Lambert Nabbed

Fugitive rapist Keith Lambert awoke Thursday to find his freedom had come to an end.

He was caught by a California sheriff's deputy while snoozing in the Cadillac he apparently stole from nearby the Lake County Correctional Institute after his escape Feb. 16.

Lambert, 34, was arrested at about 9 a.m. on U.S. Highway 95 outside of Beatty, Nev., near the California state line, just east of Death Valley.

Lambert had been spotted in California Monday and tried to take one of his two daughters out of a Long Beach school. When he showed up at his former wife's home in the same area, she called police, but he had fled.

According to reports, a deputy spotted a brown 1983 Cadillac Fleetwood parked next to the highway in Nye County. A computer check show the car's license plate had been stolen.

Reagan Discussing Regan's Replacement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is discussing a replacement for his chief of staff Donald Regan who has told Regan that he intends to quit the powerful White House job, sources said today.

Sources said that Regan told Reagan sometime ago that he would be leaving, but the president left the timing of his departure up to the embattled chief of staff.

Deputy press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said that Regan is discussing Regan's replacement with Republican leaders and a host of other advisers today and throughout the weekend. He said he will talk to Regan about his job in the White House next week.

Seventh Grade Send-Off

Lakeview Middle School seventh graders wave as they depart for Jacksonville by chartered motor coach at 7 a.m. today to see the Ramses II exhibit at the Prime Osborne Convention Center. The students are to stop at the Jacksonville Zoo on the way. The exhibit consists of 72 ancient artifacts from the tomb of the Egyptian Pharaoh Ramses II, who reigned about 3,500 years ago. The trip was organized by teachers Jane Courlas and Vera DeLoach. About 140 students participated in class sessions last week that briefed them about the exhibit, which will be open until March 15.

Board Can Raise Money For Repairs, Renovation

Zoo Won't Be Moved ... If

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

The Central Florida Zoological Park near Sanford will not be moved if...

—If the zoo board can raise $500,000 to complete necessary repairs and other work needed to bring the present facility up to standard;

—If in addition to the $500,000 the board can raise an additional amount of money, not yet determined, to renovate the existing park to make it more attractive to visitors, and to provide its animal inventory with the best possible living conditions. It would become a "Florida zoo" with native animals in a natural habitat, gradually phasing out exotic animals over a two-year period.

And whether those goals are met or not, the zoo board's site selection committee will continue to examine other possible sites in Seminole and area counties to leave open the option of building a full-scale exotic zoological park elsewhere, while retaining the existing facility. Failing to raise the necessary money to complete the renovation at the Sanford zoo, however, the board probably would still consider moving it. Supporters of keeping the zoo in Sanford, including Mayor Betty Smith, attended a meeting today at the Holiday Inn in Sanford at which three zoo board members disclosed plans of the fund-raising effort. They attempted to get a commitment from the zoo board members that the zoo would not be moved from Sanford if the necessary funds were raised. Mayor Smith and the others told the zoo board members they would actively support the fund-raising effort if they got a firm commitment.

The zoo board members said they were confident the entire board would give such a commitment contingent on the monies being raised, but the new zoo board president, Susan Morris, of South Seminole County, emphasized that right now the planning is in the early stages. She said a "lot more than $500,000" will be needed to renovate the zoo, but could give no figure.

Mrs. Morris said an effort will be made to find homes at other zoos for non-native exotic animals not fitting into the new Florida format or suited to the habitat, such as the hoof stock. The board is proposing to get rid of the many small exhibits and replace them with three or four Florida animal exhibits and possibly an aviary. However, she said, the other zoos might not

No Reprieve For Oviedo Clinic

Talk of a reprieve on the April 1 closing of the Oviedo satellite clinic has apparently proved a false hope for users of the clinic. The Central Florida Community Clinic of Sanford, which operates the Oviedo facility three days a week, does not have the right to appeal the federal phase-out order, according to Wayne Cutchens, Department of Health and Human Services official in Atlanta.

Susan Moore, CFCC executive director, contacted Cutchens on the instruction of the clinic board. The board voted Monday night to find out if the clinic has the right to an appeal as stated at the meeting by a Central Florida Legal Services lawyer. There were more than a dozen people from Oviedo at the meeting to ask the board to reconsider the closing.

She said Cutchens confirmed what she had been told before — that once the grant funds are accepted and dispersed, the recipient is not permitted to appeal.

"Mr. Cutchens is pretty con-

'We on the clinic board, the clinic and HHS are absolutely not insensitive to the people of Oviedo.'

—Pat Southward

scientious about following grant regulations to the letter," Mrs. Moore said. "A few people have complained about losing their medical care, but no one has come forward offering to help provide a solution. They just want us to keep it open. Now we must move to the point of determining how we can best provide transportation (to the Sanford clinic), but that may not be the only solution."

She said the clinic's attorney, Bill Colbert, who is also the city attorney for Oviedo, is looking into the regulation to see if it is applicable in this case and anticipates it will be a week or 10 days before he finds out anything.

Mrs. Moore suggested the following as potential options for providing a solution in Oviedo:

- In terms of transportation it might be possible for the Seminole County Commission and the City of Oviedo to donate funds to CFCC or another group to provide a van and driver for daily transportation for patients. (CFCC has only one van and driver for the whole county.)

- Seminole County Commission might feel the Health Department needs to open a facility in Oviedo.

- Physicians in Oviedo might be willing to take part of the patient load for treatment in their office possibly on a rotating basis. (Last year the Oviedo clinic saw 1,000 patients).

- Or possibly a combination of the above.

"There are many areas that don't have health care for the poor," Mrs. Moore said. "We need to say we really have to take care of them or say we really don't care about the poor."

As a provision of the $884,706

federal grant, the CFCC's only source of funding, the board was told the three-day a week full-service Oviedo clinic must be phased out by April 1 and staff raises had to be kept at 5 percent rather than the 6 percent proposed increase.

Central Florida Legal Services lawyer Bruce Allen Scott informed the clinic board Monday night that there is a process by which they can appeal this HHS order. He cited a section of the regulations that states if a provision to a grant is going to do "something adverse to the community" HHS has to specify in writing the reason and he said no reason was and the officials failed to inform the board that they have the right to appeal.

Scott said, "The clinic is needed out there and the numbers served show it. Apparently the board was not aware until Monday night that there is an appeals process. We have been researching this, but at this point I am not representing a particular client." The CFLS

Man Released After Booby Trap Charge

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

A 35-year-old Altamonte Springs man jailed Thursday in connection with allegedly having rigged a booby trap that discharged and wounded two Oviedo boys has been released on $1,000 bond. He is scheduled to appear in court March 16.

Mark Jeffrey Crowell, of 314 Cherokee Court, was arrested outside his home at about 9 a.m. Thursday by Seminole County sheriff's investigator Billy Lee. He has been charged with two counts of aggravated battery and aggravated assault.

The booby trap was found at a shed in a wooded section in Oviedo Nov. 9. Lee reported a fingerprint comparison by sheriff's Lt. Marty LaBrusciano allegedly linked Crowell to a rat trap portion of the booby trap, which had been set on property belonging to Crowell's mother.

Two Oviedo residents, who live near the woods where the device discharged and injured Hans Beck, 12, and Glen Kilgore, 15, told sheriff's investigators they (the witnesses) had been warned not to go into the woods. The suspect allegedly told them he had set traps to deter thefts from the shed.

After the wounding of the two boys—accompanied by a third boy, Trinity Ford who was not injured — Lee checked the scene and

Bumper Cars

A Sanford police vehicle blocks a car Thursday in the Sanford Police Department parking lot after a confrontation between a man, trying to repossess the vehicle, and the acting police chief. Acting Chief Charles Fagan said he was not going to let John Warrington, a licensed repossessor from Orlando, take the car until Warrington demonstrated authority to do so. Warrington said it was a voluntary repossession and the police had no authority to stop him. Fagan said the vehicle may be released today. Warrington said he plans on filing a complaint when Chief Steve Harriett returns. Harriett has been away from his work following the death of his father.

POLICE IN BRIEF

Sheriff's Dog Tracks Suspected Crack Possessor

Seminole County sheriff's deputy Bill Shaffer reported tracking with sheriff's department dog Cajun a man who ran after seeing sheriff's Lt. Donald Esslinger in the North Street area outside Altamonte Springs at about 3 a.m. Thursday.

Esslinger described the suspect to Shaffer and Shaffer and Cajun followed a trail to the rear of a home at 147 North Street. There a man was seen near a backdoor. Shaffer identified himself as a deputy and ordered the man to "freeze."

The man reportedly threw a box from his shirt pocket onto a garbage bag beside the home. Esslinger found the box and Shaffer reported it contained two pieces of crack cocaine.

Milton Lee Wilson, 24, of 117 Leonard St., Altamonte Springs, has been charged with possession of cocaine. He was being held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Struggle Seen, Arrest Made

Seminole County sheriff's deputies called to a home at 1017 Manchester Circle, Winter Park, at about 1:40 a.m. Thursday reported seeing a man and woman shoving each other. The couple was in the garage of the home.

The woman, Angela Foster, had a bump and bruise on her forehead and reportedly told police her husband had hit her in the head. The man reportedly agreed to leave the home for the night, but allegedly said he would come back and damage the car belonging to him and his wife.

The man left and deputies said he did return and allegedly hit the car in many places with a concrete block causing about $2,000 damage.

Sheriff's deputies returned and found the suspect about one block from his home.

James Joseph Foster, 28, of the above address was arrested at 2:26 a.m. Thursday on Princess Gate, Winter Park. He has been charged with battery-spouse abuse and was being held in lieu of $500 bond.

Burglaries And Thefts Reported

Kenneth Wofford, of 9410 Bear Lake Road, Apopka, reported to sheriff's deputies the $2,500 motor was stolen from his boat Wednesday.

A video camera, a battery pack and cable, plus a gold chain were stolen from the home of William Horsley, 48, of 7347 Fieldcrest Road, Winter Park. A sheriff's report said the items have a combined value of about $2,000.

A bench, a microwave oven, a tape recorder and other items with a combined value of about $820 were stolen from Accent Drapery & Interiors, 172 Oxford Road, Fern Park, Wednesday, according to a report owner Judy Kay Carney, 33, of Matland, filed with sheriff's deputies.

Donald Lee Palmer, 39, of Oviedo, reported to sheriff's deputies that the three vehicles in a fenced compound at Florida Power Corp., State Road 426, Oviedo, were burglarized Tuesday or Wednesday and tools, stereo gear and other items with a total value of at least $3,500 were stolen.

A radar detector valued at $100 was taken from a 1984 Chevy truck in the emergency room parking lot at Central Florida Regional Hospital on Tuesday between 8 p.m. and 9 p.m. the truck's owner, David Crider, 36, 401 W. Seminole Blvd., Sanford, told police.

A $50 radio and two bank bags containing a total of $1,000 were taken along with credit cards and a check book in the name of Libby's Lace in Lake Mary from the car of Jane Canterbury, 47, 126 E. Plantation Blvd., Lake Mary, while the car was parked, but unlocked, at 2629 B El Captain Drive, Sanford, on Tuesday between 7 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Geneva Man Arrested For Attempted Murder

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

A 19-year-old Geneva man has been arrested by Brevard County sheriff's deputies on an charge of attempted murder. Brevard sheriff's deputies allege Paul Eugene Lewis of State Road 426, Geneva, slashed the throat of a Mims man in Brevard County early Monday morning.

Acting on a tip from Brevard County a Seminole County sheriff's deputy reported finding the victim's pickup truck on North Jungle Road in Geneva at about 5:30 p.m. Wednesday. Lewis was arrested after he returned to Brevard County and was found by sheriff's deputies in Titusville Wednesday afternoon.

Brevard County sheriff's spokesman Joan Heller said Thursday that Lewis allegedly took the victim's 1984 Nissan pickup truck to Geneva after he allegedly assaulted that man during some type of dispute at the Black Point Wildlife Refuge, which is about 10 miles northeast of Titusville.

Mrs. Heller said that the victim, Barry Hall, 42 had apparently picked up the suspect in Titusville late Sunday. They reportedly went to Lewis' home in Geneva and picked up some clothing and then returned to Brevard County.

The pair went to the wildlife refuge and while there, Mrs. Heller said the pair got into a dispute and Lewis allegedly slashed Hall's throat and left him there. Lewis is believed to have driven Hall's truck back to Geneva, where it was found abandoned.

Hall, Mrs. Heller, said, walked 10 miles from the wildlife refuge to a convenience store in Titusville. The walk took three hours, she said. But when Hall went into the store he didn't ask for help. He bought a pack of cigarettes. The store clerk noticed his injuries and called the Brevard County sheriff's office, Mrs. Heller said.

Hall, she said, apparently did not intend to report the attempted murder.

Lewis was being held without bond Thursday in the Brevard County jail on a charge of attempted murder. Mrs. Heller said.

Suspects Arrested In Two Child Sex Cases

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

In separate cases Wednesday Altamonte Springs and Longwood police reported arresting suspects in connection with the alleged commission of lewd, lascivious and indecent acts in the presence of a child. Both suspects remained jailed early Thursday.

Altamonte Springs police report that at about 8 p.m. Tuesday at Soccer Kick in the Jamestown Mall, 995 State Road 434, Altamonte Springs, a four-year-old girl, who had been playing on the floor of that shop while her mother shopped for shoes with the girl's brother, left the store and went to her father outside and told him of alleged actions of a man inside the store.

The girl described the man as having apparently performed a sex act in front of her inside the store.

The father went inside the store with his daughter and she reportedly pointed out a clerk in the store as a possible suspect. The father talked to the second clerk, who had been selling shoes to his wife and son during the incident. The father told that man of his allegations and said he was going to report the incident to police.

Police went to the store Wednesday and were reportedly told by the second clerk that other than his customers, the victim's family, the other clerk was the only person in the store with him at the time of the incident.

Police had questioned the girl and because of her statements tested the carpet of the store and reported possibly finding seaman stains on the carpet. The stains were revealed under ultra violet light, a police report said. Sections of the carpet were confiscated for further testing in a police lab.

Derrick Allan Nienaber, 34, of Orlando, was arrested in that case at his workplace at 4:11 p.m. Wednesday. He was being held in lieu of $2,000 bond.

In the Longwood case, police said that on Feb. 19 two girls, one 9 and the other 12 years old, told police that at about 5:20 p.m. that day as they walked on Jessup Avenue in Longwood a man drove very close to them. The girls allege the man looked directly at them and lifted himself off the car seat to expose his nude lower body to them.

The girls screamed and ran from the man and reported the incident to police. On Monday both girls reportedly picked a suspect out of a police photo lineup.

That man was questioned at the police station and at about 10 a.m. Wednesday at the police station, Richard M. Mellis, 22, of 445 S. North Lake Drive, Altamonte Springs, was charged with two counts of committing a lewd act in the presence of a child. He was being held in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Bob Martinez Picketed By Death Penalty Protesters

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Martinez has rejected pleas by picketing capital punishment opponents, who compared execution to torture and urged the governor to "be a hero — eliminate the death penalty."

The placard-bearing protesters lay in wait for Martinez Thursday, as he arrived at a conference of penal experts on the Florida State University campus.

"Don't miss your opportunity to be a hero — eliminate the death penalty," one of the protesters urged as Martinez stepped from his car and plainclothes security officers stood by.

"It's under your control," the protester said. "You sign the death warrants — you can stop it."

Martinez replied: "I appreciate your position on it. I happen to differ on it and I will not be doing that in my administration."

The governor then swept into the conference building, trailing security men and reporters.

The protest was sponsored by Amnesty International, which monitors human rights abuses around the world. The organization has long counted the death penalty among torture and forms of repression usually associated with dictatorships.

Amnesty International recently began a new campaign against capital punishment in the United States.

Man Pleads Guilty In 2nd Degree Murder

A Sanford man has pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in connection with the stabbing of a Sanford woman in October.

Bryce Glenn, 54, of 1119 W. 12th St., entered the plea before Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. who set March 17 for sentencing.

According to police, Glenn and Iona Smith-Brown, 39, were living together at the time she was murdered on Oct. 7. She was stabbed in the chest and arm with a pocket knife. Witness statements led to Glenn's arrest.

