Man reportedly robbed in car

SANFORD — Two persons forced a Sanford man to drive them to various locations in the city early this morning, before robbing him of his wallet and fleeing.

According to Deputy Police Chief Joe Dillard, "At approximately 1:30 this morning, a 41 year old Sanford resident, in a restaurant parking lot in the 2100 block of French Avenue, was approached by a black male and white female."

"They got into his car, and the black male pulled a knife," Dillard continued. "They then ordered him to drive them to Franklin Arms Apartments at 1120 Florida Ave., where the black male got out and made contact with a black female."

"After that," Dillard said, "the man got back in the car and ordered the driver to take them to 22nd Street and Maple Avenue, where the man grabbed the driver from behind and started choking and striking him, and the female took the man's wallet. They then fled from the area on foot."

Dillard said the case is being investigated as a robbery at the present time, rather than a car-jacking because they did not actually steal the vehicle.

Plan includes survey, HRS program, pool on city land

By NICK PFEIPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Central Florida YMCA wants to create a facility in the city of Sanford. It is looking at slightly over 11 acres of land located across from the Sanford Middle School, in the 1700 block of S. French Avenue.

Ed Thomas, branch director of the Seminole Family YMCA is scheduled to address a work session of the Sanford City Commission Monday afternoon. He says the Y is seeking to use the property as an interseason site.

In his letter requesting a meeting with the commission, Thomas wrote, "To operate an on-site HRS approved intercession program for children on the year-round school calendar, it would be necessary to construct a minimum of facilities consisting of a small office area, rest room facilities and a large open-air pavilion."

"Before we actually undertake specific planning," Thomas said this morning, "we would conduct a community survey to find out exactly what people would like this to be."

"We would like to be able to handle full-day child care service in keeping with the tracks of the year-round school terms which will be needed as early as July 18th," he said, "and if we're to do that in such a short time, we will need to really get moving."

He explained the connection with HRS. "The HRS has established a number of standards for" See YMCA, Page 5A

SMS band teacher honored for first class performance

SANFORD — Leading a group of middle school musicians through the rigors of musical training while dealing with a host of other problems brought on by adolescence is challenging enough.

Doing all of that and still leading the students to achieve top honors in statewide competitions, to participate in civic activities and to really enjoy the music they make is an amazing feat for any teacher.

But to do it all in one's first year in the classroom is a major accomplishment.

Jennifer Lynn Scott, the band teacher at Sanford Middle School, was recently awarded Seminole County's Sallie Mae Award for Outstanding First Year Teachers.

The award is given to honor those first-year teachers who have shown outstanding capabilities based on instructional skills, interaction with faculty and staff and interaction with parents and the community.

"We like to call them our 'first-class' teachers rather than our 'first year' teachers," said Dede Schaffner, coordinator for community involvement for the school district.

Preservation Week

Sanford memories revisited: Carriage rides, tea and tours

By NICK PFEIPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Take a camera. This will be a weekend worth photographing.

In honor of Preservation Week, sponsored by the National Trust for Historic Preservation, the city of Sanford will be conducting a week of activities beginning tomorrow.

Local events are being conducted by Sanford Main Street, Sanford Historic Trust, and the Sanford Museum.

Many of the activities involve tours of the city's historic district, featuring areas which have been recognized through historic preservation awards. Tours can be made on foot or in a carriage.

Tomorrow's feature is a "Victorian High Tea/Walking Tour," beginning at 621 S. Park Avenue at 3 p.m. It features a walk through the historic district.

Sunday will feature "Old Fashioned Sunday Dinner & Carriage Ride" through historic Sanford. The rides will be from 4 until 8 p.m., at the Higgins House, 420 S. Oak Museum. See Sanford, Page 5A

Lake Mary focuses on early industry during celebration

By SHARI BRODIE
Herald Columnist

LAKE MARY — AT&T, Recoton, Conner, Siemens Stromberg-Carlson; the big businesses of modern day Lake Mary reflect little of the industries that sustained the small village in the late 1800s and the early part of this century. But it was citrus, turpentine and timber, cattle, starch and the railroad that provided livelihoods for the original settlers of the community.

Citrus was probably first to come to Lake Mary, due in large part to the contributions of Gen. Henry Shelton Sanford. Sanford's Belair citrus plantation, on the northwest shore of Crystal Lake, was the largest commercial grove in Florida at that time. One of Lake Mary's best known pioneers, Axel Evald Sjoblom, already was heavily involved in the citrus industry when he moved to Lake Mary from Forest City in 1886, according to Lake Mary historian Margaret Wesley. Sjoblom purchased thirty acres of groves on the east shore of Crystal Lake at Grand Bend (where the Community Building is now located). All but five acres were destroyed soon after he purchased the land. In the great freeze of January 1888.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

FBI receives tip Tiffany Sessions is alive

GAINESVILLE - The FBI issued a national alert after receiving a tip that a Florida college student missing for five years was seen alive in the Houston area...

Alachua County sheriff's spokesman Lt. Emery Galtrey stressed that the information was just a tip and that Sessions and the rest of the group has not been seen again since.

Seasions, a University of Florida student, disappeared Feb. 9, 1989, while jogging near her apartment in Gainesville. Her disappearance prompted a nationwide search.

Woman paid a $59,000 tax return

PALM BEACH GARDENS - Susan Wright knew it was a mistake. She was supposed to get a $104 tax refund check from the Internal Revenue Service, not one for $59,000.

Wright said, clutching the U.S. Treasury check - twice her yearly salary, "I've squeezed it to death."

Wright hoped her honesty pays off somehow. She called the National Enquirer hoping for a $150 reward. The tabloid pays people who return found money that isn't theirs.

Now, after a frustrating brush with instant wealth, Wright just wants the IRS to send her $104 check.

Justice Department files suit in merger

CLEARWATER - If two of Pinellas County's biggest hospitals merge, patients will be forced to pay more for poor service, alleges a lawsuit filed by federal and state officials.

But Gov. Lawton Chiles likes the merger idea and has sent letters of support to the Justice Department. But the antitrust section of the state Attorney General's Office agrees with Justice and joined in filing suit.

Hospital officials say the lawsuit strikes the heart of state and national health care reform plans and sends a frustrating message.

"This is health care reform at work," said Frank Murphy, chief executive officer of Morton Plant Health System.

The hospitals contend that the merger would improve quality, increase access and promote savings of up to $60 million over the next five years.

Chiles signs wetlands bill, lets veggie libel become law

By JACKIE HALLIFAX Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Florida growers who find their crops under verbal attack could seek triple damages in court under a bill Gov. Lawton Chiles has allowed to become law without his signature.

The measure (CS-SB 1072) allows Florida growers to sue anyone who publicly says fruits, vegetables and other perishable food products are unsafe for consumption, but can't support the claims with scientific evidence.

Supporters of the food disparagement bill said Florida's agriculture industry must be protected from a scare similar to the one that impacted apple growers in Washington in 1989. Many people stopped buying apples because of unproven accusations that a pesticide used on the fruit was a health hazard.

Opponents warn the law will stifle free speech and the ability of people to discuss legitimate concerns about the safety of food products.

The bill has a two-year statute of limitation beginning from the date of the disparagement. It has no criminal penalties.

Also Thursday, the governor signed a bill that defines wetlands and another that gives enforcement of child support payments to tax collectors rather than social service workers.

Chiles signed the wetlands legislation (CS-SB 1346) in Sarasota. He said it does more than provide statewide consistency in defining wetlands - it helps streamline the process of getting permits.

"Businesses should not have to go through endless red tape when they apply for a permit - they deserve quick and certain answers to their applications," Chiles said.

"It also gives certainty to environmentalists so that we can end the mini-battles that occur across the state over wetlands."

The new criteria establishes a three-prong test to determine if an area is a wetland with the help of a list of 1,400 plant species, soil tests and historical data.

Landowners would be able to challenge regulators by presenting evidence showing that the property is consistently waterlogged for less than two weeks annually during years with normal rainfall.

Mother's Day surprises

The Kiwanis Club of Sanford treated new mothers to a morning of education, fun and a nutritional brunch during its annual World's Greatest Baby Shower at the Sanford Civic Center yesterday.

Other women wait patiently to scramble for the prizes. Central Florida Regional Hospital, the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and First Impressions Early Childhood Development Center donated door prizes and items for giveaway bags for the event.

Former bank robber starts self-help group, Criminals Anonymous

By Associated Press

SEBRING - A former bank robber has started a self-help group called Criminals Anonymous, dedicated to helping people "to live one day at a time without resorting to a crime."

John Ames, 58, follows principles borrowed from a program he helped form about 20 years ago at the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, where he earned a college degree in psychology.

"You've been convicted twice, and you think you're not going back to jail? You're fooling yourself," he tells his students. "We can't change the past, but if we can change the future, we've done one hell of a thing."

Right now 13 ex-convicts - including a drug trafficker and a child molester - are in the program, he said. The students take 26 classes, one a week, and are tested to see what they remember.

Members support the group with a $40 registration fee and a charge of $5 per class. Ames didn't start the program to make a profit, he said; he does it to help others.

Recruiting new students is a problem. Criminals generally don't consider themselves criminals and won't join, Ames said.

