar and in the larval stage eat the larvae of smaller, bloodsucking mosquitoes.

The Mulrennan laboratory, devoted to research on mosquitoes and other biting insects, is experimenting with the colossal cannibals from Burma to determine if they can be used as a new weapon in Florida's age-old war on bugs.

"Florida has by far the biggest problems with mosquitoes and biting insects of any state," said lab director John Smith. "There's no golden bullet. The search is always to try to improve on the product and it's effectiveness."

The Mulrennan lab, named for the state's late chief of entomology who is considered the father of mosquito control in Florida, has been in the forefront of the bug battle for 31 years.

But the lab also has had to fight for its life against budget-cutters and is still recovering after being battered by Hurricane Opal on Oct. 4. A storm surge inundated the peninsula on which the laboratory sits between St. Andrews Bay and Reynolds Bayou in this Florida Panhandle city.

Smith has been director since August 1981 when the lab was part of the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

"A week after I arrived I had the notice faxed to me that the department was going to shut down this laboratory," Smith recalled.

So he spent his first three months on the job teaching officials who controlled the money about the laboratory's importance.

Its main functions are to test pesticides and other insect-control methods, including biological warfare, primarily for mosquitoes, dog flies, yellow flies, ticks and gnats — Florida's infamous "no see ums" — to ensure effectiveness and safety.

The lab also advises and provides training for local mosquito control agencies across Florida and the state's dog fly control program, headquartered adjacent to the laboratory.

Originally established for research on dog flies — a pest that threatened to drive tourists from Panhandle beaches — it was one of two medical entomology laboratories once operated by HRS.

AT&T grant aids Midway school

By BARVA HAWKINS
Herald Columnist

Midway Elementary School Assistant Principal Gail Choce says a $2,500 grant from AT&T will allow teachers to continue making strides as a Break the Mold school.

Choce explained the Break the Mold concept fine-tunes the school's curriculum based on the growing and changing needs of students. This need to increase student achievement has led to piloting innovations in instruction. Assessment is an integral part of instruction. Choce said one of the most valuable forms of assessment is teacher observation.

"However, it is not used as often because it is difficult to manage," she said.

Choce's grant, accepted by AT&T, will provide two multi-age and fourth grade classes with a pilot teacher observation program titled Learner Profile.

Learner Profile is an assessment tool that enables teachers to plan, organize and review observations about students' progress and the work they produce. The package consists of powerful planning, analysis and recording software.

Using an Apple Newton bar code reader and a list of user-created observables, the teacher can instantly record observations, making it practical for all educators.

The bar code reader makes it possible for teachers to also record their observations in the classroom, lab, out on the track, field trips and other locations.

"And at the end of the day, recorded data is imported into the Learner Profile program on the classroom computer," Choce explained.

The data improves the creation of lesson plans, and documents the students' levels of success, Choce added.

"With this technology, teachers can track the learning process and graphically demonstrate success to the students," Choce said.

The school currently has two Newtons. The grant from AT&T will allow Midway to purchase five additional Newtons.

The way we were: Sanford, county in 1925

I have in my possession a marvelous 48-page booklet published in 1925 by the Board of County Commissioners and compiled by a committee representing the Seminole County Association of Chambers of Commerce. This little booklet provides a wealth of information about the county and its cities as they were in 1925. There is information on each Seminole County town and also several pages devoted to the many crops raised in the county. And it is full of wonderful pictures of various aspects of life during that time.

I thought you might like to know what this area was like 70 years ago so will give you excerpts from the section on Sanford.

In 1925, Sanford's population was 11,500 and it was the 12th largest city in Florida. Its population had doubled since 1920 when it was 5,588.

The Atlantic Coast Line provided deluxe train service from eastern and midwestern points.

GRACE M. STINE-CIPHER

Sanford was the railroad center for Central Florida. It was the connecting point for Lakeland, Mt. Dora, Eustis, Leesburg, Oviedo and other communities on branch lines which terminated in Sanford.

Sanford was also one of the principal terminals of the Orange Belt Auto Line which operated bus lines to all east coast and Central Florida points. Connections were made with other bus lines in the state. The buses were of the latest parlor type cars and operated on regular schedules, carrying both passengers and baggage.

Sanford was one of the six cities in the state having direct all-water routes to principal eastern seaboard points. The Clyde Line operated the river steamer "The Osceola" and "The City of Jacksonville" in daily service between Sanford and Jacksonville on the St. Johns River. Connections could be made there with oceangoing vessels.

There were five schools in Sanford — high school, grammar and three primary schools. (These would have been Sanford High School, Sanford Grammar School, Eastside Primary, Westside Primary and Southside Primary.) There were also schools for colored pupils. School buses brought students from practically every section of the county (this would be Seminole High on French Avenue) with $450,000 appropriated for that and also for additions to the existing schools.

Sanford was justly proud of its hotel accommodations. It had three first class hotels whose rates were reasonable — the Seminole, Valdez and Montezuma. There was also a new tourist hotel on the lakefront, The Forrest Lake. (Sadly, all of these hotels are gone. The Valdez and Seminole were torn down several years ago and the Montezuma burned down recently. The Forrest Lake, later known as the Mayfair Inn, is now the headquarters for New Tribes Mission.)

The Sanford Chamber of Commerce was the premier civic organization of the city. In a four-day campaign that August, the sum of $108,000 was secured for expansion and publicity purposes. That gave them the distinction of being the largest chamber of commerce in the world on a per capita basis, with a membership of about 4,200.

Other civic organizations at the time were Rotary, Kiwanis, and Lions clubs, the Woman's Club, and Campbell Loyalist Post of the American Legion. See Stinecipher, Page 5A.

POLICE BRIEFS

Check cashing

Douglas B. Tretteen, 35, of 2580 Sanford Avenue, was arrested by Sanford Police Thursday. According to the arrest report, he was accused of attempting to cash a payroll check at a store in the 1700 block of Airport Blvd. The check had been listed as stolen. Tretteen was reportedly identified by the store manager, and located by police in the 2600 block of Country Club Road. Police said the checks had been reported stolen on Jan. 8 from a business in the 2500 block of French Avenue. They said other checks had been reportedly cashed in Orange City and Sanford. Tretteen was arrested on one charge of uttering a forged instrument, and two charges of possession of stolen property.

Loitering

Timothy Bell, 30, with no local address, was arrested by Sanford police Thursday. Officers responded to a call regarding a man reportedly knocking on the door of a residence in the 1000 block of W. 20th Street. When police arrived, they said the man ran from the area, but after police yelled at him that a K-9 unit was being called, they said he returned to their area with his hands in the air. Bell was charged with loitering and prowling, resisting an officer without violence, possession of under 20 grams of a controlled substance and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Surveillance arrest

Members of the Sanford police were reportedly conducting a surveillance in a known drug area at 13th Street and Shepard Avenue Thursday. When they attempted to interrogate an individual, they said he ran from the area, into a business in the 1000 block of W. 13th Street, and out the back door, where officers managed to apprehend him. Willie Charles Brown, 28, of 1001 W. 10th Street, was arrested on a charge of resisting officers without violence.

Disturbance

Edith McKechnie, 37, of 306 Elm Avenue, was arrested by Sanford police early Friday. Officers were summoned by another resident of the address, regarding McKechnie creating a disturbance. Police said they had been called to the residence on three previous times within a few hours regarding the woman. This time, she was placed under arrest for disorderly intoxication.

Double charges

Sanford police responded to two separate domestic violence situations Thursday, both at the same address. At approximately 4:30 a.m., they were called to 413-A Geneva Gardens, and arrested Lucille Lamar Floyd, 19, in connection with a reported altercation with a man. She was charged with battery, domestic violence.

At 6:25 a.m., police returned to the same address, and were told that a man identified as James Edward Williams, 30, of W. 15th Street, had become involved in an altercation with a woman at that address. He was subsequently located riding a bike, and arrested on a charge of battery, domestic violence.

Police said during the arrest, Williams kicked an officer in the chest and in the leg, and threatened two officers. He was given two additional charges of battery on a law enforcement officer, and two for resisting arrest with violence.

Traffic stops

Angela Denise Malone, 27, 2320 Granby Street, was stopped by sheriff's deputies in the 300 block of North Park Avenue Thursday. She was found to be wanted for failing to appear on charges of unlawful speeding, and resisting a law enforcement officer.

Randy James Simoneau, 29, 831 Monroe Harbor Place, was stopped by deputies on Bedford Street Thursday. He was charged with driving with a suspended/revoked license and attached tag not assigned.

Incident reports

Sheriff's deputies are investigating a reported theft Wednesday from a structure at a fish camp on Cat Fish Cove. Tools, a stereo, an assortment of meat, and other items with a total value of $1,465 were reported stolen.

Sanford police reported a TV and two cordless phones, with a total value of $368, were said to have been stolen Thursday from a residence in the 100 block of W. Eighth Street in Sanford.

An estimated $380 in currency and $920 in jewelry were reported stolen to Sanford police Thursday in the 3200 block of S. Orlando Drive.

A female pizza delivery person told police she was accosted by a man Thursday as she was attempting to deliver pizzas in Geneva Gardens. She said the man grabbed and stole two large cheese pizzas from her before running from the area.

QUAD Squad

Members of the Sanford police QUAD Squad made an arrest Wednesday. Officers said they were checking for drug activities in the 300 block of Poplar Avenue when they saw a man reportedly loitering in front of a store. After investigating, the man was arrested on charges of possession of a controlled substance, having an open container, and obstruction. Police said the man refused to give his name, address, or any other information. He was arrested as John Doe until further information can be determined.

Firearm theft

Daniel Ray Holt, 19, of DeLand, was arrested Wednesday by Sanford police. According to the arrest report, he was accused of having stolen a 357 revolver on Jan. 5th, from a vehicle parked in the 2400 block of S. French Avenue. He was charged with grand theft of a firearm.

Petit theft

Rosetta Seabren, 25, of 1800 W. 16th Street, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police Wednesday at a retail store in the 3600 block of Orlando Drive. Police said she was accused of having taken an item valued at $15.97 from the store without paying. She was charged with retail theft.

Scottish festival moves to Seminole

By WEND BUCHANAN
Herald Senior Staff Writer

CASSELBERRY — The Orlando Highland games won't be in Orlando as much this year. Much of the traditional Scottish festival will be held at the Seminole Greyhound Park in Casselberry. The facility will be the new permanent home for the festival which has for many years been in Orlando.

At the event will take place on Saturday, Jan. 20 from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m.

This year, festival-goers will experience the sights and sounds of Bonnie Scotland with pipe bands, Highland dancing, country dancing and a myriad of children's activities.

There will be a parade of Tartans, sheep herding Border Collies and a craft village. In addition, there will be military reenactments, antique motorcycles, traditional Scottish foods and authentically-crafted Scottish wares.

There will also be traditional athletic events such as the Caber Toss and the Hammer Throw.

The former involves throwing a 16 to 20 foot pole, weighing between 80 and 100 pounds end-over-end as far as it can go. The latter pits competitors against one another in a challenge to throw a 23 pound hammer the greater distance.

"There will be something for everyone at the games," said Michele Plant of Chernoff Silver and Associates.

Tickets for the games are $10 for adults, $5 for children ages six to 12 and for seniors over the age of 60.

The celebration will get underway on Friday evening, Jan. 19 with a Tartan Ball in the Ballroom of the Orlando North Hilton and Towers in Altamonte Springs. The ball will be from 7:30 p.m. until midnight.

Simultaneously, and in the same hotel, there will be a Royal Country Dance Ball, which will be an evening of dances that are the forerunners of the Virginia Reel and the American Square Dance.

The cost for the Tartan Ball is $40 per person. Tickets for the Royal Scottish Country Dance can be had for $8.50 each.

After the games and the festivities on Saturday, there will be a Scottish hootenanny, called Ceilidh, with foot stomping, singing, storytelling and Scottish humor scheduled for the Bahia Shrine Temple in Orlando from 7:30 p.m. until 1 a.m.

