Farewell to Faison

SANFORD - Sanford commissioners bade farewell to City Manager Frank Faison Monday night at the completion of his last commission meeting after nearly six years with the city.

"We've been in this boat together for nearly six years," said Mayor Bettye Smith. "We both came on board together. I wish you Godspeed."

Faison announced his resignation Dec. 17, but refused to give a public reason for the decision. Wednesday will be his last day as manager although he will remain available to assist city officials through May. City commissioners first appointed Engineering and Planning Director Bill Simmons as acting manager on Dec. 17 and began a nationwide search for a replacement.

But last week, commissioners offered Simmons the job as a permanent position, which he

Votes in on disability cap

SANFORD - Sanford commissioners gave initial approval to placing a cap on police and fire department employee disability benefits Monday night. The cap would prevent a police or fire employee from receiving greater city-paid benefits in total disability than they carned as an active worker.

City Finance Director Carolyn Small said no disabled city police or fire department personnel currently receive more than they earned when they worked for the city. She said several recent court decisions upholding the caps alerted city officials to the absence of the clause in city ordinances. The changes do not affect the principle retirement benefit paid by the city, which is 60 percent of the base pay earned by fire fighters and 40 percent of policemen's base pay the time of their retirement or disability. But when combined with other benefits paid by the city, such as a worker's compensation award. monthly benefits will not exceed the full pay amount received by the employee.

Hitt improves with new heart

GAINESVILLE - Seminole County Judge Fredric Hitt, 58, who received a heart transplant at Shands Hospital in Gaineville, is already off the critical list this morning, hospital spokesman Chris Smith said.

Hitt's condition has been upgraded from critical to serious. He remains in the cardiac intensive care unit. The length of Hitt's hospital stay will be determined by how his recovery progresses, but his recovery has already advanced, Smith said. The average stay in the hospital after a heart transplant. Smith said, is 23 days, with follow-up care.

SANFORD - Two former Altamonte Springs police officers, who resigned under fire, are suspect in five Seminole County bank robberies, including one in Lake Mary Dec. 31, Seminole County sheriff's spokesman George Proechel said

In two of the robberies, diversions — a school fire and a bomb scare that led to an interstate 4 traffic tie up - drew the attention of public safety officials from the banks, FBI Supervisor Eddie Bogighelmer said.

Procchel said there is evidence the same robbers tampered with the doors and or alarm

From Gov. Lawton Chiles' office to law enforcement agentces in Seminole County, from military bases and civilian airports to the Super Bowl, Floridians have become more security conscious on the eve of a possible Mideast war.

But few officials are willing to talk about what preparations they are making for terrorist attacks.

The Florida Department of Law Enforcement says it has made no changes in protection for the governor or other state officials, although that could change from hour to hour, agency spokesman John Joyce said.

"At this point, we've plans to meet with FDLE and review the situation — and keep our eyes open." Chiles spokeswoman Julie Anbender sald.

Joyce notes that Florida could be a tempting target for terrorists - it has tourists, busy airports, highprofile attractions like Disney World and the Super Bowl, and most of all. plenty of military bases.

In Seminole County, Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett said today that his department has received no official terrorist alerts or information, "though it's a consideration. We've discussed it among ourselves — how the situation could impact locally.

Economic downturn boosts SCC enrollment

Additional 350 students turn out for winter term

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald staff writer

SANFORD - Enrollment at Seminole Community College may be up as much as five percent this semester over figures from the spring of 1990. according to Joe Roof, dean of admissions and records systems at the school. An estimated additional 350 full-time students began classes last week at SCC. Roof said the increase may be due, in part, to the downturn in the economy. 'Students who went away in the fall may have found that it was too expensive to go to school out of town." Roof said yesterday.

The registration period ended Friday at SCC with students still dropping and adding classes.

"Right now the figure is standing at about a two percent increase," he said, "but I think that number may be closer to five percent when the final figures are in."

Roof said the enrollment figures are based on the number of classes students are taking as well as on the number of students who are enrolled to the

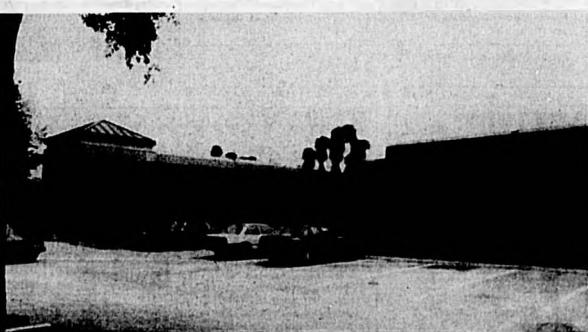

Noting that budget cuts made scheduling some classes difficult. Roof said that some classes with limited student interest were cancelled, but added that the practice was not that unusual.