According to the prosecutor on the case, Assistant State

Attorney Jeff Deen, Glenn has never told anyone why the couple were arguing. However, according to witnesses, the couple had been drinking and fighting and when Ms. Smith-Brown said something to the effect of "go ahead and kill me," Glenn did.

Ms. Smith-Brown bled to death in an unusual manner when the knife penetrated her heart. Her blood filled the heart sac causing her heart to stop, Deen said.

The recommended sentence for Glenn, a farm worker, is 12 to 17 years.

Snowstorm Pushes East

United Press International
A storm that slowed road and air traffic and shuttered schools with up to 5 feet of snow in the West crept eastward over the Rockies and into the Plains today, forcing travelers to take refuge from howling blizzard conditions.

The storm, which has been blamed for at least five deaths this week, blanketed Colorado with more than 2 feet of snow Thursday. At least 8 inches fell in Wyoming, where only necessary travel was advised in the Cheyenne area.

Highways in Wyoming remained open, but visibility was cut to about a half mile, and hotels filled up with stranded travelers and truckers.

"It looks like a blizzard," said a clerk at Holding's Little America motel. "There's snow blowing everywhere, and they're just getting tired of fighting it. With it getting dark, it's getting hard to see, and they say the roads are really slippery."

The storms, which have dumped between 2 and 5 feet of snow in the mountains of central Arizona since Monday, showered northwest Minnesota, the Dakotas, Nebraska, northeast Colorado and the mountains of New Mexico today.

Blizzard conditions Thursday howled around Pikes Peak, Colo., while near-blizzard conditions and wind-chill temperatures of 20 below were reported near Colorado Springs. Winds of 20 to 30 mph blew up to a foot of snow into even higher drifts in the Nebraska panhandle.

Numerous fender benders were reported, and blizzard conditions forced the Colorado State Patrol to close parts of Interstate-25 and I-70. Roads throughout New Mexico were snowpacked and icy, officials

Lake Mary Committees Formed

By Genie Lindberg
Herald Staff Writer

Two new committees, one called Public Affairs and the other Cultural Development, have been formed in the Community Improvement Association (CIA) of Lake Mary at the request of the association's president, Lake Mary Police Chief Charles Lauderdale.

The purpose of the two groups is to formulate ideas and make recommendations on development in the city, Lauderdale said.

Lauderdale was installed as CIA president, along with other officers and directors, Monday night by Mayor Dick Fess at the association's building on Country Club Blvd. at 7:30 p.m.

The Lake Mary CIA should take a leadership role in building a community "that people will be proud to call home," Lauderdale said. He appointed Francis Pratt to chair the Public Affairs Committee, which will focus on development issues within the community and will be alert to assisting the government, homeowner's associations, developers, individuals and others in initiating programs that will be beneficial in fostering healthy and harmonious growth, Lauderdale said.

Dino Lorenzo has been appointed to head the Cultural Development Committee. His committee, Lauderdale said, "will be charged with the task of leading Lake Mary toward its rightful place at the forefront of cultural development in Seminole County and Central Florida." He said he would like all Lake Mary citizens who are interested in playing a role in the development of their community to consider joining the city's CIA.

Lake Mary Mayor Dick Fess, right, conducts installation of officers for the city's Community Improvement Association (CIA). Group Trains Parents Of Handicapped

The Parent Education Network of Florida Inc. (PEN), a federally funded program to provide training programs and information to parents of children in special education in Florida schools, has scheduled a Master Training conference in Tampa from March 5 to 7.

Parents who attend the conference will become Master Trainers who can then train Local Parent Facilitators to reach out to parents in the community and present the training sessions to small groups, said Mary Jetton, PEN coordinator of information and resources.

A training video and information packets are being developed and will be made accessible for parents through the Florida county libraries and the Florida Diagnostic and Learning Resource System (FDLRS) associate centers that are part of the school systems of Florida, Ms. Jetton said. "PEN is determined to reach those parents who are usually missed in educational-type programs."

Similar programs have been developed in other states and are considered important in helping parents to participate in their child's education plans as required by Public Law 94-142; every child is guaranteed a free appropriate public education, Ms. Jetton said. She said that parents who have learned to communicate the needs of their child in a positive and informed manner become more effective toward the development of more accurate goal plans, whether academic, rehabilitative or vocational, that are being designed for their child.

It is PEN's philosophy that parents are a handicapped child's first and best advocates. The positive involvement of trained parents who can participate as partners with professionals on behalf of their handicapped children will improve the special education process, service delivery systems, identify community resource alternatives and strengthen parent advocacy organizations, Ms. Jetton said.

Committee To Review School Food Report

The Seminole County School Board approved a district food services committee Wednesday to review the recommendations of a study presented to the board last month by the consulting firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. of Miami concerning the district's Food Service Program.

The board last year requested that a study be done to determine whether the district should hire a company to manage food operations or keep the food service under district supervision by making improvements where needed.

The food service committee, made up of school principals, food service managers, a school board member, a high school student, parents and representatives from food service industries in the private sector among others, will present their evaluation of the consultant's report and make their own recommendations to the board on March 16.

The board is scheduled to then consider the recommendations of the committee and authorize that approved recommendations be implemented by the School Food Service Department by April 1.

Let Workers' Victory Stand

Settling an argument that has gone on for 15 years, a federal appeals court ruled in Washington recently that farmworkers deserve sanitary conditions in the fields — conditions that every other worker in this country takes for granted. The court ruled that the Labor Department must issue guidelines requiring farmers to provide toilets, drinking water and other sanitation facilities for fieldworkers.

Saying that it wanted to bring an end to "this disgraceful chapter of legal neglect," the three-judge panel ruled that the department had acted improperly by failing to issue federal standards to protect more than half-a-million farmworkers from hazards of communicable diseases and heat stress.

The court gave officials from OSHA — Occupational Safety and Health Administration, a division of the Department of Labor — 30 days to set field sanitation standards.

It's curious how our romantic notions of the rural life have allowed us to justify degrading work conditions for farmworkers. The men, women and children who put fruits and vegetables on our tables — many of them Hispanic, a large percentage of them illegal immigrants — are expected to work long hours in the field, usually under a hot sun, without easy access to drinking water, toilet facilities or a place to wash their hands. The work they do and the hardships they endure are supposed to build character, apparently, though it's work that few Americans deign to do. And few of us would tolerate for a minute the work conditions.

While some OSHA officials as well as some growers and farm owners, argue that the link between field sanitation and disease is unproved, a panel of public-health experts commissioned by the Labor Department argued otherwise. In a report published two years ago, the panel said that more than 500,000 American farmworkers suffer rates of infection comparable to those of Third-World peasants. The panel attributed their condition to the refusal of employers to provide them with drinking water, toilets or a place to wash their hands.

Chief Judge Patricia Wald wrote in the majority opinion that the record "demonstrates beyond dispute that lack of drinking water and toilets cause the spread of contagion, bladder disease and heat prostration among farmworkers. Yet resistance to issuing the standard, a counterpart of which is already in place for every other OSHA-covered type of employment, has been intractable."

The controversy dates back to 1972, when El Congreso, an organization representing Hispanic citizens, including farmworkers, petitioned OSHA for the sanitation rules. Lawyers for the government and the farmworkers eventually reached an out-of-court settlement, but in 1985, Robert A. Rowland, then the head of OSHA, changed his mind. Rowland decided that the department would not require farmers to provide sanitation for fieldworkers.

The administration changed its mind again when Bill Brock became labor secretary. Brock, generally sympathetic to the longstanding protests of migrant farmworkers, partially overturned Rowland's decision and called on the states to adopt their own field sanitation standards. The court's ruling means that the Labor Department cannot wait for the states to adopt their own standards.

Florida and 18 other states have their own field sanitation standards, but these rules could be preempted by new federal regulations if the federal rules are more effective.

Labor is expected to appeal the court ruling because it undermines the administration's notion of federalism: that state regulation should generally supersede federal regulation. It's a notion we find admirable in the abstract, though farmworkers in the middle of a tomato field, with no sanitary facilities nearby, are not dealing with the abstract. For their sake, we hope the ruling stands.

High Tech Senators And Goat Awareness

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The magazine High Technology reports a 50 percent drop during the past two years in the number of college freshmen "intending to study engineering or computer science."

The periodical takes this to mean "fewer young people are pursuing high technology careers," but I doubt such a conclusion is valid.

There must be other high-tech skills leading to careers other than engineering and computer science. Identifying and defending phagocytes, for example. Or milking goats.

Probably half the freshman class could opt for such careers if courses in these high-tech studies were available at college level. However, the only institution, or person, I know offering phagocyte information "for pupil participation" is Rell Francis of Springville, Utah.

According to another magazine, phagocytes produced in bone marrow cleanse human tissues of airborne particles that might otherwise cause diseases. But these friendly organisms are being destroyed "faster than they can be replenished" by cigarette smoke and other impurities.

In a creed titled "Man's Inhumanity to Phagocytes," Francis asks, poetically, "What gives you rights to slay your helpful phagocytes?" I would quote more but Francis apparently forgot to get his poetic license renewed. At any rate, he also asks, "Who are the phagocytes in our society?"

Not Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, certainly. His name doesn't even rhyme.

The former chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee who is now the ranking Republican on the Foreign Relations Committee may be more interested in protecting dairy goats.

To Helms went the honor of introducing one of the first joint resolutions in the 100th Congress. This legislation would designate the third week in June each year as "National Dairy Goat Awareness Week."

(The quotation marks, I might add parenthetically, are his. However, I'm sure Helms would be willing to share them, if you ask nicely.) I am told the senator first was made aware of the lactal possibilities by a herd of dairy goats maintained in North Carolina by Carl Sandburg, who may have been a better poet even than Francis.

As Helms told the Senate, "For more than 5,000 years, dairy goats have supplied mankind with food and shelter."

He said that while goat milk ice cream and yogurt "are sold in various parts" of the United States, the best known product is "goat cheese."

Although Helms was quite rhapsodic about the nutritional value of goat cheese, I noted in the Congressional Record that he made only passing reference to the shelter role.

I, for one, believe that after 5,000 years, it's time to repay them a bit. If, therefore, you care to register your awareness by taking along a dairy goat tent on your next camping trip, be my guest.

And, for all I care, you don't have to wait for National Dairy Goat Awareness Week to do it.

Getting High On Power

By Helen Thomas
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two major scandals in 12 years leave a strong impression that working at the White House exacts a heavy price.

White House power is intoxicating and many ranking aides lose their way in the heady atmosphere.

The staffers come in as presidential loyalists who paid their political dues and are named to serve the highest office in the land.

Some view their jobs as political payoffs, their just rewards for the long struggle to get to the White House. Their allegiance is to the president and their energies are directed to achieving his goals.

The arrogance of power that accompanies those top jobs is manifest. Few remain immune to the exhilarating sense of self importance, the bowing and scraping, Air Force One, instant helicopters, speeding motorcades that stop all traffic.

"You can always tell the arrogance of an official when they demand to have a security escort, whether they need it or not," one aide said.

They bask in the glory of the presidency, the imperial trappings, the adulation and it rubs off on them.

In those top jobs they receive commissions and they swear to uphold the Constitution of the United States. They are supposed to be automatic public servants. But many differentiate between serving the public and serving the president.

Former deputy chief of staff Michael Deaver, who left the Reagan administration after the first term, said that in view of the Iran arms scandal, he wonders how many people want to serve in the White House. Although a special prosecutor is now looking into his business dealings after he left the White House for a possible conflict of interest, he said he would still do it all over again because he wanted to serve Reagan.

During the Watergate scandal, Gordon Strahan, a young Nixon aide, was asked during a hearing what he would tell someone who aspired to serve in the top echelons of government. "I'd tell him to stay away," said Strahan in a reply that stunned the investigators.

Many of the top aides who served President Richard Nixon went to jail. Others saw their careers shattered. Families broke up and nothing was ever the same.

Jordan Says U.S. Has No Middle East Clout

By Jack Anderson
And Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — King Hussein of Jordan, the most reasonable Arabic national leader in the Middle East, has serious doubts about the United States' ability to have much effect one way or another on a peaceful settlement in the region.

This is a disturbing view to be held by the ruler who has been recognized as crucial to Middle East peace hopes by seven American presidents and 10 secretaries of state. All of them shared the egocentric opinion that U.S. policy would be decisive in achieving a permanent solution to the region's problems.

In a recent interview in Amman, we asked the king bluntly: Will Americans have had anything to do with winning peace in the Middle East, assuming it ever comes?

"If and when they choose to, I suppose they can do a lot," Hussein responded tactfully. "But that hasn't been the case as yet. They have hurt it, unfortunately, over the last year."

Reagan's Legacy

The Reagan legacy may well turn out to have been SDI, tax cuts, and William Bennett, who continues to rise in prominence and even national political speculation. In one sense the secretary of education may have been too effective. He tempts one to the thought that we need a secretary of education — although at one time the administration thought otherwise.

But, at any rate, we have one, and Mr. Bennett has used his post to articulate enduring truths that recently have been widely forgotten, both in the schools and colleges and in the general culture.

Most recently, under the auspices of the Ethics and Public Policy Center, he has addressed himself to the question of teaching international politics in the high schools. It is odd that it takes courage to do so, but in an era of "peace studies" and pervasive relativism it does take courage to advocate — hold your breath — teaching the facts.

Do students understand, Mr. Bennett asked, "that the United States represents something more than the interests of a big power in global competition? That our international posture embodies our founding principles? That we stand as a free self-governing society in defense of those ideas which together make for freedom and self-government? ... In the present international arrangement, there exists another idea. It is an idea backed by incredible armed strength. It is an aggressive idea that does not shrink from the use of that strength. And it is an idea of nearly limitless darkness. In the territories to which it has spread not a single idea that Americans believe universal and good and beyond dispute still shines. Except, of course, in the hearts of its bravest victims ...

"Are we teaching young Americans to understand the Berlin Wall — its history and its significance? Are there course units on it in America? Please tell me about them. When a communist dictator like Erich Honecker calls the wall an 'anti-fascist protective rampart,' are students able to hear his doublespeak for what it is? Do they know what 'dictatorship of the proletariat' means? Can they grasp the significance of a totalitarian state, which recognizes no inviolable individual rights? Are they familiar with calculated liquidations? With terror as an instrument of state policy? With the NKVD and KGB? With planned famine, purges, show trials, a pact with Hitler, a gulag? Do Americans recall the fate of Cambodia? Are they aware of current developments in Ethiopia? And can they therefore see why free men and women resist the expansion of communism around the world?"

What is communicated to students from the first grade through college is enormously important. Plato knew that. The left wing it acting on it. It is one of our most important national resources and Mr. Bennett knows it, too.

Risk Of Strokes Undeterred

By Larry Doyle
UPI Science Writer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Doctors often caution diabetic patients that if they want to avoid becoming the victim of a stroke, they should control their blood pressure, lower their cholesterol levels and lose weight.

But a recent government study suggests these interventions, while intelligent, will not help the nation's 10 to 11 million diabetics escape the increased stroke risk they face simply by having diabetes.

Furthermore, there is a suggestion that elevated levels of sugar in the blood and urine, whether in a diabetic or not, increase the chances that a blood clot will form and lodge in the brain.

"This is rather new and we're not sure what it means," said Robert Abbott, an epidemiologist with the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute outside Washington. "But there is something going on."

"We've shown that the traditional risk factors don't explain the increased risk that diabetics have," Abbott said. "The message is that as a result, the routine management of (stroke) risk factors will not be enough to completely reduce the diabetic's chance of stroke."

Stroke, deprivation of oxygen and other nutrients to the brain caused by either a blood clot or burst artery, occurs relatively frequently in the United States, striking 500,000 every year and killing 155,000. Typical victims are middle-aged or older men, who may suffer long-term or permanent paralysis and mental impairment if they survive.

It has long been known that diabetics are about twice as likely as normal to suffer a clot-related stroke, which are about three times more common than strokes caused by cerebral hemorrhage.

But it was generally thought that since diabetics are more likely to exhibit other risk factors for stroke — high blood pressure, elevated cholesterol and obesity — this was responsible for increased dangers they faced.

"That turns out to not completely be the case," Abbott said.