The City of Detroit Pipe Band and Eric Duncan, a Scottish folk singer are the featured entertainment for the evening. Tickets for the event are $5 each.

The festival will conclude on Sunday with the Kirkin' O' the Tartan (the blessing of the tartans) at Park Lake Presbyterian Church, 309 E. Colonial Dr., in Orlando at 10:30 a.m. A reception will follow the blessing.

There is no charge to attend the event at the church.

Public invited to attend meetings on fishing regulations

By BOB PFEIFFER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The state's Marine Fisheries Commission is scheduling a series of hearings around Florida this month to obtain information relative to proposed legislation and/or laws pertaining to fishing, limits, locations, and other situations.

Information obtained in these meetings will be carried forward to a major three-day meeting in Clearwater Beach to be held in early February.

Locally, a meeting specifically on American shad fish will be held at the Marina Hotel and Conference Center, 530 N. Palmetto Avenue in Sanford, on Tuesday, Jan. 16. The meeting will be from 7 until 10 p.m.

The specified purpose of the Sanford meeting is to receive comment on "the status of the American shad fishery." A similar meeting on shad will be held the Cocoa Beach on the following day, along with a separate meeting on groundfish trawls in harvesting nearshore and offshore.

In the Clearwater meeting, the commission will be holding final public hearings and receive public comment on various rules being drafted.

For the shrimping industry, a proposed rule under consideration would require the use of specified bycatch reduction devices in shrimp trawls operating in certain waters of Florida's Northeast Region.

Another rule would allow recreational fishermen to use frame nets to harvest shrimp from bridges where fishing is allowed, and replace the current size/count limits with other forms of management in state waters from the Apalachicola Bay system to the Northwest/Big Bend Region demarcation line.

Other rules being proposed pertain to such subjects as limiting the sale of red snapper from Gulf of Mexico waters, and establishing a harvest quota for Spanish, scaled and orange spot sardines, and possibly a proposed rule that would require king mackerel to be landed with heads and fins attached.

The Sanford meeting and all other meetings are open to the general public and public input is being sought.

For additional information, phone the Marine Fisheries Commission, State of Florida, in Tallahassee, (904) 487-0554.

Oviedo Council agenda

By BOB PFEIFFER

Phone call away

Imagine this. You are driving your car on a busy local street, when the spotlight in front of you turns red. You will be stopping.

As you do, you look in your rear-view mirror to see the vehicle immediately behind you is being driven by a person who holds in his or her hand a cellular phone, and whose concentration apparently is aimed at the conversation in progress.

It's a frightening sight. You don't know if the person may be too involved in the phone call to see you stopping. You don't know if, with the driver's hand holding that phone, there is even any control on the steering wheel.

Even more shocking is if you see the phone being held in the driver's right hand, and a cigarette dangling out the window, held in the left hand. What, if any, control is there over that ton and a half of steel moving toward the rear of your vehicle?

This isn't just an imaginary situation, it is happening more and more every day, as more and more people have cellular phones installed in their vehicles. Our society has apparently become so involved in making that almighty dollar that we are using every spare second in swinging that deal.

Looking into a crystal ball, we predict that before too many more years have passed, there will be new laws enacted to prohibit people from holding a cellular phone while operating a moving motor vehicle.

People will either be required to pull off the road and stop while making the call, or have some other way of talking.

One solution is already among us, but very few people are taking advantage of it. There are small units, about the size of a matchbox, which can be placed on the sun visor on the driver's side. By simply pushing a button, a driver can talk and listen, without having to hold the unit. Both hands can remain on the wheel.

We believe this is an excellent safety feature for mobile cellular phones. Certainly, these small units cost slightly more than the phone, but what is that compared to the cost of possibly having a vehicle's front end rebuilt or paying for someone else's damage.

As time goes by, we will see more and more vehicles with cellular phones. Eventually, auto makers will begin to add them as extras right from the factory just as they do air conditioners and radio/cassette/disc units now.

If you have a cellular phone, look into obtaining this overhead microphone/speaker device.

If you are contemplating buying a unit, do the same.

But if you insist on driving while holding that phone in your hand and bobbing your head over to help keep it steady, stay away from our vehicles.

Student voice

The fact that Seminole Community College has been without a student-published newspaper for 20 years is appalling.

The college needs a forum for students to inform each other about campus events and activities and an opportunity to voice opinions.

The idea that freedom of the press is the staff of life for any vital democracy should apply to all factions of free society including student life.

School district phones

Several articles have been printed about a contract for a telephone system for the Seminole County school board administration building. The contract was awarded to a Siemens subsidiary. A company called NEC complained because its bid was lower. NEC has blocked the installation of the Siemens equipment.

I'd like to make the readers aware of a few facts. Siemens employs over 1,000 people in Seminole County adding to the tax base. Rather than discarding office equipment, Siemens gives excess personal computers to Seminole County schools. Siemens is a partner with Seminole Community College in an apprenticeship program. This program helps students receive degrees in electronics so that they can put tax dollars back into Seminole County through higher earning power.

Maybe the bidding process needs to be revamped. Special considerations should be given to local firms because it is not just the bottom line in one bid that makes a county function. The bid process should include how the contract affects the tax base. Thus, I back the Seminole County school board's choice in Siemens for their telephone system.

Keeping the dream alive all year

Tomorrow marks our nation's annual acknowledgment of the life of Dr. Martin Luther King. In a society as diverse as ours, it comes as no surprise that for some, tomorrow is a day of celebration and recognition; for others, it's a day of begrudging acceptance, and yet for those who still insist on "measuring a man by the color of his skin" as opposed to the content of his character, it is Lee Jackson Day.

The universe of responses to the legacy of Dr. King is not troubling. Tolerance and diversity are a sign of strength in a society. A society that mandates that you act a certain way, speak an official language, acknowledge its culture as being supreme, or be free, white and 21 to participate in the fruits of its citizenship, is inherently weak, corrupt and undemocratic. Such a society is not worthy of the support of its citizenry.

For a man who preached freedom and tolerance to a nation who purported to honor those ideals, a man who lived and died in a nation which struggled over the concept of freedom and liberty for all, yet never quite rose to meet that goal, there is no better way to celebrate his birthday than to exercise the very freedom and tolerance that he preached.

Our collective response to the opportunity to lift up the ideal and life of an American hero is somewhat hollow. King Day, like Veterans Day, Labor Day and Christmas are no more than a

Seminole
Opinion

day off from work to some, a bothersome interruption to the week to others. The troubling thing about these days is not the universe of responses, but the lack of a response. It appears that the essence of the sacrifice of a man like King, of our veterans, of those who comprise American labor, or of Christ himself, is lost upon us.

The problem that I have with these holidays is that our response seems to be so trivial and superficial. We live in anything but superficial times. Dr. King preached about freedom and tolerance, our veterans who were killed in action, white, black, male and female, gave the last full measure of their lives for these ideals. Yet the most that majority of our citizens can do to honor them is to have a sale.

The challenges which face our society are grave. Dr. King preached about love and kindness, about the sin of poverty in a nation as wealthy as ours, about problems that confront us unabated to this day. Jim Crow has taken a back seat to democracy and equality; the segregationists and citizen councils among us are muted. However, the disparity between the haves and the have nots in our society grows. We have declared war on our children and debate whether we should remove healthcare from the elderly to pay for tax cuts for individuals who have most enjoyed the fruits of our society. Many of our citizens are lost in a chasm of despair and hopelessness. The battle that Dr. King fought has not been won.

Tomorrow, our community as many others around the nation, will pay official tribute to Dr. King's memory with the usual hollow placards and pronouncements. I hope that we will individually take the time to reflect on a nation, and a time, which would produce a Dr. King, push him to the forefront, and then martyr him. I hope that some genuine reflection occurs on the part of our political leaders, and that they respond with charity to the needy and that this country can obtain a sense of commonality, and move forward as one people. I hope we can keep the dream alive all year long. In doing so, then we truly pay tribute to the man whose birthday we celebrate tomorrow.

"THEY MAY NEVER BE ABLE TO WIPE IT OUT ENTIRELY, BUT TALK SHOWS HAVE SLOWED THE RATE OF GROWTH OF HUMAN INTELLIGENCE."

As for the rest, we'll see

PALO ALTO — We have been in California little more than a week and already I have a new identity. Or at least a new identity card and enough new passwords, codes, phone numbers, e-mail and other addresses to feed a multiple personality disorder.

Landing on the Stanford campus as a visiting professor, I have begun to feel like one of those birds that gets tagged so it can be tracked as it migrates from one habitat to another.

We have migrated here out of the snow for what is amusingly called the winter term. We have flown as far as you can without leaving the continent. Suddenly the ocean is on the wrong side, people call it cold when the temperature dips to 40, and the drivers actually stop their cars when you step off the sidewalk.

For three months, I will be writing one column a week, teaching two classes and waking up in the morning in a different time zone, a different ZIP code, a different house. I'll be looking at the country from the west side, trading an office where the average age is about 40 for a campus where the average age is about 20.

This is more than a change of scene. Though I have been an itinerant journalist with 48 states on my American travel list, a person who can tell you which airport has decent cappuccino or an acceptable frozen yogurt, I have actually lived in one city for most of my life. I have written about social change without moving from my hometown.

The truth is I value roots and have never shared the wanderlust that drives Americans from one home to another. The week before I got here, a CBS television booker told me with astonishment that mine was the only card on her Rolodex that had the same phone number for well over a decade.

But when the offer came last summer, I realized with a capital letter clong that There Was Nothing Stopping Us. It was one of those shocks that come at midlife when you are least expecting it.

After all, adults spend the first part of their grown-up lives becoming indispensable and responsible. Sometime between our first job and our first child, stop signs get internalized in some uncharted region of the adult consciousness. Deadlines are immutable; obligations inflexible; kids, parents, bosses — all the first things — come first. Eighty percent of life, as Woody Allen says, is showing up. So we show up.

Then all of a sudden, but not really suddenly, life changes around us. The kids grow up, we have more empty beds and more choices. If we are lucky and attentive, there may be a moment when the imperatives of adult life lighten up, making room for something else. Maybe we can risk lifting the stop signs.

At the same moment the comfortable patterns of midlife can seem too comfortable. Even our New Year's resolutions can start to seem familiar. And the most rooted of us can wonder if we're not just a bit potbound.

This is the time for a midlife checkup, rather than a crisis. Time to make sure that the track we're on doesn't become a rut. Time to learn something new whether it's carpentry, computers or a point of view. Time to entertain the unknown, the open-ended, to ask ourselves questions for which our only immediate answer is "we'll see."

Am I ahead of the demographic curve in this psychic migration? I was born just before the boom and turned 50 before it became this year's fashion. I arrived at this point in the life cycle with a crowd gathering behind me.

But today most of us at middle age feel more vulnerable than experimental. At this point in downsizing and aging, we are more likely to worry about security and hanging on to what we have built — and I am by no means immune to that sensibility. But what an irony it would be if a generation that has seen so much social change, been a part of so much personal change, now became risk-averse, stuck in the mud of our own making.

As for me, I have no urge to go to medical school, move to a mountaintop, curry favor with Newt Gingrich, or — gawd help us — have a post-menopausal pregnancy. So I have come back (or forward) to school — on whatever the opposite of a sabbatical is.

I've come to shake a few months out of my routine, to learn again and teach for the first time. To flex the muscle of flexibility and see if it still works. To open a window or two.

With my new identity card in hand, I'll be the teacher who knows the ropes and a freshman who cannot yet find the bathroom. As for the rest, "we'll see."

If we are lucky and attentive, there may be a moment when the imperatives of adult life lighten up, making room for something else.

The formality of turning six

My daughter has never been a typical child. If you know either (or both) of her parents, you know why.

So, when she turned six earlier this month, it should have surprised no one that she wanted a formal dinner party with her friends.

Invitations announcing the event were printed on pink paper and sent to about a dozen friends and relations. Evening attire was requested.

So, there she sat, in a tea-length dress, fancy shoes and pearls at five minutes to six on the appointed evening.

Guests were not expected to arrive for another 35 minutes, though two young ladies were already there. She was inspecting my fine china and crystal and making sure the table cloth was just right.

