TEAMWORK SEEN AS ESSENCE OF FEDERAL REGIME

Spirit Of Co-Operation Is Something New To Washington

WASHINGTON—America is being treated to the unusual spectacle of real teamwork between Congress and the White House. That in essence is the transformation that has come over Washington in the past month.

It is the normal everyday atmosphere in any parliamentary system of government, but so strange in such co-operation in Washington that every new manifestation is securing, and deserves, the careful analysis of the 200 or 300 Washington correspondents, who likewise these signs of accord with grave amazement.

Under the stimulus of the new atmosphere the Roosevelt Administration is re-organizing government departments. Like all initial housekeeping arrangements, this is a pleasant task for those in charge. A good deal of the old Hoover furniture is being thrown out, simply because it is Hoover furniture. Experience teaches that this phase passes when the first flush of political victory wears off and the utility of prior arrangements is discovered. At any rate, unprecedented activity now surrounds most of the new Cabinet posts.

At the center and heart of this storm of activity sits the smiling new President. It is difficult to do justice to his attitude of bonhomie, sang-froid, good nature. The attitude creates an atmosphere that has far-reaching political effect. With it must be included such intimate affairs as Mr. Roosevelt's domestic life. At a press conference, for example, Mrs. Roosevelt steps in. She whispers in the President's ear.

The scene is as natural as in any private home, although it transpires before a semi-circle of 200 standing observant newspapermen. Mr. Roosevelt is heard to ask his wife if the matter (whatever it is) cannot wait, and makes the fairly obvious remark, with a wave at the newspapermen, that he is busy.

Frankly, Mrs. Roosevelt cryptically rejoins that she will "send them in." It develops that she refers to the younger son, Elliott Roosevelt, who must leave straightway for a train for Arizona. Forthwith he enters the crowded room, and without the slightest sign of embarrassment leans over to give his father a parting embrace, and a lusty kiss, and sets off for his journey.

This scene is related simply as indicative of the informal domestic atmosphere in which historic events are being developed at the capital. Visitors at the White House, whether newspapermen, senators or Cabinet members feel that they are caught up in a large family party. Unquestionably, the Roosevelt's simplicity, naturalness and good nature have brought forth a surprised response from many of the individuals important in making the wheels of the governmental machine turn round.

It is the obvious purpose of Mr. Roosevelt to drive through what legislation he can while the cooperation of Congress is available. Like the arctic summer, there are normally only a few weeks of months of fair congressional weather, and Mr. Roosevelt is rushing to make the most of them. One thing characterizes most of his proposals—they give wide powers to the Executive. For the time being, the legislature usually so jealous—is engaged in yielding up authority to the Executive. It was so in the sweeping emergency banking bill; it will be true, if passed, of the farm and unemployment bills, and of the new tariff-negotiating proposals.

DYES THAT WILL PREVENT MOTHS AIM OF INDUSTRY

Insects Are Claimed To Cost Nation 100 Millions Per Year

WASHINGTON, Apr. 8.—Repellent textile dyes that will furnish "built in" protection against ravages of moths now costing the nation about $100,000,000 a year are the aim of the Textile Foundation in the Department of Commerce.

H. E. Ritchey, research fellow of the foundation in a report to Franklin W. Hobbs, chairman of the foundation, declared recently that 30,000,000 American homes, armed with one or more of the several hundred "insecticides" are waging almost constant war on cloths moths, yet the pests through loopholes continue to do thousands of dollars of damage each year.

"Our research problem," Mr. Ritchey said, "is to determine whether some of the most nearly ideal moth repellents can be incorporated in dyes. There is only one dye on the market at present that is moth repellent. For practical commercial purposes and to accomplish widespread mothproofing through such means, it will be necessary to develop a wide range of such dyes. The question is whether a moth repellent will retain its properties when combined with dyes, and also whether such a combination can be effected without interfering with the qualities of the dyes."

The moth that seeks the bright lights and incites the housewife to frantic efforts is usually harmless according to Mr. Ritchey. His destructive brother prefers dark places and frequently goes undetected until the damage is done.

