I-4 Signs To Heathrow In Dispute DOT Says Heathrow A Community; The Crossings Is Not

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

A state Department of Transportation sign was placed on Interstate 4 announcing the private development of Heathrow because the DOT believed it has a post office and is one of the primary destinations of traffic using that exit.

Heathrow does not have its own post office, however, and if it is a primary destination for the I-4 interchange, then it should kick in more cash to improve the interchange, according to the mayor of nearby Lake Mary, a city also off the interchange.

In another development, private signs saying "Heathrow, Florida, U.S.A." seen last week on Lake Mary Boulevard near the multi-million dollar development, have been removed because they were too close to the right-of-way. A spokesman for Heathrow said they will be put back up after the posts are moved onto Heathrow property. Heathrow, owned by Jeno Paulucci, is not incorporated and there are no plans to do so, a Heathrow development spokesman said.

Large DOT signs on the interstate announcing Heathrow were put up July 25, said Micheal Beha, spokesman for the DOT. They were requested by the development in February.

He said the DOT decided to put up the signs because the subdivision has its own zip code, its own post office, and is a primary destination of people using that exit on I-4.

"We looked at it and gauged it on our requirements and a decision was made to put a sign there," Beha said.

He said the post office had given it a zip code, thus making it more than just a subdivision.

"We also viewed it as the primary destination of that interchange, that is, one of the primary places you are going, Lake Mary and Heathrow. If it (Heathrow) had been in Lake Mary, the sign would have been inappropriate.

"We have gone through this fairly well ourselves, and had our give-and-take about it, and that was our decision. Certainly that may be appealed and may be changed," Beha said.

Naomi Wallace, postmaster at the Lake Mary Post Office, told the Evening Herald that Heathrow does not have a post office nor its own zip code. It uses Lake Mary's zip code. She said the Lake Mary Post Office has a "contract unit" at

'Spy' Swap Proposed By U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is proposing a deal with the Soviets to allow an accused Russian spy to go free while awaiting trial in return for the release from a Soviet jail of U.S. correspondent Nicholas Daniloff, officials said Wednesday.

Under the arrangement, accused spy Gennadi Zakharov, now in prison without bail in New York on a charge of espionage, would be freed and while awaiting trial would be put in the custody of Soviet Ambassador Yuli Dubynin.

An administration official said that the proposal has been put together and he was "reasonably certain" that the State Department had offered the deal to the Soviets.

Dubynin would guarantee that Zakharov would not try to leave the country and would appear for his trial. In return, under the proposal, Daniloff, a correspondent for the news magazine U.S. News & World Report who was arrested last Saturday, would be released from a Soviet prison and would be permitted to leave the Soviet Union with his family.

A State Department spokesman said the Soviet ambassador asked that Zakharov be released to his custody soon after Zakharov's arrest, but the magistrate in the U.S. District Court in New York refused permission.

Spokesman Charles Redman said the United States is pursuing every avenue to win Daniloff's release, but he refused to discuss the details of the U.S. efforts.

The State Department appeared to rule out a straight Daniloff-for-Zakharov swap on Tuesday, saying that the cases are "totally different" and Daniloff had been jailed on "trumped-up" charges.

Officials said there is a precedent for the release of Zakharov, who is an employee of the United Nations Secretariat and does not have diplomatic immunity, to the custody of the Soviet ambassador.

In a similar situation in 1978, two Soviet U.N. employees were released from jail into the custody of Anatoly Dobrynin, tried and convicted of espionage and later released from prison as part of a larger exchange between the United States and the Soviet Union.

One official said Daniloff and his family became pawns in a double struggle.

Incumbent City Commissioner Milton Smith and Martha Yancey, his challenger in the District Three race, were at Sanford City Hall first thing Wednesday morning to file candidacy qualifying forms with City Clerk Henry Tamm for the Dec. 2 City Commission election. A run-off race for a state House of Representatives seat will appear on some of Seminole County's Sept. 30 run-off ballots as the result of Tuesday's primary.

In addition, two non-partisan school board races and a judicial race will be determined in Nov. 4 general election run-off.

Republican House District 27 candidates Tully Patrowicz, Mt. Dora, Stan Bainter, Mt. Dora, will square off in the Sept. 30 run-off to determine who will face Democrat Jeff Book, Mt. Dora, in the Nov. general election.

Book had no Democratic opposition Tuesday.

Final official tabulations from the five county area, including portions of Lake, Marion, Putnam, Volusia, and Seminole counties, which make up the 27th district, show that Patrowicz received the most votes with 2,073, followed by Bainter with 1,675. Because neither candidate captured a

Contract For Extracurricular Activities

Lake Mary School Drug Program OK'd

By Diane Petryk
Herald News Editor

Lake Mary High School students will be required to sign contracts pledging to abstain from alcohol and drugs as a condition of participation in extracurricular activities.

The Seminole County School Board decided Wednesday that Lake Mary High School administrators may make the contract mandatory without board approval because it is similar to other prerequisites for participation in extracurricular activities.

Under school district and state law, individual schools may draw up such rules independently.

The contract also stipulates students will submit to requested drug or alcohol tests in accordance with a written procedure. The board voted unanimously to approve the procedure as part of a 2-year pilot program at the school.

A second vote and another public hearing will be required, however, before the approval becomes official.

School board spokesman Karen Coleman said that vote could come as early as Oct. 8. The public will be given an opportunity for input at that time.

In the meantime, because Superintendent Bob Hughes asked for an emergency measure, the school will be permitted to move ahead with implementation of the program it calls "Lake Mary Says 'No!'"

School board member Jean Bryant said since extracurricular activities are not open to everyone, but are subject to an assortment of rules involving academic standing, ability and attendance, "I can see nothing wrong with adding one more."

Objecting to the contract, however, was Central Florida American Civil Liberties Union President Ron Ross, who said enforcement of the contract strips away students' rights under the Constitution.

"If it's wrong to discriminate against someone because they are black or female, then it's also wrong to prevent someone from participating in activities because he's an American and doesn't want to surrender the rights of an American," Ross told the board and an audience of school officials and several parents of Lake Mary High School students.

Ross said he understands why school officials and parents think they need such a rule, but said it will only serve to make students cynical.

"You want them to act like adults but give up the rights of an adult," he said. "Eventually these students will have to read the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. You won't be able to hide it from them."

He said the mandatory contract violates guaranteed rights of due process and testing violates unreasonable search and seizure rules.

Lake Mary High School Principal Don Reynolds said Ross made "a beautiful speech," but school administrators had no intention of violating students' rights.

"The main thing is to identify kids (with drug problems) and get them help."

School board member Joe Williams said he was concerned "we do not overlook students' rights. They're people, too."

But School Board Attorney Ned Julian, Jr. expressed few reservations about the proposed procedure for drug testing. The contract, he said, "is superfluous."

"I would like to see the contract disassociated from the implementation procedure," he said. "The courts have said — at least through today — you don't have a Constitutional right to participate in interscholastic athletics."

"The primary right we're struggling with is the 4th Amendment, the right to be free from unreasonable search and seizure." But he said, "with a few minor changes" he had no problem with the board adopting the implementation procedures which spell out steps to be taken for referral if a student is suspected of taking drugs, drug testing and counseling and possibly exclusion from extracurricular activities.

The 10-point procedure list includes reference to "the Lake Mary High School Participation in Extracurricular Activities Contract."

Earlier Julian stated principals in Seminole County are legally free to formulate rules dealing with student relations at their schools, subject only to the limitations of state law, rules of the State Board of Education, the school board and controlling court rulings.

The Constitutional question however, might face court

Campaign Survivors Prime For Run-Off Elections

majority of the ballots cast, the top two finishers meet in the run-off.

According to Seminole County elections officials, 11 Seminole precincts are included in the 27th house district.

Finishing third in the six way primary race was Sanford's Joe Creamons with 1,191, Greg Gay, Longwood, with 1,137, Dick Van Der Weide, Longwood, with 1,002, and Jim Williamson, Longwood, with 435.

Patrowicz, Bainter, and Book are seeking the seat of Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, who is the candidate for Lt. Governor on the ticket with gubernatorial candidate Bob Martinez.

In the final totals of the 18th Judicial Circuit Group 4, which includes Seminole and Brevard counties, Ned Julian, Jr., 44, Sanford, was the highest primary vote getter with 20,068 compared to the votes captured by O.H. "Bill" Eaton, 43, Longwood, who had 17,690.

Neither candidate won more than 50 percent of the ballots cast, and will meet in the November general election run-off to determine who will replace veteran judge Dominick J. Salfi, who will resign effective Nov. 16.

Finishing third in the four candidate judges race was Leonard V. Wood, Altamonte Springs with 14,856 votes, and Jim Lavigne, Casselberry, with 13,564.

Defends Meeting Cancellation

Code Board Chief Scraps With Mercer

By Karen Talley

A Sanford commissioner proposed a mass resignation of the city's code enforcement board Tuesday after learning a lack of quorum had prompted the board to cancel its session that night.

The board's chairman took issue with the proposal today, and also expressed consternation at commissioners' viewing the cancellation as self-defeating to the city's efforts to enforce its codes.

Commissioners on Tuesday directed that their displeasure with the meeting's cancellation be expressed to the code enforcement board's seven members via a letter from City Manager Frank Faison.

"If they're not going to meet, we should replace them with people that will," said Commissioner John Mercer. "I know people willing to serve."

Commissioners saw the code enforcement board's posted cancellation when they arrived at city hall Tuesday night for a special session to conclude deliberations tabled last week because two of five commissioners had not been present for a regularly scheduled meeting.

Mayor Bettye Smith had been in New York to attend a closing for the city's wastewater management bond and Commissioner Milton Smith was on vacation.

"I think the city loses credibility when this happens," Mercer said of the code enforcement board cancellation.

"I'd certainly hoped they'd received our message that we're after stringent enforcement," Mayor Smith said.

Commissioner Dave Farr said he was "disappointed" the board's session was cancelled.

"I know of people who didn't go on vacation because they were scheduled for (code enforcement) hearings tonight," Farr said.

When told of commissioners' sentiments today, board chairman Ron Dycus said he and his colleagues "have a pretty good record as far as

NATION IN BRIEF

Jailed Judge Challenges Senate Impeachment Process

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The lawyer for imprisoned federal judge Harry Claiborne says he will attack today the constitutionality of having a 12-member Senate panel — instead of the full Senate — hear evidence at his client's impeachment trial.

Oscar Goodman, Claiborne's lawyer, said he will file pretrial motions today in the Senate to challenge having the committee hear testimony, to demand dismissal of the impeachment articles, and to subpoena witnesses.

Claiborne's motions also will seek to bring before the full Senate his claims that a Justice Department vendetta is behind his imprisonment, and to have the "proof beyond a reasonable doubt" standard applied at his trial, Goodman said Wednesday.

In a related action, the Justice Department has filed motions opposing Claiborne's request to be released from prison on grounds he has served enough time.

Claiborne, 60, who is the first sitting federal judge to be imprisoned and the first to be impeached for crimes committed while in office, has alleged that members of the Organized Crime Strike Force and the FBI conspired to indict and remove him from office because he criticized federal attorneys from the bench.

Curran Gains, Loses Support

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Roman Catholic groups, from conservative scholars to women who want access to the priesthood, are taking strong stands in the dispute involving the Rev. Charles Curran, whose views on sexual ethics prompted the Vatican to seek his removal from his university post.

A group of conservative Catholic academics approves the Vatican's stripping Curran of his position as an official teacher of Catholic theology because he dissented from church teaching on such issues as abortion, divorce and homosexuality.

"It is clear that there is a groundswell of support in the Catholic academic community for the recent action by the Vatican," said James Hitchcock, professor of history at St. Louis University.

Hitchcock, who recently served as president of the Fellowship of Catholic Scholars, said the organization has "the signatures of 1,400 faculty members from many Catholic institutions who believe that this action by Rome was necessary to maintain the integrity of the Church doctrine."