"Did you order the pizza?" she asked for the third time in as many minutes. (Despite all the fancy trappings, she still wanted pizza rather than Chicken Cordon Bleu and Green Beans Almondine, for example, because she wanted to be sure everyone liked the meal.)

Sparkling grape juice had also been mixed in favor of cola and orange soda.

Genevieve was thrilled when her normally rough and tumble cousins arrived wearing coats and ties.

Bobby's tie clipped on and off easily so he was able to extricate himself from the strangulating device when neither Genevieve nor his mother was looking.

The other guests arrived in drabs and drabs, dressed in their finest attire. Ruffles and bows and patent leather shoes for the giggling girls. Hair was swept up with fancy clips and ribbons.

On the squirming boys were coats and ties. Hair was combed and plastered into place with that combination of spit and hairspray that only mothers of male offspring seem to have figured out.

Parents milled around mostly in the business-casual clothes they had worn to work that day.

Pizza was served and was consumed with forks and knives, pinkies extended, by children who normally consider spaghetti a finger food. Glasses clinked daintily and youngsters asked politely for additional portions. Ice cream and cake was eaten quietly with not a single plate being licked by a little person eager for the last drop.

The only glass broken all evening was by me, rushing to get from one course to the next.

Following dinner, the group settled in front of the fire to open gifts and play with the cache.

All in all, the youngsters had a great time and my finery survived the ordeal.

I guess I don't really need to worry until she's 16 and invites her tattooed biker friends over to sup on the china and crystal. But, as long as they behave, they are more than welcome to come.

Manatee

were both prenatal situations, with 1991 the worst year on record statewide for prenatal deaths listed at 53.

Also in Seminole County since 1974, there has been one manatee death in 1993 for an undetermined reason, but none at all related to watercraft.

Brevard County has the worst overall death toll from 1974 through 1994 for boat-related manatee deaths, at 119.

Perhaps no other endangered animal enjoys such widespread support as the manatee, the whiskered, walrus-like sea cow that has lived in Florida waters for more than 45 million years.

Nearly a half-million Florida license plates bear a manatee on them, bumper stickers and T-shirts cry out to save them and a 40,000-member grassroots group founded by singer Jimmy Buffet has made one named Cheate an international icon.

Yet, despite federal, state and local efforts, the beasts are dying off at a high rate. Scientists and advocates don't agree on why or what to do about it.

Part of the problem is determining how many manatees are left. The state Department of Environmental Protection sent planes up and down the coast three days this week and counted 2,274 manatees as they gathered near warm mineral springs and in canals where power plants discharge warm water.

While the number is significantly higher than the 1,522 manatees found at this time last year, it doesn't necessarily mean preservation efforts are working any better, experts say.

The conditions for counting this year were particularly good: the same cold weather that dumped up to 3 feet of snow in the Northeast chilled Florida, forcing the manatees, which migrate from the Carolinas to Florida every winter, to huddle together. Clear skies and water helped visibility as well.

DEP research scientist Bruce Ackerman, who was in charge of the aerial survey, was encouraged by the increase.

"This high count means that we're that much more able to sustain the high mortality that we've seen," he said.

The higher 1996 total doesn't necessarily mean manatees are dying from some new threat, like bacteria or increased pollution, said Brad Weigle, a scientist at the Florida Marine Research Institute in St. Petersburg, where researchers were tagging and taking blood samples from the beasts Thursday.

It could be better reporting or, as the numbers released Thursday indicate, that there are simply more manatees that the state knows about.

Nevertheless, state officials and advocates are worried since any slight increase in the mortality rate could mean extinction for the mammal, which produces one calf every two to five years.

"If there are only 2,000 manatees, and we have 200 deaths, you cannot ignore the fact that that's a fairly scary death rate," said David Arnold, who heads the state DEP's Bureau of Protected Species Management.

Thirteen Florida counties have been ordered to establish county-wide slow-speed zones for boats. Seminole was not among them. The 13 were: Brevard, Broward, Citrus, Collier, Dade, Duval, Indian River, Martin, Palm Beach, St. Lucie, Sarasota.

Volusia and Lee counties are reworking original proposals since boaters opposed their zones. Statistics since 1974 reveal that there have been 25 watercraft-related manatee deaths in Volusia County, and 64 in Lee County.

Arnold defended the speed zones, but cautioned that speeding boats aren't solely to blame for dead manatees.

The Save the Manatee Club, Florida Power & Light, and Department of Environmental Protection have released some additional facts:

• The Florida manatee, also known as the West Indian manatee, is the only one found in North America and is one of three manatee species found in the world. They average 10 feet in length and can weigh more than 3,000 pounds. They are completely harmless and are usually shy and reclusive. They are vegetarians, and females give birth to one calf every two to five years.

• The 1996 causes of death, with numbers killed: Watercraft (42), floodgate and canal lock (8), other human-related causes (5), newborns dying of natural causes (56), other deaths from natural causes (35), undetermined (53), verified but unrecovered (2).

• Only 1990, when 206 manatees died, exceeded 1995's 201 for number of manatees killed. In 1994, there were 193 deaths. There were 145 in 1993.

• In 1975, the Florida Legislature designated the manatee as the official state marine mammal.

Seminole County Sheriff Don Ealinger recently introduced two helicopters his department now uses for search and surveillance and to transport prisoners from one venue to another.

Helicopter

operates two helicopters. They are used in searches, overhead area scanning operations, rapid transportation means, and vehicles with which to transport criminals to and from Seminole County.

Air Traffic Manager Barbara Kerti, at the Orlando Sanford Airport, said both of the sheriff's helicopters are based there. "Bulldog Airlines, which has many helicopters is also in the process of moving to Sanford," she said, "so we'll have even more of them operating from this field."

Kerti said a decision on whether to buy a helicopter versus a fixed wing aircraft depends on the use a person plans for it. "Helicopters can land at more remote locations," she said, "but they don't have the range fixed wing aircraft do."

Kerti cited some benefits to having a helicopter over a fixed wing, including fewer restrictions on weather the ability to operate under more severe conditions than a normal aircraft. "Helicopters can also operate as low as 500 feet from the ground," she said, "while fixed-wing craft are required to fly much higher."

For commercial, private or law enforcement use, the world of the helicopter is growing and growing in the local area.

• Hospitals and medical services use helicopters. In cases such as auto accidents, rescue workers are able to land next to the scene, take on an injured patient, and transport him or her directly to an area hospital for prompt treatment. Most hospitals in Seminole County and throughout the area have special helicopter landing pads at which to receive these emergency transport patients.

• News departments, for TV and often for radio, utilize helicopters in covering news events and traffic. Through the use of these highly agile vehicles, they can reach the scene of an incident more quickly than ever before, hover almost motionless overhead, and transmit what they see directly back to the studio for further transmission to the general public.

Brothers Michael, 7, and Christian Devivers, 10, admire the sheriff's department helicopters, during a recent open house at the hangar in which they are housed.

• The tourism industry isn't being overlooked by the world of helicopters. Two separate tourist companies are currently being operated in the Orlando area and are occasionally seen showing visitors the sights of Lake Monroe and the St. Johns River basin.

• Helicopters are also still used in the form for which they were originally intended. They are still providing the backbone for our military services. They allow more prompt transportation between two points, such as the capability of landing on a moving ship, or reaching a desolate area of jungle or territory where normal aircraft couldn't possibly land. Few could ever forget seeing either in person or in pictures, the daring helicopter rescues of wounded fighting forces in Korea, Viet Nam, during Operation Desert Storm, or even now during emergency situations in Bosnia.

• In some of the larger areas, helicopters are used as shuttle flights from a major airport to another area where no airport may exist. In this way, they are being used for general transportation. Again, quicker than any other means operating within limited capabilities.

Helicopters are now commonplace in the skies over Sanford and Seminole County. If there is any doubt, just listen and watch. There'll be one along most any minute.

There were several orders of Masonry, Blue Lodge, Shrine Club and Eastern Star and also lodges of Odd Fellows, Elks and Knights of Columbus.

There were three banks in Sanford having a combined deposit of $6,200,000. The average deposit per person was $600, compared with an average of $32 for the United States.

The two principal newspapers in Seminole County were in Sanford; these were The Sanford Signal, a morning paper, and the Sanford Herald, an evening paper.

City taxes were assessed on a 60 percent valuation while state and county taxes were based on 35 percent of actual value. The assessed valuation of the city of Sanford as of Dec. 1, 1925, amounted to $11,550,648. In 1920, the assessed valuation was $3,750,000.

Sanford had a variety of recreational activities which included a municipally owned country club and golf course, one of the sportiest in the state.

There were also tennis courts, an attractive theater, band concerts, lectures and other Chautauqua and Lyceum entertainments, horse shoe pitching courts, croquet courts, bowling on the green and shuffleboard courts, reading and card rooms, an up-to-date library, and open house during the mornings at the Woman's Club house.

The average temperature was 71 degrees. Long summers were expected, but extreme heat was unknown and there was no heat prostration in Florida.

Every lake and stream in the county was stocked with fish for the lover of the rod and reel while all kinds of migratory fowl spent the winter months on the rivers and lakes. One could employ guides at any of the hotels or the chamber of commerce.

Sanford could be reached from every section of the state by hard roads. It was located on State Road 3, known as the St. Johns Scenic Highway. That nearly completed road paralleled the St. Johns River from Jacksonville to Sanford, a distance of 156 miles. (This was probably the present U.S. Highway 17).

A modern automobile camp for tourists was located within the city limits. It was certified by the Florida State Board of Health.

County statistics, 1925

The governor of Florida at the time was John W. Martin and Seminole County was known as "The Biggest Little County in the State." It was (and is) the next to smallest county in area.

Seminole County was the largest vegetable producing county in the state and second largest in car lot shipments.

Seminole County produced 73 percent of all the celery grown in the state and one third of the entire production for the United States.

One of the largest poultry developments in the state was in progress in the county. Seven hundred acres had been purchased for the purpose.

The population of Seminole County was 14,500 and 60 percent of the citizens were homeowners.

IN BRIEF

Intro to disaster services

LONGWOOD — The initial course for those interested in taking part as a Red Cross disaster relief volunteer will be on Thursday, Jan. 18. It is a pre-requisite for all other disaster relief courses.

The hours for the class are from 7 to 10 p.m. The course will be held at the American Red Cross of Central Florida's Seminole County Service Center, 705 W. State Road 434, in Longwood.

There is no cost for the course. For more information, call 332-8200.

Dick named CFO at Columbia Park

Lynn Dick has been appointed as chief financial officer for the central Florida division of Columbia Park Healthcare System.

He comes from Winona Memorial Hospital in Indianapolis where he served as chief financial officer and chief executive officer of the 315-bed acute care facility. Prior to that, Dick was the chief accounting officer for American Medical Inc., a multi-facility healthcare company.

His experience includes work with Blue Cross/Blue Shield of New Mexico, Peat Warwick, Mitchell & Co. and Ernst & Young.

Dick holds a B.A. degree from Wabash College and a MBA degree from Northwestern University. He is a certified public accountant.

Columbia Park's central Florida division includes eight hospitals, including Central Florida Regional Hospital, 18 outpatient centers and seven home health agencies.

Birth defects prevention month

The March of Dimes has proclaimed January as birth defects prevention month. They also hope to decrease infant mortality by increasing educational efforts in the community.

Many babies are born too small or too soon or with birth defects. There are several steps that can be taken to prevent those things from happening, the March of Dimes suggests.

Those steps include:

- Get a medical check up before becoming pregnant. Have medical problems like infections, high blood pressure and diabetes diagnosed and treated before conception.
  - Ask your health care provider about being immunized against rubella at least three months before conceiving.
  - Achieve ideal weight now. Pregnancy is no time to go on a diet.
  - Know your family medical history, including any history of miscarriage or birth defects.
  - Adopt a healthy lifestyle: don't smoke, don't drink, don't take any non-prescription drugs while planning to conceive or during pregnancy.
  - Avoid exposure to toxic chemicals and substances.
- For more information call the March of Dimes at (407)849-0790.