There are over 600 mothproofing materials patented, not including fumigants. Some of the most common are paradichlorobenzene, naphthalene, carbon bisulphide and carbon tetrachloride. In actual practice few of the materials have proven entirely satisfactory. Some are inflammable, some malodorous and others too

QUOTA BASIS FOR FOREST WORK IS TO BE EFFECTED

Rules Governing Recruiting Of Jobless Shaped By Official

WASHINGTON, Apr. 8.—(AP)—Regulations covering the recruiting of 250,000 men form the nation's biggest forest conservation project will place states on a quota basis under which maximum limits will be set for the number of men each can supply.

This was learned yesterday as four government departments hastened plans for the march on the forests under President Roosevelt's program to aid in relieving unemployment. The establishment of a thousand or more camps housing between 100 and 200 by July 1, has been set as the goal.

Rules covering the recruiting are being shaped by Secretary Perkins, who hopes to have registration of men under way within a week. Whether state quotas will be fixed on a basis of population or of the number of unemployed estimated for each is one of the first problems for her to settle.

She also faces many other equally difficult questions, including determination of the types of men who will be given preference in event applicants outnumber the jobs, age limits and the hours of labor for the men when they are in camp. They are to be paid about $30 a month in addition to maintenance.

The forest service will lay out the program of work potentialities in the national forests at a conference today to be attended by its nine regional chiefs. They will meet with R. Y. Stuart, United States forester, who is taking the lead in co-ordinating all plans pending the appointment by the President of an official to take permanent charge of the program.

Holly Departs To Attend Meet Of Legislature

Briefly summarizing his platform, Mr. Holly declared that there is little that I can add to the many platforms that have already been announced, from Governor Sholtz down. He said that "Economy of government, a general reduction in taxes, and relief for political subdivisions, cities and towns of Florida that are suffering bonded indebtedness."

Secretary Wallace will meet with representatives of governors, most of them state foresters, on Thursday, to go over work potentialities on state and privately owned forest property to which the project will be extended, especially in the East, where the total area of national forests and parks is small.

There will be a military touch on the mobilization activities, with recruits to be gathered together at army posts for physical examinations and conditioning. The war department's plans for this step in the program are well advanced.

The interior department has drawn up a list of projects which can be undertaken on timbered sections on the Indian lands and in national parks.

Improving the Nation's protection against forest fires which annually destroy many millions of dollars worth of timber will be one of the chief projects. Elimination of erosion and forest disease control will be secondary.

Many government bureaus already have been flooded with applicants for jobs and inquiries for information regarding the projects. This began even before the President signed the bill last Friday. The most numerous among the applicants have been young men.

McCrone Leaves For Wilmington Outfit

Clarence "Stuffy" McCrone, veteran Piedmont League baseball player who has been spending the winter season here, left for Wilmington, N. C. early yesterday morning to report for duty as a member of that city's 1933 entry in the Piedmont League.

Mr. McCrone, who was voted as one of the most popular players in that league two seasons ago since his marriage to the former Miss Alberta Aycock. He appeared in several games here for the local team during exhibition contests, and because he had earlier this season rejected a contract sent him by owners of the Wilmington club, some fans believed he might remain in Sanford this summer.

TUESDAY, APRIL 4, 1933

BIRMINGHAM VERSE FOR TODAY

THE LORD IS NEAR: The Lord is nigh unto them that are of a broken heart; and saveth such as be of a contrite spirit. Psalm 34:18.

The "new deal" in Florida politics is scheduled to begin today.

The President of Germany does not seem to have much more authority than the King of England.

Governor Sholtz recommends the passage of a beer bill. The state needs the revenue worse than the bootleggers.

Davis Shores, one of the big boom time developments near St. Augustine, is soon to be sold at public auction. Take your time, boy! Don't crowd!

The Literary Digest tells about a Harvard student who once asked his professor what "transubstantiation" means. The professor replied, "Good Heavens! How should I know? Look it up." Those who always know everything would do well to consider this remark.

One newspaper says that two or three billion dollars will be needed for the refinancing of around $850,000,000 of farm indebtedness. Yes, we should think it would take at least that much, but these figures are getting so big we can't be absolutely sure about anything.