Second Fire Hits Library

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The second fire in four months caused more millions of dollars in damage to the historic main library, burning music works collected for more than a century, and officials suspect one arson "bug" set both blazes.

The new blaze gutted the Central Library's music department Wednesday night, burning valuable books and rare sheet music in the area and causing smoke damage in the adjoining art department.

Although the fire was extinguished in less than an hour, the city librarian said the damage "is likely to go into the millions" of dollars.

Fire officials have not pinpointed the exact cause of the fire, but Fire Chief Donald Manning said it was "very, very suspicious."

He said he thinks "one person" started both fires.

Nixon Tapes Lack Listeners

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Nixon's tapes — famous and trivial — are stored a fair distance from town these days, but few visitors to the nation's capital seem willing to make the trip to hear them.

A new batch of tapes was released this week, including an interview made three months before Nixon resigned the presidency in disgrace, in which he proclaimed his innocence in the Watergate scandal and said he wouldn't have lasted "one minute" in office if they were true.

Nonetheless, the tapes attract few visitors.

Those who do come generally ask for the 31 secret tapes Nixon made in the White House which were used in the trials of his top aides charged in the Watergate scandal. Those have been available for years.

Incumbent captured more than 50 percent of the vote, and thus the two highest vote getters in each district run-off in November.

In the district one race, incumbent two-term board member Bill Kroll, Longwood faces opposition from Larry Betsinger, 43, Longwood. Kroll narrowly edged Betsinger in Tuesday's primary, eeking out victory by nine-tenths of a percentage point.

Kroll collected 8,142 votes or 37.2 percent of the ballots cast.

while Betsinger got 7,955 votes of 36.3 percent of the ballots. Sanford's Rudy Sloan was eliminated due to his third place finish.

In the district five race, challenger Ann Neiswender, 42, Paola, won by a large margin over incumbent three term board member Jean Bryant, 60, Sanford, but didn't reach the majority of more than 50 percent of the vote, creating a two way November runoff.

Mrs. Neiswender took 10,834 votes, 46.9 percent of the ballots cast, to Mrs. Bryant's 8,164 votes, 35.4 percent. Sanford's Whitely Eckstein was eliminated from the district race with a third place finish.

White House Gives Robertson Status; Jews Complain

By David E. Anderson
UPI Religion Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Jewish Congress said Wednesday a White House panel gave Pat Robertson's Christian Broadcasting Network unconstitutional presidential "imprimatur" by proposing a role for the network in the administration's new anti-drug effort.

An Aug. 18 memorandum of the White House's Private Sector Task force, which includes representatives of the Justice and Education departments, was quoted in reports last week as saying that federal officials should start an "education-information program through the churches with particular emphasis on the Christian Broadcast Network and its constituency."

Phil Baum, associate executive director of the congress, said the panel's report, by singling out Robertson's religious organization, would hurt the plan to involve all churches equally in the anti-drug program and violates the constitutional prohibition against governmental establishment of religion.

"Endowing a particular religious institution with special status undermines the effort to involve all churches equally in the vital fight against drugs," Baum said.

"More profoundly, it contravenes the constitutional prohibition against governmental establishment of religion, one of whose essential requirements is that the federal government may not confer special standing upon any one church or denomination or its constituency," Baum said.

It was not clear why CBN was selected for "particular emphasis" and network officials would not comment.

"By assigning special responsibilities to the Christian Broadcasting Network, an integral part of the Rev. Robertson's religious mission, the Task Force has signaled to the nation that as far as the White House is concerned, Rev. Robertson and his church enjoy a unique place among American religions," Baum said.

"The task force has thus placed the imprimatur of the presidency on a particular group of congregants and indicated that the administration has special confidence in its work."

Last month, Robertson's CBN drew more fire from civil liberty groups for receiving a $45,000 grant from the Justice Department to help sponsor a conference on the status and needs of the black family.

Governor Of Guam, Assistants, Indicted On Bribery, Extortion, Fraud Charges

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — The governor of Guam, his assistant chief of staff and four other people were indicted Wednesday on charges that include extortion, bribery, wire fraud and witness-tampering in a kickback scandal.

Democratic Gov. Ricardo J. Bordallo faces 12 counts in the 36-page indictment handed down just three days before he faces a tough Democratic primary fight against Speaker T.C. Gutierrez for a third five-year term.

Prosecutors contend Bordallo solicited up to $200,000 in kickbacks to fund his campaign in exchange for approving contracts. Investigators believe the total was more than $200,000.

Even before his indictment, Bordallo, 58, said he was the victim of a "political lynching party" supported by Republicans and officials in Washington.

Bordallo was indicted on four counts of bribery, two of extortion and one each of conspiracy to commit bribery, conspiracy to commit extortion, attempted extortion, fraud by wire, conspiracy to obstruct justice in trying to coerce witnesses into lying, and witness tampering in trying to influence testimony.

Justice Department spokesman John Russell, in Washington, said Bordallo's allegation of a "lynching party" is "not worth commenting on."

Bordallo is not the first governor of a U.S.

state or possession to run afoul of the law. Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards, former Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel and West Virginia Gov. Arch Moore are among 11 sitting or former chief executives indicted for activities while in office.

Rose Ramsey, Bordallo's assistant chief of staff in the U.S. possession, was charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice, bribery and two counts of extortion. She joined Bordallo's staff after her husband, state Sen. Eugene Ramsey, a Bordallo protege, died two years ago.

Also indicted were John Borias, an officer of the communications firm IT&E Inc., for bribery and extortion; Chong Wook "Johnny" Lee, president of a salvage company known as TC&C Inc.; Vinay Sood, who operates an engineering firm handling road contracts; and Johnny Carpio, a prominent architect who has been awarded several government building and road construction contracts, some without the normal bidding process, in the past three years.

U.S. Attorney K. William O'Connor asked District Judge Cristobal Duenas today to order protection for Carpio and his wife after Carpio received a note Sunday that read: "We'll take your wife away if you don't stop."

The governor had appeared before the grand jury today following a written invitation from O'Connor. Bordallo told a news conference last week that he would appear and answer questions.

But when he appeared, he read a prepared statement. He then bowed to the jurors, said: "Have a good day," and left the grand jury room before O'Connor or the jury members could ask questions.

At a noon news conference before the indictments were returned, Bordallo read the same statement.

"This political persecution through federal prosecution, is led by the new U.S. attorney himself, Mr. O'Connor. I believe with all my heart and soul that this entire investigation reeks of colonialism and even racism."

O'Connor has been U.S. attorney for three months. The 23-member grand jury included 18 local-born residents, four naturalized Americans of Filipino ancestry and one "statesider" from the continental United States.

Previously, the governor has charged that the national Republican Party and unnamed government officials in Washington instigated the investigation. Local Republicans denied the accusations.

Bordallo is scheduled to make his first court appearance Sept. 12. Bordallo served as governor between 1974-1978 and was re-elected in 1982. The general election is Nov. 4.

Lake Mary, Oviedo Hold Elections Without Voting

By Paul C. Schaefer
Herald Staff Writer

City officials were elected and re-elected in Lake Mary and Oviedo without opposition.

In Lake Mary, the mayor and a commissioner were re-elected to two year terms, and a new commission member was elected, without a vote being cast.

In Oviedo, three councilmen were elected without opposition, but their names appeared on the city ballot, accompanying a city charter change question, which would provide for a city-manager-type government.

Lake Mary's city commission also cancelled the commission and mayoral elections to save about $1,000. None of the three candidates had opposition when qualifying ended earlier this summer. Lake Mary residents did vote in other state and county races Tuesday.

Lake Mary Mayor Dick Fess, 40, a businessman and former Freedom Bank executive, will begin his second term as mayor. Fess is a former city commissioner, elected to the panel in 1980. He ran for mayor in 1982, but lost, and was out of elected office for two years. He ran again for mayor in 1984 and won.

Commissioner Paul Tremel, 37, an instructor at Seminole Community College, will begin his second term as commissioner, after winning initial election in 1984.

The newest Lake Mary city commissioner will be John Percy, 38. Percy is a former Seminole County Director of Public Services, and a one-year member of the city's planning and zoning board. Percy is a senior planner for landscape architectural firm of Glatting, Lopez, Kercher & Anglin, Orlando.

Percy replaces retiring two-term commissioner Russ Megonegal, 64. Megonegal is moving from the city to Flagler County's Palm Coast.

Fess, Tremel, and Percy will join commissioners Ken King, Charlie Webster, and Buzz Petoas when the new commission is seated Oct. 6.

In Oviedo, two city councilmen were re-elected to their third two year terms, and a third was newly elected. None of the three was opposed. Jane S. Dees, a substitute school teacher and homemaker, and businessman Gary H. Gotwalt were re-elected. The new member of the council is Westinghouse employee Thomas B. O'Hanlon, who replaces one-year councilman John Carlson.

The three will join councilmen E.P. Bruce and Judith H. Stout, and Mayor Robert Whittier, when the new term of office begins Oct. 6.

Prince Charles Helps Honor Harvard's 350th Birthday

Prince Charles, the second son of Queen Elizabeth II, arrived in Boston Wednesday to help honor Harvard's 350th birthday.

The prince, who arrived aboard a Royal Air Force jet Tuesday and today security at Logan International Airport, planned a series of high-tech, medical and economic seminars Wednesday before leaving Harvard officials for a dinner in his honor.

Harvard's four-day birthday celebration, six years in the making, includes a keynote speech by the prince, a fireworks show at the 60,000-seat Harvard Stadium and more than 100 symposia.

Charles, a graduate of Harvard's Cambridge University, where many of Harvard's students were educated, will deliver his address Thursday at Harvard Yard. Harvard, established in 1636, is the nation's oldest educational institution.

Scotland Yard, the U.S. Secret Service and seven other agencies blanketed the area for the arrival of the prince, who emerged from his plane smiling and waving to about 100 well-wishers, cordoned off in a heavily guarded section of the airport.

Harvard police said officers are especially concerned about possible terrorism by the 1982 Republican Army.

"Obviously Boston is a hotbed (for the IRA) and Harvard police chief Paul Johnson, "That is something we have to be aware of. We are doing special things for him. He'll have adequate security, believe me."

Charles was met by newly appointed British Ambassador Anthony Acland, Consul General David Burns, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis and Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn.

The prince was greeted by a life-and-drum corps made up of volunteer National Guardsmen and civilians in authentic 18th century uniforms who played "God Save the Queen" and "The Star Spangled Banner."

Charles was then whisked away in a silver Rolls-Royce to the fashionable Ritz Carlton hotel in downtown Boston, where an entire floor was reserved for the royal entourage.

Wednesday, Charles was driven 40 miles north to Lowell and met by Dr. An Wang who provided a tour of the Wang computer labs.

Bridge Closed To Trucks

A hole in the deck of a bridge on State Road 434 which carries traffic over the Little Econ River has forced Department of Transportation officials to close the bridge to all truck traffic, effective at 2 p.m. Wednesday, according to a DOT official.

The same bridge, which is expected to be replaced in 1991, was closed for several days to all traffic earlier this year, when support structures on the bridge had to be repaired.

The bridge, which DOT Maintenance Engineer Dick Thompson said is in the Iron Bridge/University of Central Florida area 3.5 miles south of Oviedo, will remain open to automobile traffic only, while temporary repairs are made. He said a steel plate now covers the hole.

Eventually, the bridge will have to be closed to all traffic, while further repairs are made, he said.

Thompson said state DOT engineers from Tallahassee are expected to inspect the bridge Wednesday or Thursday to determine the cause for the latest deterioration of the span, "and what course of action we can take to repair the bridge to reopen it to all traffic as soon as possible," Thompson said.

Thompson is the maintenance engineer for the Cocoa DOT maintenance office, which oversees the state roads and bridges in Seminole and Brevard counties.

He said the most recent problems with the bridge were detected Saturday.

He said because cars are much lighter in weight than trucks, cars would be permitted to continue the bridge until the cost and type of repairs the bridge needs are determined.