Abbott and his colleagues reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association recently that a 12-year study of 7,600 men aged 45 to 69 found that even when differences in all other risk factors were taken into account, diabetics still were nearly twice as likely to suffer a stroke caused by clot as non-diabetic men.

quent discovery that the PLO was planning a hijacking to win concessions from him.

So the king quietly began to develop a secret alliance with Israel that undercuts the PLO in Gaza and the West Bank, where 1.4 million Palestinians live. Hussein has also tried for a rapprochement with Syria, as part of a pan-Arab peace process that would not be dictated by the PLO.

One thing Hussein will never agree to give up, however, is a Jordanian claim to Jerusalem, the city sacred to Moslems as well as Jews and Christians. "Jerusalem must become the essence of peace," he said, "the symbol of peace, the meaning of peace (for all) religions. In that context, it cannot be totally Israeli."

He apparently believes he has led a charmed life — avoiding certain death on many occasions, which we have previously reported — because of his desire for peace in the region. "If one can change matters in that direction, then that would be the biggest reward of all," he concluded.

Gates Nomination Continues Drawing Capitol Hill Fire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Robert Gates, the president's nominee to head the CIA, maintains he did nothing to cover up the facts on the arms sales to Iran after the deal became public in November, but several senators want the appointment delayed.

Gates, now acting CIA director, told the Senate Intelligence Committee Thursday that his role in mid-November was to make sure those preparing testimony for former CIA Director William Casey to give the panel Nov. 21, 1986, laid out "all the facts regarding CIA's operational support role" in the arms sale.

The testimony has become a key element in Gates's nomination to succeed the ailing Casey, who resigned Feb. 2 following brain-cancer surgery. At two hearings on Gates's confirmation last week, Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., questioned him harshly about his role.

Panel Votes Immunity For 3

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional panels probing the Iran-Contra scandal are seeking limited immunity for three minor characters in the affair, but one wants bank records from a man who may have played a big role in the dealings.

The chairmen of the select House and Senate committees said the panels voted separately Thursday to ask a federal judge to grant immunity to former Air Force Col. Robert Dutton, a former aide to Richard Secord; Edward deGaray, who owns a private air cargo firm in Pennsylvania; and Fawn Hall, former secretary to Lt. Col. Oliver North.

Hall already has received immunity from Lawrence Walsh, the independent counsel probing the operations that have caused the worst crisis of the Reagan administration.

Dutton, who refused to testify before the Senate Intelligence Committee late last year, could provide crucial information about Secord's role in both the secret sale of weapons to Iran and the Contra operations.

Study Cites Surgery Benefits

CHICAGO (UPI) — Eye doctors fighting proposed Medicare cuts for cataract surgery say they are supported by a new study showing the operation improves not only the vision, but the quality of life for most elderly who undergo the procedure.

The study published in today's Journal of the American Medical Association found the benefits of cataract removal, an operation performed a million times a year in the United States, go far beyond clearing up cloudy vision.

The study supports widespread anecdotal reports that cataract surgery increased patients' ability to cope with the physical demands of life and improved their mental awareness.

Health officials cited the study as a strong argument against proposals by the Reagan administration to curb Medicare reimbursements for cataract surgery.

Trident Protester Acquitted By Jury Of Trespassing

TITUSVILLE (UPI) — A jury cleared peace activist Jim Welch of trespassing Thursday during a demonstration last month against the Trident II missile.

The St. Petersburg man was the first of the 186 peace activists arrested during the week-long protest to face a jury trial. The demonstrators infiltrated Cape Canaveral Air Force Station and the Kennedy Space Center between Jan. 9 and Jan. 17 in an unsuccessful attempt to stop testing of the missile.

Welch was stopped by Kennedy Space Center guards in the brush 50 feet from Gate No. 5, on the space center's northern border.

In cross-examination by Welch, who defended himself, security guards Don Ford and Ed Runyon admitted it was "conceivable" that a person could enter the secured area through the woods without seeing any posted signs warning of the security zone.

Inmates Granted Early Release

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Florida's prisons remain critically overcrowded despite the early release Thursday of 61 inmates, but officials said a higher than average end-of-month discharge today should ease the situation.

The release was accomplished when officials awarded 20 days administrative gain time to the approximately 16,000 inmates already earning time off for good behavior. The 61 former prisoners were all within 20 days of the end of their sentences.

The officials awarded 10 days administrative gain time Feb. 16 to release 29 inmates. The awards total 30 days, so many inmates who did not qualify for the extraordinary discharges would be freed today, during a routine end-of-month discharge, said prisons spokesman Vernon Bradford.

Oil Spill Called 'Major'

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Damage assessments began early today following a shipping accident that saw thousands of gallons of fuel oil spilled into the ocean, authorities said.

Up to 220,000 gallons of fuel oil might have been spilled near the mouth of the St. Johns River near Jacksonville, Fla., said Coast Guard Lt. John Wiggert, but darkness overnight prevented a more accurate estimate.

New Satellite Safely In Orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — A perfect launch marking NASA's first success of the year thrust a $55 million weather satellite, identical to one destroyed last year in a rocket failure, toward its orbit 22,300 miles above the equator for hurricane duty.

"This feels terrific!" Bud Litton, a spokesman for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, said Thursday, moments after the satellite's $40 million Delta rocket roared away from its pad. "Everybody is going to cheer across the country."

The 116-foot Delta thundered aloft at 8:05 p.m. EST, two days behind schedule because of mechanical problems and bad weather, and 26 minutes later its GOES-7 weather satellite payload slipped into its preliminary orbit.

"It's something to keep everybody jumping for joy from Hawaii to Maine," said Jamison Hawkins, a NOAA meteorologist.

If all goes well, the satellite will be checked out and operational by the end of April, joining a similar spacecraft already in orbit to provide the television views of weather patterns so familiar from daily newscasts.

The crew of the next shuttle flight — commander Frederick Hauck, co-pilot Richard Covey, David Hilmers, George Nelson and John "Mike" Lounge — was on hand for the launch along with hundreds of spectators.

The astronauts planned to talk with shuttle engineers today who are readying their spaceship, Discovery, for blastoff next year.

"It's a long year from now to the scheduled launch date, but I think it's important to get out and chat with the folks here so it's good to get back," Hauck said.

GOES-7 is to be put in a circular orbit 22,300 miles above the equator on Saturday with the firing of its on-board booster. After testing, it should be ready for work by the time hurricane season begins June 1.

Forecasters were especially eager for the launch of GOES-7 because it will greatly enhance their ability to monitor the development of major storms in the hurricane-spawning grounds of the eastern Atlantic Ocean near Africa.

Only one such Geostationary Operational Environmental Satellite, GOES-6, is fully operational in orbit.

GOES-5 broke down in orbit in 1984, and a replacement was destroyed May 3, 1986, when its Delta booster malfunctioned during launch. As a result, GOES-6 has been doing double duty with a corresponding decrease in coverage.

GOES-7 is the last such satellite in NASA's inventory until a new generation of weather spacecraft becomes operational starting in 1989.

But the GOES system was designed for two such satellites, and the launch of GOES-7 was especially crucial because GOES-6 might not survive until the end of the decade.

'Black Widow' Murderer Dies Lonely Death

ANNISTON, Ala. (UPI) — Audrey Marie Hilley, the "Black Widow" who poisoned one husband and bewitched another, died a cold and lonely death as strange as the life she lived.

Her celebrated failure to return to prison after a three-day furlough Sunday — a furlough that enraged her judge and prosecutor — sent pursuers looking for her all over the nation.

But they found her Thursday dying in the cold rain on a stranger's back porch a few miles from the spot where she disappeared Sunday after leaving her husband a note that she was fleeing to Canada.

Pending the results of an autopsy, the cause of death was listed as hypothermia and exposure.

"It's the end to a truly long and a fascinating story," said prosecutor Joe Hubbard, the man who first called the 54-year-old Hilley the "Black Widow."

"It's still fascinating. If in fact she was here in these several days since her escape, then that adds a little more mystery to the story of Marie Hilley."

"Some reason exists for her being here that we don't know yet. I feel almost like I did when the trial was over. Mrs. Hilley did not take the stand in front of the jury. I was hoping she would, so we could possibly find out more of her exploits."

"In her death, she has prevented us from knowing the things she did since her escape. No one knows except her," Hubbard said.

Prenatal Care Case Dismissed

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Civil libertarians said a judge removed "a major threat" to women's rights by dismissing criminal charges against a woman accused of contributing to her baby's death by disobeying doctor's orders during pregnancy.

Municipal Judge E. Mac Amos Jr., ruling on a pretrial motion Thursday, said prosecutors acted incorrectly in using a 1925 amendment to a child-support law to prosecute Pamela Rae Stewart, 28, who was charged with taking drugs and engaging in other behavior that endangered her unborn son.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Syria Secures Beirut, Rules Out Hostage Rescue Operation

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian army commanders ordered some 7,000 troops today to complete their deployment to secure Moslem west Beirut and ruled out any rescue operation to gain freedom for more than 20 Western hostages.

"A settlement of the hostage issue should be brought politically and not through a military option," Brig. Gen. Ghazi Kenaan said Thursday, denying an NBC News report that three Americans and an Indian U.S. resident kidnapped Jan. 24 were in Syrian custody.

More than 20 Westerners, including eight Americans, are missing and feared kidnapped in Lebanon. Among the missing is hostage negotiator Terry Waite, the envoy to the archbishop of Canterbury who vanished Jan. 20.

But Kenaan said the Syrian occupation forces would not enter Beirut's southern suburbs, a pro-Iranian Moslem fundamentalist hotbed where some of the hostages are believed held.

Mubarak, Peres End Talks

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Foreign Minister Shimon Peres of Israel, winding up a two-day visit to Cairo, said he and President Hosni Mubarak discussed a formula for including Palestinians in an international conference on Middle East peace.

Peres, holding his second meeting with the Egyptian leader in six months, said, "Palestinian representation should be a representation that will be accepted by all the parties concerned."

Peres said after his meeting with Mubarak Thursday that they might hold a second meeting today before he returns to Israel. It is rare for Mubarak to meet foreign visitors on the Moslem Sabbath.

The issue of Palestinian representation was one of the three obstacles confronting an agreement reached by Mubarak and Peres last September on the need for an international conference to lay the foundations for a comprehensive Arab-Israeli peace settlement.

Argentina Arrests 15 Officers

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Fifteen naval and coast guard officers, including six retired admirals, were held under arrest today on a ship anchored off the capital during an investigation of their suspected involvement in human rights crimes.

A federal court Thursday ordered the arrest of the suspects because of their refusal to testify about the alleged torture of prisoners at the notorious Naval Mechanics School during military rule in the 1970s.

Senior military commanders reluctantly backed civilian court prosecutors in enforcing the arrest orders. But military sources said junior navy officers were furious at the arrests and held private protest meetings with superiors to protest the moves.

The 15 suspects were assigned to the school, known by the Spanish acronym ESMA. In various administrative capacities or led operations units that allegedly captured political prisoners who later disappeared.

Police Raid Winnie Mandela's Home

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Police today raided the Soweto home of anti-apartheid activist Winnie Mandela, firing shots and detaining nine people including Mandela's adult daughter, township sources said.

Sources reached by telephone said police called at Mandela's small township home about 8 a.m. Friday. They searched the house and detained eight men and Mandela's daughter, Zindzi.

Shots were fired, but it was not immediately clear whether anyone was hurt, they said.

The sources said Mandela, wife of jailed African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela, followed police to the nearby Protea Police Station. A spokeswoman in the office of Mandela's attorneys said Ismael Ayob, a lawyer, rushed to the police station to investigate.

One source said police on the scene claimed they found a firearm in the Mandela home, but this could not immediately be confirmed.

Zindzi, 26, is the younger of Mandela's two daughters. She is divorced and spends most of her time at her mother's home in the Orlando West section of Soweto, about 10 miles southwest of Johannesburg.

She usually has not taken a prominent role in the political life of black South Africa's first family.

But on Feb. 10, 1985, she appeared before thousands of blacks in Soweto's Jabulani amphitheatre to read her father's response to a government offer of freedom if he would give up political violence.

Mandela rejected the offer, saying he would accept only an unconditional release from his 1984 life sentence for sabotage.

The raid was the second in a month. On Jan. 25 police arrived in trucks and a helicopter to search the Mandela home and take Winnie Mandela, along with a filing cabinet of personal documents, to the nearby police station.

Mandela and Zindzi were held for about six hours. They were released without being charged after their lawyer intervened.

Bomb Scare Evacuation Injures Six

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A bomb threat forced a British Airways jet with 384 people aboard to abruptly return to International Airport Thursday night. No bomb was found but six people were hurt during evacuation, officials said.

A bomb team searched the Boeing 747 and luggage and more than 50 firefighters stood by with their equipment as a precaution, police Sgt. Paul Jensen said.

The pilot of Flight 282 was contacted by the airport tower after taking off on a flight, which originated in San Francisco and was en route to London, Jensen said. He was directed to return to Los Angeles.

"The caller said there was a time bomb on board and something like, 'You better help those people,'" Jensen said.

The jetliner landed safely about 9:30 p.m. and taxied to an isolated pad, where 367 passengers and its crew of 17 were evacuated by sliding down emergency air chutes.

The most seriously injured in the evacuation was an unidentified elderly woman who received hospital treatment for a broken ankle.

Conspiracy Silences Outspoken Kahane

JERUSALEM (UPI) — When Meir Kahane rises to speak in the Israeli parliament, other Knesset members walk out and reporters turn away, Israel's political establishment has the fear — alone.

The bearded New York-born rabbi elected in 1984 on a promise to expel all Arabs from Israel and the West Bank was moving up in public opinion polls only 18 months ago.

But now the self-described Zionist, who once tried to make it illegal for a Jew to marry a non-Jew, has nose-dived in the polls and all but disappeared from public view.

Political analysts attribute his fall to an informal agreement by Knesset members to shun him and the Israeli media to limit his coverage — separate but deliberate moves that have worked to make him an invisible man to most Israelis.

"Since his election there has been an almost complete parliamentary consensus to keep him as an outcast," said Alouph Hareven of Jerusalem's Van Leer Institute, which sponsors educational programs to promote tolerance.

Knesset spokeswoman Sara Izbaki confirmed that most parties in parliament, especially the two largest, Labor and Likud, made "sort of an informal decision" to snub Kahane.

"From our point of view, Mr. Kahane does not exist," said Labor Party spokeswoman Behira Bardugo. "What he wants is against all our beliefs."

"When the rabbi comes out on the floor, the others run off through the doors like little children. It's really funny," said Eugene Sockut, Kahane's press spokesman.

Hareven attributed Kahane's declining popularity partially to the Israeli media, which he said has agreed "not to cover him, not to cover anything he says, only to cover events that he happens to attend."

Israel TV decided not to show him — they'll report it (news relating to Kahane) but never show him on TV," said Baruch Knei-Paz, a professor of political science at Jerusalem's Hebrew University.

Jerusalem Post Editor Ari Rath said it is simply an attempt to regain control from someone who has used the media by staging news events and gimmicks repeatedly to espouse his beliefs.

"There is certainly no official boycott," Rath said. "But there is a tacit understanding (among editors) that the press is not going to be a propaganda vehicle for him. Anything that he does that is newsworthy is reported."

"We will cover him only when he makes news, but we will not initiate interviews with him," said Yair Stern, head of the news division of state-owned Israel TV. "We did not ban him completely, but we are careful not to let him spread his views over Israel TV and Radio."

Kahane recently hosted a cocktail party for foreign correspondents but, an hour into the party, none had shown up. Israeli President Chaim Herzog refused to meet Kahane, calling him a racist. Demonstrators showed up at his public appearances to shout, "Nazi."

"I couldn't care less what people call me," Kahane said. "I've heard it all before."

Kahane, 54, founded the militant Jewish Defense League in New York and spent a year in federal prison on a conviction of making bombs. He emigrated in 1971 to Israel where he formed the Kach (Hebrew for "Thus") Party and advocated the annexation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip — Arab land occupied by Israel since the 1967 war — and the expulsion of the 2 million Arabs living there, leaving an all-Jewish state.