Let the patient beware of those who perform liposuction surgery

By RICHARD L. BECK, M.D.
Special to the Herald

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Tumescent liposuction was touted on 20/20, the television program, as a procedure that can be done with little to no discomfort, and as a procedure performed only by certain specially-trained physicians.

Yet, is it really a procedure that does not require a training period (residency) in a surgical discipline, especially plastic surgery?

Is liposuction or liposculpture a procedure that can be performed without the judgement gained from the requisite years of surgical training and the experience gained beyond that training?

This surgical judgement is best suited to know whether liposuction is indeed indicated or may need to be combined with another surgical procedure or may even be contra-indicated.

This same surgical background is best suited to deal with the complications that can follow liposuction. Even though major complications such as bleeding, fluid volume loss, infection, sensory changes, pigmentation, major contour defects, reaction to local anesthetic and others are uncommon, they can — and do — occur.

Is a non-surgically trained individual equipped to handle these problems?

Tumescent liposuction, a term recently coined, is nothing more than an elaboration of the wet technique, well known to practicing plastic surgeons.

Its benefits lie in the injections of large volumes of either saline or lactated ringer's solution mixed with dilute anesthesia and dilute epinephrine.

The local anesthetic produces numbing and the epinephrine causes the constriction of the small vessels, thus decreasing the bleeding. Either of these medications can produce side effects.

In some individuals, use of the tumescent solution alone may be sufficient for providing the numbing required. However, much depends on the patient's own tolerance of discomfort and may require intravenous sedation or general anesthesia in cases of large amounts of fat removal in multiple areas.

Tumescent liposuction, like any surgical procedure should be done under sterile conditions, applications of which are best understood and most familiar to a trained surgeon.

Lastly, the prospective patient must be aware of the background, training and board certification of the physician.

Most plastic surgeons are trained in all currently-used techniques of liposuction as used in this country. A weekend course and a videotape are not qualifications for performing a procedure of this nature.

Let the patient beware!

Dr. Richard L. Beck is a plastic and reconstructive surgeon with a practice at 311 Highland Ave. in Altamonte Springs.

Weight loss key to better cholesterol levels in kids

By IRA BREYFUS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Encouraging children to do aerobic exercise will help to keep them from having cholesterol problems, but only if the exercise makes them lose weight, a study indicates.

Fit children had better cholesterol levels than did unfit children, said the researchers at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah. But the unfit children also weighed more, and the fit kids' edge in cholesterol disappeared once researchers statistically took the weight differences into account, said the study in the American Journal of Public Health.

The findings help to clarify the role that exercise plays in cholesterol control, said researcher Larry A. Tucker.

The researchers studied 162 boys and 100 girls, ages 9 and 10. The children's parents filled out a questionnaire to tell how much fat was in their children's diets.

The researchers tested the children's time on a one-mile walk-run. Using callipers, the scientists measured how much fat the children had at the abdomen, arm and calf.

The children also gave blood for cholesterol testing. Although cholesterol is rarely a major risk factor for children, other researchers have found young people with elevated cholesterol levels tend to mature into adults with cholesterol problems. "Children don't die of heart disease; it's almost unheard-of," Tucker said. "But they become adults and they die of heart disease."

Overall, 26.5 percent of the boys and 37 percent of the girls had cholesterol readings in the increased-risk group.

Children with the higher cholesterol levels tended to be the ones who did worse on the run-walk, the researchers found.

IN BRIEF

Fair exec. named

CASSELBERRY — The Florida Orange Festival and Seminole County Fair has appointed Sarah Dump as public relations coordinator, who will be managing community and media relations for the three-year-old event.

The 1996 Florida Orange Festival and Seminole County Fair will be held February 22 through March 3 in the 150 acre Seminole Grehound Park and Fairplex in Casselberry.

Housing news

• M/I Financial Corp. of Altamonte Springs reported closing on 288 units in 1995 for a dollar volume of $30 million, according to Regional Manager Bob Ollweiler. This is an increase over the 1994 volume of 250 closings valued at $28.7 million. M/I also named Michael Bierly as sales consultant of the year. Working out of Brantley Estates in Altamonte Springs, he was reportedly responsible for over $10 million in sales.

• Harkins Construction Company of Lake Mary is completing a new model home in the Hampton Hills neighborhood at the DeBary Golf and Country Club Community according to Project Director Jack Allebach. The new model, the Pohnix, is a four-bedroom three-bath home with 2,405 square feet of living area and is priced at $206,900.

• AA Value Realty, Inc., of Maitland, has joined HomeWeb, an On-Line Internet Information Network. "Our company is proud to be one of the first in the area to place all of our homes-for-sale on the HomeWeb Internet Service," said owner Patricia Adams. "It allows potential homebuyers to shop for a home or property 24 hours a day, seven days a week," she added.

• Cambridge Homes of Altamonte Springs has completed a new model, The Mansfield B, at its community of Riverside Estates in Oviedo. The Mansfield has three-bedrooms and two-baths with 1,583 square feet of living area and is priced at $103,204.

• Venture 1 Properties, Inc., recorded another record sales volume for 1995 with over $200 million in gross sales. The firm, in its 12th year of operation, has offices located in Altamonte Springs. Venture 1 also announced the top sales associate for 1995. Jack Mutchnik handled $9,549,900 in total sales volume with 20 transactions.

• Olympia Homes of Altamonte Springs reported selling 131 homes during 1995 for a dollar volume of $14.7 million. Olympia has five communities in Seminole and Orange Counties.

Home sales

The latest statistics obtained in the Orlando Metropolitan Statistical Area (MSA), which includes Seminole County, indicates more Floridians are starting this new year in their own home, thanks to a five percent increase in single-family, existing home sales in November 1995, compared to November 1994.

The statistics were compiled by the Florida Association of Realtors (FAR). One of the largest percentage of increases in the state were in this local MSA, which reported resales climbing by 19 percent. In comparison, Jacksonville's MSA sales rose only 13 percent, Melbourne/Titusville/Palm Bay went up 10 percent, as did Daytona Beach MSA.

While the Lakeland/Winter Haven MSA showed a 63 percent increase in the figures, the FAR indicated the figures were not totally reflective because of the lack of certain information.

SBDC offers some small business workshops

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

The Small Business Development Center (SBDC), College of Business Administration at the University of Central Florida is holding a number of workshops and seminars during the month of January, especially designed for persons involved in or interested in the business community and its management.

Among courses and workshops to be presented at various times of the month are the following: ABCs of Exporting, Advertising Forum, Business Opportunities with the DoD through EDI, Business Plan, Financing your Business, Getting Started in Business, Ideas to Dollars, Loan Proposal, Overview of EDI Software Characteristics, and Tax Forum.

Four of the courses. Advertising, Financing your Business, Loan Proposal and Tax Forum, are free of charge. Others range in price from $35 to $70, with discounts occasionally available with early registration.

Many of the workshop and seminar leaders are directly associated with the SBDC, while others have been specially obtained to conduct individual workshops.

The University of Central Florida College of Business Administration SBDC operates in partnership with the U.S. Small Business Administration. As such, some support has been given for these programs through funding.

Because seating is limited for these programs, advance registration is required. Visa and MasterCard is accepted.

For workshop locations or registrations, phone (407) 823-5554.

Local tow truck driver honored

From staff reports

Dave Vaughn, a driver with Atlantic Shores Towing, on U.S. Highway 17-92 in DeBary, was one of only 1,000 pioneer tow truck operators to be awarded a driver certification award. Vaughn's name is also to be included in a nationally published National registry of certified Tow Truck operators.

In order to achieve the award, Vaughn went through a Level 1, light duty test, comprised of 110 multiple choice questions designed to measure a driver's knowledge of what the towing industry perceives as the key components of quality service delivery.

The program is partially funded by a grant from the Federal Highway Administration, and the Towing & Recovery Association of America Education Foundation.

Although operating from a DeBary location, Atlantic Shores, at 643 S. 17-92 operates in both Seminole and Volusia Counties.

Upscale homes missing

By ROGER SODERSTROM
Special to the Herald

HEATHROW — Stirling International Realty co-owner Roger Soderstrom sees hope in Seminole County's principal growth-drivers, namely, upscale executive homes.

He commented, "It's true. In talking with corporate relocation specialists around the country on a daily basis, one of the biggest draws to the Lake Mary/Heathrow/Markham Woods areas is the preponderance of executive housing, coupled with the availability of commercial and industrial sites."

And while the inventory of commercial land is still strong, there are more than 3,000 acres in the immediate area either zoned for office, commercial and industrial development, or earmarked for such uses in the Comprehensive Growth Management Plan.

Area prices are in the $3 to $6 per square foot range, while the availability of new upscale executive homes priced in the $500,000 range is dwindling.

He continued, "On the other hand, the development picture is very, very bright. Projects already announced or under construction will create upwards of 1,500 new jobs over the next 12 to 18 months. We have an abundance of affordable housing and excellent inventory in the middle range for management employees."

He looked on the area with hope however. "By the end of 1996, I expect we'll see the announcement of several upscale residential developments," he added.

First Lady dismisses probe

LOS ANGELES — First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton says testifying before a congressional Whitewater committee would put her in an unfair forum before investigators "in search of a scandal."

"This is not about finding out the truth," Mrs. Clinton told the Los Angeles Times in an interview Friday.

"The questions keep changing," she added. "The people asking them don't want to know the facts, especially if they don't support their accusations."

The interview also contained Mrs. Clinton's first public reaction to New York Times columnist William Safire's essay accusing her of being "a congenital liar."

The White House suggested on Tuesday that President Clinton wanted to punch Safire in the nose, but would restrain himself because of his office.

Mrs. Clinton called her husband's reaction "pretty funny," but told the Los Angeles newspaper, "I cannot take Mr. Safire seriously."

Astronauts capture Japanese satellite

By MIKE BRADCO
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Endeavour's astronauts captured a 4-ton Japanese science satellite Saturday after trouble with the probe's two solar panels prompted ground controllers to jettison them.

Commander Brian Duffy steered Endeavour gingerly toward the satellite and Japanese astronaut Koichi Wakai performed the critical task of grabbing his nation's gleaming octagonal craft with the 50-foot shuttle robot arm.

The retrieval, 1½ hours late because of the solar-panel trouble, came as the two spacecraft flew nearly 300 miles high.

"Koichi's got it, Houston," Duffy said.

"Nice job all around up there," said Mission Control.

Earlier, astronauts had chased down their quarry and were set to capture it when controllers in Japan beamed up remote commands telling the 32-foot-long arrays to fold like an accordion. The arrays appeared to retract as expected but failed to latch into place.

Mission managers in Japan and Houston worked to figure out the problem for an hour while precious battery power needed to keep the satellite and its science instruments operative was drained.

After several unsuccessful attempts to latch the panels, Japanese officials decided to simply jettison the arrays. It was an option they had considered before the flight to ensure the satellite's safe return to Earth.

The satellite and shuttle flew in formation a little more than 200 feet apart when one of the problem panels separated and drifted slowly away into the blackness of space. About 10 minutes later, the second panel was released.

The reusable science probe, launched from Japan last March aboard an unmanned rocket, is carrying a variety of experiments conducted over the past 10 months.

Among the satellite instruments are an infrared telescope, furnaces for manufacturing ultra-pure semiconductor crystals and a sensor used to monitor atomic particles.

Lyman High School carpentry teacher Richard Gregg is seeking donations of wood for his class to use in school projects. Gregg's class uses the wood for a variety of projects including construction of toys such as rocking horses, wooden cars, boats and pull toys. Over the holidays, many of the projects were donated to needy children in Seminole County. Now the class is beginning a new round of projects and needs wood. Students like Marc Mandel, pictured with a rocking horse, and Kevin Chaull and Steve Scheiber, pictured with wooden race cars and a truck, need your help making children's dreams come true. The NEC system is priced at approximately $3,993,000 over the next decade while Siemens' package will be about $4,392,000 for the same time period.