"They don't think they did anything wrong except get caught," Ames said. "They don't equate committing the crime with going to jail."

To grow, the program needs judges willing to order criminals to join the group the same way judges have authority to require convicted drunken drivers attend Alcoholics Anonymous while on probation.

Top law enforcement and judicial officials in Highlands are interested but want to know more before they make a commitment.

Feds must return property to owners

By Associated Press

MIAMI - At the time, it ranked among the biggest land seizures under a federal law that allows the government to take property used for drug smuggling purposes.

Now the owners are getting it back. A federal judge ordered Thursday the return of the 4,346-acre S.J. & W. Ranch in Glades County, which federal authorities seized in 1988 after a drug plane crashed on a nearby Indian reservation.

Authorities claimed the ranch was to be used for unloading 1,000 pounds of cocaine.

But U.S. District Judge William Hovever cited sloppy police work and prosecution in making his decision to return the $6 million ranch.

"The exposure of the many defects in this case has slowly unravelled the threads of the blanket of probable cause that the United States initially attempted to throw over the defendants' property," Hovever said.

Ranch attorneys have said the owners of the family-managed operation had no knowledge of any drug smuggling at the ranch.

"We really feel great," said David Pobjecky, the Winter Haven attorney for the ranch owners. "I don't think there was adequate investigation from the beginning. This case should never have gone to trial."

Federal authorities said the ranch was part of a big cocaine smuggling operation by Colombians.

The owners were snared in a "net loosely thrown" by federal authorities, and seizure of the ranch was an afterthought, 31 months after the plane crash, Hovever said.

The government's case that the plane was headed for the ranch was based on a sliver of evidence, Hovever said.

The plane crashed on the Brighton Seminole reservation, which is adjacent to the ranch.

Cocaine sale brings arrests

Jerry Parker, 27, 917 Holly Ave., Sanford, and Booker T. Smith, 50, 700 1/2 Maple Ave., Sanford, were both arrested on a charge of sale and delivery of cocaine by Sanford police Wednesday afternoon. Police report a Special Investigations Unit informant purchased cocaine from them near the corner of 11th Street and Maple Avenue.

Domestic violence

Leo Cruz Espeso, 31, 731 Sugar Bay Way, Apt. 103, Lake Mary, was arrested on a domestic violence battery charge by Seminole County deputies Tuesday. Espeso's wife reported he grabbed her throat and hit her in the eye during an argument.

Violation leads to arrest

Leonard Taylor, 31, 2300 Center St., Sanford, was taken into custody Wednesday on a charge of violating the terms of his controlled release from the state prison system. According to arrest documents, Taylor was released from prison last year while serving his sentence for aggravated assault, armed robbery and possession of cocaine. In February, Taylor was rearrested on charges of possession of marijuana and trespassing.

Warrant arrests made

The following wanted persons were taken into custody:
 • Luther Martin Overstreet, 29, 951 Dunbar Ave., Lake Monroe, on a charge of failure to appear in court to answer to a charge of failure to pay a fine.
 • James Glivena, 27, 2450 Center St., Sanford, on a charge of violating the terms of his parole from prison sentence for a burglary conviction.
 • Lynn Williams Jr., 22, Sanford, on a charge of failure to appear in court to answer to a charge of failure to pay a fine for a worthless check sentence.
 • Lance Joel Hlavin, 21, 81 Ridgeview Drive, Sanford, on a probation violation charge for a criminal mischief conviction.

Crimes reported to deputies

The following crimes were reported to Seminole County deputies:
 • Lyman High School, Longwood: 10 calculators valued at $1,100 were reported taken sometime between April 25 at 2:30 p.m. and 8:30 a.m. Monday.
 • Construction site at Bradcliff Point and Lake Worth Circle in Heathrow: two tractor forks valued at $2,000 reported taken by an unknown suspect April 28 at 4:30 p.m.
 • Pebble Creek Apartments near Lake Mary: video tape recorder and other items valued at $1,400 reported taken from office sometime between 7:15 p.m. Tuesday and 7:09 a.m. Wednesday.
 • 8500 block Amber Ridge Court in Rivercrest: components of sprinkler system valued at $770 reported taken April 28 at 9:30 a.m.
 • A 15-year-old girl reported an 18-year-old Sanford youth entered her residence on April 15 and forced her to have sex with him. The girl reported the youth has since called her and threatened to kill her boyfriend.

Crimes reported to Sanford police

The following crimes were reported to Sanford police:
 • 9000 block West 12th Street: 0150 .380-caliber handgun reported taken sometime between 2 p.m. Monday and midnight Wednesday.
 • Parking lot at 3650 S. Orlando Drive: $900 cellular telephone removed from shopping cart at 8:30 p.m. Saturday.
 • 3D's Bakery, 110 S. Palmietto Ave.: $250 in food reported taken from freezer sometime Tuesday between 8 p.m. and 9 p.m.
 • Auto Club, 601 W. Airport Ave.: 12 business checks reported removed sometime between 3 p.m. April 13 and 3 p.m. Wednesday.
 • Central Florida Regional Airport: $6,100 in aircraft radio equipment reported removed from a Cessna Turbo Centurian II at C.E. Aviation, Bldg. 215, Airline Ave., sometime between April 26 and 7:30 a.m. May 4.

Warrants served

• Leroy Hardy, 43, 1401 W. 7th Street, was arrested by deputies at his residence Tuesday. He was wanted on an Orange County warrant for violation of probation on a conviction of possession of cannabis.
 • Randy Lee Hammerstrom, 40, 178 S. 4th Street, Lake Mary, was arrested by deputies at his residence Tuesday. He was wanted on a capias for grand theft.
 • Luther Martin Overstreet, 29, 951 Dunbar, Lake Monroe, was arrested at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Tuesday. He was wanted on a warrant for violation of probation on a conviction of sale of cocaine.
 • John Albert Viggiant, 43, 1018 Pine Ridge Circle, Sanford, was located by deputies in the 1600 block of Airport Blvd. Tuesday. He was wanted on a capias for battery.

Theft solved

Sanford police arrested Leroy Rodriguez Kett, 19, of 1912 W. Airport Blvd., on Tuesday. Police say he is believed to have been connected with the reported theft of $990 in jewelry from an apartment on May 1. Kett was charged with grand theft.

Traffic stop

Antonio Dean Williams, 20, 47 Shenandoah Village, Sanford, was stopped by Sanford police at 11th Street and French Avenue Tuesday. He was charged with driving with a suspended/revoked license and having no valid registration.

Suit: Tobacco firms spread addiction

By The Associated Press

MIAMI — Tobacco companies have intentionally addicted millions of Americans and conspired to suppress information on the dangers of smoking, alleges a class action lawsuit seeking billions of dollars in damages.

"We are charging the tobacco industry with creating an incredible history of fraud and manipulation of the American consumer," Miami attorney Stanley Rosenblatt said. "They have created a nation of addicts, and once they hook you, they have a customer for life."

Rosenblatt filed the class action lawsuit Thursday in Dade Circuit Court. It seeks $200 billion in compensatory and punitive damages and demands the creation of a fund to diagnose and treat smoking-related illnesses.

Among the plaintiffs is Robert Angell, who lost his larynx to cancer.

Angell, 60, of north Dade, said he was presented to medical students as a classic victim of smoking while in the hospital in 1984. Now, his throat area is deformed and he says he lives in constant pain.

"I thought it was my own fault, but now I believe I was the victim of an addiction that was forced on me," Angell said, speaking with the aid of an electronic larynx.

The lawsuit names 13 cigarette manufacturers and industry organizations as defendants and calls their conduct "intolerable in a civilized society." The companies are accused of malice and fraud.

The lawsuit depicts cigarettes as products unfit for human consumption and claims that cigarette makers knowingly manipulate and "maximize" nicotine in some products.

In the past, tobacco industry representatives have insisted that tobacco is not addictive and rejected any allegation of improper behavior.

Walker Merryman, vice president of the Tobacco Institute, which usually speaks for the industry, refused comment on the lawsuit. "I've been deposed by Rosenblatt (in another case) and don't care to be again," he said.

Representatives of Phillip Morris Inc., the nation's largest cigarette company, also declined comment.

A case in U.S. District Court in New Orleans makes similar allegations and demands as the one filed in South Florida.

In recent weeks, several class action suits have been filed against cigarette makers.

Rosenblatt also represents 30 flight attendants who sued the tobacco industry in 1991 for health problems allegedly caused by their exposure to secondhand smoke from passengers. An appeals court recently authorized a class action in that case; the industry is appealing the ruling.

The Thursday lawsuit lists six plaintiffs from South Florida who "have suffered, presently suffer or who died from diseases and medical conditions caused by smoking cigarettes," or are the survivors of smokers.

Women's war: Told in letters of longing, loneliness

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — When America's men went off to World War II, most women stayed behind to fight their own battles. They tell their tale of love and longing, coping and growing independent, making do and suffering, in their letters from home.

"While I am writing this I am being blinded with tears which are running faster than the pen is writing," Josephine Keutman wrote on Oct. 25, 1944, to her son, Charles, then missing in action. "Oh, God, please help send you back to me soon. I have nothing else in life but you."