"We will cancel classes if there are not enough students to justify holding it." he said. "That's not all that unusual."

There are approximately 6,900 full-time students taking classes at SCC this semester, a figure that is about four percent higher than in the fall semester. according to Roof.

He said student enrollment is always higher in the spring because students often go out of town and fall to "make the grade" or they simply get homesick and want to return to Seminole County. 'But I think it's the economy more than anything this year." Roof said. See Enrollment, Page 5A

SANFORD - A new $2.9 million student center will open its doors on the Sanford campus of Seminole Community College Wednesday.

There will be no traditional ribbon cutting. Instead, the college community will celebrate with cake and a return to the 1960s.

This is SCC's 25th anniversary year," said Craid Orseno, the school's coordinator of public information. "We thought it might be more appropriate if we had a birthday party for our students."

The Seminole Community College food service will be offering meals in the student sneck bar at

"You'll be able to get a hamburger and a soda for 75 cents," Orseno said.

The student center was built in about 15 months, about three months ahead of schedule, according to Orseno.

The facility houses a multi-purpose room that can be used for formal occasions to seat as many as 50 people, a casual dining area, a student cafeteria, two kitchen areas as well as a covered outdoor dining patie.

"It's a gorgeous facility," Orseno said. He added that the capacity is expected to be adequate to accommodate the growing student population at Seminole Community College.

Chiles: Dare to do more

TALLAHASSEE - Gov. Lawton Chiles watched skits performed by fifth-graders graduating from an anti-drug education program and told the students to dare to do more than just say no to drugs.

"There are so many things out there that you can have if you will dare — good things if you decide you want to work for them," Chiles told the 130 fifth-graders graduating Monday from the Drug Abuse Resistance Education program at Scaley Elementary School.

The program, which is sponsored by police, is commonly known as DARE.

Chiles said he wanted Florida to be a state where young people have opportunities to become whatever they want. He told the children he thought he was governor because he learned about daring when he was their age.

Wetherell won't seek FSU job

TALLAHASSEE — House Speaker T.K. Wetherell has decided not to seek the presidency of his alma mater, Florida State University, where nominations for the post closed Wetherell, D-Daytona Beach, said the timing of the search at the beginning of his two-year term as speaker was the main reason behind his decision. He said he didn't want to go through the "divisive process" of being a candidate.

State Rep. Marian Lewis, R-North Palm Beach, is the sponsor of a bill that would let the state's court system accept credit cards for payment of court costs and fines.

"It's just another way to make the system more effective," she said

Lewis got the idea from exasperated judges. Defendants who were short on cash would convince judges to assess fines in installments, then go make purchases at stores that would take

Judge Robert Young of Bartow, who heads the Florida Conference of County Court Judges, said the measure will win support from the bench.

For example, Young said, the minimum court cost is $100. That means people who lose their court cases have to shell out at least $100, in addition to any fine imposed. For a lot of people, that's a problem, Young said.

Young predicted the measure would have the greatest impact in traffic courts, where people who can afford to drive don't always have enough money for insurance or automobile tag

Lovestrand, Manning vow to work together on police task force

By LACY DOMEN Herald People Editor

LONGWOOD - Although Commissioner Paul Lovestrand's suggestion to create a task force to oversee police activities had many Longwood residents screaming "political vendetta" last week, Lovestrand and Police Chief Greg Manning said they are now working together toward creating an ordinance beneficial to the city, police department and residents.

Tag for beer ads?

They're not quite Carrie Nations, but the Washington state doctors who are pushing the state to regulate the content of liquor advertisements are swinging their axes just as wildly. The right way to reduce irresponsible liquor use is not censorship, but more education and information.

The doctors say they want to limit the advertising because brewers and vintners are targeting their advertising at underage drinkers, who have a high rate of death and injury in drunken driving accidents. Under the proposed rule, which will be considered by the state liquor control board later in January, Washington would bun any ads that suggest a person's athletic, social or pro-fessional status can be enhanced by drinking a particular brand of alcoholic beverage. The doctors hope the ban would reduce the appeal of drinking to young persons.