He suggested truck traffic use either State Road 436 or State Road 419 to travel north from Highway 50 in Orlando.

Navy Man Charged With Prowling

A resident of Navel Drive in Fern Park called a Seminole County sheriff's deputy to his home at about 11:45 p.m. Tuesday to report that a prowler who had allegedly shined a flashlight into the window of a room occupied by his daughter was in a car near his home.

The deputy reported finding the man, who was partially disrobed, passed out in a car on Navel Drive.

There was men's clothing and a woman's undergarment strewn in the car. The suspect reportedly said he had car trouble and had stopped to make repairs.

The man who reported the incident said he and his family do not know the suspect and he did not have permission to be at their home. The suspect had also allegedly been seen at that home Aug. 23.

Workplace Smoking Ban Helps Employees Kick Habit

Saving Boss About $4,700 A Year Each

By Rob Stein
UPI Science Writer
BOSTON (UPI) — Banning smoking in the workplace helps employees kick the habit without prompting them to quit their jobs, researchers said Wednesday.

"Workplace smoking bans do encourage people to quit or smoke less and if they ever become the norm it will have a profound impact on this country's cigarette consumption," said Dr. Michael J. Martin, a clinical epidemiologist at the University of California in San Francisco.

Martin said many companies are considering smoking bans, primarily to save money. Studies have shown an employee who smokes can cost an extra $4,700 a year, primarily from higher health care costs and absenteeism.

Martin said non-smokers also benefit because they are not exposed to their co-workers' smoke.

"The risks are clearly there and it is time to start protecting the rights of non-smokers," he said.

Martin called for other businesses to adopt similar bans, and said hospitals should take the lead.

"Smoking is the greatest cause of premature death and disability in the United States, and it would be ironic if health care institutions let the general business community take the lead," he said.

In a letter to The New England Journal of Medicine, Martin reviewed the experience of Pacific Northwest Bell, which banned smoking for all 15,000 employees in all company facilities in July 1985.

"Although the company initially received some complaints, not a single employee has left because of it," Martin said.

When the ban was announced, the company also unveiled a program for reimbursing employees for participating in programs to help them quit smoking. In the first six months 1,044 employees — 25 percent of all company smokers — had signed up.

"The actual number of smokers who tried to quit is probably much larger because many smokers prefer to quit on their own rather than by going to cessation programs," said Martin.

By comparison, in the 26 months before the smoking ban, employees had the opportunity to participate in smoking-cessation programs during working hours that were free. Only 331 employees signed up.

In addition, even employees who continued to smoke consumed fewer cigarettes. A company survey found that those who reduced their smoking cut back from an average of 29 cigarettes a day to 21, said Martin.

"There's a clear association between the health consequences of smoking and the amount they smoke. Cutting back by that much would have a clear benefit," said Martin.

Martin attributed the success of the ban to the way it was implemented.

"Much of the ban's success is because it was applied uniformly to all employees. Employees sometimes have objected to smoking bans that allow those with private offices to smoke while those in large open work areas cannot. This smoking policy applied equally to everyone," said Martin.

Births To Unwed Parents

More than one-fifth of all births in the U.S. are to unmarried parents, a record high rate as of 1984. And in Florida, the rate is over 25 percent, with more than one-fourth of all births to unwed parents. The rate exceeds 55 percent in Washington D.C.

Sturm Raised $77,000, Spent $47,000 For Campaign

County commission chairman Bob Sturm, 60, R-Lake Mary, raised more than $77,000 for his successful primary race against former county employee Robert Desmond, Jr., 28, Sanford.

Sturm, seeking his third term on the commission, spent almost $47,000 during the campaign, mostly for work done by the public relations marketing firm of Strauss-Morrison and Associates, Inc., Casselberry, and for advertising and postage.

Sturm's final campaign contribution statement before Tuesday's primary also included a $1,000 "in-kind" contribution of billboard space from Peterson Outdoor Advertising. He also purchased $1,800 in advertising from the company.

Desmond, meanwhile, was able to raise a total of $13,679 in his effort to defeat Sturm. Of that money, Desmond spent $13,513 for signs, postage, and advertising.

Sturm will face Democrat Bob

French, 52, Casselberry, in the November general election.

French, who was unopposed in the Democratic primary raised $2,519 during the pre-primary period, and spent all but $100 on advertising and signs.

Incumbent district 4 commissioner Sandra Glenn, R-Altamonte Springs will file a final financial report in October. She faced no opposition in either the primary or general election and did little fundraising, since she had no opponent.

Lawsuit Against Car Rebuilding Firm Moved To Seminole

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

A company, formerly of Sanford, that has nine complaints lodged against it at the State Attorney's Office for not delivering rebuilt cars to customers who pre-paid all or part of the sale prices, has been named in a civil suit transferred from Orange Circuit Court to Seminole Circuit Court.

A suit involving Pony Cars and Parts Inc., formerly of 1801 W. 1st St., was transferred last week from Orange County by an Orange circuit judge who said Seminole County was the proper locality to hold the trial. The suit was originally filed in Orlando by Steven Fitzgerald of Moultrie, Georgia. In the suit, Fitzgerald maintains that not only did Pony Cars not deliver a $6,000 rebuilt Mustang but failed to produce cars for him to sell exclusively in north Florida and south Georgia.

At the time Fitzgerald was associated with the company it had offices in Orlando and then Sanford.

The complaints on file at the State Attorney's office in Sanford pertain to non-delivery of vehicles filed after the company closed doors two weeks ago in Sanford. A spokesman for the company said the business moved out of Sanford because of labor and overhead problems and will try to set up shop in Daytona Beach at a yet-to-be-formed body shop owned by a relative of one of the company's officers.

The state, however, has pulled the company's license to sell cars and the corporation was legally dissolved by the state in November because it failed to file required corporate reports, according to court records and reports.

The failure to file the reports left associates of the business without corporate protection and opened their personal assets for attachment, according to Fitzgerald's attorney, William E. Reischman Jr., of Murrah and Doyle, of Winter Park.

In the suit Fitzgerald filed, he states the company, through its representatives gave him the go-ahead to sell the classic cars in north Florida and south Georgia. But, he says, the company did not deliver the product nor did it deliver after he paid them $6,000. He was supposed to receive a fully reconditioned 1965 Mustang fastback.

Pony Cars has denied his accusations, according to court records.

The Evening Herald was told by one of the company's financial backers, James Serafini, Daytona Beach Shores, that the company hopes to fulfill its contracts to deliver 28 cars, and then determine if the company should continue to stay in business.

Whether the company can legally sell the cars is questionable because in mid-August the state revoked the company's license to sell cars because it could not get a bond. The Division of Motor Vehicles will not divulge why the bond was not approved for the company.

Fitzgerald is asking for the $6,000 he paid for the car, $500 he says he spent for advertising and $1,100 he said he would have earned in profit during the agreement.

The case has been assigned to Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. No hearing date has been set.

Licensing Truck Drivers

Steven Spielberg's movie "Duel" a few years ago deftly played on its audiences' truckophobia — fear of big trucks and truckers who sometimes seem to ply the highways as if they owned them.

In the movie, Dennis Weaver played a hapless motorist terrorized by a mystery trucker who knew exactly what he was doing.

According to the American Automobile Association, real-life motorists run a risk just as frightening: operators of big rigs who don't know how to drive them.

In 19 states, the AAA points out, anyone with an automobile license may legally get behind the wheel of a big truck and drive on the highways.

According to Congressional Quarterly, the automobile association is backing legislation now advancing in Congress that would establish national licensing standards for commercial operators.

A bill approved earlier this month by the Senate Commerce Committee — the thrust of which is supported by key House lawmakers — would mandate uniform licensing of individuals seeking to drive heavy commercial vehicles.

The legislation would apply to all drivers of commercial vehicles over 26,000 pounds — a cutoff point that would exclude small trucks, such as bakery vans, but include tractor-trailer trucks, buses and large "straight" trucks, such as garbage vehicles.

States that failed to implement the standards by Sept. 1, 1990, would face the loss of 5 percent of their federal aid.

The bill approved by the Senate Commerce Committee addresses several gaps in the current system.

For one thing, it would require a driver to take a road test on the type of vehicle that he or she intends to drive — a requirement maintained by just 12 states today, according to the Department of Transportation.

Also slated for overhaul is the practice of "multiple licensing," which allows drivers to register for licenses in a number of states and then spread traffic violations over the various licenses.

At present, some drivers are on the road even though one or more of their licenses have been suspended or revoked.

The AAA contends that at least 60 percent of truck accidents are caused by driver error.

"Truck drivers spend long hours behind the wheel of a commercial vehicle that is big, powerful and unwieldy," an AAA official testified at a Senate hearing.

Of the 4,908 people killed in truck accidents in 1984, according to the AAA, only 920, or 18.7 percent, were truck occupants.

National licensing for truck drivers makes sense, and we're pleased that most trucking companies — though not the drivers themselves — agree.

The American Trucking Association, the industry's trade organization, says that a system of national standards could lower insurance premiums for carriers as well as combat public criticism that the trucking industry is insufficiently concerned about safety.

WILLIAM RUSHER

Senator Joseph Biden: Bye-Bye For Him?

The subtle qualities that make a person presidential, as the expression goes, are not fully understood. But, whatever they are, Washington observers are beginning to conclude that Senator Joseph Biden, the jaunty young Democrat from Delaware, may not possess them.

If true, this is more serious than it may appear, for among handicappers, the race for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination has not produced a consensus in favor of anyone else. The current front-runner, Senator Gary Hart of Colorado, has all sorts of problems left over from his 1984 bid, starting with what that feather-ticking episode was all about.

Former Governor Charles Robb of Virginia deserves a high place on anybody's list of attractive nominees, but has the problem of translating that fact into votes in a convention that will predictably be dominated by delegates far more liberal than he. This ought to help New York Governor Mario Cuomo, a liberal flaming enough for anybody; but polls indicate that Cuomo has little or no constituency outside of New York, and his rhetorical style is better suited to the depths of the Great Depression than to Ronald Reagan's America. New Jersey Senator Bill Bradley is a moderate and a quality performer, no doubt about it; but he is also piercingly bland.

Confronted with such objections, increasing attention has been devoted recently to Biden. At 43, he has already served in the Senate for nearly 14 years. (He was first elected at 29, but reached the qualifying age of 30 before his term began.) Handsome and articulate, with a bantam feistiness and a slight but useful resemblance to the late John Kennedy, Biden has made a name for himself as a dependably loyal and liberal Democrat, without actually falling off the left end of the political spectrum. He is also a first-rate speaker — no mean qualification in the wake of the Great Communicator.

But recently Biden has started behaving in ways that, however much they testify to his skills as a political fighter, raise serious doubts as to whether he has the kind of temperament Americans want in the Oval Office.

First, there was his cross-examination of Secretary of State Shultz concerning the administration's South Africa policy. Shultz is a phlegmatic if not positively bovine personality, and Biden pecked away at him rather like a furious rooster attacking a somnolent cow.

Then, in a passage seen that evening on television from coast to coast, Biden lost control of his temper altogether and began defending Bishop Tutu's savage attacks on President Reagan at the top of his lungs: "But these people are dying. His people are dying. You feel frustration, they're dying. They are being shot. Children are — they are lining up and shooting children."

Quite aside from its defects as a description of what is going on in South Africa, this shrieking outburst left many people wondering about Biden's basic stability. Is his the finger we want on the nuclear button?

A couple of weeks later, in a more comical episode, Biden blasted chief justice-designate William Rehnquist for daring to own a house in Arizona, the deed to which contains a (long-outdated and unenforceable) clause prohibiting its sale or rental to blacks. Days later, it transpired that Biden himself had lived in just such a house in Delaware when he first ran for the Senate.

More Boat People

One of the most extraordinary news stories of recent years is the story of the 152 Sri Lankans found in lifeboats in the North Atlantic and allowed into Canada under generous Canadian immigration laws.

Thoughtful Canadians must be wondering: Is this the beginning of a new boat people invasion?