Here was the anguish of fearing for someone, an experience shared by thousands — many who lost loved ones, others like Mrs. Keutman who eventually got them back alive.

Other women gave voice to history, writing of their day-to-day trials and how their lives were changing, explained Judy Barrett Litoff of Bryant College in Smithfield, R.I.

Letters from home were promoted as the No. 1 morale booster for service personnel, but that didn't force the writers to be artificially upbeat. Litoff told an audience at the National Postal Museum on Thursday.

Litoff focused on letters from her book, "Since You Went Away: World War II Letters from American Women on the Home Front." She and co-author David C. Smith of the University of Maine collected 30,000 women's letters written during the war after making appeals through letters to the editor of daily newspapers nationwide.

Women didn't hesitate to discuss serious topics and to express their new sense of self-reliance, working, raising their children alone and grappling with loneliness and despair.

"You are now the husband of a career woman — just call me your little Ship Yard Babe," Polly Crow wrote to her husband, William, after she took a job at the Jefferson Boat and Machine Co. in Anderson, Ind., in 1944.

"Opened my little checking account, too, and it's a grand and glorious feeling to write a check all your own and not have to ask for one," she added proudly.

Likewise for Edith Speert, who warned husband Victor on Oct. 21, 1945, that "I'm not exactly the same girl you left — I'm twice as independent as I used to be."

A month later, she added that she had enjoyed working during the war and would have to continue holding a job. "I get emotional satisfaction out of working and I don't doubt that many a night you will cook supper while I'm at a meeting. Also ... I shall never wash and iron — there are laundries for that."

Mabel Opal Miller of East St. Louis, Ill., visited a farming friend in Arkansas during the war and admired the resourcefulness of farm women.

"I noticed on the farms, mostly the little ones with just a shack for a home, there seems to be no one but the women left to do the work. ... It makes one proud to see how the women have picked up where the men left off," she wrote to a serviceman she had met at a USO club.

Patricia O'Brien Aiken's letter April 24, 1943, told her husband Al, in Alaska, of her anger over hearing that the husbands of friends had been killed in the war.

"I think it would be better to be in Poland or Greece where they kill all the family instead of just one person and leave the others grubbing around trying to make a life out of nothing, like those two kids will have to do," she wrote from Greenbelt, Md.

"I can't even feel good about us, if we do get out of it, we'll probably be fat, frightened and always running around trying to save our own necks like most of the people around here."

But Doris J. Winkler of Brooklyn, N.Y., expressed the joy of war's end and hopes for the future, closing her Aug. 16, 1945, letter to husband Walter:

"I hate to leave you sweet-heart, but perhaps, very soon, our good nites will be said in bed, facing each other as we lie in each other's arms in our dimly lit bedroom on our cool blue sheets — ah heaven — we'll

Celebrate historic preservation

May 7 through 14 is National Preservation Week. A number of activities have been scheduled in Sanford, in keeping with the annual event.

Through combined efforts of the Sanford Historic Trust, Sanford Main Street, and Sanford Museum, open houses, walking and carriage tours, and many other activities have been planned.

Downtown windows will display old photographs. Many merchants will be costumed in clothing depicting Sanford's historical past.

Everyone seems to like history. In preparing the handout brochure for today's 5th Annual Health and Safety Fair, the city of Sanford had a photo of what is presently Memorial Park, reportedly taken in 1927. It shows the old park area with steam boats and Sanford's popular band shell.

The members of the Waterfront Master Plan Steering Committee, working on improvements to the lakefront area, have often seen photos of what the area was in past decades.

Persons with over a half century of residence recall the band shell on the lakefront, and various concerts held there. Others may remember the chamber of commerce building was the USO, and the present site of the Sanford City Hall was the zoo.

Sanford's appearance today, is going to be the history remembered by our youngsters.

In the future, they will remember what a quaint city we had in the downtown area. Many will recall the Rivership Grand Romance which left us only a few months ago.

We urge the city, Historic Preservation Board, and all others who have any power to continue watching over the city during the present growth cycle. Do whatever is necessary, to preserve Sanford's quaint appearance.

In just a few short years, the Seminole Towne Center Mall will be operating, along with other malls, hotels and stand-alone stores.

People may begin to believe the Mall is Sanford, or the only thing in Sanford is the mall. By working together, we can prevent this perception.

Keep Sanford something which will emit fond recollections when our children think about the past. But let's continue making it a city we can also be proud of in the future.

Fairness Doctrine is bad idea

The Fairness in Broadcasting Act or (Fairness Doctrine) is a bill being proposed in Congress that would regulate radio and television broadcasts in regard to program content and subject matter. And Congress is quietly trying to sneak the bill through by attaching it to an unrelated bill.

The Fairness Doctrine would force stations to give free, equal time to both sides of any controversial issue. Politicians and government regulators would then have the power to decide what issues were too controversial and if the coverage of those issues was fair. This would not only be costly for some stations (especially smaller ones), but it would also censor coverage of issues.

The Fairness Doctrine was found to be unnecessary and possibly unconstitutional in the 1980s by the Federal Communications Commission when they decided that it interfered with broadcasters' abilities to freely discuss issues of public importance.

But now, politicians are trying to revive the bill by quietly attaching it to another bill; possibly a campaign finance reform bill.

An organization to which I belong, Citizens United, did a poll of House members asking if they would support or oppose the Fairness in Broadcasting Act. While most said they opposed it, many would undoubtedly vote for it if it were attached to another bill with which they agreed.

If the Fairness in Broadcasting Act is such a good idea that our congressional leaders will knowingly impose it on the American people, then it should be able to stand on its own, rather than being quietly attached to another bill. But if the idea is so bad that most members of Congress oppose it, then why will they vote for it in any form?

Congress needs to be sent a clear message. The Fairness Doctrine is a bad idea, and the American people do not want legislation passed that is so questionable that it must be passed secretly.

What is South Africa to America?

"What is Africa to me? / Copper sun or scarlet sea, / Jungle star or jungle track, / Strong bronzed men, or regal black / Women from whose loins I sprang / When the birds of Eden sang?" — Countee Cullen, 1925

In April 1994, a black American poet's paean to his African heritage would find a way somehow to embrace South Africa.

South Africans today would not sing of "scarlet seas, jungle tracks, strong bronzed men, or regal black women," but of township dusty roads, city skyscrapers, strong black men who mine the white man's gold, and plump black women who care all day for children other than their own.

What is South Africa to us? In 69 years, Africa's realities have changed, but its stereotypes persist. What Americans feel about South Africa today reflects what they read and see.

Few could help but be impressed by the long lines of black South Africans, standing with Jobian patience, waiting to exercise a right that had been delegated to black Americans in 1870.

But that image only intrudes momentarily on a stereotype orchestrated by influential segments in the media. In the next few years, South Africa's biggest obstacle will be to overcome a violently negative image that racist media types reserved for black South Africans.

I don't throw that censure around loosely. Just as Samuel Johnson lamented that "patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel," too often, racism occupies the same pew. But racism is still an international and national fact of life. If the media can portray South Africa's first democratic and black-controlled government as nothing more than a bunch of violence-prone thugs, it will be easier to divert financial aid and political support away from South Africa.

But that image only intrudes momentarily on a stereotype orchestrated by influential segments in the media.

The New Republic's efforts are a case in point. The well-known weekly has portrayed black South Africans as a bunch of bloodthirsty panga-carrying goons, assassinating each other and clashing with democracy-resisting white Afrikaners.

On its May 2 cover, The New Republic headline moaned, "Cry the Bloodied Country." What follows were five pages of stereotypical reporting about whites and blacks, laboriously reminding us how difficult it is going to be for a black-governed South Africa to enter the reciprocal civility of nations.

On the other side, a surprisingly balanced and in-depth story in the Wall Street Journal extensively explored the humanity of black South Africans. Headlined, "Meeting Blacks' Needs Will Be a Challenge in New South Africa," the story offers a comparison to the poem about the six blind men of Indostan, each of whom encounters a different part of the elephant.

In the face of murderous violence, black-on-black, black-on-white and white-on-black (but almost no white-on-white), black South Africans have neither lost their humanity nor their infectious humor. They are a rambunctiously joyful people.

DONNA BRITT

Sacrifice for a great cause

WASHINGTON — On a recent Saturday night, President Clinton dined with hundreds at the annual White House Correspondents Dinner on asparagus and Roma tomato salad, petit filets of beef and salmon and a desert of fresh berries in Grand Marnier sauce, served in a chocolate scoop.

That same night, my family gathered at a favorite eatery to consume angel hair pasta, Caesar salad, a wheelbarrow-sized burrito and barbecue chicken pizza.

In the office basement that is now his home, Randall Robinson feasted on two glasses of tomato juice and some spring water. His wife, Hazel — who on weekend nights leaves their 4-year-old daughter, Khalea, at home with a friend to join him — sipped iced tea.

By now, many Americans know about the 52-year-old TransAfrica executive director's 19-day fast to end the U.S. policy of automatically repatriating all Haitian refugees back to an island where many are immediately murdered.