The proposal is doubly flawed. First, it's so vague and broad that it's hard to imagine what kind of advertisement that portrays humans would be permitted, except perhaps one that showed a vagrant lying in the gutter with a bottle in a brown paper sack. Not surprisingly, liquor companies like to portray people using their products in settings with which consumers identify and toward which they have warm feelings; buddies enjoying a beer after a touch football game, couples sharing wine over a romantic meal, friends at a party or family gathering. To ban such ads would be to deny the companies their right to say something true that for many people in many communities, responsible drinking is a piessurable part of many social occasions.

Second, the ban assumes that advertising is spurring alcohol usage, although there's little evidence to support the assumption, Conotion has steadily fallen in the United increases in advertising budgets for beer and wine. Because of increased public unheightened attention to personal health, and iter public intolerance of drunkenness and drunken driving, drinking habita have changed for the better. Against such large shifts in social stitudes, advertising images count for very little.

The doctors in Washington give consumers little credit for being able to sort out the wheat and chaff in advertising. Lots of people enjoy having a beer after work with friends. but there aren't many folks who think they can drink their way to success and popularity, no matter what the ads portray. If Washington's doctors want to reduce alcohol use by young people, they would be better off concentrating on getting real information to young consumers — the kind that has already reduced irresponsible drinking — than by trying to limit the commercial speech of liquor companies.

Chinese 'sober-up'

Chinese doctors in Beijing claim to have created a "sober-up" tonic that cures hangovers and also prevents drinkers from getting drunk. If true, many a 1991 New Year Eve's reveler would have welcomed that potion the next morning.
However, many Chinese "wonder cures" turn out to have no medicinal value. Beijing pharmacies even sell ."Anti-AIDS Foam ath," claimed to inactivate AIDS within three minutes.

A Shuguang Hospital spokesman said the anti-drunk potion consists of Chinese herbs and tastes like Coca-Cola. That ought to make it a commercial success even if it doesn't Perhaps China could concect an effective remedy for its present leaders' dictator-itis, then have a palace servant slip it into their tes. That would give 1.12 billion Chinese relief from the pain of living under tyranny.

they convene at noon on Jan. 3. Even so, the nation's lawmakers are masters of the dawdle, usually turning most of January into the first of the year's vacations, thereby very smoothly extending the final recess of the previous session.

The reason given is that Congress should not be so brash as to do any work before the president gives the State of the Union address. that usually is a dreamy, or sometimes dreary, assessment of the shape of the nation.

Now, the Senate, in years past, has broken this tradition, but only over efforts to ease the ending of a filibuster, a deadly weapon that was stopping civil rights legislation. This year, however, is different, very different aspects of the Persian Guil crists. Some, like Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., want to let sanctions and diplomacy run a full year.

The consensus appears to be that too much talk, or any action, could only detract from Baker's efforts. But at least two senators, Thomas Harkin, D-lowa, and Brock Adams, D-Wash., refused to wait. And after some four hours of what Sen. Alan Dixon, D-lll., called "arguing," Mitchell agreed to let Harkin and Adams talk about their resolution — barring offensive action without congressional approval, but permiting no vote before Baker's return.

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole, who idled while the Democrats met, said: "We're all mixed up. When we should have been debating. we were on vacation, and now when we should be quiet, we want to talk."

Democrats, reminding the Republicans of their superior numbers, voted 242-160 to change a key procedural provision in last year's budget agreement. The new rule strips the Office of Management of Budget of the power to decide whether certain tax and spending measures violate budget targets. That power was transferred to the Congressional Budget Office and Congress's Joint Committee on taxation.

U.S. universities get top grades

Editor's note: This is the second of five parts. In his new book, "The First Universal Nation: Leading Indicators and Ideas about the Surge of America in the 1990s," Ben Wattenberg predicts that America is on the brink of its most promising decade. Wattenberg, an expert on trends and demographics, is a nationally syndicated columnist for Newspaper Enterprise Association. Here is an excerpt from "The First Universal Nation" (which is published by The Free Press, a division of Macmillan):

It said these days that immigration isn't working well anymore. There seems to be a new and long word in the sociological jargon: "blacks- and-Hispanics," as in "blacks-and-Hispanics are part of the growing underclass."
But the "underclass," assuming any of its promulgators could ever even define it, is not growing, it is shrinking. Poverty as measured by the standard U.S. Cehsus Bureau calculation came down solidly — if moderately — during the 1980s. When the Census (properly) adds in "non- cash transfers" (such as food stamps) the diminishment of poverty during the 1980s is quite substantial (down to a rate below 10 percent.)