Students of trans-national population movements and of modern fiction also certainly will be reminded by one of the most dramatic literary works of the past 15 years, the extraordinarily prescient novel, The Camp of the Saints, written by Jean Raspail and published in France in 1973. This was a fictional account of a seaborne invasion of Europe by people from the Third World.

In the words of the American publisher of the book, it was a novelist's account of "the Last Chance Armada, a pathetic convoy bound for paradise, a non-violent crowd of survivors coming in the flesh to knock, at long last, at the gates of abundance." Raspail wrote: "In all the stifling Third World ports — Jakarta, Karachi, Conakry, and Calcutta — huge armadas were ready to weigh anchor, bound for Australia, New Zealand, Europe. Carpetlike, the great migration was beginning to unroll."

Since The Camp of the Saints was written, Vietnamese boat people have sailed out into the South China Sea in an attempt to reach Australia. Haitians sought to use small boats to leave their poverty-stricken island of Hispaniola and land in numbers on the coast of Florida. Of course, a mighty land invasion, a so-called silent invasion, continues across America's southern border from the Gulf of Mexico to Baja, Calif. The United States has lost control of its southern border.

Now comes this strange development at sea off the cold, foggy coast of Newfoundland, a province of Canada. In recent years, the Canadians have endeavored to slow the immigration they encouraged after World War II. Canada is experiencing the same difficult economic times the United States is encountering. It can't absorb more people from faraway lands. However, the generous immigration laws are still on the books, and the 152 Sri Lankans will benefit from them. One can be sure that they won't be returned.

One also can be sure that if they enjoy safe haven in Canada, news of this will reach Sri Lanka and other South Asian countries very quickly.

ROBERT WAGMAN

No Promise Fulfilled

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Illiteracy is a massive national problem. This is true whether you accept the U.S. Census Bureau estimate of 23 million illiterate American adults or believe, as does writer Jonathan Kozol and many other experts, that a minimum of 25 million adults read at less than fifth-grade level, and 35 million more have less than ninth-grade reading skills. The latter is commonly regarded as the minimal level for functioning in our society.

Are we doing enough to solve the problem? According to the Reagan administration, there is a massive effort by the federal government to stamp out illiteracy. Experts outside the government paint a different picture.

In September 1983, President Reagan announced a major new push called the "Adult Literacy Initiative." The president urged that we "let the lights burn late in our classrooms, our church basements, our libraries and around our kitchen tables, wherever we can gather to help others help themselves to the American Dream."

An Adult Literacy Initiative office was established within the Department of Education. Recently it released a study designed to show the extent of the federal government's response to the problem.

The study identifies 79 "literacy-related programs" administered by 14 federal agencies.

The massive report was meant to answer critics who claim the administration's response has focused on public relations rather than effective support. A close examination of the report casts some doubts on its numbers and conclusions.

Of the 79 programs identified in the study, only eight have literacy as their primary objective. The others encompass a whole galaxy of government programs. These include block grants, where a portion of the money may be used by states and localities to fund adult education, research into learning disorders, refugee assistance and even Department of Defense programs that translate complex technical manuals into virtual comic books designed to teach military personnel to use weapon systems.

Of the eight "primary" literacy programs, most are aimed at relatively small populations. Four are administered by the Justice Department. Three are geared for people in the federal correctional system. The other is run by the Immigration and Naturalization Service for citizenship education.

Of the four programs administered by the Education Department, one is strictly for "native Americans," one is the National Adult Literacy Initiative Office itself — which is a bureaucracy — and one is a library literacy program.

Of the $347 million identified as obligated to literacy activities in fiscal year 1985, only $104 million was represented by the eight "primary" programs. Of this amount, only 80 percent — $84.3 million — was spent on actual literacy activities.

Moreover, it would appear from the report that in this time of tight budgets federal support even for these "primary" programs has been falling. Of the four Justice Department-administered programs, three had zero funding requests for the current fiscal year.

Lessons From Quakes

By United Press International
The government's National Science Foundation hopes the earthquake that hit Mexico City last September will provide some lessons that might help reduce the impact of a major quake in the United States.

The foundation has just awarded $4 million in research grants to 28 institutions in the United States to gather information along with Mexican researchers about that disaster that killed an estimated 10,000 people.

"We expect that knowledge gained from the research may result in improvements in current earthquake hazard mitigation practices in the U.S. and Mexico," said Nam P. Suh, assistant foundation director for engineering.

Many of the more than 300 structures, for example, that collapsed or were heavily damaged by the tremor were designed to building code standards comparable to those used in parts of the United States.

"It is important for the U.S. to learn from this tragic experience," Suh said.

Skin disorders and discrimination

People with some skin disorders suffer the same kinds of employment and social discrimination that affects minorities and the handicapped, a sociological study suggests.

Judith R. Porter, a sociologist at Bryn Mawr College in Pennsylvania, conducted a study of 66 patients at the Vitiligo Clinic at the Yale University Hospital. Vitiligo is characterized by the patchy loss of skin color, usually on the face, neck and in skin folds. It affects about 1 percent of the population.

The patients were experimentally matched with 66 people who did not have skin disease, as well as 25 patients with other skin disorders.

While all of the skin disorder patients scored lower of self-esteem and reported more discrimination than people without skin disorders, the psoriasis patients reported significantly more discrimination than even the other skin patients.

Porter attributed the finding to the fact that psoriasis victims often have reddened, scaling skin that bleeds and oozes.

"They are more likely to report that others stare at them, strangers are uncomfortable with them and that they suffer job discrimination," Porter wrote in the August Journal of the American Academy of Dermatology.

How A Crisis Was Nipped In Bud

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — As chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on European Affairs, Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., has many momentous matters to occupy him. These run the gamut from Soviet-American relations to anti-American terrorist attacks and assorted other problems across the continent.

But the weight of these awesome responsibilities hasn't led the peripatetic 44-year-old senator to ignore the vexatious issues that are not likely to make headlines and might therefore be overlooked by a less dedicated lawmaker. In fact, Pressler made a special trip to the continent last Eastertide to compile an official report on the travails of what he calls "the mini-states of Europe."

The "bilateral issue" that seemed to command the greatest amount of the senator's attention was — are you ready? — Monaco's unhappiness over the State Department's planned closing of the American consulate in nearby Nice. Pressler learned all about this crisis in U.S.-Monegasque relations in a private interview with Prince Rainier III and his prime minister, Jean Aussel.

Rainier, the widower of Philadelphia-born Princess Grace, is apparently not yet ready to break off diplomatic relations with or declare war on the United States. But Pressler's official report makes clear that the prince was terribly, terribly hurt over the decision to close down the State Department's Riviera outpost.

"Prince Rainier ... has strong views regarding the issue of small states and their relations with the United States," Pressler disclosed. "Prince Rainier emphasized that Monaco and the United States have longstanding ties of family, friendship and commerce, dating back to 1874."

He then quoted the prince as saying: "I am presently most concerned and disappointed to learn that the United States will no longer be represented in the principality from Nice."

The royal dudgeon continued with a reminder that 150,000 Americans visit the Riviera each year, and a hope that the United States was not "sending a signal of lessening of interests in this area of the world."

Pressler heard even tougher talk from the prime minister, who told him, in the peculiarly stilted language that seems to be the court dialect of Monaco: "Monegasques, including and perhaps especially the princely family, felt both bewildered and hurt by this proposed closing of the consulate, which they take as a personal affront."

Despite the unmistakably menacing tone of this rebuke, Prince Rainier managed to smooth things over with the kind of deft diplomatic touch that has kept the Grimaldis on the throne of Monaco since 1297 A.D. State Department cables seen by our associate Lucette Lagnado disclose that the prince arranged for the visiting senator to play tennis with the royal heir, Prince Albert.

Thus, in a series of one-on-one meetings from throne room to tennis court, an international crisis was averted that might have titillated gossip columnists for a week or more.

GOING FISHING?

Helpful Hints On Trailering Boats Safely

Safe boat trailering is important on today's crowded highways. Most of us have observed unfortunate incidents on the road or at the ramp that could have been avoided with a little attention to detail.

Follow the steps listed below before you embark on your fishing trips and you will perhaps avoid a ruined trip due to a small oversight. Before leaving make sure that:

- all wheel lug nuts are tight.
- all tires are properly inflated, including the spare.
- the trailer is securely tightened to the hitch ball and that a safety lock has been installed.
- the safety chain is attached with enough slack to make turns, but does not drag when the vehicle is loaded.
- lights are hooked up and are in proper working order; (6) sideview mirrors are positioned for correct visibility on both sides of the vehicle.
- the boat is resting on rollers, pads, skids, etc.
- tie-downs are tight at stern and bow (it is good to use an extra tie-down on the bow for additional security).
- winch is locked and the line or cable is not frayed.
- the motor is in vertical position for trailering.
- all elevated swivel seats are removed to decrease wind resistance on the highway.
- all gear inside the boat is tied down or stored so it will not blow out (especially life cushions and ice chests).

Once you are on the road, there are four important items to keep in mind while you are driving: (1) drive conservatively as your acceleration and braking power are reduced because of the additional weight of your boat and trailer; (2) avoid passing another vehicle unless there is a clear road ahead; (3) allow plenty of room ahead of the car you are passing before you return to the proper lane; (4) monitor your engine temperature to avoid overheating.

Once you have safely arrived at the boat ramp, remember the following tips: (1) get out and observe the ramp before you begin to launch the boat. Notice the grade of the ramp and look for slippery conditions. Pay careful attention where the ramp ends. Backing off the end of the ramp can cause you some real problems; (2) make certain your drain plug is in, load all gear into the boat, and tilt up your motor; (3) back your trailer down the ramp only when you are ready to launch the boat. Do not waste other people's time and patience by blocking the ramp; (4) back down the trailer only as far as necessary so the boat begins to float off or can be easily pushed off as the trailer tilts. Remember to chock the vehicle tires if the ramp is the least bit slippery; (5) launch your boat and secure it to the dock; (6) drive the vehicle from the ramp as soon as possible to let other people have their turn.

You have a lot of time and money invested in your fishing boat, and it would be in your best interest to heed the suggestions listed above.

Repair any faulty item as soon as possible. Do not let procrastination threaten the safety of you or someone else.

Fishing and boating is made much more enjoyable by the safe trailering and launching of your boat. We all want to maximize our time and enjoyment on the water, and being attentive to a few basic guidelines helps us to accomplish this goal.

SHUPE'S SCOOP — Trailer lights are a perennial problem and have been the source of many traffic citations and frayed nerves.

Most trailer lights are not waterproof, and water will eventually corrode the sockets and ruin the contact. The problem of waterproof lights can easily be solved by purchasing trailer lights that work on the

Preps Kick Off Preview With Lyman's Jamboree

By Scott Sander
Herald Sports Writer

Tonight is the night that many Seminole Athletic Conference players and coaches have been waiting for. Since Aug. 15 players have been working diligently in preparation for the season.

And although the opening game is still a week away, tonight at Lyman, three county teams — Seminole, Lyman and Oviedo — will get their first chance to prove themselves in the annual fall jamboree. Three others — Lake Mary, Lake Howell and Oviedo — will get together at Lake Howell High Friday for a jamboree.

In the first half, coach Dave Mosure and Sanford's Seminoles will take on Lakeland Kathleen at 7 p.m. The second half pits host Lyman against Jack Blanton's Oviedo Lions at 8 p.m. Tonight's action will give the coaches a chance to look at their talent and give them a basic idea of what to expect during the season.

At Seminole, Mosure is ready to go. "I think that it will be very exciting," Mosure said. "We are all extremely excited about playing."

Mosure said that he is happy that the team will play a club that is not in the conference. "I think that it is really good to get a chance to play someone outside the area," Mosure said. "It gives the kids a chance to see the level of football in other parts of the state."

Mosure said that practice has been going well. "We have been working really hard," he said. "Hopefully we will perform well."