As somebody who has real trouble bypassing a Snicker Doodle cookie at the local mall, I felt many things when I learned of Robinson's fast: Admiration, awe — and fear. A story from a colleague explains the fear:

Last week, after ousted Haitian president Jean-Bertrand Aristide spoke of Robinson's stance to a crowd in Los Angeles, a female Haitian emigre approached. "Is Randall Robinson black or white?" she asked.

He's black, Aristide replied. The woman looked crestfallen.

"You should find someone white to fast with him," she said. "Because Americans won't care if a black man dies."

In truth, many Americans are too numbed by images of death from Bosnia to Rwanda to a Japanese airfield to be exercised about the death of anyone not an ex-president or suicidal rock star.

It's also true that if white Americans were dying in the streets the way black citizens are, our government would come to a standstill until it made sure the carnage stopped.

But this column isn't about desperate youths killing each other out of ignorance and despair. It isn't about somebody faceless, who can be dismissed as a druggie or gang member who "deserves" it.

It is about Randall Robinson. It is about the man whose 1984 arrest with two others at the South African Embassy in Washington started a ball rolling that grew into a boulder massive enough to begin to flatten a virulently racist regime — and to help spawn last week's historic South African elections.

It is about an eloquent, flesh-and-blood guy who delights in a pigtailed daughter whose eyes fill when she's asked about his absence. "I miss kissing Daddy when he comes home from work," Khalea says. "But he has to help the people in Haiti."

It's about a man whose son, Jabari, 19, will attend Lincoln University, and whose aspiring-writer daughter, Anika, 22, says of him, "The word 'proud' is so small (to describe) ...having a person in your life who inspires you to want to do the most passionate thing for your beliefs."

It's about a man whose eyes make you believe it when he says, "I can't imagine life without" his wife, Hazel Ross Robinson, a foreign policy adviser to House Armed Services Committee chairman Ronald Dellums. "I believe in what Randall's doing," she says. "But as a wife, it is heart-breaking."

It's about someone who literally would rather die than not risk everything to save Haitians — real people, too, with wives and husbands and cute little daughters — trying to flee a killing field. Their attempts to escape an island where thugs hack to death democracy-seekers with machetes, lop off their faces and feed the remains to pigs, are thwarted by U.S. vessels that scoop them up and return them "home."

Some of us don't know what to make of such a man. I woke up at 4 a.m. the other morning haunted and taunted by the magnitude of Robinson's mission. The darkness couldn't obscure my sense that his stance makes my own efforts to make the world a fairer, more loving place, seem cowardly, ineffectual.

But each of us, I told myself, has power. More than we even begin to exert.

President Clinton, who like me, ate well that Saturday, has the power to keep this man — and by extension, thousands of Haitians — alive. If he can move beyond his ennu and fear, he can by executive order rescind the automatic repatriation order he once rallied against during his presidential campaign.

We have power, too: In fingers that can dial the White House and tie up phone lines at Congress; in hearts and minds that can pray for Robinson's continued strength.

And we have the power to be just a bit braver. To acknowledge, at our next meal and the next, one man's willingness to sacrifice that and so much more — for a great cause.

You should find someone white to fast with him," she said. "Because Americans won't care if a black man dies."

Gingrich holds tight to his PAC money

WASHINGTON — Conservatives seldom complain about someone not spending enough money, but that's the charge being leveled against the right-wing guru himself, Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga.

Some Republicans accuse Gingrich of looking out for No. 1 at the expense of Republican challengers trying to unseat Democrats. Gingrich talks a good game, but he seldom backs it up with cash.

Gingrich's personal political action committee — GOPAC — spends more money than almost any other leadership PAC, but throws only crumbs to Republican congressional candidates.

Set up by leaders from both parties, leadership PACs raise money that is distributed to other candidates and used for party-building activities. But Republican candidates who are strapped for money can count on Gingrich for care packages that only include catchy conservative slogans and $7 audio tapes of speeches.

Federal Elections Commission records reveal that GOPAC isn't always the grinch. GOPAC has sprung for $30 birthday cakes, $200 for "Xmas cards to members," $10,000 for catering at the Four Seasons hotel and $751.86 for a pizza party at AF's Pizza on Capitol Hill.

"[GOPAC] is a joke," one conservative Republican senator told us. "Almost all the money from his [Gingrich's] PAC goes to his own aggrandizement and very little of it goes to the candidates.... He is the crowning example of probably being one of the worst."

Vin Weber, a friend of Gingrich and former member of the House Republican leadership, puts it more diplomatically but distances himself from Gingrich's methods. Weber told our associate Andrew Conte: "[Gingrich] believes in influencing the agenda. He believes in teaching candidates to be better candidates and he thinks that's more important than giving in direct cash. Most of the rest of us take the attitude that the candidates know how to run their own campaigns best and we should provide them the kind of help that they want."

In the last election cycle, less than $10.614 of the more than $4 million raised by GOPAC went to Republicans running for Congress, according to FEC records. Only three candidates for Congress received cash contributions of more than $50. FEC records also show that none of the $2 million GOPAC has raised since 1992 has reached a single candidate for Congress.

Gingrich has been using GOPAC's largesse to finance a following of robo-right-wingers who have been weaned on his canned conservatism. There are audio and video tapes, conservative literature and classes on ideology by telephone. Election year courses include "How to Close the Sale for PAC Money," "The New Republicans" and "The Empowerment Agenda" taught by conservative guru Jack Kemp.

One recent GOPAC handout included a pre-written press release complete with quotes candidates can crib as their own. GOPAC also tutors candidates on word choice:

Republicans: "prosperity," "liberty," "reform," "initiative" and "pristine." And Democrats: "taxes," "shame," "disgrace," "devour," "destructive" and "cynical."

"We're building a farm team of candidates," argues Lis Nelson, GOPAC's executive director. "Now we've got a great field of candidates running for Congress and they're all saying the same thing."

Gingrich talks a good game, but he seldom backs it up with cash.

various types of child care centers," he said. "These include such things as the number of restroom facilities, the type of programs to be offered, and other requirements. Depending on what we have, we would have to meet those requirements."

Thomas has also suggested future long term considerations may be made to include a swimming pool, the construction of a multi-purpose room for fitness classes and exercise equipment, and a variety of outdoor sports fields. He added that the sports fields would not be lighted.

"While it all depends on the results of our survey," Thomas said, "we do have hopes of eventually putting up a swimming pool. I have heard the mayor has been in support of a city pool, and this may be the answer to that."

Thomas said that once the YMCA is operating, he would become involved in a local fund-raising campaign to raise money for the pool. "I will also be looking into a number of grant programs which would also be of assistance in funding some of these operations," he added.

Thomas explained that charges to be made for use of the facility remain to be determined. "What we would like to offer," he said, "is to treat any Sanford resident as if he or she was a full member of the Y. In that way, we will be able to offer a sizable discount to Sanford people. In response to an agreement for the use of the city owned property."

City Commissioner Lon Howell, in whose district the property is located, said this morning that he had not yet studied the proposal. "If it's worthwhile," he commented, "and not too expensive for the kids, I think it could be a very good deal for the city."

"We are excited about the possibilities of working on this project with the city," Thomas wrote. "It is our firm belief that the youth and families of the Sanford community would be greatly benefited by these proposed facilities and programs."

The property has long been the subject of discussion and often controversy. An attempt was made in 1992 to have it rezoned for a strip mall. At the time, the land was owned by the Seminole County School Board.

Following a number of commission meetings and strenuous objections by people living in the residential area around the land, the rezoning was denied. The city subsequently purchased the property at a cost of $590,000.

At the time, the city acknowledged it had no immediate plans for use of the land.

In July of 1993, the commission instructed director of Planning and Development Jay Marder to develop a list of possible uses for the site. He responded that a study of possible land uses had already been made in 1980 when the school board still had the land. They included residential, professional office and multiple family housing development.

Eventually, suggestions were made to have public safety facilities built on the land. Concepts included a major fire department headquarters, police station, a combination of the two, or dividing the land so it could be used for public safety as well as a community swimming pool/recreation complex.

Residents of the surrounding area again appealed to the commission not to have the public safety complexes in the area, with many basing their objections on increased traffic which may be generated, and the loss of open space at what is being used as a playground area.

Although the city has since cleaned out a wooded area on the property to reduce what was reported as vagrants sleeping in the woods, nothing further has been openly discussed about any possible use of the land.

Thomas is scheduled to discuss the proposal during the work session of the Sanford City Commission Monday. Because of a lengthy work session agenda, the meeting is slated to begin at 4 p.m. in the City Manager's conference room.

Lake Mary

their livelihoods in the freeze found work at the Planters Company starch factory. Wild cassava, or yuca root, was easily cultivated in the area.

The starchy vegetable, when processed, provided a natural food additive and the basis of tapioca. The starch factory, located on the southern shore of Crystal Lake (just west of what is now the junction of Wilbur Avenue and Fifth Street) began operation in 1901, but shutdown in 1911, when the influence of imported cassava made it unprofitable to continue production in Lake Mary. The factory was bought and sold several times, being used to manufacture glue and possibly process turpentine. The final owner of the plant, A.E. Sjoblom, dismantled it in the early 1920s.