Hitler slapped a censorship on the German press to prevent unfavorable stories from getting abroad, and promptly turned the place of facts, making the atrocity campaign many times worse than it really was. One New York tabloid, relying largely on rumors, headlined a story, "4,200 Jews slain in Berlin." Truth may be stranger than fiction, but it is never as wild as a rumor.

A new book on Huey Long is out, called "The Kingfish." It relates an incident when Huey, trying to get a proposal of his by a State Senate committee, was confronted with the constitution of Louisiana. Huey's reply was, "I am the constitution now." This is a reminder of the remark of one of the French Louis, just two generations before the revolution, when Louis XVI was beheaded, "The state? I am the state!"

Senators, investigating the sale of foreign securities in this country, complain that most of the twelve billion dollars' worth of stocks and bonds sold here are now comparatively worthless. What we would like to see is some figures on the total amount of American stocks, bonds, real estate, equities, lottery tickets, and so forth, sold in this country, which are now also comparatively worthless.

Veterans who are having their pensions reduced or eliminated are naturally faced with new difficulties in the struggle for existence. It is not easy in these times to find new revenue to take the place of a twenty-dollar-a-month loss in income. But if the new economy measures of the Roosevelt administration succeed in reviving prosperity even to a moderate degree, the problem of the veterans will be simplified.

Representative Simmons of Santa Rosa county proposes a measure providing for the exemption from taxation of homes valued at $5,000 or less. We would like to see something done in this state to encourage home owning and we know of nothing which would be quite so effective as the elimination of taxes on small homes. However, no such bill is likely to pass as some other form of tax taken would have to be adopted to make up for the loss of revenue. There seems to be small chance of a sales tax as a substitute for part of the ad valorem tax on real estate.

The Legislature Convenes

The state Legislature meets today under the most auspicious circumstances of any similar body in many years. It has the advantage of a leadership in Governor Sholtz who has the strongest popular support ever accorded a governor of Florida. The caliber of its membership is of an unusually high order. Practically all of its personnel were elected upon promises of economy which in general are in harmony with the Sholtz platform pledges. This session should set a record in Florida for the efficiency and dispatch with which it handles desirable legislation.

Most needed of all matters coming before the Legislature is the orderly curtailment of governmental expenditures. Governor Sholtz has provided the senators and representatives with an admirable yardstick for measuring every appropriation bill. "Can the state afford it?" If the state cannot afford it, it should be done away with. There are many things which we would all like to have, which perhaps we have come to regard almost as necessities, but we have discovered we can no longer afford them. The state cannot be so different from the individual.

Perhaps the most controversial item in the economy program will be the school appropriation. The schools will have to contribute their full share to the general reduction in expenditures and undoubtedly there are many things, sometimes called frills, which could be eliminated without seriously undermining our educational system. We believe, however, that extreme caution should be exercised by the legislators in their pruning of the school funds so that Florida does not lag behind other states in the fundamental training of its children. Florida cannot afford illiteracy.

Another matter which the Legislature should waste no time in determining is the prohibition question. It is the duty of the Legislature to provide adequate measures for the calling of a state convention to vote on the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, but it is our opinion that it should go even further and so modify the state laws as to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer, in accordance with the new federal beer statute, pending prohibition repeal. As the pari-mutuel bill eliminated race-track graft and enriched the coffers of the state, we believe that a beer bill will be similarly beneficial.

Of as much interest to Sanford as anything will, of course, be the laws enacted with regard to city and county bonds. Under existing statutes it is practically impossible for public officials and bondholders to get together on any kind of an agreement rehabilitating an overbonded city's credit and providing for reasonable taxation. The Legislature has it within its power to facilitate compromise measures and can do the cities and counties no greater service than by going the absolute limit in an effort to overcome this debt problem.

Governor Sholtz is expected to bring forward a number of bills which he thinks are necessary at this time to put the Florida ship of state back on an even keel. The people of Florida have unbounded confidence in his ability to draft such measures as will react advantageously on Florida's future. The Governor should have the support of the Legislature, and the people themselves should keep ever vigilant to see that he gets this support.