The black community in the United States is surely a troubled one. But there has been powerful progress in recent years that is often ignored. The number of black college graduates has gone up by 1,600 percent since to 1950 — to 2.1 million.

Progress among Latinos has been dramatic. Because a relatively high proportion of Hispanic Americans are recent immigrants, the total numbers don't always show much positive movement. New immigrants always have difficulties. But Latinos born in the United States or those who have been here for 10 or more years have already reached all-U.S. averages in education, income, occupation - and language proficiency.

Meanwhile, it is said our new young entrants into the labor force will be ill-educated clucks. I do not propose to offer a vigorous defense of the American public educational establishment. It does not deserve it, certainly not in the secondary-school sector. But that is not the secondary-echool sector. But that is not the same thing as saying our young people won't be able to compete with those hard-driving nerds from Japan, Germany and England.

The high-school dropout rate in America is at an all-time low. That's right, contrary to what you've heard. Illiteracy is also at an all-time low. College enrollment has gone up. U.S. should bring troops home now

The Persian Gulf drama is being staged, not because our security is being threatened, but because it provides the "troubled times" which the Internationalists need in order to bring into being their "new world order" world government under an all-powerful United Nations.

'Cry for help'

Almost every night I watch the news and I wonder what's to become of us. It seems that Adult Entertainment is at the top of the list of worries for the Seminole County Commis-

As I see it, the clubs have been there for so long they have become a part of our society. As long as they maintain themselves and are monitored (inside and outside) by our local law enforcement, it becomes an issue of freedom of choice.

Can Seminole County honestly be so concerned with a local businessman on his lunch or dinner break stopping in for a little entertainment? If they are, they should also stop by any of the local disco-bars and see how they are allowed to 'Dance' On almost any Friday/Saturday night you will find women wearing almost nothing, doing their version of the movie Dirty Dencing. I believe what's fair should be fair for all. Any ordinance approved by the Commissioners should include 'all' business where dancing of any sort is done.

Maybe such an ordinance would help control some of the drugs and drunks that are always found at our local nightclubs known as 'meat-markets'.... Make them dance two feet apart and we might just reduce the number of rape cases in our fair county by a large percentage.

If you find this all so hard to understand, maybe things are best left up to the people to have the freedom of choice. No one is forced to enter an adult club much the same way no one is forced to enter a church if he or ahe doesn't want to. I'm proud to be living in America where I have the freedom to choose.

Grieving mother questions God

DEAR ABBY: I am troubled with something a reader wrote: "What right do we mortals have to demand an explanation from God?" Abby, that writer has never known the gut-wrenching pain of losing a child. In 1988, my beautiful 22-year-old daughter was killed by a drunk driver. At first, I screamed, "He not only killed her, he killed me too - only I can't die!"

I then got on my knees and begged God: "You can do anything. You can perform miracles. You can bring my daughter back to life. Please, God, let me trade places with her - please let me lie in that coffin, and let her out to live her life. She is only 22, ried or experienced the infracle trigger or take the pills to get me of being a mother. I am old. I out of the terrible pain and loss ! have lived. I've had my chance at life, but she hasn't. Please, please let me trade places with her. You can do it. You can make it so that all the people who thought she died won't be surprised that it's me in the coffin have a chance to live. She didn't deserve to die!" As you can see, Abby, I'm still here - and not because I want to be: either. Mostly because I live with every minute of my life. God didn't see fit to bargain with me. God doean't plea-bargain like men do. The drunk who and not her. Please, God, let her killed my precious daughter (and would he not expect to be me, too) spent less than six questioned if he has anything to months behind bars. Today, he do with miracles? walks in the sun while my little girl is in a dark grave — with no sun. And though I also walk in the sun, my heart and soul are in that dark grave with her.

God didn't answer my prayers, and I resent being told that I have no right to question God. If there is a God, and if I ever got to meet him face to face, you can bet your life I will have plenty of whys for him to answer. I want to know why my little girl died and that drunk was allowed to go on living. I love her more than my life, and I miss her so. I am mad that I am having to live in a world where she no longer lives, shouldn't I have the right to ask God?