Located on West Wilbur Avenue near the factory was a two-story hotel built to house employees of the Planters Company. It had several owners as well, but prospered for a time due to the influx of winter visitors. According to Wesley, Florenz Ziegfeld was a visitor to the area and stayed at the hotel.

Turpentine was harvested for a time in the area now located along Markham Woods Road, north of Lake Mary Boulevard. A.E. Sjoblom owned a sawmill and processed timber for the area.

The area along Longwood-Lake Mary Road was settled by the Humphrey family who raised cattle for a living. Wesley states in her book, "Lake Mary Beginnings" that the Humphrey herd ranged over five counties and numbered close to 6,000. Humphrey cattle supplied practically all of the meat to Sanford markets.

While Lake Mary's train station was little more than a flag stop, it provided a link to larger cities, brought in winter visitors and provided many jobs for residents. Records show that the railroad, which runs south from Sanford along Old Lake Mary Road, crossing Lake Mary Boulevard and continuing along Country Club Road, was built in 1880. A station was located where Palmetto Avenue crosses the tracks. Called Bent's Station, for the original owner of the orange groves later purchased by Sjoblom, it was "constructed in 1901 and razed by railroad forces in 1942." The last railroad agent, employed by Atlantic Coast Line, was assigned to Lake Mary in 1939.

According to Harriett Boyd, a home for a section foreman was maintained in Lake Mary by the ACL railroad. Boyd, a long time resident of Lake Mary, worked in the Rand Yard as an engine house clerk, starting in 1945.

She will be displaying pictures and other railroad memorabilia at "Olde Lake Mary Days", this Saturday, May 7, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the "old" City Hall building.

Other displays to be set up at the event include cassava and citrus. Estella Powell, who was born in the Philippines where much of the imported cassava comes from, will be available to explain what she knows about the plant, which has many food and medicinal uses. The Lake Mary resident's first husband was a farmer and was contracted by a starch factory near them in the Philippines, to grow cassava.

With the incorporation of the community in 1973 and the growth spurt of the last decade, the newest city in Seminole County is a mere reflection of the active and vital community that existed in the 1920s and 1930s. Interested residents of Lake Mary, many of them children and grandchildren of settlers, are working to preserve what is left of the community's past.

While Lake Mary can not lay claim to any significant military battles or crumbling forts, many of the "landmarks" that attest to another time in history, such as the starch factory and the train station, have been destroyed.

Weapons

But Russell said the ban is "putting the wrong message out there." Attention should be directed, he said, toward the criminal justice system and getting the criminals off the streets.

Ealinger also believes it is more important to get the criminal off the street than the guns. "We have to send a tough, clear message to the criminals," he said.

Russell noted also that the ban on weapons will "only create a bigger black market."

The final vote in Congress was as close as could be: 216-214. Democrat Andrew Jacobs Jr., who represents Indianapolis, first voted "no" but changed to "yes" when he saw that his vote would be decisive. He slipped out of the chamber without waiting for back slaps from the winners.

Three years ago, a less tightly drawn bill to control assault weapons was defeated 247-177. Thursday's vote was a stunning setback for the National Rifle Association, which for years had the clout to defeat any gun control legislation and exercised it skillfully.

The first crack in the NRA's hold occurred last year with enactment of the Brady bill, requiring a five-day wait and records check before the purchase of handguns. Now assault weapons — semiautomatics, capable of firing a burst of bullets in a short time — are under attack. The Senate has already voted for an assault weapon ban.

Information from the Associated Press is contained in this report.

Members of Congress said their constituents were sick of the violence in America. Many said the preponderance of their mail and phone calls still reflected the NRA's ability to rally its membership, but other citizens have started making themselves heard.

The police were influential, too. By and large, the police of America got the word to Congress that they wanted the bill passed.

Woman arrested in fake rape case

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Reporter

SANFORD — A Sanford woman was arrested Thursday afternoon for filing a false crime report after telling Sanford police she conducted the story to conceal a "crack" binge from her husband.

Deputy Chief Joe Dillard said Loretta K. Bohannon, 32, 500 S. Oak Ave., was taken into custody after investigators found details of her story began unravelling. Dillard said when presented with the inconsistencies, she confessed to have filing the made-up abduction report. Dillard said investigators are angry because of the eight hours they put into the case trying to establish the truth.

Dillard said Bohannon told them she was walking along Fourth Street between U.S. Highway 17-92 and Laurel Avenue at about 5 p.m. Wednesday when a man driving a faded orange pickup with a faded white camper top first asked her to get into the vehicle, then demanded she do so at gunpoint.

Bohannon said the man drove her west on State Road 46 to Rock Springs Road in Lake County, where she said he bound her hands and raped her repeatedly during the next four to five hours. At one point, she said the man injected her with an unknown liquid using a syringe, telling her "This will make you feel good."

Dillard said she described her attacker as white, in his early 40s, five feet, six inches tall, weighing 135 pounds, with short black hair and a mustache. Dillard said investigators became suspicious of the story when they could find no evidence at the alleged crime scene and a state park ranger told them they were in the area of the alleged scene during the alleged times of the assault and saw no vehicle. A doctor's exam revealed no syringe marks, according to the arrest report.

When confronted with the evidence, Bohannon admitted she made it up, to conceal she had been smoking crack cocaine with two friends from her husband.

1993. In the short amount of time that has elapsed, she presented a fall concert that included beginning, intermediate, advanced and jazz band students; she has formed the Sanford Middle School Jazz Band to bring the music of Sanford Middle School to the community while enhancing the musical education of her students; she organized appearances for the jazz band; held rehearsals for an hour each day and four hours once a week to help prepare youngsters for competition; she presented a winter concert that involved 175 students in four ensembles; and she involved the students in marching with high school bands at football games.

Scott said she loves teaching middle school and wouldn't teach any other grade level.

"They love the music and they are so eager to learn," Scott said. "I don't want to 'move up' to high school or anything. This is where I want to be."

As long as she can remember, Scott said, she has wanted to be a middle school music teacher.

"This is a dream come true," she said.

Scott is especially proud of the fact that the students won straight superiors at statewide competition recently.

"That's never happened in the history of the school," she said.

The Band Booster Association parents have made her job much easier, she said. They have supported her work and have done much to help her get her job done, she said.

"They made all new uniforms for the students and have raised $15,000 in seven months to help bring us up to where we need to be," Scott said.

Instruments, some of which cost $2,000 or more had to be purchased to complete the orchestra collection. While the money was collected, it has also been spent.

"I want these students to have every opportunity to learn," she said.

Scott said she hopes to be able to stay in Sanford to build the program into the best that it can be.

"I don't need to go anywhere," she said. "I'm very happy here."

Ruling: Federal directive supersedes state on abortion

By MARGARET KATZ Associated Press Writer

DENVER — Saying federal laws supersede conflicting state laws, a judge ruled that Colorado are pregnant as a result of rape or incest.

The Hyde Amendment permanently blocked enforcement of a 1984 state amendment barring the use of federal Medicaid funds for abortion except when the woman's life is in danger.

The Hyde Amendment provides Medicaid funds for abortions in cases of rape and incest, as well as cases where the mother's life is endangered.

Tim Tymkovich of the Colorado attorney general's office said he will consult with state agencies and study the opinion before deciding whether to appeal.

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

Softball all-star games

WINTER GARDEN — West Orange High School will be the site of Saturday night's fastpitch softball senior all-star doubleheader pitting the Metro Conference against the Seminole Athletic Conference.

Making up the SAC squad are Shella Gillins (Seminole); Melanie Waters (Lake Howell); Shannon Krillke and Beth Pratt (Oviedo); Diane Duber (Lake Mary); Anne Freeburg, Stacie Stuller, Kelly Treat, Michelle Eafahani, Mildred Gonzalez, and Traci Brown (Lake Brantley).

Lyman's Michelle Bishop, Jamie Beland, Jodi Beland, and Wendy Acey also were named to the SAC team but may not be able to play.

The doubleheader is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. There is no admission charge.

F.O.P. golf tournament

LAKE MARY — Sanford Fraternal Order of Police Lodge 140 will conduct a golf tournament on Monday, May 9, at Timacuan County Club to benefit Camp Challenge, a camp for handicapped children.

The tournament will tee off at 8:30 a.m. Entry fee is $50 per person, which includes registration, greens fees, golf cart, and lunch. Door prizes and contests also are planned. For information, call 322-1244.

AROUND THE STATE

Hawks rip ice-cold Heat

MIAMI — Mookie Blaylock got hot, and the Miami Heat turned cold.

Blaylock shook a slump and scored a season-high 29 points, helping the Atlanta Hawks beat Miami 103-89 to force a deciding fifth game in their first-round series.

The Heat, bidding to become the first No. 8 seed in NBA history to eliminate a No. 1 seed, shot 37 percent.

Game 5 will be Sunday in Atlanta.

Ward to play for Hooters

JACKSONVILLE — Charlie Ward, the Florida State quarterback passed over for the NFL draft last month, will sign a four-game contract with the Jacksonville Hooters of the United States Basketball League.

Ward, the second Heisman trophy winner to be bypassed by the NFL, said Thursday he will start play with the Hooters on May 10. He is to start a European basketball tour on the 25th.