Mosure went on to say that the jamboree will give him a chance on starting assignments at a number of different positions. "I need to look at some people," Mosure said. "We will be making some decisions based on the performances."

Mosure said that he will keep things very basic on offense. "We'll keep things easy," Mosure said. "We can't do anything fancy until we get the basics down."

Defensively, Mosure is looking for aggressiveness. "I am for hoping for a lot of pursuit," Mosure said. "I am also looking for a lot of gang-tackling."

Seminole's backfield will include QB Dwayne Willis and running backs Curtis Rudolph and Ed Banks. Defensively, linebackers Earnie Lewis, Rick Kelley and Steve Warren lead the way.

Last American Falls At Open

Tennis

NEW YORK (UPI) — U.S. Open fans, starved for an American hero to cheer after the ouster of crowd favorite Jimbo, rallied behind Rambo.

But the last remaining American at the Open, a diving, fist-pumping North Carolinian named Tim Wilkison, went the way of his 48 countrymen as he fell to fourth-seeded Stefan Edberg of Sweden 6-3, 6-3, 6-3 Wednesday in a quarterfinal match.

Fans at the National Tennis Center were unable to root for their usual favorites in the later rounds as Jimmy "Jimbo" Connors and John McEnroe bowed out early. Wilkison, nicknamed "Rambo" and "Dr. Dirt" for his hustling style, was adopted by the crowd during a five-set victory over fifth-seeded Yannick Noah of France and a straight-set triumph against the Soviet Union's Andrei Chesnokov.

Wilkison's defeat to the hard-serving Edberg meant that for the first time since 1966, no American reached the semifinal round. For seven of the last eight years, either Connors or McEnroe had won the tournament.

"I'm think I'm fairly exciting to watch," said Wilkison, who wears a hat during matches to focus his concentration. "You know, I fall down sometimes."

Against Edberg, the unseeded Wilkison excited the fans by running down balls that appeared out of his reach but committed too many errors that blunted any chance for a sustained run. On set point in the second set, Wilkison double-faulted.

"I really felt I let everybody down," Wilkison said. "I really wish I could have won because it's been so much fun. Not so much for the money but just for the fun of it."

In other action Wednesday, top-seeded Ivan Lendl advanced to the semifinals after stopping No. 8 Henri Leconte of France 7-6 (7-3), 6-1, 1-6, 6-1. Leconte, who had beaten the world's No. 1 player in five of their previous 10 meetings, was the first player to win a set from the defending champion in five Open matches this year.

Lendl, who will meet Edberg in one semifinal matchup, said the key point in the match was in the 10th game of the opening set, when he ran down a Leconte drop shot on set point.

"I believe that won me the first set because had I not gotten to it, I would have lost the first set," Lendl said. "And I think mentally it just broke him down losing that set because he thought he had it. Therefore, he didn't play very well in the second set."

Like the men, the women's draw held to form Wednesday as No. 2 Chris Evert Lloyd ousted No. 9 Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria 6-2, 6-2 to reach the semifinals for the 16th straight year and No. 7 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia defeated Wendy Turnbull of Australia 6-4, 6-0.

Evert Lloyd and Sukova will meet in one women's semifinal with top-seeded Martina Navratilova and No. 3 Steffi Graf of West Germany squaring off in the other. Both matches will be held Friday.

FSU-Nebraska Game In Limbo

NCAA Flags Cornhuskers For Ticket Distribution Improprieties

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — The status of eighth-ranked Nebraska's season opener against Florida State Saturday night was in doubt today, following the NCAA's declaration that 60 Cornhuskers are ineligible for at least one game.

The NCAA's Eligibility Committee stunned Nebraska's program and its following Wednesday by ruling — after a four-month investigation — the players misused their season football passes last year.

Fifty-three players are ineligible for one game and seven are out for two games. Coach Tom Osborne said the status of the nationally televised home game Saturday night against No. 11 Florida State was in doubt.

"I'm very angry about the whole thing," Osborne said, calling the sanctions a "travesty."

Dr. Martin Messengale, Lincoln Campus chancellor, called the violations "minor" and the NCAA's sanctions "excessive and unreasonable." He said the rule in question was changed four times during the past five years.

Messengale said an appeal would be filed with the NCAA Council's sub-committee on eligibility appeals.

The Eligibility Committee ruled the players distributed their season passes to those other than family members, relatives and fellow students. Messengale said among the illegal recipients were players' fiancées, fiancée's family members, neighbors and former high school teachers.

"Absolutely no money changed hands," Osborne said. "There was no evidence of scalping. The interesting thing is that the players were completely honest."

"We tried to cooperate with them (the NCAA),

College Football

we tried to go their route, they made the phone call and I guess they could hardly wait to talk about what they did to us.

"As far as I'm concerned, all bets are off," said Osborne, in his 13th year at Nebraska's helm with a 127-30-2 record.

Osborne said to field a team without the suspended players against Florida State would be a "joke." He said the NCAA committee rejected Nebraska's offer to penalize the players by limiting their passes this year.

He said the NCAA "graciously" offered to stretch the penalty with 10 players sidelined for as many games as required to complete the sanction.

"We might be better off to take our medicine in one day than to bleed to death for six or seven weeks," he said.

ALABAMA ON CARPET FOR FUNERAL TRIP

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — University of Alabama officials are downplaying an NCAA request for information on possible rule violations involving a trip the football team made to a teammate's funeral the day after Alabama won the Kickoff Classic in New Jersey.

The NCAA in Mission, Kan., has asked for information on the Aug. 28 funeral of Willie Ryles in Columbus, Ga., adjacent to Phenix City, Ala., Ryles' hometown. "We're going to write it up and send it to them," head football coach Ray Perkins said Wednesday. "We don't think it's a big deal."

Florida State's Lenny Sutton, a key member of Seminole High's 1981 district and conference championship football team, suffered a sprained ankle during practice and will miss the trip to Nebraska. Sutton, a 6-0 200-pounder, is a second-team defensive back.

Palmer Aces, Again

POTOMAC, Md. (UPI) — Arnold Palmer's stunning hole-in-one — his second in two days on the same 185-yard hole — makes him the first professional American golfer to accomplish that feat.

"That's the most amazing ... aw, my goodness ... I've had some things happen to me, but never anything close to that," Palmer gushed Wednesday.

Report: Marino To Be Best Paid

MIAMI (UPI) — Quarterback Dan Marino will sign a new contract with the Dolphins within the next two days making him the richest player in the NFL, a published report said today.

The Miami Herald reported in today's editions Marino would sign an agreement surpassing the $8 million, five-year pact signed last month by former USFL quarterback Jim Kelly and the Buffalo Bills. That was believed to be the richest in the NFL.

Marino's contract expires after this year and his agent and Dolphins owner Joe Robbie have been wrangling over a new one for more than a year.

Last year, after Robbie promised to renegotiate Marino's contract, Marino walked out of training camp because of a lack of progress and stayed away 37 days.

Marino said this summer he would not walk out in 1986, but might declare himself a free agent in 1987 if he wasn't signed by the time this season opens Sunday.

Negotiations, at a virtual standstill for more than a year, heated up this week.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Oviedo Little League To Host Fall Senior Division Program

The Oviedo Little League Senior Division will hold registration for an instructional fall baseball program on Saturday, Sept. 6 and Sunday, Sept. 13 from 9 a.m. to noon at the Oviedo Little League complex on King Street, president Ed Niemiec announced.

The program is limited to youths who will reach league age 13 through 15 for the regular season in the spring. Niemiec said local area high school and college coaches will assist in the development of coaches and players throughout the program.

An eight-game schedule will be played starting Sept. 27 and ending Nov. 15 with a double-elimination tournament the weekend of Nov. 22. The program will be played on a standard diamond with 90 foot baselines under Senior League rules.

Teams from local area leagues are welcome to join in the program. Registration fee will be $25 which includes shirt, cap and insurance. For further information, contact Niemiec at 699-1188 after 7 p.m. in the evening.

No JV Football For Seminoles

Dave Mosure, head football coach at Seminole High, said the school will not field a junior varsity team this season because of a lack of players. The 8-game junior varsity schedule has been cancelled.

Despite the lack of numbers which came out for the junior varsity team (14 players), Mosure said he didn't feel that the program will suffer since 56 players are out for the freshman team.

"We took everybody who wanted to play football to the varsity," Mosure said. Eight sophomores are on the varsity team.

Mavs Send Vincent To Bullets

DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas Mavericks, top heavy with forwards, Wednesday traded veteran Jay Vincent to the Washington Bullets for a first-round draft choice in 1990.

In five seasons with Dallas, the 6-foot-7 forward averaged 16.9 points and 6.7 rebounds a game.

Vincent is the fourth veteran obtained by the Bullets in trades since the June 17 draft, joining Moses Malone, Terry Catledge and Darwin Cook.

Lyman Booster Dinner Saturday

The Lyman High School Boosters Club will hold a barbecue dinner Saturday from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. at the Lyman cafeteria.

Tickets are $3 in advance and $4 at the door. The menu consists of a chicken, beef or pork along with cole slaw, baked beans and refreshment. Call 831-8600 for information or reservations.

Lewis To Have Minor Surgery

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Olympic gold medalist Carl Lewis will undergo minor arthroscopic surgery on his left knee next week in Eugene, Ore., it was announced Wednesday.

...Jamboree

At Lyman coach Bill Scott is happy that the Greyhounds will be playing at home. "Any time you get kids to play on their home field, it has to be considered to be an advantage," Scott said. "It will give the kids a boost to playing in front of the home crowd."

Scott said that the team is ready to play. "These kids have been working very hard," he said. "It is time that they play in a game situation. We will find out if we are any good tonight."

Scott said that he will be shuffling players in and out of the game in an effort to give all the players a chance to play. "We'd like to see everybody play," Scott said. "We have to make some decisions on starting positions. The starters will have to prove that they are worthy of their jobs tonight."

Darren Boyeson and John Burton have been battling it out for the starting quarterback position and are very close, Scott said. "They are both good football players," Scott said. "It will be very tough to decide who will start." Scott said that Boyeson will play the first two series and Burton will play the next two. Robert Thomas, who gained 900 yards last year, joins Ira Melton to fill out the backfield.

Scott said the jamboree serves as final tune-up before the season begins. "It is a dress rehearsal of next week," Scott said. "I kind of wish that these jamborees were entire games instead of a half."

Scott went on to say that he will have a good picture of the team after the Jamboree. "I will know what we need to work on," Scott said. "It will tell a lot about what type of team we have."

Linebacker Scott King and DB Scott Radcliff are the big hitters on defense.

At Oviedo, Blanton said he has a very young club. "We will be starting six sophomores on offense and on defense," Blanton said. "We are a young team but hopefully we will mature quickly."

Blanton said that the jamboree will give some of the young kids some much needed game experience. "It will be good for the young guys to play in a game type atmosphere," Blanton said. "It will definitely help them out."

"This jamboree will tell us what we need to work on," Blanton added. "I really like it."

Oviedo High School is currently being refurbished. Blanton drew a comparison between his school and team. "We are brand new, just like the school," he said. "We will be young, but we will be building."

Blanton said the Lions will mix things up on offense. "We'll shake it up," Blanton said. "We'll see what kind of offensive unit we have."

On defense, Blanton is stressing quickness. "We are not very big," Blanton said. "So we will have to move very quickly."

Quarterback Mike McCurdy and tailback Willie Gainey will follow the hard-blocking duo of center Gordon King and guard Andy Palmer offensively.

WEEKEND FORECAST — Rick Rawlins from Highland Park Fish Camp is looking forward to cooler weather. Bass fishing will improve dramatically when the water temperature begins to cool.

Chief Abnerberry from Outlook Bridge Fish Camp reports that bass fishing is fairly good.

but fishermen are keeping mum because of the approaching bass tournament. Some fishermen have been catching quite a few school bass, but they would not divulge the location. Specks are being caught around the new bridge.