"I believe we have a more extensive service program and can offer more of the items the (Seminole County public school) system will need to achieve their communications vision over the next 10 years," Chris Johnson, a Siemens account executive said.

NEC filed a formal complaint when the district made initial plans to accept the proposal from Siemens. An injunction was filed until the ruling officer could make a decision and the district staff moved into their new facility, unceremoniously and without telephone service, over the recent winter break.

The hearing officer ruled in NEC's favor, saying the school district had acted "arbitrarily" in accepting Siemens' proposal.

The hearing officer's findings are not binding and the school board does have the option of selecting the company which they feel best meets the needs of the school district while being a fiscally responsible choice.

"The price differential comes in the level of service offered by the two companies," Sig Hardester, sales manager for Siemens-Rolm's Florida operations, said.

Hardester explained that his company's proposal was actually lower over the first five years of the plan, but increased in years seven through 10 because NEC's proposal "is disingenuous because it is based on a proposal that does not meet the level of service requested by the customer."

He said his company, with its 42 service technicians within a two hour radius of Seminole County, could better serve the needs of the district than NEC with its two technicians in that same geographical area.

Hardester and Johnson agreed their company's products were more accommodating to change than NEC's and said they believed the district understood that when they evaluated the proposals.

"We are better able to work with their communications vision into the future," Johnson said. "Using snap-in modules we can continue to address their future needs."

The school board will meet in a work session at 3:30 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 18. A final vote on the matter will be taken during their regular board meeting at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 23.

"We believe the school board showed and exercised sound judgement," Hardester said of their past decisions.

Meanwhile, the district's new offices are still using the phone system that had been used at the old facility.

"It works well enough for now," said Karen Brightman, executive secretary in the facilities planning department. "Right now every department has telephones and fax machines. We've got everyone up and running for now."

Spaziano

Ralph Yannotta, who said he was president of the Outlaws who were at Union Correctional Institution at that time.

Yannotta, a burly, tough-talking middle-aged man with a Fu Manchu mustache and goatee, said he didn't have to testify here. "I really don't want to hurt Joe. But I don't think what he did is right and (that) he should be out today," he said.

When Yannotta pointed to the defendant in court, Spaziano pursed his lips in a kissing motion at him. He then leaned back and glared at the witness from the defense table.

Spaziano's brother, Michael A. Spaziano, was brought into court in handcuffs and leg irons to testify that his brother called him in 1975 or 1976 and told him about "a young kid named DiLisio. . . He was upset."

Michael Spaziano, who is serving a prison sentence for unspecified crimes, said he also got a letter from his brother in 1980, telling him to expect someone who would talk to him about finding DiLisio.

Annette Jones said that during a conversation with young Tony DiLisio in the summer of 1975, he told her "he'd gotten involved in some serious stuff."

DiLisio said, "A man named Joe had shown him two bodies in a grove in Altamonte (Springs) and that they had a contract out on his life, that he had to leave." Ms. Jones told Judge O.H. Eaton Jr. under protest from Spaziano lawyers.

"He told me he was afraid for his life and he was afraid for mine — to stay away from him because he was scared I'd get hurt."

Prosecutors called a number of other witnesses in the week-old hearing to link Spaziano and DiLisio in the 1970s, when the Outlaws biker hung around a boat-repair business operated by DiLisio's father, Ralph DiLisio Sr., in the Orlando suburb of Maitland.

One of those witnesses, DiLisio's sister, Frances Lepine of Key West, said she called her brother after his recantation story appeared in The Miami Herald in June 1995 and asked him why he was doing that.

DiLisio replied he was thinking of his death, concerned for his daughter and had been approached many times by Spaziano's friends in the Outlaws gang, Ms. Lepine testified.

"He told me he had been harassed and approached many times by Spaziano's people, the Outlaws, and attorneys and the press," she said.

Ms. Lepine said DiLisio also expressed fear for his daughter, Crystal.

"He said they could not even go to the store without being harassed," she told the judge.

Eaton has been given the task by the Florida Supreme Court to determine which DiLisio story is true and to decide whether the 50-year-old Spaziano should get a new trial. The ex-biker, described as a ruthless gang "enforcer" in the 1970s, has survived five death warrants.

DiLisio told Eaton last week he barely knew Spaziano in the 1970s, that he was not shown any bodies and that he did not hear Spaziano brag about torturing and killing women. He said police duped him and his father coerced him into testifying against the biker.

Timothy J. Loughran, who knew DiLisio as a teen-ager testified that he and Tony were sitting around smoking marijuana one day when, "He told me that a guy named Crazy Joe had taken him to a site near (State Roads) 434 and 436 and shown him a couple of bodies."

Spaziano, clean-shaven and wearing horn-rim glasses, whispered in the ear of one of his attorneys as Loughran testified.

Another prosecution witness, Edwin E. Housholter, said he was a boat rigger for Ralph DiLisio Sr. and he saw Anthony DiLisio and Spaziano together six or eight times.

"They looked like good buddies to me," he said.

Spaziano was convicted in the 1973 slaying of Laura Lyn Harberia. He is also serving a life sentence in the rape and knifing of a 16-year-old Orlando girl.

Rwandan castaways rescued

TOKYO — Fishermen off the coast of Japan have rescued two Rwandan stowaways who said they were evicted from a Singaporean ship on a raft of logs and oil drums, coast guard officials said Saturday.

Ally Mohamedi, 23, and Peter John, 27, told Japanese coast guard officials of the tortuous six-month-long journey that ended Friday with their rescue near Okinawa, about 1,000 miles southwest of Tokyo.

The two say they fled Rwanda in June and roamed around Africa until late October, when they stowed away in the Singapore-registered freighter Athol as it left South Africa, a Japanese coast guard official said on condition of anonymity.

Crew members discovered them four days later, and confined them to a cabin as the ship made port calls in Mauritius, Sri Lanka, Singapore, Vietnam, China and finally Saeki port in Oita prefecture (state) on the southern Japanese island of Kyushu on Jan. 6.

The official said the two told the coast guard they occasionally were let out of the room to work on the ship, and that in Mauritius and Singapore the crew turned the refugees over to immigration officials, who sent them back to the ship.

Mohamedi and John said that during ship inspections in China and Japan, they were hidden in the hold, and cooperated because they were afraid of being returned to Rwanda, which was ravaged by genocidal civil war in 1994.

The two said they were set adrift Thursday on their raft made of logs and six empty oil drums with 10 liters of water on orders by the captain. After the rescue, the Japanese coast guard radioed the ship's captain, who denied any connection with the two men and failed to answer further radio calls.

Immigration officials will contact their counterparts in other countries to figure out what happened and where the two men should go, the official said.

Slum fire leaves thousands homeless

JAKARTA, Indonesia — Fire raged through a Jakarta slum, destroying shacks and residences housing about 12,000 people, Indonesia's official news agency reported today.

The fire began as most of the residents in Muara Baru in the district of Penjaringan were at Friday prayer, the Antara news agency said.

It destroyed about 2,000 shacks and other dwellings, the news agency said.

Only three residents were injured, the Suara Pembaruan newspaper said. They had been helping firefighters put out the flames, the newspaper said.

The fire apparently started when a kerosene stove exploded.

Turning 50? Celebrate free at The Lido

PARIS — Best-known for its long-legged beauties strutting about in scanty costumes of sequins and feathers, the Lido reaches the half-century mark this year and is out to prove that life begins at 50.

Eager to draw a hipper audience from Paris and its suburbs, the famed Champs-Elysees cabaret is giving free tickets to anyone celebrating a 50th birthday this year.

"We want to attract more French people and at the same time, get rid of our image as middle-aged entertainment for the middle class," said Lido spokeswoman Sandrine Hecht.

Hecht said between 30 percent and 40 percent of the Lido's audience are foreigners, with Italians leading the pack. Germans place second, far ahead of North Americans.

The promotions also are aimed at drumming up business as France's deep economic slump continues to plague live entertainment.

The Lido is banking on an upturn, having spent $14 million last year on a major facelift, including extensive interior renovations.

The Lido show, including a half-bottle of champagne but not dinner, costs a steep $102, but Hecht said customers will get more for their money in 1998.

The new review, "C'est Magique" has a high-tech, all-American feel.

Lead dancers Kate Vanderliet and Steve Gogh hail from California, while special effects and lighting are the brainchild of Marilyn Loewe, best-known for her contributions to Michael Jackson's stage performances.

The Lido's Blue Bell girls are as sexy as ever, but wear contemporary costumes better adapted to the bouncing turbulence of rap, funk and pop music.

"They used to wear up to 35 pounds of feathers and could only walk on stage, whereas now they're actually dancing," Hecht said.

Chechen rebels await confrontation

PERVOMAYSKAYA, Russia — Chechen rebels reportedly forced some of their 118 hostages to occupy mined buses and others to dig trenches as they prepared today for a confrontation with Russian troops blocking their way home.

The Russian military dug its own ditches and moved up artillery around the village of Pervomayskaya near the Dagestan republic's border with Chechnya, where the troops stopped the separatist rebels Wednesday on their way back from a cross-border raid.

Talks between the guerrillas and Dagestani officials continued today. Rocket fire was heard in the distance, across the Chechen border, this morning, but its source was not clear.

The rebels seized more than 3,000 people in the Dagestani city of Kizlyar on Tuesday to press their demand for Russian troops' withdrawal from Chechnya. More than 40 people were killed in the raid.

Chechen rebel leader Dzhokhar Dudayev said he had personally ordered his son-in-law Salman Raduyev to carry out the raid, the first in a series meant to mark "the beginning of an end" of the 13-month-old war — and to force Russian forces to withdraw from the breakaway republic.

Dudayev said in interviews this week that Kizlyar was chosen because Russian military helicopters used its airfield during a battle last month at the Chechen city of Gudermes. Before the Chechen fighters seized the hospital Tuesday, they had tried to attack the airfield.

The guerrillas released the great majority of their hostages before leaving for Chechnya on Wednesday, but they kept scores to ensure their safe passage home.

The 118 remaining hostages holed up in the village with the rebels include 20 women and children, said Dagestan's deputy interior minister, Gennady Shpigun.

The roughly 150 rebels promised Friday to release all the captives if top Russian politicians take their place. But the Russian government showed no sign of backing down from its demand that all hostages must be released before the rebels are allowed to enter Chechnya.

President Boris Yeltsin appeared to give a mixed message in the five-day hostage crisis.

Chief Dagestani negotiator Magomedali Magomedov said Yeltsin voiced support Friday for efforts to find a peaceful solution. But Yeltsin also stressed that "the bandits must not go unpunished," Magomedov said.

"We shall be looking for the best option," Magomedov said.

In a similar hostage-taking in June, Prime Minister Viktor Chernomyrdin held televised negotiations with rebel guerrillas and allowed them to escape to Chechnya, where they released the last of their hostages.

This time, the Kremlin and the Russian public, weary of the 13-month war in Chechnya and continuing rebel raids, might support the use of force.

Eagle Scout project

Boy Scout Harry Ellis III (right) needs help to complete a boardwalk he is constructing as an outdoor classroom for students at Sanford Middle School. The boardwalk is Ellis' Eagle Scout project. The project, which consists of renovating the school's original boardwalk and extending it by 320 feet, could be finished this winter if more funds are donated. For $30, individuals and businesses can buy a boardwalk plank with their name rounted into it. Once complete, the boardwalk will serve as an outdoor classroom for middle school students. Pictured, Ellis is joined by his father, Harry Jr., and other scouts from Boy Scout Troop 507. For more information on the project or donating, please contact the Ellis family at 330-3240 or Principal Moore at Sanford Middle School, 322-3063.

Clinton praises peacekeepers

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent

TUZLA, Bosnia-Herzegovina — With a fearsome backdrop of military weaponry, President Clinton Saturday called the NATO peacekeeping effort a mission for heroes that is moving ahead "step by steady step."

Addressing 850 American soldiers, all dressed in full combat gear at the heavily-armed U.S. base, the commander-in-chief said, "We thank you here for being warriors for peace."

"Sir, we are committed to do our duty and we will succeed," said Maj. Gen. William Nash, commander of U.S. forces in Bosnia.