Hammond blanks Phillies

MIAMI — Chris Hammond pitched a seven-hitter and Jerry Browne tripled home three runs in the first inning Thursday night as the Florida Marlins beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5-0.

Hammond (2-3) walked one and struck out five in pitching his first nine-inning complete game. He pitched a complete game last Sept. 14, a six-inning, rain-shortened loss to Pittsburgh.

Buccaneers sign running back

TAMPA — Jerry Ellison, who rushed for 710 yards at Tennessee-Chattanooga last season, signed a free agent contract Thursday with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Ellison finished his college career at Tennessee-Chattanooga's No. 9 all-time rusher.

AROUND THE NATION

Bengals sign No. 1 pick

CINCINNATI — Just 11 days after drafting despite a contract impasse, the Cincinnati Bengals made defensive lineman Dan Wilkinson the highest-paid player in their history Thursday.

Wilkinson, the first player taken in the April 24 draft, signed a six-year, $14.4 million deal.

Seminoles sweep 4A-II

From Staff Reports

CLEARWATER — With the preliminaries over, the Seminole High School track teams now can get down to the business of trying to add to their collection of state championships.

The final preliminary was the 4A-Region II meet Thursday night at Clearwater High School, where the Seminoles found out just who will be going to the Class 4A state meet next Friday in Gainesville.

Seminole's boys, who are chasing their third consecutive state title and the seventh in school history, qualified eight individuals and both relays for the state meet while the girls, who are looking for their fifth state crown, qualified five individuals and both relays.

In the process, the Tribe swept both regional titles, the boys outscoring Dunedin 84-85 for the championship while the girls built a 60-45 advantage over New Port Richey-Ridgewood.

What made Thursday night's regional victories unique was that the two teams went about winning their respective titles in almost the exact same manner.

Lyman girls rule 5A-I

From Staff Reports

TALLAHASSEE — Javonte Green helped lead Lyman to the girls' team title while Lake Brantley's Dan Hilley and Lake Mary's James Davis both qualified for the state meet in two events Thursday at the 5A-Region I meet run at Florida State University.

With Green finishing second in both the 100-meter dash (12.7 seconds) and 200-meter dash (28.0) as well as running a leg of their first-place 4 x 100-meter relay (49.4), the Greyhounds earned the team championship with a score of 57 points.

Winning individual regional championships for Lyman were Rita Greenberg (800-meter run, 2:22.2) and Kianah Breenick (3,200-meter run, 11:48.9).

Other Greyhounds qualifying for the Class 5A state meet next Saturday in Gainesville were Angel Rhoads (third in the discus, 113 feet, 8 inches), Yushonda Dupree (third in the 200-meter dash, 26.5), Kelly Hudson (fourth in the 800-meter run, 2:23.3), and the second-place 4 x 400-meter relay.

Roinco-Fla. Sport Wear still undefeated at Chase

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — And then there was one.

After just two weeks of play, only one team, Roinco/Florida Sport Wear, remains unbeaten in Sanford Recreation Department Men's Spring Thursday Night Slowpitch Softball League action at Chase Park.

Roinco/Florida Sport Wear (2-0) used a pair of three-run innings to knock off previously unbeaten M.A. Erectors (1-1), 10-4, and Touchdown Pub (1-1) built a 6-0 lead and cruised to a 9-4 triumph over another unbeaten, Ken Rummel Chevrolet (1-1).

The game scheduled between Stiffey's Affordable (0-1) and Desk Mate (0-1) was postponed to a later date.

Beer: 30 apparently happy to be playing at Pinehurst

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — A return to Pinehurst Park has awoken Beer: 30's bats.

After losing the Fall League in a playoff with First Baptist, Beer: 30 took its high-scoring attack to Chase Park for the Polar Bear League. But the team just never got its offense sorted out and finished with a 2-7 record.

Now back in the Sanford Recreation Thursday Men's Spring Slowpitch Softball League at Pinehurst, the team is once again scoring in bunches, following up last week's opening season 7-0 victory with a 21-1, 16-hit, three-inning trouncing of Ryder.

The other two games were both tightly-fought and highly-contested.

Allan Truskauskas doubled in Bert Burgess with the go-ahead run in the top of the eighth inning and Briar Corporation withstood a

Are you ready to lose weight?

CONSUMER FOCUS

BARBARA HUGHES/GREGG

May 5 was declared International No Diet Day. A coalition of groups which includes the Council on Size and Weight Discrimination and the Body Image Task Force says we should "express an appreciation for the many sizes and shapes of human bodies." It also wants to encourage people to maximize their health in ways that do not focus specifically on weight loss. First celebrated in 1992 by a group called Dietbreakers holding a picnic in London's Hyde Park, the "holiday" is meant to urge people to give up trying to lose weight for 24 hours and to think about whether dieting helps or hinders their well-being.

The message is a worthy one. Experts have been saying for years that going on and off weight-loss diets often does more harm than good. It's more important, they say, to develop healthful eating and other lifestyle habits that can be lived with comfortably over the long run. Consider that unless a person is committed to changing lifelong habits that helped bring on the weight, such as binging to deal with stress or remaining fairly sedentary, any pounds that are shed are likely to creep back on.

One of the reasons people so often find themselves on the dieting merry-go-round is that they start their weight-loss efforts without asking one fundamental question: Am I ready? If the timing is not right for making changes that go beyond checking the numbers on the scale, the chances of shedding pounds permanently are slim.

To assess your weight-loss readiness, consider the following six points.

What's your motivation? A person trying to lose weight in order to slim down before a high school reunion is probably not as highly motivated to change lifestyle habits forever as someone who has been told to lose weight after suffering a heart attack. Think carefully about your own reasons for wanting to shed excess pounds and decide whether they're enough to support a long-term commitment. You may also want to check with a doctor or other health professional to see whether you even need to make losing weight a priority for your overall health.

What else is going on in your life? If you've just changed jobs, gone through a divorce, or are experiencing any other kind of extra stress at work or at home, decide whether you can cope with the added stress of changing your diet/exercise habits if not, better to wait until you can get circumstances under control. Even the elation that comes with being newly married or buying a home might make it difficult to focus on dealing with changes related to weight loss.

How much weight do you want to lose in what period of time? It's not realistic to expect to shed (and keep off) more than one to two pounds a week. If you've set your sights on a faster rate of loss, rethink your plan before getting started.

If you haven't been exercising regularly, do you now have the time and inclination to do so? Experts say the biggest factor in keeping weight off is not eating less but exercising more. If you can't manage to put aside time for, say, walking, jogging, swimming, or an aerobics class, the likelihood of long-term success drops significantly.

What role will the significant others in your life play in your weight loss? Find out how the people you live with will react if you want to try low-fat recipes or keep some "temptations" out of the pantry. In addition, if you're concerned that family members or friends may nag you about your food choices once you announce your plans you may want to mull over whether you can keep the effort yours, and not anyone else's. Keep in mind too that weight loss sometimes has a profound impact on the dynamics of a close relationship. For instance, a spouse may get nervous about a mate's increasing attractiveness to others. Talking over such issues can ease the transition.

Do you ever binge on food to the point where you feel out of control and/or purge by taking laxatives or inducing vomiting? If the answer is yes, you may be suffering from an eating disorder. Before you make any decisions, get professional help from an eating disorders expert.

Has image of drug addict changed?

DEAR MARY: When I was a kid everybody knew just who and what a drug addict looked like. He was almost always a man, didn't have a job, had left his family (or they had left him), and he usually spent his days panhandling.

Now, everybody is "recovering" from something or another. In fact it seems like lots of people are bragging about being in NA, AA, Codependents Anonymous, whatever. Has someone changed the rules about what makes a person a drug addict or are we just making more of them?

OVER 50 AND BEEN AROUND DEAR OVER 50: Times have changed and what you described as the drug addict of old was actually in the late stages of his illness. At that time, physical addiction was the determining factor with little attention paid to psychological addictions. Cocaine wasn't considered a dangerous drug because it is psychologically, but not physically addictive. The current cocaine epidemic has broadened our understanding of addictions. We now consider three characteristics in determining addiction:

• The user cannot predict what will happen when (s)he uses. One day they may be able to stop after one drink or dose; the next day they may not be able to control their drinking or using.

DRUG COUNSELOR

• The addict spends a great deal of time thinking about drinking or using.

• If drinking or drug use causes problems for the user but (s)he continues to do it, they are already addicted or are tempting addiction.

About 10 percent of those who use alcohol or other drugs become addicted; but the 90 percent who don't become addicted still have the same potential for driving under the influence, overdosing, or committing crimes or acts of family violence when they're under the influence.

(Mary Balk is a Certified Addiction Prevention Professional and counselor. Write her at the Sanford Herald, or call the Seminole County Schools' Drug Prevention office, 323-5710.)

DAR member wants harmony — not brickbats—for group

DEAR ABBY: Can we please put the Marian Anderson-Daughters of the American Revolution episode in its final resting place?

Quite some time before Ms. Anderson passed on, a group of ladies from the White Alloe Chapter of the DAR in the little town of Parkville, Mo. were helping 79-year-old Lucille Douglass and her friends raise money to restore a one-room brick schoolhouse built in 1885 for black children.