Extremes Of Climate

One never associates "Sunny" Spain with winter sports, but dispatches from Madrid tell of the recent activities of skiers in the mountains two hours journey from the capital city.

High up in the Navacerrada Pass, which only a few years ago was bleak and uninhabited, there are three modern club houses and a well-equipped hotel. Here the Alpine enthusiasts of Madrid gather over the week-end to enjoy the fun which the snow covered slopes afford.

In the summer when skiing and sleighing are impossible, the habitues of this mountain resort turn to the pastime of photography and have formed a photographic society which sponsors yearly exhibitions of its work, where the unknown beauties of the mountain are revealed to the general public.

The thought has probably occurred to many Floridians that a range of mountains somewhere in the state would furnish us with all the beauties which nature can afford in the way of diversified scenery. With no intention of minimizing our present charms and beauties, it would be nice to be able to go from a snow-clad mountain peak to the warmth of the Gulf Stream in the matter of a few minutes.

TWO AIRPLANES MAKE HOP OVER HIGHEST MOUNT

PURNEA, India, Apr. 4.—(AP)—Two airplanes sailed across the summit of Mt. Everest yesterday and for the first time in history men looked down upon the highest mountain in the world. The feat was accomplished by the Marquis of Clydesdale, accompanied by Lieut. Col. L. V. Stewart Blacker, and by Flight Lieut. D. F. McIntyre, who had with him a photographer named Bennett.

The pictures, it was hoped, would provide an authentic record of the conquest of the 29,141-foot mountain on the sides of which numerous men have perished attempting by old-fashioned methods to gain the honor of being the first to reach the top. The two airplanes flew to an altitude of 30,000 feet in 50 minutes. At the peak they found a wind velocity of 60 miles an hour.

Lieutenant McIntyre apparently suffered considerably from frost, but Lord Clydesdale was fit and cheerful when he landed after the momentous journey.

Although exhaustive preparations had been made for the flight over Everest, the actual carrying out of the feat was in a measure accidental. When the two ships went up the purpose of the fliers was only to make a test. But they found conditions so ideal that they turned the test into a real flight.

The ships took off yesterday morning as soon as the fliers learned that the wind in the upper atmosphere had lost considerable of its high velocity. This was determined by sending up a weather balloon which reached an altitude of 33,000 feet, where it recorded a velocity of 69 miles.

The flight over the tallest peak in the world required three and a half hours. Lord Clydesdale's plane was the first to re-appear, followed in a few moments by the ship containing McIntyre and the photographer.

the Himalayas, the airmen who flew over Mt. Everest looked down upon the very gods. The great mountains in this section of the world are the objects of prayer and sacrifice, and religious restrictions have prevented scientific examination of rock formation in order that the deities of these great peaks may not be angered and take their vengeance on the people who daily look up at them.

Luckies Please! In every corner of the world, both here and overseas, wherever you find joy in life, it's always "Luckies Please!" You want character as well as mildness in a cigarette... Luckies have both! Everywhere you go—at cosmopolitan Havans as in our own homeland—discriminating smokers prefer Luckies. Why? For one thing, because of their fine, fragrant Turkish and domestic tobacco—carefully selected, perfectly blended. People the world over want a cigarette that has Character. Second, and all important, because these fine tobaccos are "Toasted"—that scientific process which creates true mildness. For these two reasons—character and mildness—"Luckies Please!" because "It's toasted"

Look for something that is entirely new in this show and you will find it, for it ends with a dash of Scotch. Although it is not the kind that is bottled, nevertheless you will get a thrill from that Scotch that you can take out of the theater with you. Ray Nell carries a beautiful stage setting of her own design as well as a wonderful wardrobe of costumes that will dazzle you just as her costumes dazzle the eyes of patrons at Texas Gullman's Club.

A feature of the unit is the Roy Alexander Troupe. This troupe is the most sensational act ever seen on any stage in the South. They work fast and furious and keep you guessing what will happen next. Expect to be thrilled with their stunts as you have never been thrilled before and they will exceed your expectations. Their costumes are these wonderful acrobats and for years they have been working to perfect the act that you will see with Ray Nell. They were imported into this country by none other than John Ringling and last year they were the feature attraction of the circus, the world's greatest.
