paign contribution proceedure has been organized on a statewide level in Florida to elect pro-ERA candidates to office in this election year. Nancy Traver, President of the Florida Women's Political Caucus, spearheaded the political action coalition group which includes members from a diverse and multipartisan number of organizations in cluding: Business and Professional Women, League of Women Voters, National Organization for Women, Women's Political Caucus, Common Cause, Methodist Women, Coyote, Democratic Campaign Committee, Republican Campaign Committee, Communication Workers of America, United Faculty of Florida, Black Women's Political Caucus, Florida State ERA Coalition. Coalition for WATER, and the Feminist Party. These organizations who because of Florida election law proceedures can not on their own endorse and give campaign contributions to candidates, have joined together in the Florida Women's Political Caucus Campaign Support Committee, nicknamed "Mary Mary Ann is the political arm through which each organization channels its support - endorsement, workers and campaign contributions - to pro-ERA. At the first meeting of the Endorsement Committee of the Florida Women's Political Caucus Campaign Support Committee, an endorsement questionnaire form was adopted which local groups will use to poll prospective candidates in their local areas. Those endorsed by local groups will be eligible for enntributions collected by the statewide and national groups representing tens of thousands

Nobody has claimed responsibility for the bombing Wednesday that killed Ewart-Biggs and a woman secretary and wounded British official Brian Cubbon and an Irish driver. But "we have no doubt it was the IRA," one government official said. "We've made no substantial progress so far," said a police spokesman as 4,000 policemen and troops pressed a nationwide dragnet.

The search turned up 312 tons of IRA explosives and ammunition in a forest outside Kilkenny, south of Dublin. It was one of the biggest IRA dumps found in the Irish republic, but police sources said there was no indication the 200 pounds of ammunition that blew up the ambassador's car came from there.

Bicentennial Lingers On

The Bicentennial party is over and what a party it was, unabashedly corny, zany and comforting as well as solemn and productive.

People did not fall off the cliffs in New York while watching the tall ships, as was predicted. Ice cream instead of paddy wagons served the gathered in Washington, D.C. Visiting dignitaries rubbed elbows with common Americans without an in-

For one glorious Fourth of July Americans were able to turn from their tribulations to get to know each other better. Almost without exception they were confident, good-natured, good-spirited, friendly, patient and mutually helpful to each

However, as President Ford said during one of his speeches at one hallowed place in America, the "great American adventure continues." The Fourth of July is over, but the Bicentennial is not. If Americans need more historical pegs there is no lack of them. July 4, 1776, was the commitment to independence. The Revolution itself was not over until Lord Cornwallis surrendered at Yorktown in 1781. The Constitutional Convention began in 1787

and the Constitution itself did not become effective until March 4 two years later. And the first Congress did not meet until Sept. 25, 1789. Even these historic events were but a beginning. Over the next 200 years Americans carved out a nation as they defended the principles established in Philadelphia, New York, Boston, and Valley Forge. The world is much more sophisticated today than it was two centuries ago, but strangely enough so far as security and principles are concerned the problems are comparative. American military men still stand on the ramparts around the clock to protect our freedom from external attack. We no longer are self suf- as minor points - perhaps more than any JOHN CUNNIFF ficient in energy and many of the other raw California executive within my memory. materials that we need to prosper. We don't know enough about the things in space that can threaten our existence. The nuclear age is upon us, with all of its incalculable benefits as well as some of its hazards. We are a breadbasket for an increasingly hungry world that is casting envious eyes at our industry and productivity.

And the Constitution that will govern the United States in 2076 will be far different from the one that protects us today. The principles of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution will continue to evolve, not without some threat to the rights that Americans enjoy.

There is no need for alarm. Indeed what the nation needs in the next century are the qualities that Americans exhibited at our big party mature confidence, mutual respect and politeness. That would be a real Tricentennial birthday

Foolish Order

Little did John E. Palomina, of the Office of Civil Rights in San Francisco, realize what he would set in motion when he arbitrarily banned father-son and mother-daughter activities in the Scottsdale, Ariz., schools.

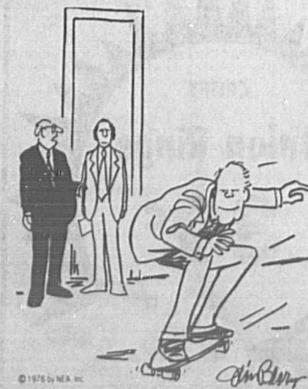

A "really quite irritated" President Ford suspended the Palomina directive, correctly assessing it as a mindless attack on American institutions and of absolutely no value in correcting social inequities.

As silly as the Palomina directive was, it probably is one of hundreds or even thousands extant. Obviously President Ford, Health, Education and Welfare Director David Mathews, Office of Management and Budget Director James T. Lynn and James Cannon, head of the White House Domestic Council, cannot give personal attention to all of them as they did in the Scottsdale

The real problem is that too much discretionary authority JACK ANDERSON has been granted to too many low ranking administrators of social programs in which consensus is hard to find - and where arbitrary decisions can cause great damage.

Until Congress gets a little more specific in drafting laws, the Scottsdales will continue to pop up, continuing to make American people in general as well as Mr. Ford quite irritated.

BERRY'S WORLD

"No question about it! There goes a president White House!"

congressman, Richard Kelly, who joined with enough other sensible-minded individuals to kill the proposal in committee by a narrow 20-18 vote. This little gem was tied into a bill that would extend the life of the food stamp program. Unfortunately, we may not have heard the last of a bill that had the U.S. Department of Agriculture spending up to $15 million to duplicate the 'outreach' efforts already being undertaken by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare

In announcing his vote to kill the proviso, Kelly said, "We saved the taxpayers at least $15 million. I was extremely pleased to stand with those who have the good sense to recognize the essential nonsense of spending $15 million to encourage people to go on

"This is especially true," he said, "when you consider another government agency (HEW) is doing the same kind of advertising at the expense of the same taxpayers who foot the bill for food

Kelly explained that he certainly doesn't object to helping persons who are truly in need, but he added that there should be opposition to "welfare moochers and high bureaucratic administration

And we agree with him. I think everyone's chief gripe with the food stamp program is that we see it being abused and misused by those who are either just too lazy to work of who just want a free ride at someone else's

It's time we did something to put a stop to such nonsense and we commend Congressman Richard Kelly for helping to put the brakes on another senseless expenditure that you and I would have to

Blacks Behind Carter

WASHINGTON- Abraham Lincoln gave black people freedom, Lyndon Johnson gave them opportunity, and now, Jimmy Carter may be on the verge of offering them the ultimate American experience: power.

At this late date in history, with Negroes all but free of their miserable shackles, the election of any Democratic president would likely portend the final elevation of the black leader. But a Carter administration may offer particular assurances. He has said repeatedly he would name blacks to positions they have not before held in government, and taken at his word which he forever reminds us is inviolate, his options are exciting - the cabinet, maybe even the vice presidency in 1980 or '84.

Surely Carter has reasoned to reward the black community with the influence it has been denied in America for more than 400 years. Without its support he might have risen no higher in life than a goober digger in Georgia. Blacks helped him become a governor there in 1970. They gave him credence as a "man for all the people" during the critical early periods of the past presidential primaries, and they shamed the liberal members of his party into stepping aside for his recent nomination. Now again, if the November race is close, black energy may be the element that propels Carter