The DAR ladies spent many hours at the local historical archives searching out information to get the little school listed on the National Historic Register. A publication in 1885 stated that students at the all-white Park College were making bricks for the school building.

The school grounds were cleared of brush by men who were Veterans of Foreign Wars. An Italian construction company owner, experienced in historic renovation, offered free labor to help with the restoration once the funds are raised. Union plumbers and plasterers also have volunteered their services. Since Parkville is a suburb, we feel this project exemplifies the Kansas City motto of "Harmony in a World of Difference."

ADVICE

Please, Abby, no more brickbats for the DAR. Just give this tiny point of light a chance to flourish and burn brightly for others to see and emulate.

VIRGINIA L. RAU, REGENT, WHITE ALLOE CHAPTER OF THE D.A.R., KANSAS CITY, MO.

DEAR VIRGINIA L. RAU: Consider it done.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend and I have been together for the better part of three years. We met and lived together in Las Vegas.

Our financial matters were always kept separate, on his insistence. We split all the bills 50-50. If I was a day late with my half, he'd throw a fit. However, I always paid my share, no matter what.

We recently moved to Oregon and are living with my parents. We pay no rent but are expected to pay for our own long-distance calls and one-third of the water bill. It doesn't amount to very much, but I've paid it myself; my boyfriend hasn't kicked in with one dime. Meanwhile, he has run up more than half the telephone bill.

He gets angry when I remind him (nicely) that he has to come up with some money. What should I do?

OUT OF PATIENCE DEAR OUT OF PATIENCE: You don't say whether you or your boyfriend are employed. From your description, he appears to be a slow-starter with minimal ambition. Perhaps you should be grateful that you are discovering the "real" man — warts and all. Tell him that the 50-50 split he insisted upon in Las Vegas still applies. And demand that he carry his share of the load, or you will be saddled with him and his bills forever.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent letter from Jackie Riley in regards to a 1948 hospital bill for the birth of a baby, you neglected to include wages earned during the time.

In 1948, my father's wages were $50 for a 60-hour week. I picked strawberries and was paid 2 cents a quart. My mother worked for J.C. Penney Co. at 65 cents an hour. A hospital bill of $64.25 was difficult for the average family — and had to be paid in installments. Very few people had health-care insurance.

So much for the "good old days!"

SHIRLEY DILLARD FELTON, DEL.

DEAR ABBY: I hope that you will find this topic worth mentioning, and publish the following warning to all users of hot tubs and circulating baths:

WARNING! Users of hot tubs and circulating baths should never, repeat never, put their head under water. The powerful suction could pull in your hair and drown you!

This applies to adults as well as children. We have a circulating tub with a hidden switch to deactivate the circulating pump. When our grandchildren visit, the tub pump is off unless we are there to supervise. Perhaps all such tubs (particularly in rentals) should have a prominent warning sign posted on them.

Thank you. Maybe this warning can help to save a life.

MASON LOUGHLIN, SUNRIVER, ORE.

DEAR MASON: If even one tragedy can be averted your letter is worth the space. Thank you for writing.

Yard of the Month

The home and grounds of Ann and William Barnes, 204 Yale Drive, has been selected by the Westside Community Association for the Yard of the Month award. The well-landscaped yard features a lush green lawn, trees, a Sego palm in the center with neatly-trimmed hedges framing the home.

The Most Priceless Present

Mother's Day is once again approaching, bringing with its sentiment an annual dilemma... "What present will I give Mom this year?" The solution is simple, yet profound... inexpensive but priceless. There is no shopping and no complicated preparations. She doesn't have anything similar, and it will never become lost or worn. Shall I tell you more? Whether you are young or young at heart, here is the answer. Give Mom a spontaneous squeeze or surprise her with those favorite wildflowers you gleefully gave to her as a child. Confide in her for the first time that occasion when she was "right after all". Tell her how much she resembled a princess in that special silken dress with the flowing skirt. Give Mom the innocent adoration of childhood...the gift she thought was gone forever. As you worship this Mother's Day remember that childhood innocence is the most priceless present we can give to Mother...and to God.

IN BRIEF

Flea market fun at St. James

SANFORD — The Women's Day Committee at Historic St. James A.M.E. Church, Cypress Avenue and 9th Street, continues its monthlong fundraising activities this weekend with a Flea Market Heritage Festival on Saturday, May 7, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the church grounds.

'A Night in China'

SANFORD — Christ United Methodist Church, Hwy 427 and Tucker Drive, will have a mission program and Chinese dinner on Sunday, May 15, at 5:30 p.m.

The program, "A Night in China," begins at 6:30 p.m. with Pat Siple, who recently spent three weeks in Hong Kong, speaking on her trip to China.

Mother's Day begins Revival

SANFORD — Mother's Day, May 8, begins Revival at Calvary Christian Center, 500-510 W. 4th St., with special guest Evangelist Arc International. Speakers will be Becky and Ronnie Trammell from Cleveland, Tenn.

Times are: May 8, 10 a.m. and 6 p.m.; Monday through Wednesday, 7 p.m.

Prayer for the sick and need and special singing will be provided in each service.

Methodists offer country fun night

SANFORD — First United Methodist Church, 419 Park Ave., is offering a Country Line Dance and Barbecue on Friday, May 6, in Fellowship Hall.

The barbecue, with fresh Zellwood corn on the cob, begins at 6:30 p.m. and dancing, led by Bill Marcontell, at 7:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend a time filled with fun, food and fellowship for $5 per person.

Mother's Day concert set

SANFORD — The National Council of Negro Women, West Volusia section, will present a Mother's Day concert on Sunday, May 8, at 6 p.m. in the Seminole High School Auditorium, 2701 Ridgewood Ave.

For an admission of $10, the crowd will be treated to the musical talents of Vernon "Papa" Jones and the Sanford Workaholic Choir.

'A Time To Remember'

SANFORD — The Pinecrest Baptist Church Choirs, 601 E. Airport Blvd., will present a musical, "A Time To Remember," written and arranged by Joe Parks, at the 11 a.m. Worship Service on Sunday, May 22.

The musical will be directed by Shert McNeely, accompanist Barbara Brorup.

The public is invited to attend.

The Rev. James Kirstein is interim pastor.

Banquet, Revival planned for May

SANFORD — The House of Refuge Ministries, 1001 Celery Ave., is sponsoring a Mother's Day Banquet on Saturday, May 7, at 6 p.m. at the Holiday Inn downtown Sanford.

The speaker is Evangelist Ruby Brown of Kinsalme Church of God in Christ.

For more information, call 321-3790 or 324-4711.

On May 9 through 11, Evangelist Janet Moran, of Cocoa, will conduct a four night Crusade at the House of Refuge sanctuary.

Corleita Harris Vaughn of Detroit, pastor of Holy Ghost Full Gospel Baptist Church will minister on May 12 and 13.

These powerfully anointed women of God travel worldwide ministering deliverance to God's people.

Service time is Sunday at 6:30 p.m. and May 9-13, 7:30 p.m.

The Rev. Elijah Richardson, pastor.

Junkyard sale next weekend

SANFORD — Sanford & Daughters Junkyard Sale at First Christian Church, 1607 S. Sanford Ave., will be held May 6 and 7 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the church.

Sponsored by the CWF, the event will include a bake sale, plants and lunch served from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Ladies Luncheon coming

SANFORD — The Ladies' Ministry of First Baptist Church, will be having its 3rd Annual Ladies Luncheon on May 7 at 11:30 a.m. in the Sanford Civic Center annex. A lovely day is planned for the attendees, including a presentation by Judy Dyrum, area director of Beauticontrol. Make-up, colors and image will be included in the presentation, and two ladies will receive makeovers.

"From the Heart," a trio from Clermont, will be making their third appearance at the function.