Even with the words of optimism, signs of the region's instability abounded. A Bradley fighting vehicle and Apache attack helicopter loomed behind the president. Military police with guard dogs prowled the area, and radar dishes circled. Clinton was not expected to venture from the heavily-secured base to view any of the damage wrought by three and a half years of war.

Members of the 1st Armored Division brass band played for Clinton while wearing bulky flak jackets with M-16s slung over their backs. "Who says you can't play trombone in a flak jacket?" Nash quipped. On a more serious note, he said, "I think the president is perfectly safe."

Arriving at the tarmac in a Humvee, Clinton praised U.S. soldiers — "the veterans of the Tuzla mud" — for working with NATO troops in rain and flood to lay the groundwork for the fragile peacekeeping mission. He noted the struggle to build a bridge across the Sava River, and said 2,000 vehicles have rolled across it in the last two weeks.

"To Bosnia you came on the mission of peace, a mission for heroes," he said.

In a whirlwind day of stops, Clinton visited Avlano, Italy; Tazsar, Hungary; and was going to Croatia before returning home early Sunday.

Over and over he spoke directly to the soldiers, who responded with loud cheers.

—In Bosnia: "I came with a simple message: Your country is very proud of you."

—At Avlano: "Let me say now, good luck and Godspeed. You are heroes for peace."

—In Hungary: "The operation in Bosnia is moving ahead — step by step, steadily, surely and safely."

Clinton taped his radio address in Tazsar, telling American audiences that the Bosnia people are "looking to our soldiers to help them make a new beginning."

"It was nice he came over to let us know he's proud of us," said Specialist Travis Siegler, 21, of Phoenix, who was moving into Bosnia on Monday.

Sgt. Darvin Graham of Pompano Beach, Fla., joked, "If he wants to impress me, he ought to come live with me for a little while."

With the public and Congress still skeptical about the mission,

Clinton hoped the trip would remind Americans of the mission's importance.

Congress, which has expressed support for the troops but concern about the mission itself, sent a 10-member bipartisan delegation along with Clinton. The group included House International Relations Committee Chairman Benjamin Gilman, R-N.Y., and House Appropriations Committee Chairman Bob Livingston, R-La., a critic of the president who expressed concern about American casualties.

"You're never going to eliminate the risks," Livingston told reporters aboard Air Force One en route to the region. "But these guys are well-trained, well-equipped. They're capable of doing this job. But only if we give them the support from back home that they also need."

Despite the tenuous nature of the peace that NATO soldiers are trying to keep, Clinton sounded upbeat throughout the whirlwind trip.

"Given the level of animosity which has existed ... I think the climate has been quite good," Clinton told reporters aboard the C-17 cargo plane he flew to Hungary and later to Bosnia. The plane carried mail, 200 cases of Coca-Cola and 5,000 Hershey bars.

"I'm not trying to minimize the problems. They're significant. But on balance I'm more hopeful now after the first few days of this mission," he said.

He met with Bosnia President Alija Izetbegovic in Tuzla and was meeting with Croatian President Franjo Tudjman to urge the leaders to implement the peace plan.

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

No-Tap Tournament

Bowl America-Sanford will hold a No-Tap Tournament starting this Thursday, January 16th at 9:15 p.m. For details contact Dottie at Bowl America-Sanford for details.

Sanford Softball Tournament

SANFORD — Sanford will be the site for a Men's Class C slowpitch softball tournament the weekend of January 18-21.

Cost for the double elimination event will be $125 per team with a deadline for entry on Thursday, January 18 at 5 p.m.

First, 2nd and 3rd place team awards and 1st and 2nd place individual awards will be given. For more information please call 330-5697.

Seminole alumni baseball

SANFORD — Seminole High School will be hosting its annual alumni baseball game/barbecue on Saturday, January 20th at 11 a.m.

Expected to attend the game are New York Yankees outfielder Tim Lincecum and Cincinnati Bengals quarterback Jeff Blake. There will also be a silent auction for baseball memorabilia signed by Lincecum and Blake.

Interested players should call Mike Powers (322-6723) or Bobby Lundquist (322-4352).

Spring softball offered

CASSELBERRY — Seminole County Parks & Recreation will offer Spring Softball Leagues at its Seminole County Softball Complex and Red Bug Lake Park starting on February 19.

Signups will continue until February 9. Cost for the 10-week season is $325 ($260 for league fee, $40 for a dozen Worth Blue Dot softballs, and $25 for ASA and trophy fee).

For further information, call the Seminole County Softball Complex at 788-0609 or Red Bug Lake Park at 695-7113.

Magic moves

ORLANDO — The Orlando Magic placed forward Horace Grant on the injured list Friday with a stress fracture in his lower left leg that will sideline him at least five games.

Meanwhile, the Magic activated forward Jeff Turner and announced a road date against Philadelphia, which was postponed on Jan. 8, has been rescheduled for March 4.

Another Magic comeback

ORLANDO — Dennis Scott scored 37 points and Anfernee Hardaway had 30 as Orlando rallied from 13 down to stay unbeaten at home with a 93-88 win over the Milwaukee Bucks.

Hardaway and Brian Shaw each made a pair of free throws as the Atlantic Division leaders improved to 20-0 at home despite playing without Shaquille O'Neal and Horace Grant.

Glenn Robinson had 31 points and 11 rebounds, while Vin Baker had 29 points and 11 rebounds for the Bucks.

AROUND THE STATE

Gators ground Gamecocks

GAINESVILLE — Greg Williams scored a career-high 26 points, 12 of them from 3-point range, as Florida topped South Carolina 81-69.

Eddie Shannon had 14 points for the Florida Gators (6-7, 1-2 Southeastern Conference), while LeRon Williams scored 12 points and grabbed eight rebounds. Dametri Hill added 11 points.

ELSEWHERE

Hoyas hold off Hurricanes

LANDOVER, Md. — Allen Iverson set a Big East single-game record with 10 steals and scored 29 points as fifth-ranked Georgetown held off a late Miami rally in a 72-67 victory.

Iverson had six 3-pointers, but it was Jerry Nichols' 3-pointer with 52 seconds remaining that helped seal the victory after Miami nearly overcame a 17-point deficit. Kevin Norris' 3-pointer had closed the gap to 68-67 before Nichols responded with his big basket.

NC State drops FSU

RALEIGH, N.C. — Al Pinkins scored all 11 of his points in a six-minute stretch of the second half on Saturday, helping North Carolina State rally for a 71-65 victory over Florida State.

Lake Mary boys stay hot with win over Seminole

By GARY COATMAN
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Wesley Jackson scored 24 points Friday to lead Lake Mary past Seminole 74-54 in Seminole Athletic Conference boys basketball action.

"I still don't think we have hit our stride yet," said Lake Mary coach Willie Richardson. "We thought we might have a letdown after we beat Oviedo, but we came out and got our game plan established early. Seminole never quit, and it's nice to get a win."

Jason Junker gave Lake Mary an early 6-0 lead, and Paul Belk extended that advantage to 10-2 with 4:06 remaining in the first quarter. A three point play by Nate Hall pulled Seminole within 17-15 at the end of the period. A Mequial Bush three point field goal gave Arrow Force IV its only lead of the game 18-17 to start the second quarter.

Junker and Jackson each hit two three pointers and Matt Townsley added a three point play to lead Lake Mary to a 38-22 lead in the second quarter. Jackson had 10 points in the period, and the Rams took a 40-24 lead into the locker room. Lake Mary scored the first 13 points of the second half for a 53-24 lead.

ORLANDO — It was an anticipated matchup, two district foes with winning records but different expectations.

The Lake Howell Silver Hawks, a young team playing for the future, entered the contest trying to avenge a 67-39 thrashing they received on Dec. 8.

Oviedo High School, trying to win another state championship, was looking for revenge after losing 28-14 in a football matchup. "It's always tough to play at Lake Howell," Oviedo Head Coach Ed Bolton said.

However, with all the pre-game hype, the rubber match was no contest. The Oviedo Lions again proved to be the better team, winning 61-42 Friday night in front of a packed Lake Howell auditorium.

Junior guard Chris Sanders, a two-sport star who averages 24 minutes a game, scored a season high 23 points, in addition to pulling down five rebounds.

"Chris, being a football player, wanted this game," Bolton said. "He is our best athlete."

Lake Mary girls run wild on the road

From Staff Reports

LAKELAND — Senior center Lori Hammett scored 14 points and nine other Rams found the scoring column as Lake Mary crushed Lake Region 63-19 in a girls' basketball game in Lakeland Friday night.

The 6-foot-3 Hammett was the only Ram to hit for double figures, but Courtney Harris netted nine points, Stephanie Dale, Debbie Duber and Angi Woodall added eight points each and Jennifer Jaeger chipped in with seven points.

Robin Turly led the Thunder (4-10) with eight points. Lake Mary (17-1) will host Lyman

What's Up in the NFL...The Playoffs

Well here we are. Today's games determine who plays in the Super Bowl on January 28th.

The AFC Championship game (WESH 2, 12:30 p.m.) offers total excitement as the Pittsburgh Steelers host the Indianapolis Colts.

Under the emotional leadership of Bill Cowher, the Steelers thrashed my beloved Bills last Saturday. The "Cinderella" Colts have surprised the entire country by beating the Kansas City Chiefs at Arrowhead Stadium and advancing to the playoffs for the first time since the year Span was invented.

In the NFC Championship game (WOFL Fox 35, 4 p.m.) the Dallas Cowboys and the Green Bay Packers do battle.

The Cowboys arrived by stomping the Eagles last week in what should have been a much closer game. The Packers earned the opportunity by stunning the defending World Champion San Francisco Forty-Niners last week. The hopes and dreams of millions of fans ride on the outcome of today's games.

Before we get to football, I must comment on an achievement by one of my colleagues. Tony "Guru" has shocked fans of golf by winning back-to-back tournaments. His latest victims were bagged at the Winter Invitational at Doral. Frank "The Money Man" Chapter and Geer "I Know The Madman" Freedson were at a loss for words as their friend rolled to consecutive victories.

Not only does Tony bring the trophy to a local shelf for a year, he brings a wad of cash to Sanford's economy. In the spirit of Jeff Blake, Tim Raines and Jim Courier, "Guru" has brought a bit of glory to Seminole County.

Last week's LOCK OF THE WEEK failed me. Ray Rhodes was unable to prepare his troops for a desperate Cowboy squad. This unfortunate incident has lowered my LOCK record to 15-8. While this record is well above average, I'm haunted by a lingering sense of guilt.

To make amends, I personally guarantee that I will make up for it this week. Not only will I get your money back with one winner, I am declaring this week a DOUBLE LOCK OF THE WEEK. That's right my fellow football fans, today we break the chains of poverty and cast off Christmas debt. With only two games on the slate, there is no room for mistakes.

Sadly enough the day has come. The Miami Dolphins, in what I consider a travesty, have hired Jimmy Johnson as head coach. I won't dwell on the fact that I predicted this exact scenario six weeks ago, but I will offer some additional insight.

Johnson is not the cure that Wayne, or the fair-weather fans that watch his team, think he will be. What Jimmy did in Dallas was made possible by one thing, cash.

When Johnson arrived in Dallas he was greeted by an owner, Jerry Jones, that would spend any amount of money necessary to win the Super Bowl. Jones still exhibits this type of behavior. Have you heard how much he's paying Deion? My point is simple, but saddening for the true football fan.

When you have an owner that is addicted to winning and has no qualms spending obscene amounts of money, success is inevitable.

Jimmy Johnson will probably get a blank check in Miami, and will more than likely win as a result. This, however, does not qualify him as a great coach, and only means that Pepsi will become the official beverage of Joe Robbie Stadium. Crest is the official toothpaste of the Dolphins, and Toyota is the official car of the Miami Dolphins.

The list will grow as more money is spent on players, but the same question is raised over and over. Who really owns the team? Jimmy Johnson? Wayne Huizenga? Pepsi? I'm not sure of the answer, but I can tell you a group that has absolutely no claim to the Dolphin franchise under the reign of Jimmy Johnson, the fans.