After three unsuccessful election tries, Kahane received the necessary 1 percent of the vote in 1984 to win a seat in the 120-member Knesset.

The victory did not quiet him. He publicly praised members of the Israeli security police when it was learned they had killed two Palestinian bus hijackers who were in their custody. He also spoke out in favor of a new Jewish underground, a sort of vigilante group, to deal with Arabs and criminals.

Kahane's popularity rose from the 1 percent of the vote he got in 1984 to a peak of 8 percent in August 1985, according to pollster Rafi Smith. "He went up in that period basically because it was a time when two teachers were murdered by Arabs. It was a hot (violent) summer. Also, the economic situation was deteriorating."

Smith said Kahane polled 2 percent in January, with most of his support from poor neighborhoods and development towns where there is high unemployment and resentment of Arabs holding jobs.

"He is stable at 2 percent. If the election were held today, he would get two seats in the Knesset," Smith said. "In Israel where the votes are close, he could play a pivotal role. His potential is still there. But he could play it wrong" and lose his seat.

Another pollster, who asked not to be identified, said Arab violence against Jews just before the next election would sharply increase support for Kahane.

And Kahane agrees. "Every attack upon a Jew, every bomb, every stabbing, gives me votes," he says. "I'm not happy about it. I think it's tragic that there is a people who has to suffer every week in order to begin to understand."

Although Kahane privately professes to respect Arabs and their desire for a homeland — which is why he wants to expel them from Israel — he publicly scorns them as "despicable people." He dismisses criticism by parliament members as unpatriotic, but calls Israel TV-Radio's policy "outrageous."

"It shows the corruption of the system here. This is not a democracy."

He maintains the campaign of silence has actually helped, forcing him to walk neighborhoods to meet people and present himself as a sympathetic underdog.

Political analysts scoff at his prediction he will get 7 to 8 percent of the vote but Hareven acknowledged Kahane's "views on Arab-Jewish relations have gained certain legitimacy among some right-wing camps."

Kahane is "seen as so illegitimate, so unpleasant," said Knei-Paz, that many people who might be drawn to his views join "more respectable" right-wing parties. "His support comes from crazy, religious Americans who come over here. The real threat is what he stands for, the views now held by these other right-wing parties."

Inflation Jumps 0.7 Percent In January

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inflation in January took the biggest monthly jump in nearly five years as sharply higher gasoline prices pushed up the Consumer Price Index 0.7 percent, the Labor Department reported Friday.

Patrick Jacobman of the Bureau of Labor Statistics said the CPI had not gone up so much in a month since the 1.1 percent hike in June 1982. The CPI rose only 0.2 percent in December and for the entire year of 1986, inflation, as measured by the CPI, went up a mere 1.1 percent.

Part of the increase was due to a change in the "market basket" of consumer goods used to calculate the CPI. That new market basket, used for the first time in last month's measure, gives greater weight to energy costs than did the previous market basket, used since 1978.

The sharp rise in the CPI was spurred by a 6 percent hike in gasoline costs, a 9.8 percent gain in home heating costs, and an overall 3 percent rise in energy costs. That one factor accounted for about one-third of the entire CPI increase. Without energy costs factored in, the CPI would have risen about 0.5 percent last month, the department said.

Despite the steep increase in gasoline prices in January, they were still 26 percent lower than a year ago and 35 percent lower than their peak price in March 1981, the department said.

The 9.8 percent increase in home heating costs was the biggest monthly increase since the 11.9 percent increase in January 1974 during the Arab oil embargo. But home heating fuel prices were still 26.8 percent below a year ago and 36 percent below their peak cost in April 1981.

Transportation costs rose 1.5 percent, housing expenses increased 0.5 percent, clothing costs went up 0.4 percent and the price of medical care rose 0.4 percent last month, the department said.

Food costs rose 0.5 percent, with fruit and vegetables, sodas, sugar and frozen food climbing. Prices for pork, poultry, fish and eggs fell 0.2 percent while beef prices remained unchanged after seasonal adjustment.

Jackman said he found the increase in food prices "somewhat surprising."

For the month, the index rose to 333.1, meaning that it took $333.10 in January to buy what $100 purchased in 1967.

Under the new market basket, energy costs account for 10 percent of the total index compared to 7.7 percent under the old system. Housing costs also gained in importance basket while food and apparel costs lose some influence.

The government tracks consumer prices by tracking a variety of goods and services that cost $100 in 1967 and seeing what they are worth today.

The old market basket was based on household spending patterns in 1972 and 1973, while the new one stems from a similar examination in 1982 through 1984.

The changes reflect some basic shifts in American spending patterns, from a decades-long decline in the importance of food costs in the budget to more recent in purchases of cable television and video recorders.

ORLANDO — Even when the shots do not fall and the rebounds bounce the other way, a team can play defense.

Seminole Community College relied on that constant Thursday night until the rest of its game fell into place to post a hard-earned 89-81 victory over Fort Pierce Indian River before 801 fans in the opening round of the Junior College State Basketball Tournament at the University of Central Florida.

Seminole, 30-4, moves into tonight's 7 o'clock semifinal game against Panama City Gulf Coast, which outlasted Avon Park South Florida, 114-112. Tonight's other semifinal at 9 matches Cocoa Brevard and Marianna Chipola. Brevard stunned Jacksonville's top-ranked Florida, 97-95. Chipola turned back Miami Dade South, 85-74.

Tonight's winners will decide the 27th state title Saturday afternoon at 3:30. The North-South All-Star game will be played Saturday at 1:30 p.m. Sanford's Darryl Merthle, a sophomore standout for Daytona Beach, will suit up for the North.

As has been the case most of the season, the Raiders received solid efforts from all involved. Darris Gallagher, 6-8 Vance Hall and Holly Keller carried the offensive load in the first half. Barry Dunning, a 6-7 freshman forward, hit clutch basket after clutch basket down the stretch while Claude Jackson and Eric Brooks handled Indian River's pressing defense. Malcolm Houston, SCC's 3-point bomber, was in early foul trouble and watched most of the evening. His string of 33 games with a 3-pointer came to an end as he was 0 for 2 and finished with six points.

Hall, the Mid-Florida Conference Player of the Year, did not shoot the ball until the 10:53 mark of the first half. The sophomore center still finished with 11 of 14 from the field and 2 of 3 free throws for a game-high 24 points. Gallagher, an All-MFC guard, tossed in 22 points and handed out 12 assists. Dunning converted 8 of 13 and two free throws for 18 points. Keller and Jackson chipped in eight apiece.

SCC coach Bill Payne pointed to his team's defense as the difference. "We swatted a few away, didn't we?" he said.

Hall said the Raiders played "Shadow Ball" until the offense came around. "We just tried to deny them the ball," he said. "It worked pretty well because we forced a lot of turnovers (17) when they tried to set up their offense."

Hall blocked five shots while Jackson rejected two, Dunning one and Gallagher one. Gallagher came up with four steals and Jackson had two.

Indian River, 19-13, received 23 points from bull-like Nathan Boyd, 17 from David Williams and 12 from point guard Donnie Yarborough. A stingy, overplaying SCC defense, however, checked the rest below double figures.

"We knew Seminole had the superior team," Indian River coach Mike Leatherwood said. "We still had a chance to win after we came back both times but that last spurt beat us."

Two Raiders spurts had the Pioneers on the ropes but the scrappy Fort Pierce club would not fold. "That just play so darn hard it's hard to pull away from them," Payne said. "Turnovers

Stars Fall To Brevard

ORLANDO — Those falling stars heard around the University of Central Florida gymnasium Thursday night were Jacksonville's Florida Community College.

Coach Buster Harvey's Stars, top-ranked in Florida and 18th nationally, were stunned by a fired up Cocoa Brevard club, 97-95, in the opening round of the Junior College State Basketball Tournament at UCF.

The victory eliminated a team which twice tarnished the 30-4 mark of the Seminole Community College Raiders.

SCC coach Bill Payne was surprised at the outcome but Raider forward Claude Jackson was not. "They didn't come out ready to play," Jackson said. "Once you get here anybody can beat you."

FCC-J fell behind early but caught the Titans after standout Lemon Berry fouled out with 16 minutes to play as Alvin Heggis tallied eight points to pull the Stars ahead, 70-66.

Aric Sinclair and Juwana Only followed minutes later with hoops to stretch the advantage to 75-68 with 10 minutes left.

Brevard, which nipped SCC in overtime in late December, marched back into the game behind the shooting of Mike Peterson (28 points), Lee Osborn (18) and Kirt Hankton (16) down the stretch.

Peterson put the Titans on top, 95-93, with 54 seconds left and when the Stars sent everyone to the boards, Hankton was all alone for a dunk for a 97-93 lead with 34 seconds to go.

Larry Ross pulled FCC-J to within two with 10 seconds left and when Hankton missed a free throw with eight ticks to go, the Stars had a last gasp.

Harvey inserted 3-point specialist Phillip Sitt. The Stars set him up in the far right corner but with four seconds left he collided with referee Bill Goebels. Sitt's rushed effort with two ticks to go did not reach the rim.

Ultimate Dream: County Matmen Chase State Title

Seminole County State Wrestling Champions

1977: Mark Schuster, Lyman, 136 pounds
1982: Richard Farmer, Lake Brantley, 136 pounds
1983: Jack Likens, Lake Mary, 109 pounds
1984: Jack Likens, Lake Mary, 118 pounds

Eighteen Seminole County wrestlers parade into competition today. Eighteen young men attempt to fulfill a dream. For most, it is the impossible dream. A dream so far beyond their reach it would not succumb to the strongest cradle.

Less than a handful of Seminole County grapplers has realized the championship dream.

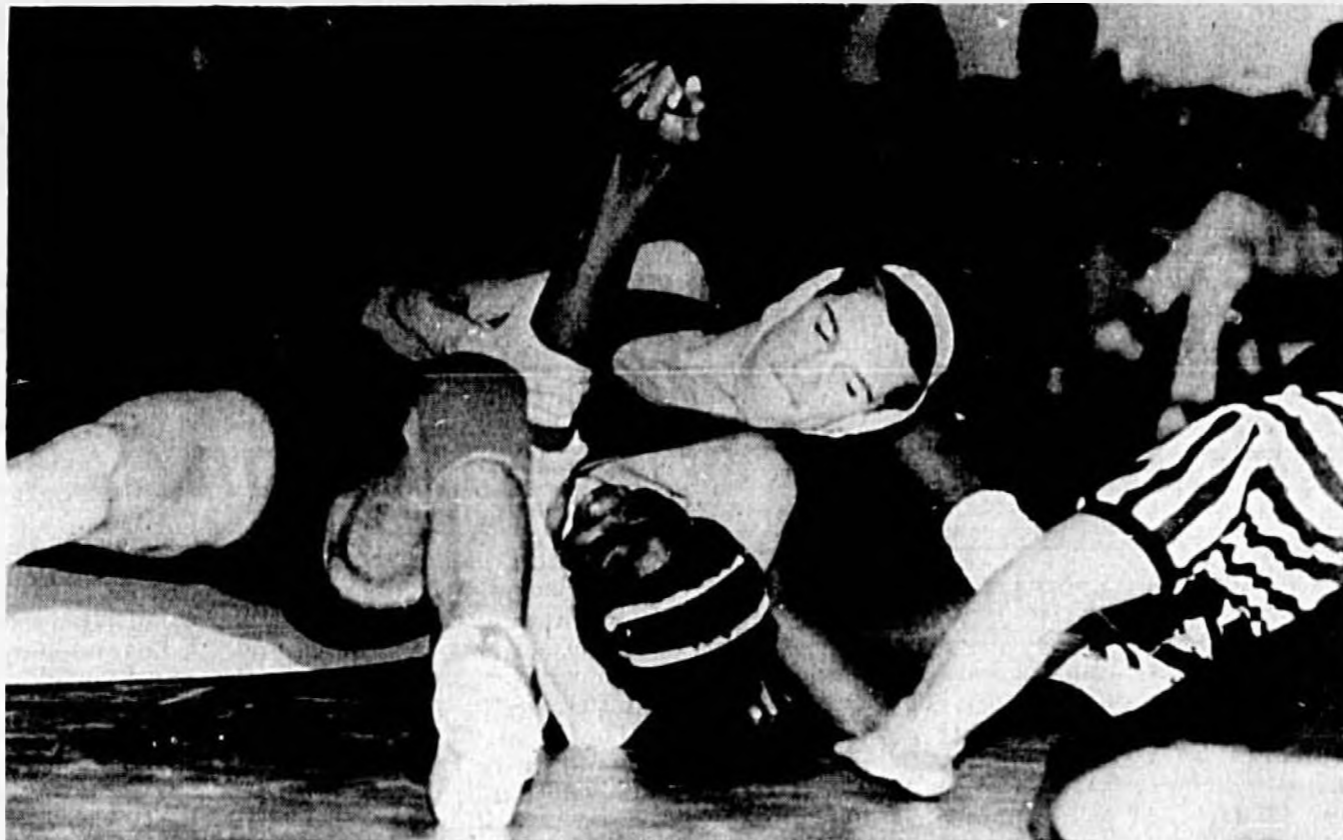

Wrestling, although some may beg to differ, spells team I-N-D-I-V-I-D-U-A-L. And there is nothing wrong there. The sport thrives on individuality. It would not suffer if no team points were kept. And, there is no sport which brings an individual into the spectator's focus more than wrestling.

How can one match the exhilaration of one-to-one combat for the state wrestling championship? A basket at the buzzer for a state basketball title maybe. A homer to win the baseball crown. A touchdown pass to do the same in football.

All, of course, are tremendous thrills. All, though, are in need of the support of teammates. A wrestler gets the support of no one as he marches painstakingly through first, second, semifinal and final rounds. As victory arrives with each step, the dream becomes more in focus.

Finally, there you are, staring across the mat at your adversary during the lineup. Three two-minute sessions follow to determine the champion. Sometimes, an overtime is necessary. There are just 14 weight classes — only 14 kings of this sport. Kings large and kings small. Wrestling is the fairest determination of a champion. No weight advantage is possible.

The pressure must be intense. There is no place to hide from defeat or victory. All eyes are glued on you and your opponent. As the spotlight burns into the mat, the huge throng scrutinizes your every move. It applauds a lightning takedown. It bemoans a mistake leading to a reversal. The crowd lives and dies with the grappler on center stage.

Three Seminole County grapplers have survived that inferno to wear that state crown. One young man, whose accomplishments must be placed among the county's finest, survived to capture back-to-back state titles.

Lake Mary's Jack Likens, who used saavy as well as technique, accomplished something which no one may do again. Likens won the 109-pound title in 1983 when Lake Mary was a Class 3A participant. A year later, he came back to take the 116-pound crown when the Rams were a Class 4A competitor.

Seminole County's first state crown came in 1977 when Lyman's Mark Schuster took the 136-pound title. It was not until six years later, again at 136 pounds, that Lake Brantley's Richard Farmer captured another championship.

Four titles in county wrestling history. That is a very select group. Lyman began its program in 1971, six years after the first state championship was held with approximately 30 schools. The other county schools followed suit shortly thereafter. Former Lyman mat coach and present athletic director Skip Pletzer was the captain of Miami Norland's 1965 state champions. Pletzer finished fourth at 159 pounds.

"I know there haven't been too many in Seminole County, but there have been a lot of guys who have come close," Pletzer said Thursday afternoon. "It is a tremendous accomplishment."

Eighteen want that accomplishment, but only a handful have a realistic chance.

Here is a rundown of the county hopefuls:
BEST BETS: Seminole's Troy Turner, Lake Mary's Bill Richards and Lake Mary's Troy Jackson.

Turner, a 171-pound senior, has the best credentials. The hard-nosed Seminole has been runner-up the past two years. He lost by nine points as a sophomore. Last year, he suffered an injury in the semifinals and could not wrestle Merritt Island's Solomon Fleckman in the finals. Turner had beaten Fleckman earlier in the year, 8-6.

Turner has posted a 111-5 mark for his career. He is 28-0 this year. He was 29-0 until the injury cost him a chance in the finale last year. Turner wrestled at 171 this year after competing at 159 the first three years.