'The Negro Mother'

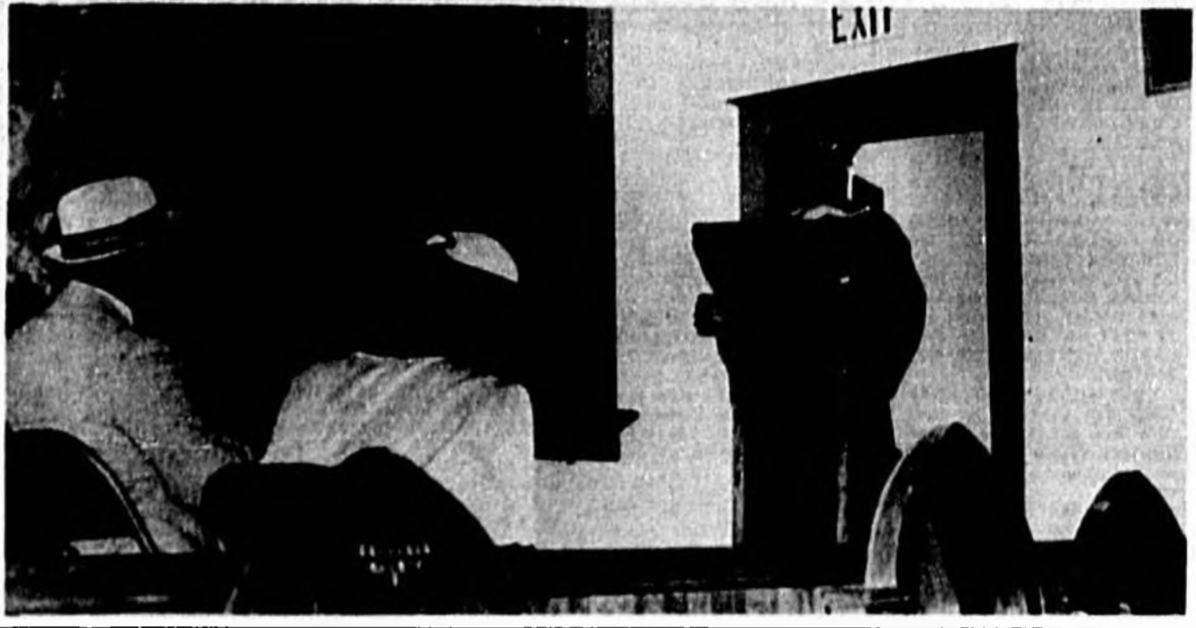

The St. James A.M.E. Church Drama Guild performed a play, directed by Caroline Shine, entitled the "The Negro Mother" based on a poem by Langston Hughes. The presentation depicts the struggle of a young woman from slavery in the early days and how she overcame the obstacles throughout her life with the help of Jesus. The cast, all members of St. James, took their bows in front of a full house in the church sanctuary after a flawless performance.

Robert Guy, who played the son in "The Negro Mother," addressed the elders of the church his mother attends, on stage, after years of struggling through classes and books to finally graduate, with the help of the Lord. The play was all part of a monthlong celebration leading to Women's Day, May 22, at the church. The Women's Day Committee has set a goal of raising $15,000 by that date.

They overcame their wayward days

I like to tell mothers concerned about the misdemeanors of their wayward offspring that it can happen in the best of families.

As a rule, it's no cause for alarm.

My favorite story is about this kid from a nice family who stole just for the thrill of stealing. He stole pears, for example, not because he couldn't resist biting into the luscious fruit — which would be understandable and maybe even forgivable — but just for the kick he got out of stealing.

He would take one bite of a stolen pear and throw it away. Actually, he had a pear tree in his own backyard. His explanation was that he stole simply because he knew it was wrong.

Easy to see where such a bad kid would end up, right?

Where this kid ended up was one of the Christianity's best known saints — St. Augustine.

He tells the boyhood tale I have just related to you in his autobiography, "The Confessions of St. Augustine," a classic of Christian devotion.

Many greats eventually succeeded despite troubled starts.

Napoleon graduated 42nd in a class of 43. Well, you say Napoleon was a military genius — perhaps he wasn't cut out for Greek and rhetoric. OK, but this was a military school!

At the age of 15, Isaac Newton — who was to become one of the greatest scientists ever — showed so little promise that his bewildered parents took him out of school and put him to work on a farm.

George Plagenz

America's great preachers. But a teacher once wrote on his report card: "Henry is a poor writer and miserable speller. He has a thick speech and is so shy he seems actually stupid."

Charles Darwin did so poorly in school that his father once told him that he would grow up "a disgrace to the Darwin family."

Another late starter was Charles Schulz, the creator of the comic strip "Peanuts." Preachers like to use Schulz as an illustration in their sermons.

The son of a barber in St. Paul, Minn., Charles skipped two grades early in elementary school. But that created problems later on.

He was younger than the other students at Central High School and had trouble relating to girls. He was skinny, 8 feet tall and had big ears.

To make matters worse, the scholarly abilities he had exhibited in elementary school seemed to leave him thereafter. He flunked the eighth grade. When he finally got to high school, he failed algebra, Latin,

English and physics.

The boy submitted his cartoons to the high-school annual, but they were never published.

Were we seeing in the young Charles Schulz an early model for that consummate loser Charlie Brown?

In her biography of Schulz, "Good Grief," Rheta Grimley Johnson says of the lovable "Peanuts" character Charlie Brown: "He tries so hard but he never wins. It is something every reader who happens to be human understands."

Schulz managed to get his high-school diploma (he refers to himself today as "a just-barely" graduate). Then he went into the service.

After World War II, Schulz got a job as an instructor at a small art school in St. Paul. He wanted to become a professional cartoonist, but he got mostly rejections for the next five years.

His big break came in 1950 when he was given a contract by United Feature Syndicate (now part of United Media). That year "Peanuts" appeared in eight newspapers. Today the world's most popular comic strip has an international audience of about 100 million in more than 2,000 newspapers.

A member of the fundamentalist Church of God, Schulz does not drink, smoke or swear. He's proud that, in more than 40 years of drawing Snoopy the dog and his friends, there has never been even the suggestion of anything off-color in the comic strip — not even a fire hydrant.

Get back in shape after pregnancy

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I had a C-section 1-1/2 years ago. Despite daily situps and abdominal exercises, my stomach still protrudes incredibly far. Nothing seems to improve my look of a four-month pregnant woman.

permanent. Regardless, they are never pleasant.

You apparently required an operation to open your transverse colon.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "An Informed Approach to Surgery."

DEAR READER: Although a Caesarian section can occasionally weaken the abdominal muscles, pregnancy will often stretch these muscles so greatly that they fail to spring back to their normal tension after delivery, leading to a sagging abdominal wall. I don't believe that the Caesarian section you had is necessarily playing an important role. Nonetheless, you should ask your obstetrician about this. Perhaps your exercise program needs modification - or, in some cases, surgery to remove the stretched tissue may be necessary.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss a transverse colostomy. While I recently had one, I really know very little about the procedure and its outcome, except to say that it's not pleasant.

DEAR READER: An anatomy lesson: The ascending colon begins in the lower right abdomen and travels up under the liver, where it makes a 90-degree turn to the left and becomes the transverse colon, which extends across the mid-upper abdomen to an area under the left rib cage.

At this point, it takes a 90-degree turn to the south (as the descending colon) and eventually becomes the sigmoid colon, which connects to the rectum.

In certain instances, such as the presence of a malignancy or abscess, doctors have to re-route the intestinal contents into a colostomy bag, a plastic container that is worn on the abdomen. Colostomies can be performed on any part of the colon, and may be temporary or

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Who holds the most master-points in the world? Paul Soloway, who lives in a suburb of Seattle. He plays all over North America, winning so many events that he must have lost count. He has more than 30,000 masterpoints, some 4,000 ahead of his nearest rival, the late Barry Crane.

Soloway has won three world championships. He is an easygoing, likable fellow with a strong will to win that he keeps hidden behind a broad smile. He is an excellent technician with great table presence, as he showed on today's deal.

Soloway's two-spade response was encouraging, so North raised with four trumps. West decided to try a risky lead: a low heart. East put in the 10 and Soloway won with the queen. At trick two, Soloway returned a heart and, after West played low smoothly, he called for the king. How did he guess that correctly?

Well, Soloway had played low promptly from the dummy at trick one. And East had inserted the 10 in tempo. Soloway felt sure that if East held the A-10 of hearts, he would have paused, wondering whether to win with the ace.

Still not out of the woods, Soloway ruffed dummy's spade ace and led a low club. East won with the king and continued with two more rounds of the suit. Soloway ruffed, played a trump to dummy's king, ruffed dummy's last heart in hand and led a diamond to the 10, endplaying East.

True, West missed chances to defeat the contract at tricks one and two, but Soloway took advantage: an attribute of a winner.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 7, 1994

Several important changes could be in the offing for you in the year ahead. They might occur simultaneously and cause you some confusion, but this condition will be quickly abated. Positive results are indicated.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There is no reason to feel guilty or inadequate today if you can't be as generous to everyone as you'd like to be. Give what you can, but limit it to the deserving. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker Instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Self-interests can be substantially advanced today, not by walking over others, but by walking with them. Give it a try and see for yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The only thing that could stop you today could be an absence of self-assurance. What you have to offer is as good as others, but you must believe this to be so.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Hopes and expectations can be fulfilled today, but not necessarily the way you presently anticipate. The adjustments required shouldn't be hard to make.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you might get a second chance to try for something you've been wanting but unable to achieve. If you do, don't fool around, give it the maximum effort required.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your chart indicates the formation of a wonderful new alliance in this cycle. It could turn out to be one of the finest associations you've ever made.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Those get-rich-quick schemes you concoct today might be tantalizing, but will they really work? Everyone, including yourself, could be in for a pleasant surprise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's been said that if you're lucky where chance is concerned, you may not be lucky in love. You might be able to dispute these conclusions today by being fortunate in both.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The quickest way to accomplish your assignments today is to keep your mind focused on what you're doing and forego taking shortcuts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An important relationship can be investigated today by being one who apologizes for a recent infraction, even if you weren't the person who was guilty of committing it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try to conduct any important business you must take care of today with a member of the opposite gender. He/she is likely to be more tolerant and helpful than someone of your own sex.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In order to impress members of the opposite gender today your comments and behavior might be a bit questionable. To make a good lasting impression, just be yourself. Copyright 1994 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