The sad reality is that the fans who are thrilled with Johnson's arrival have lost all concept of what it is to cheer for a local sports team. Next season, their Sunday's will be simple. They'll wake up and brush their teeth (Crest), drive to Joe Robbie Stadium (Toyota), and pay $4.50 for a 16oz. Pepsi. Mindless madness and we have nobody to blame but ourselves.

On a happier note, let's take a look at today's schedule and find some winners.

PITTSBURGH (-11) VS. INDIANAPOLIS
The Steelers seem ready to do battle as the tired Colts make their way into Three Rivers Stadium.

The Steelers didn't look as good as the score last week, but Cowher has this team pumped. The "Steel Curtain" has returned as the Pittsburgh defense continues to put fear in the lives of grown men. The offense, which has sputtered at times, seems to be clicking at just the right time.

Kevin Greene has stated that he will not get a haircut until the Steelers have won the Super Bowl. I'm not sure what his wife has to say about that, but it leads me to believe they will win this game. The question that remains is whether they will cover the spread.

The Colts. What can you say about that team?

Without Marshall Faulk they have survived the many perils of the NFL playoffs. Jim Harbaugh has the offense rolling and opponents have to respect their rebuilt running game. The Colt defense is quick, mean, and has a knack for taking advantage of mistakes. However, this team needed three missed field goals to get by Kansas City last week but won't get any help from the Steelers.

Americans love to cheer for the "Cinderella" teams, but I deal in reality. It's a minute after midnight, and the Steelers will kick this pumpkin until it's nothing more than a pulpy puddle in the parking lot of the Stadium. Oweedo would love me for this. Steelers 43, Colts 6.

DALLAS (-9) VS. GREEN BAY

I can't wait for this game. The Packers come into this one after pulling off one of the biggest upsets of the year. Their defense looked absolutely vicious last week as they terrorized Steve Young. My west coast associate has told me that he is still in group therapy as he rambles on about Sean Jones, Reggie White, and some Polish guy that Big Al keeps bringing up.

Brett Favre, the same guy I was serving bourbon to five years ago, continues to perform as a gutsy quarterback. Do you realize that if Favre gets hurt, Jim McMahon would play? Mike claims that he would be up to the job, but I'm skeptical. In all seriousness, this team has the ability to win this game.

The Cowboys, led by Barry "Martini", will have different plans.

They have one thing that San Francisco failed to produce against the Packers, a running game.

Tippy, Mike, and Rusty cornered me in the parking lot of Winn-Dixie the other day. They were furious that I picked the Eagles to beat Dallas last week. They told me that if I picked Green Bay to beat the Cowboys, they would break all the bottles in their recycling bin on my porch. I'm not Kung-Fu. I can't walk on glass.

The Cowboys will win this game, but take the points and hustle to the bank. Favre will keep it close. Cowboys 27, Packers 20.

Remember, these selections make up my DOUBLE LOCK OF THE WEEK, when the smoke clears my LOCK record will be 17-8. This will give you more than enough confidence to let the mortgage ride on my Super Bowl selection.

Good luck today, and don't worry about mowing the lawn, let nature take it's course.

Bass catch limited at Rodman

The Game and Freshwater Fish Commission (GFC) will impose a temporary regulation to protect largemouth bass during the drawdown of Rodman Reservoir near Ocala.

Beginning January 1, anglers may keep only one fish over 24 inches long per day. All other bass must be released unharmed immediately. The regulation will be enforced through April 30.

"The Temporary regulation is needed to protect fish during the drawdown because they are more vulnerable during low-water periods," said GCF biologist Jim Estes.

The reservoir is being partially drained by the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) for aquatic plant control. DEP officials expect the water level to be at its lowest point by January 1. The reservoir will begin to refill in April, and should be back to normal by May depending on rainfall.

Estes said the largemouth bass population is quite healthy. Fishing during the drawdown can be highly productive because fish become concentrated into a smaller area.

Bass fishing during the Rodman drawdown is nothing short of fantastic if you know where to fish. The reservoir itself is hundreds of acres of flooded timber, and bass are tough to locate in this environment. I prefer to fish the barge canal itself, which has a fairly defined border during the low water period. Ditches and creeks running out of the flooded timber into the barge canal provide travel routes for bass, and the fish cannot resist large wild shiners freed-lined in such honey holes.

OUTDOORS

Fish in the 5-8 pound range are fairly common, and I will always catch a bass over the 10 pound mark after several trips.

RALLY AND COVER A LOT OF WATER.

FISHING FORECAST
Bass action will be a little slow with the influx of water during the recent rains. The river went up, as well as the local lakes, and bass are swimming around in newly flooded territories. Large shiners and plastic worms are tough to beat this time of year, as bass prefer to feed on larger food items to conserve energy.

Flounder are the big news as Sebastian Inlet, as "doormats" in the 8-10 pound range are biting finger mullet bounced slowly across the rock bottom. Small bluefish, redfish and a few snook (season closed) are also biting.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral has little to report in the way of offshore action due to high seas. Cobia will be on the wrecks, and king mackerel will be on the reefs when seas permit. Inside the port, expect good action for sheepshead and flounder. Trout and redfish are rated as fair in the Banana and Indian rivers.

Huge sheepshead are the main attraction at Ponce Inlet. The hole at the tip of the north jetty is the hotspot for the big ones. Fiddler crabs or live shrimp are top baits. Small bluefish, drum and a few redfish are also roaming around the rock.

Ship ahoy<sup>3</sup> Boat sales booming

By BILL SCHULZ
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA — The ship has come in for the United States' boating industry. Sales grew by double digits again last year, getting close to the record set in 1988.

A record this year "in terms of dollars is certainly possible," said Jeff Napier, president of the National Marine Manufacturers Association. "If we have another year with a 5 to 10 percent growth rate, which is very doable, we'll have a record."

Sales of boats and marine equipment hit $17.2 billion in 1989, about $500 million short of the 1988 record and 22 percent above 1984 sales, which had eclipsed 1983 by 25 percent.

Sales of big inboard cruisers, which average $213,000 apiece, rose to 5,460 units, according to industry estimates, up 30 percent from 4,200 units in 1984.

Sales of little personal watercraft, which average $5,700 each, rose to 200,000 units, up 40.1 percent.

"I don't know how high 'up' is on this one," Napier said in a telephone interview. "A few years ago we only sold 50,000 a year. About half the buyers are first-time buyers, which means this is a growth market."

Personal watercraft made up nearly one-third of all new boats sold, totaling $1.1 billion. Big cruisers brought in $1.2 billion.

Chicago-based NMMA credited the increasing sales of big boats to the repeal of the 10 percent luxury tax in 1983. It said personal watercraft are selling well because of their low price tags and because they are a lot of fun.

"Considering the chilling effect on sales of 1989's cold, wet spring across much of the country, our industry performance was impressive," Napier said. He said the very hot summer across much of the country boosted sales.

Outboard-powered boats continued to be top sellers with 231,000 units, up slightly from 220,000 a year earlier. In addition, 317,000 outboard motors were sold, up from 308,000.

The only categories with sales declines were inboard runabouts, 8,900, down from 7,200, and canoes, 97,800, down from 99,800.

Sailboat sales were 13,839, up from 12,957, according to the Sailing Business 1990 forecast.

Florida led the way in sales with $911 million in purchases of boats, motors, trailers and accessories. Michigan was second at $461 million, followed by Texas, $381 million; California, $368 million; and New York, $301 million.

Educator to retire after 46 years in mission field

After 46 years in mission work, Elizabeth Howell has returned to her native Florida from Japan where she taught at a girls' school at Fukuoka Jo Gakuin. She also served previously as chancellor and acting principal at the school.

Ms. Howell visited the First United Methodist Church last weekend. Among the other church activities in which she was involved, Ms. Howell led the children's chat at the 11 a.m. worship service and taught the children how to sing "Jesus Loves Me" in Japanese. She spoke to the church at 4 p.m. that day and addressed the United Methodist Women on Monday, Jan. 8, which was followed by a brunch at 11 a.m.

"It was great," Lottie Echols, president of the UMW, said. "We had a good turnout in spite of the cold weather."

A native of Center Hill, Ms. Howell received her BA degree in education/ English from Florida Southern College in Lakeland. She holds a MA degree from Scarritt College, Nashville, and has done further study at Columbia University Teachers College in New York and Japanese Language School, Kobe, Japan.

Ms. Howell's missionary experience began in 1948 when she entered the mission field as a short term missionary to Seibi Gakuen, Yokohama. She was reassigned as a commissioned missionary in 1953, this time serving in Fukuoka.

Her responsibilities have involved participating in various administrative committees for the Fukuoka Girls School in the Kyushu district, from kindergarten through college. Also, she has been involved in the Christian education program of the high school and taught

Chamber to present awards at banquet

Jan. 25 is the big night when the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce puts on the Ritz and passes out honors to the community. The big bash will be held at Timacuan Country Club.

In addition to awards, patrons and members will be treated to a silent auction and cocktails at 6 p.m., dinner and awards at 7 p.m., and a live auction at 8 p.m. There will also be entertainment and a variety of attractive prizes.

Seating is limited to 300, so get your reservations in by Jan. 18 by calling the chamber at 322-2212. Tickets are $30 per person or $400 for a corporate table of 10.

The following awards will be presented: The Sports Hall of Fame, the 1995 Topper Award and the Luis Perez Humanitarian of the Year.

The Humanitarian award was established in honor of Dr. Luis Perez, a beloved Sanford physician who served the community for years.

Nominations for all awards have been sent to the chamber. The Woman's Club of Sanford Inc. has nominated one of its diligent volunteers, Isabel Wilson, for the coveted award.

Holiday house-warming

A number of guests from Sanford attended a big house-warming/open house on Dec. 16 at the new home of David E. Stamm, formerly of Sanford. David opened up his home, a two-story dream house on eight acres at the Springs in Longwood, to about 180 guests.

The home was decorated by David's sister, Katrina Stamm of Sanford, which she describes as "an understated elegance updated traditional style." Katrina also decorated the home for the holidays using ornate wreaths she made and over 3000 lights.

David, who owns On Site Management in Maitland, is the son of Ruth Stamm of Sanford.

Daylily buffs branch out

For a number of years, Jean and Bill Norris have been avid fanciers of daylilies and they have left their mark on numerous growers and enthusiasts. Jean and Bill were charter members of the Sunbelt Daylily Club when it was organized in 1979. "We had our first show in 1980," Jean said.

Bill was the American Hemerocallis Society convention chairman in 1994 which was held in Orlando. Daylily fanciers from around the world attended this event.

Just recently, Jean was elected the AHS exhibition chairman for a three-year term. All accredited daylily show plans are coordinated through Jean.

They are looking forward to the 17th show in May when judges from all over the southeast will be on hand. Jean said that up to four years ago this central Florida show was the only one in the nation. At the spring show, the Norrises will conduct clinics to teach patrons how to become an accredited daylily show judge.

In addition to their involvement with daylilies and their church, Jean and Bill are Precinct 10 leaders in Lake Mary. She is a former president of the Seminole County Democratic Women's Club and a member of the Seminole County Democratic Executive Committee.

SHS pageant coming

Excitement is mounting at Seminole High School in preparation of the Miss SHS Pageant which is coming up Saturday night, Feb. 10. This is a big night for the school and is usually very well attended with cheering supporters.

It was certainly a big night for our family when our granddaughter Laurie was crowned Miss SHS a couple of years ago.

600 expected to play league ball

Lake Mary Little League began registering for its new season, Saturday, Jan. 6, at Kmart in Lake Mary and Sanford. Registration was also held at area schools throughout the week. League officials expect 600 players to sign up this year.

The new girls' softball league, which began in the fall, is expected to be bigger and better this season. The league will have a minor, major and senior softball division this year. Little League also hopes to have

Cheerleaders compete nationally

The Lake Mary High School junior varsity cheerleaders coached by Jim Kelly placed first in the Universal Cheerleading Association Regional Competition held in Fernandina Beach last month. This award entitled the squad to compete in the National High School Cheerleading Competition to be held in February at the MGM Studios of Disney World.

