"I do not wish this to happen - I do not believe Mr. (Leonid) Brezhnev desires it either - and this is why it is time for us to speak frankly and to face the problem squarely," he said. As Carter spoke, diplomatic observers were saying the United States was giving conflicting signals in the international arena. He appeared to be trying to dispel any impression the United States is wavering in its resources or resolve.

"Let there be no doubt about our present and future strength," he told the graduates of the academy from which he graduated. The World And Disarming

Speakers have been parading to the rostrum at the United Nations to declare that the world is spending far too much on armaments.

The U.N. seems to be hearing, in various languages, some rough translations of the annual speeches made in our own Congress about the size of the defense budget.

Any statesman worthy of the name ought to be indignant about the fact that military budgets around the world now total more than $400 billion a

As we all know, and as the statesmen tirelessly say, that money should be invested in something more constructive.

Inasmuch as so many speakers at the U.N. are from nations either busy producing arms or eagerly buying them, there's a strong suggestion of hypocrisy in all the disarmament rhetoric.

The impetus for this special U.N. session came mainly from the Soviet Union, which has always specialized in calls for disarmament but has rarely been able to conceal its own hypocrisy.

It was a stroke of luck, from the Kremlin's standpoint, that the U.N. conference convened when it did

President Carter is on the defensive in demonstrating the good faith of his own commitment to a limitation on arms escalation.

Mr. Carter has pushed through a major sale of fighter planes to three nations in the Middle East. His timetable for completing a Strategic Arms Limitation treaty is slipping in the face of hostility in the Senate.

He met in Washington recently with heads of state from the North Atlantic alliance; the agenda includes an increase in their military spending and, unofficially at least, the "neutron bomb." Vice President Walter Mondale went to New York in Mr. Carter's stead to address the U.N. and was criticized by many delegates for the tone of his

After giving cursory attention to proposals for disarmament, he lambasted the Seviet Union for deploying a new missile that threatens Western Europe, for arming the Warsaw Pact beyond any definition of what Eastern Europe needs for "defense," for building up a naval presence in the Indian Ocean and, indirectly, for its intrusion in

But Mr. Mondale perhaps was speaking more to the point than any of the others. Disarmament is what occurs when nations have nothing to fear from their neighbors, whether the neighbor is next door or is brought there through the art of missile warfare.

The condition decried as an "arms race" has resulted because so many nations live in tough

Mr. Mondale was simply reminding the United Nations who the bully is in those parts of the world where arms are flowing.

Mr. Carter came to office with his conscience bothered by the prominent role of the United States as an arms supplier, and with the hope of not only limiting the U.S.-Soviet nuclear arsenals in a SALT II treaty, but also going beyond to an actual cutback in weapons in a SALT III round of

That was Monday.

Tuesday good news came: Sheriff Polk was in stable con-Bition and, according to Acting Sheriff Duane Harrell, doctors are "well pleased with his rate of recovery." Seminole Countians, we are sure, were happy to get this news. We can only hope it won't be that long before many of them an share their good wishes in person with our sheriff.

BERRY'S WORLD

It started as a roaring twenties ordinance by the city of Orlando against stabling horses within the city limits. And it isn't finished yet. This is the story of a horsetrack with a heart beat and pulse. It's also one of the comeback stories of the century. Given up several times for dead, the track now known as Seminole Harness Raceway has come back to life in a big way.

Seminole Raceway's future, in fact, is even brighter when one considers the anticipated growth for South Seminole County in the next few years. Those early years at Seminole featured some mightly big names. Like W.N. Reynolds, the cigarette king who was into horse racing; Col. E. J. Baker of Illinois and William H. Cane, wealthy businessmen who wintered in the area and helped subsidize the winter training quarters; and of course the legendary Ben White.

It was at Seminole that White scored his greatest feat --- training five Hambletonian winners (1927. 1933, 1936. 1942. and 1943), a record which still stands. There were other top trainers at Seminole in those days - Frank Ervin, Tom Berry, Harry Fitzpatrick, Fred Egan and Harry Powhall. Seminole faded into harness racing's background after the Ben White Raceway was built in Orlando in 1946. And while Ben White Raceway lured the prominent names south, Seminole came back with a couple of unsuccessful tries at parimutuel racing. By the late sixties, it was evident the move was a costly one for its sponsors.

In 1972 Canadian businessman Paul Bowlen moved into the picture. He and his associates rennovated the track and opened harness racing again with a 100-day meet in 1973. Since then, the climb has been steady

It's a fantastic scientific

BREAKTHROUGH. WE'VE

Bowlen hasn't made much money off the track, but under the guidance of general manager Neil

Makin, the financial picture is that the track is operating in the black after five years of red ink.