"I feel good at 171," Turner, who weighs 164, said Thursday. "I like to wrestle guys bigger than me because they are usually taller. I think that gives me an advantage because I can get underneath them."

Turner, as one might expect, is chomping at the bit. "All summer I thought about missing out on that final match," he said. "I tried to put it off this season, but it was still there."

"I am more confident this year. It is my last year and I really want it. I have the experience and I know not to get upset just because it is the state tournament. I will treat it just like any other tournament," he added.

Turner's toughest competition will come from Orlando Colonial's Mike Sousa (29-1), in the semifinal match and either Clearwater

Ueberroth Calls For A Report On Negotiations

DALLAS (UPI) — Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth, responding to union allegations of collusion, Thursday asked major-league owners for a report on free-agent negotiations.

"I want the players to play," Ueberroth said following an owners' meeting of the 26 clubs. "I wanted to know if negotiations were ongoing with some of these free agents and they seem to be."

"Some of the free agents may have priced themselves out of the market. Some of them have generated no interest at any price. But I'm hopeful that these negotiations are successful."

Ueberroth did not discuss any specific players and none of the owners would comment about particular negotiations following the meeting. Eight veteran free agents remain unsigned after being unable to reach agreements with their former clubs or any others.

Grievances have been filed from the last two offseasons charging collusion among major-league owners in regard to signing free agents. Such behavior is in violation of antitrust laws.

The owners contend, however, that salaries being asked by many free agents are simply too high.

"If there are good players out there, they will be signed," said Texas Rangers owner Eddie Chiles, one of the few who would talk about any subject following the two-day meeting. "It's like any business. If you overprice what you are selling, the market goes away from you."

When asked what he thought about charges of collusion, Chiles said: "That's garbage. But the union has to fuss about something."

Other owners either ignored questions or said they were forbidden to talk.

"I can't tell you anything," said New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner. "Talk to the commissioner. He won't let me say anything."

The commissioner also said nine teams either broke even or made money during fiscal year 1985, an increase of four teams from the previous fiscal year. He said financial stability should be a goal of all of baseball, something he said would be difficult because of decreasing television revenues.

"We warned the clubs that television payments will come down," the commissioner said. "If we do not exert responsibility, the institution of major league baseball will be in financial trouble."

NO SPECIAL K FOR DR. K

NEW YORK (UPI) — Kellogg Co., canceled plans Thursday for Mets pitcher Dwight Gooden to promote its corn flakes, a decision the company says has nothing to do with the player's recent legal problems.

Gooden has pleaded no-contest to charges of scuffling with a Tampa policeman. His agent, Jim Neader, told Manhattan, Inc. magazine the conviction hasn't cut into Gooden's six-figure promotion contracts with various companies.

Coach Willie Richardson and his Lake Mary Rams didn't look all that happy after Thursday night's 71-61 victory over Lyman in first round action of the district basketball tournament.

The reason that Richardson was not jumping for joy was because Lake Mary will be going up against Seminole, a 71-44 winner over Lake Howell on Wednesday, in semifinal action tonight at 8:30 at Seminole High.

In other action on Thursday, 14th-ranked Mainland cruised past DeLand, 58-38. Mainland will take on 16th-ranked Port Orange Spruce Creek, a 61-54 winner over Lake Brantley on Wednesday.

Coach Bill Klien's Seminoles, ranked 20th, are on a roll as the Tribe has won 19 out of its last 20 games and nine consecutive. Seminole now stands at 25-5.

"They (The Seminoles) are probably the best team in the district," Richardson said after his Rams dominated Lyman. "We aren't going to change anything in our game. It's kind of late for that."

Richardson got an impressive performance from his big men on Thursday night as sophomore Bernard Mitchell hit for a career-high 22 points. Center Oscar Merthle also had a sound outing as the senior hit for 19. Lake Mary totally dominated the boards in the game.

"I doubt if we will be that dominating against Seminole," Richardson chuckled. "They come at you from everywhere."

Klein said that his club will have to play well in order to beat the Rams. "They are playing good basketball right now," Klein said of the Rams. "They look like they are peaking and we are going to have to play very well in order to beat them."

Seminole has defeated Mary in two Seminole Athletic Conference games earlier in the season, but neither game was a blowout.

The game will have some interesting matchups in it as Seminole guards Andre "Smooth" Whitney and Jerry "Stick" Parker will be facing Lake Mary's Terry "The Cat" Miller and sharpshooter Mike Mandeville.

In the middle, Seminole's Walter "Tipman" Hopson or Craig Walker will have to play well in order to contain Merthle. Roderick Henderson will also have to be at his best in order to contain Mitchell.

Mitchell, nevertheless, said that he is looking forward to taking on Seminole. "I want Seminole," Mitchell said. "We have never had much luck against them and it's time for that to change."

Richardson said that the victory over Lyman will help the team's confidence. "It's good to get a win under our belts,"

Richardson said. "The confidence will put us on an emotional high, and we'll need all the energy we can get in order to beat them."

Richardson went on to say that he wants his club to control the tempo of the game. "That doesn't mean that it has to be slow," Richardson said. "If we can control the tempo, we should be in good shape. They are fast and we are going to have to play excellent defense in order to stop them."

When asked about the tempo of the game, Klein said, "We only have one tempo, and that's fast."

CREEK-BUCS: ONE MORE TIME

For the third consecutive year, the Spruce Creek Hawks and the Mainland Buccaneers, two Volusia County rivals, find themselves pitted against each other in an all important district showdown as these two schools meet tonight at 7 p.m. in the semi-finals of the District 4A-9 Basketball Tournament at Seminole High's Bill Fleming Memorial Gym.

Mainland, 23-5 and the No. 3 seed in the tourney, earned the right to meet the second-seeded Hawks with a 58-38 victory over sixth-seeded DeLand Thursday. The Hawks, who are 22-5, had earlier advanced to the semi-final round with their win over seventh-seeded Lake Brantley on Wednesday, 61-54.

In the second semi-final game tonight, top-seeded Seminole, who blew by eighth-seeded Lake Howell Wednesday, 71-44, will take on fifth-seeded Lake Mary, who stopped Lyman Thursday, the tourney's 4th seed, 71-61.

In the previous two seasons, Mainland and Spruce Creek had met in the final of the 4A-9 tourney, with the Hawks winning last year and the Bucs in 1985. In 1985, forward George McCloud and a sophomore center named Mike Polite led the Bucs to victory while last year the Hawks came out the district champ behind the play of center Jon Fedor and then junior point-guard Levon Darthard.

McCloud and Fedor are now teammates at Florida State University while Polite and Darthard, who are both seniors this season, will try to lead their respective schools to another district championship.

Polite, who will join McCloud and Fedor at FSU next year, having already signed a letter of intent with the Seminoles earlier this season, is considered by many as being one of the top prep players in the nation. In a poll conducted by The Sporting News, he was listed among the top 30 players in the country.

Although Mainland, currently ranked 14th in the Class 4A state poll, won both its regular season meetings this season against the Creek, currently ranked 16th, Buc head coach Dick Toth doesn't see this as being any advantage tonight.

"No, Spruce Creek is a good team and we're going to have to work real hard to win," he said.

Richmond Gains In Recovery Act From Pneumonia

NASCAR Winston Cup driver Tim Richmond has gained about 14 pounds and could return to driving as early as the middle of March, a spokesman for Hendrick Motorsports said.

"He's doing fantastic," said Jimmy Johnson, vice president and general manager of Hendrick Motorsports. "He got his doctor's permission to leave Ashland, Ohio and move to Ft. Lauderdale. Richmond plans to stay in Florida until he starts racing again."

Johnson said "He's really talking like he is ready to go back racing. He misses it so much. I talked with him about a week ago and there is no rattle sound in his chest. He has really cleared up."

Richmond suffered a life-threatening bout with pneumonia during the off-season and spent approximately three weeks in the Cleveland Clinic. During his illness, he lost about 18 to 20 pounds and was unable to rejoin his team when the Winston Cup season began. Benny Parsons is driving the Rick Hendrick owned Folgers Coffee sponsored car until Richmond returns.

Selected NASCAR and CART-PPG Indy Car drivers said it was time for the motor-sports community to speak out against drug abuse. The drivers, who are either sponsored by or have as an associate sponsor Valvoline Oil Co., made their statements during a news conference recently.

Attending the news conference were Terry Labonte, A.J. Foyt, Greg Sacks, Cale Yarborough, Neil Bonnett and Michael Andretti. Known as Team Valvoline, other drivers included in the anti-drug campaign are Bobby Rahal, Geoff Brabham and Joe Amate.

During the season, each time a member of the group wins an event Valvoline will donate $1,000 to the National Federation of Parents for Drug-Free Youth. "Normally, I don't do things like this, but I think it is time to step up and say not to drugs," Foyt said.

The purse for the 46th annual Daytona 200, the nation's most prestigious motorcycle race, will be the richest in the history of the event which began on the sands of "The World's Most Famous Beach" in 1937. A total of over $330,000 in awards for America's premier two wheeled athletes has been posted as "Cycle Week '87" gets set to soar here beginning Sunday, March 1, with the Daytona-Busch Half Mile at Volusia County Speedway and culminates at Daytona International Speedway with the Daytona 200 AMA Camel Pro Series Motorcycle Classic.

The Championship Cup Series actually kicks off Cycle Week on Saturday, Feb. 28, when racers from around the nation run two days of road racing at Daytona. When the action on the track at Daytona ends each day, the racing doesn't stop. The Wiseco-Spectro Daytona Dirt Track Series will run Wednesday through Saturday nights at Memorial Stadium in Daytona Beach.

Lake Mary sophomore forward Bernard Mitchell scored a career-high 22 points on Thursday night to lead the Lake Mary Rams to a 71-61 victory over Lyman in first round action of the District 4A-9 Basketball Tournament at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium before 188 fans.

In other first round action on Thursday night, Daytona Beach Mainland cruised past DeLand, 58-38, to advance to the semi-final round.

Mainland will take on Spruce Creek, a 61-54 winner over Lake Brantley on Wednesday, at 7 tonight at Seminole High School. Seminole, 71-44 winner over Lake Howell on Wednesday, will entertain Lake Mary at 8:30.

"I wasn't entirely pleased with the way we played," Lake Mary coach Willie Richardson said after the game. "We rebounded well, but made a heck of a lot of mistakes."

"We didn't play very well at

Basketball

all," devastated Lyman coach Tom Lawrence said. "They totally outrebounded us."

The Rams controlled the glass from the outset. Lake Mary got two, and sometimes three opportunities to shoot the ball. "We played solid defense," Mitchell said. "And we made some nice plays on offense."

Lake Mary center Oscar Merthle had a big game as the senior hit for 19 points with most of them coming in the paint. Merthle got off to a good start as he scored 12 of his points in the first half.

Guard Terry "The Cat" Miller played well at the point as the senior netted 13 points while dishing off several times on the fast break.

Lyman guard Robert Thomas had his usual outing as the flashy senior scored 19 while dumping off for his typical assists. Senecio Vince Florence hit for 14 points before fouling out early in the fourth quarter. At one point in the game, Florence hit for 10 points in a row.

Senior center Shawn Hester played well hitting for 13 points. Forward Craig Radzak was held to only nine points.

"We were absolutely killed on the boards," Radzak said after the game. "I was surprised that they dominated us so much."

The first quarter of the game was even as Lake Mary held a 14-10 lead after one period. Mary lengthened its lead to 10 at 24-14 midway through the second quarter. Lyman fought back, however, and cut the lead to 30-28 just before intermission.

The Rams came out in the third stanza and immediately took control of the game. Mary outscored Lyman 11-4 to start the quarter and take a 41-32 lead with 4:09 left to play in the period. The Rams maintained that lead for the rest of the period and held a 48-39 lead after three quarters.

On several occasions in the final quarter, Lyman cut the lead to six points, but Mary always got its nine-10 point lead back. The Rams controlled the rest of the game and made eight of 11 free throws in the final period.

"I was very happy with the Bernard played today," Richardson said of Mitchell's play. "I don't give a lot of credit sometimes, but today he deserves it."

LAKE MARY (71) — Merthle 19, Miller 13, Napoli 2, Czerniejewski 11, Mitchell 22, Mandeville 4, Prom 0, Stewart 0, Compton 0, Acker 0, Pierce 0. Totals: 29 13 20 71.

LYMAN (61) — Thomas 19, Florence 14, Radzak 9, Hester 13, Lamb 0, Moulton 0, Miller 6, Watkins 0, Simpson 0, Kendrick 0. Totals: 21 19 23 61.

Bucs 'Politely' Excuse DeLand; Creek Is Next

Mainland center Mike Polite scored a game-high 20 points in only three quarters of action on Thursday night to lead the 14th-ranked Buccaneers to a 58-38 first-round District 4A-9 Tournament basketball victory over DeLand before 99 fans at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium.

The victory advances Mainland into semifinal action against Port Orange Spruce Creek, a 61-54 winner over Lake Brantley on Wednesday. Mainland and Creek will meet at 7 tonight at Seminole High. In other action on Thursday night, Lake Mary defeated Lyman, 71-61. Mary will take on Seminole at 8:30.

The winners of tonight's game will meet on Saturday at 8 in the district championship game.

"We played a pretty good game tonight," Mainland coach Dick Toth said. "They tried to slow things down on us, but we responded well."

Prior to the start of the game, DeLand coach John Zeoli said that in order for the game to be close, the Bulldogs had to keep things very slow. "They beat us three times already," Zeoli said. "If we can slow up things and stay with eight in the final quarter, anything can happen."

The Dogs did slow Mainland down, but the Bucs fed the ball to Polite and the 6-7 senior would for Florida State scored at will. "We worked pretty hard out there tonight," Polite said after the game. "We moved the ball around quite a bit and I happened to get it a lot."

Mainland used a balanced scoring attack other than Polite's 20. Phillip King came off of the bench and scored 10 points while Derrick Henry, Woodrow Cooper, and Kenny Mackeroy each netted six points.

DeLand center Mike Bruten had a fine game for the Bulldogs as he scored 19 points. Robbie Wilkes and Ed Miller each netted six points in a losing cause.

After Mainland scored the first basket of the game, DeLand came out and worked the ball around without a shot for over three minutes. DeLand finally shot and with the score tied at four a few minutes later, Mainland scored 10 unanswered points.

Polite grabbed one of his many rebounds in the spurt and slammed it home much to the delight of the sparse crowd. Mainland held a 14-4 lead after the first quarter.

With the Bucs up 25-16, Mainland ran off eight points to DeLand's two taking a 33-18 lead into the locker room.

"I think that that was the difference in the game," Zeoli said about the Mainland run.

MAINLAND (58) — Henry 6, Cooper 6, Morris 2, Powers 0, M. Polite 20, McIntyre 4, E. Polite 4, Mackeroy 6, Williams 0, Williams 0, King 10. Totals: 25 10 11 58.

DELAND (38) — Smith 1, Wilkes 6, Lane 4, Miller 6, Bruten 19, Bletcher 0, Sutton 0, Ruegger 0, Curry 0, Bishop 0, Buschatt 2. Totals: 18 24 38.

Countryside's Dennis Nelson (27-2) or North Miami's Chris Simpson (25-4) in the finals.

• Richards, a hard-working 149-pound senior, has turned in an incredible season thus far. He wrestled at 159 he whipped Seminole's Tracy Turner twice. His 29-0 record is one of the best in the tournament. He has collected Lyman Christmas, Seminole Athletic Conference, district and regional titles.

"Bill got the best draw of anybody," Lake Mary coach Doug Peters said. "Everybody is tough at state, of course. But everybody in top bracket has three or four losses."

Peters said determination is a Richards' attribute and it should carry him through the weaker upper bracket. "I just don't think Bill will let anybody get in the way on his trip to the finals," he said. "He's taking match at time."

In the lower bracket are two studs. Defending 142-pound champ Bret Gustafson of Brandon is 22-0. North Miami's Angel Soto is 29-0. Richards will have to be at his best to beat either, yet less tough qualifying matches should help the Lake Mary co-captain.

• Jackson, the Rams' other co-captain, finished fifth last year. "I'm not going to let anything get in my way this year," he said last week. "I won't settle for anything less than a state championship."