The cheerleaders are frantically trying to raise money for accommodations and entry fees through car washes, gift wrapping, and business sponsors to attend the three-day competitive event. There will be high school cheerleading squads from all over the country competing for the treasured national awards standing.

According to Coach Kelly, "The athletes are working hard to improve in areas that are not necessarily their strengths; for example, almost all the cheerleaders have a standing back handspring, which is admirable since there are only four 'tumbler' on the squad. As we continue to improve and practice sessions become more intense," says Kelly. "There is no reason why we should not easily place within the top ten."

If you are interested in contributing to the Lake Mary High School junior varsity cheerleaders fund-raising effort, please contact Jerry Shelly at 321-1755.

Boys Soccer Team starts tradition

Eleven years ago, Coach Larry McCorkle noticed that the boys on the soccer field seemed asleep on Saturday morning before a scheduled game. To counteract what he described as a pattern of observed negative behavior, he asked a parent of one of the players to host a breakfast prior to the next morning or early afternoon game "to help the athletes establish a routine of getting up early and being ready for the event of the day, as well as the camaraderie and sense of team spirit it provided." It worked and it is now a tradition begun by Coach McCorkle with the Lake Mary High School boys' varsity soccer team.

Another tradition established by the coach was to initiate the parents' support in sponsoring the "after game get-together" on Friday or Saturday nights where the athletes would gather to watch a video of their game with coach's commentary, and eat, and eat and eat (usually pizza).

Last weekend, prior to the Lake Mary-Tampa Berkley match, Lynn and Judy Jennings (of high scorer Dustin Garber fame) hosted a breakfast for the varsity soccer team. Sixty eggs, 10 pounds of sausage links, approximately 175 pancakes, 64 grand size biscuits, and gallons and gallons of orange juice were consumed by the 24-man team. Thanks to the Jennings' great organizational skills, two ovens and a restaurant-style microwave, everything went smoothly and the great tradition will continue.

AARP to install

The Winter Springs AARP Chapter 4949 will hold its annual installation of directors and officers for the 1996 year during the monthly meeting to be held Monday, Jan. 15, at 1 p.m. at the Winter Springs Senior Center, 400 N. Edgemon Ave.

In addition to the installation ceremonies, Robert Barr, a well-known ambassador for the Eastman Kodak Company, will present "Tips for Better Pictures," a slide film presentation. Barr will conduct an outdoor tour of the facility, weather permitting, demonstrating ways to take better pictures. There will also be time permitted for questions and answers, and members are encouraged to bring their cameras. Barr was the resident manager of the Kodak Pavilion at Walt Disney World for several years after retiring from Eastman Kodak where he was employed for over 35 years.

Light refreshments will be served without charge. Guests are welcome. For further information, call 695-4864.

Getting ready to rehearse for the Martin Luther King Jr. celebration are members of the Celebration Choir: Ruth Wilson, Gena Joseph, Marvin Ellison, Rebecca Brown, Kay Garner, Rich Martin, Betty J. Williams, Krystal Garner, Louise Gibson and Sylvia Stallworth.

King celebration Monday

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday observance tomorrow will see many people of all races, colors, creeds and faith joined together in celebration. They will be reminded of the principles Dr. King espoused. The national celebration of Dr. King's birthday was established by executive order in 1985 and adopted by the Florida Commemorative Commission. The holiday is set aside to develop programs that promote Dr. King's philosophy of non-violence for social change. This year's theme is "Help Somebody! Every American Can Make a Difference."

SANFORD

MARVA HAWKINS

The closing observance for the MLK Steering Committee will be the inter-faith religious service today at 2 p.m. at the Sanford Civic Center.

Guest speaker will be former Sanfordite, Maj. Richard Matthews, U.S. Army, a young man of God who is daily keeping "the dream alive."

Churches, pastors, ministers of all faiths are invited to share in this worship endeavor.

Music for the occasion will be rendered by the Dr. Martin Luther King Celebration Choir. The choir has acquired a position of prominence throughout the community. It consists of singers of all cultural backgrounds representing various religious faiths. The choir has performed at many functions blending their beautiful voices in unison. See Hawkins, Page 5B

Mr. and Mrs. Charles August Fischer II

Monica L. Stokes becomes bride of Charles Fischer II

OVIDO — Monica Lin Stokes and Charles August Fischer II are announcing their marriage today. They were married Sept. 23, 1995, at 6 p.m., at First Baptist Church of Oviedo. Dr. Dwayne Mercer performed the traditional ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a floor-length, white tulle gown, decorated with white beading and sequins. The sweetheart neckline was highlighted by large puffed sleeves, ending just above the elbow. Fitted lace sleeves descended to the wrist. Her chapel-length, illusion veil was held by a Victorian wreath headpiece. She carried a large cascading bouquet of peach and white roses, freesia and Queen Anne's lace, interspersed with ivy.

Katie Stokes, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore a floor-length green taffeta gown accented by puffed sleeves. The fitted bodice was covered with an overlay of white lace. She carried a cascading bouquet of freesia, and blush roses interspersed with ivy.

Bridesmaids were Betsy Gorby, Melissa Fischer, sister-in-law of the groom, and Samantha Rocker. Their gowns and flowers were identical to the honor attendant's.

Christopher Fischer, brother of the groom, served as best man.

Dieter Gleason, Ryan Stahl and Christopher Stokes, the bride's brother, served as groomsmen.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Tusawilla Country Club, Oviedo.

After a wedding trip to Cayman Islands, the newlyweds are making their home in Raleigh, N.C.

The bride is an accountant for the firm of Watson and Peit, Raleigh, and the groom is regional supervisor for the American Company, Raleigh.

Susana Huaman, I.K. Dragosavac exchange vows

HEATHROW — Susana Lorene Huaman and Irving Karl Dragosavac are announcing their marriage today. They were married July 29, 1995, at 6:30 p.m., at Heathrow Country Club. Capt. Gregory Franks officiated at the outdoor ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gonzalo Huaman of Sanford, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Irving Watson of St. Leonards-on-Sea, England.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a formal chapel-length gown of gold silk tulle by Christian Dior. The gown was accented with a sage and dusty rose cummerbund which encircled the bride's gown and created three bows in the back with designer roses flowing. Silk roses held the shoulder length veil and blusher. She carried a cascading bouquet of cream Asiatic lilies, champagne roses, serena alstromeria, ariana roses, waxflower and ivy.

Dana Kaplan, Longwood, was the vocalist. Readings were given by Mark Huaman, Sanford, brother of the bride; Kim Johnson, San Francisco; and Maria Watson, St. Leonards-on-Sea, sister of the groom.

Alicia Huaman, New York City, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaid were: Jeannette Coleman, Miami; Deborah Ford-Peters, New York City; Dr. Shannon Mate Huaman, Middleburg, sister-in-law of the bride; Tracy Morgan, Sanford; and Rose Speer, Lake Mary.

Colin McKinney, Dundee, Scotland, served as best man. Groomsmen were: Bernardo Aragon, Miami; Dr. Kevin Huaman, Middleburg, brother of the bride; Jon Slater, Tampa; and Andrew Watson, Cardiff, Wales, brother of the groom. Ushers were: Steve Garrett,

Mrs. Irving K. Dragosavac

LaGrange, Ga., cousin of the bride; Mark Huaman, Sanford, brother of the bride; and Patrick Lulley, New York City.

Ian Monson, Heathrow, served as ringbearer. Kay Fukui, Caselberry, was the flower girl.

Guestbook attendants were Dawn Huaman, Lima, Peru, aunt of the bride; and Michelle Watson, St. Leonards-on-Sea, sister of the groom.

Following the ceremony, a cocktail and dinner reception was held at the club. Vivian Calhoun created the wedding cake.

Following a trip to Europe, the couple are making their home in Altamonte Springs. They are both self-employed with Transcultural Corporation, Longwood.

Hobbyists of the Week

Model cars bring couple together

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

DELTONA — Terry Deyne and her husband of one and a half years, Michael, have found a hobby in which they can participate together. Their creations of over six model cars since their marriage has added a bonding to the relationship.

Michael has actually constructed over 50 cars since he was a child. The couple did work on several cars while dating.

The duo have found that sports cars take on a whole new light when they are assembled with their own hands. "We've made Corvettes, Celicas and Nissan's," said Deyne. "We just like to work on all different sports cars."

For beginners Deyne recommended "snap-on" models. "We've worked with snap-ons and those you glue," she said.

They have discovered that brands such as "Tamiya and Revell" purchased at Wal-Mart Department Store chains have become their favorite. Most emblems and stickers are included in the kits according to Deyne but additional parts as well as paint and glue may be purchased to customize the model car.

She spoke of a recent addition to the collection. "The most recent car we made together was a Celica," she said. "It was assembled in a little over a day. I did the painting. It was painted passion purple. My husband bragged a lot about this being the best one. It has the Celica emblem on the back and even headlights. It was made to a tee."

They are presently working on a display case for their many treasures. They hope to have it completed soon.

"I enjoy our time together," said Deyne. "It's great to be able to sit down, be together and enjoy something you can work on with each other. It's so relaxing for both of us."

In their spare time the couple work with the youth chorus and the young adult group at the church they attend, Our Lady of the Lakes Catholic Church in Deltona. They have resided in this area for one and a half years.

Deyne has been a library clerk with the Seminole County Public Library in Sanford also for one and a half years.

This year's inter-faith service is dedicated to the memory of the choir's late founder and director, Mary Whitehurst. Mrs. Whitehurst, like Dr. King, "had a dream," and in 1967, the choir was organized. This dedicated Christian woman loved music, and loved people. She offered her special talents to the community over eight years.

Special guests will be the Youth Workshop Choir of the Sanford/Central Florida Interdenominational Musicians' Guild.

Helping hands

There are still those in this community who see the needs of others and join hand in hand to make them feel wanted and cared for. The Rev. Eddie Martin, Rose Hill Baptist Church, Mt. Zion Baptist Church, Progress Baptist, C.D. Royal and other corporations joined hands and gave from their pockets and hearts 58 food baskets to feed a family of four for a week; $320 in gift certificates bought other food items needed. Over $1,800 was raised to feed the needy.

The Rev. Martin and his committee are looking forward to another "Help the Needy" project. Martin said, "If we join hands, we can help others in need."

Happy birthday

Happy birthdays go out to Ralph Oliver, Michael Hall, Christina Hall, Veronica Hickley and Monique Brown.

Adult volunteers are still needed as managers for Minor Baseball, T-Ball 1 and 2, Girls Major and Senior Softball. If you're interested in managing a team, please call Scott Williams at 323-8740.

If you missed T-ball registration, but your child still wants to play, you can call player agent Randy Reed at 322-0624. Registration is only $20 for each child. Little League believes that no child should be denied the opportunity to play due to financial difficulties. Scholarships are available.

Baseball tryouts will be held this week at the Lake Mary Sports Complex. For 9 and 10-year-olds, tryouts will be held Tuesday, Jan. 16 at 6 p.m.; for 11- and 12-year olds, Wednesday, Jan. 17 at 6 p.m.; for juniors and seniors, Thursday, Jan. 18 at 6 p.m. Softball tryouts for all ages will be held at the Sports Complex Thursday, Jan. 18 at 6 p.m.

Opening Day is scheduled for Sunday, Feb. 18 at 1 p.m. at the Lake Mary Sports Complex.

AARP meets Tuesday

The January meeting of the Lake Mary chapter of the AARP is scheduled for this Tuesday, Jan. 16, at 1 p.m. The AARP will be discussing upcoming community service projects. They will also be donating money to Safehouse of Seminole County and Meals on Wheels.

The Lake Mary Quilters are almost through with their maple leaf quilt. They could use a little help in the final stages, so if you can help them out, stop by the Frank Evans Center any Wednesday between 9 a.m. and noon.

Senior volunteers will be honored at the next Lake Mary City Commission meeting, Thursday, Jan. 18 at 7 p.m. Come and show your gratitude and support for these volunteers.