As one of three pari-mutuel establishments in Seminole County --- the Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club and Orlando-Seminole Jai-Alai fronton are also operating successful businesses.

What the horse track offers is a welcome variety of a sports attraction, shot in the arm to the area's tourism. Specifically, the track's clubhouse and dining facilities are unparalleled. The food is outstanding, prices in line with most of the area's better restaurants, and the view from any one of 900 seats magnificent.

Seminole's three-quarter mile track has a pair of lakes on the infield, and the sight of graceful pacers and trotters loping around the track with the sunset luminating the skyline is a pastel reminder of Florida's natural beauty.

WASHINGTON - If there is any Carter administration program that ought to appeal to Congress in this election year, surely it is the president's tax reduction package. So how come the plan is in trouble on Capitol Hill?

A Gallup poll conducted earlier this year may offer the best clue. When asked who would benefit the most from Carter's tax cut, more than 90 percent of those queried pointed to some category other than "people like yourself."

More than 40 percent of low-income respondents, those earning less than $10,090 per year, identified "high-income people" as the principal beneficiaries of the proposed tax reduction. But 40 percent of those earning $20,000 and over said low-income families would benefit

And the all-important middle-income respondents, those earning $10,000 to $20,000 per year who constitute every politician's electionyear target, said both low-income and highincome families would benefit more than themselves from the tax cut.

Analyzing these seemingly paradoxical responses for the American Enterprise Institute's "Public Opinion" magazine, Herbert Stein, former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, notes that "benefits" are always perceived in relative terms. "A tax reduction that is less than my jus desserts is not a benefit, but an insult. And, of course, no one ever thinks he gets his just desserts," Stein writes. "This helps explain why tax reduction politically a loser... every specific tax bill makes more enemies than friends, because everyone

When the Democratic National Committee's executive committee left town last month. Chairman John White thought he had finally smoothed the way for a compromise set tlement of the latest intraparty fight over the rules for choosing delegates to the 1980 national

White House political operatives, at White's odding, had backed off from a series proposed rules changes that were designed to nake it tougher for potential challengers t

President Carter to win convention delegates. Party liberals, though not entirely satisfied, appeared ready to cooperate when the full DNC meets this month. But now, upon closer examination of the compromise rules proposal, dissidents have discovered that Carter would still have the edge over challengers in many states. So the off-again, on-again rules fight is on

"We've spent 10 years wrestling with these rules. I want to put them behind us," White said wearily. Maybe by 1984?

White House press secretary Jody Powell has vehemently denied our report of a week ago that Gary (Ind.) Mayor Richard Q. Hatcher turned down a White House staff job because it carried little real authority and would have required him to report to Hamilton Jordan's deputy, Landon

"There's absolutely no truth to it. We're not stupid enough to do that. He was never offered anything but a job that reports directly to the president, and we clearly would not have exected him to accept anything less."

Neither am I overburdened with pride that Seminole County will receive over $3 million in federal grants for a new jail complex to house those among us who prefer to break the laws Neither am I proud to read that the Greater Sanford Development Corporation has received $96,000 in order that owners of old buildings may be encouraged to dress and shape them

The idea of getting something for nothing is asinine because history proves that once a human is put on a becomes an addict and it is said that w become part of that which we condone The problem is not the number of people or cities or counties who are trying to get something for nothing-it is the number who succeed.

Why should the taxpayers in Talladega County, Alabama, have to pay for federal grants that are given to Seminole County or vice versa? Where is the old American belief that if you work hard, save and pay your way, then that which yoy get will better appreciate and admire? For years during World War II, I and others in service had only a pup tent or poncho for our shelter, bathed and shaved from a steel helmet, and were excited as a cub bear with a honey comb when we finally got to live in a crude hutment with tar paper roof and

The hardened lawbreakers deserve no such tax monies being spent for comfort: they are not entitled to any more than a tar paper hutment in the middle of a fenced in field. With $3 million the new jail will no doubt have wall to wall carpet, individual tiled bathrooms, color TV, a specious dining room, and a kitchen that will provide daily meals of choice of fish, pork, beef, mutton, and, on special days, braised opossum and side plates of collard greens and sweet taters.

It is hard to understand why we car be so pleased with such false prosperity and learn that a young married coupl is being punished along with their porarly in a housetrailer on their land until they can work and earn to buy a home. We hold out our palms for all the tax-monies we can get but show no compassion for those who seek the barest of consideration.