The 400-pound Jackson, 25-0, will get his toughest bracket test from 320-pound Moses Rivers. The Hialeah Miami Lakes senior, 18-0, pinned Jackson last year.

"But Troy has improved a lot," Peters said. "And, he is super confident. I don't see any weaknesses. He can even get off his back, which most unlimbeds can't do."

The lower bracket may be even tougher with defending champion Mike Blasingane of Miami Killian, who is 19-2. Tampa Leto 300-pounder Michael Heldt is 21-0 while Winter Garden West Orange's Robert Kenon, 18-8, could also be a factor.

DARKHORSES: Although it is a rarity when an underclassmen wins a state title, there are a few countians who hope to pull the upset.

• Lake Mary junior Scott Flores, 22-0, has a chance at 109 pounds. He must beat Merritt Island's Richard Jones, 22-0, in his bracket and then handle Clearwater's Todd Kuhn, 28-1, or Miami Southridge's Cortez Jones, 28-2, in the lower bracket. This class has 14 of the 16 grapplers with 20 or more wins.

"I don't know how good Flores is," Peters said. "He wrestled real well in Georgia and that was some good competition. I'm anxious to see how he does. If he beats Jones that would be very important for us team-wise, too."

• Seminole senior Sheralton Mays placed second a year ago at 116 pounds, but he has not been as effective this year. Coach Glenn Maiolini, though, said Mays, 20-5, should be fine-tuned now after dropping from 130 two weeks ago.

Manny Blanco, who attended Milwee Middle School before moving to Clearwater, has a 30-0 mark for Countryside. In the upper bracket is 30-0 Andy Anderson of Miami Norland and Lake Mary junior upstart Wayne Clayton at 16-1. Winter Park's Jimmy Lott, 23-5, is also in Mays' bracket.

• Rob Richards, Bill's younger brother, probably has the best chance of the darkhorses. Resembling an octopus with his long, angular frame and swarming hands and arms, the skilled junior has carved out a 25-1 record at 136 pounds. He needs to handle Miami American's Jonathan Gaines, 17-3, in the upper bracket before taking on J.D. Boardwine, 20-6, of Bradenton Manatee or Chris McDonald, 21-4, of Cooper City in the lower bracket.

• Lake Brantley senior Dan Roth, 25-3, could be a factor in the 102-pound class. Like 109, though, it is loaded with 13 grapplers with 20 or more victories. Roth needs to survive Miami Southridge's Julio Polo, 29-2, in his bracket before meeting the likes of Saverio Cerra, 22-3, of Choctawhatchee and Mike Mandel, 23-1, of Merritt Island in the other bracket.

The team title should be a competitive battle among Southridge (7 entered), Killian (5), Merritt Island (6), Sarasota (7), Brandon (8), Lake Mary (8) and North Miami (7).

"Southridge is favored," Peters said. "But I expect us to be a factor."

Tracy Will Wrestle

Seminole's Tracy Turner, despite injured ligaments in his left wrist, will compete in the Class 4A State Tournament today, his mother Eilene Turner said this morning.

"The doctor said it was up to Tracy," Mrs. Turner said. "And that is all he had to hear."

Turner, a sturdy 159-pound junior with a 22-3 record, finished fifth in the state tournament a year ago. He further injured his wrist in the regional championship last Saturday and had to default. — Sam Cook

Think Green This Year With A Regular Feeding Program For Palms

Old, brown fronds hanging from your palm this time of the year may be cut off close to the trunk with a pruning or pole saw. But, be careful not to pull off fronds that are firmly attached as injury to the palm will occur. Think green this year by starting a regular feeding program for your palms. You can use a special fertilizer formulation or a regular N-P-K fertilizer with a high percentage of nitrogen, such as 16-4-8 or 12-4-8. A complete fertilizer with additional minor elements is better, if available.

Young palms with no clear trunk need one to two pounds fertilizer per inch of trunk diameter per feeding. Palms with clear trunks should receive one-half to one pound of fertilizer per inch of trunk diameter per feeding. Feed your trees three times a year — making your first application now, another in mid-summer, and a third in early fall. The fall feeding will significantly increase cold tolerance and reduce the chance of nutritional deficiencies that may occur when the roots are less active.

Your lawn needs fertilizer, too. And, if you haven't already done so, this is a good time, now through the month of March, to get this little chore done. Select a complete fertilizer, such as

Alfred Bosseson
Urban Horticulturist
323-2500
Ext. 181

16-4-8, 12-4-8, 10-10-10, or 6-6-6. Follow the instructions for application as shown on the bag, or apply the equivalent of one pound of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of lawn area. In addition, proper mowing, watering, thatch control, and pest control must be combined to keep your lawn beautiful. Remember, all fertilizers may burn the grass if improperly applied. Never exceed the recommended rate and apply when the grass leaves are dry. When finished, water thoroughly.

Speaking of watering, many of the lawns and shrub borders in our area are grossly overwatered. This is not only wasteful of a precious resource, but actually causes considerable damage to plants. As a rule, all you need to apply is one-half to one-inch of water every two to three weeks in the winter and the same amount one or two times per week in the summer. This is the equivalent of 300-600 gallons of water per 1,000 square feet per watering. All soils in our area are not the same, though, so you will have to adjust the amount of water to apply to your particular lawn or shrub border.

There are several ways you can tell when your lawn needs water. If you notice spots in the lawn which first turn a bluish-gray color and then brown, water is needed. If footprints remain long after you walk across the lawn, water is needed. If we have a long, dry spell with high temperatures and strong winds, all of these symptoms may appear. During these periods, the plants lose water faster than they can absorb it and then wilt. With a little experience, you'll be able to tell when your lawn needs water. But, you must water when needed and not later, or permanent damage may occur. If the grass plants are full of water, they will be resilient and withstand foot traffic.

Avoid extremes when watering. Light, frequent waterings are inefficient and produce shallow root systems, making the plants more subject to drought. Excessive watering keeps the root zone saturated and is harmful, too. Roots, like leaves, need air to function and too much water can kill the grass. The best time to water is early enough in the day so the grass goes into the evening dry. This will help prevent lawn-destroying diseases. However, early morning may not fit your schedule, so you may have to water whenever convenient.

Trees and shrubs need water, too. Especially those with shallow root systems, such as azaleas. On the other hand, deep-rooted shrubs, such as hibiscus, need deep watering. Underwatering any plants may cause severe wilting and subsequent leaf drop — overwatering may cause similar problems. Like turf grasses, roots of trees and shrubs need air. If too wet, the roots will suffocate and you may lose the entire plant. Some, such as junipers and other needled evergreens, like it on the dry side. If they get too much water, various diseases may attack the stem and roots resulting in the loss of plants. Most trees and shrubs (citrus is the exception) will benefit from a one- to two-inch layer of an organic mulch around the base to hold moisture and keep the roots cool.

Why not become friends with your plants. Get to know them — their needs — their likes and dislikes, and they'll reward you with seasons of beautiful blooms, colorful foliage, and shade in the hot summer.

Happy gardening!

3 Generations Gather To Celebrate Birthday

A special day for Roberta (Mama) Pittman was the celebration of her 84th birthday. She was born Jan. 16, but last week, three generations gathered to honor Mama Pittman, the mother of four children: Harold Pittman, Dolly Mae Pittman, Annie Mae Hicks, deceased, and Roberta A. Terry, hostess for her mother's birthday celebration.

Mrs. Pittman has 13 grandchildren and 14 great grandchildren. Those attending the celebration with Mrs. Pittman were her sister Pearl McIntyre; and grands Sharon Williams, Cynthia Hicks, Emma Terry and Idella Burke, Sanford; and Attorney Debra Roberts, Tallahassee.

Celebration of Love will be held Sunday, March 1, at 3:30 p.m. at Midway Elementary School. Attorney W. George Allen, a former student and now attorney practicing in Fort Lauderdale, will be the speaker. Special musical selections will be presented by the Muller Family (The Generations).

All graduates, former faculty and staff and the public are invited to attend this program. Annys L. Refoe, Lorene Fields Fossitt and Marylen Mobley Jennings are the sponsors.

Bethune-Cookman College National Alumni Association joined hands with the Seminole Bethune-Cookman College Alumni Chapter. Bethune-Cookman Evening Class Students and Friends of the Late Louise Tiny Foster Smith to found a local scholarship in honor of her dedication to the college.

Rev. Julius Kidd, past executive secretary of BCC Alumni fund raising, has asked the president of the Sanford Chapter of BCC Alumni Carlethia Merkerson and local chapter members to adopt this project as an annual goal for helping to provide financial help for students desiring a college education.

Founders Day for Alpha Kappa Alpha united local chapters of the Central Florida area was observed at a week-long celebration. Over 140 sorors representing chapters of Kappa Sigma Omega, Sanford, Nu Iota Omega, Maitland, and Delta Omicron Omega, Orlando, united in sisterly love for an early morning breakfast held at the Omni International Hotel, Orlando. In recognition and honor of Founders Day for the first black female greek letter organization in the United States with special emphasis on rendering supreme service to all mankind.

Chapter participants for the program expressed emphatically points relating to the life story and the valuable contribution the founders made to Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. At the end of each discussion, a white candle was lit in honor and memory of each founder. Corsages of pink tiaroses with pink and green ribbon were worn by each soror.

Soror Eddy K. Walden, Founders Day chairman for 1987, Kappa Sigma Omega Chapter, presented the distinguished awards to Sorors Margaret Oliver and Merlena Johnson, Past Basileus.

Other program participants were Sorors Susie Blackshare, Bobria Alexander, Brenda Ford, Queen E. Jones, Marie Radford and Geraldine Wright.

Founders Day activities continued as the sorority attended the Morehouse College Glee Club recital at Shiloh Baptist Church, Orlando, and Founders Day Worship Service at St. Paul Missionary Baptist Church, Sanford. Participating sorors were Sandra Petty, Velma Williams, Rebecca Sweet, Kathryn Alexander, Bettye Freddie, Priscilla Parks and Basileus Lurline Sweeting.

Wrong Or Right, Public Should Not Be Denied Life-Saving Information

DEAR ABBY: I used to think you gave pretty good advice for the most part, but you fail our young people when you advise them to use contraceptives for premarital sex.

We know that premarital sex is wrong, just as we know shoplifting is wrong. So, do you think it's OK to say, "Shoplifting is against the law, so if you're shoplifting, come to me and I will tell you how to keep from getting caught?"

You tell people if you drink, don't drive. Abby, people aren't supposed to drink in the first place, so why not just tell them not to drink instead of saying, "If you're going to drink, don't drive?"

About sex for unmarried people: When you advise them to use contraceptives to keep from getting pregnant or catching a disease, you are giving them permission to have sex and helping them get by with it by telling them how not to get pregnant or diseased. You might as well say, "Although you're not supposed to have sex, go ahead and have fun, kids — but don't get caught." I would like an answer.

Dear Abby

UPSET IN INDEPENDENCE, MO.

DEAR UPSET: One of the most powerful urges inborn in the human animal is the sex drive. Nature intended it to ensure perpetuation of our species. It is not comparable with the temptation to swipe a candy bar or a T-shirt.

A great many young people are having sex, with or without permission. So in the interest of saving lives, they should know how to prevent pregnancy and disease — particularly since AIDS is incurable. Denying them such information will not stop them from having sex; it will only leave them ignorant and vulnerable to a life-threatening disease. Wake up. What people don't know can not only hurt them, it can kill them.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is recovering from a severe heart attack. "Sol" must lost 40 pounds, and his doctor has told him that he may not smoke or drink any more.

Sol is very unhappy about these orders, and his frustration is compounded by comments from his friends. One said, "After my heart attack, I went back to drinking, smoking and eating." Another said, "You're on a 1,200-calorie diet! Why, I eat that much for breakfast."

Then there are those who invite us for dinner and insist that my husband have a second helping of pie topped with ice cream. Sol knows he shouldn't have it, and so do they, but they tempt him anyway.

Abby, I love my husband and want him to live, but all these so-called friends are undermining his efforts to regain his health. He can't afford another heart attack, and I don't have the courage to tell them off in front of Sol.

What can I do?

WORRIED WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Are those so-called friends ignorant or malicious? If they're ignorant, educate them. If they're malicious, find new friends.

DEAR ABBY: I've read letters in your column from nearly every segment of society. How about giving some space to an ex-bank teller? That job ranks No. 1 for the most abused employees in the working world. Of all bank employees, the tellers have the most contact with the public, making us the most vulnerable for extortion, kidnapping, etc., yet we are the lowest on the pay scale.

If a customer has a complaint, the teller hears it first — in the most foul and abusive language imaginable. When I've asked to see an ID before cashing a check, I've been called every name in the book for not remembering someone I may have seen before.

So, I am no longer a bank teller. Thank you. I feel much better now.

A DISGRUNTLED EX-TELLER

DEAR DISGRUNTLED: My pleasure. That's what I'm here for. Have a good day.

Chelation Therapy Just Doesn't Work

DEAR DR. GOTT — Since there is apparently no prescription medicine to remove arterial plaque, what do you think of oral chelation?

DEAR READER — Chelation is the bonding of one metal to another to remove a toxic compound from the body. It is useful in treating poisoning from heavy metals, such as lead. Chelation to retard or reverse arteriosclerotic plaque is quackery. No valid scientific study has ever shown chelation therapy to be of benefit in treating arteriosclerosis.

To give you more information about arterial plaque, its effects and management, I'm sending you a free copy of my new Health Report, UNDERSTANDING CHOLESTEROL. Others who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Are hair dyes dangerous? Are the chemicals absorbed through the scalp and into the blood?

DEAR READER — For the average person, hair dyes are not dangerous. However, some people experience allergic reactions to the compounds. Although the dyes are not absorbed through the skin, they can cause rashes and hair loss in susceptible individuals.

DEAR DR. GOTT — In the past five years I have developed a few dozen fatty tumors, mostly on my torso. Could large and frequent doses of antibiotics have contributed to this problem?

DEAR READER — Antibiotics do not contribute to the formation of benign fatty tumors (lipomas). No one knows why these growths appear; the tendency to develop lipomas may be inherited.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband and I are involved in many organizations and attend a lot of dinners and conferences away from home. The problem is that, at mealtime, I gag, can't eat and end up excusing myself from the room. It's very embarrassing and frustrating. I love people and can't understand why I have this reaction. My mother and brother also have this problem, but have learned to control it. How can I learn to just sit down and enjoy normal meals?

DEAR READER — It sounds as though you are having stress-induced spasm of the esophagus. However, there are other possibilities, too: esophagitis and stricture (narrowing) of the esophagus, for example.

You should have a thorough examination of your upper intestinal tract to see if your problem has a physical cause. The tests may include an esophagoscopy, during which a specialist views the esophageal lining through a lighted tube. If your esophagus looks normal, the doctor may prescribe medicines to relax your esophagus and allow you to swallow during times of stress.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Without the takedown double by West, South would not have cared for his chances in four hearts. But with West showing opening-bid values, the likelihood of the king of spades being outside greatly increased. At the same time, since the double by West indicated support for any suit that East might bid, there was less chance that West would have a three-card heart holding. (A-K-J, A-J-x or K-J-x in hearts would automatically set the game contract.)

On the opening lead, declarer won East's queen of clubs with his ace and immediately led the 10 of spades and let it ride. Next he played to the spade jack and cashed the ace, discarding the Jack of diamonds. He now hoped to hold his losses to two hearts and the diamond ace, so he played a trump to his seven-spot. West won the Jack of hearts, cashed the diamond ace and led the spade king. East trumped with the king of hearts, leaving the ace of hearts to score the setting trick.