Snook fishing is good at Sebastian Inlet with many 10- to 15-pound fish being caught. Red Tail Hawks and charismatic Barn Swallows are accounting for most of these fish. Redfish are being caught on jugs and finger mullet.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports that fishing is good offshore. Whales, dolphin, and king mackerel are providing most of the action. Start in 140 feet of water and work out from there. Bottom fishing for grouper and snapper is good at the 27-fathom curve and the small rock piles just inside the curve. Use deep line tipped with a strip of meat or live bait for best results. The heavy line is slow but a few king mackerel and cobia are being caught. Trout are slow in the Banana and Indian rivers, but redfish continue to bite.

The New Smyrna Jetties have been crowded with boats during the calm weather. Jack crevalle, bluefish, snappers, roach, and drum have been providing most of the action.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL PICKS

By JOEL SHERMAN/UPI Sports Writer
UCLA (+7) over Oklahoma — Terry Donahue is a big game coach as four straight New Year's Day victories indicate. He has another such game now — a season-opener against the national champion. If the No. 4 Bruins beat No. 1 Oklahoma in Norman and they could walk away the nation's top team. UCLA opened last season against defending champion Brigham Young and won. This year's Sooners are much better than last year's Cougars, but the Bruins are much improved also. UCLA's running game is its strength with Eric Ball (doubtful with an ankle injury) and Gaston Green while Sooners lose nose tackle Tony Casillas. They key, though, will be at quarterback. Mark Stevens showed in last year's Rose Bowl he can be a top passer. Jamarille Holloway is now a sophomore with great expectations after leading a national-championship squad in his freshman season. It's always tough to repeat as a champion.
UCLA 17, Oklahoma 14

EAST

Rutgers (+13) over Boston College — Shawn Halloran will be much more comfortable in his second season starting after Doug Flutie's departure and Kelvin Martin provides him with one of college football's best targets. But this is too many points to give for an ordinary game.
Boston College 27, Rutgers 19

Penn State (+12 1/2) over Temple

Last year, the Nittany Lions escaped against Temple with a 2-point victory. Penn State will be much more ready for halfback Paul Palmer.
Penn State 34, Temple 19

SOUTH

Miami (-3 1/2) over Florida — Hurricanes showed an excellent running game in crushing South Carolina last week. In a matchup of two of college football's best passers — Florida's Kerwin Bell and Miami's Vinny Testaverde — the team that moves ball best on the ground will have the edge.

Miami 31, Florida 21

MIDWEST

Florida State (+6 1/2) over Nebraska — The Cornhuskers will not easily forget their loss last season to Florida State. Still, Seminoles have offensive firepower to keep Nebraska off-balance and the Huskers will miss running back Doug DuBose. NCAA suspension of 60 Nebraska players clouds game.
Florida State 26, Nebraska 17

WEST

Houston (+17) over Arizona — Arizona is strong with 17 starters returning. However, Bill Yeoman will have the Cougars ready after an 8-2 start led to a 4-7 record last season.
Arizona 27, Houston 28

Texas-EI Paso (+15) over Air Force

In a tough win over weak Hawaii, Troy Calhoun showed trouble triggering the Falcon flexbone offense that Bart Weiss moved to offensively. UTEP, playing at home, pulled one of biggest upsets of last season when it beat Brigham Young. This would not be quite as big a surprise.

Rams Recall Chuck Scott

Lake Howell High graduate Chuck Scott was recalled off waivers by the Los Angeles Rams Tuesday and will remain on the 45-man roster when the NFL regular season opens Sunday.

Scott, an All-American tight end at Vanderbilt University, was put on a procedural waiver on Monday and brought back to the roster Tuesday when three players, including quarterback Dieter Brock, were placed on injured-reserve.

"They (Rams) told Chuck it was a procedural waiver and that they could call him back," Chuck's father Charlie Scott said. "The regular season officially started yesterday morning at 9. If they put the players on injured reserve before the season started, they would have had to stay there for at least four weeks."

"If they put the players on injured-reserve after the season started, they can activate them at any time," Scott continued. "The Rams told Chuck to stay around and no other team picked him up in the 24 hours so he's still with the Rams."

Scott said Chuck should see a lot of action as a backup to WR Ron Brown.

Lendl and Edberg in the men's semifinals will be determined today. Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia, the 16th seed, will try to continue his stunning success against Swedish players when he faces No. 7 Joakim Nyström.

The 6-foot-3 Mecir, who shocked second-seeded Swede Mats Wilander to reach the quarterfinals, has a winning career record against five of the top six Swedish players. In the last two years, Mecir has a 17-3 record against Swedish players and is 3-2 lifetime against Nyström.

Milan Srejber, an unheralded 6-8 Czechoslovakian, meets third-seeded Boris Becker of West Germany in the last quarterfinal. In their only meeting, Srejber beat Becker 7-6 (7-4), 6-3 earlier in the year.

Violence Erupts In S. Africa As Police Tear Gas Funeral

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Authorities lobbed tear gas into a Soweto stadium where 4,000 mourners gathered today in defiance of a ban against a mass funeral for police shooting victims, forcing clergymen to postpone the ceremony.

United Press International is aware of reports of serious violence and a protest strike in the sprawling township, a hotspot in more than two years of political unrest in South Africa, but expanded emergency press curbs imposed Wednesday prevent reporting on security force operations.

But residents said a black woman was crushed to death by a train when she tried to escape from black youths armed with whips at a rail station. They said the youths were enforcing a work boycott to mark the burial day.

Johannesburg businessmen said up to 85 percent of their employees from Soweto did not appear for work today.

One resident said the tear gas attacks and the delay in services for some of the 24 protesters killed during protests last week would only aggravate the situation.

Reporters in the heavily policed township 10 miles outside Johannesburg said about 4,000 people gathered at Jabavu Stadium to bury some of the victims, although police had banned mass burials and told families of the dead that only four could be buried each day beginning Friday.

Guam Governor Vows To Stay

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — Gov. Ricardo Bordallo said today he does not plan to resign or withdraw from this week's primary election because of his indictment on charges of receiving $80,000 for approving a government contract.

Bordallo, 58, was charged Wednesday in a 12-count indictment with extortion, bribery, attempted extortion, wire fraud, conspiracy to obstruct justice and witness tampering.

The indictment of Bordallo and his assistant chief of staff were part of an FBI probe of corruption on the Pacific territory, site of a major U.S. military base.

The governor denied the charges and through his press secretary, Catherine Gault, said, "I will not step down. I will continue the campaign (primary election) and will fight it out in court."

Captains Blamed In Collision

MOSCOW (UPI) — A government commission probing the sinking of the cruise liner Admiral Nakhimov in a collision with a freighter blames both captains for the accident that left 398 people dead or missing, Pravda said today.

"The investigative bodies, having studied the circumstances, will give a detailed answer to it," the Communist Party newspaper said. "But even now, specialists state the reason is in the violation of seafaring safety rules by the captains of both ships."

Soviet authorities said Tuesday 79 bodies had been recovered and 319 people were missing and feared drowned — trapped in the hull of the 17,000-ton liner Admiral Nakhimov, which sank when a freighter hit it Sunday night.

The newspaper Sovetskaya Rossiya paper said today that "the lives of all the 29 people hospitalized are now out of danger."

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Judge Hastings Demands Release Of Investigation Findings

MIAMI (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Alcee Hastings, threatened with impeachment proceedings, said the action has caused him "irreparable" damage and asked for the findings of an investigation into his activities to be released.

"I have maintained all along that the people have a right to know. I have nothing to hide," said Hastings Tuesday.

An investigation by a panel from the 11th Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta has recommended that Hastings, of Altamonte Springs now living in Miami and Florida's first black federal judge, be impeached on grounds of improper conduct. The panel's report also charged that Hastings was guilty of bribery charges of which he was acquitted in 1983.

The Aug. 4 report was not made public until Hastings released part of its contents when he filed suit in federal court in Washington D.C. last month, asking to stop impeachment proceedings and declare the law which empowered the investigation unconstitutional.

Hastings' attorneys have also sued the judges for violations of fundamental rights.

Shuttle Workers Expect Layoffs

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Kennedy Space Center contractors braced for layoff announcements today with sources indicating up to 1,000 shuttle workers may lose their jobs in the wake of the Challenger disaster and a lengthy delay in shuttle flights.

Officials with Martin Marietta, which builds the shuttle's giant external fuel tanks, said Wednesday between 700 and 800 workers at the company's Michoud, La., plant will be laid off by Oct. 3.

A company statement said the layoffs were necessary because of "reduced demand for space shuttle external fuel tanks and resulting decreased production. The reduced production was directed by NASA after reviewing ... program needs related to the temporary suspension of shuttle flights."

the development which allows Heathrow to sell stamps and envelopes to the public.

But, she said, all pick-up and delivery of mail at Heathrow is done by Lake Mary Post Office personnel. She said because the development does have the contract unit, mail can be addressed to "Heathrow" if the Lake Mary zip code is used.

When told Heathrow does not have a post office nor zip code, Beha said a post office was not the "main reason" in deciding to put up the sign. "We obviously didn't look into that too deeply," he said.

It was, Beha said, the use of the interchange and Heathrow as a primary destination site. He likened it to signs on I-4 announcing Daytona, another non-incorporated residential area in Volusia County.

He said the Heathrow signs decision was based in part on vehicle counts, but he did not have any such data available nor details on the other criteria that was used in determining Heathrow was a primary destination site.

Those were comments Beha made when interviewed Wednesday. When called this morning, however, the information took a slightly different turn. He said the signs cost roughly $3,500 total for two main signs on I-4 and two smaller signs at the ends of the east and west exits pointing the way to Heathrow.

He then attempted to explain away why Heathrow got the signs, indicating such signs go to communities just east and west of Interstate exits when they are not located within city limits.

However, when Beha was asked why, if that's the case, The Crossings, which lies just east of I-4 and is not in the Lake Mary city limits does not have such signs, he said: "You are assuming that both of them are looked at as subdivisions," Beha said. We regarded The Crossings as (located) in Lake Mary." The Crossings, however, is not in the city limits.

"For one thing, no has asked us to look at The Crossings as anything else. The folks from Heathrow asked us to consider a sign out there. And it is indeed a community."

"You're asking me questions I don't think I can answer. I don't think there are answers. No one has ever asked us about the others. All that (the Crossings area) is considered Lake Mary."

"It's because, Heathrow has its own identity," he said.

Beha said the DOT would consider an application from The Crossings, but added he did not think the subdivision would meet DOT guidelines for I-4 signs.

"Lake Mary is made up of a group of subdivisions, not just one. Heathrow is a community, it's also the only thing out there on the west side of I-4," he said.

Lake Mary Mayor Dick Pess said he thought it was premature for the DOT to decide Heathrow was one of the main reasons people use the I-4 exit. He said he believes more people live in Lake Mary than Heathrow and probably that more people use the exit to go to businesses such as Stromberg-Carlson rather than Heathrow.

He said if Heathrow is a prime destination of those using the exit, which also leads to Sanford, then perhaps Heathrow should shoulder more of the future cost of improving the interchange. He also suggested that The Crossings, a private subdivision also near Lake Mary and off the same exit, be given a sign on I-4 to tell people where it is. The Crossings' resident manager, Betty Freeman, agrees.

"I think everybody should be treated equally. I don't see any reason why The Crossings shouldn't have it because I feel sure we have as many people in The Crossings as there are in Heathrow," she said.

Roger Soderstrom, president of Heathrow Land and Development Corp., said the development asked for the I-4 signs because Heathrow is beginning to establish its own identity throughout the United States, and people are coming to the area to see Heathrow. He said the company also advertises itself as "Heathrow, Florida, U.S.A."

He said the signs the development put up on Lake Mary Boulevard saying "Heathrow, Florida, U.S.A." were also put up to help people identify the subdivision.

The signs were taken down, however, because they were too close to the road and on the right-of-way. He said they will be moved back and put up again.

Beha said Paulucci did not receive preferential treatment in the I-4 sign request. He said the developer has been trying to get an interchange at State Road 48A north of Heathrow, but the state is opposing it, saying there are more locations in need of an interchange.