Aren't we supposedly created in his image? If so, surely he has a heart and soul that are capable of hurting just as I hurt. Why ice to your readers, will you provide guidelines for organ donors who want to avoid legal controversy?

DEAR READER: The legal implications of organ-donor cards vary from state to state. In most instances, donor cards permit medical authorities to use certain organs once death has occurred. However restrictions. Therefore, I suggest you check with your attorney. who can advise you how to meet the regulations of your state law. DEAR DR. GOTT: Please comment on the cause, treatment and duration of hives. Is it safe to take antihistamines for a long period of time to combat the situation?

DEAR READER: Hives, raised and itchy patches of skin that appear and disappear without warning, are due to the release of histamine, usually caused by an allergic reaction. Therefore, hives are often caused by foods, dust, pollens and other environmental factors to which a person is allergic. Treatment involves avoidance of the allergen or the use of antihistamines.

Sometimes, people with recurring hives are allergic to medicine, such as antibiotics, although any drug can cause hives in a susceptible person. Thus, treatment may require discontinuation of a drug, under the supervision of a physician who will substitute a medication to which a person does not react.

Anxiety and emotional upset are common causes of hives. People who experience stress-related hives may need counseling or behavioral modification.

There is no consistent duration of hives; some last for minutes, others may be present for hours. Hives are differentiated from other skin disorders by their evanescence, their tendency to move from one area to

By James Jacoby North was nervous when his partner, Willy Nilly, bid one no-trump. Still he checked for a major-suit fit and then invited with two no- trump. Willy had more than enough to accept -17 high-card points plus a 10spot. And the opening lead seemed friendly — the club jack into declarer's A-Q. So Willy won the club queen and led a heart to dummy's nine. East won the king and returned a club. Willy held up the ace, won the third club and got to dummy with another heart. When he led the queen of diamonds and East played low, Willy showed a small streak of good sense. He realized that West would set him if he got in with the king of diamonds. So, protecting against a possible singleton king with West, he played the acc. No matter. When he played a second diamond. West won the king and cashed two more club tricks to set three no-trump. "Not my day." moaned Willy, "If I catch West with the heart king or East with the diamond king, I'll make the hand." "How about if you play it better?" remonstrated North. "Like at trick two, playing ace and a diamond? Then you can later take the heart finesse when East no longer has any clubs to lead." North was right. By giving up on the diamond finesse, declarer can be assured of enough tricks to make the hand safely, as long as West is leading from length. And it's unlikely that East would have long clubs and not have made a lead-directing double of two clubs.

By Bernice Bode Occi YOUR BERTHDAY Jan. 16, 1991 You will not be deprived of substantial opportunities in the year ahead, including some which could be long shots. Restrict your risk- taking to sure things.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A joint venture requires astute handling today so the heavy end of the expenses don't fall on you (as a result of something you permitted your counterpart to manage). Capricorn, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Take nothing for granted if you have to negotiate an important matter today. If you get careless, the edge upon which you're depending could be whittled

PUBCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Things will not automatically take care of themselves today. even in an arrangement where you feel you have momentum. If you take your foot off the accelerator, the endeavor could come to a stop.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Guard against inclinations to overindulge in involvements which could cause your budget to suffer today. Extravagant urges must be kept under con-

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might be tempted to take gambles in order to achieve your ambitious objectives today. Don't let your impatience cause you to reason unwisely.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Refrain from embellishing the information you pass on to others today. Your credibility could suffer if your statements can't be backed up by facts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's not a good policy today to count your chickens before they've hatched. Try not to bank too heavily on something which is financial but not yet realistic.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An associate who is aware that you can be manipulated through flattery might lay it on rather thick today in order to achieve a particular purpose. Be on guard. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Usually, you're the type of person who can be depended upon when you make a commitment. However, you might pretend to have taken care of something for another today when, in actuality, you haven't.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Things should work out rather well for you today in situations where you rely solely upon yourself. The same might not be true, however, in matters where you are dependent upon friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Taking bows prematurely for something you have yet to accomplish could backfire on you at this time. Don't let your expectations put you in a situa-tion that might cause embarrassment.

SACITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Under most conditions, you operate rather effectively when handling developments as they occur. But, if you don't have your moves planned each step of the way today, you won't like the results.