Declarer had missed one slight beat in his thinking. After pitching his diamond jack on the spade ace, he needed to continue with dummy's remaining losing spade, on which he should have chucked the king of diamonds. There would then be no way for the defenders to make their high trumps separately when hearts were finally played by declarer.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY
FEBRUARY 28, 1987

Over the past years you acquired knowledge of greater value than you may realize. In the year ahead you'll use it to maximum advantage.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Being too assertive today could defeat your own purposes. Your chances for success will be enhanced if you play things a little laid back. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $1 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's foolish to cling to archaic ideas that you know are unproductive. Busy your nimble mind with creating new concepts.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There is a possibility that pals upon whom you can usually depend won't be available today when you need them. Devise procedures so you can get along without them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Take measures to safeguard your own interests today, because people with whom you'll be associating may only be concerned about covering themselves.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Assignments that you know you should be taking care of yourself should not be delegated to others today. If things go wrong, you'll have only yourself to blame.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're likely to make material gains today, but you might not enjoy what you accumulate. The deal could go down in an unpleasant fashion.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't raise issues today that have led to serious disagreements between you and your mate in the past. You don't need another heated debate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your route to financial returns might be littered with obstacles today, but if you are really money-motivated, you'll come out OK.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even though your common sense will tell you otherwise, you may be unreasonably extravagant today. Perhaps you'd better select a diversion other than shopping.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Material matters should go favorably for you today, but this pleasant edge could be dulled by aggravation with which you may have to contend in other areas.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Friends might not do everything to your liking today. However, you'll spoil your day if you keep score and start adding up their shortcomings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be extremely careful today that you don't feather your own nest at the expense of a friend. You won't value your victory after your pal loses respect for you.

'No Crisis Ahead'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 9.56 Thursday, was up 1.12 to 2217.80 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 476-382 among the 1,314 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 10,283,500 shares.

Stock prices slipped in active trading Thursday, pressured by profit taking and renewed concerns about the economy, but the Tower Commission's report on the Iran-Contra arms affair had little effect.

Alan Ackerman, analyst at Herzfeld & Stern, said selling is moving in and out of individual issues or groups of stocks rather than pushing the entire market sharply lower.

"There is a chance that the market could decline at a faster tempo, but there is no crisis ahead," he said.

Ackerman contended investors are worried about whether President Reagan "will be steady at the helm" for the remainder of his term. The Tower Commission concluded Thursday that President Reagan swapped arms for hostages in his secret dealings with Iran and blamed the scandal on a runaway National Security Council staff.

Dollar And Gold Both Move Higher

By United Press International

The U.S. dollar opened slightly higher against most major foreign currencies in light trading today as markets awaited the latest U.S. trade figures.

Currency markets were quiet and directionless, a London analyst said. Operators were marking time before the January trade figures were released in Washington.

British economic analysts predicted a deficit of between $14 billion and $15 billion, compared with December's $10.7 billion figure.

The Commerce Department reported the U.S. merchandise trade deficit grew to $14.8 billion in January, about average for the past year, with exports falling to their lowest level in 3 1/2 years.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar closed out the week at 153.15 yen, down 0.02 from Thursday's close of 153.17.

In European trading, the British pound strengthened in London opening at $1.5445, compared with $1.5395 at the close on Thursday.

The dollar opened slightly higher in Frankfurt at 1.8245 German marks, up from 1.811, and in Zurich at 1.5352 Swiss francs, up from 1.53.

The dollar opened at 2.062 Dutch guilders in Amsterdam, up from 2.0605 on Thursday.

In Paris the dollar opened at 6.0735 French francs, up from 6.0575, and in Brussels at 38.19 Belgian francs, up from 38.05 on Thursday night.

The dollar opened virtually unchanged in Milan at 1,297.75 lire, compared with a previous close of 1,297.55.

In early New York trading the dollar was mixed against major foreign currencies in moderate trading.

Gold opened slightly higher, gaining $1 an ounce in Zurich to $405.50 and $1.25 in London to $405.75.

January Trade Deficit Grows

WASHINGTON (UPI) — America's merchandise trade deficit grew to $14.8 billion in January, about average for the past year, with exports falling to their lowest level in 3 1/2 years, the Commerce Department announced Friday.

billion with Western Europe, $1.6 billion with Canada, $1.6 billion with Taiwan, $900 million with OPEC nations and $700 million with South Korea, the government said.

Data-collecting problems make it virtually certain the deficit figure will be revised when the next trade report is issued April 14. Today the Commerce Department adjusted December's deficit to $12.73 billion, up from the $10.66 billion reported last month.

January's imports totaled $31.2 billion, while $16.4 billion worth of goods were sent abroad.

Over the month, the United States ran up deficits totaling $5.2 billion with Japan, $2.4

Driver's Licenses Require Road Test

Thursday's Progress Edition of the Sanford Herald contained incomplete information on driver's licenses.

The Division of Driver's Licenses, at 2587 S. Sanford Ave., Sanford, added that a complete road test is also required for new Florida residents wishing to get a Florida driver's license. The applicant is given a complete written test, a vision test, a casual hearing test, and a road test, per a new law that went into effect in 1985, said a spokesman for the license bureau.

State Plans DeBary Hall Renovation

DeBary Hall, a partially restored 19th Century mansion built by German-born Baron Frederick DeBary, located in DeBary, is not yet open to the public as was stated in Thursday's Progress Edition of the Sanford Herald. Plans are underway to restore the mansion to its former grandeur, and when completed it will be open for tours.

Dalton Hewett, administrative assistant to Director Russ Danser of the Bureau of Museums, Department of Natural Resources, said today the state inspected the building this month but he is unsure when funds would be available to restore its safety and aesthetics.

President Contributed $1,000 For Operation

Ronnie Waits For Letter

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The day after his 12-hour liver transplant surgery, a rosy-cheeked Ronnie DeSillers was craving a glass of milk and awaiting a letter from President Reagan, whose photo the boy keeps beside his bed.

"His color is returning. Color I haven't seen in seven years," said Maria DeSillers, the boy's mother.

"To see rosy cheeks was a new experience," DeSillers said Thursday.

The seven-year-old Fort Lauderdale, Fla., boy was listed in critical but stable condition after "a restful night," hospital spokeswoman Mary Ann Ferente said.

DeSillers said the White House told her Ronnie would soon be getting a letter from Reagan, who contributed a $1,000 check toward the transplant operation.

She also said Ronnie, in the week since he arrived in Pittsburgh, had received about 1,000 cards "from people nationwide, as far as Alaska and Hawaii."

Ronnie called Reagan his "big hero" and kept the president's picture nearby, even holding it as he was wheeled into surgery for the life-saving transplant operation that ended Wednesday. Doctors had said the boy would die soon without a new liver.

His mother said he had been always been jaundiced because of his sickness and called the operation "a gift of life ... somebody gave him that."

A day after the surgery, Ronnie moved around in his bed and talked with his mother and stepfather, Jose Castillo.

"Mom, can I have some milk? Some cold milk?" he asked.

The boy was being fed intravenously and a nurse told him he'd have to wait for the milk.

At one point, Castillo said, the boy grabbed his mother's hand and said, "Please stay with me so they don't give me any needles or shots."

"His right foot was itching. He told me, 'Please scratch my foot,'" Castillo said.

"He looked good to me. He's always looking at (Reagan's) picture. It's right beside him. The doctors told us everything's working so far."

Surgeons said the first three days after the operation the most critical and that the boy was being closely monitored for any sign of infection.

"He's doing beautifully ... the liver is functioning as expected," Dr. Carlos Esquivel said several hours after the operation.

Ronnie's plight attracted national attention and Reagan's support after thieves took $4,000 his classmates at a Catholic school in Fort Lauderdale had raised toward his medical expenses.

Another $400,000 came in from people around the country after word spread that the boy was dying of cirrhosis of the liver but his family could not afford to pay for a transplant.

Drive To Apprehend Fugitives Successful

TEMPLE TERRACE (UPI) — A three-week drive to apprehend fugitive felons in a five-county area around Tampa Bay was highly successful, law enforcement officials say, with 457 people back in jail.

The drive was headed by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement and included officers from 22 agencies in Hillsborough, Pinellas, Pasco, Polk and Manatee counties. The officers represented local, county, state and federal agencies.

Robert W. Dempsey, FDLE commissioner, said Thursday the arrests represented 722 warrants and 662 offenses cleared.

"These are not the ordinary run-of-the-mill people who are fugitives," Dempsey said. "These people were felons and in most cases repeat felons."

Dempsey, flanked by sheriffs and representatives from other law enforcement agencies, said operation FAST III (Fugitive Apprehension Strike Team) was carried out from Feb. 9 until Thursday morning.

"We believe we have taken people off the street who are responsible for much of the crime in the area," he said. "They made it (crime) a career."

Dempsey said offenses listed in the warrants included 112 narcotics cases, 98 for larceny-auto theft, 43 for burglary, 18 for rape-sex offenses and three for murder. He said officers had not had time to prepare details on the individual cases.

But he said more than two-thirds of those arrested had prior offenses, 67 of whom had eight or more prior offenses and 91 with between four and seven prior offenses.

Dempsey held up one fugitive's arrest record print-out and it stretched about five-feet and included 33 arrests. He said another was driving a stolen car when arrested.

Dempsey said law enforcement officials are aware of the crowded prison conditions in Florida which has led to the release of some inmates this week, but said they have a duty to arrest criminals.

"Law enforcement cannot abdicate its responsibility just because of an administrative problem with our jails," Dempsey said.

The roundup was the third coordinated by the FDLE in Florida in the past year. Dempsey said FAST I netted 317 people in 16 Panhandle counties last March, while 190 people were arrested last May in FAST II in five northeast Florida counties.

reported there was nothing of great value in the shed.

The boys told Lee they were exploring the woods when they found the shed and were curious about a can that was attached to the door. Beck touched the can and saw behind it a lock on the door. Kilgore pulled the can and that set off the booby trap. A shotgun round discharged and pellets hit Beck and Kilgore in their chests and arms, Lee reported.

Lee said a string was attached from the can to the booby trap, which was hidden under a styrofoam cooler beside the shed. When the can was pulled the string attached to it set off the rat trap portion of the device and that triggered the firing of the pellets by driving a nail into a pipe containing a shotgun shell.

The property where the device was set was not fenced and not posted against trespassing, Lee reported.

want some of the older animals and they would be kept here. None of the animals will be killed, she said.

She said the board wants to get the animals off concrete and from behind bars. She said one criterion for renovating the existing site is "if we put money in the existing zoo, it has to be money that's going to stay."

Others on hand at the informal meeting were: outgoing board president John Smith, board member Bill MacLauchlin, County Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff, and Tommy Peterson, a former zoo board president.

accredited by the National Association of Zoological Parks and is rated above the required standards.

She said committees have been set up to study restoration of the existing site, to investigate possible sites for a full-scale exotic zoological park, and to look at the present facilities to see what needs to be done to maintain them until extensive renovations are made. They are looking to how the zoo can be developed in a natural habitat in an educational, entertaining way, she said.

Zoo officials are meeting with the Central Florida architects' association to see if they will work with the zoo in drawing up plans for renovating the animal exhibits.

Mayor Smith said, "I very much want this site to be the best site it could be."

Peterson said the zoo has probably one of the best geographic locations in the area (on Highway 17-92 near Interstate 4 between Disney World and Daytona Beach.)

"It's going to take support of local governments, corporations and residents," Mrs. Morris said. "To accomplish our goal at this site or any other one."

Mrs. Morris said the fund-raising effort would be conducted throughout Central Florida from corporations and private individuals. MacLauchlin said he is looking at the possibility of approaching school boards in Seminole and nearby counties for contributions, pointing out large numbers of students visit the zoo annually at "half price."

The deputy awakened the driver and made the arrest without incident. A further check showed the driver, Lambert, was wanted for escape from Lake County, Fla. and that the car, too, was stolen.

Lambert was scheduled for arraignment in Nevada today.

Convicted of rape, arson, burglary and attempted murder of a Seminole County woman, Lambert had escaped from the prison by cutting his way through two fences. Officials aren't sure where Lambert got the tool to cut the fence.

'Beauty And Intimacy... Light And Fresh'

The American Medium — Watercolor

"Very light and fresh." If that's the way you like your art, as does Sanford artist Marie Richter, watercolor may be the ticket for you.

Mrs. Richter who has been painting with watercolors of about 40 years also passes the skill along to students. Over the years she has taught about 80 other artists the secrets of watercolor success.

"Some people think it's difficult. I think it's very easy," Mrs. Richter said of her art.

"I think what scares people is it's hard to control in the beginning. It tends to run and that makes it difficult," Mrs. Richter said. "It's a very detailed medium and I like to do flowers and birds. Transparency comes with the territory."

Alice Marks, one of Mrs. Richter's Sanford students said, "Control is important, especially if you're working wet on wet.

Everything runs together in a hodge podge of muddy color. You have to learn to control it."

Miss Marks, who has been studying with Mrs. Richter three years, said "The main thing is to let your background dry before doing dry brush work over the background."

...Watercolor

In watercolor the background is usually created by applying wanted colors to specific areas of the paper and then letting them flow and merge over the wet surface. After that is dry additional detailing can be added using a less watery mix of the paint, using a dry brush.

That's the technique another of Mrs. Richter's students, Linda Renfro, of Sanford, uses. She usually lightly sketches in her design before applying any color. Mrs. Richter said she also uses that technique, but sometimes paints pictures without first having sketched in the design.

"I like the softness," Ms. Renfro said of the results she gets using watercolor. "I took oil painting. I'm not an oil painter. To me oils are harsh and clunky where watercolor is nice and soft.

"I think it's easy because it's so easy to let your colors run together and make really soft shades," she said.

Ms. Renfro said she uses a heavy, quality paper and Mrs. Richter said one color she doesn't have in her watercolor box is white. Instead of using white paint where she wants white in her pictures she leaves that area unprinted, allowing the natural white of the paper to show through.

Although watercolor may produce a soft feminine image, Mrs. Richter said men as well as women are drawn to this medium.

In the 19th Century critics began noting that this 'American medium' is adaptable and versatile. Where oil paints are most useful to the experienced artist, watercolors from tins or tubes can be enjoyed by children and Sunday painters as well as pros.

"There is the appeal of its beauty and an intimacy about watercolor that make people relate to it," said Joann Moser of the Smithsonian's National Museum of American Art. On technical grounds watercolor's special virtue seems to be its luminous transparency and the tactile appeal of textured paper.

A century ago, Ms. Moser said, "artists in America achieved some of their greatest expression in watercolor. There was an interest in capturing the immediacy of the moment outdoors. The intentions of artists coincided with what the medium offered."

Florida, with its warm, tropical settings was a draw to such artists. As early as 1832 John James Audubon trekked southward. The famed naturalist created realistic renderings of exotic birds and beasts finely detailed in watercolors, she said.

Winslow Homer, who was also preoccupied with the fleeting life of nature made seven winter trips to Florida after 1885, primarily to fish. But on three trips he worked in a bit of water coloring when the fish weren't biting. His blood-tinged "Life-size Black Bass" is a classic study of his theme of struggle against mortality.

The French impressionists of that era shunned watercolors, but Americans by the 1830s had picked up on this medium that was flourishing in England, and made it their own.

Although many

"serious" artists clung to oil paints, many young girls who studied in art were taught to wield the watercolor brush.

Boosting watercolor in the U.S. in the first American World's Fair, watercolors had a place alongside the industrial achievements displayed in five acres of exhibition halls. There was room for 31 pictures, mostly landscapes and it was the first time watercolor artists had their works exposed to such a wide and diverse audience.

As American art has moved from one style, from realism to abstraction, from picturesque to modern subjects, watercolor has reflected the changes. Within the past decade there has been a revived interest in watercolor, which seemed to reach a low point in the 1950s, when that medium's loyalists, thousands of them, seemed out of touch with that decade's avante-garde painters, Ms. Moser of said.

Cagney & Lacey Hits Milestone

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The 100th episode of "Cagney & Lacey" airs March 16, and Tyne Daly and Sharon Gless couldn't be more surprised.

"It never occurred to me that I'd do 100 of anything in my life," Daly says, "and I certainly didn't think there were 100 stories to be told about Mary Beth Lacey."

The show has earned this milestone. It overcame a 1983 cancellation that made CBS eat crow, and has gone on to net three best actress Emmys for Daly, one for Gless, two Emmys for best series and one Golden Globe this year for best series.

Episode No. 100, marking the directing debut of Jackie Cooper, will find Detective Lacey under arrest for taking part in an off-duty protest rally about the transportation of nuclear waste. Sgt. Christine Cagney tries to get her out, although Lacey prefers to remain incarcerated.

"Sheherazade told 1001 stories, and if I think of myself as a storyteller, this is a drop in the bucket," says Daly who has been in every single episode since "Cagney and Lacey" debuted as a new motion picture for television in 1981.