Beha said the state has no plans to build an interchange there for at least five years.

challenge. ACLU members had talked earlier about a suit if the contract is implemented. Mrs. Coleman said she informed her group plans to discuss the contract at its meeting next week.

Mrs. Coleman said a modification of the procedure, before finalized, may list specific behaviors that would indicate substance abuse.

And Bill Moore, Lake Mary High School assistant principal, said he expects it will take about a year to "work out the bugs" in the system.

The contract, as written, requires the signatures of the student, parent, school administrator and club sponsor or team coach.

The contract states: "In view of the illegality of drugs and alcohol and the dangers to my health, I agree to uphold the following stipulations during the term of this contract:

"1. I will abstain from the illegal use of alcohol and drugs.

"2. I will submit to requested tests that denote drug or alcohol use as outlined in the implementation procedures.

"3. I will encourage my teammates, classmates, and friends to seek healthful alternatives to alcohol and drugs.

"4. I will avoid private parties and social gatherings where alcohol and drugs are being used illegally, and I will encourage my friends to do the same.

"I am aware that failure to adhere to this contract may result in temporary or permanent suspension from my team or club and that the school administration may become involved."

Asked if a student would be barred from extracurricular activities if he/she didn't sign the pact, Moore said it would be: "a likely possibility."

"What if the parent refused to sign?" asked board member Pat Telson.

After a meeting with the parent and student, Moore replied, if the parent still refused to sign, "we would probably get around the situation."

"We're not in business to prohibit people's participation," he said.

According to the implementation procedures:

"The purpose of the 'Lake Mary Says No' program is to help students say 'no' to drug and alcohol use and to aid students who develop a drug or alcohol abuse problem. The program is not intended to punish students or add to their problems. All possible attempts will be made to protect students' rights and confidentiality while maintaining the integrity of the contractual agreement regarding students' participation in extracurricular activities.

"The following procedures will be implemented as part of the Lake Mary High School's drug and alcohol education, testing, and counseling/rehabilitation program. These procedures would go into effect if a student demonstrates inappropriate behaviors that indicate he/she may have violated Item #1 of the Lake Mary High School Participation in Extracurricular Activities Contract:

"1. The administration will be notified.

"2. The administration will arrange a conference with the student and his/her parents.

"3. If in the judgment of the administration, the results of this conference indicate a need for additional help, the student will be referred for appropriate treatment. If a problem is suspected to be drug or alcohol related, a referral will be made to the Grove Counseling Center, Inc.

"4. The student and parent will sign a consent for disclosure form so that verification of counseling and results of testing may be given to the proper school administrator. Every possible step will be taken to assure and maintain the confidentiality of test results and other related information.

"5. Normal treatment for first referral, based on possible illegal drug or alcohol use, is an evaluation and eight weeks of family counseling and drug education.

"6. If the student participates in the recommended treatment or counseling, he/she will be allowed to remain in his/her extracurricular activities.

"7. If there is a second occurrence of illegal drug or alcohol use, the above referral procedure will be reinstated and the student will be suspended from his/her extracurricular activities for a period of time to be determined by the administration and the activity sponsor(s). Such a suspension will not be for less than seven days and will include at least one competition or performance.

"8. If there is a third occurrence of illegal drug or alcohol use, the above referral procedure will be reinstated and the student will be suspended from all extracurricular activities for a period of one year.

"9. If a student and his/her parent(s) refuse to participate in the referral procedure, the student will be suspended from all extracurricular activities.

"10. If a student makes a self-referral and a parent refers their son or daughter, the above procedures will be followed."

meetings go" and that his own inability to attend Tuesday's session was due to "a business emergency."

Dycus, of Greene and Dycus, P.A., was one of four board members who were not available to attend Tuesday's meeting.

A city employee said she had called the code enforcement board's members earlier Tuesday and the session was cancelled when she was only able to confirm that three members would attend.

"I certainly didn't miss the meeting on purpose," Dycus said. "I've got a business to run and as far as I'm concerned the business takes priority over the code enforcement board. When you're dealing with members who are business people this is bound to happen."

Dycus also said city commissioners "are the ones who appointed us in the first place and maybe they should have looked more closely at the people they appointed."

In his eight years on the board Dycus said he has missed no more than three of its monthly meetings.

In addition to Tuesday's session, city records show the code enforcement board cancelled its June 24 meeting. On that night the board had been scheduled to conduct nine hearings on determined violations and review 22 affidavits citing possible violations. These were addressed during the board's July 8 session, records show.

The 22 violation hearings and 13 affidavits of possible violation on the agenda for the board's Tuesday night meeting will be taken up on Sept. 16, City Building Official Gary Wynn said today.

One businessman who showed up for a code enforcement hearing Tuesday turned to commissioners for action after the session's cancellation. Instead, City Attorney William Colbert said commissioners could not intervene because the issue is still pending before the code enforcement board.

The business is Sanford Auto Salvage and its owner, David Redwine, had been cited by city inspectors for stacking crushed cars above a seven foot fence that fronts on Airport Boulevard.

The business is located at the corner of Airport Boulevard and Albright Road, directly west of Academy Manor, where Commissioner Bob Thomas lives.

Thomas called the business a junkyard.

He took issue when its owner said his auto salvage yard is maintained better than many properties in the area, including a nearby residence.

Redwine said he wanted to work with city commissioners to settle the matter, although Thomas opposed the proposal.

"I don't think I could talk to him after that comment relative to that junkyard being in better condition than a residence," Thomas said.

The violation was discussed, however, with Thomas siding with city inspectors who cited the violation. He also said local residents had brought the matter to his attention and that he had seen the alleged violation.

City Commissioner Dave Farr was unsuccessful in attempts to pin Thomas down as to the frequency of these citations.

"I drive by there every day and I don't see them," Farr said.

Redwine contended the cars were only stacked above the seven foot high fence periodically and Mayor Smith said the city had been aware this would happen when it rezoned the site.

Too Many Maids Dilemma For Bride-To-Be

DEAR ABBY: I recently became engaged and am now in the process of planning my wedding. After my official engagement, I hinted very strongly to my best friend that she would be my maid of honor. My mother heard about it and said that my sister, who is close to me in age, would be very hurt if she were not asked to be my maid of honor. I am very close to both girls; however, I did not consider asking my sister because I thought it was customary for the bride's unrelated best friend to be the maid of honor. I think both of them are expecting to be asked.

I want to avoid hurting any feelings. What should I do?

UNDECIDED BRIDE

DEAR UNDECIDED: Choose your sister. Friends come and go, but sisters are forever.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to "Unexpressive Mother," who offered to pay you well to compose a beautiful two-page letter for her to send to her 17-year-old daughter, telling her how much she loved her and how proud she was of her: You were correct when you told her, "A single sentence straight from the heart will be far more meaningful than two pages filled with fancy phrases from a stranger."

My father was never one to write letters. In fact, I had never seen a letter that he had written until I was in college and received an award for some special achievement. Much to my surprise, I received the following letter from my father:

Dear Son,

I am proud of you. Keep up the good work. — Dad

Abby, I still have that letter. It wasn't two pages long, and it wasn't written by Shakespeare, but it meant the world to me. I still keep it in my desk drawer, and if I ever become discouraged, I take it out and read it.

So, as the old saying goes, it's not the quantity but the quality that counts.

MTV Awards Get New Look For 'Action'

By John Overman
UPI Pop Music Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The producers of the third annual MTV Awards, heeding the yawns produced by recent Oscar, Emmy and Grammy shows, are revamping Friday's ceremonies to eliminate long speeches and give the show "more action."

The three-hour program, which will be telecast live on MTV and syndicated nationally at 9 p.m. EDT (Sept. 5), is still aimed at highlighting the best music videos of the year. This year, however, the plan is to distance Music Television from other award events.

"The first and second show were traditional," said Les Garland, Senior Vice President of Music Programming. "You're in a theater, everybody's wearing black tie, the winner staggers up the aisle, takes an award from a gorgeous blonde and thanks the world. This year we want it to be frantic, frenzied, more action."

There will be two locations, the Palladium in New York and the Universal Amphitheatre in Los Angeles.

"There is no podium," said Tom Freston, senior vice president and general manager of MTV. "There will be no long-winded thank-you speeches. Instead, the presenters, who will act as hosts, will stand up anywhere within the confines of the Palladium or the Amphitheatre to give their designated awards."

"We'll open the show with Robert Palmer in Los Angeles," Garland said, "then go directly to New York where the Hooters will get it off. So we'll make a statement in the first 7 minutes that this is a music show as well as an awards show. We're going to try to get 19 songs into the show."

The idea to open the show up may also have been inspired in part by Eddie Murphy's antics last year. Acting as host, Murphy unexpectedly left the stage and rambled through the audience at Radio City Music Hall, finally ending up in the ladies' bathroom. "I thought it was one of the most magical moments in the history of MTV," says Garland.

Accordingly, the show is set up to promote improvisation. "Less than 15 percent of the program is scripted," says Garland. "We're flying by the seat of our pants. It's live TV, it's rock 'n' roll, it shouldn't be scripted, it should be loose and there should be a few mistakes. I think the audience will enjoy that."

Dire Straits and a-Ha lead all groups with 10 nominations for music video awards.

Eight of the nominations Dire Straits and a-Ha received were for the same categories. Both groups were nominated for "Best Video," "Best Concept Video," "Best Group Video," "Best Special Effects," "Best Art Direction," "Best Editing," "Best Direction" and "Most Experimental Video."

Pat Benatar received seven nominations, ZZ Top six. The West Coast band X got five and Robert Palmer and Talking Heads four each.

Presenters on this year's program will include Don Johnson, Jay Leno, Janet Jackson, Rod Stewart, Motley Crue, the Bangles, Steven Wright, Bakarama and Gilbert Godfried.

The show will also feature live performances by Tina Turner, Whitney Houston, Simply Red, Van Halen, Genesis, Pet Shop Boys, Mr. Mister, Til

Tuesday and the Monkees.

Huey Lewis and sports announcer Bob Costas will host a two-hour warmup special on MTV starting at 7 p.m. "The MTV VMA 1986 Pre-Game Show" will spotlight the five finalists in the "Best Video of the Year" awards category. Artists with nominations in more than one category will be profiled, as will the nominees for "Best New Artist in a Video," and live performances from past MTV awards shows will be shown.

The nominees were selected by more than 1,700 members of the record and video music industries who chose from 717 videos acquired and exhibited for the first time on MTV from May 2, 1985 to May 1, 1986.

Nominees in the production categories were selected by 200-plus professionals in video production, such as video producers and directors, video editors, art directors and other artists and technicians.

Additionally, MTV viewers themselves vote for the "Viewer's Choice" award.

Director Refuses Censorship For Film On 'Last Emperor' Of China

PEKING (UPI) — Bernardo Bertolucci, director of the erotic movie "Last Tango in Paris," says he will accept no censorship of his latest film — the story of China's last emperor from infant monarch to jailed war criminal.

"I'm not too interested in a description of an exotic, picturesque China," said Bertolucci, whose "The Last Emperor" is the first movie about the country's modern history filmed by westerners in communist China.

The stocky Italian director said the $20 million production will convey "the fantasy of the child" — the infant Pu Yi who in 1908, at age 3, ascended the Dragon Throne as the last Son of Heaven and Manchu monarch.

The film will describe Pu Yi's life in Peking's Imperial Forbidden City, sheltered from the convulsions that ended his dynasty and established China as a republic in 1911.

"Nobody has asked me to do propaganda," said Bertolucci. "In my career I never accepted any kind of pressure or censorship and I don't see why I should start here."

Last year, the Chinese government said it would be more selective about the content of films to be produced by foreign companies in China.

The manager of the Chinese Motion Picture Cooperative Production Co., Li Zhiming, said the film industry had "gone astray" by producing films offensive to national sentiments. Rafaella de Laurentis, the producer of a $25 million film of James Clavell's novel "Tai Pan" made last year in southern China, reportedly said she would not have started if she had known the bureaucratic problems and cost overruns involved.