Maybe the young couple should forget about initiative and ambition and saving for a home but declare poverty and get rent subsidy and move into a rent-subsidized home. Or else hold on until the new jail is built, then, if they have to be incarcerated because of the trailer incident, they just might not find

Syrian Visitor: No Peace Till We Get Back All Land

"The only way there can be peace in the Middle East is for the Jews to leave Israel. The land belongs to the Palestinians. It is Arab land. I would die to return the land to the Arabs." These words did not come from the president or the ruler of one of the Arabic nations, but from a 28-year-old woman who has served in the Syrian armed forces, and now is administrator of

The group also publishes a monthly magazine, the only publication strictly for women in the Arab world, she said. The magazine promotes the organization's causes. She has great pride in her country and the fact she is a woman who is doing something most important for her nation. She insists there are no differences among the Arab world. "We are one

"All the Arabs were together in the War of 1973," she said. "The Israelis took land from Syria and Jordan. We want the land back. There will be no peace until we get back all of the land that

If the Arabs want peace why didn't they support Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace efforts with Israel? "So what happened? Do we have peace? Would it have been different if the Arabs had supported Sadat? There is no other way for peace than that the Jews leave Israel. That land belongs to the Palestinians. It is Arab land," she said.

On her first trip to the United States under the sponsorship of the State Department's Aid for International Development agency, (AID), Miss Kanawati toured the nation's capital first. She was impressed with the museums and the Montessori schools there," she said.

Key Play Number Two:

dummy's club king. ciregrateur reli Key Play Number Three: After ruffing East's dia-mond returm, declarer led the jack of trumps and when West showed out, he played dummy's queen. This truly was a rare and great play. Declarer (Piyush Yakil, a Californian born in India)

If East allowed the queen of hearts to win, declarer would discard his spade loser on the king of clubs. If east won the queen of hearts with the ace, any suit he led would allow South an entry to dummy — a diamond play would give a ruff and sluff, a club play is clearly fatal; and a trump lead from the $-2 lets South play low and win with the seven.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) - For the 12th consecutive year, country music queen Loretta Lynn was named the top female artist of the year Tuesday night, beating out among others, her sister Crystal Gayle in the annual Music City News Popularity Awards at the Grand Ole Opry House.

Miss Lynn and Conway Twitty teamed up to capture the top duet honors on the unprecedented two-hour nationally-televised special.

Nominated in five categories, Larry Gatlin took home two top honors — male artist and songwriter of the year. His band, Larry Gatlin, Family and Friends, was named musical group of the year.

It's Now 'Dr. Idi Amin

DR. AMIN. I PRESUME: Idi Amin's ambassador to the United Nations pulled out all the stops Tuesday in New York in describing the flamboyant but brutal ruler of Uganda at the U.N. special session on disarmament. Ambassador Khalid Younis Kinene prefaced his address to the General Assembly by conveying "the regards of his excellency Dr. Idi Amin, conqueror of the British empire." Kinene said Amin hoped that "this year should be a year of love, peace and reconciliation." His speech drew polite applause.

Mexico Boss: Sends Sisters

MEXICAN TREASURE: President Jose Lopez Portillo of Mexico and his first lady could not attend the gala opening of the "Treasures of Mexico" exhibition from the 14 Mexican national museums at the Knoedler Gallery in New York Tuesday night. So he did the next best thing by sending his three sisters to represent him, including Margarita Lopez Portillo, director general of Mexican Radio Television and Cinematography, Madam Lopes brought another member of her family, her-16-year-old granddaughter Maria del Pilar Cordero. Occidental Petroleum Co. Chairman Dr. Armand Hammer, 80, owner of the gallery, underwrote the show of 12,000 years of Mexican art, including more than 100 preColumbian masterpieces.

Lavar Burton: No Athlete

HARD ACT TO FOLLOW: Levar Burton, the young actor who portrayed Kunta Kinte in "Roots," is the first to admit his new role doesn't come naturally. For a television movie Burton is playing the part of Ren LeFlore, the Detroit Tigers outfielder who jumped from prison to the majors. "I'm an actor and dancer but I'm not an athlete. Playing this role is really tough," Burton said in Milwaukee Tuesday where the movie is being filmed. However, he didn't have any problems with one scene - reenacting LeFlore's rocky major league debut in which he struck out his first three times at bat.

'Wiz' Star Watches Lions

GLIMPSES: Michael Leslie, who will take over the role of the Lion in the Broadway Musical "The Wiz," visited New York City's Central Park Zoo Tuesday to watch how a real lion performs... Leopold Sengher, president of Senegal, was honored in New York City Tuesday night for his contributions to the advancement of African culture with a dinner.

Is Wallace Changing Mind?

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) - Gov. George C. Wallace is seriously considering running for the late Sen. James B. Allen's unexpired Senate term, a press aide said

The governor has renewed some interest in that two-year term," said Billy Joe Camp, Wallace's press secretary. "The governor has received a heavy outpouring of letters and phone calls asking him to run."