This is Gless's seventh series, but the first to last this long.

Her part was played by Loretta Swit in the pilot, and then by Meg Foster for the first six shows. She's been in the last 94, but she says that when this season began, it never occurred to her that the 100th was coming up.

"I always am just trying to get through the next one, and wondering if they will pick us up next year," she said with a grin, alluding to the 1983 cancellation, when the sets were dismantled, then salvaged after the network received 2,000 protest letters.

Although the show is seen 39 weeks of the year, it only make 22 new episodes in an average year.

"Except for the year I gave birth to my child," Daly says cheerfully. "We made 24 that year, just to see if I could do it, for the sport of the thing — or maybe just to see if I'd drop dead."

The producers decided to have Daly's actual pregnancy coincide with a pregnancy for Mary Beth Lacey. They finished shooting in August 1985, and Daly had six weeks to "nest before giving birth to Alexander Brown on October 1."

Afterwards, they shot the scenes of the birth of Lacey's baby.

"I had to draw on my memories of the births of my daughters, Elizabeth and Catherine, 15 and 18 years before," Daly said. "I couldn't seem to work off the memory of Alexander's birth. I remembered nothing."

She laughingly recalls how difficult it was to cast the part of her on-screen baby, because none of the actors or actresses who auditioned seemed to her to be as beautiful as her own newborn.

"I know it is completely unfair," she says, "but I thought they were bringing me the ugliest babies I'd ever seen. I said, 'Get me some pretty babies.'"

H.B., Josh and Fletcher forced John to lure his boss, Lazarus (a.k.a. "The Man from Amsterdam"), to the Lewis home for a showdown. Reva, who had stomach pains, passed out after she told Rusty that John and Lazarus were onto Josh, H.B. and Fletcher. The police arrested Lazarus and John after Rusty helped the Lewis's capture the two men. Johnny saw Roxie's face while making love with Christine. Sarah came face-to-face with Hawk when she visited Reva in the hospital. Reva and her baby will be all right, but the doctor ordered Reva to rest. Mindy phoned Rusty to say that she had extended her stay with Billy. Paul burst into Johnny's pad where he caught Christine in Johnny's arms.

LOVING

Lottie introduced Ava and Kate to her brother, Ned. Jim was upset to find out that Shana has been taking birth-control pills while he wants to start a family right away. Clay was miffed when Shana demanded that he consult her before making business decisions at Aiden Enterprises. Harry accused Gwyneth of only wanting to be with him because Clay has thrown her out on her ear. Kelly tried to comfort Rob, who lost his factory job. Nick roughed up Jenny, then demanded that she tell him what she knows about Trisha and Steve's trysts. Cecilia threatened to tell Nick all about Steve and Trisha's secret meetings.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE

Dorian met with a jailed Miss Spitz, who died before she could tell Dorian about Diane's past. Murray fumed that Diane didn't pay him for arranging Miss Spitz's "suicide." Diane conned Murray into robbing Dorian's safe. Murray died after Diane poisoned his drink. Dante flipped out when he learned that Gabrielle is having Max's baby. Gabrielle grabbed Dante's arm as he pointed a gun at Maria, who was wounded when the gun went off. Dorian and Diane struggled over a gun after Dorian realized that Diane had killed Murray. Jamie knocked Cord out cold and then took Tina hostage. Steve was surprised to learn that Della and Rafe are married. Dorian didn't believe Diane, who said that Cassie and Jonathan are having an affair. Judith told Herb that she doesn't think they should be seen in public together since she's not divorced from Charles. Pamela bought the Vernon Inn.

RYAN'S HOPE

Evan told Pat that the herb treatments Melinda has been using aren't really helping her illness. Maevie warned Lizzie she has to be responsible about sex. Johnny agreed to be the spokesman for his fellow college students, who voiced their disagreements with the college administration. Johnny told Lizzie he wants her to go back to school and finish her education. Johnny doesn't think he can carry out his plan to make a new life for Joe and Subhan.

SANTA BARBARA

Keith made sure the press was present when he arrested Kelly. Kelly fretted about Jeffrey, who was wounded trying to prevent Kelly's arrest. Hayley was attacked by a mystery person as she walked on a pier. C.C. forced Keith to arrest Gina on embezzlement charges and Gina was put into a cell next to Kelly. Sophia and C.C. witnessed Mason and Tori's marriage ceremony. On the anniversary of Amy's death, a drunken Brick accused Hayley of killing Amy. In his haste to see Kelly, Pearl led Keith and his men to Kelly's hiding place. Jake fumed that Ted was in charge of a barn full of valuable horses while Jake was passed over for the job. Caroline admitted to Lionel that when Alice was institutionalized, Caroline was a heavy drinker and had also been arrested on prostitution charges. Caroline begged Alice to give her a chance to be her mother. Julia reluctantly congratulated Mason on his marriage.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS

Kay was in tears while Jill gloated that Phillip took Jill's advice and is moving into his own pad. Victor heard Matt admit that he loves Nikki. John told the shocked Abbott family that Ashley is severely depressed and has been transferred to a mental hospital closer to home. Evan threatened to tell everyone that Lauren tipped him to Michelle's (Faren) whereabouts unless Lauren helps him get Michelle (Faren) back. Casey objected to Nikki's suggestion that Casey take Nikki's place in Victor and Victoria's lives after Nikki dies. Steven tried to prepare Ashley for her move to the new hospital and Dr. Jennings, who is Ashley's new shrink, Lauren didn't believe Evan, who said he doesn't know why Michelle (Faren) had her car accident in Minneapolis when they were living in Pittsburgh at the time. Lauren believes that Michelle (Faren) was running away from Evan.

ALL MY CHILDREN

Julie saw Ross and Natalie embrace after they decided their relationship should end. Travis proposed that he and Erica start up a magazine that will be hot competition for Adam's Tempo Magazine. Natalie agreed to go on a trip with Palmer. Matt admitted to Benny that he took Erica's money from Mark, but said he plans to gradually funnel the money back to her after he recoups what he spent to buy the Oasis nightclub. Les's arrival scared off Otis, who tried to force Angie to reveal Yvonne's whereabouts. Brooke agreed to return to Tempo when Adam said he'd admit that he doctored her article on Travis. Det. Vince Borelli realized that Otis's boss is anxious to find Yvonne and her baby, Derek. As part of his undercover plan, Jesse arranged to be accused of tax evasion. Matt rescued Robin from Litton, who was turned over to the police for promoting prostitution.

ANOTHER WORLD

Scott saved Vince from drowning. Bernie's signed statement cleared Vince of the charges that he had tried to murder Reginald. Jamie discouraged Lisa from leaving town. The serial killer attacked Nancy right after Lisa had a premonition that the killer would strike again. M.J. accepted Adam's marriage proposal, but wants to keep their plans a secret for awhile. Scott demanded that Reginald reveal the name of Scott's real parents. Vince decided he's gotten his revenge against Reginald when Mary told Vince that she's no longer a part of Reginald's life. Michael escaped from Peter's yacht and enlisted the Coast Guard's help in saving Donna. Mitch and Sarah from Peter's thugs. Cheryl and Scott have been on the outs ever since Vince talked Cheryl out of spending a weekend alone with Scott. Jamie urged Lisa to work with the police on the serial killer case. Tony and Nancy moved into a pad together.

AS THE WORLD TURNS

Brian followed Heather to Scotland, then told her that he loves her. Kim is furious that John kept mum about Sabrina's parentage, even though John insisted that Howard told him Sabrina had died in the train wreck with the Fullertons. Bob and Kim learned from Scotland Yard that Howard had committed suicide. John romped in the sack with Susan, who showered him with sympathy over the baby-switch fiasco. Luemba grudgingly admitted to Lily that Holden is a competent businessman. Dusty rejected Meg, who's still hung up on him. Sierra told Tomo she wants a legal separation. Emma is furious with herself because she misses not having John around. Emily sent Ellen a letter postmarked from the city of Truro, where

Robin Leach A Silk-Pajama Host

By Frank Sanello

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — When Robin Leach plans the topics of his syndicated TV shows — both the nighttime and daytime versions of "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous" plus his new show, "Runaway with the Rich and Famous" — his first concern isn't the rich and famous. It's a mythical couple he calls Joe and Ethel, who hail from somewhere between Kansas and Iowa.

"If you yanked Joe and Ethel off the farm and put them inside the lobby of Cher's $6 million Moroccan fantasy home," say Leach, "the first question Joe and Ethel would ask is, 'Holy Moses! What on earth did this cost?' Their second question would be, 'What does she earn in order to afford all this?'"

"That's why on 'Lifestyles' we are obsessed with price tags."

But turn the tables on Leach — ask how much he makes — and the affable Brit avoids the question with a clever anecdote: "I'm not a millionaire. All I hope is that in two years or whenever the shows end, on the last episode I can say, 'Thank you for making me rich and famous.'"

As chief Barker for his "Lifestyles" shows, Leach has been called the Alistair Cooke of pillow talk. It's an appellation he loves. "I'm the best practitioner of silk-pajama journalism in the world," he says.

As a joke, a columnist for a Florida newspaper accused "Lifestyles" of being a commie plot — by making capitalism look so relentlessly vulgar. Leach was prodding America into the arms of communism. Unfortunately for the columnist, his readers apparently didn't get the joke. They sent in scaring letters, attacking the writer for attacking their favorite TV glamour hustler.

Leach has been inside the homes of some of the most reclusive and inaccessible people in the world. It took him a month of hand-holding and begging to gain access to the pleasure palaces of Saudi arms merchant Adnan Khashoggi.

But the only two celebrities Leach really covets are Greta Garbo and Jacqueline Onassis.

"I'd love to interview Garbo because she doesn't talk," Leach says. "I'd love to do Madame Onassis because I'd love to be the one who got to ask her why she married a Greek tycoon who was much older than she was. I'm afraid we'll both go to our respective graves without doing those interviews."

Leach turned down invitations to visit with Ferdinand Marcos and "Baby Doc" Duvalier when they were in power. "The way they got their wealth was immoral," he says. So why was he cavorting on the yacht of Khashoggi, who sells instruments of death around the world? Leach equivocates. "He sells other things, too."

"Runaway with the Rich and Famous," which debuted in February, was spun off a regular segment of the original show. It was the most popular segment and attracted 100,000 pieces of fan mail weekly.

It's fun to imagine other fantasy segments, which might pit celebrities against the elements or incredible danger.

Duncan was to have met McNeil, Susan and Ellen each blamed the other for Emily's screwed up life. Franke feels like a fifth wheel now that Bob and Kim have Sabrina. Barbara broke off her romance with Duncan.

CAPITOL

Jordy found Leanne, who died when she fell down the stairs. Jeffrey and Baxter began a search for Matt McCandless, who is really Ali's younger brother, Prince Martin, and heir to the throne of Baracq. Baxter told Jeffrey that Chrissa doesn't know about Matt's real parentage. Kate kept mum that she was arguing with Leanne at the time of the accident. Jeffrey revealed that Mark's mystery boss, Octopus, wants Matt dead. Abdullah began his quest to take over Baracq Amos and Lauren set up housekeeping together after he forged Sam's signature to a letter authorizing Lauren's transfer to another hospital. Thomas moved in with Kelly.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES

Shane realized that Terky is really Andrew after Paul showed him a baby picture of Teddy. Patch admitted to Kayla that when he was a youngster, he tried to burn the house down in an effort to kill his abusive father. Barbara underwent surgery after a car crash while Teddy (Andrew) escaped injury. Shane believes that Barbara killed Emma. Olivia admitted that she loves Roman, who felt he was betraying Marlena's memory when he kissed Olivia. Justin gave Victor a dossier that Bo compiled on Victor. Bo spotted Orpheus in town, but wasn't able to catch him. Patch attacked Duke, who slapped Kayla when she tried to break up a fight between Patch and Duke. Patch pulled a gun on Duke, threatening to kill him. Leslie admitted to Chris that she doesn't feel good about having put Kimberly behind bars. Orpheus showed Marlena photos of her children and of Roman and Olivia.

GENERAL HOSPITAL

Patrick and Terry romped in the sack. Anna admitted to Duke that she's worried about Abigail's prediction that marriage isn't in the future for Duke and Anna. Camellia got proof that she's Barron Varony's daughter, not Angus'. Sean was intrigued by Dr. Greta Ingstrom, who was interviewed by Tiffany. Sean and Tiffany went to Martinique, where Sean plans to spend his time at the gambling tables. Bobbi suspects that an ailing Lucy is pregnant, but can't figure out who fathered the baby. Anna was shocked and Duke was furious that Camellia said she's given up her plans to become a nun and is moving to Port Charles. Frisco found Kay, who had been beaten up. Sean won big bucks off Wolfgang Von Schuler, who paid Sean with a rubber check. Frisco suspects that Kay and Hilary are somehow involved with the crime ring he's investigating.

The Truth Of How 'Manderly' Burned

Dear Dick: I wonder if you could help me confirm a theory I have about Alfred Hitchcock's "Rebecca." I have studied the props and interiors and exterior details of Manderly in the movie for years. I believe they photographed and burned a real country home in England. Am I right? — G.M.W., Enid, Okla.

Dear G.M.W.: Sorry to burst your beautiful bubble, but Hollywood's special effects people were masters. In Francois Truffaut's book about Hitchcock, he quotes the director as saying that Manderly was a miniature — "even the road leading to it was a miniature." That wonderful 1940 film was shot entirely in Hollywood.

Dear Dick: Please, oh, please, settle this long-running dispute between my husband and me. Who played Agent 99 in the TV series, "Get Smart"? My husband says Jane Fonda. I say, "No way!" — E.H., Boston, Ga.

Dear E.H.: You're the smart one. It was Barbara Feldon.

Dear Dick: On "Yankee Doodle Dandy," starring James Cagney, one of the producers was William Cagney and the one who played his sister, Josie, was Jeanne Cagney. Is there any relation between the three of them? — B.M.J., Catawissa, Pa.

Dear B.M.J.: Siblings, all. Bill and Jeanne were Jimmy's brother and sister.

Dear Dick: Could you tell me if Kevin Bacon,

Ask Dick Kleiner

who played in "Footloose," ever played the son of Dr. Sarah McIntyre on "The Guiding Light"? — A.K., Carriere, Miss.

Dear A.K.: Kevin Bacon did play a character named Tim Werner briefly on that soap back in 1980.

Dear Dick: Please solve this mystery for me. Whatever became of the actor Anthony Dexter, who played Rudolf Valentino in the movie about Valentino's life? — P.T., The Woodlands, Texas.

Dear P.T.: Nothing much, which is the problem. He never fulfilled the promise he showed in "Valentino" in 1951. He is still working at his career, but the last thing I remember seeing him in was "Thoroughly Modern Millie."

Dear Dick: June Allyson has been one of my favorites. Years ago I saw her in a sea adventure, I think maybe with Van Johnson. Could you tell me the name of it? Was it "High —"? — M.P., Amarillo, Texas.

Dear M.P.: You may be thinking of "High Barbaree," which dates from 1947. I wouldn't exactly classify it as a sea adventure, but it did have many sequences on the ocean, so I guess it's the one you are remembering.

Dear Dick: Is a motion picture titled "Head," featuring The Monkees, available on VCR? — H.R., Bay City, Texas.

Dear H.R.: If you would have asked me a couple of weeks ago, the answer would have been no. But Mike Nesmith, one of those four madcaps, tells me it just was issued by RCA/Columbia. It was a pretty good film — made by Bob Rafelson just before he made "Five Easy Pieces."

Dear Dick: What happens to the film that is deleted when a movie is edited before release? Is it thrown away or is there any way to see the cuts? It would be fascinating to see the cuts of your favorite movie. — P.J., Knoxville, Tenn.

Dear P.J.: You are talking about one of the most precious of Hollywood commodities, the outtakes. They are full of goofs — some funny, some obscene, some just plain embarrassing — and that film is watched carefully. Some stars have it in their contracts that outtakes must be destroyed. But there is a brisk trade among Hollywood insiders in outtakes, which can become valuable. Often, at the wrap party — the party generally given when a production closes — the outtakes are shown, to general hilarity.