The domestic movie industry is subject to more overt pressures. In January, the government moved to muzzle China's increasingly experimental Film Bureau by shifting it from the jurisdiction of the Ministry of Culture to the more propagandist Radio and Television Ministry.

Chinese leaders were furious over the anti-war film "Dove Tree," a sympathetic portrayal of Peking's and Hanof's sides in the 1979 Sino-Vietnamese War, and ordered the destruction of every copy produced.

Bertolucci said, however, his film script had been approved by Chinese authorities without any changes.

"I think maybe what is interesting is the last part," he said, describing Pu Yi's internment as a war criminal and his release in 1959 to spend the last eight years of his life as an ordinary citizen for the first time.

The film, slated for release in October 1987, stars American-Chinese John Lone as Pu Yi, British actor Peter O'Toole, Chinese-born Joan Chen and Ying Ruoqiang, China's recently appointed Vice Minister of Culture.

"I think the movie will be successful if we can explain what 're-education' means," he said, referring to the term used by the government to describe the ex-emperor's detention.

"Pu Yi is forced to think ... about his old mistakes. He had to write (them) down ... but he was never asked to become a communist, that wasn't the goal," Bertolucci said. "When he goes out of prison, we don't know if he's changed. Freedom is part of the re-education."

"Let's not forget that Pu Yi was a war criminal. Probably if he was in Nuremberg he would have been executed."

Drawn to China because he felt "a little bit bored" by Italy, Bertolucci said he became fascinated by the story of Pu Yi described in the autobiography "From Emperor to Citizen."

Town Cooks Up Kielbasa Record

CHICOPEE, Mass. (UPI) — A western Massachusetts town regained its claim to being home of the world's largest kielbasa, with the unveiling of a monstrous, 412-pound aggregate of beef, pork and secret spices.

A meat packing company from Milwaukee stole the title away last year when it came up with a 400-pound, ringed sausage for a Polish festival in the Midwestern city.

But a spokesman for the Chicopee Provision Co., which introduced its 1986 King Kielbasa Wednesday, said a larger wrapper allowed the firm to regain their city's claim to fame.

Run-Off Candidates Jockeying For Support

Martinez To Frey: Drop Out

Veteran Republican Lou Frey has rejected a suggestion he withdraw from the Sept. 30 GOP primary for governor and leave the field clear for former Tampa Mayor Bob Martinez to concentrate on the coming battle with the Democrat nominee.

Martinez, who switched to the GOP from the Democrat Party amid national fanfare in 1983, led the four-candidate first primary with 45 percent of the vote and suggested the possible withdrawal at a post-election news conference Wednesday in which he welcomed Jack Eckerd to his campaign.

Eckerd, who staged a bitter fight with Frey for the 1978 GOP nomination for governor, was a strong supporter of Tom Gallagher, who finished third with 23 percent of the vote behind Frey's 24 percent.

"We are here today asking that all those great supporters that Tom Gallagher had, and Chester Clem and Lou Frey, that they come together," Martinez said. "There is a great opportunity here to win in November."

"We are urging all of the Tom Gallagher supporters, all of Chester Clem's supporters, and of course, Lou Frey and his supporters to join us in a spirit of unity to make certain that we do win this nomination and that we do defeat the Democrats Nov. 4th," Martinez said.

"Lou ain't stepping aside," Frey spokesman Steve Thompson said late Wednesday. "You've got 56 percent of the Republicans who did not want Mr. Martinez in office. They want someone who has a Republican background."

(At the time Thompson spoke, Martinez had 44 percent of the vote.)

Thompson said Frey met with Gallagher in Miami and "it's my understanding Tom did not ask him to withdraw." He said the Frey staff had been in day-long strategy meetings and had been in contact with the campaign's consultants in Washington.

Lou Frey

Officials at the Gallagher headquarters in Miami said Frey and Gallagher met for about two hours Wednesday, but said Gallagher did not endorse either candidate.

Eckerd said Frey had run "a credible campaign" but did not have a chance in the runoff and should concede to Martinez.

"I think it's an opportunity for us to join together and see that we do have a viable two-party system here in Florida," Eckerd said.

Eckerd was asked if he thinks there is a chance Frey eventually will withdraw and said "Yes, I do. Realistically, it's the way to go if we are truly good Republicans and if we truly believe that in Florida ... the best way to get a two-party system in Florida is to take the executive branch of government."

Smith Wants Johnston's Endorsement

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Jim Smith said he plans to discuss a possible endorsement with Senate President Harry Johnston and vowed to run his runoff campaign against Steve Pajcic on his record and background.

"I am willing to stand on my record and compare our records in full view of the voters and I ask that my opponent do likewise," Smith said Wednesday. He said he does not want to "fire the first shot in a negative campaign."

The fierce Democratic campaign was marred by accusations hurled by Smith and Pajcic against each other's voting records, consistency and qualifications.

Smith said he hopes to talk with Johnston Thursday about a possible endorsement.

Johnston spent Wednesday relaxing from an 11th hour campaign frenzy that gave him 26 percent of the Democratic vote — 20 points more than election eve polls suggested he would win, but not enough to merit a runoff place.

Colin Leitch, Johnston's campaign manager, said the surviving candidates would have to wait for an endorsement.

Steve Pajcic

"Harry is sleeping for 48 hours," he said. "There are no plans for any endorsement. There is no meeting set with any candidate. There is nothing in the offing at all."

The tally in Tuesday's balloting with 87 percent of the vote counted was 347,703 votes for Pajcic or 36 percent; 293,742 for Smith or 30 percent; and 248,255 votes for Johnston.

Former Gainesville Mayor Mark Goldstein and Tavares lawyer Joan Wollin fielded feisty but poorly funded campaigns. Goldstein won 58,808 votes or 6 percent. Wollin had 21,306 votes or 2 percent.

Former House member Pajcic staged a news conference Wednesday in Jacksonville, his home town, to offer Smith a personal meeting and an end to the bitterness of the weeks preceding Tuesday's primary. Then he

Smith briefly aired a radio ad during the campaign that appeared to challenge Pajcic's manhood. The spot highlighted Pajcic's promise to sign death warrants despite his personal opposition to capital punishment, and urged him to "be a man" and stand up for his beliefs.

Pajcic responded with a television spot featuring dizzy music and a montage of newspaper headlines highlighting Smith's dalliance with the Republican Party, his decision to run for lieutenant governor on Johnston's ticket, his subsequent falling out with Johnston, and his consideration of a run for Congress.

New Jersey Man's Death Linked To Cyanide In Instant Soup

CAMDEN, N.J. — Thomas J. Lipton Co. pulled chicken noodle Cup-a-Soup from one store because a man who ate the product was killed by cyanide, and an open envelope of the soup mix tainted with the poison was found in his house.

The death of Lewis Dunbar, 27, of Runnemedede was the seventh this year in the United States linked to poisoned consumer products and may be the first ever involving random tampering of a packaged food. The six previous deaths were caused by ingestion of poisoned non-prescription medicines.

Dunbar bought the instant soup package at Clements

Bridge Shop 'n' Bag in Runnemedede Plaza just before Labor Day, Camden County Prosecutor Samuel Asbell said.

Dunbar went into convulsions two hours after eating a cup of the soup and died Monday, Asbell said. An autopsy performed Wednesday determined Dunbar died of cyanide poisoning, he said.

A box of Lipton chicken noodle Cup-a-Soup was found in Dunbar's apartment, and traces of cyanide were found both in Dunbar's body and in the remains of an opened envelope of the soup, Asbell said.

The case was being investigated as an apparent homicide, he said.

"We know right now that there is a hole in the outer packaging," Asbell said. "We're examining this packaging for evidence of fingerprints and things of that nature."

Asbell said he had obtained an order from state Superior Court to confiscate any similar foodstuffs from the 24-hour convenience store where Dunbar bought the soup.

Food and Drug Administration spokesman Bill Grigg confirmed that the product was taken from the store's shelves. But Grigg said the agency had not ordered Lipton products removed from other stores in the area.

Lipton officials in Englewood Cliffs, N.J., told Asbell they believed the tampering was an isolated incident. They could not be reached for comment.

The FBI also began an investigation into the poisoning, a spokesman for the agency said.

Dunbar's girlfriend was with him when he ate the soup, but did not eat any herself and was not sick, Asbell said. The girlfriend, who was not identified, was not a suspect in the homicide investigation, he said.

The Philadelphia Inquirer reported that Dunbar worked for RCA, a major Camden County employer, and had recently been discharged after a four-year tour in the Air Force.

Of the seven deaths in 1986 linked to poisoned consumer products, three eventually were classified as suicides.

A wave of consumer product tampering cases began on Sept. 29, 1982, when seven people in the Chicago area were killed by cyanide-laced Extra Strength Tylenol capsules.

The Tylenol poisonings prompted the pharmaceutical industry to adopt tamper-resistant packaging. The recurrence of apparent random poisonings of over-the-counter medications has led several drug companies to discontinue marketing such medicines in capsule form, opting instead for capsule-shaped "caplet" pills.

Three of the 1986 deaths that were linked to poisoned over-the-counter drugs were in Washington state and one was in Peekskill, N.Y. Three of the six deaths were suspected suicides — one in Pullman, Wash., one in Nashville, Tenn., and one in Austin, Texas.

The products involved in those deaths were capsule forms of Extra-Strength Tylenol, Extra-Strength Excedrin and Extra-Strength Anacin-3.

A federal judge Tuesday sentenced Norman Mark Allen of Pennsylvania to five years in prison.

Controller Says He Didn't See Piper Even Though Computer Tracked Plane

CERRITOS, Calif. (UPI) — The air controller who monitored doomed Aeromexico Flight 498 on radar said he never saw the small plane that collided with the DC-9, even though the tower's computer was tracking the single-engine craft, federal investigators said.

At the time he failed to see the plane on radar, the controller was doing two jobs at once, the investigators said Wednesday. They said it would be "very simple" to do both jobs, but would not comment on whether it was a normal practice and added that they were "still addressing" scheduling procedures.

All 67 people aboard the planes and at least three on the ground were killed Sunday. Fifteen people were missing and the death toll was expected to rise.

John Lauber of the National Transportation Safety Board said because the tower computer was tracking the Piper "it is a reasonable presumption it would have shown up on the screen" before it sliced off the tail of DC-9.

But Lauber said even if the controller had seen the private plane on his screen, he would not have known its altitude, and thus that it was headed for a collision with the Aeromexico jetliner.

Investigators said the Piper had a transponder that apparently notified the tower's computer of its presence in restricted airspace, but did not carry another device that would have told the computer its altitude.

The Piper never contacted the Los Angeles International Airport tower, even after violating the airspace largely restricted to commercial planes on landing approach.

The controller was formally interviewed Wednesday for the first time since the 38-ton DC-9 collided with the Piper and fell into a Los Angeles suburb, destroying or badly damaging 18 houses in a hail of flame, debris and gore.

Asked what the controller could have done without the altitude of the Piper, Lauber said, "He could have given a routine traffic advisory, that's all."

Controllers are not required to give such an advisory. The Aeromexico jet was told of the presence of another small plane — one of at least six in the area — but was not told of the Piper.

Lauber said the controller "characterized the volume of traffic that he was working at the time as 'light.'"

More interviews are planned with the controller, who was not identified. As a matter of routine, the controller has been relieved of his duties during the investigation. He was described as "fully checked out" for his job at one of the world's busiest airports.

The results of a routine drug test are pending.

Lauber said the controller was handling two separate functions at the time of the crash — monitoring traffic on his radar screen and performing a "hand off" function, which means he was directing planes to and from other sectors.

Lauber said it is "a very simple process" to do both jobs. Pressed to explain if this was normal procedure, Lauber said, "I can't characterize it as normal or not. It would not be unusual with light traffic."

He said, "We're still addressing the question of scheduling."

Investigators also said it appeared the Piper flew into the DC-9's tail section.
